Those eyes were not Sharon's inherent black, but a silvery-gray that was very familiar to him.

T/N:

1. A sect. All informants from Monkey Watchtower is from this sect.
First mentioned in Chp.83[↔]

[Calm yourself, my son.]

A voice that seemed to be conveyed directly to the mind rather than the ears.

"...Dame Sharon?"

Seongjin blinked his eyes.

Clearly, the one blocking his hand now had the appearance of Dame Sharon.

However, those eyes gazing down at him intently... They were not her original ones, but silvery-gray eyes that Seongjin knew very well, belonging to someone else.

'...Huh?'

Before he even realized it, Seongjin was calling out to him.

"Father?!"

Then Sharon, no, the Holy Emperor spoke again.

[It's not time yet. You don't need to go that far now.]

The moment he heard those words...

Slowly, the unknown pulsation subsided, and the Aura raging in his arm calmly settled down.

The bizarrely expanded field of vision returned, and the elevated spirit that had been stretching out also instantly dissipated.

Now, there was no longer any twisted crack between dimensions or the thread-like trajectory of a soul left in Seongjin's sight. Only the sight of Isabella trembling and looking at him remained.

'...What was that?'

A feeling of his consciousness somehow vastly expanding.

He felt like it was something tremendously important that he shouldn't miss.

As he tried to recall the sensation that had already disappeared with a dazed mind, the hand that had been pressing down on him lifted away, confirming that the strength had left Seongjin's arm.

Seongjin looked up at this tall exorcist with renewed astonishment.

'It's still Dame Sharon, but...'

Although the outward appearance was that eccentric exorcist from the demon control squad, the air surrounding her now was clearly different from before.

That unique Aura that was thoroughly controlled yet also utterly natural.

Dame Sharon wasn't originally someone with such a low level, but the current Aura operation that seemed to perfectly blend into the surroundings was almost at the level of a Decalon Knight. It was no wonder Seongjin had no idea until she got this close.

And above all, those eyes.

There couldn't be another person in this world with such eyes.

This situation wasn't so unfamiliar to Seongjin. Didn't he feel exactly like this when the leader of Arenja possessed Commander Bruno some time ago?

[Hiiiieek!]

Seeing the Demon King who had been screaming strangely without being able to say a word, it was certain. The one possessing Dame

Sharon right now was definitely the Holy Emperor.

Thud!

At that moment, Isabella staggered and slumped to the floor. Her unfocused eyes, seemingly having received a great shock, were shaking wildly.

"I, I..."

The inquisitor, no, the Holy Emperor who had been looking down at her with a chilling gaze for a moment, opened his mouth.

[That one just left.]

"It can't be..."

Isabella, who had been staring at the void with a dazed face, shook her head violently.

"That's... impossible. I am... the Demon King of Dreams..."

Before long, tears began to fall from her eyes.

"I, hic! I am not... some mere human... N-no..."

And soon, Isabella collapsed, unable to support herself, and burst into sobs while scratching the floor with her nails.

The sound of crying, so sorrowful as if squeezing out all internal organs, of someone who had lost everything that supported their life in an instant.

Seongjin could instinctively tell.

That Isabella, who used to prance around the room with a needle stuck in her arm, was no longer there.

"Father."

Seongjin stepped forward with determination and opened his mouth.

"Isabella is already a complete puppet of Sigurd Sigursson. Although he was driven away for now, as long as the connection remains, we don't know when that bastard will return here."

[.....]

"A sense of self that has been eroded to that extent may be irreversible. Even now that he's gone, she still believes herself to be the Demon King of Dreams, doesn't she?"

Seongjin didn't know how to sever the connection of a puppet. He had no idea how Riccardo's connection was cut off.

And even if, by some chance, there was a way to successfully disconnect that guy and Isabella, would that be a good thing?

Even Riccardo, who thought of himself as simply an accomplice, frequently suffered from delusions and seizures, so could Isabella, who had lost her sense of self, endure that sense of loss?

"Sigurd Sigurdson, he is an extremely dangerous individual. It's definitely not right for Isabella, but here, there's no choice but to make a decision."

At those words, Isabella raised her head and looked at Seongjin. Her turquoise eyes, filled with sorrow and fear, shook violently like a stormy sea.

Without avoiding that gaze, Seongjin finally uttered the heavy last words.

"...Father. Before bigger problems arise, we have to cut down the puppet here and now!"

Then the Holy Emperor lowered his gaze and stared at Seongjin intently.

Although he had said those words expecting condemnation or reproach, unexpectedly, the Holy Emperor's eyes toward Seongjin were filled with a deep light of understanding.

[Yes. Your judgment is reasonable.]

"Then...!"

Pat.

Before Seongjin could say anything more, a hand was placed on top of his head.

And a voice was heard softly.

[I know well that you will never hesitate to make a choice in the face of adversity,]

Pat pat.

The light gesture of patting his head had a strangely reassuring aspect to it.

Seongjin, who had been standing in a daze with a feeling of his strength draining away, finally realized that he had been unnecessarily tensing his whole body.

[But my son, you don't need to be driven to make such a choice yet.]

"Uh..."

[Isn't it okay to entrust that burden to someone else sometimes?]

Consoling Seongjin like that and patting his head a few more times, the Holy Emperor slowly approached Isabella.

[Your brother cooperated with that one of his own will, but what about you?]

"I, I..."

Isabella, who had turned pale, trembled and couldn't properly continue her words. The Emperor, who had been looking down at her, let out a small sigh.

[...It may already be too late, but what needs to be done must be done.]

And in an instant, Seongjin couldn't believe his eyes.

Because the Holy Emperor, drawing his shotel like lightning, directly stabbed the sharp silver curved blade into Isabella's crown!

[TL/N: A shotel is a Persian blade.

https://upload.wikimedia.org/wikipedia/commons/thumb/0/0b/Shotel%2C_BM.jpg/360px-Shotel%2C_BM.jpg]

Splat!

"...!?"

Splash.

Isabella's body limply fell backwards, spewing out a fountain of blood.

An enormous amount of bleeding spread out in concentric circles centered around her body.

Shocked by that sight, Seongjin just blinked and blankly stared at the Holy Emperor.

"Uh..."

What? I definitely thought he was trying to stop me from cutting down Isabella, but why did he suddenly do it himself...?

Could it be that not bearing the burden alone and entrusting it meant...

"Are you telling me to leave some of your share when taking revenge in the future?"

[.....]

After looking at Seongjin with a strange expression for a moment, the Holy Emperor was about to open his mouth when Dasha rushed into the study and shouted.

"Your Majesty, something seems off! It was too easy, and the ones watching from afar... Aaaahhhh!"

She couldn't continue her words and gaped at the gruesome sight of the study reeking of blood, and the Holy Emperor slowly bent down and touched Isabella's fallen head.

Soon, a bright light burst from that hand, and Isabella's complexion, which had been as pale as a dead person, instantly brightened.

Her blood flow had completely returned and her breathing became steady. If someone who didn't know saw her, they might think she was sleeping on the floor.

At that moment, a puzzle piece fell into place in Seongjin's mind.

Riccardo, who was found without a single wound along with evidence of strangely excessive bleeding.

"Did you perhaps do the exact same thing to that bastard Riccardo before, cracking his head open?"

[.....]

That's right, this person.

'Wait a minute, then the one who severed the connection between the Storyteller and Riccardo was possibly...?'

Seongjin looked down at Isabella lying in a pool of blood with renewed astonishment.

That appearance that seemed to be in a deep sleep, and now likely to be extremely harmless.

Didn't he say there was no need to choose yet?

'I see...'

Perhaps as long as this person is in front of me...

I...

At that moment, Dasha, who had been carefully examining outside the window, muttered.

"The presence is getting closer, Your Highness. We need to withdraw from here first, so please hurry. Lady Knight, follow me as well. Quickly!"

Dasha probably had no idea that Dame Sharon was the Holy Emperor.

"Ah, wait a moment. There's something I need to leave here."

"Pardon?"

In front of the puzzled Dasha, Seongjin grinned confidently and took out another medallion from his bosom.

"Dominico[1]. There was an intruder at the townhouse. Riccardo was badly injured, and Isabella is currently unconscious."

At the Scarcepino main residence.

Dominico, who had been working diligently until dawn, nodded his head without taking his eyes off the documents even at the informant's report.

"I see."

He spoke as if he had already expected it.

"Is it the Milo Company or the Dark Cult?"

"Well... We only managed to observe from a distance, so it's not certain. But the Dark Cult's emblem was left at the scene."

Dominico glanced at the small medallion presented by his personal informant, Olivier, and then stuck his nose back into the documents with a largely uninterested attitude.

On the day Young Master Riccardo collapsed in the garden.

After finishing the aftermath of the social gathering, Dominico had entered the main residence with all the security team escorting him.

As a result, the security at the townhouse mansion inevitably became lax, but neither Riccardo nor Isabella said anything about the reduction of security personnel.

"I should contact Grand Prince Siegmund. It seems Isabella has fallen ill and unfortunately will not be able to attend this birthday celebration."

"Haha."

Olivier, who let out a hollow laugh, crossed his legs and sneered.

"How cold. This is about your siblings, Dominico. Aren't you worried?"

At those words, the turquoise eyes that looked frigid glared at Olivier through the glasses.

"Didn't I tell you, Olivier? They haven't been my siblings for a long time."

The next day, morning.

Orden rubbed his temples, feeling a headache at the urgent news delivered early in the morning from the Scarcepinio family.

The story that Isabella suddenly collapsed yesterday and would not be able to attend the birthday celebration.

It was already ridiculous that they had threatened to be partners out of the blue while sending the emblem of the Dark Cult, but this was also infuriating in its own way.

Although he didn't want to attach meaning to every single thing, Orden himself was still a celebrity enjoying the highest popularity in the Empire.

But now he had abruptly lost his partner and had to attend the birthday celebration alone. What kind of humiliation was this!

"Well, even popular men have days like this, don't they? Cheer up, Lord Orden."

Leaving behind Herman's consolation that sounded like provocation, he received an unexpected contact while preparing to attend the grand mass with a gloomy face. It was a summons from the saintess called the Goddess's small blessing.

Arriving at St. Bastian's Church in a daze, Saintess Sisle greeted him together with Prince Logan.

"Greetings, Your Highness, Your Holiness."

Orden politely bowed and then glanced at Prince Logan standing slightly behind.

The genius holy knight evaluated as the most promising swordsman in Delcross along with himself.

His Aura activation, which could be clearly sensed, was similar to or slightly lower than Orden's. Considering that he was several years younger, it was undoubtedly a phenomenal achievement.

But for some reason... Whenever he saw him, he sometimes felt a vague fear that there might be more to him than that.

I thought it was a clear and small lake, but upon entering, it felt like an unfathomable ocean where I couldn't find my footing.

"The princes of the imperial family all have some discomforting aspects about them."

Orden thought that way as he recalled Prince Morres, who always curled his lips unpleasantly whenever he saw him.

However, if he knew what thoughts Logan had in his mind right now, he would have been astonished.

"He's a rare young man these days. His innate qualities as a swordsman can only be described as heaven-sent."

Logan was looking at Orden with quite a satisfying gaze.

'On top of that, he's a serious fellow who never utters any nonsense. He's a splendid young man who seems to have painted the virtue of practicing what he preaches!'

If Seongjin had known, he would have probably been annoyed and said, "That guy is just simply ignorant, you old geezer!"

"Young master Siegmund."

A voice as transparent as a crystal was heard above Orden's head as he bowed.

"I'm sorry for suddenly calling you here like this. If it's alright with you, Young Master, may I ask you for a favor?"

At those words, Orden raised his head and looked at the small, snow-white princess in front of him.

Unlike Amelia, who had a wide range of expressions, this girl had few expressions, like a delicate doll, but...

'Those eyes...'

Unknowingly, a layer of his heart's guard crumbled when he looked into those clear, gray eyes that resembled Amelia's.

He knelt on one knee to meet the little princess's eyes and answered,

"Yes, Your Holiness. Please give me your command."

At his uncharacteristically soft voice, Herman, who was standing next to him, looked at him in surprise.

"As you know, Young Master, today will be my first birthday celebration. So I need the help of someone as excellent as you."

Originally, the Orthodox Church planned to introduce Sisle at this birthday celebration where the continent's major figures would gather. However, unexpectedly, a new saintess appeared recently, so they decided to announce the two saintess simultaneously.

The problem was that Seo Yi-seo hadn't properly learned court etiquette, let alone dancing.

What a disgrace it would be if she made a big mistake at an event where the empire's prestige was at stake. On top of that, there was even a bomb named Cardmos mixed in there!

-I will escort her. I'll keep a close eye on her without taking my eyes off her for a moment, as we don't know when or what kind of unexpected situation Cardmos might create.

As the strongest swordsman in the entire East and the youngest Sword Master, Logan felt a sense of responsibility to take control of this troublesome variable first.

-Then what about Sisle?

When Seongjin asked, Amelia pondered for a moment before answering.

-Come to think of it, I did hear some news about Lady Scarcepino being involved in some kind of accident...

That's how Orden was abruptly summoned to the church.

"Young Master Siegmund. Would you please be my partner at the birthday celebration?"

As a small, white hand reached out, Orden held it up and answered with sincerity.

"It would be the honor of my life to be Your Holiness's escort."

Of course, it was his utmost sincerity.

If he served the saint with all his heart and soul, perhaps Amelia, who loved her siblings, would smile at him once more.

It was a bonus that Logan, who was standing behind him, nodded his head in satisfaction at that sincere answer.

T/N:

1. Isabella and Riccardo's eldest brother and sibling. First mentioned in Chp.114[↔]

The day of the birthday banquet had dawned.

Seongjin, who had lacked sleep from wandering around outside the palace the night before, ended up sleeping in completely that day.

Skipping morning training and dozing off with food in his mouth during breakfast, Edith was shocked to see Seongjin's state like that.

"Oh my goodness, Your Highness! What's with your face!"

"Huh? Why?"

"It's completely withered and swollen! On this important day when you should be showing your best appearance, what kind of unexpected disaster is this? Huh?"

Hmm, is it so exaggerated that she's making a fuss? Although he felt a bit heavy in his body.

However, it seemed different in the eyes of the maids.

Because the other maids who came running one after another at Edith's call showed a truly variety of reactions upon seeing Seongjin's face.

As a result, Seongjin had to quietly stay in his room with his face covered in strange things like packs and whatnot right after finishing breakfast.

"Yawn."

Seongjin didn't rush to the training grounds like usual. His body felt unusually tired and sluggish.

And didn't he have the skill of meditating while lying down that he had recently mastered?

While receiving the maids' care and alternating between dozing off and meditating, Edith grumbled as she wiped Seongjin's face with cold water.

"Your Highness, why did you choose to do an all-night meditation on the night before the birthday banquet of all days?"

"Huh?"

All-night meditation?

"Since you weren't sleep-talking unlike usual, I went to find the guard knight, and he said he received a warning from Commander Bruno. He said that Your Highness was in the middle of an important meditation and not to disturb you until morning."

"The commander?"

When Seongjin turned to the side, Commander Bruno was stroking his mustache, looking at Seongjin with a meaningful gaze.

'...He knows.'

Well, he didn't expect to be able to sneak out of the palace secretly as a former Decalon Knight.

He probably got a general idea of the situation through Arenja and prevented it from becoming a big commotion like before.

At the very least, it was a great relief that Sir Masain wasn't present at the moment. He would have definitely noticed something and tried to question Seongjin.

Sir Masain had returned to his residence in the capital the previous evening for a change. He also had many things to prepare for the birthday banquet as a member of the imperial family.

'But sleep-talking, what could it be...?'

Edith had a history of being the first to notice Seongjin's absence before.

So when he asked for details, she said that Seongjin would sleep-talk for a few minutes every day after midnight at the same time.

She said it started after he had suffered from a fever, so it was probably a habit that Morres didn't have.

Seongjin was very perplexed because he had never heard of having such a sleeping habit before. So when he asked her what kind of sleep-talking he did.

-Well, I'm not sure? It sounded like mumbling, so I couldn't understand it well. Sometimes it seemed like it wasn't the Delcross language.

Edith spoke with a nonchalant face, but Seongjin felt a bit eerie upon hearing that answer.

This child said it without much thought, but what if another servant had heard it?

The prince they serve sleep-talks in an unknown dialect in the middle of the night, wouldn't they suspect that he was possessed by a demon or something?

When he asked the Demon King, his answer was even more absurd.

-I don't know what it means either? Maybe it wasn't proper words, but just baby talk. Don't give it much thought.

Baby talk, are you joking right now?

Seongjin was dumbfounded, but the Demon King refused to speak any further with a somewhat dubious look after that.

'It's bothering me...'

However, there was no time to ponder more about the sleep-talking. Amelia and Logan had come to visit Pearl Palace early in the morning.

Seeing Seongjin with his face covered in something, they found it amusing for some reason and sat down on either side of him.

"You of all people stayed up the night before the birthday banquet. Don't you know how important today is?"

"Yeah, Morres. I guess you'll have to spend the whole morning just taking care of your face."

"No, why is everyone making such a fuss? It's not like the banquet is only today..."

As Seongjin grumbled like that, the two looked at each other and nodded.

"It seems he really doesn't know how things work."

"Right. He said he doesn't have any previous memories at all."

Then Amelia calmly explained to Seongjin.

"Listen well, Morres. There's a reason why the maids are acting like this. It's no exaggeration to say that today's banquet is the most important one of the year."

The birthday banquet is held over a total of three days around the Holy Emperor's birthday.

At first glance, it may seem like the second day is the main event, but upon closer look, the situation is a bit different.

If the main banquet is a ceremony-focused event led by the Holy Emperor, and the banquet on the last day has a slightly lighter atmosphere, like an after-party.

The banquet on the first day is the event where people attend with the most excitement, giving off the feeling of a "grand party."

In any case, since it's an event attended by royalty and famous figures from each country, it's an important day to make a first impression on them.

"Moreover, since Father won't be present, the first day will have a rather free atmosphere. Father probably won't attend the banquet except for the ceremony on the second day. That's how it has been so far."

In other words, it's like a company dinner without the boss.

"But why does Father do that?"

Isn't it his own birthday? Why are the guests enjoying the birthday party among themselves?

As Seongjin wondered, Amelia smiled and said.

"Perhaps he's being considerate of the attendees. Who could comfortably enjoy the banquet under the watchful gaze of the Proxy of the Gods, who is closest to God?"

"Hmm..."

Well, Seongjin could bet his entire fortune that the man wasn't showing up because he found it bothersome.

Although, it was all the fortune he received from his father anyway.

"By the way, what brings you here? Aren't you all busy preparing for the birthday banquet?"

"We have something to discuss together. I have to attend the grand mass soon, so I probably won't have time except for now."

The matter Logan brought up after opening his mouth was as follows.

The state church had decided to have Seo Yi-seo attend the birthday banquet along with Sisle.

"I'm worried about letting her and Cardmos loose in the banquet hall as they are."

Logan seemed to have found it quite threatening when Cardmos almost collapsed the main palace the other day.

"I'll escort her. I'll keep a close eye on her without letting her out of my sight for a moment. We don't know when or what kind of unexpected situation that Cardmos might create."

Seo Yi-seo and Cardmos. Both of them were individuals to be wary of in different ways. Of course, Seongjin could understand Logan's concern.

However...

"Then what about Sisle?"

"Come to think of it, I did hear that something happened to Lady Scarcepino..."

"...?"

"So I was thinking, why don't we ask Young Master Siegmund?"

Seongjin was appalled by Amelia's answer.

"What?"

No way, I absolutely cannot agree to that!

Entrusting the little one to such a delinquent-like guy!

As Seongjin protested vehemently, almost tearing off the packs on his face, Amelia added softly.

"Sisle needs a partner of a certain status. As of now, Young Master Siegmund is probably the only viable option. Even though he's a regional nobleman, the prestige of Margrave Siegmund is by no means inferior to the central high nobles."

Even Logan had a positive reaction.

"He's quite a promising friend. I've only seen him a few times at the previous birthday banquets, but he seemed like a rather reticent yet sincere friend, unlike the typical youth these days."

How can this be! Am I really the only one who knows his true nature?

How can everyone have such poor eyes for people? Especially Logan, isn't he in his second life now?

[Seeing how they fawn over a guy like you, they're definitely too naive.]

'Shut up!'

While having a fierce internal quarrel with the Demon King, Logan carefully picked up the fallen packs and stuck them back on Seongjin's face.

"Hey, dude! Are you putting the stuff that fell on the floor back on someone's face?"

"...Is that not allowed?"

Seeing that innocent face staring blankly at Seongjin, not understanding the situation, his head started to ache.

Ah, my blood pressure is rising.

Meanwhile, Amelia continued with a very worried expression.

"By the way, I'm really worried about Lady Scarcepino. I hope nothing serious has happened to her..."

"..."

"Morres, you should also send a letter inquiring about the well-being of the Scarcepino family as soon as possible. And check on her as soon as the birthday banquet is over. Although it's unofficial, she has been your fiancée for a long time."

Well, Seongjin was quite skeptical about Isabella's condition.

Although she managed to save her life thanks to the Holy Emperor, even if she regains consciousness, her state is still unknown.

If it's as Seongjin guessed, the Holy Emperor probably completely severed her from Sigurd Sigurdsson by striking her head.

However...

-Do you intend to harm this innocent and pitiful person who has almost lost her self-awareness?

If what he said was true, Isabella's personality could be considered to have already disappeared.

If she were to experience a mental disturbance like Ricardo, it would definitely be as severe, if not worse than him.

Still, that might be better. If she still believes herself to be the Storyteller of Dimensions...

'She'll probably think and act thoroughly as Sigurd Sigurdson, won't she?'

Then how should Seongjin perceive and respond to her?

Time passed quickly while being led by the maids to make various preparations.

Finally, when evening came, the maids burst into praise one after another upon seeing Seongjin dressed impeccably in formal attire.

"Your appearance is incomparably dashing!"

"The dark formal wear really makes Your Highness's golden hair stand out, doesn't it?"

"Oh my, even the cuffs and small ornaments match Your Highness's eye color so well!"

"Ah, I think I'll fall in love at first sight!"

...Do they receive training as a group?

Why are their compliments all exactly the same?

Meanwhile, Edith looked at the red jewelry in one corner of the jewelry box with lingering eyes.

"Your Highness, why aren't you wearing such precious gifts that arrived? I heard from the maids of other palaces that red gold is a big trend for this birthday banquet. Everyone is desperate to get their hands on at least one red gold accessory."

Those accessories were expensive gifts sent from the Rabizuri Marquis family not long ago.

I heard that Amelia also received a set of high-end jewelry. It was meant as an apology for the disturbance caused by the guard knights at a local restaurant the other day.

Amelia had carefully placed those gifts in her room and never touched them at all.

Of course, part of the reason was that she was dumbfounded to suddenly receive expensive gifts from a foreign nobleman she had never met before, not knowing the full story behind the incident.

However, there was a more fundamental reason why she didn't wear red gold accessories.

-It's beautifully crafted, but strangely, I find that red luster quite unpleasant, Morres.

That's what Amelia had said.

Indeed, Seongjin also didn't particularly like the metal that shone with a reddish color as if stained with blood.

So the two of them had agreed in advance to wear other accessories while coordinating their dress code, instead of red gold.

"But Grand Duke Asein will be disappointed if he finds out. Red gold is a specialty product of the Asein Duchy."

Grand Duke Asein is Morres's maternal grandfather.

Hearing Edith's words, Seongjin tilted his head.

"By any chance, are there any red gold accessories sent directly from Asein, not Rabizuri?"

"What? No. There hasn't been anything like that..."

"Then it's fine. Don't worry about it."

Since Grand Duke Asein's power was so great, Seongjin had also heard various rumors about him. Like he was a miser who could make merchants who had been in business for decades cry.

But still, even so, how come he hasn't inquired about his grandson's well-being even once after he nearly died?

I'm not expecting him to send herbal tonics, but to this extent, it's safe to say there's almost no affection as family, right?

On top of that, surely he doesn't expect his grandson to directly purchase red gold and even advertise it for him, does he?

[Wow...]

'Wow...'

Arriving in front of Silver Rose Palace, Seongjin and the Demon King simultaneously let out an exclamation in their minds.

Although he already thought of her as a wingless angel walking on earth, Amelia, who had dressed up with determination, truly looked like the goddess of roses who had descended from the heavens.

Wrapped in a dress like intense red petals, Amelia smiled shyly and extended her hand to Seongjin.

"Isn't it a bit awkward?"

"...No, sister. It suits you very well. Truly."

How can a person be so extremely glamorous yet innocent at the same time? She was truly a remarkable beauty.

The problem was that Amelia's appearance was so overwhelming that even that bastard Orden, who had arrived to escort Sisle, couldn't take his eyes off her for a while, completely dazed.

'You bastard, won't you look away? You're dead!'

As Seongjin glared fiercely, the guy finally hurriedly shifted his gaze to the little saint he was supposed to escort.

What kind of rudeness is this, getting enchanted by someone else in front of your partner?

Fortunately, the little saintess, who had been deeply immersed in something, didn't seem to notice that fact at all.

"...it is. Today is truly... night..."

The saintess was muttering something incessantly, mumbling with her small lips.

When Orden, who had become curious, carefully listened with his hearing enhanced by aura, the saintess was repeatedly saying the following words.

"...It's night. Today is truly a beautiful night. Today is truly beautiful..."

"...?"

Tilting his head for a moment, Orden slowly extended his hand towards the saintess.

At that time, he had no idea that it was a precursor to the bomb that would suddenly be dropped on the banquet hall that day.

As the sun set and a red glow hung in the evening sky, the main palace was wrapped in a soft golden light, shining alone like the moon that had just settled on the horizon.

The splendid exterior, with every possible light employed, was both magnificent and supremely sacred. It was indeed a grandeur befitting the reputation of a thousand-year empire.

Considering the noble status of the attendees, the carriages entering the palace were not strictly regulated. As a result, the palace entrance and gardens were already bustling with high-end carriages draped in the insignia of various countries and crowds of people.

Amidst them, the carriage carrying Seongjin's party slowly made its way through.

"...!"

The people who had been gathered in small groups, engaged in conversation, suddenly fell silent and stared at the carriage.

From within the carriage, adorned with the Delcross imperial crest, emerged a pair of siblings with dazzling appearances that could be described as sparkling.

"Oh my, that person is the rose of the imperial palace..."

"Look at that daring red dress. She's certainly not ordinary. The emperor dotes on that princess so much, doesn't he?"

"But who is that person with her?"

"Isn't that Prince Morres?"

"What? That Prince Morres? Really?"

Starting with someone's murmur, a small ripple spread out in concentric circles, slowly emanating from them.

The head designer's words were true. Among the people mostly wearing light-colored banquet attire, Seongjin and Amelia stood out as a particularly eye-catching pair.

'How is it? Doesn't it catch the eye? This is the angel who has descended upon Delcross!'

Seongjin smiled with satisfaction, relishing the gazes of the people. Then, Amelia, who had gently linked arms with him, also whispered with a delighted smile.

"Hehe, look around, Morres. Today, no one can take their eyes off you."

The Demon King, unable to bear it any longer, grumbled in disgust.

[Wow, when two attention-seekers meet, it creates such a minus synergy? It's completely spine-chilling!]

Shut up, you Demon King!

You don't even have a body, so what's with the goosebumps!

The pair that alighted from the carriage following them also became a topic of conversation.

It was the combination of the noble holy maiden, called the small blessing bestowed by the gods, and the young swordsman who had recently gained fame for easily dominating the martial arts tournament across the continent.

"Oh my! Oh my! That person is the one!"

Soon after, various cringe-worthy nicknames like Delcross's Blue Wolf and the Young Wolf of the North poured out from all directions.

Especially the reactions of the noble ladies were so exaggerated that it made one understand how Orden had acted like he had a celebrity disease when they first met.

Tsk, all those for Orden.

While Orden moved with composure, as if it were nothing new, Sisle had been muttering something with a tense face for a while. Her face, already as white as porcelain, had turned pale.

Seongjin, curious, focused his aura and listened carefully.

"...night. Beautiful..."

...Huh?

'Hey, little one. Are you still thinking about that?'

Surely she didn't take those words seriously?

Seongjin was gripped by an ominous premonition and silently broke out in a cold sweat.

As they ascended the stairs and approached the lobby, Logan, who had been waiting for Seongjin's party, greeted them. He was with Seo Yi-seo, dressed in white priestly robes.

I heard that Empress Tatiana had personally ordered formal attire for Logan, but he had stubbornly worn the impeccable uniform of the Holy Knights.

In his posture, standing tall with his back straight, one could sense not only composure but also a kind of stubbornness.

And.

'Cardmos mode from the start.'

Seo Yi-seo's eyes were currently emitting a bright golden light. I had expected him to show up to target the banquet food, but I didn't think he would be in Cardmos mode from the beginning.

"You arrived on time."

Although Logan's face appeared as calm as usual, Seongjin, who had frequently met him recently, could immediately tell. That guy's face was actually rotting away.

'He hates Cardmos to an unusual extent...'

Logan, who had shown strong distrust towards Seo Yi-seo from the beginning, turned pale the moment he learned the identity of Cardmos within him.

To put it nicely, he disliked him, but it was almost to the point of abhorrence. It was surprising that he was silently allowing Cardmos to link arms with him now.

Considering Logan's usual personality of letting things slide with a good face unless it was a serious matter, it was truly strange.

"Brother Masain is already inside. Let's go in for now."

Logan said those words and turned around.

[Hahah! A banquet, a banquet!]

Cardmos repeated absurdly and clung tightly to Logan's arm.

And at that moment.

Boom.

Along with the unfinished ominous energy, the temperature around Logan noticeably dropped by a level.

Wow. How menacing.

As everyone observed Logan's face, only Cardmos himself laughed obliviously.

[The food of a long-awaited banquet! Hahahah!]

The interior of the banquet hall they arrived at was brightly lit, as if it were broad daylight.

The fully illuminated lights collided with the splendid chandeliers, creating a dazzling feast of light that seemed to pour down.

Against the background of the quiet melody played by the orchestra, the sound of conversation and occasional joyful laughter could be heard from here and there.

"Greetings to Your Highnesses."

"Greetings to the Princess and Prince."

Wherever Seongjin's party passed, nobles who had stopped in their tracks lightly bowed their heads and paid their respects.

He had heard that in some royal families like Brittany or Rohan, one couldn't even casually greet a superior before being spoken to, but compared to that, Delcross had a relatively free atmosphere with less strict etiquette.

As Seongjin carefully observed his surroundings, he noticed that distinguished guests invited from all over the continent were mingling in groups, wearing banquet attire that strongly reflected the colors of their respective regions.

There were also places where clergy members had gathered, and he caught a glimpse of Sir Masain, surrounded by high-ranking priests including Cardinal Benitus, sweating profusely.

And there was also a face he hadn't seen in quite a while.

"Morres!"

"Morres!"

It was the twins he hadn't met in a long time. Herna and Gades ran over with delighted expressions and simultaneously embraced Seongjin from both sides.

'This is unexpected. Seeing them like this, they do look their age.'

Normally, the twins gave off a completely childlike impression, making it hard to believe they were older than Sisle.

But dressed up neatly like this, they gave off a gentlemanly and ladylike aura, didn't they?

"Hello, Red!"

"Have you been well, Red?"

Of course, their behavior and words were still the same as always.

[What did you say? Who are you calling Red! Kraaak! You little...!]

Ignoring the Demon King who was prancing around in his mind, Seongjin turned his attention to the twins.

Apart from their formal attire, there was something particularly eye-catching: the red and gold accessories the children wore here and there.

Noticing Seongjin's gaze, the twins spoke up.

"We begged Father Emperor to buy them for us. It's the trend these days!"

"His Majesty Father was quite troubled, so we begged even more!"

"....."

Do you find it that amusing to trouble that man, you little devils!

"We couldn't help it either. Somehow, this red color feels nostalgic."

"You could say it was irresistible. This color is stimulating and, at the same time, evokes a sense of nostalgia."

"Oh, is that so."

As Seongjin tilted his head in confusion, he asked.

"...But why are you two speaking in reverse today?"

Although the twins had no distinguishing features in terms of their faces and physiques, Seongjin had been gradually grasping the characteristics of the two while interacting with them.

First, the one who impatiently opens their mouth first is Herna. She calls the emperor "Emperor Daddy."

On the other hand, the one who discreetly observes and supports Herna's words is Gades. He calls the emperor "His Majesty Father."

At that, the twins' eyes widened.

"Wow! Morres is sharp in strange places, isn't he?"

"Ooh! As expected, we can't let our guard down around Morres, right?"

Really? Did you two actually switch clothes and come here?

At the birthday banquet, which is said to be the most important event of the year?

"If we miss this day, when else would we play such a prank?"

"It's a precious opportunity that comes only once a year."

Then, tapping the violet sash, Herna said.

"Only Morres should know about this, okay?"

Likewise, fluttering the hem of her violet dress, Gades said.

"Morres can keep a secret. We trust you!"

And the two burst into laughter in unison.

"Hehehe!"

"....."

Seongjin was at a loss for words.

As he always thought, with his extremely normal way of thinking, he could never keep up with these fourth-dimensional children.

[...Who's normal?]

'Shut up!'

The twins, who had been giggling for a while, soon joined hands and ran towards Masain.

And then.

"Her Majesty the Empress is entering! Everyone, pay your respects!"

Soon, with the empress's entrance, the orchestra's music stopped, and the murmuring of the people subsided. Everyone ceased their chatter and simultaneously looked at the head table placed at the front of the banquet hall.

Click, click.

The empress, walking towards the platform with graceful steps, looked exceptionally beautiful.

It was a rather elaborate adornment, but the peculiar thing was that there was not a single red-gold accessory on her.

Perhaps it hurt her pride to adorn herself with the specialty products of the enemy's homeland, or maybe she wanted to project a humble image; it was impossible to know.

Melody, the queen following behind her, was also dressed relatively plainly.

On the other hand, Queen Lizabeth's side looked like a living red-gold accessory display.

From the accessories decorating various parts of her dress to the small pins stuck in her hair, everything glowed red.

Seongjin suddenly wondered if the stingy Grand Duke Asein had contributed to obtaining all those accessories or if the queen had directly purchased them with her own budget.

Meanwhile, Seongjin's eyes met those of Queen Lizabeth.

"...?"

A strangely indifferent and cold expression.

Receiving that chilly gaze from her for the first time, Seongjin felt his fingertips grow cold before he even realized it.

'What's going on?'

At that moment, Empress Tatiana stepped forward from the head table and began to speak. It was the empress's opening remarks, signaling the start of the banquet.

"As always, I welcome all of you who have gathered to celebrate the day when the Proxy of the Gods personally descended upon this land."

Despite her relatively young age, her voice was full of dignity, lacking nothing as the mother of a vast empire leading the nation.

"A thousand years have passed since the first Holy Emperor, Lord Cardmos, valiantly rose to save this continent from the demons. Delcross is gradually getting closer to fully realizing the kingdom of the gods on this land. It is evident that the strength of all of you who have spared no effort from all corners of the continent has also been significant in this."

The empress then elaborately mentioned the big and small issues that had become topics across the continent since the last birthday banquet.

She commends the successful maritime demonic beast subjugation in the maritime city alliance of Cyprus and expresses deep regret for the floods that occurred in southern Anatolia.

Although her words sounded like simple consolation or encouragement, they were laced with the utmost arrogance of coaxing the royalty of other countries as if they were her own subjects.

However, among those listening, not a single person frowned or showed any signs of discontent.

This was the status that the thousand-year holy nation held on the continent.

"At tomorrow's banquet, His Majesty the Holy Emperor will personally bless your futures. It will be a solemn occasion where you can come closest to the gods. The one before whom you must stand tomorrow is the Proxy of the God who sees through and embraces all your faults."

At the end of her rather lengthy speech, the empress finally concluded.

"So today, enjoy the banquet to your heart's content and fully indulge in worldly pleasures. Cast off all the desires of the world, so that tomorrow you can stand before the Proxy of God with the most devout body and mind."

Clap, clap, clap.

With the applause of the audience, the music that had stopped began to flow again.

"I will go and pay my respects to the empresses for a moment. What will you do?"

At Amelia's question, Seongjin briefly glanced in the direction of Queen Lizabeth. She was still ignoring Seongjin and was in the midst of exchanging greetings with other nobles.

"I'm fine. I'll wait here, so go ahead."

Seongjin then picked up a drink and headed to the corner of the banquet hall.

There were more than a couple of things that bothered him, not only Empress Lizabeth but also various parts of the banquet hall.

When he turned around, feeling piercing gazes from somewhere, he noticed several high-ranking priests eyeing his movements sharply.

-Be careful of the high-ranking priests. Especially Cardinal Benitus. The old men will probably notice quickly.

Sisle had once given such a warning to Seongjin.

Could it be that they had really noticed the existence of the Demon King and were acting like that?

Or...

"May I have a moment?"

As Seongjin was lost in thought, someone approached him and spoke.

It was a young man with a slick face whom he was seeing for the first time. Judging by his lavish attire, he seemed to be of very high status.

'...Who is he?'

Since he didn't introduce himself, Seongjin wondered if Morres was acquainted with him.

But then, the man, who had been carefully observing Seongjin, suddenly lowered his head slightly and whispered softly to him.

"Bethel."

Seongjin blinked in confusion, not understanding the situation.

What's with this guy?

Leonard's immediate approach to the prince was a calculated move to a certain extent.

Prince Morres was known to be a mess of a person, so he expected it would be somewhat easy to get close to him. Moreover, the prince was currently Princess Amelia's partner, so naturally, a connection with the princess would be established while conversing with him.

However, mentioning the Dark Cult right away was an impulsive decision.

That was because when he approached, the prince happened to be glaring at the direction of the state church priests with a sullen expression.

'He really does have a negative sentiment towards the state church!'

That was what Romaine had told him before coming here.

-He is someone who effectively conceals his identity and will one day bare his sharpest fangs towards the empire.

His prediction was correct.

Having made that conclusion, Leonard unknowingly let his guard down. It was probably a reaction to the tension he had been feeling since entering the palace.

"Bethel."

Of course, after initiating the greeting, he inwardly went "oops."

"....."

But then, Prince Morres, who heard his greeting, was staring at him blankly without showing much surprise!

It was evident that he had anticipated a Dark Cult associate approaching him at any time and had prepared in advance.

'He's supposed to be concealing his identity, but that might really be the case...'

On the other hand, what was going through Seongjin's mind was slightly different from Leonard's expectations.

'What's with this guy? And what's Bethel...?'

After the Holy Emperor had completely driven out the Dark Cult from Delcross, the state church had put in all efforts to erase any traces of heresy left in the scriptures or records.

As a result, unless one was elderly or had considerable knowledge of theology, not many people properly knew about the watchwords of this underground cult.

Naturally, it was impossible for Seongjin, who had no connection to theology, to know about it.

Seongjin was momentarily puzzled, but looking at the guy's face, he seemed to think that Seongjin must have understood his greeting.

"Hmm..."

What could it be? Seeing that confident face, why do I feel the urge to mess with him?

Suddenly, I want to pretend to know something.

[He said "Bethel." It might be some kind of secret code or something.]

As if sensing Seongjin's intention as he slightly raised the corner of his mouth, the Demon King reminded him again.

"Bethel."

Seongjin replied to him in the same way, managing his expression. It seemed like a rarely used word, so hopefully the response wouldn't be different like a password or something.

And that was the correct answer. A noticeable look of relief flashed across the man's face.

"But who are you?"

If he was invited to the birthday banquet, he must be a high-ranking figure. He might be quite famous. The possibility of him being acquainted with Morres couldn't be ruled out either.

Well, he was already notorious for being a mess, wasn't he? Even if he committed a slight rudeness, wouldn't it be overlooked as expected of him?

Then, as if he had completely let his guard down, the guy laughed heartily while holding his forehead.

"Ah, my goodness. Look at me! I was so distracted by something else that I failed to pay my respects!"

Fortunately, it seemed they weren't acquainted with each other.

The guy smoothly swept his hair back with a stylish gesture and extended his hand towards Seongjin.

"I'm Leonard from Rohan. You probably already know, though."

"....."

Of course, Seongjin was familiar with the names of the royal families of major countries. He had even roughly learned from an etiquette teacher in preparation for the birthday banquet.

However...

"We've seen each other at the birthday banquet every year, but this might be the first time we're exchanging greetings like this. You've changed so much compared to last year's birthday banquet that I almost didn't recognize you for a moment."

What the heck? What's with this swallow-like guy?

The more he spoke, the more annoying he seemed to become.

"I'm Morres. You probably already know, though."

Seongjin shook hands with him and continued.

"So, what's the matter? It's a bit sudden."

"It's nothing major. As you may have guessed, I have some connection with them, so I thought I would just relay some news. Are you aware of it? The forgotten old brothers are eagerly awaiting your command."

Seongjin twitched the corner of his mouth.

Hmm. The strange greeting aside, the guy's cautious attitude was also suspicious. Somehow, there was a strong scent of something shady.

'Last time, I pretended to know something and ended up ruining the Heresy Tribunal...'

But what should I do? Now I really want to pretend to know!

Seongjin exaggeratedly looked around and lowered his voice.

"As you can see, given the circumstances, I hope you understand my reluctance to speak."

He mentioned brothers. It was probably implying the existence of a force lurking in the shadows, though the scale was unknown.

Perhaps they were somehow involved with the Gray Plague.

"Although I am eager to meet the brothers, I am currently in a position where it is difficult for me to leave the palace alone. Given the timing."

"That's understandable. I get it."

As Leonard nodded, Seongjin spoke softly.

"So, what do you think? The fact that you're relaying their news to me means you must have a way to resolve this, right? Can I have some expectations?"

"....."

Leonard stared intently at Seongjin for a moment. Then, he cautiously made a suggestion.

"Then, how about meeting a friend of mine? I believe he would be of great help to you."

"Friend?"

"Yes. It is that friend who has a direct connection with your brothers. It may be difficult, but I will try to arrange a meeting with him."

"Oh! Really?"

"Of course, for security reasons, it will be a secret meeting held outside the palace..."

"The location doesn't matter! I would be really grateful if you could do that for me."

Then, Seongjin and Leonard looked at each other and smiled.

Perfect! This is too easy!

'Casually establishing a relationship with a suspicious organization like this, what a shallow guy!'

'Did you see that, Romaine? I've properly created a point of contact with the prince! Expect the same with the princess!'

Hahaha.

The two people, each with different thoughts, simultaneously burst into satisfied laughter.

Meanwhile, Amelia, who was returning after paying her respects to the empress and queens, stopped in her tracks, surprised by the unexpected sight awaiting her.

'Leonard...!'

That mortal enemy, whom she couldn't forget even in her dreams, was smiling in front of her brother with an innocent face!

Amelia bit her lip firmly.

She was well aware that she would encounter Leonard at the birthday banquet. That's why she had been preparing herself all this time.

However, now that she was actually facing him, her preparation seemed futile as her hands and feet turned cold and her whole body trembled in an instant.

It was a fear deeply etched into her subconscious over a long period of time.

-Open your eyes wide and take a good look, Amelia. Your poor lady-in-waiting is enduring this pain in your stead.

Skinning Mirabel, slicing her flesh, and shoving each piece in front of her eyes.

-Hmm? Why aren't you crying anymore? Tell me. What more do I need to show you to make you cry?

Tilting his head with a genuinely curious look on his dissatisfied face.

-If you're so precious to them, what will you do? I have no choice but to send you to them. However, I will never let you go unharmed.

Without hesitation, stabbing a dagger into her chest right before Morres' eyes.

'What have I...'

Her body began to tremble like a leaf.

'What have I done...'

Right at that moment, Morres, noticing her presence, turned to look at Amelia.

His bright gray eyes held only her reflection.

"Sister?"

'Morres!'

Slowly, her mind started to clear.

Didn't that child once tell her?

-Imagine him groveling before you with a nosebleed. I guarantee you won't have a moment to feel depressed.

He had guided her when she had lost all purpose in life.

-True revenge, sister, is not a process you endure just to see the results.

That carefree voice, without a fear in the world.

-Worried about his retaliation? What's there to worry about? Our father is the most powerful backing in the country.

Yes, you're right. Morres.

I sincerely, with all my heart, without a shred of doubt, for you and our entire family, fervently desire to take revenge on that man.

As she repeated those words, peace soon found its way into her heart, as if by magic.

Click, click.

Amelia slowly approached the two.

Towards the person she loved more than anyone and wished to protect no matter what.

And towards the person she hated more than anyone, desiring his destruction from the depths of her heart.

As she regained her composure, things she hadn't noticed before came into her view.

The true nature of that greasy-looking young man, frantically rolling his eyes, trying to strike up a conversation with her somehow.

'...Was he always like this?'

In the eyes of the queen who had long been immersed in the muddy social circles of Rohan, Leonard was nothing more than an immature novice.

'To think I was so easily deceived by someone like him...'

Anger surged within her.

Not at Leonard, but at herself for being so foolishly stupid.

"Excuse me..."

But just as Leonard was about to open his mouth to speak to her.

Morres, who had been looking back and forth between Amelia and Leonard, turned his back on him and extended his hand towards Amelia.

"The music has changed, sister. You promised to dance the first song with me, right?"

The way he completely blocked Leonard with his body, wasn't his intention to preemptively cut off Leonard's clinginess so clear?

Amelia blinked her eyes.

This child, who seemed carefree about everything, occasionally displayed exceptional sharpness in strange places.

"Yes, let's do that. Morres."

Anyway, that man had no choice but to seek her out, so even if she blew him off once, it wouldn't greatly impact her future revenge.

After giving a radiant smile to Leonard, who was blankly staring at her, Amelia firmly grasped her brother's hand and headed towards the center of the banquet hall.

Soon, the two most dazzling individuals in the banquet hall began to dance, attracting the attention of the entire gathering.

Mesmerized, people couldn't take their eyes off the beautiful siblings moving like flowing water to the elegant melody.

And there was another couple that became the talk of the town in a different sense.

The sight of the young saint clinging to the arm of the strapping young man, tapping her small feet to the steps, was also too adorable for words.

However, unlike her outwardly stoic appearance like a doll, the little saintess's small mind was filled with complex thoughts.

"Is something troubling you?"

Orden softly asked the saint, who had been unable to focus at all.

Sisle let out a deep sigh and answered in a small voice.

"Yes, actually, I received some advice from Brother Morres. He suggested that instead of spending time on simple volunteer work, I should try working with the knightly order like Brother Logan. I thought it was a reasonable opinion and decided to follow it, but..."

The knightly order? What kind of out-of-the-blue suggestion was that for the saintess?

Completely unaware of the circumstances, Orden was just dumbfounded, blinking his eyes.

Sisle whispered softly into Orden's ear.

"This is a secret, Young Master Siegmund. To be honest, I'm quite scared of swords."

"Swords... you say?"

"Yes, swords are ultimately weapons that cut people. If you get slashed in a vital spot by a sword imbued with aura, wouldn't any average person die on the spot?"

Perhaps the influence of the Delcross Chronicles she had seen in her dreams wasn't insignificant either. After all, it was the Holy Emperor's beloved sword, the Nutcracker, that had taken her life with a single stroke at the end of Volume 2.

"Of course, I don't mean to disparage the members of the Holy Knights who serve the gods. But the thought of holding a sword with my own hands somehow makes me so scared."

Orden couldn't understand her concern at all.

Why did she think she had to wield a sword herself while working with the knightly order?

She must have been mistaken about something. Despite appearing mature for her age, a child was still a child after all.

Orden pondered deeply and answered.

"If using a sword is the problem, there are ways to resolve it. Aren't there some Holy Knights who are trained to avoid killing enemies with a single stroke as much as possible?"

"What? Where is that?"

As Sisle's eyes widened, Orden couldn't help but chuckle at her innocence.

"It's none other than the Order of Saint Marcias."

The Order of Saint Marcias, the arm of the Heresy Tribunal.

Unlike other paladins who practiced standard imperial swordsmanship, they mainly used blunt weapons such as maces and flails. They called themselves the "Hammer of the Gods," but that "hammer" was more than just a figure of speech.

-Every sinner has a chance for redemption, so we shall give them an opportunity to repent!

The inquisitors of the Order of Saint Marcias would claim as they swung their hammers.

Of course, in reality, their goal was to keep the demon worshippers alive as much as possible and drag them to the Heresy Tribunal for torture.

Well, there was no need for him to tell the young saintess that much.

"The Order of Saint Marcias..."

Sisle's eyes shone with a solemn determination, as if she had made a decision.

Orden tilted his head for a moment but soon dismissed it, thinking nothing of it. Little did he know what thoughts were going through the little saint's mind.

'Right. First, I'll hit them with a hammer without killing them, and then I can heal them later!'

Perhaps it would have been better to inquire further about the details at this point.

Who could have imagined that thanks to his words today, in the distant future, a terrifying holy warrior would be born, wielding a flail with ominous spikes, literally smashing people half to death!

[What do you think? Shall we have a dance as well? Isn't the first dance important?]

Nom nom. Cardmos, who had been preoccupied with eating, asked Logan, who was standing with his arms crossed.

"Have you lost your mind?"

Of course, he could only turn his head back towards the food while receiving Logan's contemptuous glare.

[Look at that. Since you're not dancing the first dance, those young ladies over there are just waiting and watching, aren't they? Poor things.]

He was right. Not only the guests from Delcross but also those invited from foreign countries, all the young ladies were uniformly casting admiring glances at him.

It's just that since he hadn't danced the first dance with a partner yet, they couldn't rashly ask him to dance and were only sneaking glances at him.

Perhaps Logan was the one receiving the most attention at today's banquet.

He was a strong candidate for the next Holy Emperor and had been gaining favor from people all across the continent through his diligent subjugation of sea demons.

Considering that many subjugated countries basically held a negative sentiment towards the imperials, it could be considered quite an exceptional case.

However...

"Do you think I would carelessly leave my seat, knowing what kind of trouble you might cause while I'm away dancing? Just ignore it."

The problem was that his own attitude was so stubbornly unyielding.

[...Anyway, he's so inflexible.]

Cardmos clicked his tongue.

[Hey, descendant.]

"Don't arbitrarily call me your descendant."

Logan's face was extremely stiff as he gave a rigid reply. Cardmos, who had been observing him carefully for a moment, asked.

[Why are you so angry with me? Despite my appearance, I am the one who drove out the demon tribes from the continent and laid the foundation for a thousand years of the holy empire. Shouldn't you show at least a bit of respect?]

No matter how reckless Cardmos was, he couldn't help but be a little concerned about the negative sentiment Logan had been consistently showing from the beginning. He was quite a likable fellow among his descendants, too.

However, Logan's blue eyes looking at him were coldly sunken.

"Respect, you say? Your expectations are high. What have you done that's so great?"

[What have I done so wrong?]

"If you're so curious, I'll answer you. Judging by how you arbitrarily impersonate the will of the gods and create a saint, it doesn't seem like you have much faith. Why did you establish such an absurd ideology of 'fully realizing the kingdom of the gods on this land' when founding the empire? Thanks to that, the entire continent has been suffering from the empire's internal interference for a thousand years. Do you even have something called a brain?"

[Hmm...]

He had nothing to say if he was asked like that.

He had merely engraved the mark in advance to make it easier to possess a body, but what could he do if people arbitrarily started to revere it as the reincarnation of a saint?

Well, it's true that he left it as it was because it was amusing when they misunderstood.

As for the founding ideology, he had entrusted it to the subordinates who had been the main force in founding the nation.

-The more grandiose the ideology, the better!

-Let's attribute everything to the will of God! So that everyone can easily accept it!

When he left it like that, before he knew it, he had become a demigod who had liberated the continent from the demon tribes according to the will of God.

[Founding a nation is not such an easy task, descendant.]

Cardmos reproached him solemnly.

[Do you know how much suffering humans endured under the power of the demon tribes that had prevailed throughout the continent for thousands of years, from the era of the Three Ancient Dragons to the 'Primordial Pact'? In order to persuade and drive out those forces and eventually establish a proper nation, various compromises were necessary.]

"Then let's say that was unavoidable due to the circumstances at the time."

Logan continued, frowning.

"Anyway, you ruled stably without any major problems for the next 300 years, didn't you? Couldn't you have corrected the mistakes and led the empire in a better direction during that time? If that was difficult, you should have at least handed over the imperial throne to a proper successor! Why did you have to appoint such a bloodthirsty lunatic as your successor, plunging the entire continent into turmoil?"

The 2nd Holy Emperor, Remus, was also known by the epithet 'Blood Emperor.' Both internally and externally in Delcross, wherever he went, a bloody storm always raged.

The first thing he did as soon as he took the throne was to execute all his blood relatives who had the potential to threaten his position. After that, he mercilessly slaughtered all the subjects who opposed him.

After extensively reorganizing the empire in such a way, he turned his eyes outward and launched a conquest war to subjugate various countries on the continent. In the process, he did not hesitate in the slightest, no matter how much blood was shed.

[That, too, is a misunderstanding. Remus was not originally the type to go that far.]

Cardmos answered with an embarrassed look. As his emotions fluctuated, the golden scale pattern on his forehead shimmered and faded.

[That fellow was quite smart, so I chose him as my successor. It's just that after inheriting divinity from me, he changed like that as a side effect. What can I do about it?]

"Side effect?"

[Yes. When an ordinary human tries to bear divinity beyond their capacity, they will inevitably develop problems in their body and mind, dying early or going insane. At the very least, Remus had some potential as my descendant, so he stopped at that point.]

Logan, who had become dumbfounded, asked again.

"You passed divinity to him even though you knew that would happen?"

[He desperately wanted it! And it was an unavoidable choice to maintain the empire. Once the country stabilized like that, I thought I could slowly take back the divinity later.]

Cardmos picked up a cookie and continued his excuse that wasn't really an excuse.

[Even after that, whenever a child with slightly stronger divinity was born, most of them completely lost their emotions. You're freely criticizing that fellow Remus now, but if you had inherited divinity as strong as his, your situation would have been very different from now.]

He explained that the divinity Cardmos had been slowly reclaiming over the past hundreds of years had already become much fainter, and even that was mostly concentrated in Nate, the current Holy Emperor.

[Rather, your father's case is extremely exceptional. The unique ability his bloodline possesses can be seen as specialized in observing and regulating oneself from various angles. So, he doesn't go insane easily and doesn't lose himself over trivial matters.]

Logan had also heard about the blood of the Cornsheim family flowing through him.

Sometimes, among the elderly high-ranking clergy, there were those who still looked at the imperial family with white eyes for that reason.

[On top of that, his immense sacred power. That sacred power constantly and completely heals his brain and body that might be damaged by divinity.]

Crunch.

Cardmos paused for a moment, chewing on a cookie after saying that much.

[But you know, what about the generations of children in whom that peculiar blood has become diluted?]

Then he turned to look at Logan.

His golden glowing irises narrowed tightly, and his pupils elongated vertically.

[What do you think will happen if a child with diluted blood from that lineage and perhaps not even a shred of sacred power inherits some of that divinity?]

"....."

[Perhaps they will become a monster with not a bit of emotion left, even more vicious and cruel than Remus, who is called the 'Blood Emperor.']

The gaze of Cardmos, who had said that, fell upon the siblings who were dancing in full swing.

[So, in order to endure it, they may have to become something other than human. Or they'll have to use a unique trick like your father. In any case, the process won't be so smooth.]

"...Then what are you, the founding emperor of the empire who claims to be something other than human?"

Logan, who had been keeping silent for a while, spoke softly.

"You haven't lost your emotions like them, nor have you been consumed by that divinity. Yet you did nothing even though you knew Remus would become like that. You even did nothing despite knowing full well that he would kill your infant son. And you still claim that you, unlike your descendants, are properly handling that divinity?"

[.....]

As Cardmos closed his mouth, Logan's face contorted. He spat out at Cardmos as if chewing on the words.

"The more I know about you, the worse you truly are."

During the flow of the beautiful melody, Leonard blankly stared at the center of the banquet hall, lost in thought.

'...This might be tougher than expected.'

The noble lady from Rohan he had brought as his partner kept giving him hints, but his gaze couldn't leave the dancing siblings.

More precisely, from Princess Amelia, who was gracefully moving across the banquet hall.

Her brightly shining cheeks and fluttering pink hair were filled with the fresh vitality befitting her age.

On the other hand, the red dress hem that smoothly unfurled like petals in sync with her movements was fatally alluring, like a femme fatale from ancient mythology.

She was a woman in whom truly contrasting charms coexisted simultaneously.

"Oh my goodness..."

He couldn't get the image of that radiant face smiling at him for a moment before leaving with Prince Morres out of his mind.

Yet, her clear gray eyes directed at him were extremely cold.

Where had that pitiful girl who had just fallen in love, whom he had met at last year's birthday banquet, gone?

"I bragged so much to Romaine before coming here, and now I'm in big trouble."

The problem was creating a point of contact with the prince, but he hadn't even thought about the princess from the beginning. It was because he was confident he could make any woman fall for him in an instant.

But that princess now...

Feeling an inexplicable thirst bubbling up from within, Leonard unknowingly tugged at his collar tightly.

Clap, clap, clap, clap.

At some point, the dance had ended, and with loud applause, the music flowing through the banquet hall gently changed.

As he was gulping down drinks one after another with a dejected face, he heard the clicking sound of high heels approaching him.

Leonard, who had absentmindedly turned his head, widened his eyes. Princess Amelia, who had approached him at some point, smiled so radiantly that it made him feel lightheaded.

"Earlier, my brother was rude to you. You are Leonard of Rohan, right?"

"Yes, that's correct."

When he replied in a slightly hoarse voice, the princess gracefully curved her lips.

"I saw you at last year's birthday banquet as well, Your Highness. I'm finally making the request I've been wanting to make since then."

A slender hand slowly approached him.

"If it's alright with you, would you please dance the next song with me?"

Although she was asking shyly, what emanated from her gestures was already the noble dignity of a queen. There was no way he could dare refuse.

Feeling a strange sensation welling up inside, Leonard kissed her hand.

"...Of course. I'll gladly be your partner. Princess Amelia."

And he couldn't help but acknowledge once again what he had been trying to deny.

The fact that he, Leonard, had fallen in love with this beautiful woman at first sight.

When several dance songs had alternated and the banquet atmosphere was at its peak.

Suddenly, the orchestra's performance stopped as the empress, who had been sitting at the head table, nodded her head.

People who had been laughing and chatting stopped their conversations and turned their gazes towards the front in unison.

In front of the brightly illuminated platform stood Archbishop Wesker. As planned, it was to widely proclaim the existence of the empire's prized saint to the people of the continent.

"A few years ago, after Saintess Gracia returned to our side once more, she traveled around the country and served the people."

Her ringing voice echoed throughout the banquet hall even without the amplification of aura.

"And not long ago, another saint came to Delcross in accordance with the will of the gods, which is nothing short of the glory of the empire and the prosperity of the continent! Now, the two saintess will bestow blessings upon all of you who have attended the birthday banquet!"

It was something that had occasionally happened at the birthday banquets of previous Holy Emperors as well.

A simple event that ended with the saint uttering words of blessing and displaying sacred power.

However, the face of Sisle, who was stepping forward to the front of the platform, was unusually stiff with tension.

[Descendant. Has your mind still not changed?]

Cardmos asked while keeping his gaze forward. Sisle nodded and answered.

"No. I'll do it as planned."

[Can you handle the repercussions? This will be the first time since the founding of the empire, so it's unknown how the state church will receive it.]

At that, Sisle bit her lip tightly.

As Cardmos said, this would probably be an unprecedented declaration that would cause a stir.

But didn't Brother Morres clearly present a solution to her? She had agonized and agonized, but it seemed there was no clearer method than that.

"Yes. I can handle it. So please help me."

The girl, who had made up her mind, raised her head and slowly took steps forward.

Sisle, receiving everyone's attention, looked around the crowd with a slightly nervous face and repeatedly recited the words Seongjin had taught her in her mind.

And then.

"It's truly a beautiful night."

Her voice, clear and transparent like crystal, unconsciously carried by the aura she had awakened, distinctly pierced people's ears as if amplified.

"I don't want to die like that."

Last night, Sisle shared the heartfelt sentiments she had hidden for a long time.

"Hmm, then how about we try this?"

Seongjin made a suggestion to her.

It was a method she had never considered before.

"Before the events of the Chronicle unfold, you take the initiative to renounce your position as Saintess. Pass the role to Seo Yi-seo and retire gracefully. After that, why not join the Holy Knights like Logan?"

"What? Retire? Holy Knights?"

What's that about?

Sisle blinked her eyes.

She had often pondered how to overcome the slander targeting her, but never once thought about voluntarily stepping down from her position as Saintess.

In the first place, wasn't the role of Saintess a lifelong appointment once chosen?

"Big brother. The reason I'm facing this crisis is because my position as Saintess is in jeopardy. But what if I just give it up first? Wouldn't that only hasten my death?"

"Huh? Why do you think that?"

Seongjin tilted his head.

"Let's break it down one by one. In the Delcross Chronicle, your downfall began because Seo Yi-seo emerged, passed the Saintess's Trials, and even received Cardmos's blessing, right? As a result, your standing as Saintess was threatened."

"Yes. That's right."

"So you said you tried to be recognized as a Saintess and undertake the blessing of the Holy Emperor's sarcophagus before Seo Yi-seo appeared. But then you discovered that receiving the blessing meant having your body taken over by Cardmos and your soul vanishing."

"Right. That's what happened."

Sisle replied gloomily.

"Then what are you hesitating for? If it's absolutely impossible to fully satisfy the conditions of being that kind of Saintess, isn't it best to renounce it first before your enemies can exploit it? If you weren't Saint from the beginning, would such tragedies have befallen you?"

"Hmm...?"

Upon consideration, it did seem that way.

As Sisle stood there looking dumbfounded, Seongjin gazed straight into her eyes and asked,

"Let's make one thing clear. Why did you become a Saintess?"

Seongjin, who had not an iota of piety, couldn't understand it at all.

A Saintess. It was neither a salaried position nor one with any real power. Revered as a holy being, it was an honorary role where one had to serve selflessly for life without holidays, wasn't it?

"Those old geezers in the Orthodox Church are using your young age as an excuse to make you work without sharing any power. Why are you so fixated on keeping that position?"

"That's because..."

Perhaps it began when the mark of the Saintess appeared on her body.

She enjoyed the high priests of the Orthodox Church making a big fuss, proclaiming her to be the reincarnation of Gracia. It wasn't bad to be revered as "Your Holiness" by the faithful either.

She may have also felt a little defiant when the Holy Emperor expressed his opposition.

"So did you find joy in living as the Saintess?"

"..."

Honestly, she had never really thought about it. She had always believed unquestioningly that it was the right path.

Though the service was quite demanding, it was fulfilling to see the delighted faces of the faithful. But after dreaming of the Chronicle, she clung to the position as if it were a guarantee of her life.

However, if she wasn't truly the reincarnation of Gracia...

If she wasn't destined from the start to be the Saintess, then what would happen?

"Even if I'm not the Saintess... it may not matter much..."

Hearing Sisle's feeble answer, Seongjin nodded.

"Next, we need to clarify who your enemies are. Who was the first to claim you were unqualified?"

"Enemies?"

"Yes. Of course, there may be others if we look, but let's focus on the big two for now. You should do your utmost to seize power and topple them before they attack you first."

"Seize power? Why is that necessary? Can't I just stop being Saintess?"

In response to Sisle's question, Seongjin clicked his tongue inwardly.

As he always thought, their father had truly raised the kids too sheltered.

"Listen well, Sisle. Do you think it really matters to those bastards that another Saintess has appeared, that you're unqualified, or any of that nonsense? The biggest reason you met such an end in the Chronicle is that you held no power. What's important is that you appeared weak to them because you lacked strength!"

"...!"

"Even if you let it slide this time, your enemies who seek to harm you still remain. Unless you gain power, similar incidents can repeat at any time."

It's not that you become a target because you're guilty of anything.

They simply bite because you don't bite back, and the enemies feel safe to tear into you.

Locking eyes with the shocked Sisle, Seongjin lightly tapped her shoulder.

"You know, Sisle, what I've realized lately is that it's always best to live wielding authority."

And wouldn't the greatest authority in the Holy Empire be none other than the Holy Knights?

"Authority..."

"Yes. You need to become the one judging, not the one being judged. Bury your enemies with power before they can suppress you!"

"Uh..."

"Just proving your innocence won't solve anything. It only gives your enemies time and pretext to prepare other attacks. If they slander you, fight back even with incitement and fabrication! If they try to crush you with force, go to them first and shatter their skulls! That is the true balance of power and the proper way to fight!"

The Demon King lamented.

[That's not it at all, you devil!]

Sisle swallowed her dry saliva. The nightmarish situations that unfolded in the Chronicle flashed rapidly through her mind.

-It's divine punishment! The Saintess has fallen and lost her qualifications! She must have colluded with demons!

That's right. That's how it was.

The Sisle in the Chronicle did her utmost. To prove her innocence and qualifications.

But in the end, it was all for naught. The approach had been wrong from the start.

"Do you understand, Sisle? If someone slanders you as fallen, accuse them of heresy! If someone claims you colluded with demons, insist that they are demon worshippers!"

"But big brother, isn't that deceiving people?"

"Does that matter? They're all doing it, so why can't you?"

At that moment, a thunderous realization struck Sisle.

That's right. Why can't I?

They called me the reincarnation of Saintess Gracia, but it's not true. They accused me of colluding with demons, but I did no such thing!

The old geezers willfully misconstrued and slandered my every action, but none of their claims were true at all.

For high-ranking priests, not a single one of their actions reflected the will of God.

Then why should I have to prove my innocence to them?

Why must I follow divine doctrine to counter those who don't abide by God's will?

"Truth cannot be a weapon. Only incitement and fabrication will grant you power."

"Incitement and fabrication!"

"To fight against fanaticism, you must become an even greater fanatic."

"Fanatic!"

As Sisle clenched her fists, Seongjin slyly added,

"And if that's not enough, you can borrow some power from the venue."

"Venue?"

"Yes. Since it's the birthday banquet, let me give you an example. What if you announced your retirement at an occasion like this with foreign dignitaries present? For the sake of the Empire's face, your enemies would have a hard time making a big deal out of it, don't you think?"

"That's true."

Sisle nodded.

"But a retirement announcement... I'm not sure what I should say."

"Hmm? Just say something like 'It's a beautiful night!' and casually pass it on to Seo Yi-seo. Isn't that enough?"

That's how they all do it at award ceremonies and such. Once you start with 'It's a beautiful night!', the audience naturally responds well.

"So let's think of a way gradually after the birthday banquet ends. Hurry and ditch the Saint position, then go join the Holy Knights and learn swordsmanship."

"Swordsmanship?"

"Yeah. The Order of Saint Bastian belongs to the Orthodox Church, so that's a bit tricky. Why not join the Order of Saint Aurelion instead?"

Seongjin said it like that.

However, even at that point, Seongjin never imagined in his wildest dreams that Sisle would put that idea into practice the very next day.

Big brother Morres easily told her to pass on the Saintess position, but in truth, that was because he was unfamiliar with the ways of the Orthodox Church and the teachings of the scriptures.

Passing the role of Saintess to Miss Seo Yi-seo meant passing Gracia's soul to her as well.

And that was an extremely dangerous claim. Carelessly moving a soul to another body was considered an act of demon worship.

It was the reason why the Cornsheim family was nearly wiped out a few years ago.

Moreover, even if she denied being the reincarnation of Gracia's soul, she must not deny that the Orthodox Church appointed her as a saintess. To do so, the only way would be to claim that she herself was the soul of another noble saint.

'But at least one thing big brother said is true. Incitement and fabrication. In other words, anything can be twisted to fit as needed.'

Sisle decided to craft a new narrative.

For that, all the details had to be similar to the stories in the scriptures and explainable within the scriptures. So that night, Sisle scoured the scriptures, searching for usable passages.

Surprisingly, Cardmos found it very entertaining and helped out beside her.

-There was this anecdote too. See if you can find where it's mentioned.

And she was able to uncover a few anecdotes.

An instance where five-colored lights filled the surroundings when an ancient saint received a divine oracle.

A tale of Saint Bastian protecting the soul of a child persecuted and murdered by pagans, delivering it to the parents.

-Mom, Dad. Now that I've met you, I can rest assured and enter God's embrace.

The child's soul thus went to heaven – a heartwarming conclusion. But if someone else had manipulated another's soul, they would have been labeled a heretic for defying the natural order.

Having finished her preparations overnight, Sisle now stood here with firm resolve.

She suddenly spotted big brother Morres, his eyes wide open, staring at her.

'Hey! What are you trying to do? Huh?'

Those eyes held a hint of suspicion, as if to say, "Don't tell me...?"

Seeing them, Sisle couldn't help but chuckle.

'Don't worry, big brother. I can do this well. I'll fabricate it properly, just as you said.'

Then Sisle boldly declared to the audience,

"On a day like today, I am glad to reveal the truth before you all. In fact, I am not the reincarnation of Saint Gracia."

"Your Holiness Sisle! What in the world are you saying!?"

Archbishop Wesker jumped up from his seat, his face ashen, but soon fell silent at the bright light emanating from the girl.

Immense divine power pulsed from the girl's body. And at some point, five-colored lights began to settle in various parts of the banquet hall. It was the handiwork of Cardmos, who found it amusing and started playing along.

"Until now, I have merely been safeguarding Saintess Gracia's soul from corrupt entities."

Sisle's voice carried a sacred resonance.

Though it was the unconscious result of her willpower infusing divinity, most people didn't realize this and listened to her voice in a daze.

"Fortunately, I have now found the true owner of the soul, so my mission is complete. Therefore, I will now return Gracia's soul to the Saintess!"

Safeguarding a soul? And returning it?

They were indeed statements perfect for sparking a heresy controversy, but the majority failed to recognize that fact. The five-colored, captivating light enveloping the girl appeared too sublime.

And the moment Sisle grasped Seo Yi-seo's hand...

The audience couldn't believe their eyes. Was that not the distinct mark of Gracia appearing on Saint Seo Yi-seo's hand? Of course, this too was Cardmos's mischief.

The shocking declarations didn't end there.

"I, Sisle, am actually the reincarnation of Saint Marcias, inheriting his will!"

"...!?"

"Now that the time has come to reveal this, God Himself has commanded me to lead the Heresy Tribunal and fight heresy! To that end, I intend to join the Holy Knights!"

The emblem that subsequently appeared on Sisle's hand was, without a doubt, the emblem of the Order of Saint Marcias!

Not only the high priests but everyone in the banquet hall couldn't hide their astonishment. Cardinal Benitus's eyes seemed ready to bulge out of their sockets.

Carefully observing their reactions, Sisle declared in a calm voice,

"In one hand, the scriptures! In the other, a mace! Thus, I will continue to fight heresy for God's kingdom!"

Then Sisle smiled. A smile that was flawlessly transparent yet somehow eerie.

Now, with the power to lead the Inquisitors in this hand... I will fight you all to the very end as well.

Cardinal Benitus. Cardinal Cesare.

That night.

Late in the evening, Nate, who had just left the prayer room, heard astonishing news.

"Sisle, Saint Mar..."

...What?

For a moment, his stagger wasn't solely due to fatigue.

Sisle had stepped down from the position of Saintess. That in itself was good news.

Nate's reason for involving Seo Yi-seo was to control Cardmos, but more importantly, to lighten the heavy responsibilities placed on the child.

He had wished for his daughter to live a freer life for herself.

"...But why the sudden decision to join the Holy Knights?"

After blankly staring into the air for a while, Nate slowly held his forehead.

Sisle's declaration sent shockwaves through the Empire.

So much so that it overshadowed the main birthday banquet.

The elders of the Orthodox Church debated through the night, and an emergency council was even convened at dawn.

"What's all the fuss about? Can't they just relax a bit after the birthday banquet?"

Seongjin asked Logan, who had rushed to the Pearl Palace from the morning. Unlike the drowsy Seongjin, the guy was already impeccably dressed in his uniform for the ceremonial event.

"Well, since you have no interest in theology, you probably don't realize how big of a deal this situation is."

Logan began with a serious expression.

"Originally, the concept of reincarnation isn't clearly presented in the scriptures. I mentioned it to you before, right?"

On the night Logan revealed his secret, he had explained it to Seongjin like this.

He had never heard of anyone else being reincarnated and didn't know why it happened only to him.

"Come to think of it, you did. Why didn't you look into the Saintess back then? It could have been a clue to your condition."

When Seongjin asked with a puzzled look, a hint of exasperation flashed across Logan's face.

"Because there was a lot of controversy over whether Gracia truly reincarnated. Don't you think investigating the Saintess would have been the first thing I did?"

For the past few centuries, women had been steadily appointed as Saintess by the Orthodox Church.

However, apart from the stigmata appearing on their bodies, there was no other way to prove that they were really the reincarnation of Saintess Gracia. None of them retained any memories of Gracia's life.

The same was true for Sisle. That's why Logan personally had doubts about the Saintess's reincarnation.

In fact, they now knew that there was no such thing as Gracia's reincarnation. It was all just Cardmoss's mischief.

"When a woman bearing Gracia's mark was first recognized as Saintess, the Empire's political situation was quite complex."

The first instance of a Saintess being acknowledged as reincarnated was during the reign of the 4th Holy Emperor, Constantine.

He was a rather moderate monarch who implemented conciliatory policies toward the various nations subjugated by Remus, the Bloody Emperor.

One day, the mark of Cardmoss appeared on the body of a sickly noble maiden in Ortona. Recognizing it as God's emblem, they consulted Delcross, and Constantine agreed to appoint her as Saintess.

The meaning behind that gesture was clear.

-Delcross's great saint reincarnates like this, regardless of country. Does this not signify that all nations on the continent belong to God's kingdom?

And that poor maiden, far from her destiny, engaged in service activities and ended her life in solitude.

"Moreover, the current scriptures have undergone a major compilation. In fact, the prevailing opinion among theologians is that many parts have been edited."

The scriptures were also extensively organized and compiled during the reign of the 4th Holy Emperor. This is precisely the point where the Dark Cult conversely accuses the Orthodox Church of being heretical.

For example, the problematic statement known as Gracia's last words.

-Whenever danger approaches this blessed Delcross, I will be reborn again and again to serve for God's sake.

There was much debate over whether this was true or not. The concept of reincarnation itself didn't exist before then.

In reality, Gracia simply served and died quietly in the countryside, so who knows what she said on her deathbed?

Furthermore, the scriptures specify that God will surely guide good souls to heaven to enjoy eternal happiness.

But if those noble souls appointed as Saints and holy figures claim to be reborn instead of entering God's heaven, it creates a huge contradiction in the scriptures.

"The first to theoretically support the Saintess's reincarnation was a famous theologian named Granius."

He was an outstanding theologian who was active during the reign of the 5th Holy Emperor and also laid the foundation for holy barriers.

At the time, Granius alone advocated the three-soul theory among theologians where the two-soul theory was mainstream.

He said that the soul consists of Aeon, Dakion, and Bion, and when a person dies, the three elements separate, with only the Aeon entering heaven.

And he explained Saintess Gracia's condition as follows.

-The essence of Gracia's soul, the Aeon, has already been embraced by heaven, and the Bion has returned to the earth as a handful of dust along with her body. But only the Dakion, which inherited her noble will, remains in this world and is reborn with another Aeon.

Seongjin furrowed his brows.

Why so complicated? Who cares if the soul is in 2 or 3 parts?

"Until now, the Orthodox Church had been tacitly condoning the Saint's condition for various political reasons. In the first place, since souls are invisible, there was no way to prove whether there were 2 or 3. But the situation has greatly changed due to what Sisle said yesterday."

The submerged conflict between the two-soul theory and the three-soul theory had surfaced.

Logan rubbed his forehead as if he had a headache and continued.

"To make matters worse, Sisle publicly declared herself to be the reincarnation of Saint Marcias, not Saintess Gracia. According to her claim, one soul can have two Dakions. Then couldn't there also be states with three or four Dakions?"

How is that any different from demons known to absorb and use multiple souls? You'd have no excuse if dragged to the Heresy Tribunal right away.

"And if her claim is accepted even once, won't there be a sudden surge of people claiming to be the reincarnation of other saints? Like the popular ones such as Saint Bastian or Saint Aurelion. So won't the Orthodox Church be eager to scrutinize her?"

Upon hearing that explanation, Seongjin, finally grasping the gravity of the situation, felt his mind go blank.

Hey, kiddo. What the hell have you done!?

"So, where is Sisle now?"

When Seongjin asked in a panic, Logan replied with a deep sigh.

"She was summoned by His Majesty this morning."

"Oh..."

Seongjin blinked.

Somehow, an unfounded sense of relief washed over him.

"I apologize for not informing you in advance, Your Majesty."

Standing before the Holy Emperor, Sisle blushed and apologized.

It was a shoddy plan prepared in a day, but Sisle had no choice. She was absolutely short on time.

According to the Chronicle, Cardinals Benitus and Cesare would begin attacking her within a few months. It was too pressing to wait for next year's birthday banquet.

After gazing at the girl with subdued eyes for a moment, the Holy Emperor asked,

"If you wanted to join the Holy Knights that badly, why didn't you tell me first?"

There must have been a better way.

A more moderate method that wouldn't stir up the Orthodox Church and the Holy Council.

"But I don't have much time, Your Majesty. I needed an excuse to immediately step down as Saint while simultaneously gaining entry into the Holy Knights."

Sisle protested.

There were some calculations in that little head of hers. No matter how fierce the criticism, the Holy Council would ultimately conclude their interrogation of Sisle in a way that wouldn't tarnish the Empire's reputation.

"Time..."

After pondering for a moment with his chin resting on his hand, the Holy Emperor asked in a calm voice,

"Sisle. What is it that you truly want to do? If you don't tell me, I cannot help you."

To which his daughter replied, her clear eyes shining,

"Yes, Your Majesty. I desire the authority I can immediately grasp!"

"Auth..."

"Yes. Big brother Morres said that after living a while, wielding authority is the best..."

"..."

Facing the Holy Emperor, who slowly raised his hand to his face, Sisle earnestly continued,

"Your Majesty. You know well that a Saintess cannot step down voluntarily unless she loses her qualifications and is expelled, right? Besides, I'm not a genius like big brother Logan, and I don't have the time to start from the bottom as a novice knight like others!"

There was a reason she specifically chose Saint Marcias.

Of course, the fact that the order didn't use swords was a big factor. But more importantly, unlike saints like Gracia or Bastian who merely devoted themselves to others, she wasn't that type of saint.

Marcias and Terbacchia, in particular, were saints who had actually served as Holy Knights and even held the position of Grand Master of their orders.

So she wanted to gain some prestige from her status during her lifetime, Sisle added.

Carefully examining his daughter's face, which seemed unusually unfamiliar today, the Holy Emperor asked,

"With the power you gain, what do you want to do?"

The answer to this was unwavering.

"I want to protect myself."

Facing those clear eyes filled with conviction, the Holy Emperor's gaze wavered slightly.

From what? What has this child been so terrified of all this time?

"...Alright."

In the end, he could only answer with a soft sigh.

Just as he couldn't stop the child when she insisted on becoming a Saintess, he had no choice but to grant whatever his child truly desired.

"Listen well, Sisle. Perhaps just before the ceremonial event, the Holy Council will summon you to inquire about a few matters."

"Yes."

Sisle nodded solemnly. She was prepared for it.

"If they ask about the two-soul theory or the three-soul theory, ignore it completely. Even if they ask whether what you were protecting was Saint Gracia's Dakion, don't answer."

"Huh? Shouldn't I explain it properly?"

When Sisle tilted her head, the Holy Emperor shook his head resolutely.

"Unnecessary explanations only provide grounds for rebuttal. What they want to know through you is not the truth, but whether there's room to nitpick. The moment you mention the separation of souls in any way, they may instantly denounce you as a demon worshipper."

"Yes..."

In response to Sisle's dejected reply, the Holy Emperor emphasized once more.

"Understood? You just need to maintain the stance that there is only one soul bestowed by God. Of course, you don't need to explain that verbally either. Just confidently state that you have been protecting Gracia until now. Keep in mind that any question about how souls are divided is a leading one. They may even subtly interchange 'soul' and 'Dakion' to induce a mistake."

"Yes."

"The same goes for your claim of being the reincarnation of Saint Marcias. Acknowledge that you received a revelation from God, but if they ask which part of his soul you received, keep your mouth shut."

"Yes!"

Sisle nodded in understanding. So the plan was to gloss over the controversial parts.

"And let me slap you once."

"Yes... What?"

Before Sisle could even register the oddity, the Holy Emperor's hand approached her face.

Smack!

"Ack!"

Forgetting her dignity as a Saintess, Sisle plopped down on the floor, clutching her forehead.

Oww! It hurts! It hurts so much!

Glancing at Sisle, who was rolling on the floor with tears welling up, the Holy Emperor rose from his seat and added,

"Hold your tongue like that, and leave the rest to me."

Through her tear-blurred vision, Sisle suddenly thought that his figure, striding out of the office, seemed unusually large that day.

The emergency council ended precariously just before the ceremonial event.

Waiting anxiously outside the grand conference hall, Seongjin and Logan were greeted by an exhausted Amelia and an overly excited Sisle.

Judging by the sight of the high priests filing out looking worn out, it seemed things had gone well.

"How did it go, Sister?"

Amelia, who had attended the emergency council as Sisle's guardian, answered Logan's question in a feeble voice.

"Yeah. It all worked out. For now, it's settled that Sisle has inherited Saint Marcias's will to some extent, and she'll be joining the Holy Knights not as a novice but with the position of [Apostle]."

"Apostle?"

"It's a new title given to a Saint who joins a knightly order. They say it's equivalent to a deputy commander in the chain of command, but who knows how it'll actually be."

Seongjin and Logan exchanged glances.

What? Didn't they just hand Sisle the maximum possible authority on a silver platter?

How is this possible?

"Wow! Big brother Morres! You should have seen it!"

Sisle, who followed, looked greatly impressed. With her fair cheeks flushed, the girl whispered to Seongjin,

"I didn't know he could defeat those stubborn old geezers in a verbal battle. Today, I witnessed a new horizon of incitement and fabrication. Father is truly amazing!"

"..."

It seemed the Holy Emperor's performance at the council was quite remarkable. The kid, who rarely showed any change in expression, was so excited.

But you know what?

'A father respected by his young daughter as a swindler...'

At this point, Seongjin couldn't help but feel a twinge of guilt toward that poor man.

"Did you hear? Apparently, our dear Saintess was actually an apostle of God."

"What? Goodness! So what does that mean? What exactly is an apostle?"

"Well, it means the Saintess was personally sent by God Himself."

"But isn't the Saintess originally a grace bestowed by God anyway?"

"That's a bit different. She's now a Saintess belonging to the Holy Knights."

"I don't know what it is, but that sounds amazing!"

The rumors spread incredibly fast.

Since Sisle's declaration had caused such a huge stir, it was only natural for last night's events to swiftly spread throughout the Imperial Capital.

However, the fact that all the citizens of the Imperial Capital knew about the [Apostle] immediately after the emergency council ended was largely due to the Information Department's preemptive measures. They intended to capture public sentiment before even a shred of criticism could arise.

Thanks to that, the rumor reached the ears of Romaine, who was passing through Bertrand Street.

'Apostle?'

He thought as he headed to the rendezvous point.

Something must have happened at the Imperial Palace yesterday, and Leo would probably tell him the details.

But when he actually arrived at the warehouse and faced him, Romaine realized,

'...He's out of it.'

Because Leonard was staring blankly into the air with a flushed face, his mind clearly elsewhere. And Romaine's intuition was not wrong.

"Apostle? What's that?"

"..."

What has he been doing at the Imperial Palace to be the only one unaware of a story the entire Imperial Capital is buzzing about?

Romaine shook his head. If the prince was that distracted, it must be about a woman nine times out of ten.

It seemed the princess had captured his heart more than expected. And things were developing in a rather favorable direction.

"Ah right, I have good news, Romaine. Prince Morres wants to meet you."

"Is that so? I thought he'd be more cautious, but that's unexpected."

"Really? He didn't seem to have any intention of hiding his affiliation with the Dark Cult at all. He readily agreed to set up a meeting."

Or maybe my impression was quite trustworthy.

While ignoring the prince's nonsense with one ear, Romaine rubbed his chin exposed beneath the half-mask.

Why? Was this uneasy feeling just his imagination?

"By the way, it's really strange. Why would a perfectly fine Holy Prince of the Holy Empire claim to be a member of the Dark Cult? And how did you discover that prince's secret, Romaine?"

Romaine stared at Leonard for a moment, then nodded. Well, he is a core member of the plan, so it should be fine to tell him this much.

"Leo. He's probably not the real Prince Morres."

"...What?"

"For some reason, the real prince must be dead. Anyway, what's currently possessing his body is an evil spirit planted by the Dark Cult."

Leonard, who had been staring with his mouth agape, asked in disbelief,

"What kind of nonsense is that? Is this a joke?"

But there was not a hint of laughter in the eyes visible beyond the half-mask.

"I mentioned before that I had a chance to see his soul while channeling with an incomplete seed, didn't I? That's when I confirmed it."

What Romaine saw that day was a soul with no proper form and an extremely faint connection to the body.

Unless one had received the Baptism of Rest, a living person could never appear like that.

"To borrow Granus's explanation, it's probably because the part corresponding to the Bion is weak. Bion is gradually formed through the interaction between the soul and the body. That's the very proof that the soul suddenly entered from the outside. It's a common tactic used by the Cult of Rest."

However, despite his detailed explanation, Leonard didn't seem to understand well.

"Bion?"

"...Don't tell me, Leo. You're not familiar with the three-soul theory?"

"Ah. Is that related to theology?"

Leonard scratched his head, looking embarrassed.

"Yeah. It feels nostalgic, like a theology teacher or something."

He nagged so much that I stabbed him without hesitation. Now he's buried nicely in the palace's rear garden.

"..."

"Anyway, it's unexpected. For the Holy Emperor, that scary fellow, to leave an evil spirit in the Imperial Palace."

"It means he's a fairly useful vessel."

In fact, that fake Prince Morres successfully thwarted Romaine's planting plan on behalf of the Holy Emperor, didn't he? Even now, it was an infuriating incident.

"But he's still his son, you know?"

"In other words, it means he's cornered to the point of having to use even an evil spirit possessing his son's body."

A confident smile curved on the lips beneath the half-mask.

"A great catastrophe originally begins from such small cracks, Leo."

The ceremonial rite hosted by the Holy Emperor.

A huge crowd had already gathered in front of the Imperial Palace. It was a rare day when ordinary citizens could directly face the Holy Emperor.

People holding small bouquets could be seen here and there. With colorful petals fluttering in the air, the biggest festival in Delcros was beginning in name and reality.

"Because the birthday banquet is the only day you can directly receive His Majesty's blessing."

Sir Masain explained while guarding Seongjin's front.

The birthday banquet was the day when God's representative blessed everyone. During the day, he showed his face to the citizens of Delcros and blessed them, and in the evening banquet, he also blessed the dignitaries who had come from all over the continent.

'You mean the birthday boy doesn't get congratulated?'

That man has it tough too.

If he had known, he should have prepared a simple birthday present.

[If you cause a little less trouble, wouldn't your father be happy enough with that?]

'...Shut up!'

Although he rebuked the Demon King, Seongjin honestly had nothing to say.

Come to think of it, wasn't he the one who first lit the fuse for this kiddo situation?

That's why he was attending the unscheduled ceremonial event. He was a bit worried about how the kiddo, who had been at the center of controversy since last night, was handling it.

"Originally, this event is for the citizens. Your Highness is not obligated to attend."

As Sir Masain said, there were no separate seats for dignitaries. So Seongjin was currently blending into the crowd in plain clothes.

Instead, the security was thorough, with Sir Masain and Dame Maria flanking Seongjin's left and right, and Sir Kurt tightly guarding his back. The strongest forces among the resident knights had been deployed.

Upon closer inspection, dignitaries surrounded by security personnel could be spotted intermittently among the crowd. There seemed to be quite a few people who had come to watch secretly like Seongjin.

"It's starting, Your Highness."

Along with Sir Kurt's quiet voice, soon the majestic sound of wind instruments resounded throughout the square.

Subsequently, the five Holy Knight Orders began to line up in turn. The sight of them, each with their unique characteristics, performing impeccable military drills in ceremonial attire was a spectacular scene.

Particularly eye-catching were the Order of Saint Aurelion and the Order of Saint Bastian at the front.

Their white uniforms, emblazoned with red and blue emblems respectively, formed a rather striking contrast on either side of the main gate.

"Oh! There's Logan!"

Seongjin noticed a conspicuous figure among them and brightened.

Wow, he sure knows how to spin that sword hilt impressively.

After the Holy Knights' military drill, which provided entertainment for a while, ended, high priests and a choir stepped forward, and a brief Mass followed.

"It's Sisle!"

The kiddo, dressed in priestly robes and standing at the front with a rather dignified demeanor, caught Seongjin's eye.

But the joy was short-lived as Seongjin's expression turned serious. The hook-nosed old geezer glaring at the kiddo beside her with a sullen face caught his attention.

That old coot! Can't he open his eyes properly?

"Cardinal Benitus isn't an easy character, but he's not fundamentally evil either."

Masain, noticing Seongjin's gaze, spoke soothingly.

"Perhaps there will be some friction with the princess, who suddenly received the position, but he's a man who adheres to principles. Won't he come to terms with it on his own soon enough?"

"Hmm, is that so?"

Seongjin looked up at Masain and thought.

Come to think of it, when he first went to the main palace for an audience with the Holy Emperor, wasn't there a strange atmosphere between the Cardinal and Sir Masain?

"Sir Masain seems to know him quite well."

At that, Masain let out a small sigh.

"Of course. Cardinal Benitus used to be my patron. That's why, even though it's been a while since I became an adult, he still can't shake off old habits and tries to nag me at every opportunity."

Come to think of it, Sir Masain was also cornered by the high priests, led by Cardinal Benitus, at yesterday's banquet.

-Sir Masain. What are you thinking! Resigning from the perfectly good position of Captain of the Imperial Guard and becoming the Commander of the Detached Palace Guards! You are the adopted son of the Imperial Family! You must never forget this fact!

Recalling the nagging he received last night, Masain looked gloomy, but Seongjin chuckled and said to him,

"I get it. He's pestering you to get married, right?"

"...Pardon?"

Masain's expression turned subtle, but Seongjin patted his back with an understanding look.

"I know it well. Isn't that the typical nagging of old geezers at this age?"

He knew that Sir Masain was approaching thirty.

The repertoire at this age was obvious. Do you have a job? Do you have a girlfriend? When are you getting married? When are you having kids?

Since Sir Masain was a respectable knight of the Imperial Guard, it was probably either a girlfriend or marriage.

"Ah!"

"Look, it's His Majesty!"

At that moment, exclamations began to resound among the people. Finally, the Holy Emperor revealed himself on the podium.

Even though it was a once-a-year event, the Holy Emperor looked not much different from usual. It's just that, befitting the occasion, he had properly fastened his judicial robes today.

"..."

It was a truly peculiar thing.

Even though he had merely appeared on the podium, it felt as if the eyes of the entire world were focused on him in an instant.

The people in the square, holding their breath in unison and concentrating on his every move. The sunlight directly shining down on his head.

Even the gentle breeze blowing seemed to revolve around him.

The Holy Emperor standing on the podium did not say much. He simply stood there quietly and exuded divine power in all directions.

However, the result of that simple action was unrivaled. The waves of divine power sweeping across the square were so fierce that even Seongjin, who had absolutely no divine power, could feel something passing by.

Whoosh.

The buds of the bouquets people were holding simultaneously bloomed in full. Even the trampled petals on the ground were revived vividly.

"Ahhh..."

All the citizens in the square were entranced, their eyes reddening. If ordinary people were like this, how about the priests sensitive to divine power?

Sob sob!

Hearing the sound of crying here and there, Seongjin turned to see people in quite exotic priestly robes collapsed on the ground. They seemed to be priests who had come from abroad for the birthday banquet.

Their writhing figures, having completely lost self-control, definitely looked out of their minds.

The Demon King had said this could also be a kind of [Captivation].

-In a sense, it may be more dangerous because they don't think to resist like with demonic energy.

Immediately after that, the Holy Emperor disappeared beyond the Imperial Palace, but the excitement that had once swept the square did not subside for a while. Staring blankly at the people weeping with emotion, Seongjin thought,

'Is it because I don't have divine power? I can't shake off the feeling that they're like cult fanatics...'

"Quite a bizarre spectacle, isn't it?"

It seemed Seongjin wasn't the only one who felt that way, as the man standing next to him spoke.

"Having lived abroad for a long time due to work, I sometimes find these scenes in Delcros very unfamiliar."

For a moment, Seongjin thought it was Riccardo standing there. The man's tall stature and relaxed attitude were a spitting image of him.

But he soon realized that the man looked slightly older than Riccardo.

Fortunately, before Masain could say anything, the man politely bowed. His demeanor was not very respectful, but there was nothing to fault.

"Greetings to Your Highness Morres."

"And you are?"

"So the rumor about your memory loss was true. I am Domenico Scarcepino. I have often paid my respects to Your Highness at gatherings."

The coldly calm eyes beyond the greeting sparkled.

"Thank you for your concern about my sister's health. I came to express my gratitude, even at the risk of being rude."

As he said, following Amelia's advice, Seongjin had sent a letter inquiring about Isabella's well-being.

But there must have been more than one or two such letters for the sickbed of the queen who ruled the social circles. Yet he read them all and came to express his gratitude?

Seongjin narrowed his eyes and looked at him.

"Of course I'm concerned. Isabella is my fiancée. By the way, how is her condition? Is there any improvement?"

It was a bit awkward to ask like this after witnessing the scene where he tapped her head. But it was better than inquiring about Riccardo, whom he had directly beaten up.

Domenico then quietly observed Seongjin, as if appraising him.

Did this guy notice something?

"Thanks to Your Highness's concern, she will recover soon."

There was little change in emotion on the man's face as he answered. Rather than managing his expression as a seasoned businessman, he seemed to have an inherently dry lack of emotion.

'He's not an easy one...'

Seongjin felt an inexplicable unease. And that uncomfortable feeling doubled when he introduced the woman next to him as his fiancée.

"This is my fiancée, Olivie."

A pretty woman with a lively impression slightly lifted the hem of her dress.

At that moment, Seongjin was inwardly startled.

'This woman is an assassin! What the hell is this guy up to?'

159

"This is my fiancée, Olivie."

At Domenico's introduction, the young woman slightly lifted the hem of her dress and said,

"Olivie Lamari, pleased to meet you."

The moment Seongjin saw her, he knew.

"This woman is an assassin! What the hell is this guy up to?"

Although her appearance was quite different, as soon as Seongjin faced the woman, he immediately thought of Dasha. The astute eyes, the sociable smile. The quiet gait.

Above all, the aura.

Though skillfully concealed, the woman was definitely hiding her aura. In reality, she must have accumulated quite a high level of it.

However, perhaps wanting to appear as having the aura activation of an ordinary person, she was currently using partial aura concealment. She probably thought that would be more suitable for the identity of a noble lady running a business.

As a result, it created a slight sense of incongruity, different from when completely erasing one's presence.

Of course, if it weren't for Seongjin, who had recently become adept at aura concealment, it would have been difficult to notice, so others probably didn't detect it at all.

"...Lamari, I've never heard of that family."

Blocking Seongjin's path, Masain interrogated. He seemed to have a fishy feeling about it.

His stiffly hardened face looked quite intimidating even to Seongjin, but the woman showed no sign of being daunted.

"We are a viscounty of Brittany. We operate a small business."

It was a modest background for the fiancée of Delcross' wealthiest heir. Perhaps noticing that thought on Masain's face, she added,

"Dominic and I met through business and have maintained our connection ever since."

"Hmm. What business are you in?"

"A small textile business. We cultivate high-quality flax and produce fabrics. Occasionally, we also deal with wool from Carthago."

No way. She seems more likely to be in the information or assassination business.

Seongjin thought to himself, but the woman's face, with a gentle smile, was as brazen as could be.

So much so that even the Demon King was confused.

[Her blood pressure and pulse barely change? She seems to be telling the truth. Lee Seongjin, are you mistaken?]

'No. That woman is definitely a skilled assassin. Either she's extremely adept at lying, or maybe she really does run a cover business.'

I should ask Dasha to investigate Lamari later. The tasks he needed to entrust to her kept piling up.

However, at Olivie's next words, even Seongjin almost failed to maintain his composure.

"Since most of it comes through the Milo Guild, the name Lamari is probably even more unfamiliar in Delcross."

Seongjin asked back,

"Milo Guild?"

"Yes, that's right. Recently, many goods coming from Brittany pass through the Milo Guild."

"I see."

Seongjin nodded with a calm expression. He keenly sensed the woman's gaze briefly passing over him, as if appraising him.

He was pretty sure the Milo Guild distributed alcohol primarily to Aseins and Rohans, so what was she probing him for?

"So, are you now trying to trade directly with Delcross through Scarcepino?"

"Pardon?"

"I thought it must be difficult to balance the books when doing business through another guild."

"...Yes, that's correct."

"I see. Then I suppose we'll hear the name Lamari in Delcross' dressing rooms soon. I look forward to it."

"..."

Throughout this conversation, Domenico Scarcepino stood back a step, quietly observing the situation.

Then Sir Masain gently spoke up,

"Your Highness, the closing military drill will begin soon."

Seongjin brightened.

"Will Logan be there again?"

"Yes. There will probably be a solo demonstration by the Lilium Special Forces in the middle."

Oh! Can't miss that.

It would be great to have a camera. I feel like a parent coming to see a child's talent show.

"Then we'll move a bit closer to the front. What about you?"

"Yes. Your Highness. Please enjoy the viewing. I look forward to seeing you again."

Although Domenico bowed with utmost courtesy as he bid farewell...

Seongjin gave him a once-over before turning away.

You bastard!

How dare you introduce an assassin as your fiancée and even have her probe me?

No use pretending to be polite now. You're already on my suspicious list!

Watching the prince's party move away, Olivie spoke,

"Dominic, you might have misjudged this time."

If the force that infiltrated the townhouse was really the prince's men, he couldn't possibly be unaware of the Milo Guild.

Didn't they leave the Dark Cult's mark at the scene and vanish unscathed? That would mean he was at least associated with the Dark Cult or well-informed about the relationship between the Dark Cult and the Milo Guild.

However, no matter what she said, the prince, who had seemed indifferent to everything, maintained a dull expression until the end.

If that was a deliberate effort to manage his expression, the boy must be a born swindler. He could easily deceive even the leader of the organization she belonged to. It was probably an impossible feat for a prince who grew up comfortably in the Imperial Palace.

But Domenico's thoughts were slightly different.

"Well. Wasn't it after that prince attended the gathering that Riccardo ended up in that state? Besides, the prince has been close with Riccardo all along. That guy wouldn't associate with just anyone."

"That's true."

"And although there's no evidence, I strangely feel that Isabella's loss of consciousness is not unrelated to that prince."

Adjusting his glasses, Domenico added,

"That's not all. Haven't you noticed that Young Master Siegmund has been quiet lately?"

The Young Master of Orden Siegmund had noticed the events unfolding in his territory. So he had been clumsily poking around here and there, claiming to investigate in his own way.

Originally a warrior to the bone, he moved with a limited number of men behind the family head's back, leading to mishaps.

But recently, he had become docile without such reckless behavior.

"Do you know why he suddenly became quiet?"

"He gave up?"

"No way. It's not certain, but there's information that he entrusted the case to the Monster Special Task Force."

"Monster Special Task Force?"

"Yes. The very department managed by that Prince Morris."

Observing the conversation between the prince and Olivie, he was convinced.

He was definitely more skilled at concealing his true intentions than himself. It was not an ability that a boy his age could easily possess.

"Olivie."

Without taking his eyes off the prince moving away, Domenico ordered,

"From now on, investigate that prince a bit."

"An Apostle?"

At the old priest's astonishment, Clemence nodded.

"Yes. That's what they're all saying. That the youngest princess is an Apostle of God."

"And the Orthodox Church acknowledged it?"

"Yes, apparently so."

"Bethel..."

The old priest rubbed his face with a troubled expression.

After their grand endeavor for a great harvest had gone up in smoke...

The two surviving brothers of the Sowing had been hiding in a warehouse on Bertrand Street.

Originally, they intended to seek refuge with the Milo Guild, which had a connection with the cult, but the bishop strongly dissuaded them. The reason was that it was unsafe due to the increasing number of eyes watching the guild recently.

"Now of all times? What are they thinking?"

The old priest looked extremely confused. The content about [Apostle] was a part of the scriptures that the Orthodox Church had long buried together with the underground cult.

Otherwise, the saint known as St. Bastian would have originally been called Apostle Bastian.

Of course, the two had never dreamed...

That the Holy Emperor, who had to further solidify his daughter's fabrication, would inevitably bring up the concept while arguing with the strict old men of the Holy Council, citing the nooks and crannies of the scriptures as evidence.

Anyway, Priest Clemence' face was flushed with anticipation.

"If they acknowledged [Apostle], they will have no choice but to accept the doctrine of the underground cult someday, right? They won't be able to denounce us as the Dark Cult anymore!"

It wasn't unreasonable for him to show such hopeful speculation.

Originally, the brothers of the underground cult regarded the archbishops of the four sects as God's Apostles.

According to their doctrine, Passion, Sowing, Repentance, and Rest were each different gods and at the same time one god. They explained that they were all different manifestations of God.

So early in the Holy Emperor's reign, the Orthodox Church deleted most of the content related to [Apostle] from the scriptures.

The easiest way to deny the underground cult was to deny the existence of the Apostles who led them.

"Perhaps all of this is the work of Prince Morres? Maybe his preparations are finally showing tangible results!"

"...Prince Morres?"

The old priest asked suspiciously. There was circumstantial evidence that it was actually Prince Morres who ordered Priest Hayes to open the gate unexpectedly.

However, the hot-blooded young priest was excited for the first time in a while.

"Don't you know, Brother? We must not forget the prophecies of the Archbishops."

That on the day Prince Morres was born, the four Apostles of each sect unanimously blessed him.

-Rejoice! The child is [prepared] for the glory of the cult!

-Freed from long oppression, the underground cult shall flourish once more!

Toward the apprehensive old priest, Clemens emphasized again,

"The prepared one is someone upon whom the gods of the four sects simultaneously bestowed a great mission and sent to this land. Therefore, Prince Morres is undoubtedly God's Apostle! The Apostle of Apostles!"

As he spoke with an excited voice...

"...Wait a moment, let me hear more about that."

Someone spoke to them from behind.

"Bishop?"

The two priests stood up simultaneously.

When did he enter the warehouse? The bishop, who suddenly appeared from the shadows of the wall, was slowly approaching them.

"What about Prince Morres? What did he prepare?"

"Yes, Bishop. As you know, the prepared one is God's Apostle..."

Priest Clemence, who was answering like that, suddenly stopped talking. Because the old priest grabbed his arm with a trembling hand.

"Brother Clemence."

The old priest spoke in a tense voice,

"Since when was he our Bishop?"

"...Pardon?"

"How could the brother of [Sowing] not know about the prepared one?"

Then, as if a bucket of cold water had been poured on him, Clemence' mind cleared.

Come to think of it, was the Bishop with them when they hid in Delcross years ago, following the will of the cult?

Since when did they start reporting every detail of what happened in the Heresy Tribunal to the Bishop?

'Wait a minute! Then what about the great work?'

Who first told us about that great work?

Since when have we been [sowing] for the sake of that great work?

"..."

Even facing the eyes of the two priests, widened with fear and shock, the [Bishop] remained silent. Only the lips beneath the half-mask curved into a faint smile.

Clemence asked in a heavily cracked voice,

"...Who are you? Are you not a brother of Sowing? Since when have you been acting as the Bishop?"

"That's right. What the hell was that great work you mentioned?"

"Hmm."

The man in the half-mask, Romaine, clasped his hands behind his back and spoke in a somewhat deflated voice,

"Although I've been a brother of Sowing for quite a long time and thought I had a grasp on most things... A sect that has lasted for over a thousand years is not that easy to figure out."

"...What?"

"And I was really surprised about Prince Morres. I thought the Cult of Rest had done something to him, but to think it was all planned from his birth..."

Shaking his head, Romaine took a step toward the priests. At the same time, the two staggered back, but...

[Calm down.]

At Romaine's command that followed, they froze as if frozen, stopping their movements.

[You don't have to be afraid. Brothers of Sowing. You are still quite useful vessels to me.]

A voice with a strange, somehow uncanny power that touched the depths of the soul.

Before they knew it, the two priests were listening to Romaine's words with dazed faces.

[I am undoubtedly your brother. So tell me everything. Everything you know about Prince Morres.]

Beyond the half-mask, a faint yellow light fleetingly passed through the light brown eyes.

[What exactly is this prepared one?]

Achoo!

In the carriage heading to the banquet hall, Amelia asked worriedly to Seongjin, who suddenly sneezed violently.

"What's wrong all of a sudden, Morres? You haven't caught a cold, have you?"

"Oh, no. Of course not."

Aura users rarely fall ill. There's no way he could catch a cold, right?

However, defying that thought, Seongjin sneezed again.

"Achoo!"

The startled Amelia meticulously wrapped the shawl next to her around him and said,

"You must have overworked yourself recently with the banquet preparations. Go in and rest a bit early today."

Reduced to a tightly wrapped rice ball in a thick shawl, Seongjin sniffled with an embarrassed face.

'That's strange. Is someone constantly talking about me? I've been feeling uneasy since earlier...'

While Seongjin tried his best to smile at Amelia...

In the sky that had already darkened, large raindrops were falling one by one.

The rain that began pouring down suddenly intensified with each passing moment.

To make matters worse, an untimely gale blew in, making the banquet hall feel more cozy than home upon arrival.

Countless lights continued to sprinkle their dazzling glow, but with the excitement of the first banquet having faded, the hall exuded a calmer atmosphere compared to the previous day.

'The main banquet has a slightly more political nature, as I recall...'

It was a setting where subtle diplomatic battles could unfold, with attendees probing and keeping each other in check.

However, as it wasn't a venue for negotiations involving vested interests, there were many instances where the purpose was simply to exchange pleasantries and cultivate goodwill.

Thanks to this, the banquet hall's atmosphere flowed gently, belying its political undercurrents.

Having finished his first light dance with Amelia, Seongjin took a moment to leisurely survey his surroundings. It felt as though he had completed all his assigned tasks.

He had heard that one was expected to dance at least once with their prospective marriage partner out of courtesy.

However, little Chloe was absent, as she had yet to make her debut, while Isabella was also missing due to a head injury. Moreover, Julia Meyer was nowhere to be seen.

This meant he was free until the end of the banquet.

"It's been a while, Prince Morres."

Taking advantage of the slightly sparse atmosphere, a small boy approached and addressed him.

With a razor-sharp bob cut and rosy cheeks, it was Charles from the Ravioli family.

'Oh, this kid is old enough to attend the banquet now!'

Children from the Holy Emperor's bloodline grew tall and slender like grass saturated with water, so it was surprising in many ways that this boy, even smaller than Sisle, was already over thirteen.

However, as Charles meticulously observed Seongjin with a delighted expression, his face soon fell, appearing deeply disappointed.

"My apologies, Your Highness. Did you not like the gift I sent?"

Ah, come to think of it, this little one had gifted him a tie pin.

"I had already coordinated my attire and accessories for the dress code quite early on, so it was a bit regrettable."

The banquet outfit had been completed just before his birthday, but there was no need to mention that.

Fortunately, the boy's face brightened, seeming to accept the explanation.

"I see. By the way, please lower the way you address me. I don't know what to do with myself."

"No, that simply won't do. Aren't you an esteemed guest who has come from a foreign country to celebrate the birthday banquet?"

At this, a flicker of puzzlement crossed Charles's face.

"But then, why did you address the prince of Rohan...?"

Ah. He must have overheard me talking casually to that swallow earlier.

It's fine. By my standards, that bastard doesn't qualify as a guest.

Observing Seongjin's face, which had turned slightly grim, Charles soon nodded as if he had grasped something.

He followed Seongjin's gaze towards where Amelia stood. She happened to be facing Rohan's swallow bastard, deeply engaged in conversation.

"It would be wise to keep some distance from that prince. The rumors circulating about him are quite unsavory in many ways."

Charles whispered, looking somewhat concerned.

"Rumors are said to be insubstantial like the wind, but grass cannot sprout in a barren field without seeds being carried in."

"Hmm, well..."

Certainly, Leonard of Rohan did not give off a particularly good impression.

For a fellow who had been raised preciously as royalty, there was an uncanny scent of blood in his eyes. It reminded Seongjin of those trash back on Earth who were more enthusiastic about slaughtering fellow hunters for power than fighting monsters.

That's why, when the bastard first attempted to approach Amelia, Seongjin had tried his best to block him. His sister's demeanor in front of Leonard seemed somehow fearful.

However, at some point after she regained her emotional stability, the situation changed a bit.

While she maintained a smile that exuded charm to everyone, Seongjin could instantly tell.

The way she looked at the bastard now was like a satiated cat eyeing a plump little rat.

'Ah. She must have some interesting plan in mind for him.'

So, despite his distaste for the fellow, Seongjin decided to observe the situation for a while. He knew that, contrary to her innocent appearance, Amelia had a rather shrewd personality.

'Even if that bastard suffers some consequences, it'll all be his own doing. If he has angered our angelic sister, doesn't that make him worse than a demon?'

Of course, that didn't mean he would stop keeping a watchful eye on the bastard!

As he was glaring at Leonard with a sullen face, Charles cautiously opened his mouth.

"In contrast to that prince, the crown prince of Rohan is shrouded in excessive secrecy. Rumor has it that he has never attended a birthday banquet due to being too sickly for long-distance travel."

Right. The etiquette teacher had mentioned something along those lines.

"Rohan's officials must be quite worried. Fortunately, our Brittany is free from such concerns. Prince Philip is exceptionally robust, diligent, and impeccable, leaving no room for criticism."

Seongjin lowered his gaze to look directly at Charles.

Huh? Look at this kid.

"Quite a blunt expression of opinion, isn't it?"

He had thought the kid was the type to use roundabout, aristocratic speech like before.

At this, Charles slowly smiled.

"Before whom should I mince my words? I will say nothing more, Your Highness. In the future, Brittany will undoubtedly be the most suitable partner for the Empire's endeavors."

"..."

Seongjin turned his gaze towards Amelia and Leonard without answering.

I see. I thought he was still young, but his sister already reached that age? Well, even that Morris guy already has three prospective marriage partners.

Moreover, isn't Amelia the eldest daughter of the Holy Emperor's family? Considering the impact her marriage will have on the continent's future landscape, it's no wonder people's attention is already focused on her.

'Still, sixteen is quite young, a prime age for growth...'

Somehow, there was a slightly bitter taste in his mouth.

Meanwhile, Charles continued to stare at Seongjin with expectant, glittering eyes.

'But why is this kid approaching me like this?'

What does he expect from me? He should go to Logan, the likely successor to the Holy Emperor, instead.

Or perhaps...

Seongjin quickly glanced towards the head table.

Hmm, Father isn't here yet?

Just then, Queen Elizabeth, who was seated near the head table, caught Seongjin's gaze and flinched in surprise.

She then promptly turned her head away with a stiff expression. What on earth is troubling the 1st Queen these days?

As he was beginning to feel uncomfortable and considering leaving, he suddenly spotted a familiar face on one side of the banquet hall.

'...Dame Julia Meyer? She attended the banquet today.'

He could instantly recognize her unfamiliar face because, surprisingly, she looked no different from her usual appearance.

Amidst the other young ladies adorned in splendid finery, she alone stood resolutely in her knight's uniform, holding a drink with a somewhat businesslike expression.

Aha, there was another stubborn one like Logan over there.

'Anyway, I should complete my task.'

His sister had repeatedly emphasized that he must ask his prospective marriage partner for a dance.

After excusing himself to Charles, Seongjin slowly approached Julia.

Come to think of it, he remembered having a good first impression of Julia Meyer. She had been quite helpful when he had attacked the capital's guard the other day. She had completely ignored the commotion he caused.

In fact, Julia had been gleefully watching the capital's guard captain, with whom she had a strained relationship, floundering in the chaos, but Seongjin was unaware of such deep underlying circumstances.

"Dame Julia. If it's alright with you, may I request the next dance?"

Upon hearing those words, Julia's eyes widened as she turned her head.

As if she couldn't believe what she had just heard, she stammered before finally blurting out a response.

"...Forgive me, Your Highness. But I am currently in my knight's uniform."

"Hmm, I see."

Will the dance moves be a bit tricky?

He vaguely recalled there being a move that involved grasping and fluttering the hem of a dress.

"So that's...!"

I'm trying to politely decline the dance request by making excuses! Julia wanted to say that, but there wasn't a shred of doubt on the prince's face. He genuinely had no idea.

"Ah, are you on duty right now? My apologies if you're currently guarding the banquet hall."

"...No, Your Highness. Today is my day off."

Then what's the problem?

With an innocent face that knew nothing, Julia sighed and took his hand.

Well, there's no rule against dancing in uniform.

'My parents will nag me again when I get home...'

Contrary to the rumors portraying her as a woman who was a knight to the bone, stubbornly rejecting all suitors while insisting on her uniform, Julia Meyer had no particular aversion to beautifying her appearance.

Regardless of how she dressed on her days off, it wouldn't change the fact that she was a knight.

It was simply that, during her academy days, her studies had been overwhelming, and after joining the knighthood, work had piled up like crazy, leaving her unwilling to waste energy on trivial matters.

That's why, despite her parents' nagging, she showed up at every birthday banquet in her uniform. It was quite troublesome to refuse the flood of dance requests one by one.

Sensing the young masters, who had been watching from afar, staring at her with startled rabbit eyes, Julia thought to herself.

'Perhaps this year marks the end of peaceful birthday banquets.'

Well, it seemed unlikely that there would be anyone else brazen enough to ask her for a dance while she was in uniform.

"Oh my, look over there."

"Quite impressive, unexpectedly..."

The attendees in the banquet hall turned their gazes towards this unusual couple with curious eyes.

Julia Meyer was a young lady with a physique that stretched tall like a willow branch. As a result, she was much taller than Seongjin, who was still growing, so it was thought that the two would make a somewhat awkward picture when dancing together.

However, a handsome boy and a slender beauty standing side by side naturally created a picturesque scene.

The couple whispering to each other while lightly stepping in time with the music seemed quite well-matched.

Of course, if one were to hear the conversation they were having, such thoughts would have quickly dissipated. Seongjin, thinking it was a good opportunity, was currently seeking her professional advice on work-related matters.

"Are you referring to the deployment of the 7th Knighthood?"

When Julia asked for clarification, Seongjin nodded. Recently, he had been contemplating which department to involve for a large-scale seizure and search of the Milo Guild.

"Yes. The 7th Knighthood's official name is the [Imperial Capital Defense Corps], right? I understand they perform duties similar to the Capital Guard."

"That is correct, but..."

Julia then made a complicated expression.

"As Your Highness is aware, deploying troops requires a clear justification. Unless a direct order is issued by a high-ranking official of commander rank or above, usually an official request form and supporting legal clauses must first be submitted to the administrative department, and then we wait for the executive order to be issued."

"So the Knighthood cannot be dispatched with a simple request for support?"

"In principle, that is the case. Otherwise, a cooperative relationship must be established in advance through prior consultation between departments. Of course, there are instances where the commander or deputy commander may dispatch troops at their discretion if they deem it an emergency situation."

"Hmm."

Seongjin tilted his head and asked.

"So, what you're ultimately saying is that we should arrange a prior work agreement with the Monster Special Task Force? Then what should we do? Should I formally prepare a cooperation document and send it to the 7th Knighthood?"

At this, Julia Meyer's expression rapidly soured.

"Ah, but please, anything but the cooperation document..."

Transformed in an instant into the face of an office worker worn out from overtime, Julia Meyer sighed.

"Alright, Your Highness. The various administrative procedures for troop deployment are certainly necessary, but I acknowledge that they are also excessively cumbersome. Moreover, if Your Highness is requesting support to this extent, it must be an urgent matter that is far from ordinary. In that case, I believe I can handle it somehow at my discretion."

Considering the recent incidents the prince had been involved in, such as the monster case at the Digory residence and the Heresy Tribunal Gate incident, rumors were circulating that when the prince made a move, it was no longer a typical affair.

Of course, Seongjin, unaware of the underlying reasons, merely tilted his head in puzzlement.

"Let's do it this way, Your Highness. If you can properly submit the post-action report and take full responsibility for it, I can manage an emergency dispatch at my discretion immediately upon Your Highness's request."

"Are you sure that's alright?"

As Seongjin's face brightened, Julia Meyer replied with a somewhat enlightened expression.

"Yes. Then, at least the paperwork will be reduced by half, won't it?"

Every task has an arduous and drawn-out process of application and approval, but once it's done, the cleanup is usually accomplished relatively quickly.

Fortunately, the deputy commander of the Imperial Capital Defense Corps was flexible!

"Thank you so much, Dame Julia! Should we have a departmental dinner sometime for our smooth cooperation in the future? I'll draft a budget and send an official document to the 7th Knighthood soon!"

As a newly established department, they were relatively free from budget constraints, Seongjin added proudly.

At this, Julia made an absurd face before responding in a subdued voice.

"...No, I mean, never mind the official document."

She seemed utterly fed up with paperwork.

As the dance music ended, Seongjin parted ways with Julia.

This was the first time he had conversed with her like this, but she seemed to be someone he could communicate with quite well. It was a satisfying encounter.

'By the way...'

Feeling a bit anxious, Seongjin unconsciously glanced towards the head table once more.

And after confirming that it was still empty...

'Oh...'

He finally realized what had been bothering him for a while.

Doesn't it seem like the Holy Emperor is awfully late?

Rumble, boom!

Suddenly, Seongjin's sensitive senses faintly picked up the distant sound of thunder.

On a mountainside southwest of Delcross.

Amidst the drizzling rain, a young girl sat quietly, gazing down at the imperial capital enveloped in a faint glow.

Utterly motionless, she appeared as if she had been born as a rock, sculpted by the wind and rain over countless years in that very spot.

Her long, golden hair braided into two plaits was antiquated, and the jet-black robe enveloping her small frame was the attire once worn by wandering ascetics in the pre-imperial era.

Swoosh.

The rain intensified with each passing moment, but not a single droplet touched the girl's body. The black mana emanating from her being was repelling the rainfall entirely.

"..."

The girl was none other than the high sovereign bearing the name [Greed].

She was a demon who had been awaiting the destruction that would befall this world for an eternity.

Rustle.

Moments later, a young man emerged from the undergrowth before the girl. He had a genial appearance, with a battered mandolin slung across his back. He raised his hand in a friendly gesture towards the girl.

"Hey, [Greed]."

It was ironic how the young girl appeared like sedimentary layers accumulated over an eternity, while the young man seemed verdantly fresh, as if he had just blossomed like an annual flower.

"...Sowing."

Greed furrowed her brow.

The young man's overflowing vitality was not a mere trick of the mind. He had already replaced his contractor.

The only commonalities with his previous self were the black mana surging from his body and the occasional flicker of an eerie green glow in his eyes.

"Another new contractor? What a trivial fixation."

"Contractors are meant to be frequently harvested and cultivated anew. It's you who's strange for not changing them for over a thousand years."

Sowing retorted as he plopped down on the ground.

"Seriously. Greed, I have a warning for you. You're acquainted with that dimension's storyteller, right? Tell that irksome fellow. Why is he luring our innocent sect's children into doing pointless things?"

He was referring to Romaine manipulating Sowing's brethren to spread monster eggs throughout the capital.

At this, Greed let out a cold sneer.

"How pitiful. He is no longer the storyteller now."

"...What do you mean, no longer?"

"It means he was once Sigurd Sigurdson."

Sowing clicked his tongue.

"What? Our kids were played by a mere puppet? Why do you associate closely with someone like that?"

"Because I know what such a person ultimately yearns for."

Without taking her eyes off the imperial capital, Greed smiled crookedly.

"What do you think it could be? Surely, he desires to eliminate Sigurd Sigurdson and be reborn as the true dimensional storyteller. Among them, Romain is the only puppet who has nearly achieved success. Having obtained the key to the labyrinth, he is worth observing further."

"Ha! So that's why you keep him by your side."

The young man openly scoffed.

"The moment he becomes the sole Sigurd Sigurdson, you intend to strip him of everything."

"..."

Greed felt no need to respond. It was a truth that required neither affirmation nor denial.

He had always been that kind of being.

Either devouring immediately or savoring it for a while. Ultimately, he was one who stripped everything away.

"Anyway, so that's why [Repentance]'s sect has been quiet lately while you've been playing with him. Have you grown tired of toying with others' possessions?"

"What the master has abandoned is no different from being mine."

"In that case, you should have established your own sect long ago. Stop thinking about wielding Repentance's forces here and there. It's a hassle to move them, isn't it?"

"Nonsense."

Greed never created or cultivated anything in the first place. He merely thoroughly stripped away what existed. It wasn't a matter of laziness, but simply his nature.

In his wake, only extreme hunger and severe deprivation remained. That's why Greed's other name was [Famine].

It was only natural for him to gradually devour the sect that [Repentance], who had been holed up somewhere regretting for the past thousand years, had built.

"By the way, honestly, this time was a bit unexpected. I never thought you'd request cooperation."

"When I recently sent a subpar subordinate as a test, he barely returned alive. The king of Delcross is too dangerous to face alone."

"Well. Are you sure you're not just afraid I'll stab you in the back?"

Sowing narrowed his eyes and glanced at the girl. This, too, was a truth that needed no denial, so Greed did not answer.

Originally, Delcross was destined to be destroyed by the descent of the five demon kings.

However, [Repentance], who had descended a thousand years ago, had crawled underground and refused to emerge. [Fervent Heat], who should have brought war, was distracted by something else entirely. And [Repose], who should have bestowed death upon all, was ironically in an eternal slumber himself.

In the end, currently, the only comrade who could properly confront the emperor of Delcross was [Sowing].

At the same time, if Greed were to suffer a blow, Sowing would be the only one who might stab him in the back. Of course, the reverse was also true.

"Well, anyway, fine. It's safer for both of us to share the risk."

The young man nodded and rose to his feet.

[Now then...]

The moment his eyes flashed with a vivid green glow, black mana surged forth, enveloping the mountainside and soaring towards the sky.

[Shall we begin?]

Rumble.

Accompanied by a earth-shaking roar.

Flash!

Blue lightning bolts struck the ground in succession.

"This gentleman is definitely too late!"

Some of the attendees in the banquet hall seemed to have sensed something amiss as well.

Murmur murmur.

Pushing through the gradually agitated crowd, Seongjin exited the banquet hall.

Perhaps it was his imagination, but the corridor felt strangely dim despite the bright illumination. Although servants should have been bustling about, the corridor was eerily silent without a soul in sight.

As he slowly walked towards the stairs leading to the second floor while surveying his surroundings, the sound of click-clacking footsteps soon followed behind him.

"Morres!"

It was Amelia, who had also sensed something unusual. Sisle, looking somewhat anxious, was with her.

"Everyone's here. Something is definitely wrong!"

Following closely, Logan approached with Seo Yi-seo or Cardmos in her body. As a result, all four siblings of the Holy Imperial family gathered at the foot of the stairs.

"I sense a strange aura coming from the direction of the second-floor office. It's certainly not mana, but..."

As Logan had mentioned, the stairs growing darker as they ascended gave an increasingly peculiar sense of unease.

Despite the stairwell being brightly lit, the second-floor corridor, devoid of any light, appeared as if obscured by a thick, black curtain.

"How strange. I don't recall this ever happening before..."

Amelia spoke with a worried expression, quickly recalling the events prior to the regression.

"Anyway, we should go up and check, shouldn't we? Father must be there."

The dense darkness was suffocating even by simply looking at it.

However, there was not a hint of hesitation in her brother's eyes as he stared at it. Steeling her resolve, Amelia swiftly assessed the situation.

"I will inform Her Majesty the Empress of this situation. For now, Sisle and Lord Cardmos, perhaps you could hold a small event to bless the distinguished guests. Also, check if the orchestra has any impromptu performances they can showcase. That should help quell the guests' unease."

Then she entrusted Seongjin and Logan with a request.

"For now, I have no choice but to entrust Father to the two most reliable people. I will summon the Imperial Guard knights right away, so while we handle the banquet hall's atmosphere, could you two please visit the office?"

Seongjin nodded and immediately dashed up the stairs as if leaping.

"Be careful, Lee Seongjin! Something is definitely amiss."

Logan closely followed, cautioning him, but Seongjin paid no heed.

Upon arriving at the pitch-black second-floor corridor, servants could be seen collapsed here and there on the floor.

"What in the world..."

Judging by the aura detection, they all seemed to be alive, but their vitality was extremely faint. The two exchanged a glance before rushing towards the office.

The office at the end of the second-floor corridor. Collapsed in front of it was the head servant, Lewis.

Fortunately, he was breathing, but his contorted face appeared strained as if he were having a nightmare.

And...

Standing in front of the wide-open office door, as if guarding it, was the commander of the Order of Saint Aurelion.

"Commander Katrina..."

She was the only person here who had not lost consciousness. However, she also seemed to be in a poor state.

Using her long sword like a cane, propping it against the floor, Katrina spoke with difficulty, perspiring profusely.

"...Why have you come here, Your Highness?"

"Commander! What in the world is going on?"

"Father? Is Father inside?"

At this, she looked at Seongjin with a faint smile.

"Rest assured, Your Highness. [Gaps] opening in the palace is a common occurrence. It's just that this time, it was so sudden that His Majesty didn't have a moment to enter the prayer room."

Gaps?

"Those who have collapsed will be tended to by His Majesty as soon as the gap closes, so please don't worry too much."

As she answered, her complexion was extremely pale, as if she might collapse at any moment.

In any case, it meant that the Holy Emperor was also caught up in this situation. Seongjin asked her with a stern face.

"...Katrina, where is Father?"

"Although his return may be slightly delayed, there will likely be no issues. Your Highness, if you remain here for too long, you may lose consciousness like the others. Please return to the banquet hall and await His Majesty's arrival."

Indeed, since earlier, Seongjin had been experiencing an unpleasant tinnitus and a headache that felt like it was pressing down on his head.

Even so, to simply turn back after witnessing this chaos? Wasn't it implied that the gentleman was at the center of this bizarre space?

Seongjin took a step closer to her, who was blocking the entrance.

"He's inside, isn't he? Move aside at once."

"It's dangerous, Your Highness. Please return to the banquet hall...!"

"I must go in now, Commander."

As Seongjin interrupted her with a growl, Katrina stared at him intently. Her eyes trembled slightly, reflecting her extreme emotional turmoil.

"...Is that Your Highness's wish? Do you truly feel that way?"

"Yes."

With a small sigh, she began to move her steps unsteadily.

"Phew. I don't know what admonishment I will receive from His Majesty later, but..."

Then, clank! Thud! She dropped to one knee on the floor, propping herself up with her sword. Geez, why are you being stubborn when you can barely stand?

Seongjin glanced at Katrina once before striding into the office.

Seongjin immediately spotted the Holy Emperor.

He was leaning against the office sofa with his eyes closed, not moving an inch even as Seongjin approached. It was a markedly different sight from how he would always sense Seongjin's presence and greet him first.

Indeed, as if he were at the center of this entire situation, the closer Seongjin got, the more intense the piercing headache became.

"His heart rate is abnormally slow. But he's definitely alive."

Logan, who also seemed to have a headache, spoke with a furrowed brow.

"But it's strange. Even though he's right in front of us, his presence feels distant, as if he's somewhere else. Why is that?"

Seongjin was just feeling the same way.

It was like shards of a shattered window reflecting a disjointed image, a mixture of mismatched forms.

Even though his recumbent figure was visible right before their eyes, it simultaneously felt like a distant scene viewed through a telescope or camera lens.

Just as Seongjin was about to reach out to the Holy Emperor, Logan suddenly flinched and looked out the window.

"Lee Seongjin. There's a suspicious fellow in the garden. He's sending killing intent this way."

"A suspicious fellow?"

"Yes. He's completely concealing his aura. Likely an assassin. Of all times..."

If he was using aura concealment, he was indeed an assassin.

However, with the headache and the strangely distorted senses, it wasn't easy for Seongjin to detect the fellow's presence. It also meant that the assassin had considerable skill.

In this situation, the only one who could sense him was probably Logan, a former Decaron Knight and Sword Master.

As if having the same thought, Logan alternated his worried gaze between Seongjin and the Holy Emperor for a moment before speaking.

"We can't leave him be, so I'll go out and capture the culprit first. I'll subdue him quickly and return, so don't push yourself. If you feel unwell, head back to the banquet hall immediately."

"Alright."

Drawing Arjuna, Logan leaped out of the office terrace. Then, dashing across the garden, he soon disappeared somewhere.

After watching him for a moment, Seongjin headed towards the sofa where the Holy Emperor lay. In any case, he intended to at least try shaking him awake.

Of course, he had doubts about whether it would even be possible to grab and shake him.

At the same time...

'I can reach him in the end...!'

With that inexplicable conviction, Seongjin slowly reached out towards him.

And the moment his hand touched the Holy Emperor's ceremonial robe...

Whoosh.

Suddenly, the figure before his eyes warped violently, and his vision soared upward as if his body was being sucked somewhere forcefully.

Tap tap tap.

Logan swiftly traversed the main palace garden, tracking the assassin's presence.

The fierce rain ruthlessly struck his body from the front, but it posed no hindrance to Logan, who was enveloped in a curtain of his own half-materialized aura.

Cutting through the pitch-black darkness where he couldn't see an inch ahead, he effortlessly closed the distance with the assassin.

Strangely, as he moved away from the main palace, the headache and tinnitus that had been tormenting him subsided, and his mind began to function normally once again.

Finally, he had a moment to calmly ponder the current situation. Judging by how rapidly his condition improved the moment he gained some distance, there was no doubt that the epicenter of this bizarre incident was that office.

-[Gaps] opening in the palace is a common occurrence. It's just that this time, it was so sudden that His Majesty didn't have a moment to enter the prayer room.

That's what Katrina had said.

Did that mean such things happened whenever the Holy Emperor occasionally entered the prayer room? Why had he never noticed it until now?

He would seclude himself in a remote place every time, dismissing even his escorts, so Logan had thought it was some kind of unnecessary arrogance.

Indeed, anyone who merely approached him would find it difficult to maintain their sanity. If even Commander Katrina, the Holy Emperor's sturdiest shield, was in such a state, no matter how many knights were by his side, proper escort would be impossible.

What exactly were these gaps?

What kind of effect did they have that they could disrupt a person's senses to such an extent and ultimately cause them to lose consciousness?

As he organized his thoughts, the assassin was running towards the greenhouse. It seemed he intended to pass through the second east gate.

However, the two were already in close proximity.

'Got you.'

The moment Logan nearly entered the range of his sword slash...

Swish!

As if sensing the danger, the assassin spun around and hurled throwing knives.

Clang! Clang!

Effortlessly deflecting the unexpected blades, Logan thought to himself.

'A simple deterrent? No killing intent, just trying to escape.'

To detect his range, which was far wider than that of ordinary knights, the assassin was quite skilled.

Moreover, judging by the aura carried on the throwing knives, the assassin seemed to have accurately grasped Logan's officially displayed combat prowess.

If he had to conceal his abilities as usual, he would have definitely struggled with the pursuit. He became curious about the identity of his opponent.

Swoosh.

Simultaneously with the throwing knives, the presence emanating from the opponent nearly vanished completely. He had unleashed aura concealment to the maximum extent possible.

However, no matter how skilled an assassin was, there was no way Logan wouldn't notice the unnatural movement of the aura.

Swish.

Logan synchronized his body with the surrounding aura. An ability that could make him the ultimate assassin if he so desired. It was the aura synchronization of the Decaron Knights.

The enlightenment from his previous life never disappeared, allowing Logan to freely control his aura activity from birth.

That's how he had lived, displaying an aura activity level that appeared appropriate to others. Otherwise, he would have been suspected of having an inexplicably high aura activity from a young age.

On top of his already remarkably high aura affinity from being reborn and the leisurely environment that allowed him to devote himself to training...

Thanks to that, Logan had long ago reached the realm of a 10th-tier aura knight, a Decaron Knight, in this life as well.

Concealing his presence in such a manner, Logan swiftly overtook the assassin and released his aura synchronization right in front of him.

"...!"

The assassin was shocked and hastily drew his short sword. Then, reflexively imbuing it with his maximum aura, he swung it towards Logan!

However, Logan's reaction was even faster.

Clang!

The Henesys longsword, with its parrying hook pulled back to the limit, instantly deflected the assassin's blade far away. Losing his grip on the sword, the assassin momentarily lost his balance and staggered.

Swish.

Not missing that opening, Arjuna surged towards his neck.

The assassin reflexively raised his arm to guard, but Arjuna's blade, deftly penetrating the gap, was already pressed against his jaw.

"..."

"Reveal your identity. On whose orders did you enter the palace?"

Logan tapped the assassin's mask, which was pulled up to the tip of his nose, with the tip of his sword and asked.

If the opponent harbored no killing intent towards him, Logan had no intention of arbitrarily taking his life either. He would simply have the assassin reveal his identity and safely escort him to the Imperial Guard.

Of course, the moment he directed killing intent towards someone in the palace, his life might already be forfeit.

The assassin hesitated for a moment. However, realizing that there was absolutely no chance of escape no matter how much he contemplated, he meekly pulled down his mask.

It was a pitch-black night with a raging thunderstorm, but as a bolt of lightning struck at that moment, the assassin's face was brightly illuminated.

And...

"...!"

Upon seeing the opponent's face, Logan's eyes widened. The assassin's face was far too familiar to him.

The face of someone he thought he would never see again.

Faced with this unbelievable sight, Logan unconsciously opened his mouth.

"...Benicio?"

Ah.

If this were a dream, it would truly be a terrible nightmare.

Barely managing to open his eyes amidst the severe dizziness, Seongjin carefully surveyed his surroundings.

'What is this now...?'

He was floating in an unidentifiable space.

As if filled with shattered mirrors or glass shards, the surroundings produced a dizzying scene, like the interior of a kaleidoscope, with various images intermingled.

A black sky with flashing lightning, a dense forest. Occasional glimpses of the office's scenery. And stars and nebulae shining as if about to pour down.

'Did my soul get separated again?'

As he could barely feel any gravity, he recalled the near-death experience he had not long ago.

However, upon closer inspection, he was still in Morres's appearance, wearing the banquet attire. Judging by the tangible sensation of his body, it seemed he hadn't been flung out as a mere soul this time.

But it was a bit ambiguous whether he had fully brought his body to this place. Among the fragmented images of the office that occasionally overlapped, there was clearly a scene of his own body collapsed right beneath the sofa.

A strange feeling, as if he simultaneously existed in the office and here.

What kind of bizarre phenomenon was this?

'Hey, Demon King?'

He called out to the one who seemed most likely to explain this situation well, but there was no response.

It wasn't as if the Demon King's presence had disappeared from his mind, though. The Demon King's soul, frantically flailing about in confusion, could be distinctly felt.

He was probably making a fuss inside Seongjin's head. It was just that something was misaligned or the frequencies didn't match, so Seongjin couldn't properly receive the Demon King's thoughts, like a malfunctioning radio.

Rumble rumble.

Whether it was due to the thunderstorm visible in the scenery or some other cause, the entire space intermittently shook from the impact. It didn't seem like a place where one could stay for long.

'Anyway, that gentleman must be somewhere around here, right? I need to find him and quickly leave this place...'

But then, a curious thing happened.

The moment he thought of the Holy Emperor, his field of vision suddenly warped, and the distant images rushed towards him as if being pushed, in an instant.

Seongjin had a similar experience before. It was when he was sucked into the Vantra Moss caterpillar's channel and soared to the boundary between dimensions in one breath.

At that time, he thought he was simply flying somewhere faster than light, but...

'I'm not the one moving quickly...!'

Rather, the spaces surrounding him were crumpling and rapidly propelling his body beyond.

During the near-death experience, he had failed to properly perceive it, but strangely, he could now understand how the scenery warped and swiftly flung him.

How far had he flown?

Boom boom boom!

The occasional tremors gradually intensified, and their frequency also increased. Now, with each shake, a shock wave that seemed to almost shatter the surrounding space struck. Something ominous was definitely occurring here.

And after a while...

Seongjin spotted a small figure confronting something like gigantic shadows.

The fluttering white ceremonial robe and the golden crown shining above the head.

Seongjin unwittingly called out to him with all his might.

[Father!]

What burst forth was not sound but a kind of thought wave. At this, the Holy Emperor turned around with startled eyes.

[You...!]

Boom boom boom!

The world shook once more. As his vision spun wildly, Seongjin's body was instantly far away from the shadows.

And before he knew it, the Holy Emperor had approached and was vigorously shaking his shoulders.

[Why have you entered this place, my son?!]

Seongjin blinked.

Huh? He could clearly hear the Holy Emperor's voice, but his words weren't the usual 'sound'.

It was as if an entire sentence was hammered into his head, with the first and last syllables entering his mind simultaneously.

[What kind of place is this for you to say that?]

[This is a gap. It is not a place where a human body can remain for long.]

Again, 'this' and 'for long' were simultaneously driven into his head.

It was almost like the sense of time...

Suddenly, the Holy Emperor flinched and turned around.

Then...

Boom boom boom!

His body was mercilessly shaken by the impact, and his vision distorted in a dizzying manner.

When he came to his senses, Seongjin found himself dangling by the scruff of his neck, being carried somewhere by the Holy Emperor.

'...!'

Despite the tremendous speed, fortunately, his neck wasn't being strangled or anything. His gaze naturally directed backward, he could finally clearly see the identity of the enemies pursuing them.

There were two monsters.

One was a massive black beast with six legs and three tails. Its shape resembled both a dog and a wolf, but it was impossible to discern whether it was a tangible form or a mere shadow. Its body, which didn't reflect light at all, lacked any sense of volume.

The other had an even more bizarre appearance.

With something densely protruding up and down, it resembled a plant wriggling its roots and stems, or an anemone with numerous tentacles.

Ah, seeing the green luminous bodies attached to some of the tentacle tips, it might be a deformed jellyfish.

'But why does it feel familiar...?'

Seongjin leisurely critiqued them while dangling.

The malice-filled gaze piercing his body. The gaze the monsters directed at him resembled the unpleasant one he had sensed from the high-ranking demon kings at the dimensional boundary.

The only difference was that the pressure had diminished to a tolerable level.

[...To force your way into this space.]

The black beast, Greed, growled while fixing its gaze on Seongjin.

[Indeed. Who would have thought a child would interfere with the space? But why does that face look so familiar?]

The dark green tentacled monster, Sowing, responded with a puzzled tone while shaking a bundle of root-like protrusions that had risen upward. Although it was impossible to tell if it had a head, the gesture was like tilting its head in confusion.

At this, Greed let out a sneer.

[Isn't it obvious? You fail to recognize him even after directly preparing him?]

[Ah, was that so? Come to think of it, my apostle might have mentioned something like that before.]

Sowing, scratching one tentacle with another by bending a clump of tentacles, spoke in an embarrassed manner. Then, the sporadically attached luminous bodies simultaneously emitted light.

[Well, what does it matter? We just need to eliminate the emperor anyway, right? Since it's troublesome, let's just get rid of him together here!]

As the distance was close, fragments of their thoughts reached Seongjin as well.

'Did I inadvertently become a burden to this gentleman by coming here?'

Should I ask him to flick me and send me back, even now? But before that, if I could at least land a valid hit on one of those bastards...

While gauging the distance from the monsters and fiddling with the Walnut Cracker, he felt the Holy Emperor's gaze glancing at him.

[You're unnecessarily racking your brain again, I see.]

This time, too, his words flowed into Seongjin's mind without any time lag, but Seongjin was now somewhat accustomed to this mode of communication.

[So I did end up being a hindrance, didn't I?]

[...]

The Holy Emperor fell silent for a moment but soon shook his head.

[No, it was rather timely. If not for you, the causality would have been insufficient, and it would have consumed a considerable amount of time.]

Causality?

[It's a side effect of the birthday banquet. Since I have no choice but to bestow blessings upon many people, it inevitably leads to a tremendous expenditure of causality. That's why those fellows targeted today.]

Hmm. Honestly, he didn't quite understand what he meant.

Pondering for a moment while dangling and swaying, Seongjin suddenly thought of something amusing.

When it came to causality, although he didn't know much, it meant some conditions were necessary, like with Commander Bruno, right?

[Father, I have a request!]

He felt the Holy Emperor glancing at him.

[A request.]

[Yes.]

Then, Seongjin confidently exclaimed.

[Please give those bizarre bastards over there a good beating, no, could you eliminate them entirely?]

Instantly, a strange attraction was felt enveloping both Seongjin and the Holy Emperor simultaneously.

And...

[...]

The Holy Emperor did not respond to those words, but from the conveyed atmosphere alone, Seongjin could tell that he had smiled.

[I shall show you something amusing.]

Along with the Holy Emperor's words, which somehow conveyed a sense of delight, something glowing white appeared before Seongjin's eyes.

Because the shining form with a smooth, streamlined shape followed them while flapping its tail, Seongjin initially thought it was a fish the size of a forearm.

[This is called a salt image.]

[A salt image?]

[When a concept materializes, it reaches a tangible form like this. It's also something not easily seen outside of a place like this. Perhaps it may be a good opportunity.]

That fish-like thing seemed to move entirely according to the Holy Emperor's will. Judging by how it swam close to Seongjin's left and right, allowing for easy observation.

Huh? But what about that shape?

[Do you know what it is?]

And another fish appeared at Seongjin's feet. Followed by a third, fourth...

A total of five fish, enveloped in white light, were swimming vigorously while chasing after them.

At that moment, Seongjin realized the identity of these fish.

'...True Salmon?'

Although it was difficult to discern immediately due to the bright light surrounding them, what these fish were flapping like tails were undoubtedly the guard and hilt of a proper sword!

However, when he slightly turned his head to look, the original True Salmon was properly attached to the Holy Emperor's waist.

[They clearly look identical to True Salmon, but...!]

Then, a faint vibration was transmitted from the Holy Emperor. It was as if he had let out a small laugh.

'So this is a salt image!'

Seongjin realized two things.

One was that the image of an object familiar to the Holy Emperor was directly projected onto the [salt images] swimming and following them. He was currently imagining True Salmon with aura blades forming and shining around it.

And the other was...

'They really resemble a school of salmon swimming against a fierce current...'

In other words, in this gentleman's mind, True Salmon was already a salmon.

He was absently staring at the flapping swords, dumbfounded by the absurdity, when the Holy Emperor spoke again.

[Yes. Now that you know what these are, let's see their utility.]

The moment those words ended...

The five salmon... no, the True Salmons simultaneously turned their heads and shot towards the monsters at a tremendous speed!

Swish!

They flew while slicing through all the colliding spaces. Becoming a beam of light while passing through the office, a white thunderbolt under the stormy sky, and a comet with a long tail in the black universe.

Flash flash.

The True Salmons, swiftly traversing from one space to another, finally collided with the bodies of the startled monsters who were trying to dodge, and exploded on impact.

Boom! Bang! Bang!

Every world shook entirely, causing intense vibrations. The monsters, having been struck heavily, let out strange sounds that could have been either screams or grunts as they staggered.

Roar!

'Oh...'

All the explosions occurring here and there were this gentleman's doing!

While the monsters faltered, the Holy Emperor, who had swiftly distanced himself from them, asked.

[Do you understand the series of processes in which the salt images are created, move, and finally activate?]

[Well, roughly?]

Seongjin vaguely grasped the essence of that technique. It belonged more to the realm of intuition than reason.

[Then will you try it?]

Hmm, flying swords...

Seongjin tried to visualize the Walnut Cracker in his mind. The sturdy steel blade and the image of it flying straight like a missile.

Then, for a moment, a hazy gray stick-like object flickered before his eyes and vanished.

Oh? It might be simpler than he thought.

'Alright. Let's go with this feeling!'

Seongjin tried to concentrate to the best of his ability. Soon, the monsters caught up to them again in a fluster, but he paid no attention to them whatsoever.

Surely this gentleman would skillfully evade them.

Swish.

The tentacled monster, having barely narrowed the distance, rapidly shot out dozens of legs.

From afar, they appeared as soft and supple as anemone tentacles submerged in seawater, but as they flew closer, the thickness and strength of each strand evoked the image of massive logs.

It was a terrifying attack that tore apart all the spaces it touched as it flew, but the Holy Emperor nimbly moved his body and dodged the numerous legs.

Roar!

At that moment, the black beast, which had been running around seeking an opportunity, seized the opening and thrust its sharp fangs.

Its teeth, dripping with jet-black mana, were nearly as tall as Seongjin, and it was clear that if his body got caught in them, he would be torn apart without a trace.

The Holy Emperor then leaped through space while carrying Seongjin. Instantly, a stormy black sky unfolded around them.

Clack!

The beast's muzzle followed, viciously snapping its jaws, but they effortlessly dodged its fangs and were already flying under a tranquil starry sky.

Close calls continued thereafter, but this entire process was merely a simple practice session for the Holy Emperor. He was silently waiting for Seongjin to realize something.

[It doesn't necessarily have to be a weapon. Just try to think of what you're most familiar with.]

As the phenomenon of hazy sticks appearing and disappearing repeated meaninglessly, the Holy Emperor gently advised him.

Hmm, something familiar...

Seongjin pondered seriously while dangling.

[Roar! That's really annoying!]

Sowing, who had lost some of his lower tentacles, flailed about and grumbled. With a body less mobile than the beast-shaped Greed, he had taken quite a heavy blow by being hit by four out of the five swords alone.

[The emperor of Delcross is indeed no easy opponent, as expected.]

Despite being confident that he hadn't let his guard down, Greed had to admit that their preparations were insufficient.

In recent years, the Holy Emperor, bound by the [Agreement], had been unable to perform even the simple act of 'directly drawing' properly due to a lack of causality. That's why they thought that just their avatars, not their main bodies, would be sufficient to confront the Holy Emperor.

However, the king of Delcross was quite adept at exploiting loopholes. Instead of doing something directly, he launched salt images to strike them indirectly yet efficiently.

The salt images themselves were in the form of small swords that weren't very lethal, but they chased after them as if possessing a will of their own, causing explosions of varying sizes. Of course, compared to the power of the avatars they had brought, it was a minor damage.

However, even if it was an attack so trivial it was laughable, if they kept getting hit without being able to land a single blow, the story would be different.

If the night passed like this, it was evident who would emerge victorious.

[Moreover, there's something bothering me...]

Greed frowned as he looked at the boy dangling from the Holy Emperor's grasp.

The boy had his eyes closed and was muttering something intently. It was an exceedingly carefree demeanor in this situation, but...

Strangely, an ominous aura was emanating from that boy.

[What on earth is he doing?]

Sowing muttered in a daze while gathering his retracted tentacles. He, too, had sensed something foreboding.

Greed shouted while forcefully kicking one of the intermingled dimensions.

[That one is the prepared one! It wouldn't be strange for him to initiate anything. Be careful!]

At that moment, a small spark appeared in front of the boy with a flash.

Something small. Something easy to imagine.

But something that could become the most lethal if it struck the enemy.

Soon, a small dark red flame flickered before Seongjin's open eyes. It resembled a small fragment of the Demon King's soul, or perhaps the flames of Gehenna.

As he was gazing at the flame, which was gradually taking on a more distinct form and burning, the Holy Emperor glanced at it and nodded.

[Yes, it looks good.]

[Haha!]

Seongjin grinned with satisfaction. It was the first clear salt image he had created.

Delightful. From now on, he would name it Demon King No. 2!

[Then what will you do with it now?]

[I'll launch it at the enemy!]

[Alright.]

Great! Fly, Demon King No. 2!

Seongjin confidently commanded the flame.

However, perhaps because the image was too different from the missile he had initially envisioned, Seongjin's Demon King No. 2 did not fly magnificently like the Holy Emperor's salmon.

The flame, which fell limply like a poorly thrown ball, fortunately collided with the wobbling head of the tentacled monster that happened to approach closely.

It was too small to begin with, and since it wasn't the Holy Emperor's threatening sword strike in the first place, the monster had clearly let its guard down.

However, the outcome was unexpected.

The moment that small flame touched...

Whoosh!

Suddenly, fierce dark red flames erupted from that spot and rapidly spread, engulfing the monster's upper tentacles and devouring it.

As if it were the flames of Gehenna itself, instantly consuming everything.

[Argh! What is this?!]

The startled anemone, surrounded by flames that wouldn't easily extinguish, stopped in its tracks and began headbanging!

[How pathetic. Why aren't you extinguishing it quickly?]

As Greed passed by the monster and asked in disbelief, Sowing cried out with a wronged voice.

[No! There's something strange about this! It won't go out! What the hell is this?]

He thrashed about, enveloped in flames.

The sight of the massive tentacle bundles burning away strand by strand, scattering bright embers, was truly a spectacle to behold.

As he was contentedly watching that dazzling fireworks display, the Holy Emperor uttered a word of praise.

[Well done.]

[Hahaha!]

You think so too, Father?

As Seongjin was laughing with satisfaction, the Holy Emperor glanced around and spoke.

[Let's head back now. We've delayed more than expected. I'll deal with the remaining one swiftly.]

[Swiftly?]

What was this gentleman going to show him this time?

As Seongjin's eyes sparkled with anticipation, the Holy Emperor nodded.

[Yes. Thanks to you, the causality is sufficient.]

And the moment those words ended...

'...!'

Seongjin's eyes widened as he held his breath. Hundreds, no, thousands of fish had appeared around them and begun swimming in unison, encircling them.

Seongjin gaped blankly at the majestic yet beautiful sight.

The dazzlingly shining white salmon moving in parallel yet in perfect unison appeared as if they had become a single giant creature.

Or perhaps those fish themselves were a silver-glowing wave, and they were swimming in the sea of that light.

And after a while...

[Go.]

With a brief command, that peaceful scene came to an end.

Swish!

Like hundreds of cruise missiles launched simultaneously, the silver swords changed direction and surged towards the monsters in unison.

It was a truly remarkable sight to see those white streaks of light traversing and leaping across spaces as if each possessing its own will, tracing hundreds of trajectories.

And without exception, they struck the black dog and anemone, emitting a blinding white light with a whoosh.

'...!'

Seongjin tightly closed his eyes, bracing himself for the impending impact. However, strangely, he didn't feel the anticipated shock. The surroundings were utterly silent without a single sound of an explosion.

Slowly opening his eyes, he found himself standing on a mountainside with a drizzling rain.

The Holy Emperor, who had unleashed hundreds of missiles at the monsters, had taken refuge beyond the fragmented spaces before they even exploded.

Was it alright like this? Without confirming the fate of those monsters until the end?

[Once the result is determined upon impact, it does not change. By now, they wouldn't have even a trace of their forms remaining. We can leave this place now.]

The Holy Emperor spoke upon seeing Seongjin's dumbfounded face. Then, gently placing Seongjin on the ground, he slightly raised the corner of his mouth.

[Come to think of it, I had promised to examine your sword someday.]

After the Heresy Tribunal had been reduced to its current state, the Holy Emperor had asked Seongjin to bring his sword during an audience.

The problem was that since then, with the birthday banquet preparations and the Monster Special Task Force work, both the Holy Emperor and Seongjin had become busy, making it difficult to find an opportunity.

The Holy Emperor drew True Salmon from his waist and slowly aimed it forward as he continued.

[This, too, shall be a good opportunity. Engrave this path well in your mind.]

The blade of the salmon... no, True Salmon, held in his hand, was enveloped in light, and a beam of light began to extend forward from it.

[The path of the sword should always be the simplest. However, it does not become the same path for everyone.]

The white, glowing aura blade had elongated to about the length of the Walnut Cracker. However, Seongjin strangely felt that the tip of the sword was so long that it was out of sight.

It wouldn't be unreasonable.

If this sword was aiming at the end of the world in a space that reached there the moment one thought of it, it had already touched that boundary.

[You will eventually reach here on your own. So it wouldn't be too bad to experience it in advance once or twice.]

And then...

Without any warning...

Without even a sound of something breaking...

The world before his eyes was split in an instant.

Logan was currently in the grip of an intense sense of dissonance.

The panoramic view of the greenhouse garden amidst the raging storm receded into the distance, and the unmasked face of his opponent filled his entire field of vision.

"...Benicio?"

Slowly lowering the tip of the sword pointed at the assassin, Logan unwittingly uttered the name of his old friend aloud.

Is this truly a dream?

-I believe that by realizing the future the Republicans dream of, Ortona will move in a better direction.

The academy cadet who brilliantly shone his eyes as he envisioned the glorious future of his homeland.

-Do you also think I've betrayed the royal family just because I'm the 2nd Prince who couldn't seize the throne? Can't you also believe in my firm conviction to support the republican government for the future of the country?

The friend who, deeply frustrated by an insurmountable reality, clung to a bottle of alcohol and lamented.

"Why in the world are you here...?"

After parting ways on the Andres Plains, his fate, whether alive or dead, had been unclear.

Rumble, crash!

Lightning strikes again. In that fleeting moment, all sorts of thoughts flooded Logan's mind.

Even after coming back to life, I kept inquiring about you. I searched for the whereabouts of my Republican comrades. I never intended to betray our homeland. It's just that if I abandon everything like this and leave for Ortona, it would result in betraying my current family as well...

"Your Highness."

Logan flinched at the cold voice calling out to him.

The chilly raindrops drenching his head slowly bring him back to his senses. He is now Logan of Delcross. Not Gale Bertrand.

"Benicio. How do you know his name?"

At that question, Logan scrutinized the assassin's face anew.

At first glance, he thought it was the spitting image of Benicio, but upon regaining his composure and taking a closer look, there were subtle differences in the facial contours. The long scar running from the corner of his mouth to his chin was also something his friend never had.

Above all, if his friend were still alive, he would have already passed his 60th birthday by now. Yet the man before him is far too young, isn't he?

Logan asked in a strained voice.

"...Do you know him?"

In response, the assassin glanced down at Arjuna, which was pointed at him, instead of answering.

"I've been wanting to ask Your Highness for a long time. Why does an imperial prince possess General Gale's sword?"

"....."

"Is that how you flaunt the Empire's power that easily sank the peerless Sword Master? As if killing him wasn't enough, did you want to ridicule the fallen Ortona to the end?"

Logan felt a chill run down his spine at the creeping bad premonition.

A young man who instantly recognized Arjuna, knows of Gale Bertrand, and is the spitting image of his friend Benicio in his youth.

Could it be...?

'...Lord Kike[1]?'

The arm gripping Arjuna fell limply to his side. After gazing at Logan's ashen face for a moment, the young man furrowed his brow as if displeased by something.

"Please forgive my rudeness towards Your Highness."

"....."

"I was a bit flustered by your sudden pursuit. There seems to be some misunderstanding."

"Misunderstanding....."

"Yes. I am His Majesty's direct intelligence agent dispatched from the guild."

Logan blinked slowly, gauging the storm-tossed air around him.

This is the truth.

"I did not enter the imperial palace with any impure intentions. So please just let me go."

This is... a lie.

When no response came, the young man took a couple of steps back, wary of Arjuna.

Even so, upon confirming that Logan remained frozen in place, he swiftly turned around and leaped over the wall, vanishing.

"....."

Though he had a mountain of questions to ask, Logan couldn't bring himself to chase after him any further.

Forgetting even to activate Aura, his fingertips gripping Arjuna tightly grew cold in the rain.

"The Lord has prepared many things for you, so grace will fill your cup to overflowing."

With the transparent voice reciting a verse from the scriptures, a sacred white light pours down upon the head. The blessed Duke of Carthago bowed his head solemnly in deep emotion.

This little saintess, wearing a white veil, was as sacred as if the Lord had personally molded her.

As a result, just by looking at her, a miracle occurred where the stiff neck joints of the dignitaries were healed on their own.

"As the Lord answers your upright faith....."

Sisle spoke thus and bestowed a blessing upon another dignitary's head.

The young saintess, seasoned through years of service and visitations, knew all too well how to make people more devout through her actions.

Thanks to that, the dignitaries were lining up to receive blessings from this little saintess.

It was extremely rare for dignitaries to simultaneously receive blessings from a saintess at a birthday banquet. Usually, saintess tended to the lowest of the low, so they seldom met royalty or dignitaries.

The other saintess, Seo Yi-seo, stood next to Sisle doing nothing, but the dignitaries were satisfied even with that. When in Cardmos Mode, Seo Yi-seo exuded majestic air just by standing still with her golden eyes shining.

"The banquet hall's atmosphere has stabilized."

Empress Tatiana whispered to Queen Melody while fanning herself with an elegant gesture.

She had been concerned about the Holy Emperor's delay, but nevertheless maintained her composure without forgetting her position. Just by the Empress quietly holding the head seat, it would help quell the agitation of those present.

"Yes. This is all thanks to Princess Amelia."

Queen Melody responded with a gentle smile.

As she said, the one currently captivating the mood of those present was none other than Amelia.

The princess keenly grasped the overall flow of the banquet hall, sought out the agitated dignitaries, and skillfully led them to be swept back into the banquet atmosphere.

Even she, well-versed in palace life, couldn't help but admire Amelia's timely response.

"I don't know how she can be so reliable at such a young age. I thought of her as just a delicate girl, but she has already grown so dignified. Isn't this the attitude befitting the Empire's Eldest Princess?"

"It really is....."

Empress Tatiana trailed off. In her heart, she wished Logan would take on such a role.

Then, her eyes caught sight of the 1st Queen, surrounded by a crowd and smiling radiantly. An overly flashy appearance, as if she had plastered her entire body with gold accessories.

She neither holds the head seat nor shows the slightest inclination to care for the banquet hall's atmosphere.

'Lizabeth.....'

Tatiana had been well aware of her ambitions from the beginning. If the Holy Emperor had not cracked down on factional strife and conspiracies, she would have already clashed with her numerous times.

But it was strange. When her son was notorious for being a good-for-nothing, she tried so hard to have him appointed as the Crown Prince, but now that he has transformed admirably, she doesn't even spare him a proper glance.

Just what could that arrogant woman be thinking now?

"Oh my! Princess Herna and Prince Gades look just like dolls, don't they? Look at them holding hands tightly and sitting together!"

Then, Queen Melody exclaimed beside her.

'This one is too naive, which is troublesome.'

If not for the Holy Emperor, she would have instantly fallen prey to the inner palace struggles and become a mere meal. An innocent lamb whose purity had been maintained for over a decade, attesting to how stable the palace atmosphere had been all this time.

However.

'In the end, the succession struggle will inevitably occur someday. It is too obvious a principle to be avoided forever. Yet, with grown children like this, His Majesty still hasn't appointed a Crown Prince. Just what could he be thinking...?'

Empress Tatiana raised her fan, skillfully concealing the sigh escaping her lips.

Meanwhile, Amelia, judging that the banquet hall had settled down to a certain extent, looked around with relief.

Then, her gaze suddenly fixed on a corner terrace. More precisely, on the backs of the twins sitting in front of the closed terrace window.

Herna and Gades sat side by side in their seats like dolls carefully placed in a display case, motionless and gazing out the window.

"Are you enjoying the banquet?"

As Amelia approached, the two simultaneously turned to look at her. Then, with a rather mature expression, they politely complimented her.

"You did well, Sister Amelia."

"Good job, Sister Amelia."

"Hoho. It seems you've stopped switching clothes now."

Amelia smiled faintly and patted their shoulders. The twins, noticing a hint of shadow on her face, nodded.

"Don't worry about Emperor Daddy. He'll be back soon since Morres went."

"Daddy His Majesty will be fine. Morres will somehow resolve it if he gets involved."

Amelia inwardly marveled as she alternated her gaze between the two. Sitting quietly in this spot, they already seem to be aware of the anomaly on the 2nd floor.

'Well, these kids sometimes seem to know everything.'

With that realization, Amelia asked.

"Do you two know what happened on the 2nd floor?"

"Yeah. It's the aftermath of a gap suddenly opening up. It's hard for ordinary people to endure."

"Just getting close to it will affect you. Of course, the distance to the banquet hall is okay."

Amelia grew anxious at that answer. It dawned on her that she had sent Logan and Morres to such a place without any countermeasures, and now she was starting to regret it.

The banquet hall situation seems roughly settled, so should I go to the office now? Just as she was thinking that and about to turn around, the twins grabbed her arms from both sides.

"It's okay. Morres will need to get used to gaps from now on."

"Don't worry. Morres might already be used to it."

"But....."

Right then, a worried-looking knight approached them.

"Your Highness. Have you seen Prince Morres by any chance? I haven't been able to find him anywhere for a while now."

"Ah! You've come at the right time, –orabeoni. I was just about to go look for him. Would you come with me to the office?"

Saying that, she glanced back at the twins, but they had already let go of Amelia's hands and were completely absorbed in gazing out the window, no longer paying attention to them.

Although feeling a bit unsettled, Amelia looked back at them one more time before leaving.

And, shortly after, the twins.

"Oh, it's Emperor Daddy!"

"Yeah, Daddy His Majesty."

They exclaimed upon spotting lightning traveling between clouds.

White bolts flashing here and there among the clouds without striking the ground.

"Suddenly, it feels like he's overflowing with energy?"

"I know, he seems to be in a good mood."

Then, they fell silent and continued to watch the stormy scene outside.

"You know. If we go through gaps like that, do you think we'll be able to return there someday?"

After a while, Herna asked, lightly tugging on the gold necklace around her neck.

"Of course we will. The traces of the world squeezing in still remain like this."

Gades replied, fiddling with the gold cufflinks adorning his sleeves.

"Now that I think about it, I kind of miss that place."

"It's just nostalgia. Honestly, I don't want to go back."

They continued their cryptic conversation for some time.

Then, as if it were a lie, the lightning suddenly subsided. The children, who had been placidly gazing up at the rain, now weaker than before, shuddered.

"Ah....."

They looked at each other and simultaneously exclaimed.

"He's back!"

Blink blink.

Upon opening his eyes, Seongjin realized he had collapsed right under the sofa. He tried to get up, but.

Ugh.

He immediately staggered and lay back down on the floor, retching.

'Why... Why am I so dizzy?'

No, it was an extreme vertigo that couldn't be described simply as dizziness. It felt as if the semicircular canals inside his head were simultaneously rotating in three directions.

The sense of time and space twisted haphazardly, as if someone had grabbed his nerve strings and was gleefully playing jump rope with them.

[Waaaah! Lee Seongjin! You bastard!]

The Demon King wailed and shouted in his head.

[Just what the hell happened? Why did you suddenly collapse and not respond at all?]

The guy was practically sobbing.

Seeing the Demon King, who usually remained silent next to the Holy Emperor, making such a fuss, it seemed he must have been extremely worried.

But I'm okay now, so could you please quiet down? My head is ringing from the noise!

[Wahhh! Hey! I thought your soul had gone somewhere again, and I was so.....]

Then, a soft voice spoke above Seongjin's head.

"Noisy....."

[Eek!]

The Demon King promptly shut his mouth.

Suppressing the urge to vomit, he looked up and saw the Holy Emperor awakening on the sofa, staggering to sit up.

"Don't worry. This is purely due to sensory disruption. It's not a physical issue....."

The Holy Emperor covered his mouth with his hand after saying that much. It seems he also feels like vomiting just by speaking.

And the same went for Seongjin. The moment he moved his head to look at the Holy Emperor, a spinning sensation accompanied by nausea hit him.

Quietly lowering his head and waiting for it to subside, the Holy Emperor's hand came over his head, and a bright divine power poured down.

But didn't you say it's not a physical problem? What's the point of using divine power then!

However, Seongjin also couldn't utter these words aloud. Seriously. Just holding back the urge to vomit was already at his limit.

Ugh.

Every time Seongjin dryly heaved, divine power showered upon his head. It seems like a waste, but.

'Well, I guess this old man has nothing else he can do for me...'

If that provides him some emotional comfort, then whatever.

T/N:

1. Prince Benicio's son. Mentioned in Chapter 102[↔]

"It seems we overdid it with the spatial leaps."

How much time had passed? The Holy Emperor, having regained his composure first, sat Seongjin up on the sofa and spoke. By the looks of it, he was in high spirits, intent on giving his son a near-death experience.

"Rest here for a bit until you feel better."

Seeing the somewhat sullen expression on the Holy Emperor's face as he said that, Seongjin couldn't help but chuckle.

"But thanks to that, it was incredibly fun. You saw it too, right? That kraken burning up in flames... Ugh!"

"....."

As expected, a cascade of divine power pours down upon his head once more.

Then, with faltering, feeble steps, the Holy Emperor approached Katrina, who was kneeling at the entrance.

Leaning against her sword with a haggard face, Katrina instantly regained her energy the moment she received his divine power. It seemed this terrible motion sickness was an aftereffect that only affected those who had directly entered and exited the gap.

"Your Majesty!"

Katrina sprang up from her spot and supported the Holy Emperor.

Following behind, Louis awakened and tidied her disheveled clothes, and the attendants also rose one by one.

They were puzzled as to why they had suddenly collapsed, but upon receiving the rare honor of being directly healed by the Holy Emperor's miracle, they couldn't hide their delight. The attendants returned to their duties with much lighter steps.

"Emperor Daddy! You're safe!"

"Your Majesty! What happened? Where is Prince Morres?"

Just then, Amelia and the knight came running to the office, only to be dumbfounded as they too were showered with the Holy Emperor's divine power.

"Let us head to the banquet hall as is."

"Yes, I shall escort you, Your Majesty."

Katrina placed her hand on her chest and bowed her head respectfully.

As the Holy Emperor moved to step into the corridor, he suddenly halted and turned his head to gaze at the terrace. For a moment, a faint silver light flashed in his eyes.

"Did Logan happen to come here?"

"Ah, yes. He came with me but went to the garden, saying he was chasing the assassin."

At Seongjin's answer, the Holy Emperor's brows furrowed slightly.

"...He encountered that person at a bad time."

"Pardon?"

"Louis. Please prepare extra blankets and fresh warm tea in the office."

Although puzzled by the sudden order, the experienced chief chamberlain soon bowed his head and obediently replied.

"Yes, Your Majesty."

"You all follow me as well. Let the children rest undisturbed."

Amelia and the knight, who were about to rush towards Seongjin, were caught by the Holy Emperor and dragged back to the banquet hall.

'Hmm.....'

Seongjin watched them for a moment before closing his eyes. A sense of relief washed over him, knowing everything had been resolved.

Even though the Holy Emperor looked a bit low on energy, the transmitted Aura movements were as calm as ever. It must be due to the motion sickness, and his actual condition wasn't that bad.

As he was lounging around in the office for a while.

[Lee Seongjin.]

The Demon King muttered.

'Yeah?'

[The 2nd Prince is outside?]

...What?

Seongjin was startled and sat up. A momentary dizziness hit him, but the nausea had subsided to a tolerable level by now.

'Seriously, I just can't sense these Decalon Knights unless I'm on high alert! If he's back, why isn't he coming in right away?'

Could it be that he's dejected after letting the assassin escape?

Grumbling like that, Seongjin walked to the terrace. Rain was pouring into the office through the slightly open window.

"Oh....."

And at the end of the terrace, Seongjin found Logan completely drenched in the rain. For some unfathomable reason, he wasn't coming inside and just stood there blankly, facing the garden while getting soaked.

Seongjin was astonished.

"You!"

Hey, how could a former Sword Master end up looking like a drowned rat, with all that Aura!

Seongjin dashed over in a single stride and grabbed Logan by the collar. His body temperature had dropped so low that Seongjin's hand holding his lapel turned chilly.

After dragging the dripping wet Logan to the office sofa, Louis, who had just entered with blankets, was startled and rushed over. Soon, a dry blanket was draped over Logan's head, and a warm cup of tea was pushed towards him.

In that moment, both Seongjin and Louis realized.

Ah, so that seemingly random order had a reason behind it.

Once the situation was somewhat settled, the perceptive chief chamberlain quietly made himself scarce.

"What on earth happened? Did you lose the guy? No, what's the big deal about letting one assassin escape?"

"....."

Logan kept his head lowered and remained silent. His fingertips gripping the teacup had turned blue, but the shivering seemed to be due to something other than the cold.

Sensing something unusual, Seongjin waited quietly until Logan spoke in a barely audible voice a moment later.

"...Lee Seongjin."

"Yeah."

"I've remained a coward to this end. Back then, I shouldn't have burdened my friends and comrades with everything and closed my eyes so easily."

"What?"

"I shouldn't have taken comfort in reality like this, using the excuse that it was inevitable. When I think about what state of mind that young boy must have been in to decide to walk the path of an assassin while I was doing that....."

Logan fell silent again, but from that one remark, Seongjin could infer a great deal.

It seemed the assassin was someone Logan knew in his previous life.

In that case, he must have harbored an intense antipathy towards the Empire, and Logan ended up confronting him as an imperial prince. It was the worst possible situation.

'No, but still.....'

I may not know the detailed circumstances of the Ortona Civil War, but you didn't die so easily, did you?

Finding it absurd, Seongjin picked up a nearby cushion and threw it at Logan. The cushion hit his head with a thud and fell to the floor, rolling away.

This bastard isn't even dodging?

Ah, it's infuriating.

"Hey, Logan! There's a limit to self-blame. Why are you feeling unnecessary guilt towards the people you risked your life to save? Why? What did that assassin bastard say to you? Being ungrateful has its limits too."

"...That can't be helped. To them, I'm just a prince of the enemy nation."

"Of course, you can't reveal your true identity to them. But you see, what wrong did 'Logan' of Delcros do to them? You weren't even born at the time of the civil war, dude! Is the Ortona Civil War your fault?"

"But still....."

"On top of that, you diligently hunted Sea Demons for the sake of your compatriots! Do you think just anyone can consistently manage troops like that? It's all possible because you're an imperial prince! How many lives have you saved with your own hands? If you realize that, you should be more confident in yourself!"

As the second cushion came flying, this time Logan slightly moved his body to avoid it.

"Even if I saved their lives, their miserable situation remains unchanged."

"But you already gave your life! Then what more do you think you should have done back then?!"

"....."

Logan lifted his head and looked at the fuming Seongjin with slightly surprised eyes. Then, he soon crinkled the corners of his eyes. It was a smile that seemed somehow hazy and sorrowful.

"When we resolved to fight to the end on that plain, can you imagine the weight that was forcibly placed upon the people who were compelled to survive?"

Seongjin thought with a disgruntled expression.

I don't know about that. I've never tried to preserve myself for the sake of the future in the first place.

"As the tide of war turned irrevocably against us, Benicio and I shared many conversations over drinks. And the conclusion we finally reached together was that it would take much longer than we thought for republicanism to blossom on this continent. Without slowly changing perceptions from within the Empire over generations, there would be no future for this continent. A hundred years... No, it might even take several times that long."

"....."

"Yeah. I'll be honest with you, Lee Seongjin. When I died at the hands of Commander Silas, I was actually deeply relieved. An undertaking that could take centuries, who could easily shoulder that? I had no confidence in silently walking through that endless dark tunnel forever."

Setting the teacup down on the table with a clink, Logan rubbed his face with both hands and continued.

"I passed that heavy burden onto Benicio and died carefree. Consoling myself that I had done my best. How utterly cowardly of me, right?"

And after running away through death like that, what did he do when he gained life again?

Rationalizing that there were limits to what he could do as a prince of the enemy nation and that he couldn't betray his newfound family. He just wandered meaninglessly outside the Empire.

But now, Logan had come to a clear realization.

The reason he had been so busy hunting Sea Demons without a moment to think. The reason he hadn't searched for Benicio and his companions more actively.

"I thought I would do anything for my homeland. I was determined to help from behind the scenes, concealing my identity. But you see....."

"....."

"I was just running away. Simply afraid of the cold gazes I would receive from them, I couldn't bring myself to take the shortcut even though I knew it. I thought I could endure any stigma, but in reality, I wasn't prepared to properly face any of my former comrades."

Seongjin's eyebrows twitched.

This guy is starting to dig a hole with no end in sight.

"Oh, is that so?"

Pretending to change the blanket, Seongjin approached Logan and pulled the blanket over his head, then performed a headlock with all the brotherly love he could muster.

"Ack! Hey! Lee Seongjin!"

So, how's that? This is the technique of hunter Lee Seongjin, who could snap the legs of a Blatta Mantis in an instant!

While Logan struggled under the blanket, unable to bring himself to use Aura to break free, Seongjin's eyes gradually turned fierce as he glared towards the terrace.

What kind of bastard is he? Just who the hell touched this poor guy?

If I ever meet him, I won't let him off easy!

"Achoo!"

Guild's Capital Central Branch.

Greta, the Capital Branch Chief, clicked her tongue as she watched Enrique constantly sneezing.

"What on earth were you doing, coming back completely drenched like that? Today isn't even a regular reporting day, so why did you enter the Imperial Palace?"

"Isn't it the birthday banquet? It's a once-a-year event, so unexpected variables could arise. Fortunately, I had good luck today. There was an interesting occurrence at the main palace."

"An interesting occurrence?"

"Yes. A phenomenon similar to when he entered the prayer room appeared in the office today. The headache was so severe that it was difficult to approach recklessly. It might be a clue to finding his weakness."

"....."

Greta offered a dry towel and gazed at the young man's stubborn face for a moment.

"...Kike."

"It's No. 21."

"Right, No. 21."

Then, she quietly sighed and asked.

"Isn't it time you let go of that anger now?"

Enrique looked at her with an incredulous expression.

"How can you say that? Aren't you a compatriot who fled Ortona together?"

"Yes. That's right."

Known as a prodigy since her academy days, she had thrown herself into the Republican cause with youthful passion. As a member of the Republican faction's staff, she had strived to the end to overcome the desperate situation.

In the end, on General Gale's orders, she had been tasked with evacuating Prince Benicio and his son Kike to the Empire.

That connection of seeking refuge with the Astros Mercenary Corps led her to take on a key position in the guild.

Therefore, it wasn't that she couldn't understand Enrique's feelings.

How much had he relied on and followed the mercenary corps' 'Bart' since childhood? To the point where it seemed he regarded him as his protector even more than his father, Prince Benicio.

But later, it was revealed that he was the prince of Delcross who had brought ruin to their homeland. How could words even begin to describe the betrayal young Kike felt towards him at that time?

The problem was that the Holy Emperor, who used to kindly answer Kike's questions, became excessively tight-lipped around that time. He offered no excuses or explanations for inheriting the throne.

Thus, the relationship between the two deepened into a rift, and Kike, who started training to become an assassin, now repeatedly aimed for the Holy Emperor's life by his side.

However, those who had worked in the guild for a long time had noticed.

The Holy Emperor quietly let the intelligence agent, who occasionally couldn't hide his murderous intent, be and had him investigate this and that about the continent's situation under the guise of missions, essentially educating him.

To him, Kike was still that child who needed to be looked after, just like when they first met.

"Kike. There are some major conspiracies brewing beneath the surface of the continent right now."

Rubbing her eye wrinkles that had started to crease with the passage of time, Greta spoke.

Initially, she too had burned with immense anger towards the enemy of her homeland, but working together for such a long time naturally led to certain realizations.

"Major conspiracies?"

"Yes."

The branch chief's eyes shone with gravity as she faced the young man's defiant expression.

"Without maintaining even this irrational form of the Empire, we might not be able to handle the enormous things that could soon....."

What the eyes of the wise woman who had nurtured the guild for many years saw.

It was none other than the signs of a massive approaching storm.

[TL/N: Mindblowned. Enrique = No.21 = Kike]

After the Holy Emperor made his appearance, the main banquet of the birthday celebration came to a smooth close.

Word had it that, for some unfathomable reason, His Majesty had bestowed blessings with far more leisure and care than the previous year.

By the time the banquet dispersed, the tempest had completely subsided, so the dignitaries left immensely satisfied without sensing anything out of the ordinary.

Seongjin, who had returned to Pearl Palace slightly later than planned due to tending to Logan, instructed Dasha, who had come for an investigative report.

"Let's wrap up the investigation on the merchant guild at this point."

The Milo Trading Guild wasn't very large in scale, so the basic accounting data and personal information of key personnel had already been investigated.

As expected, nothing significant was flagged in the basic investigation. Even if they had ties to the Dark Cult, they wouldn't be foolish enough to leave evidence of it.

In that case, it would indeed be better to conduct an on-site investigation in the Sigmund Territory.

If they could catch any decisive evidence there, they could return to the Imperial Capital, report to the Heresy Tribunal, and commence a seizure and search. If they shake them down thoroughly like that, something was bound to turn up.

"Then will you be heading to the North now, Your Highness?"

"Yeah. I'm going to accompany the Grand Duke on his way back."

"I will discreetly escort you."

That would be a great help. While briefly considering it, Seongjin soon shook his head.

He had heard that the Siegmund Territory was cold and remote. Wasn't it too harsh an environment for an intelligence agent to wander alone?

Moreover, the entourage included seasoned Aura users like Sir Masain and Commander Bruno. If she tried to make contact while evading them, she might experience her nerves fraying in real-time, though he couldn't say for sure.

"Dasha is too valuable a resource to be overworked like that."

How long do you think I'll be there for you to pull all-nighters on stakeouts? The workload is excessive, and the efficiency is too low.

At those words, Dasha's expression turned into a complex and subtle mixture of joy and perplexity.

"But that is the nature of an intelligence agent's work."

"Rather, there are things I need Dasha to investigate further in the Imperial Capital."

Seongjin planned to have her focus on investigating the Republican organizations operating covertly in the Imperial Capital from now on.

Thinking of Logan, who had remained dejected until the end, he felt the need to do something quickly.

If he picked a decent organization and had Logan directly sponsor it, wouldn't that groundless sense of debt gradually fade?

And if they could at least implant the perception of him being a supporter or collaborator rather than an enemy prince to the Ortona people, that would be the icing on the cake.

Preferably, it would be good to go with that [Blue Republican Revolutionary Front] that Morres had been supporting for a long time. Since there was already a sponsorship history, there likely wouldn't be much issue even if another prince was hastily added.

[What if they don't accept?]

In response to the Demon King's question, Seongjin answered matter-of-factly.

'Then I'll have to completely cut off their funds.'

It's not just about cutting off my sponsorship. I'll investigate all their funding sources, seize them, and threaten them! Even then, would they dare not obey me and turn their backs? Heh heh heh.

At Seongjin's evil laughter, the Demon King shuddered.

[Are you even thinking of helping the 2nd Prince rebuild the country? How can you crush the hopes of those trying to revive the nation in such a way?]

What are you saying, you unnecessarily immersed Demon King?

An organization that ignores or opposes Logan couldn't possibly have such pure intentions, right?

[...This eight-armed bastard's illness is truly incurable.]

What's your problem now?

Anyway, there were quite a few other organizations that came to mind. Although he had only recently learned of it, there was surprisingly a lot of subversive activity by treasonous organizations within the Empire.

There's no way the Holy Emperor wouldn't know about it, so why is that gentleman letting them be?

"The policy is to not crack down too harshly on organizations quietly operating underground."

"Oh, is that so?"

It was truly amazing that the Empire was running so stably even with such subversive organizations running rampant under the surface.

And another thing he learned was that, surprisingly, the organizations Morres had been sponsoring were quite substantial compared to others.

Take the [Blue Republican Revolutionary Front], for example. Not only Ortona refugees but also young thinkers and writers had joined in droves, continuing their vibrant activities.

Especially among them, the achievements of the writers could be said to be unparalleled.

The young blood of Ortona, having experienced the vitality of the republic even if briefly, sublimated their passion and ideals into literature without reserve.

And the literary works born from their diligent writing activities had recently become a topic of discussion even in mainstream social gatherings.

As a result, somewhere along the way, Ortona had become an image of a fantastical or ideal country among the Imperial Capital's youth.

'And Adelheid's Plague Society is also relatively decent among plague societies.....'

In that case, it raises expectations for the remaining Golden Truth Society as well.

As Seongjin was lost in thought, Dasha observed him and cautiously spoke up.

"Your Highness, regarding the investigation of the Republican organizations, if it pleases you, how about entrusting it to my fellow intelligence agent?"

"Fellow?"

"Yes."

Seongjin blinked. This person wouldn't easily suggest delegating her work to others unless there was a good reason.

"He is a reliable and skilled colleague. Moreover, I understand he has been investigating these organizations for quite some time. I received his assistance for the results of this investigation as well."

"Is that so? Who is he?"

"As he is an exclusive intelligence agent for another Imperial Prince, I cannot disclose his identity, but....."

Something clicks.

"He's Logan's intelligence agent, isn't he?"

"...Yes, that's correct."

Dasha's eyes widened in surprise, and she soon nodded.

Right. Logan must have been separately investigating them as well. Why wouldn't he?

'Indeed, it would be more efficient to entrust it to them entirely.'

Seongjin was convinced.

However, the Dasha he knew would gather more data rather than suggest completely delegating it.

"...Dasha has something else she wants to do?"

"Yes, Your Highness."

And she looked straight at Seongjin and said.

"Please allow me to accompany Your Highness to the Siegmund Territory."

"It will be quite hard for you, Dasha."

"Forgive my presumptuousness, but that is the duty of an exclusive intelligence agent. There are also Monkey Watchtower agents in the Siegmund Territory, so I can receive assistance from them."

"....."

"I implore you. Please permit me to fulfill my role."

Seongjin gazed at the back of Dasha's head as she bowed respectfully.

She could have compromised appropriately.

-Back then, I shouldn't have burdened my friends and comrades with everything and closed my eyes so easily.

Well, there are people with a disposition that can't bear it unless they hold themselves to strict standards in everything.

"Alright. If that's the case, I don't mind. It would make things much easier if Dasha helps out, right?"

Seongjin nodded.

At those words, Dasha smiled with relief.

Little did she know that the prince intended to search the Count's family rather than investigate the Siegmund Territory.

The plans of Greed and Sowing were miserably thwarted.

It was a decisive blow targeting the weakness of the birthday banquet, but unexpectedly, the Holy Emperor showed a leisurely response against the two high-ranking Demon Lords even with lacking causality.

On top of that, with the sudden intrusion of an unexpected variable through the gap, the hundreds and thousands of near-death bombs that the two's near-death avatars were hit with were utterly torn apart without a trace.

The two Demon Kings barely escaped the gap and returned to their contractors' bodies. However, Sowing was still paying a hefty price for underestimating the situation.

"Argh!"

Black smoke rises from the young man's arm. The persistent flames that had clung to Sowing in the gap had followed him here and were now burning his contractor.

"Tsk. Can't you even handle a single near-death attack? How pathetic."

When Greed criticized, Sowing frowned and appealed his grievance.

"No, this is really strange! It won't go out!"

True to his words, Sowing had tried all night to suppress the flames with his authority.

But for some reason, the red flames that refused to be extinguished had completely devoured his contractor's right arm and were now slowly spreading beyond his shoulder.

The pain of slowly burning was one thing, but just what was the identity of these flames that even the authority of a high-ranking Demon King couldn't suppress?

'Could it be that I'll be reverse summoned like this?'

Sowing broke out in a cold sweat.

If he couldn't find another contractor right away, it was evident that Sowing would be helplessly reverse summoned from Delcros. Then, it was clear that he wouldn't be able to return to this world until the cult performed a new ritual.

Right then.

"What brings you to the contact point at this hour? Lord of Greed. And who might this person be...?"

Someone approached them and asked. It was Romaine, the man wearing a half-mask.

Although both Demon Kings were emitting an ominous black demonic energy from their entire bodies, he came close without minding and asked.

"What problem does this person have?"

Sowing glared at him fiercely.

Behind Romaine followed an old man in priestly attire, and the energy emanating from him clearly belonged to Sowing's brethren who had received his baptism.

"What have you done to a member of my cult? You wretched puppet bastard."

The old man's eyes had already lost their reason, turning hazy. Romaine glanced back at him and shrugged.

"I merely eased his mind a little since he was so frightened. Looking at it now, it seems I did the right thing. Considering what's to come, wouldn't it be cruel to demand he remain sane?"

"What?"

"Don't you happen to need him as well? There doesn't seem to be any other way."

Romaine added, his gaze fixed on Sowing's shoulder, which was burning and emitting black smoke.

"I will gladly yield my [puppet] for the sake of the great lord."

Sowing's eyes widened. How dare he say he would yield a human belonging to him!

Reflecting his discomfort, the demonic energy rising from his body also intensifies. However, even facing that overbearing gaze, Romaine didn't flinch.

After glaring at him for a moment, Sowing eventually sighed and grumbled.

"Argh. I prefer a fresh and young body... Grafting is supposed to be done with a young tree!"

Anyway, as Romaine said, he had no other choice now.

Whoosh!

The moment Sowing transferred to the old priest, the previous contractor's body was engulfed in dark red flames. It was because the authority suppressing the flames had completely disappeared.

Shortly after, Sowing's former contractor collapsed to the ground, reduced to a handful of ashes.

Greed, who had been silently watching the scene, finally lifted its expressionless gaze to meet Romaine's.

"Your timing was opportune, Romaine. You must have something you desire from us in return for this, correct?"

Then, the lips beneath the half-mask curve into a long arc.

"Yes. I have come to hear about the [Prepared One], Lord of Greed. Directly from you, the great lords who have prepared him."

The morning of the last birthday banquet.

Seongjin was at the training ground of the Order of Saint Marcias with Logan. It was because Sisle had been summoned by the Commander.

Sisle's initiation ceremony was scheduled to take place immediately after the end of the birthday banquet. It was under the pretext of a rehearsal, but what kind of rehearsal would they do with a clueless child at the training ground?

'It's obvious.'

From the knights lined up exuding an imposing aura to the squires swinging flails with exaggerated movements while shouting savagely.

Apparently, they all had the obvious intention of deflating the saint's spirit in advance. After all, a mere 12-year-old kid was going to become their superior.

Of course, Sisle, who hadn't noticed that hostile atmosphere, received the flail handed to her by a knight and had an excited expression.

As Seongjin watched an inquisitor boastfully explaining to Sisle how to swing a flail, he spoke up.

"Hey."

"Yeah?"

"You agreed to help with the demon beast squad's work while you're in the Imperial Capital, right?"

"I did."

As if yesterday's agitation had been a lie, Logan looked as upright as ever. Glancing at him, Seongjin suggested.

"Then do you want to come along to investigate the Siegmund Territory? Get some fresh air and all that."

If left alone, who knows how deep this guy would dig? He might strike oil.

But hearing that suggestion, Logan stared blankly at Seongjin and suddenly burst into laughter.

"That's impossible, Lee Seongjin. When the subjugation unit visited near the Siegmund Territory, the margrave was uncomfortable with even me staying briefly within the territory. If I get involved, the demon beast squad will probably be driven out of the territory right away."

If they were so wary of Logan, who was renowned for his strong divine power, it truly meant there were many shady dealings within the territory.

As Seongjin fell silent, Logan turned his eyes to Sisle and continued.

"I feel ashamed for causing worry. Yesterday, I showed an inadequate side of myself as the elder."

"Who's the elder, dude?"

"I'm ten years older than you. I was in my seventies."

Seongjin gaped.

There's no one who doesn't know when General Gale died, yet this bastard is still insisting on that?

Ignoring Seongjin's dumbfounded gaze, Logan went on.

"And as you can see, it seems Sisle needs more professional help. I'll stay here and teach her. At this rate, she might end up killing someone soon."

"Yeah!"

It was as Logan said.

Clang! Crunch!

Beyond the flatly crumpled plate armor, the pale faces of the Order of Saint Marcias members could be seen.

The little saint smiled transparently at them while adjusting the flail with menacing spikes.

"Aiming at armored dummies instead of people somehow puts my mind at ease. If I hit like this, they won't die, right?"

No, they will die! They will absolutely die!

Hearing the inquisitors' internal screams of anguish, Seongjin grinned.

The rehearsal is perfect.

Now, let's see if you can properly handle a martial arts prodigy who never gets tired no matter what she does.

Inquisitor Paris.

He was a fairly competent holy knight, but he was considered to lack the years of experience to serve as the Commander.

Nevertheless, the reason he rose to the position of Commander was that the previous Commander, Sir Durand, had died in a sudden accident.

-From now on, you are the Commander of the Order of Saint Marcias.

On the unprecedented day when a gate opened in the Imperial Palace, the Holy Emperor had clearly said those words to Paris.

As he said, Paris, who had been the Commander's assistant, had no choice but to become the acting Commander and reorganize the disarrayed order. And soon after, under the leadership of Cardinal Benitus, the work of ferreting out the remnants of the Dark Cult followed.

As more and more cleanup work kept arising, he had conveniently solidified his position as the Commander. Naturally, the gazes of some senior and peer inquisitors were not favorable.

"If you know you're in a position beyond your means, you should also know to decline it yourself."

"I guess he thought it was an opportunity for promotion when the Commander passed away like that."

Those who had been hands-off during the actual cleanup were now running their mouths. As a senior, he couldn't even soothe the atmosphere, let alone incite division within the order.

But as the one who had become the Commander, it wasn't something he could confide in anyone about. As he grew weary living through such creaking days, an unexpected decision came down from the Holy Council.

-The saintess is the [Apostle] of the Lord who will carry on the legacy of Saint Marcias. As she personally wishes to join the holy knightly order, she should be treated appropriately befitting her status.

When Paris first heard that instruction, he doubted his own ears. Suddenly inserting a 12-year-old child, not even a knight, as a deputy-level position?

Of course, it wasn't nonsensical in principle.

The saint was a person promoted to a living saint. Although she had no real authority, in terms of the hierarchy of the Orthodox Church, she was treated almost on par with a cardinal. Considering her lack of practical experience, she was placed at the deputy level, but originally, she was practically a superior above the Commander.

But do things really work that way? If the saintess directly joins the knightly order, the story becomes completely different.

A deputy who trains alongside new squires, how absurd is that!

"Commander, this is truly an outrageous measure, no matter how you look at it! Deputy-level? Isn't she just a little kid who has never even properly held a weapon before?"

"Isn't she receiving too much special treatment just because she's a member of the imperial family? The discipline of the knightly order will be shaken! Please do something about it, alright?"

When his subordinates suddenly clung to him, calling him Commander and complaining, Paris was a bit dumbfounded.

At the very least, this incident had definitely become an opportunity for the Order of Saint Marcias to solidify internally.

Anyway, he also thought this measure was somewhat unreasonable, so he sought out Cardinal Venitus directly to raise an objection.

But the next day, the cardinal, with a face that had become half its size, asked him this.

"You, do you happen to know that after Saint Aurelion received a divine revelation, he received various promotion benefits from the Orthodox Church to smoothly carry out his mission?"

Paris was puzzled. It was a story that didn't even take up a few lines in the actual scriptures, ending with something like 'the saintess received a divine revelation and led the people'.

"What about the incident hundreds of years ago when Priest Granus temporarily served as the Commander to engage in urgent negotiations with the Anatolian lords?"

"...Pardon?"

It was also the first time he had heard of it.

Then, Cardinal Benitus wrinkled his aged face even more gloomily and sighed.

"You don't know? I didn't know until today either! So what can we do? As of now, we have no justification to oppose His Majesty's will. I don't know where he found such historical records, but the evidence and precedents are too clear."

"....."

"The more I think about it, the more frightening he is. Surely he couldn't have memorized even the discontinued scriptures in their entirety, could he?"

If that strict old man had given up, there was truly no other way. Paris' troubles deepened.

In the midst of that, an opinion arose within the knightly order to hold an initiation ceremony for the saint. The initiation ceremony was, in fact, closer to a bad habit of harshly treating new squires and enforcing discipline.

"If she experiences the initiation ceremony, she will surely be frightened and withdraw her admission, don't you think?"

"But even squires who have trained to a certain extent often fall ill after going through the initiation ceremony. If we make the young saint endure such a harsh ordeal alone, what will people think of us?"

"Then let's show her actual training under the pretext of a rehearsal. We'll have her directly experience some of the training that new squires go through. With that much, there won't be any significant backlash."

That seemed like a plausible opinion. Could a young girl, who had been revered as a saint, insist on joining even after witnessing the brutal training of an actual knightly order?

So, Commander Paris summoned the saintess to the training ground the very next day.

".....?"

But somehow, the situation unfolded a bit differently than he had thought.

Even after seeing the inquisitors in full plate armor with a fierce aura, not just light armor, the saintess merely expressed admiration without much change in her expression.

"This is the public authority that Brother mentioned...!"

...Public authority?

Facing the saintess's eyes that were growing unexpectedly starry, Commander Paris felt an ominous premonition for some reason.

Hyah! Take this! Hah!

On one side of the training ground, squires swinging flails with menacing spikes could be seen. As instructed by their seniors in advance, they were diligently playing the role of vicious criminals while sweating profusely.

The murderous intent was so palpable that it seemed they would beat someone to death at any moment, but.

"That is the safe weapon that the elder brother mentioned...!"

...Safe... what?

Commander Paris broke out in a cold sweat. Something was going terribly wrong.

And his bad premonition reached its peak after placing a weapon in the saintess's hand.

The heavy flail that ordinary people struggle to swing with both hands, the saint lightly lifted with one hand and began twirling it around, imitating the squires.

For those small hands and slender arms to handle such weight, it meant she was already naturally circulating Aura through her muscles.....

'Did the saintess undergo Aura cultivation training?'

Before he could even ponder that question.

Clang! Crunch!

The flail was lightly swung, and the breastplate of the plate mail covering the dummy was instantly crumpled like paper!

".....!"

"Phew."

While the entire knightly order turned pale with shock, the saint lightly exhaled the breath she had been holding. Somehow, she seemed to instinctively know the timing to stop breathing.

"Aiming at armored dummies instead of people somehow puts my mind at ease. If I hit like this, they won't die, right?"

The members of the Order of Saint Marcias collectively flapped their mouths with ashen faces.

You just turned someone's heart and lungs into mush with a single blow!

Paris rubbed his temples, which were starting to throb. Something was getting seriously twisted.

In the midst of that, the two princes, who were present as guardians and observers, were also very grating. Especially the 3rd Prince.

The way he smiled leisurely, raising the corners of his mouth crookedly as if he had expected this, was unbearably unpleasant.

"Then, Saintess. We are about to start basic physical training, but will you be participating?"

Then, all the inquisitors began circling the training ground with solemn faces.

The saintess followed behind them without a word. Still lacking a training uniform, she grabbed the hem of her long priestly robes and trotted along, the fabric fluttering about!

'Urk, how cute.....!'

The inquisitors clutched their hearts. Of course, that sentiment didn't last long.

'Why... Why isn't she getting tired?'

Since it was endurance training, they weren't running at full speed, but it was still impressive for a young girl to keep up with the pace of grown adults without falling behind. Yet that speed didn't decrease one bit.

Not only that. The leisurely appearance of not breaking a single sweat no matter how much she ran.

'Commander. We've already exceeded our usual training volume by twice?'

'Shut up! Are you going to be humiliated in front of the saintess?'

'But at this rate, the members won't be able to endure it. We're in heavier gear than usual, aren't we? There's a limit to relying on divine power to replenish stamina!'

True to those words, soon the squires began dropping out one by one, and eventually, all the inquisitors collapsed on the training ground, gasping for breath.

Huff! Gasp!

Hah! Pant!

"You train to the point of exhaustion like this. To maintain this level of training even during the birthday celebration period, it must be impossible without truly lofty sense of duty and thorough self-discipline."

"....."

Saintess Sisle spoke in admiration, but no one responded. They were already too exhausted to even make a sound.

Originally, it was tradition for senior knights to harass and berate struggling new squires.

But now, the actual newcomer, the saintess, was the only one leisurely walking among the inquisitors sprawled on the ground, drenched in sweat, and distributing divine power to them.

The girl's appearance was both sacred and adorable, but she was also the culprit who had caused this mess in the first place. Complex emotions clouded the faces of the inquisitors as they looked at the saint.

"T-today is just a rehearsal, so let's call it a day....."

As Commander Paris began to speak to send the saintess back.

"It's troubling if you're this amazed, Sisle. This is just light physical training for holy knights."

Prince Morres, wearing a somewhat nasty-looking smile, slyly interjected.

"The other holy knights must train at this intensity every day, right? Isn't that so, Logan?"

Then, Prince Logan solemnly nodded.

"Ceaseless training is the duty of a knight. But indeed, among the five holy knightly orders, this place might be the best? Our Liliun Special Forces also prided ourselves on conducting high-intensity training, but after seeing the Order of Saint Marcias today, I feel we were too complacent. We need to reflect on that."

"....."

Hearing that heartfelt admiration, the inquisitors exchanged glances with anxious hearts.

Hey, what do we do? Don't tell me we'll have to do this every day from now on?

However, unlike the two people who were purely admiring, Prince Morres had an evident expression of amusement on his face.

"Now, now, Sisle. Since you're now a member of the holy knightly order, how about training with them until the end before the grand mass? They called you here, after all."

For a moment, it seemed as if black devil horns overlapped above the prince's head.

'He's deliberately instigating her, isn't he?'

'Hey! You devil!'

'I'm here on my day off after being called in! Please spare me!'

As the inquisitors let out silent screams, the saintess tilted her head.

"But we've already learned weaponry and completed physical training, so what's left?"

"Swordsmanship is left."

"Swordsmanship?"

When Prince Morres pointed it out, the saint asked back, seemingly a bit confused.

"But I heard that the Order of Saint Marcias values life. So they don't deliberately wield swords....."

Then, the inquisitors looked at each other with dumbfounded faces.

Did we say that? We've heard a lot about keeping them alive to bring them to the torture chamber, though?

"What are you talking about, Sisle? Of course, it's natural for all holy knights to value life. But basically, as a knight of the Empire, one must learn the standard swordsmanship of the Imperial Knights. Where did you hear such a thing?"

At Logan's question, Sisle answered with a bit of hesitation.

"Ah, um. He said swords are scary because they can kill people. So....."

Sisle had wholeheartedly believed Orden's words. But she couldn't bring herself to tattle on him for telling her that.

However, Logan listened to the story seriously and soon sternly rebuked Sisle.

"What a thoughtless mindset, Sisle. Surely you didn't decide to join the holy knightly order with such a frivolous attitude? If a knight fears taking lives, who would ever think of you as a comrade and entrust their back to you?"

"Comrade....."

"Yes. Suppose, by any chance, you were facing off against a demon worshipper or a demon servant. While clearly witnessing them harming people, would you make the excuse that you couldn't stop them because you didn't learn how to kill?"

".....!"

"The sword of the person you hesitate to strike down might pierce the heart of the holy knight next to you in the next moment. Then, would you say you did your best to save lives in front of his bereaved family?"

At that strong rebuke, Sisle's eyes quivered intensely.

However, the girl who had fought against slowly approaching death alone for several years was a strong child. Gazing at Logan with trembling hands clasped together, the girl soon had a firm, resolute look in her eyes.

She turned to Commander Paris, bowed her head respectfully, and said.

"I was foolish, Commander. From now on, I will immediately participate in all the training of the knightly order."

"No, there's no need for that....."

As Commander Paris dissuaded her while breaking out in cold sweat, the saint laughed gently aloud. It was a crystal-clear laughter that resonated transparently through the air.

"Yes. Today, you all went easy on me out of consideration, right? But from now on, I am also a member of Saint Marcias. From this moment on, I will share all the moments of hardship with my comrades. I am prepared!"

"....."

The faces of the inquisitors lying on the ground instantly turned gloomy.

As everyone in the training ground turned solemn, only one person merely turned his head away with a face reddened from holding back laughter.

'Snicker snicker! Ah, this is driving me crazy!'

[...Lee Seongjin, you devil!]

On the evening of that day, the final banquet of the three-day-long birthday celebration was held.

The banquet proceeded in a rather subdued atmosphere. As most of the acquaintances had already exchanged greetings, it was now time for deeper political conversations to take place.

Seongjin formally introduced Marquis Ravioli, Charles to Amelia.

"You've sent a precious gift, Marquis Ravioli. I was so focused on the flower buds in the greenhouse that I completely missed the splendid spring news that had arrived in the garden."

"Not at all. In the presence of Her Highness, the fragrance of any flower would pale in comparison. I have only now realized how inadequate my preparations were."

The two seemed to get along quite well, engaging in a lively conversation.

Usually, when Amelia was with her siblings, she would express her true feelings in a warm and affectionate tone.

However, in formal settings, she was surprisingly adept at the aristocratic way of speaking, embellished with flowery language.

Come to think of it, she had once told Seongjin:

"People like to hide their true intentions behind flowery language and pretty words. But in most cases, they don't really want to hide it; they expect the other person to naturally understand."

Seongjin had heard that Amelia was usually quite shy and didn't engage much in social activities, but seeing her now, she seemed to have even more social grace than Isabella, the queen of high society. It was truly remarkable.

By the way...

'That bastard is sneakily appealing to the Prince of Brittany again.'

Seongjin glared at Charles with a sullen expression. It was obvious that the cunning little brat was trying to push for a royal marriage between Delcross and Brittany, which didn't sit well with him.

[Why are you making a fuss after introducing them yourself?]

'Well, if Brittany wants something from noonim, she must also have something to gain from them.'

Just like Morres's "engagement in name only."

Besides, Seongjin had a feeling that Amelia wanted to build a wide range of connections at this birthday celebration, especially with the nobles of Rohan and Brittany. Since Charles was the only one Seongjin could introduce her to, he could overlook his slight displeasure. Apparently, the Ravioli family held quite a high position in Brittany.

'And no matter who she talks to, isn't it better than that swallow bastard from Rohan?'

[...You really don't like him, do you?]

I guess so. But why?

Strangely, whenever I see that guy, I get the urge to drag him away somewhere and bury him without anyone knowing.

Is it because his eyes look like a psychopath's?

[Who are you calling a psychopath?]

'...Shut up!'

Anyway, both Amelia and Charles seemed satisfied with this meeting.

'What a beautiful and elegant princess. She would be a perfect match for Prince Philip! When I return to Brittany, I must persuade my father to proceed with the royal marriage.'

'In the future, Philip of Brittany became a rational monarch. When the holy war broke out, he was the second to join the allied forces and confront Leonard. So it's beneficial to build a good relationship with him from now on.'

Watching the two of them, Seongjin thought:

'Should I introduce Chloe to noonim on this occasion...?'

In Seongjin's mind, Chloe was already the future head of Delcross's foreign affairs department.

Right now, she was just studying foreign languages as a hobby, but if it suited her aptitude, what better ability could there be to aid in diplomatic activities?

With her quick wit, she wouldn't come back at a loss from any negotiation table.

Seongjin didn't know what Amelia wanted to do in the future, but surely Chloe would one day become her wings.

'There's not much time left until departure, but I should still try to arrange a meeting!'

Since Amelia was immersed in her studies, they might even join forces and form a foreign language study group.

'But it's a bit disappointing when it comes to connections within Delcross...'

As it was a matter of their own country's royal marriage, foreign dignitaries were desperate to build even the slightest good relationship with Amelia.

On the other hand, the people of Delcross were rather indifferent to the princess, thinking she would soon marry and leave for another country anyway.

They flattered around the Empress and 1st Queen Elizabeth, rarely giving Amelia a chance.

'It will be difficult unless someone well-versed in high society acts as a bridge.'

Suddenly, Isabella's face flashed through his mind.

If only she hadn't fallen into the clutches of Sigurd Sigurdson, she could have been another wing for Amelia, the queen of high society.

Lost in thought, someone quietly approached Seongjin's side and whispered:

"...Bethella!"

"..."

Seongjin glared at Leonard, who was grinning obliviously beside him. Despite the rather unfriendly gaze, the annoying fellow chuckled and downed his drink, as if he was pleased about something.

"Time flies! We've barely become acquainted, and it's already time to part ways. Isn't it truly regrettable?"

Be thankful that the birthday celebration only lasts three days, you bastard.

If the days you could make advances on Noonim had increased by even one more, I would have buried you myself, diplomatic issues be damned!

"Ah, right. I'm thinking of arranging a meeting with my friend soon. When would be a good time?"

What should I do? Seongjin thought sullenly.

Actually, at first, he had planned to investigate that suspicious 'Brotherhood' or whatever, but... He was increasingly irritated by the way that guy hovered around Amelia.

"It might be difficult for a while. I have plans to go somewhere soon."

Orden Siegmund was scheduled to return to his territory immediately after the birthday celebration ended.

Since Seongjin was ostensibly visiting the territory at the invitation of the duke's heir, he had to match his schedule. And he planned to subtly include the Monster Special Task Force among his entourage.

If the Monster Special Task Force formally announced their intention to investigate the territory, they would surely go to great lengths to kick Seongjin's group out.

But upon hearing those words, Leonard replied leisurely:

"No problem. There will be banquets held here and there even after the birthday celebration. I plan to stay in Delcross for a while, attending the places I'm invited to. Just contact me whenever you have time."

And he was giving Amelia those subtle glances again!

A vein popped on Seongjin's forehead.

'Don't you have anything better to do, you swallow bastard!'

This year's birthday celebration ended that way.

And that night, news arrived that Isabella Scarcepino had regained consciousness.

Unlike Riccardo, the awakened Isabella managed to maintain her composure.

If she had been abandoned by the main body, she would have panicked with her memories tampered with.

But now, the main body was also driven into a corner. There were still ways for her to become the main body.

Although the connection was severed, she knew where the real Sigurd Sigurdson was now. She knew who the last remaining avatar was.

'It was a crisis that would come eventually.'

Isabella... no, Sigurd thought.

Years ago, after his body was killed by the hands of the emperor, he barely managed to survive by transferring his soul from one puppet to another.

And there were side effects to parasitizing other people's bodies. Although he tried to use the bodies of puppets with weakened egos, he couldn't avoid being influenced by the puppets and gradually having his own ego blurred.

But of all things, the last remaining avatar for the main body was the one he least wanted to use.

The man whose ego was so strong that he couldn't be fully controlled even after preparing since childhood.

'I don't know how long she can maintain my ego...'

So, driven by circumstances, he had no choice but to leave her body, but if he could somehow confront that avatar, the Puppetmaster would surely return to her body.

'Let's leave Delcross as soon as preparations are made.'

From the night she woke up to the next morning.

She stayed up all night, planning her trip. Her mind was solely focused on meeting that final avatar as soon as possible.

As she steeled her resolve, an unexpected visitor came to see her in the morning. It was Prince Morres, who unusually brought a bouquet of flowers.

"Hey, Sigurd Sigurdson. You look healthier than I thought."

After setting up a simple tea table in the drawing room and dismissing all the servants, the prince sat across from Isabella with a smile.

But the gray eyes staring at her clearly showed no hint of laughter.

Feeling a strange chill, Isabella spoke in a trembling voice:

"He has left me, Your Highness. Now, I am Isabella..."

"Don't make me laugh."

"Your Highness..."

"I had some hope that Isabella might remain, but it was in vain. You still reek of his presence. That sticky, filthy feeling unique to parasites."

"..."

Isabella, or rather Sigurd Sigurdson, fell silent.

Prince Morres was the next Oracle. The only living causality in this frozen Delcross.

Even after his sudden change in personality, that fact never changed, and his eyes that saw through the essence gleamed with a sharp silver light.

Clutching the shawl around her shoulders, she was trembling when Prince Morres, who had been quietly observing her, opened his mouth.

"Lady Isabella."

A voice pretending to be gentle, as if to soothe her.

"Normally, I don't leave things I deem dangerous as they are. I can't tolerate something like you still breathing next to Sisle. But it was Father who spared you. So, out of respect for Father's will, I'll give you one chance."

"A chance...?"

"Yes."

The prince nodded and continued:

"I'll give you a chance to become Lady Isabella."

Sigurd Sigurdson was taken aback.

Become Isabella? How?

"Why, you're good at that thing, aren't you? Casting charm or hypnosis while looking in the mirror. How about using those tricks on yourself, just like you controlled the puppets?"

"Such a preposterous..."

"I don't care what methods you use. The deadline is until I return from Siegmund Territory."

Then, the prince lifted the teacup in front of him to his mouth. He grimaced after taking a sip, as if it didn't suit his taste.

"You need to understand this clearly. Right now, you may think you can't be anything other than Sigurd Sigurdson. But originally, he was your enemy who made you lose yourself. He took everything that made you who you are, not only your body but also your mind. And yet, you still want to become him?"

"..."

"Although there's hardly any trace of her left in you now, consider it a courtesy for my fiancée, Lady Isabella. If you successfully become Isabella, I will help you take revenge on the one who made you this way."

At that, she spoke in a trembling voice:

"But... but how can that be possible?"

Beautiful turquoise eyes began to shed tears.

"I already know of that grand plan! I have seen with my own eyes that beautiful world, those intricate stories! How can I be expected to return to being a mere human?"

However, a cruelly cold answer was given to that sorrowful question.

"Obviously, because it's a matter of your survival. You should desperately cling to it, even if it's just to stay alive. What use are plans and stories then?"

Prince Morres looked straight into her wavering eyes and spoke clearly.

"Listen carefully. When you see me again after returning from the North, you should have become, at least outwardly, the perfect Isabella Scarcepino. Otherwise, I might feel the urge to take revenge on you first. To be honest, I'm quite displeased right now because I haven't been able to properly avenge our little one yet."

Then, the prince curled his lips into a smirk.

"So, keep this in mind. If you're still Sigurd Sigurdson when I return..."

For a moment, his eyes seemed to flash with a silver glow.

"You will surely die by my hand. Understood?"

"...!"

With a bone-chilling shudder, she realized.

The chance for her to become Sigurd Sigurdson again would never come a second time.

[T/N: * = MTL Chapter]

169. Warning (2)

Isabella woke up.

After hearing the news, Seongjin put aside his busy schedule and rushed to the townhouse in the morning. Since she was going to be away from the ecliptic for a while, she didn't want to leave behind even the slightest bit of danger.

However, when Seongjin met Isabella in the living room, he was a little taken aback by the unexpected turn of events.

'Is this unexpected?'

I thought she would lose her sense of self and completely collapse, but Isabella seemed to be in better shape than I thought.

Of course, it was only appearance.

[The soul is very hazy. This is absolutely not a normal state.]

According to the demon lord's assessment, it looks so unstable that it wouldn't be surprising if it fell over and dies right away.

However, even though she had empty eyes, unlike Ricardo, who showed only despair, there was a glimpse of hope in her.

'Do you really think there's still a chance for a comeback?'

On the other hand, rubbing and pulling the hem of her skirt with her left hand was clearly Isabella's habit when she was nervous, which I had seen several times at the Salon de Mercy.

Seongjin carefully observed her presence.

It wasn't the Isabella I first met, but it felt completely different from the Sigurd Sigurdson I encountered when I secretly broke into the mansion not long ago.

'... 'Father did it!'

Seongjin had no choice but to admit that it was right to keep her alive.

I don't know what the point of cutting the top of the head means, but in any case, Seonghwang really cut the puppeteer cleanly away from her.

"Hey, Sigurd Sigurdsson. "You look healthier than I thought?"

At the sudden greeting, she broke into a cold sweat and averted her gaze. Oh, look at this?

"He left me, Sir Mores. Now I am Isabella..."

[That's a lie.]

Even if it wasn't the devil's words, Seongjin realized the moment he glanced at the eyes rolling around while looking at his eyes.

'I guess I stay sane because I think of myself as Sigurd Sigurdson!'

Unlike Ricardo, who somehow managed to maintain his porous ego, but immediately collapsed when the character that supported it disappeared, Isabella's awareness of herself as Isabella is completely vague.

In that case, it was obvious what Seongjin had to do.

[What are you going to do?]

In response to the Demon King's puzzled question, Seongjin smiled, seemingly out of character. Then he started yelling at her, lowering her voice.

"Do not be ridiculous."

A rough summary of what Seongjin did after that was as follows.

First, to drive a wedge into her thinking that she is Sigurd Sigurdson.

Second, we must properly persuade and crack down on people to prevent them from doing foolish things.

[persuade? About the one who threatened to kill me?]

'shut up!'

Of course, we acknowledge that the process was not entirely comprised of peaceful and beautiful communication.

Anyway, the slightest hint made the timid Isabella tremble.

Seongjin thought as he noticed that the light of hope was slowly fading out of her eyes.

If, willingly or unwillingly, she strives for a long time to become Isabella Scarzzapino.

Surely, one day, she will be able to recover some of her imperfect self without falling apart.

Then Seongjin suddenly realized that he was relieved, and for a moment he was caught up in a strange feeling.

* * *

Preparations to leave for the North went smoothly.

The dedicated maid decided to take only Edith for now. She is also a fairly strong Auror user, so even if she goes to a cold region, she doesn't seem to have that much trouble.

I was just a little worried about the 'bile-flavored tea' she would serve during the trip. Well, I'm sure Director Bruno will take good care of it.

'Anyway, haven't I become a bit picky with my taste buds these days?'

You see, the tea I drank in Rue Scarzzapino was not spiritual.

It's probably the fault of Chamberlain Luis and Director Bruno. As I experience the exquisite taste that tea can create every day, I think I have developed a delicate sense of taste that is close to that of a sommelier, at least when it comes to tea taste. If this continues, won't I be able to drink tea anywhere?

I glanced at Director Bruno, who was standing next to me, and he looked confused and stroked his mustache.

Sir Valerie and Sir Sharon decided to accompany the monster task force.

Of course, both of them were planning to disguise themselves as resident knights to hide their identities as Inquisitor and Exorcist.

"I think I'll bring along a banned book to kill time. "If they see something like that, no one will suspect that I'm an Inquisitor, right?"

Seongjin looked at Sir Valerie, who was talking like that, with slightly pathetic eyes.

"Instead of not suspecting you, why not report it to the Heresy Tribunal right away?"

"Haha! Is that really the case?"

After Seongjin discovered his hobby of reading banned books, his attitude that he had no hesitation anymore was absurd. Is that what you're going to say in front of the Holy Empire's prince, you bastard inquisitor!

Among the task force members, only Representative Jibril decided to remain in the imperial capital. This is because it was impossible for the entire department to be absent altogether.

And above all.

"Starting next week, it will be the Lyora Plague Society's conference week, sir!"

Rep. Jibril said proudly as he handed a small booklet to Seongjin.

"For the birthday celebration, renowned teachers of the Lyora school gather from all over the continent. In addition, we present the results of one year of research and discuss rare cases. "This is an important conference that you must attend!"

This year's issue is 'Up-to-date knowledge on the effect of perfume derived from bulb plants on preventing fever.'

"A recent paper published in Anatolia caused a great stir. Traditionally, bulb plants were known to be not good for treating fever patients because they grow close to the ground and contain geothermal energy. So, for fevers, I always use perfume from plants in the rose family. It was said to be 1.5 times more effective. However, according to a recent study, the perfume of bulbous plants is similar to that of rose family plants... .."

"Oh, I know the answer. "There wasn't much difference in the effects of the two perfumes, right?"

Jibril asked with wide eyes at Seongjin's words.

"How do you know about the latest paper that was just published?"

Because both would have zero effect. No matter what you multiply by zero, it will still be zero!

Why are you conducting such useless research and churning out garbage data, you quacks!

Masain and Leader Bruno - although they were disgusted when they found out that Sir Sharon was going with them - of course they will follow Seongjin.

It was decided that Sir Maria, Sir Claudia, and Calmen would accompany the resident knights.

'Unofficially, Dasha will also be joining us... ..'

good! It was a small but meaningful group!

Seongjin smiled proudly after organizing the list.

Come to think of it, this is my first time leaving the ecliptic since I came to this world. It's not like we're going on a picnic. I feel a little excited.

-Even if it is not Delcross, there are many places worth visiting with interest.

Seonghwang once said that.

Seongjin once again looked back on his life recently.

Our interactions with our brothers and sisters are increasing, and even though it's just for research purposes, we're also planning a long-term trip, as he said. At this level, wouldn't it be okay to say that he is living his life as a more sincere person, just as he hoped?

'But now that I think about leaving, I feel a little sad.'

For some reason, Seongjin scratched his cheek as he felt a strange feeling. It seemed like I had become too accustomed to life in the imperial capital without even knowing it.

* * *

Asean branch of the guild.

A boy is swinging a wooden sword vigorously in a small training hall next to the temple accommodation. He was Aslan, who had been entrusted to the guild for some time.

"Whew. "You have completed 200 thrusts, Paula."

The boy who had just grown taller said, wiping the sweat from his forehead.

As food became plentiful while living in the guild, he suddenly began to grow rapidly, and now he is a fairly strong young man.

"Oh, good job. "Come here and get some rest."

At the words of Paula, who was muttering with a pipe in her mouth, Aslan came to the shade where she was, sharpening his wooden sword.

"Anyway, this birthday party just passed by. "I really wanted to go to the imperial capital and see His Majesty."

As the boy spoke, wiping his sweat with the hem of his top, Paula waved her pipe.

"Arthur. How long has it been since you started becoming an Auror? Have you already reached the imperial capital? "It's too late for you to aim to join next year."

"Ugh... .."

Along with the inevitable sigh, resentment toward the branch leader wells up.

Justin Astros, the head of the Guild's Asean branch, was a man with many secrets. It was hard to see what he was doing during the day.

Even on the days when he shows up at the guild, he tends to look at his half-hearted attitude and then disappear somewhere else. Isn't this a very insincere attitude towards the subject who claimed to be Aslan's swordsmanship teacher?

Aslan soon gave up learning anything from him and meekly received help from the guild members. Most of them were very skilled and did not skimp on teaching.

Except for the branch manager, everyone was good people.

Among them, Paula, who recently retired from the mercenary army, is a good teacher with quite a lot of experience teaching juniors.

While Aslan was concentrating on training alone with the help of others, he heard an amazing story from Paula. One day, when she was very drunk, her branch manager said this to her.

-Aslan That guy has quite a natural talent. If I just give him a sword, he will become a squire level someday, right? Then send it to the imperial palace then.

Isn't it really absurd that he tried to persuade me as if he would help me pass the entrance exam!

"So at what age can I join the Imperial Knights?"

As Aslan muttered in a dejected voice, Paula turned to him in pity and tapped his shoulder.

"The branch manager is an ugly person, but he still has a sharp eye for recognition. If he says yes, that's fine. You are talented and sincere. "I'm sure he'll become an article soon."

"Yeah..."

"Stop worrying and let's go get lunch. "Please leave the wooden sword."

Aslan nodded and stood up.

As I was trudging towards the warehouse alone, I heard someone talking inside the half-open warehouse.

"This is a lot different from the first time, isn't it?"

'... Branch leader?'

What kind of change of mind is this? For the past few days, Branch Manager Justin has not disappeared somewhere, but has been sticking to the guild and meeting various people.

It looks like another guest has arrived? But why are they doing this in the warehouse and not in the guild leader's office?

"What happened? A barrier that binds the soul? "Didn't you guarantee that it would work properly this time?"

Aslan was startled by the unusually excited voice of the branch leader. He was not like the branch manager, who always spoke in a lazy and languid manner.

And what else? Bind your soul?

Aslan held his breath as he had a premonition of something unusual and listened quietly to the conversation.

"The first thing I gave him must have been a leash. "But what on earth is this?"

What was heard next was a rare low-pitched voice.

"One leash was split in half and then heat treated again. Thanks to this, the circuit was completely misaligned. "It's bound to not work properly like this."

"I couldn't help it. What you gave me was like a necklace with fancy workmanship. How dare you disguise yourself as a prisoner!"

Two people were arguing over something on the table.

I couldn't see the two of them clearly through the crack in the door, but at least the object they were holding between them was clearly visible.

"That... ... !"

Aslan immediately recognized the familiar object.

It was completely torn apart.

"Those are the handcuffs Bart was wearing!"

"I hid it in molten iron, and then covered it with thick iron again. Otherwise, he would have recognized right away that this was something from the normal world."

"You did something useless. "If you had used it in its original form as I said from the beginning, you could have simply trapped the guardian inside the homunculus."

"But I had to be careful. "The moment he finds out, it's all over!"

"I have told you many times, but the circuits of the normal world cannot be hidden by adding something to them. "The reason he didn't recognize it this time is probably because the circuit was already damaged, rather than because you covered it with iron."

And a soft sigh follows.

"When do you think he will stay in the body of a doll this far and for such a long time again? "Because you were needlessly cautious, we missed a golden opportunity that will never come again."

"hmm... .."

Aslan turned pale and took a step back little by little.

I couldn't understand the whole conversation, but it was clear that it wasn't a very good story for Bart.

'Dear Bart... We must warn His Majesty!'

Then it creaked. Suddenly, without warning, the warehouse door opened wide.

"But wait a minute. "What have you been eavesdropping on with such interest, little Aslan?"

"... ..!"

At that moment, Aslan's feet froze due to the chilling force that flowed from the warehouse.

Although he seemed extremely light-hearted, Branch Manager Justin was a sword master. There was no way he didn't know the boy was approaching the warehouse from the beginning!

"ji... Branch manager. why... ..?"

Didn't you say you were His Majesty's old friend?

Justin is looking at the boy, barely moving his hardened mouth pressed against the aura, with a smile as if it is amusing.

A man came up behind him and asked.

"Are you going to get rid of it like this?"

Only then was Aslan able to properly check the appearance of the guest.

He was a tall man who could easily rival Justin. He is wearing luxurious robes with delicate embroidery, and on his face is an ornate half-mask that you might only see at a festival.

"no. Bart knows this kid. He sometimes asks how I am through an informant. "It would be a problem if it just disappeared."

Then Justin turned around and asked the customer.

"There is a simpler way. "You can erase this kid's memories, right?"

"Of course."

Beyond the half-masked nod, the cold walls of his eyes gave off a cold glow.

170*

170. Logistics Relay Station (1)

Time passed steadily, and finally the day arrived for Seongjin and his group to depart for the north.

Several carriages were lined up in front of Jinju Palace from early in the morning.

The actual number of people in Seongjin's party, including the drivers, was less than ten, but when Orden Sigismund's party gathered together, the number became quite large.

In addition, Jinju Palace was crowded with more people than ever before as people were busy moving luggage or maintaining horses and carriages.

The prince and princess had also come out in full force under the pretext of seeing Seongjin off.

"You must have thoroughly prepared for your visit to Korea, right Seongjin Lee? Of course, you can protect yourself from the cold with auras, but the Sigismund territory is a very cold place because you are an auror user."

Logan warned again.

"Oh, of course. Do you know how many times you've said that sound so far? "If I hear it one more time, my ears will bleed."

Seongjin grumbled.

But Logan's concerns were valid. In terms of actual latitude, Sigismund's territory is located south of the northern part of Ortona, but it maintained an incomparably cold climate there.

This was the influence of Magyeong, located in the northwestern part of the Sigismund Territory. In that magical forest covered in snow and ice all year round, it is said that the mythical ice monster, the Glacher Troll, still haunts the forest.

"Here, take this."

Logan said, holding something out to Seongjin.

"What is this?"

"I brought it from the imperial palace report. It is said to be a magical stone that glows when you pray for it. "I think it would be quite useful as a light source."

It was a small, round rock. The yellow sparkling thing looks like a jade stone, or like an opaque glass bead.

Seongjin thought with a sad look on his face.

'Magic stone, what is it? Isn't this a worldview where magic exists?'

But when the devil saw the stone, he was scared.

[uh? Seongjin Lee. This is something from the normal world!]

What?

Seongjin was inwardly confused, but Logan added an explanation.

"When camping, sometimes situations arise where you can't make a fire. "They say you can do something about the cold with auras, but in a dark place without any light, there is a limit to strengthening your eyesight with auras."

"hmm. okay? thank you. "I'll use it well."

Seongjin put the stone in his pocket.

Well, since he's a guy who often leads a punitive force and travels here and there, there's no harm in getting some advice. Later, he will have to take a closer look with the devil bastard.

"Brother Mores, have a nice trip."

Sisley also quietly approached him and said. Although her face still looked expressionless, Seongjin could still see a faint trace of concern in one corner of the girl's eyes.

Maybe it's because the burden on his mind has been eased a little, but it feels like the little boy's face, which used to be like a robot, has become a little more lively lately.

"And take this."

"What is this again?"

What Sisley held out was a small, flat, scarlet stone.

"They say it's a magic stone that emits heat when you pray for it. This is an item taken from the imperial palace treasury. "It's cold in the northern territory, so I think something like this will be necessary no matter how many Aurors you use."

"... .."

Looking at the size, I thought it could be used as a hand warmer.

But since it is said to be a magic stone, I have a premonition... ..

[omg! Seongjin Lee! This is the normal world... .. !]

Yeah, I thought so.

Where on earth did all these come from? Why are items from the normal world included in the imperial treasury?

While he was grumbling inside, this time Amelia came in front of him.

"Mores... .."

She looks quite anxious as she holds her hands tightly in front of her.

Logan and Sisley often left the imperial capital for 'noble man's duties', so they seemed to not consider Seongjin's trip that big of a deal.

However, Amelia has never been outside the imperial palace since she entered it. So it was not impossible to understand that she was particularly anxious.

In fact, much of Amelia's anxiety stemmed from the fact that this trip was something she had never experienced in her previous life. There was no way Seongjin knew that fact.

Anyway, Amelia relieved that anxiety through thorough preparation.

I cleaned up the clothing room here and there to get Seongjin's winter clothes all new, and personally brought in his employees and packed his luggage one by one.

Of course, it goes without saying that the new clothes were all in gloomy colors.

"Take care, Mores. "I'm relieved that Brother Masain is going with you, but there are times when you don't take care of yourself to the point where it feels too reckless."

She asked as she hand-wrapped the newly tailored thick black cloak for me.

"Yes, don't worry. sister."

"okay. ah! and..."

Amelia smiled brightly and shyly held out the object she was holding in her hand. It was a white handkerchief.

"It is a token of hope for a safe return. "It's a poor skill, but I worked hard to embroider it for you."

"Embroidery? Why bother doing all this..."

Seongjin, who accepted the handkerchief with a shy smile, was momentarily startled.

On the white handkerchief, there were bug-like things messily embroidered in black. It was ominous just to look at it.

What is this? Is it a curse? It's a sign of a safe return?

"I embroidered some of the verses from [Orlando's Military Merit Poem]. [Olivier, the moon nymph, raised his sword and sang, and the whole world responded and swore that they would not dare to trespass on his journey.] Isn't this a truly beautiful sentence?"

"... .."

"Ah, is it too much to read yet? You are especially weak at archaic expressions, Mores. Next time, I'll lend you more famous classic storybooks."

"... thank you."

It seemed that the reason Seongjin couldn't read that phrase was because he was simply poor at reading.

Sister, you don't know? Are these really letters?

No matter how you look at it, it looks like an evil voodoo shaman dying, his last effort to curse the whole world?

The demon lord seemed to have similar thoughts.

[I don't feel any demonic energy in particular, but is it like a curse from the civilians? Does he still care about what Mores harassed him in the past?]

Seongjin thought with a shocked face.

... Sadly, I can't say for sure.

But Amelia added with a proud face.

"Besides, don't be surprised. "The thread with which this embroidery was made is a very special item."

"Let me guess. "Is this a magic thread taken from the imperial palace treasury?"

Then she opened her eyes wide.

"Yes, that's right! "How did you know?"

"... .."

Seongjin smiled bitterly.

It was only now that I realized the meaning of the question that Chamberlain Louis had secretly asked me when I stopped by Seonghwang's office to say hello last evening.

-Do you not need to stop by the imperial palace report separately?

At the time, I thought it was strange, but it turned out that even before Seongjin, the prince and princesses had already visited Seongwang and robbed the palace reports one by one!

No, why on earth are you doing this? I'm going on a trip for a while. What's the big deal?

"Well then, Mores, have a nice trip!"

With a smile blooming as brightly as a rose in full bloom, Seongjin had no choice but to tie the uncomfortable handkerchief around the handle of the nutcracker. Of course, Orden looked at that with envious eyes.

"Mores! "Don't stay away for too long!"

"Mores! "You have to come back quickly!"

After him, Herna and Kadesh bid him farewell.

Fortunately, the twins didn't seem to have committed the atrocity of leaking the imperial palace report. Instead, unlike usual, the kids whined as if they were clinging to Seongjin.

"Otherwise we'll be looking for Mores every day!"

"I'm going to go find you and beat up the leader and Red!"

These are probably not empty words.

These two people are Arranger's psychics. You can follow Seongjin anywhere with just a soul terminal. But why would you bother the wrong person?

"Well, if you do anything to Mores, your father will definitely scold you."

"Dad, it's good that His Majesty is in trouble, but I still don't want to be scolded."

Are you ghosts? Harming a normal person?

No, wait. So you're saying that you do that to other people sometimes?

Seongjin was shocked, but Herna and Kadesh clung to his arms and looked up at him with bright eyes.

They are devils who do what they do, but just by looking at their facial expressions, there are no other angels who are this innocent.

"Finish it quickly and come back to your father's side, okay?"

"Dad, you know you shouldn't worry His Majesty too much, right?"

"... .."

hmm. I think I know a little bit about what these kids are worried about.

When I shook their heads with both hands without answering, the twins cackled and burst into laughter at the same time.

"It's unfortunate, but I'm sorry. "You must leave now."

Masain, who was looking at the scene with happy eyes, spoke vaguely to Seongjin.

"Okay, let's go."

Seongjin answered like that and got into the carriage.

When Masain gave the signal, Orden Sigismund shouted to the Wolf

Knights in the lead.

"depart!"

"depart!"

"depart!"

With loud chants, the carriage slowly begins to move.

He looked out the window and saw Amelia, Logan, Sisley, and the twins all waving at him.

"hmm... .."

Seongjin waved at them with an awkward expression.

It was an unfamiliar yet strange feeling. Because in his entire life, he could never remember seeing his family off like this.

Then, Director Bruno, who was sitting across from him, looked at him closely and smiled.

"Are you sad that we're breaking up?"

What nonsense is this guy talking about again? Where am I leaving the ecliptic forever? Why is everyone so upset?

Seongjin, dumbfounded, turned his head with a sullen expression on his face. Perhaps because she was in an unfamiliar situation, she seemed to be making what she thought was a very strange expression.

Da-da-da-da-da-da-da-da-da-da.

Meanwhile, the carriage they were riding in steadily increased its speed, eventually leaving the imperial palace and starting to run down the well-paved street.

* * *

The paved road continued for a while even after we had completely left the city.

This is because Delcross, which has been the center of the continent for the past thousand years, has already become the center of all human and logistics movement.

Of course, the road surface was not completely smooth like the Hwangdo Island, so it was inevitable that the carriage would occasionally shake.

Still, the carriage ride was more comfortable than expected. Since it was an imperial carriage, it had good cushions, and even though it was primitive, it had a proper suspension structure.

'Let's take this opportunity to meditate.'

Seongjin closed his eyes and thought.

Recently, with so many things going on, including the birthday party, I haven't had a chance to meditate leisurely like before.

So, when was the last time he got close to the 7th floor, Seongjin was still unable to form a complete Auror 7th floor?

It ran so smoothly that it wasn't long after we passed the northern gate.

Hee hee hee!

Suddenly the horses neighed for a long time, and the carriage shook violently. The commotion quickly spreads, and soon the sound of horses can be heard here and there throughout the procession.

"What's going on?"

When Masain opened the window and asked the coachman, he immediately got a carefree answer.

"It's nothing, Masain. It's because the carriage has just fallen from grace. Don't worry, it always happens when you leave the ecliptic. "These insignificant animals are rather sensitive to the grace of the Lord."

blessing?

When Seongjin opened his eyes and looked outside, Director Bruno explained.

"I also heard this from priests before. It is said that in the imperial capital, the blessings of a wide range of gods are spread around the imperial palace. People like me don't have divine power, so they don't really feel it, but priests who come from other places notice it right away."

"okay?"

"yes. Isn't this all Your Majesty's power? They say it wasn't like this when the Emperor was alive. Anyway, thanks to that, it is said that demon species can no longer go near the ecliptic."

indeed. It's a story that could happen to that person.

Sure enough, I felt like the devil was stretching out in my head.

[Whoa, the air suddenly became lighter. I think I'm finally going to buy something!]

'Is it that much?'

[of course! It's like a completely different world between here and here!]

Another world...

Come to think of it, Seonghwang, whom I met yesterday, also said something like that.

-Once you leave the ecliptic, many things will be different from before, son. You must be on guard against everything and be on guard again.

As he watched the ever-changing scenery, Seongjin quietly reflected on Seonghwang's words.

171*

171. Logistics Relay Station (2)

It is difficult for unrefined emotions or impulses to become thoughts. Also, for such thoughts to lead to actions or phenomena, more cause and effect is required than expected.

If you do, what do you do? Since you cannot control a person's mind, you have no choice but to control the driving force that generates your thoughts, right?

* * *

Seongjin and his party started camping from the first day.

We left early in the morning with plenty of time to spare, but the problem was that there were too many carriages going to and from Delcross as the birthday celebration period overlapped. It was difficult to achieve proper speed even on wide paved roads.

In addition, there was an accident in which one of the carriages ahead broke down, and the road became congested for a while.

"If things had gone as planned, we would have already arrived in Regina and unpacked. "It's all my fault."

Orden's subordinate, Herman, bowed his head to Seongjin with an expression of apology. He was currently in charge of overseeing the group's travel itinerary.

"No, how can you prepare for such an accident? are you okay."

Seongjin answered half-heartedly and waved his hand.

For now, all I wanted to do was get some rest. At that time, Seongjin was completely exhausted from mental stress.

Originally, he had decided to just meditate and take it easy, regardless of whether he was stagnant or not, but there was a completely unexpected variable. As soon as the grace disappeared, the demon lord became relaxed and went on a wild rampage all day long.

[Ahaha! Haha! Look at this, Seongjin Lee! Even though I've gone as far as I have since being away from you, it doesn't matter!]

The guy who was always going crazy in Seongjin's head and was acting wild.

[wow! Look at this, Seongjin Lee! I can control the field mouse!]

Soon, it possesses a rat and chases the carriage, making loud noises.

[ha ha ha! How are you, Seongjin Lee? This body is now flying in the sky! Hahaha!]

A crow was brought from somewhere and circled around, then landed on the roof of the carriage and started cackling without hesitation.

"Where does the crow keep croaking?" . Aren't crows said to be servants of the demon race? "It's ominous."

Masain, who was secretly sensitive to demon species, kept snooping outside the window with an anxious look on his face, making Seongjin feel uncomfortable as well.

Moreover, Director Bruno was the only person who could understand Seongjin's difficulties.

"Red, it's so noisy, please stop now... .."

[What? Who's red, you idiot! uh? Even after seeing this with your own eyes, wouldn't you know the greatness of this Demon King?]

Caw caw! Wow! Arrrrrrrrrr!

By occasionally pouring fuel on the burning devil, he actually made the situation worse.

Thanks to this, when the sun went down and he heard from Hermann about the camp, Seongjin had already decided that whatever would happen would happen.

It was an added bonus that Hermann felt even more guilty upon seeing the prince's face covered in dark circles.

[Hmm haha! Seongjin Lee! Look at this! I'm eating grass with a horse right now! Isn't that strange? It's just grass, but it's somehow delicious!]

Seongjin frowned for a moment, but got off the carriage without much nagging.

'I'll just look at it for now... ..'

Because I felt like I wanted to do something like that.

If you think about it, the devil, the devil of devils, survived for several months using a single barrier as a shield in Delcross, a place filled with divine grace like the air.

Is that all? Didn't I have to crouch down in front of the Holy Emperor from time to time?

[Lee Seong-jin! Come on, check this out! I can do tricks with this guy!]

Hee hee hee!

The driver was sweating trying to calm the horse that was suddenly jumping and shaking.

"woah! woah! Why is this guy like this all of a sudden? Wow!"

My thoughts changed. If it's like that again tomorrow, I'll run to the nearest church and have it exorcised!

Meanwhile, preparations for camping were progressing steadily.

As I approached the bonfire with Herman's guidance, I saw a cook from the Wolf Knights busy preparing dinner with Edith.

"Regina is a few hours away from here. "We'll be behind schedule, but even if we get to Regina early tomorrow, we'll have to stay there one more day."

As Seongjin and his group sat down, Orden came next to them and said.

"Regina?"

"Yes, there is a big logistics relay station there."

Regina was a city a day away from the northern gateway to Delcross.

It was originally a small suburban town, but it has grown rapidly over the past decade as the Merchants' Association began its activities in earnest. This is because all upper-tier logistics leading to the northern and eastern parts of the continent pass through there.

"Once we get to Regina, there won't be any major changes to our itinerary."

Hermann added from the side. It is said that many of these merchants are dispersed to various parts of the continent after passing through the logistics relay station, so from now on, there will be no congestion on the road to Sigismund Territory.

"Maybe that's a good thing. "Like other merchants, we naturally ended up spending a day in Regina."

"... .."

Following Orden's gaze as he spoke while gazing intently at somewhere, Seongjin also turned his head to the other side of the street.

There were many merchants around, like Seongjin and his group, who were stranded and preparing to camp.

Among them, the group lighting a bonfire right across from them is wearing the upper crest that Seongjin is familiar with. It was definitely in the data Dasha had been researching.

Sang Sang-ju, with his scary appearance and goatee, also looks familiar.

"Is it Milo Top?"

"That's right."

Seongjin clicked his tongue.

Such a simple ignorant guy. For some reason, I was rushing the schedule too much, but I guess I was planning to follow and monitor the Milo upper section as it ascends!

Meanwhile, Edith brought Seongjin some warm stew. The first thing she does is pick up her spoon, and she feels eyes glancing here and there on Seongjin. These are members of the Wolf Knights who followed Orden.

As a camper, it was unreasonable to expect a sumptuous feast, but it was actually poor quality for a meal served to a prince.

It seemed like he was curious to see how the prince, who was famous for being a bitch, would react.

'I don't know what you expect, but this is a person who has lived only on preserved foods for decades.'

Seongjin thought to himself, smiling leisurely.

Of course, the moment I took a bite, that leisure disappeared.

The prince's reaction must have been amusing, as the members of the Wolf Knights exchanged glances and giggled.

"... .."

Seongjin frowned slightly, but obediently swallowed the stew without saying anything. And he immediately asked Edith.

"Edith, did you cook anything?"

"No, sir. "I just chopped the vegetables and checked the seasoning."

Ah, somehow. I thought it was good enough to swallow even though it didn't taste good.

The moment Seongjin thinks so.

Phew! Phuoc! Wow!

Magnificent sounds of stew coming from all over the place were heard.

"do... "Is it poison?"

"It appears to be an attempt at poisoning, Archduke! "Please put down the bowl!"

"He's an assassin! "An assassin has sneaked in!"

... No, that wouldn't be it.

Seongjin tried to stop the situation as it seemed like it was going to get worse, but before he knew it, Masain, who had turned pale, snatched his bowl, threw it on the floor, and started shouting desperately.

"Priests! Priests! You have taken poison! "Hurry up and get treatment!"

"No, Sir Masaine. That's not it..."

"Ugh! This happened even though the cooking process was carefully monitored from the beginning! Of course, I should have seen the signs first! I heard earlier that a crow was strangely crowing ominously... ... !"

Seongjin grabbed his temple where he had a headache.

Meanwhile, Edith, who was tilting her head with a blank expression, inadvertently took a bite of stew and frowned.

"Yuck! "It tastes like bile!"

Is that what you're going to say now?

[Wahah! Seongjin Lee! Take a look here. Can I now temporarily possess people? I made him eat it! But why does this stew taste weirder than the grass that horses eat?]

Why are you needlessly tasting it again?

In the end, the sudden poison commotion calmed down only when the priest came.

"You are all right, Lord Masaine. "Don't worry, it's not poison."

A chubby man reaps divine power and smiles kindly. It was Priest Gustav, the exclusive healer of the Wolf Knights.

"I guess that's true, right? "There really isn't a single lie, right?"

"Yes, yes. It's okay. Rest assured. Just a little bit of stew... No, very...
"It just didn't taste good."

He was a very sociable person. What's so weird is that he even smiles like that at Lord Masain, who goes on a rampage like a real protector.

Anyway, the situation was resolved, and the bile-flavored stew was reborn as something edible thanks to the chef's hard work. Seongjin ordered it because he thought it would be a waste to discard it all.

Of course, I didn't forget to keep Edith at a distance during the recooking process.

The prince was the first to gorge on the tasteless stew, and the others reluctantly forced themselves to swallow it as well. Suddenly, there was a bit of respect in the Wolf Knights' gaze towards Seongjin.

'Prince Mores, aren't you amazing? 'You eat something like that so casually!'

'And you've managed to keep a maid like that alive!'

'He was more generous than I thought!'

I didn't want to be respected for something like that.

By the time Seongjin and his group finished their slightly late dinner, drinking parties were already taking place in the surrounding merchants who had finished their meals early.

The main force was mercenaries hired for security purposes, and it was unsightly to see them being drunk without leaving watch. Is that why you become an escort?

"We are still on a safe route and there are many merchants accompanying us. "Even the top owners turn a blind eye to this."

Priest Gustav, who noticed Seongjin's bewildered gaze, gave a tip.

"This leisurely journey will soon end once you leave Regina."

However, when alcohol starts to circulate in a crowded place, problems are bound to arise somewhere.

Sure enough, soon harsh swear words and shouting began to echo here and there. Occasionally, fist fights broke out randomly.

It is an unfamiliar sight that could not be seen at all when passing through the northern gateway. The sharp figures look as if they have thrown off a veil and revealed their bare faces.

"They say that when you leave the ecliptic, humans and animals all become rough, and that was true."

Masain said, a little embarrassed, wondering if Seongjin was the only one who felt something was wrong. Then Director Bruno shook his head.

"Perhaps it is the other way around, Sir Martha. "When people with rough temperament enter the imperial capital, they become calm."

"Becoming quiet?"

"yes. This is a story I once heard from a mercenary I knew. A troublesome subordinate who had a bad habit of drinking and causing accidents on odd days, strangely said that as soon as he entered the imperial capital, the number of times he behaved like a lie would decrease. He wondered if it was the influence of grace."

"Grace?"

"yes. People who are impatient become noticeably calmer. "I heard that the reason why the imperial capital is so good even though people from all over the continent gather there is probably due to the influence of such grace."

"That's fascinating."

Meanwhile, there was a woman who caught Seongjin's eye.

She was a waitress hired by the Milo merchant across the street, and she was busy going to and from the place where the mercenaries were gathered, carrying a tray full of drinks. She was a dark-skinned woman from the Barça region.

And the slender physique and quiet gait that were very familiar to Seongjin.

'... 'Dasha?'

Seongjin blinked.

Why is Dasha there? I expected him to be secretly following Seongjin using Auror cloaking, right?

Dasha, who must have noticed his gaze, looked back at Seongjin, narrowed her eyes, and soon disappeared into the upper carriage.

At the same time, Director Bruno's face becomes subtle. He, too, must have recognized the familiar presence he felt at Jinju Palace.

Seongjin realized Dasha's intention and stuck out his tongue.

Wow, what a talented human being!

Rather than secretly following them, are they being hired by the top and following them comfortably and proudly?

Then, food, clothing, and shelter will be taken care of, and there will be no need to overuse Auror concealment to hide one's identity.

At the same time, they are simultaneously conducting an undercover investigation into the Milo Merchant Marine! Is Dasha truly a genius?

[When you saw the Archduke earlier, didn't you criticize him for being simply ignorant?]

After completing his deviation, the demon king returned to Seongjin's mind and asked in a panic.

Well, Orden is Orden.

172*

172. Logistics Relay Station (3)

"I put you to bed in the carriage, sir."

After a somewhat hectic dinner.

As we were drinking tea after the meal provided by Director Bruno, Edith came up to Seongjin and spoke to him.

The imperial palace carriages for long-term travel that Seongjin and his party brought were structured so that the luggage boxes on the back could be fitted into the seats and used as beds.

Of course, lifting and carrying heavy boxes was quite a hassle, but for Edith, an Auror user, it was not that difficult.

The Wolf Knights, who were looking at her with wide eyes as she carried a chest heavy enough for several men to carry, were soon convinced.

'Ah, you were a guard, not a maid! so... ... !'

'I was hiding my true identity for the prince's secret security!'

It was from then on that members of the Wolf Knights began to politely call Edith 'Sir Edith.'

Of course, Edith, who was dull, just tilted her head, so the misunderstanding was not resolved for a long time.

[Hehehe. I'm drunk.]

While he was sipping tea and basking in the warm campfire, the devil came back into Seongjin's head, saying strange things again. The guy was currently walking around excitedly among the drunk people.

By the way, this guy is now possessed and drinking alcohol?

[I'm just borrowing some sense for a moment.]

The demon lord, who was in a good mood, explained as if humming.

[Even though you have left the ecliptic, it is impossible to detect souls like before because of your father's barrier. However, it is possible to possess a creature with low mental defense and temporarily affect its movements or borrow its senses.]

And now there are a lot of drunk people around. Most people have extremely weak mental defenses.

'Do you like drinking that much?'

Seongjin was dumbfounded by the happy emotions clearly conveyed in his head.

however.

[Why wouldn't it be good? It makes sense and eating grass is also delicious.]

The devil bastard who answered quickly added, looking a little sad.

[I have been living only as a soul for the past several months. I couldn't eat or feel anything. Can you even imagine what that feels like?]

'hmm... ... '

Even at first glance, Seongjin thought that starving while still alive would be extremely stressful. There is a body that can feel hunger, apart from other things.

You can see how sensitive Seo Yi-seo is becoming after losing her meal time to Cadmus recently.

Then, a thought suddenly occurred to Seongjin.

'Hey, then can you try that for me too?'

[what?]

'Borrowing that sense. Then you can feel what I taste.'

Wouldn't that be easier than running around frantically for no reason?

It was such a simple thought, but the Demon King was silent for a moment as if surprised, and then cautiously asked back.

[...] You allow that?]

Do you need permission at all?

[of course. Originally, it was only possible briefly when the target's mental defense was extremely low. If you want to do this to a sane person, you have to ask for their consent through a contract or some other method. And I don't know why, but Lee Seong-jin. Your soul is somehow strangely difficult to interfere with. Even though we are close enough to exchange thoughts with each other.]

Now that I think about it, when I first came to this world, I remember the demon king complaining that soul detection didn't work on Seongjin.

[This can be a bit of a sensitive issue. Allowing your senses ultimately means allowing them to occupy part of your body in some way. If you allow something like that to anyone without precise contract terms, you could have your body taken over by the devil in an instant.]

'well...'

Seongjin thought nothing of it.

If you think about it, aren't you already residing in my head without permission? No matter how much I think about it, it doesn't seem particularly dangerous.

'Just give it a try. I'm not sure how to give permission, but I'll try my best not to cause any objection.'

[Yes, I don't know if it's possible, but I'll give it a try.]

And I felt like something was stirring in my head. Rather than feeling like I was touching anything in particular, I just had the clear feeling that he was engrossed in something and groaning.

I had been doing this for a while, when suddenly the objects in front of my eyes began to glow and sway in strange colors.

'Hey, are you doing it right?'

[Uh, sorry. I guess I touched the wrong perspective.]

A red light flashed in Seongjin's pupils for a moment, but it was such a fleeting moment that no one noticed it.

Then, your vision soon returns to normal.

[...] It's more difficult than I thought.]

Seongjin waited patiently.

Around this time, Seongjin emptied all the tea cups and Manager Bruno poured new, warm tea.

[pew. I think it has been resolved.]

The Demon Lord just sighed and said that.

Hmm, I'm not sure what's changed?

Seongjin tilted his head and took a sip of the warm, steaming tea.

That moment.

[Wow!]

An exclamation rings out in my head.

[What on earth is it? Is it really delicious? Can grass-soaked water taste like this?]

How do you feel? Awesome, right?

Seongjin smiled in remorse and took another sip of tea. There was again intense exclamation.

[Wow! The scent is the best! That idiot was the one who created something this amazing!?]

The demon king was instantly fascinated by Melbourne tea. Because he kept begging for more, Seongjin eventually had to ask Manager Bruno for a new car one more time.

Thanks to this, it was Seongjin who was actually full.

'... Okay, I'll take care of it today.'

Seongjin decided to be generous for just one day.

For him, it will be the first delicious drink he has had in months.

As the night grew deeper, the noise around me began to subside little by little. The Wolf Knights also left watch and entered the tent one by one, and the only ones who were awake were a few who were still drinking.

As if there was a group of bards nearby, a composed song occasionally played along with the sound of string instruments.

A beautiful woman's little wind quietly passes by the stars.

Make that wish come true, silver moon, brilliant city of love.

I think the lyrics are a bit lame.

Anyway, Seongjin sat in front of the bonfire and tried sharing various sensations with the demon king.

With a little practice, intense sensations like smell and taste became easier to share. For a moment, hearing and sight could also be transmitted.

The only thing is that in the case of such sensations, there is no need to practice because they can be fully grasped even with the Demon King's soul.

What was surprising was the sense of touch and pain, but no matter how hard I tried, I couldn't get it across to him properly. The two tried several more times before giving up completely.

'It's the same as sight and hearing. Maybe there's no need to share...
... !'

There was another achievement. After trying to convey the sensation for a while, at some point, part of the memory also began to be conveyed!

Even if it was impossible for the devil to search on his own, at least the memories that Seongjin recalled and wanted to be conveyed were possible to be conveyed as vividly as when detecting souls.

Thanks to this, Seongjin was able to convey the memories of the [gap] that occurred at Tansinyeon to the demon king more accurately.

[Wow, this is dizzying.]

The demon king caught a glimpse of part of the scene in his memory and stuck out his tongue.

[You were in a place like this, so even if I called you that, you couldn't hear me! Because time and space were so mixed, it was no wonder that you felt that your body existed in two places at the same time.]

The sense of time and space was definitely distorted. Just thinking about that space now makes me feel motion sick again.

[This probably seems like a device to minimize disruption of cause and effect. While high-ranking demon kings interfered in the Delcross dimension, they forcibly twisted and twisted the space to avoid directly moving cause and effect.]

According to the Demon King's explanation, the amount of causality imposed on each action of a high-ranking Demon King is beyond imagination.

Unless you descend to this earth directly through consciousness, you cannot randomly touch another dimension without any cause or effect.

So, by spreading the attributes that symbolize themselves, such as [starvation], [plague], [war], and [death], they first create a causal basis for dimensional invasion.

'Then why does the father have restrictions on cause and effect? 'He's not a devil from another dimension.'

Naturally, that question arose. I think at that time, people said something like it took time because there wasn't enough cause and effect.

Then the devil bastard also hesitated as if he were puzzled.

[well. I don't understand that either? I don't know if they were forced into another dimension, but I don't know why there are such restrictions in their own dimension to simply defend against invasion? Besides, your father is definitely a monster, but he is still in the human category. Rather, it should be the most free from causality, right?]

The Demon King looked like he was thinking for a moment, but there was no way he could suddenly think of an answer that didn't exist.

He soon changed the topic.

[More than that, the problem is the people who attacked. In order to minimize causal intervention, incarnations have been created with flame images, but they are clearly the same demon lords who were targeting the Delcross dimension before.]

When Seongjin said that he looked somewhat familiar, the Demon King responded positively.

It is certain that they are the ones encountered at the border of the previous dimension. It was simply because he was wearing a flame that he didn't feel the terrible pressure he felt inside his body.

[Plus, I think I can guess what their nicknames are... ..]

'really?'

[Yes, they were probably 'famine' and 'plague.']

[Hunger], which devours everything in sight, is said to often appear in the form of a black dog. Most of the watchdogs and demon species that guard his hell are similar in appearance to dogs.

And in the case of [Plague], it often takes on an appearance reminiscent of a plant.

[There's another strange thing. How on earth do they know Mores?]

Okay, now that I think about it.

The situation was so tense at the time that I didn't think to look into it, but didn't they say this?

-But why does that face look so familiar?

-Isn't it obvious? Can you prepare for him yourself and still not recognize him?

What do you mean they have in store for Mores?

The thoughts continued no further. Suddenly, a sad cry was heard from over there.

"Hehehehe!"

The bard, who had been singing mournfully earlier, threw the lyre he was tearing with his hands to the floor and fell to the ground. He was a young man with long braided hair.

Teeing!

One of the lyre's strings breaks and makes a sharp noise.

At the sudden commotion, the mercenaries who had been happily intoxicated and dozing off stood up with frowns.

"what? what's the matter?"

"Why is that guy being treated so poorly all of a sudden?"

"Ughhhhh!"

The young man's cries also become louder to match the harsh voices of the mercenaries.

Thanks to this, the mercenaries who had fallen asleep woke up one by one and began glaring at the young man.

When the surrounding air suddenly became unsightly, another bard who sensed the atmosphere quickly blocked the young man's path.

"This guy is very drunk, so everyone please understand. Originally, in Carthage, he was quite famous for his improvisational poetry. I was invited to Bertrand Street to celebrate my birthday this year, but I was wondering if I was in bad shape or if I was completely exhausted. "I was booed for three days and didn't earn a single penny."

Then, another fellow poet sitting next to me let out a sneer.

"What are all the coins? "You should be lucky that no stones flew at you!"

"hey!"

"why? Did I say something wrong? "I always believed in my talent and insisted on only making impromptu poems, but then I ended up singing the most old-fashioned song on Bertrand Street!"

At that time, the young man who was lying on the floor got up and cried.

"Hehehe! What a brilliant city of love, freezing to death! Delcross is a dead city! "It's a cursed place!"

The atmosphere around me suddenly calmed down due to the young man's sudden profanity.

What did the author call the saints of the millennium?

"That city took away my inspiration and all my talent! "There, everything just stands still, like a still life painting!"

"Hey, calm down. "You're so drunk!"

A colleague who realized the seriousness of the situation grabbed him, but the young man continued to scream.

"You all, don't act like you don't know! Traveling artists from all over are invited at generous prices, but after a few performances, they eventually return to their home countries. "Don't you all know why?"

And the young man jumped up from his seat and shouted.

"That's because I know very well that if I stay there for too long, my artistic soul will die in an instant! "Because I know that the spark of the soul that cannot become a flame will just burn itself out and then fade away!"

"You better do your job!"

"Passion! love! craving! I couldn't feel any strong desire there! "That's why my songs left me!"

The moment he heard those words, what Sigurd Sigurdson had said not long ago flashed through Seongjin's mind.

-In this stopped world, you were the only friend who could understand me.

Meanwhile, the drunken young man continued to cry.

"Not even the most beautiful woman on the street could bring the song back from me! "The ecliptic has become the tomb of my soul!"

Then, one by one, the mercenaries began pouring out sharp criticism at him.

"Why are you blaming the emperor for my own shortcomings?"

"that's right!"

"Shame on you! If the grace of the Lord has taken away your song, it certainly does not mean that your art has been debauched and unclean!"

Then the young man also responded to the criticism by using evil words.

"My art is unclean? Then I will gladly sell my soul back to the devil! "What meaning does my life have now that I have lost those brilliant songs!"

For a moment, the air around became cold, as if ice water had been sprinkled on it.

Everyone closes their mouths at the same time and glares at the young man. In that cool atmosphere, the face of the young man who had finally sobered up a little became increasingly pale.

Behind him, someone broke the silence and shouted sharply at him.

"He's a devil worshiper!"

173*

173. Logistics Relay Station (4)

Once the water broke, criticism started pouring in like a torrent of criticism.

"They are devil worshipers!"

"You dirty charlatan!"

"You definitely said you would sell your soul to the devil again! "You heard me clearly!"

"Oh, no. I never did that! I'm just angry that you are criticizing my art as something unclean obtained from the devil... .."

The young man waved his hand in an attempt to make amends, but now even his fellow bard, who had been supporting him, took a step back and looked at him with eyes filled with astonishment.

"Shut up, you devil worshiper!"

"Who else are you going to corrupt with this corrupted song?"

"You damn devil worshipers! "Those people who are destroying the world must be killed right now!"

Seongjin, who had only been watching indifferently until then, was taken aback when people reacted more violently than expected.

Wait a minute, if a drunk guy gets a little upset, he might say something wrong. What are you guys so angry about?

But the situation became increasingly serious.

Drunken mercenaries gather around the young man. Some of the dogs are spreading their energy by rolling up their sleeves, and if left like this, they have the tendency to beat people to death at any moment.

Seongjin, who realized something was unusual, stood up. Then Masain, who was guarding the campfire with him, came close to Seongjin's side and said.

"It's the personal squabbles of drunkards. If we have to, I will intervene with the knights, so don't worry, sir. "Would you really harm someone over such a trivial matter?"

However, Father Gustav, who heard the commotion and came out, shook his head.

"It is entirely possible, sir."

"Isn't it just alcohol?"

"This kind of scene may be unfamiliar to you. People who live in the ecliptic don't know much. "Because we are surrounded by His Majesty's grace and do not have to worry about demon species."

"So, it's different outside the ecliptic?"

"Why not? Although the Church and the Inquisitors are making great efforts, devil worshipers are still active in many parts of the continent. People are killed as sacrifices to summon demons, and the summoned demons kill people again. Especially among those who become mercenaries, there is probably no one who has not lost a family member or colleague to such devils or devil worshipers."

"that... .."

"For them, devil worshipers are already a real threat. So how can we just leave this alone?"

Gustav's eyes were extremely cold as he said that. I thought he was a person with a good personality, but he was still a priest. You have no mercy when it comes to matters related to the devil.

Soon ugh! With screams, the mass lynching of mercenaries began.

"Is it really necessary for you, the prince of the Holy Empire, to protect someone who committed blasphemy? Maybe they too will stop at a reasonable line. The mercenaries will relieve their anxiety, and that foolish young man will also learn a valuable lesson."

As if to dissuade Seongjin from taking a step toward them, Gustav quickly added, following behind. Seongjin let out a small sigh.

"Father Gustav. "Do you think that young man is a devil worshiper?"

"At least I don't feel any [magic energy]. "He just looks like a young, immature young man suffering from art disease."

"Then of course we have to save it, right? "In terms of real threats, what's so different about that young man being a devil worshiper and those who accuse him of being a devil worshiper?"

"Well, sir... .."

"If, by any chance, the author cannot overcome his feelings of injustice and really commits himself to the devil, who will actually be the one who gave him up to the devil?"

Then, Priest Gustav's eyes widen. As if he had been greatly shocked, the pupils looking at Seongjin began to tremble slightly.

'... 'What did I say?'

Seongjin looked at his blood-stained face in confusion for a moment, then turned around.

Accompanied by Lord Masain and other resident knights, Seongjin headed towards the place where the mercenaries were gathered.

The lynching site was already surrounded by layers of angry mercenaries, but as Seongjin and his group approached, the mercenaries were startled and cleared the way for themselves.

Seeing Masain move on his own before shouting anything means that he was secretly keeping a close eye on their actions, even though he was pretending not to be.

Why not? Seongjin and his group stood out from the beginning.

At the head was the wolf insignia, the symbol of the Wolf Knights, followed by a carriage with the imperial emblem emblazoned on it.

The choice of Sang-San, who was unintentionally accompanying the prince and his party instead of accompanying them, was to stay as far away from them as possible and not make eye contact with them.

Pow! puck!

The mercenaries, who were kicking with gritted teeth, also hurriedly lowered their gaze and bit themselves as the prince approached.

"Ugh... ..!"

The young man, who had been screaming while covering his face with his arms, closed his mouth and stuck his head out over his arms when the sudden violence subsided.

I was hit so hard in such a short period of time that my eyelids were already swollen.

"Lord Valerie."

At Seongjin's name, the red-haired inquisitor quickly ran over and began pouring divine power on the tattered bard.

Although there was no significant visible change, the pain seemed to be relieving, and the young man's frowning face began to straighten little by little.

The mercenaries, who only then realized that the prince had come to help that young man, gathered in front of Seongjin and his group and began to shout one by one.

"... "The author is a devil worshiper, prince!"

"Please punish me! "Dirty satanists killed my family!"

"Devil worshipers must pay for their sins!"

Those shiny eyes that don't care about right or wrong, but just burn with blind anger.

Seongjin suddenly remembered what Dominic Scarzapino, whom he had met not long ago, had said.

-After living abroad for a long time due to work, I sometimes feel very unfamiliar with the sights of Delcross.

I used to think that those who shed tears because they were in awe of the Holy Emperor were like pseudo-fanatics.

Well, I guess people outside the ecliptic aren't that different? In fact, aren't humans inherently a little bit crazy somewhere?

Seongjin looked around slowly for a moment and gave an order to the people.

"As you said, this person is guilty of insulting the main lord and the imperial family. "I will hand over the interest to the relevant institution and process it according to the procedures, so stop now and everyone go back to their seats!"

However, despite the prince's direct orders, the highly enraged mercenaries did not easily retreat.

"Connecting with the devil is a serious crime punishable by summary execution!"

"Prince! Please execute him right here and now! Show me the severity of the Holy Law!"

"Please set an example for the dirty devil worshipers!"

The strange fever that swept through the crowd did not disappear immediately.

In the end, Seongjin decided to take the last resort and turned to Masain.

"Sir Martha."

"Yes, sir."

"Who has the authority to judge and punish heresy?"

Then Masain, who sensed what Seongjin was trying to say, bowed his head even more politely and said.

"Only to an inquisitor with formal permission from the Orthodox Church."

"So these ruthless people are not even Inquisitors, and yet they are trying to arbitrarily exercise their right of prosecution and investigation?"

"Yes that's right."

The bewildered mercenaries began to think after hearing Seongjin's next words and only then realizing the current situation.

"Then these people just dared to call themselves Inquisitors even though they are not qualified to do so."

"... ..!"

"By making a mockery of the Holy Law and bringing down the authority of the Orthodox Church, isn't this something a devil worshiper would do? It is clear that this is a serious crime that must be dealt with severely according to the Holy Law. so... .."

Breathe!

The thoughtful mercenaries quickly step back, avoiding Seongjin's eyes.

After glaring at the mercenaries, Seongjin approached the young man lying on the floor.

"Hey, can you move?"

"Ugh! Ugh! thanks! Thank you... ..!"

As the tense atmosphere eased, the young man hugged the broken lyre and began to sob.

Of course, he was scared and retreated, but the mercenaries' eyes as they glanced at the young man still showed an eerie, lifelike look.

If I leave it like this, don't you think I'll get stabbed without anyone knowing?

"Then get up and follow me."

"Ugh... . yes?"

Seongjin said solemnly, looking down at the young man who was a mess of tears.

"You may call it a lie, but what you have committed is blasphemy and desecration of the imperial family. "It seems like appropriate punishment and rehabilitation are needed."

Then, with a quick glance, Inquisitor Valery quickly stood up the young man.

"now. You go to our tent with us! Immediately kneel down in front of the scriptures and pray, and sincerely repent your sins before the Lord. Do you understand?"

When the knight who showed off his divine power comes out like this, the mercenaries reluctantly turn their attention to the young man.

In this way, Seongjin and his party were able to overcome the hostile atmosphere of mercenaries and finally rescue the young man.

"We will take turns watching you all night, so don't worry about the interest."

Seongjin, who left the young man in the hands of the resident knights and the monster task force, returned to the carriage late at night and closed his eyes. It was a tiring day, but he had many thoughts and couldn't sleep easily.

People who are quickly swept away by fear that has no real substance. Suspicion and hostility that cannot even be identified. And anger.

It wasn't a very unfamiliar scene. Perhaps this is closer to the world that Seongjin originally knew.

'If you think about it, the people in the imperial palace were a bit strange...'

People who just looked on calmly, no matter what suspicious things they did. That unconditional trust and support.

Seongjin thought as he buried his head in the soft bedding.

To be honest, I never thought I would miss the air of the ecliptic so much in just one day.

* * *

The next morning.

As Seongjin sat in front of the bonfire for a meal, he met again a young man who seemed to be in better shape than he expected.

After regaining some strength after a day, he introduced himself as Laurent. There was still a black bruise on her eyelid, but her face looked relatively clean after the swelling had subsided.

With his long braid wrapped around his neck, Laurent bows his head deeply towards Seongjin.

"Yesterday I wasn't in a hurry so I couldn't say thank you properly.
"Thank you so much for saving my life, sir."

Although he was sometimes intimidated by the sharp gazes the mercenaries gave him, the young man still had a good sense of humor as an entertainer.

Before we knew it, Laurent was naturally telling his story with the group sitting around the bonfire as his audience.

"My recent motif is the biography of the wandering knight Fernand."

Fernand Braque.

He was a new and emerging playboy, following Seonghwang, who was the most famous libertine on the continent.

A young genius knight from Brittany, he is currently creating an epic story of love while traveling across the continent under the pretext of training.

Laurent is said to have been so inspired by his story that he decided to dedicate his life to writing beautiful love stories between men and women.

The first song I sang in front of the public was an impromptu poem called 'The Genius Prosecutor and the Count's Lady.'

And the biggest hit is a love song titled 'The Wandering Swordsman and the Sweet Brown-Eyed Lady.'

"So what is the most recent song you wrote?"

"yes. 'The Genius Wandering Swordsman and the Moon Maid.'"

hmm. Seongjin, who had been wondering if the Emperor's grace had really influenced Lee Ja's artistry, immediately changed his mind.

Hasn't this guy's artistic soul already died early? Why is the repertoire so clichéd?

"I had some expectations that Fernand Braque might not appear on the ecliptic during this birthday party. If that were the case, the greatest masterpiece of his life would have been born. The wandering swordsman meets a beautiful rose in the imperial palace... .."

For a moment, there was a flash of gaze and I raised my head to see Orden looking meaningfully at Seongjin.

What those eyes meant was clear.

'Should I just kill him?'

'okay. Is that so? Do you want to bury it somewhere?'

I didn't know we would agree with that guy.

Laurent, unaware that his life came and went in a split-second of gaze, spoke naturally.

"I came to the imperial capital this time because I was invited, but more than anything, it was to get inspiration."

"Inspiration?"

"yes. Isn't His Majesty the protagonist of a living story? "In my hometown, Carthage, songs about him have been steadily gaining popularity for about 10 years."

Songs like 'The Wandering Prince and the Blue-Eyed Maid' or 'The Genius Swordsman and the Blonde Princess'.

The expressions on the faces of Seongjin and his party who were listening to his story became mysterious. Because I could guess who the characters in each song were.

When I thought about it that way, I saw that this man was prosperous! Life really is a story itself!

"This is the ultimate image I pursue. "A drink to soothe a lonely prosecutor, and a beauty."

Laurent said this and held up the lyre.

Tidding!

A powerful yet short chord is struck as if the strings will break.

"A glance! That momentary thrill! A love that burns fiercely!"

Tiriring.

A soft melody follows, as if caressing a lover.

"And the lonely and fleeting wait of the girl left behind."

Next, Laurent raises his voice.

Oh, my beloved. That person is never coming back.

The golden crocuses bloom and fall, and the owl mourns all night long.

[...] It sucks.]

The demon lord recited a short comment.

As he said, the longer the song continued, the more the group's faces rotted in real time.

It's a truly sorry story for a young man with a burning artistic spirit, but to be honest, it was a truly old-fashioned sentiment.

Laurent, noticing the negative gaze from those around him, stops playing and slumps his shoulders.

"Hmm."

Director Bruno stroked his mustache as if he was embarrassed.

"If it is your art, won't the inspiration soon be restored?"

"Is that so?"

"okay. First, let's go to Regina together. If you stay there for a while, your inspiration will probably come back just fine. "Regina is a city where all kinds of debauchery gather!"

Then Laurent was greatly shocked and staggered.

"In the end, my art is just debauchery..."

"No, that's not it..."

The leader belatedly tried to comfort Laurent, but he quietly crumpled while hugging Lyra.

A vivid sense of frustration. It was like avant-garde art that literally embodied the artistic soul of a young man who had been cruelly trampled upon with no room for recovery.

Seongjin quietly glared at Director Bruno.

Anyway, you idiot! If you can't fix it, at least you shouldn't pour oil on it!

174. Logistics Relay Station (5)

Surprisingly, it was Sir Claudia who supported the frustrated Laurent.

"Cheer up, Laurent. Why do you say it's debauched? "If love is the topic, I think you've taken the right direction."

Laurent raised his head, pricking his ears.

"... "Do you think so?"

"Sure. "Isn't the image that Laurent pursues the ultimate form in which the love between a man and a woman can remain in the most beautiful way?"

Then, there was a moment of silence among the group surrounding the bonfire.

"... A brief burning love? And remembering each other for the rest of your life after breaking up?"

"That's why it can remain so beautiful. Isn't it true that the longer a relationship lasts, the more we see each other's petty and messy side? Even if it were a song, who would want to hear it?"

... is it?

Thinking that it was surprisingly persuasive, each person began to recall their own experiences.

"Now, Sir Valerie. "Would you like to say something from one of the most famous playboys in the Knights of St. Marsyas?"

Then the Inquisitor smiled weakly.

"Playboy, that's not true. "I have always been faithful to my lover."

"But that lover changes quickly, right?"

"It was a difference in personality."

Lord Valerie answered like that and rested her chin with a slightly serious expression.

"hmm. Now that I think about it, it's definitely true. The excitement is short-lived. Sometimes, without knowing why she was angry, they became increasingly estranged, and in most cases, they broke up, feeling very disappointed in each other. "The process wasn't something that could be called very beautiful."

Sir Claudia nodded, turned to the side and asked.

"Lord Maria. You were once famous as the long-term couple of the 1st Knights, right? "How did you feel about the ending?"

Sir Maria, who was suddenly called, was taken aback for a moment before answering.

"uh? Yes. We dated for such a long time, but the reason we broke up wasn't a big deal. "As soon as I became a senior knight, he suddenly wanted to break up with me."

Then, for a moment, his expression distorts as if he remembers how he felt at that time.

"... "That ugly bastard!"

"Now, do you understand, Laurent?"

Sir Claudia spoke assertively to the wide-eyed young man.

"Real love is far from beautiful. So if you're making something about love between a man and a woman, there are only two ways to go. "It's either a fantasy or a dead end!"

"... fantasy... "Madjang?"

Sir Claudia threw a dagger at Laurent, who was staring at her blankly with his mouth wide open, with a big smile.

"Laurent. "To be honest, you've never really been in a relationship, right?"

"... ..!"

"see. When someone like this writes a song, it becomes a beautiful love song. "The illusion of love remains intact, right?"

Laurent now looked like he was almost lost in shock.

Sir Claudia, stop! That guy looks like he's going to cry!

* * *

Seongjin and his party, who set out in the morning, arrived in Regina before the sun had even risen in the sky.

"... big!"

After passing the gate after a simple procedure, Seongjin honestly expressed his admiration at the magnificent sight that unfolded before his eyes.

Competitively built tall buildings and colorfully painted signs of various sizes.

You can see a huge radial road extending around the logistics relay station, and wagons moving continuously between them.

It felt like a bustling metropolis, different from the well-organized imperial capital.

"It is no coincidence that a large logistics relay station was established in Regina. "It's a flat land that makes it easy to build a road, and best of all, it's next to a big river to the north."

While listening to Lord Masain's explanation, Seongjin looked out the window.

"You mean the Breeze River?"

"Yes, sir. Most of the goods destined for eastern Ortona and Cyprus travel along the Breeze River through a logistics relay station. They say that because the flow rate is fast, freight charges are greatly reduced."

"Right. Next time you go there, it might be a good idea to take a boat... .."

Seongjin, who had said that without thinking, trailed off due to a momentary sense of discomfort.

next time?

"... Lowering?"

"Uh, it's nothing."

Seongjin scratched his cheek shyly while responding to Masain who called out to him in a puzzled manner.

It's so natural to think about the next trip. These days, I feel like I'm so used to living as a mores. Sometimes I even forget that I'm possessed.

'I knew how long I would stay in Mores' body... ..'

[Um, Lee Seong-jin?]

'huh?'

[...] no. nothing.]

Why is this guy doing this again?

Meanwhile, the carriage slowly ran toward the accommodation.

Although it is small, it is a journey that takes the prince of the empire. Through Herman's arrangement, a driver drove to Regina a day early and reserved a luxurious lodging.

And when they arrived at the lodgings, the bard Laurent approached

Seongjin's carriage, prostrated himself and said.

"Thank you again, sir. "You saved my life yesterday."

"Are we going now?"

"yes. Thanks to that, I arrived safely at my destination, Regina. "I will never forget this grace for the rest of my life."

Seongjin quietly looked around without answering.

It is said that the accommodation is famous for its good facilities, and in addition to Seongjin and his group, the large Sangeang Duot that accompanied him yesterday can be seen coming through the entrance. And even a considerable number of mercenaries who were glaring at Laurent with a fierce gaze.

Is this guy going to be okay like this?

Meanwhile, Laurent, who could not understand the atmosphere, was talking brightly.

"There are also big issues that need to be considered in the future. "I realized that the ideal picture I was aiming for might not actually be perfect."

"So you don't make love songs anymore?"

"I'm going to take my time and think about it slowly. Should I refine my ideals more perfectly, or should I change my repertoire altogether? Perhaps, as other articles have said, my inspiration could be completely revived if I stayed in this city? "This is a place full of prodigal love."

Laurent then smiled brightly with purple bruises on his eyelids.

"Do you know anything? "Maybe one day I will create an amazing love story with Ha Hae as the main character."

"... .."

Seongjin quietly looked down at Laurent for a moment.

Why? What makes you think this guy will never make something like that in the future?

"Are you okay? "I think most of the mercenaries who tried to harm you yesterday will stay in Regina for a day with the merchant."

Then Laurent's face stiffened with the corners of his mouth raised.

Although he was drunk, it was clear that the experience of being mass lynched was a strong trauma to him.

Seongjin added after studying the expression for a moment.

"How about going north at this point? We are now on our way to Sigismund. "If you want, I can take you there fairly safely."

"Sigismund?"

It was clear that it was an overflowing favor, but Laurent honestly wasn't that reluctant.

It is a place covered with snow all year round. It is a harshly cold land where even love that was about to bloom will freeze.

"okay. Since Sigismund is isolated, the people will greatly welcome the arrival of the bard."

"But will the inspiration for love arise there?"

"well. I don't know much about love, but when I see the Wolf Knights in action in the Demonic World, I might at least think of something like a martial arts poem. Do you know anything? "Will you later make a name for yourself with famous works such as [Orlando's Military Poetry]?"

Laurent blinked in confusion after hearing the unexpected words.

"Military poetry?"

"okay. Or maybe learn a little more about the 'bad guy' from Sir Claudia. "I think it would be quite fun to add makjang to love, right?"

Although he was just saying this to persuade Laurent, Seongjin was sincere to some extent.

Whatever it is, wouldn't it at least be better than today's old-fashioned love story?

"I'm the worst at military training... . hmm..."

Laurent, who was pondering, turned his head and caught the sight of Sir Claudia chatting with Sir Sharon from afar. Before he knew it, his mouth was curved.

"yes. That might be okay. "I'm not sure about the makjang yet, but I just came up with some pretty good inspiration for the Freckled Lady."

Hwiik.

For a moment, I felt a subtle force flowing around Seongjin's arm.

It was only a moment, but Seongjin remembered that familiar feeling.

It was the sense that [Cause] was moving.

* * *

"I plan to stay in Regina today without any plans."

After roughly unpacking our belongings at the accommodation, Herman spoke to Seongjin and his group.

Considering the distance to the next destination, the explanation was that even if we rushed, there was a high possibility that we would end up camping in an awkward location again anyway.

Of course, the real purpose is to track down the Milo Merchant Marine.

It is said that merchants usually stay in Regina for a day and handle various complex issues such as checking order quantities and customs at the logistics relay station at once.

"We are planning to stop by the logistics relay station first. "I'm just going to keep an eye on Giacomo, the owner of the Milo Merchant Marine."

As Orden added with a serious expression, Seongjin clicked his tongue.

Such a simple ignorant guy. If drivers who are not merchants follow you all the way to the logistics relay station, the other side will not be wary of this side. uh?

Seongjin was about to say that, but a sudden thought occurred to him and he changed his mind.

for a moment. If they openly draw attention, wouldn't me and Dasha be able to move around more comfortably?

"okay. "Then I'll hear a detailed report on the results tomorrow."

You'll come back empty-handed anyway.

After sending Orden and his party away, Seongjin locked himself in his room. First of all, if you want to make contact with Dasha, you'll have to wait for night to come, right?

Of course, I planned to quietly meditate at my dorm during the remaining time. But everyone in the group was shocked and tried to stop him.

"Are you serious, my lord? "Regina is a city with so much to see!"

"How can you possibly come to such a famous city and practice in a corner of your room?"

"Lowering! There is a very famous restaurant in Regina! "You really have to go there?"

hmm. Obviously, if you, the target of the escort, are stuck in the lodgings, the knights will also be tied up here, right?

Above all, the demon king who tasted breakfast with Seongjin was so excited that he sang loudly.

[I want to eat something delicious! Something delicious! I really, really want to go to that restaurant!]

'... ... '

good. Just endure it until today.

If it's still like this tomorrow, I'll really exorcise you!

So Seongjin went out into the streets with his companions. Except for two people with channeling abilities who seem to get crazy in places with a lot of people.

Since the accommodation was located in the center of the downtown area, the group decided to walk to see the sights. Although it is said to be a similar downtown area, the atmosphere is quite different from the streets of Bertrand and rue d'Este in the Imperial Capital.

The sight of a variety of unique shops, including many restaurants, made me feel like I was traveling abroad.

In particular, Kalmen, who was leaving the ecliptic for the first time, was busy turning his head with wide eyes. It's almost embarrassing to take him around.

'Now that I think about it, you said you were going to buy a souvenir for your father... ... '

Seongjin thought as he looked at a small antique store. I have a lot of time, so should I buy something for my sister, Logan, and the kids?

[Did you know that it is only a day's journey from here to the ecliptic? What kind of souvenirs are you buying in a place like this?]

'Then just buy it somewhere else. what's the problem?'

The more souvenirs, the better, right?

While I was having a trivial conversation with the demon lord in my head, Sir Masaine suddenly pointed somewhere and spoke.

"Lowering. "That is the logistics relay station building."

"... ... !"

Logistics relay station.

It was a huge rectangular structure that would be better described as a structure rather than a building.

Although the number of floors was quite high, the building was spread out so widely that it was hard to see.

The first floor was filled with tall pillars instead of walls, and countless carriages were passing between them.

A structure based on extreme practicality, with all roads leading straight into the building. And from there, a wide radial road extends throughout the city.

Indeed, it could be said to be a distribution center where all logistics heading to the north and east gathered.

[Lee Seong-jin.]

While I was dazed and overwhelmed by the scale beyond my imagination, the devil suddenly whispered to Seongjin in a tense voice.

[be careful. It's faint, but I can feel the demon energy inside me?]

'... 'What?'

I quickly turned around, but the Inquisitor, Sir Valery, seemed completely oblivious. He was busy looking at the cityscape, smiling.

[It's probably because it's too faint for humans to feel. It's probably hard to notice unless you're a high-ranking priest or your brothers.]

The devil explained.

Whether you are a devil worshiper or a devil contractor, it is difficult for a human being to exude demonic energy unless you directly summon the devil to this place.

The fact that such demonic energy can be felt directly means only one thing.

[Of course, Seongjin Lee. There is a devil hiding in that building.]

175*

175. List of Contracts (1)

The day Seongjin left the imperial capital.

The brothers and sisters who saw him off gathered at the unoccupied Jinju Palace at lunchtime as if they had made an appointment. Before we knew it, having lunch together had become a habit.

With Seo Yi-seo in Cadmus mode joining in, lunch at Jinju Palace became the most burdensome meal in the palace.

Even the hospitality of the prince, princess, and saint.

The workers screamed inwardly.

'I thought it would be easier for a while since Prince Mores wasn't around!'

Only the chef felt proud and secretly clenched his fists.

'My cooking skills are the best in the imperial palace!'

Even with the meal prepared in front of them, the brothers and sisters were silent for a moment. Today was the day that Mores left the palace, and I felt so empty because I couldn't see his naturally sullen face.

In particular, Amelia, who had been with him almost every day since he woke up from his fever, was completely depressed.

[Why don't you listen?]

Cadmus asked curiously, and Amelia sighed.

"Where has she gone now? "Is she safe and well?"

[Of course you will be fine. It's been a few hours since we left.]

Then Sisley said sullenly:

"You probably don't have much more than the imperial palace, but are you eating well?""

[It's probably before we even reach Regina. Do your best, descendant. Do you know that it went to some remote place?]

Cadmus looked dumbfounded, but Logan added in a calm voice.

"No matter how much I think about it, the number of escorts is too small. "There shouldn't be anything dangerous."

[...]]

Cadmus completely lost his appetite. This hasn't happened since I entered my new body, so what on earth are they doing with a feast in front of them?

Slurp.

The golden light disappears from his eyes, and soon his brown eyes return.

"... uh?"

Seo Yi-seo, who blinked her dreamy eyes for a moment, soon noticed the gorgeous multi-course meal in front of her and her eyes filled with tears.

"bar... It's rice! "It's rice!"

Ugh! How long has it been since this food!

Seo Yi-seo, who had not been able to eat a decent meal since gaining the Half-Body Advent passive skill, began to frantically shove food into her mouth, shedding tears and snot.

Upon hearing the news that the saint had emptied all of her plate, shedding tears of emotion, it was an added bonus that the chef at Jinju Palace began to become even more determined to fight.

And then the next day came.

With an even more hearty lunch in front of them, Amelia, Logan, and Sisley were even more dispirited.

"It's somehow ominous that I haven't calmed down since morning.
"The teacups Mirabell handed me were broken three times in a row."

[Because your hands are shaking like that, you keep dropping the glass!]

"Definitely today was a bit of a strange day. "Aren't all the scarecrows in the gymnasium going to be destroyed in the morning?"

[That's because you struck me with that ignorant weapon, descendant!]

"I was short-tempered. She wasn't going to rely on an escort. At the very least, I should have completely removed the 7th standard sword technique for the Imperial Knights... .."

[...]]

Cadmus clicked his tongue.

[Ugh. I would rather see this... Tsk.]

And again at meal time, Seo Yi-seo, who returned safely, shed tears of emotion as she looked at the table.

"rice! Is this really a dream? Hehehe!"

That day, Chief Chamberlain Louis received inquiries from the prince and princess one by one.

"... "Prince Mores said he was very concerned and asked if there was any way he could take a moment to look at it."

Seonghwang, who finally finished a long political meeting and heard those words from Lewis in the afternoon, was inwardly embarrassed.

'I was planning on taking a quick look after work, but how on earth were the kids supposed to know?'

* * *

After Seongjin left the dorm with his escorts, Bruno Green, who remained in the room, momentarily regretted his choice.

The fact that he was avoiding people out of fear of being tired meant that the more annoying woman ended up staying with him. An exorcist who receives unorganized thoughts through a channel all day long and releases them without any filtering.

[Beep, beep, beep. Hehehe! When are you coming back? Charalingling. This is an important list. Piung, shooung! He's getting annoyed, he's cute! Ah! Beep beep beep. Let's chase after him! Kyaha!]

Bruno groaned, pressing the pillow down on his head. In this case, wouldn't it have been better to follow the prince?

Then, at some point, the loud ringing stopped completely.

[...]]

Bruno listened intently and eventually got up from his seat. It's nice to be quiet, but isn't it really annoying to suddenly become silent for no reason?

As he left the room, he found an exorcist walking down the hallway just in time.

"Where are you going, Sir Sharon?"

The exorcist's feet, which had been walking quietly and silently, suddenly stopped.

"Lord Sharon?"

However, what was secretly looking back at him were not Sir Sharon's characteristic jet black eyes, but rather familiar silver-grey eyes.

A huge presence that can be felt even with clumsy channeling skills. The unique, restrained movements of an Auror.

Bruno eventually had no choice but to ask this.

"... Really, Your Majesty? "What are you doing here now?"

Then the exorcist, or rather Seonghwang, sighed.

[I'm sorry for surprising you. Could you please pretend not to see me? I just came to check on the child for a moment.]

"... .."

Bruno was originally a man of great courtesy, but this time he was so outrageous that even though he knew it was blasphemous, he couldn't keep his mouth shut.

You came to check? It's only been one day since you left?

There are degrees of worry. What on earth does this person think of the grown-up prince?

"uh? Aren't you two eating? "What are you doing here?"

In the silence, a young man who was coming up carrying a lyre spotted them and asked. It was Laurent, a bard with long braided hair wrapped around his neck.

He had just been warned by the prince not to leave the residence as much as possible, as it could be dangerous today.

However, the eyes of Seonghwang, who was closely examining him with a strange glow, suddenly opened wide.

[The dead... ..]

"... yes?"

Seonghwang's expression became quite serious.

A person who should have died yesterday and today was granted an extra life. Plus, I received a unique calling.

It was impossible to know whose influence this was.

And right then.

At the sensation of prosperity, I suddenly felt a strange flow of power cut through the air. People who are inexplicably drawn by something run quickly toward a certain point.

The world watching this sudden movement murmured together.

The Emperor looked anxiously towards the north, where people were gathering.

It's only been a day since I left the imperial capital.

What on earth are you doing, son?

* * *

"... "Are you planning a visit?"

When the guard asked curiously, Seongjin nodded.

"There is no specific date and time set. I just sent a letter saying I'll be stopping by Regina soon and we can talk. "Are you sure you didn't receive it?"

"Even if you suddenly say that..."

The guard blurted out his words as if he was embarrassed.

A young boy appeared from somewhere, leading a group of wealthy knights, and requested a meeting, mentioning his promise with the branch head of the Rich Merchants Association.

It was an absurd thing to do, but the reason I couldn't resist it was because the identity presented by the other party was so clear.

The guard said to wait a moment and disappeared into the logistics relay station.

And the person who was called out right away was a middle-aged man wearing smart clothes. He must be one of the managers employed by the Merchants' Association.

"Unfortunately, the branch manager was out on duty for a while, sir. "If it's not rude, may I listen to the business on your behalf and tell it to you?"

"okay?"

Seongjin said as if he was disappointed. Of course, he didn't really think he would be able to meet the branch manager right away.

"Then tell him. I would like to join you for dinner tonight, so please contact the accommodation. "I have a project I'm planning these days, and I really need the branch manager's help."

"... "Business?"

"huh. I'm planning to open a restaurant in the capital that specializes in salmon. Since a stable supply of materials will be needed, he wrote in 'detail' in the letter that he would like to slightly increase the quantity of salmon from Ortona through the logistics relay station. Could it be that the letter didn't arrive?"

And before hearing the answer, he tilted his head and added.

"but. I guess you didn't receive it. "Otherwise, there would be no reason for me to go out to work at this time when I arrived in Regina."

Naturally, the information that the Holy Empire's prince would pass through Regina was already widely known.

If there really was such a promise, this would be a clear disregard for a member of the Holy Family. The manager felt cold sweat running down his back.

"Well, I don't really care, so don't worry and be sure to tell me to contact the dorm."

After saying that to the manager who bowed his head in embarrassment, Seongjin turned and walked out. Then Masain followed closely behind him and asked.

"A salmon restaurant? When did you become interested in such a business? "I was always focused on swordsmanship classes, so I didn't pay attention, sir."

Then Seongjin looked at Masain with pitiful eyes.

You still don't know me that much, Lord Martha? It's obvious that I just made it up.

'How about Magi? 'Is there any change?'

[No, it's not moving from that spot.]

Hmm. Even though I pointed at the branch manager and made a fuss, there was no movement at all. First of all, you're saying it's not the branch manager or his close associates?

'If there was one devil, I assumed that it must be related to the head of the logistics relay station...'

Seongjin was deep in thought as he walked.

Deep inside, I was expecting that I would encounter a demonic species sooner or later.

A dark church that is said to worship the Demon King as a god.

A member of the Milo family who carries around the badges of this religious order.

A merchant association that condones and supports the Milo Merchant Marine's advance into the north.

So I always thought there was a possibility that there was a demonic species somewhere in that chain.

But who would have thought that they would be hiding in such a big city?

'Dasha might be sneaking in there right now. There will also be Orden and his party following Milo Sangju. 'Is it okay if I just leave the devil like that?'

[I'm still hiding and killing all traces. I probably won't make any hasty moves.]

'okay. Then, just watch a little longer.'

There was a part of me that believed in it.

Seongjin's sudden visit to the logistics relay station had the purpose of criticizing the branch manager, but more than anything, it contained the meaning of a warning not to act rashly today, no matter who it was.

Although they are currently disguising themselves as resident knights of the Jinju Palace, everyone in the know knows that some of the prince's attendants are actually paladins of the monster task force.

'Besides, I deliberately brought up dinner, so it might be a good idea to sneak in and catch him off guard before that happens.'

At that time, the wind that blew from somewhere quietly wrapped around his arm and spun around. Seongjin was so lost in his thoughts that he didn't realize it.

Seongjin led the still bewildered group into the restaurant area.

"Wow, it tasted amazing, just like I heard!"

The restaurant recommended by Sir Claudia was amazing. At first, I was taken aback when I saw the long line of people waiting to fill the inside, but perhaps because it was such a famous house, there was a separate VIP section.

Thanks to this, Seongjin and his party were able to pay an additional fee and finish their meal comfortably without waiting.

"I'm glad you found it right. "You haven't eaten this much lately, have you?"

Masain said happily. This is because Seongjin, who did not consume more than the appropriate amount of food after controlling his weight, ate a full meal on rare occasions.

Of course it was delicious, but there was another important reason.

[Is it over already? Let's take just one more bite of steak! huh? It would be a waste to leave it like this, right? ah! That cheese pie! Just a little more cheese pie!]

If Seongjin hadn't been so impatient and told him to do it in moderation, the devil would probably have tried to empty the plates of the people next to him.

And the Demon King, who had finally finished eating, muttered openly in his head.

[Ugh! This is life! I'm so happy.]

Seongjin was dumbfounded.

happiness? Is that what a devil who feeds on human misfortune would do?

[What you don't know. He is a devil because he uses unhappiness as a driving force to make himself happy. I'm not pursuing misfortune itself. Think about it, where in this world would there be a devil who would want to be unhappy?]

... That's what I heard.

[It is difficult to find such sensuous pleasure in the demon world. That's why the devils are trying to make a contract with humans. Primal desires such as appetite and lust are very attractive even to demons.]

The Demon King, who was in a good mood, was rolling around in my head.

[So, sometimes, in the case of clumsy beginner demons, they fail to control their desires and endanger their contractees. Because it instantly turns the contractor into a pig or something like a pleasure killer. You can't overcome the desire of the moment and ruin everything. [Foolishly.]

Hey, is that what you're going to say?

Earlier, he even tried to lick Lord Masaine's plate!

176*

176. List of Contracts (2)

After the noisy meal, Seongjin, who had finished various business in the shopping district, began to think about separating the group.

"I'm going back to my dorm now. "Now that they're here, they can relax and play until evening."

"Is that still okay?"

Although they pretended not to, everyone looked excited. Only the stubborn Lord Maria spoke with a worried expression.

"But our mission is to protect you."

"don't worry. "I will be with Lord Masaine."

These were not empty words. Now that Leader Bruno has not yet completely regained the Auror floor, not only among the Wolf Knights who are accompanying him but also in the entire city, there is probably no one as strong as Masain.

"We need to think about the feelings of young people. "There will be no need to leave the imperial capital, so let them play comfortably without a superior."

"young... yes?"

As Sir Maria's expression became subtle, Seongjin added, regretting it.

"I'm also glad that I'm light-hearted. "I'm just going to go to my dorm and practice."

However, when Masain heard those words, he was startled, his expression hardened, and he began to examine Seongjin carefully.

hmm? what? Did I say something strange?

While he was wondering, he turned to Sir Maria and said,

"okay. "I will do as you say."

"But Lord Martha...""

"I will carry out the lowering, so there is no problem. Besides, I feel anxious if you don't lead those immature idiots."

surely.

Sir Maria, who glanced at the excited junior knights, was convinced.

After sending them off, Masain closed his mouth for a moment and looked down at Seongjin.

He had a complex expression, as if he had a lot to say, but before he could ask anything, he lowered his gaze and bowed his head politely.

"Then I will take you to your lodgings, sir."

... Why is this guy acting like this all of a sudden?

Seongjin returned to the dorm with an uneasy feeling, looking at Masain's somewhat stiff expression.

"Are you here, sir?"

As if he sensed they were coming, Manager Bruno came out to meet them in the hallway.

"Ah, Director Bruno. "Did you rest well?"

"Yes, sir. "But you came back early?"

"huh. "I came first because I thought I had pretty much done everything there was to see."

Then he glanced around and carefully whispered to Seongjin.

"By the way, did you happen to meet me outside?"

"meet? who?"

"... it's nothing."

Director Bruno, who gave such a vague answer, tugged at his mustache as if he was embarrassed and then quietly disappeared into his room!

'what? 'Why is everyone doing this?'

Seongjin was impressed, but had no time to pay attention to them right now. First of all, the priority was to solve the problems facing us.

Using the excuse of meditation, Seongjin went back to his room alone and changed into the casual clothes he had prepared.

Although it did not look like an assassin's clothes, it was a gloomy color that would not be noticeable at all.

[Are you going alone? Without waiting for that woman?]

'huh.'

It would probably have to be late at night for Dasha, who was undercover to work at a Milo merchant, to move freely.

But I've been having this strange feeling ever since. I feel like I have to move now.

Just like that, I unfolded my Auror cloak and opened the window wide.

"... So where are you going, sir?"

omg.

Seongjin, startled by a voice suddenly heard from next to him, almost lost his balance and fell out the window.

When I looked up, Masain was looking out at Seongjin from the window of the next room with his arms crossed.

"Lord Martha? Did you know? "Since when?"

"It started when we separated the knights and you felt relieved."

... ah. You looked so cool.

"Well, Sir Masaine. So this is... .."

Seongjin looked at him and tried to make an excuse, but Masain shook his head and opened his mouth in a strong manner.

"Whatever you do, I won't stop you, sir. But this time you will have to take me with you."

"Uh, but... .."

"For sure!"

On his hard, straight face, only his two eyes are burning brightly like an active volcano.

To be honest, I was a little scared.

"Uh, okay. I knew. "I'm going with you."

In the end, Seongjin ended up holding up both hands and feet.

"Is that Auror concealment? "It's fascinating."

"Okay... .."

Seongjin was walking with Masain toward the logistics relay station.

And now, belatedly, he is painfully realizing why Dasha repeatedly emphasized 'faith' while teaching him.

That's because his confidence plummeted to the ground when he realized that no matter how well he concealed himself, he couldn't deceive this high-ranking knight who was staring at him right in front of him. Once you lose your composure like that, it becomes difficult to kill him without notice.

Masain, perhaps aware of Seongjin's agony, began to carefully observe and evaluate his movements.

"This is truly high-level auror operation. I can vividly feel how perfectly controlled the aurors are and how delicately they are adjusted. "I don't know when you grew up like this."

He looked proud and somewhat sad at the same time.

"It's probably a difficult skill for someone as dull as me to learn. "Now, if I want to stay by your side, I have no choice but to become a Dekaron Knight as quickly as possible."

Masain's face even looked determined as he said that.

Seongjin was dumbfounded. Faster there?

Lord Masaine was a so-called striving genius. Even before he turns 30, isn't he already a decent knight general in the imperial palace?

Considering the large number of talented people in Delcross, I think it will already be ranked on a continental level.

Along with Seonghwang and Logan, he contributed greatly to creating the perception that 'all Seonghwang family members are geniuses', but a failing student is saying something like that with the expression that he will avoid repeating a grade.

"I think it would be too much for me to sneak in with you this time. But I'll be staying nearby, so call me when you need me. "I will assist you right away."

When they arrived at the logistics relay station, Masain unexpectedly let Seongjin go without realizing it.

"What will Lord Martha do then?"

"It's embarrassing, but I'm also a member of the royal family. I have some connections in the Merchants' Union. "I might be embarrassed if you suddenly ask me to visit, but I won't turn you away."

And he smiled softly.

"Please go, sir. "I'll be waiting inside the logistics relay station, and if anything happens, I'll rush over right away."

* * *

After parting ways with Masain, Seongjin followed the Demon King's lead and quietly hid inside the building.

Even then, Magi did not move as if she were stuck on the top floor of the logistics relay center. This is where the offices of high-ranking people are concentrated.

Seongjin climbed the building smoothly.

However, once we reached the top floor, the intensity of security changed significantly. Skilled Auror users guard the door by blocking it, and sometimes assassins who kill anyone are hiding in between.

'With this level of security, it would be difficult for Dasha to infiltrate alone...'

Fortunately, Seongjin was able to approach the Magi without being detected by the assassins. This is because his current Auror concealment has reached a level that even Dasha admits.

Above all, even before Seongjin senses their presence, the Demon King discovers the souls of the assassins and tells them. Thanks to this, it was possible to largely bypass their detection range.

The place Seongjin arrived at was a spacious office in the middle of the hallway. The large swinging door has a nameplate that sparkles in gold.

-Merchant Union Northern Branch Head: Wilhelm Schmidt

I thought it had nothing to do with Seongjin's flock as there was no movement, but surprisingly, the devil was hiding in the branch manager's office.

[hmm. He's a complete low-level devil. He's killing a lot of demonic energy, but he's not that strong to begin with. It will be difficult to find him unless he is a human with quite strong divine power.]

And this is how Seongjin felt after entering the office and seeing the guy with his own eyes.

'Oh, it's the devil.'

[Then, it's the devil. Are you really expecting something different?]

No, what should I say?

The guy said, 'Wouldn't this be exactly what a devil looks like?' It was as if his imagination had been brought into reality.

It is a bipedal goat about the size of a human waist, with a goat head and goat horns.

He is wearing shabby rags, and his hairy legs and hooves can be seen underneath.

[Rather than a proper devil, he is closer to a low-ranking member of the clan.]

The guy was hugging something that looked like a small ledger, but he seemed so anxious that he was circling around the room, tapping his hooves.

And he cries and mutters something constantly.

"what? what? "Magi is approaching from somewhere."

Seongjin slightly raised his eyebrows.

Have you possibly sensed the demon lord's magical energy?

"I told you to protect this, to protect it, but now maybe it's okay?"

Seongjin approached closer while maintaining his Auror cloak, but the demon still didn't notice anything and was trembling with vague anxiety.

"Let the priest know when he comes. Even if a paladin comes, let them know. I told them to let me know when the contractor comes. But what if a human comes? What should I do? What should I do?"

"Maybe it's good?"

Then it stops in place and twitches its ears and nose. The pupil, which is torn horizontally, cannot focus and shakes toward the empty space.

"This is weird. 'I'm sure there's a Magi nearby, huh?"

hmm. Seongjin crossed her arms as she saw the insignificant demon bastard coming and going before her eyes.

Aside from the Demon King, this is the first time Seongjin actually sees the devil with his own eyes.

'How... 'It's only a fist away?'

Of course, since I don't have divine power, I don't know to what extent my power will be of use to the devil. Still, I think it would be enough to hit that guy on the back of his head and take away the book he was holding so dearly.

Somehow it seems very important.

'If I rob that, what problem will come?'

Before raising his fist, Seongjin thought for one last moment.

First of all, demons are people who have no personal rights or property rights, both under sacred and imperial law. Then, even if you beat him up and take his things, it won't be against the law.

'There's no problem, right?'

Seongjin, who judged that, took off his Auror cloak and hit the guy's head.

[omg! Wait a minute, Seongjin Lee! The lower class... ... !]

Pow!

In that sudden situation, the demon lord, who couldn't stop him, gets scared.

Kieeeeeek!

The demon screamed strangely and fell to the floor. The booklet he was holding fell to the floor and rolled in front of Seongjin.

[...] It means that there is a strong demon that controls this guy... ...
.]

'huh? what?'

[...] no. nothing.]

Seongjin picked up the booklet that had fallen on the floor.

But wow. The guy who was holding his head while screaming strangely looked at Seongjin and burst into tears.

[Meeeeeeeeee! I'm the owner!]

Jaeaeang. A strong cry that shakes the soul.

what? Does it have an owner?

Was I a little hasty?

[Lee Seong-jin! There's a huge demon somewhere...]

And before the demon lord even finished speaking.

Hehehe! Woooooow!

Suddenly, a strong wind blew and the entire office began to shake. A series of loud shouts that threaten to tear your eardrums shake the office.

[dare! Who dares touch my family? Ah!]

Uh, it seems like something big has happened.

Seongjin took a step back, hiding the booklet behind him.

Soon, a thick cloud of black smoke began to rise from the middle of the office.

It was the devil's magic energy.

Within the demonic energy that has suddenly increased in size, a daunting demon soon appears.

Red skin with black tattoos on a massive muscular body. And huge black horns reminiscent of a goat.

That textbook appearance is truly true.

'It's the devil!'

[Yes, it's the devil! What kind of stupid things are you talking about earlier?]

The devil found the booklet in Seongjin's hand and became very angry.

Even so, the red whites looked as if blood had pooled in them, and the pumpkin-yellow eyes flashed with a fierce glow as if an electric current were running through them.

As if to reflect that anger, the black magic energy rising with increasing intensity covered the man's body, so much so that it filled the large office.

[Hurry and hand it over! Do you know what that thing you are holding right now!]

"After hearing that, I can't even give it back?"

Seongjin responded by quickly pulling out a nutcracker and pointing it straight ahead.

For some reason, this guy seems quite strong, so I think he'll probably need the help of paladins with divine power.

First of all, since he is so full of demonic energy, someone will definitely notice something strange. Sir Masaine will also move, so it will only be a matter of time.

While I'm searching for loopholes in this guy, I'm also making those calculations in my mind.

Suddenly something strange happened.

The devil's yellow eyes seemed to touch the sword that Seongjin was aiming at, and at that moment, the devil's eyes widened and his mouth opened wide.

[Why a holy relic? Now, wait! That black! west... no way? Nutcracker?]

Then, slurping. Suddenly, the demonic energy began to noticeably decrease.

Its body size becomes smaller and its horns decrease. Before he knew it, his eyes, which were once red, had become what could be called white.

"... ..?"

As Seongjin looked at him blankly, the devil scratched his protruding tusks with a embarrassed expression and asked.

[By any chance, what is your relationship with Seonghwang?]

hmm?

Is the other person suddenly showing a willingness to talk?

"It's your son?"

[What?]

"Uh, I'm the prince of the Holy Empire. So, His Majesty the Holy Emperor is our father."

[...] ... !]

The devil was astonished. Then, in the blink of an eye, it turns into a human!

The demonic energy completely disappeared and what appeared was a thin man with deep dark circles that seemed to be smeared.

The face that looks so tired has a look of disappointment, as if it had stepped on a land mine. If you didn't know he was a devil, you might have looked pitiful.

"... "Holy shit."

He looked into space and muttered helplessly.

177*

177. List of Contracts (3)

The devil's name is Glumgos.

He was a middle-ranking devil with no particular hierarchy, but thanks to a chance victory in an advantageous position, he has recently been rising to prominence among the devils. Coincidentally, right after Del Cross's guardian was stranded in the [Agreement], he made a contract with a human.

Considering that many of the demons he had contracted with before him were cut off to no end by the nutcracker, this could be said to be a truly lucky case.

His contractor was Wilhelm Schmidt.

At the time, he was a low-ranking manager of the Merchant Union, and for someone who had summoned a demon, he had simple dreams and poor aspirations.

Thanks to this, Glumgos easily granted his wish, and soon succeeded in completely taking over Schmidt's body and soul.

After that, it was literally a succession of victories.

He rose to the highest position possible as a merchant union manager and accumulated a lot of wealth. I got a beautiful wife and recently had a beautiful child.

At this point, he couldn't help but develop a strong attachment to life in the human world.

However, his current condition is like a wind lamp that may be extinguished at any time. There were many demons bent on harming him and taking away everything he had.

The Merchant Union, where relatively ambitious humans gathered, had an unusually large number of demon contractors, and among them, there were sometimes humans who had made contracts with demons of extremely high rank.

In order to maintain his upper hand among them, Glumgoth decided to create his own weapon.

It is to create a list listing the devil's true name and its contractors. Perhaps that list would serve as a dagger to stab his enemies in desperate moments.

The problem was that it was an unwritten rule not to violate each other's contract, a taboo that demons must never do.

If any of the demons found out about the existence of this list, Glumgos would be immediately summoned back to the Demon World, and it might be better for him to disappear.

It was the final weapon that he risked his all to perfect.

'... Why did you happen to be away for a while?'

Glumgos felt as if he was having a nightmare.

Could it be that the Holy Empire's prince suddenly burst into the office, snatched the ledger, which could be said to be all of his power, and aimed the terrifying holy relic straight ahead!

Although he rarely kept the list off his body, he happened to have some business to do near the church, so he had no choice but to leave it in the care of a lower-ranking official for a while.

But coincidentally, this boy came at the right time!

'Should I just take it away by force? No, but...'

The prince in front of him looked like an ordinary human being without an ounce of divine power, but there was no way he would have dared to use his hands carelessly.

Because the meaning of the fact that he was holding a nutcracker in his hand was clear.

Behind that human being, there is that fearsome person.

'Even if it gets taken away... ..'

Glumgos looked at the ceiling of his office and felt depressed for a moment.

One, this is what happened. There was no other way now. I have no choice but to appease this boy and get the list back.

"... I don't want any more fuss than this. "Let's have a conversation first."

"conversation?"

Meanwhile, unfortunately for Glumgos, Seongjin felt the signs of a big hit the moment he got his hands on this booklet.

In an age where paper books have become commonplace, this is an old-fashioned book, loosely bound together with parchment with uneven edges.

In particular, no matter how you look at it, it was not an ordinary item as a peculiar black energy was flowing from the cover.

Shaking.

As I was stirring the book and observing the magic energy spreading through the air, Branch Manager Schmidt, or rather a devil in the shape of the branch leader, spoke in a trembling voice.

"Now, calm down and listen to me. Could you please, for your own sake, return that dangerous book to me? The demonic energy flowing out of that book is extremely harmful to humans. Prolonged exposure will weaken the body and eventually lead to death."

"okay?"

Seongjin stopped gesticulating the demonic energy and asked the demon king.

'Hey, is it true what he says?'

Then the Demon King spoke with a somewhat uneasy look.

[I'm not lying. Even if you think about it based on common sense, there is no way that demon energy would have a positive effect on a living human being, but...]

'however?'

[If you think like that, it takes a while. In fact, although it is a small amount, there is demonic energy that continues to be released from my soul. In other words, you have been exposed to a certain amount of demonic energy all along.]

hmm. Seongjin turned his shoulder this way and that, but still could not feel any abnormality in his body.

'Are you okay? After all, I'm already dead, so isn't it okay?'

Because I am an evil spirit.

Then the Demon King answered in an uncertain voice.

[Well, guess what...]

In any case, the Magi didn't seem to be much of a threat to him. After making that decision, Seongjin decided to take a closer look at the book.

"female... Do not open! A powerful curse of death is placed on the magic energy surrounding the book! If a human touches it... ... !"

"huh?"

Seongjin, who opened the book to the very center page, raised his head and looked at Glumgos.

"What if a human touches it?"

"... "No, nothing."

The devil, who was looking at the boy who looked perfectly fine, broke into a cold sweat and averted his gaze.

It's bland.

Seongjin glared at the devil once and then slowly began to turn the pages. Then the branch leader demon glanced at him and spoke in a hushed voice.

"... Anyway, even if you take that list, you can't use it for anything. "Can't you just give it back?"

"Why is that so?"

"That's because it's not something that humans can read. "It's written in the language of the demon world!"

As he said, the letters written in the book were unfamiliar to Seongjin.

Strange letters are arranged crookedly, as if they were intertwined wedges, and next to them are drawn complicated patterns of unknown meaning.

hmm. It's the language of the demon world, right?

[This is crazy... ... !]

I could hear the demon lord muttering in my head.

'Can you read?'

[of course. It's a demonic language. I can't teach you the content just by reading it myself.]

'why?'

[Because the true names of the devils are written down one after another! The moment you read even one, you will summon the devil here! Is this guy sane to make something this dangerous?]

Jinmyeong?

[okay. This is a list of devil contractees and the names of the devils they have contracted with. If this is discovered, that guy will be as good as dead, right? It will be an achievement for the demon world.]

hmm. I think I know why that branch manager, the devil, is looking this way out of contemplation.

By the way, are there really that many demon contractors in Delcross?

Seongjin slurped through the pages, then made a decision and slammed the book shut.

"I'll just take this with me."

Then the branch leader demon jumped up from his place.

"What? "It's useless to take it, so why?"

"It doesn't matter if you can't read. "It looks quite old-fashioned, so I think it would be perfect to give to my father as a souvenir from my trip."

A list of devils for the Holy Emperor?

Glumgos felt his mind becoming distant for a moment.

"This is crazy! Why on earth... ... !"

It's a disaster.

As if reflecting his agitation, the black demonic energy surged up violently and quickly subsided again.

Now the devil was shaking pitifully.

"now. Calm down! "We can handle it now before it turns into a big problem!"

The branch manager devil said that in a trembling voice, but it seemed like he was the one who needed to calm down.

I was constantly wiggling my unstable hands, and my whole body had already been wet with sweat for a long time.

'no way...'

At that moment, a thought passed through Seongjin's mind.

"I'm asking just in case, can my father read this list?"

"Wow!"

The branch manager, who was pale, spewed out demonic energy from his mouth.

That's correct.

[Wow, this is an annihilation scenario that cannot be left out or excluded. A list like this creates powerful causal effects just by its very existence. Wouldn't this be sufficient conditions for your father to move?]

Then Seongjin smiled.

"Your father will love it! Whenever I'm bored, I read one line at a time, and whenever the devil is summoned, I cut off his head on the spot..."

"ah! "No!"

The devil, who had screamed as if he were screaming, now began to complain desperately to Seongjin.

"If the devil disappears, the humans who made a contract with him will also not escape death! Moreover, the people listed there all hold important positions in the Merchant Union! "What do you think the continent's economy will be like if they disappear all at once?"

"Well, I guess your father will take care of it. "You just have to take it slowly without overdoing it, right?"

"The existence of this list will be revealed to the world! "Then I'm finished!"

"That's none of my business."

"But if I disappear, the list created with my power will also disappear along with it?"

"Hmm, that's troublesome. ah! I'll protect you, so would you like to go to the imperial capital with us? "Don't worry too much about grace."

Even the devil bastard survived just fine, so wouldn't it be a simple task to ask that nobleman to create a barrier?

Then Glumgos became desperate, sat down on the floor and shed bloody tears. Hehehehe!

"Please take a look! Even after all this, I have a wife like a rabbit and children like a fox!"

"... .."

"I will never leave you alone in the demon world! "You will tear them to pieces and kill them instead of me!"

But unexpectedly, that half-hearted complaint moved Seongjin's heart.

Seongjin, who looked down at the demon with blood pouring out of his eyes for a moment, waited for the demon to calm down a bit before opening his mouth.

"good. "I will give it back."

"... Turn... "You're giving it to me?"

Glumgos looked up at Seongjin with an expression of disbelief.

I was wondering if I should attack this boy first, even if I had to die at the hands of Seonghwang if I didn't succeed.

But how can you change your mind so easily?

"But you can't do it with bare mouth. Instead, there are some conditions."

And Seongjin clearly conveyed what he thought to Glumgos.

* * *

The top floor of the logistics relay station.

Even after Seongjin hid in Wilhelm Schmidt's office, the building's hallways were extremely quiet.

Inside the office, demons ran rampant and magical power fluctuated as if exploding before fading away, but at least there was no shock felt from the outside. This was thanks to the barrier that Glumgos had created in advance.

The bodyguards guarded the door without knowing anything, and the assassins wandering the hallways also passed by the office without noticing what had happened.

Only one person.

Only one person sitting quietly on the roof of the relay station building was watching the entire scene from beginning to end.

He was an exorcist with raven-black hair, and he was staring endlessly at the long Breeze River flowing to the north of the building.

In her eyes, which were pitch black like her hair, a strange silver-grey glow would occasionally flicker and then disappear.

"... your majesty."

Suddenly she quietly opened her mouth.

"Is it okay if I leave it like that? "If I could just get my hands on that list, I could instantly get rid of many of the wrongdoings that are affecting the continent's economy."

Then Seonghwang, who was silent for a moment, answered.

[Sir Sharon. Do you know how many devil contractors there are within the Merchant Union?]

The exorcist shook his head. She only had a vague guess that there were many of them, but she had no way of recognizing her contractors right away.

Demon contractors are, after all, ordinary humans. Unless you summon a demon to reality or perform a direct miracle with the help of a demon, you do not emit demonic energy yourself.

Therefore, even though the entire continent is full of priests who believe in God, demons can easily sneak into the world through contractors and operate under the surface.

Only the devil's brand engraved on his soul. Only the Holy Emperor who can see it with his own eyes will know the exact number.

And his answer was shocking.

[Almost all those in key positions in the Merchants' Union should be considered contractors.]

The members and managers of the merchant union, which had been growing in power for several decades, were suffering from internal competition that was more heated than what was visible from the outside.

In order to fight against the devil contracts that are already in place, the structure is such that newcomers also have no choice but to make a contract with the devil.

"... if!"

[So, if you remove all those on the list, more people will become new devil contracts to fill the empty space.]

This time, even if we were able to eradicate some of the devils with the luck we obtained through the list, we would still be helpless against the newly appearing devil contractees.

Seonghwang will be tied to the [agreement] forever.

In that case, it would have been better for that simple mid-level demon to maintain this situation.

The wishes that people in the Merchants' Union make to the devil are usually wealth and power.

In that case, at least as long as Wilhelm Schmidt firmly maintains his position as branch leader, the day when these people will get their wish is bound to be far away.

This means that the number of demons that can gain a fully human body and move freely is naturally suppressed.

[Trust Mores' judgment. That child will definitely get the most out of that list.]

"Is that also thanks to your oracle abilities?"

When Sir Sharon tilted his head and asked, a faint sound came from inside his head. She seemed to have a soft laugh.

[It's a slightly different story. Do you know? Mores was instinctively good at counting from a young age.]

but. Sir Sharon was convinced.

Prince Mores's father was a prosperous man who managed a huge empire flawlessly, and his maternal grandfather was the Grand Duke of Asean, who was considered the most vicious person on the continent. Where would the blood inherited from his parents go?

The exorcist looked up at the sky with blank eyes, and momentarily raised the corners of his mouth with a grin as if something occurred to him.

"By the way, how fortunate is today's meeting for that devil? Following Red, this insignificant devil will now become the fourth devil allowed to exist by His Majesty."

178*

178. List of Contracts (4)

Director Collins, who is in charge of logistics distribution in the eastern region, was very embarrassed by the sudden request for an interview.

"Lord Martha? "Why me all of a sudden?"

Of course, there was a superficial friendship. Although it is said that he currently has no right of succession, Masain is a full-fledged member of the royal family.

Therefore, whenever they met in an official capacity, Collins did not neglect to stamp his face with him. When he had time, he did not hesitate to ask Regina to visit him as a courtesy.

But don't you usually think it's just a greeting?

Anyway, given his status, I couldn't help but treat him to a simple cup of tea.

Soon, a tall knight enters the office, guided by a secretary. With a bright smile that belies the bright blonde hair typical of the Seonghwang family.

"Director Collins. I heard that for this birthday banquet, I returned right after attending the first banquet. "I couldn't even say goodbye, but I'm glad we got to meet each other like this."

"That's because work has been so busy, Sir Martha."

It was a direct criticism as to why he was looking for someone who was busy.

However, despite Collins's shocked reaction, the driver did not lose his sociable smile. Considering his noble origins, this is a truly down-to-earth attitude.

"Then it will get even busier from now on. "You might see me more often soon."

"What is that... .. ?"

"Prince Mores has recently been interested in the salmon business. Cham salmon from Eastern Ortona is currently transported through the Cyprus Federation. "I understand that Director Collins is in charge of all logistics and distribution in the eastern part of the country, including Cyprus, isn't that right?"

business? Is that the business that came to you?

Collins asked with a skeptical look on his face.

"Is that something that the imperial palace is officially promoting?"

"Not really. "It is still my personal idea."

"Did you bring a detailed business plan?"

"We are still preparing."

"... .."

Collins didn't hide his discomfort and glared at Masain, who was drinking his teacup.

No matter how much he was a candidate for the throne, it is all meaningless now that he has been reduced to Klanos. The fact that he is treated as a member of the royal family as a matter of courtesy must already be an undeserving treatment for him.

Moreover, it is said that he recently abandoned his position as Commander of the Knights of the Royal Guard. If that's the case, haven't we now become worthless beings who can't gain any real benefit from being polite?

In comparison, Collins himself already holds real economic power in the East. A person with real power who belongs to the most powerful interest group on the continent and can even influence the existence of a country.

There is no need to try to please such a superficially sane young man.

'... Should I just chase him away?'

Collins twitched the finger he was lowering down the table.

'Are you here, Raum?'

[I'm listening, contractor. Kill.]

In my head, I hear the devil's voice cracking like metal scratching.

It goes without saying, but Collins was a devil's contractor. The numerous enemies he faced before reaching this position were easily defeated with the help of the devil.

[This person has inherited the blood of the beginning, even if only slightly. It would be tricky to touch.]

'So is it impossible?'

[Of course not. Kill.]

Collins' demon, Raum, was a demon who was particularly skilled at manipulating the mental world. Not only could it cause a person to hallucinate or have a nervous breakdown, but it could also cause a momentary shock to the person's mind and cause them to lose consciousness.

Collins was going to do the same thing to Massain as he had done to so many people.

It would be perfect to shock them and then brainwash them into returning quietly. There will be some aftereffects, but it will not be enough to interfere with daily life. With just a snap of a finger, the power of the devil would be unleashed.

Click, the driver quietly put down the teacup, and Collins was just about to tighten his hand.

smart.

Suddenly someone knocked on the door.

"Lord Masaine. "If you are finished with your business, would you please visit the branch manager's office with me?"

The person who visited the office was Branch Manager Schmidt's secretary. Collins quickly put away the devil and looked at his secretary.

"That arrogant branch manager? Why a person like this all of a sudden?"

But the doubt was quickly resolved.

"Prince Mores is urgently looking for you."

"You?"

"Yes, Lord Masaine. "Thanks to you, I have successfully completed the necessary work. He told me to stop by the branch president's office and tell him that we can return together."

While Collins was still dazed, Martha stood up and straightened her clothes with one hand.

"It looks like your business talk will be carried out through the branch manager's line. "I think this is the end of our meeting."

The sight of Masain saying that somehow felt bigger than the first time, so Collins blinked.

Originally, the knight was a sturdy young man, but now it felt like he was looking down from a height well beyond his own head.

'... 'Is it an illusion?'

But soon Collins realized why. At some point, a sinister energy was radiating from Masain's entire body. Collins, who was not an Auror user, was feeling strong pressure from him without even knowing it.

An inertial smile was still hanging on the knight's strong jaw, but his eyes were so fierce as he glared at Collins that it seemed as if they were sparkling with fire.

"Thank the branch manager's secretary, Director Collins. "The reason your hand is still attached is purely because he got in the way of what you were trying to do."

Only then did Collins realize that the knight's hand had been fixed on the handle of the sword from earlier. He was ready to draw his sword at any time.

'Holy shit... ... !'

Masain is a high-ranking knight who is expected to reach Dekaron Knight within a few years.

Even if you cannot detect the presence of the devil, you can easily detect the level of hostility of the other person who is trying to harm you.

"I'll pretend I haven't seen that disrespectful attitude toward a member of the royal family today. "You can think of it as a reward for letting me stay at the logistics relay station until now."

The knight spoke in a cold tone and turned away without saying hello.

Looking at the strong figure following the secretary out of the office, Collins became so nervous that he broke into a cold sweat. I can barely realize that if I had made a mistake, my arm would have been blown off.

It was then. The devil in my head suddenly started fussing.

[Heek?! Look at that! The sword the author has! That's a holy relic!]

'A relic?'

[okay! If I had chosen that one, we would both have been in big trouble! Did you know?]

A chill runs down Collins' spine.

It dawned on me later that Seonghwang was so fond of his nephew that he readily gave him a relic as a graduation present from the academy.

'I... 'Who on earth am I fighting with?'

Collins, who suddenly lost strength in his legs and was staggering, barely moved his body and collapsed on a chair.

After gathering my wits for a while, I was startled when I suddenly realized that I was not the only one in the office.

For some time now, a dark new model has been leaning against the wall like a shadow.

Jet black hair covering part of her pale face.

Silver-grey eyes that occasionally shed a strange glow.

"Who, who?"

I asked incoherently, but the devil Raum screamed in my head.

[Oh, damn it! Since when?]

'Why, why are you doing that?'

[The success is here! Quickly take cover, Collins!]

Director Collins, embarrassed, stood up straight away, and Shinhyeong, who had been quietly watching, opened his mouth.

[Matthew Collins, Director, Merchants Association Northern Branch. There are dozens of counts of tax evasion, dozens of thefts, and dozens of murders. It seems like there is enough to be judged.]

'What on earth is this? Raum! Mr. Raum?'

Collins, who sensed an unusual atmosphere, called the devil in a hurry. But Raum had no answer at all as to where he had disappeared to.

"ah... .."

Collins, who was lost in thought, hesitated and took a step back, and the woman who had been staring at him with cold eyes slowly opened her mouth.

[I'll leave it up to you for now, Sir Sharon. What should I do?]

Then the exorcist laughed like a sob.

"I accept Your Majesty's orders. "It is right for sinful devil contractees to be summarily executed."

Summary execution?

Before I could understand the meaning of those words, I gasped. Suddenly, a silver, sharp curved sword flew in front of his eyes. And that was the last thing Collins saw.

Wow!

Blood was splattered on the office wall along with a long silver line.

* * *

While waiting for Sir Martha, Seongjin was looking around Schmidt's office with curiosity.

I thought something would be different where the devil works, but instead of a summons drawn in blood, the office was filled with miscellaneous documents with all kinds of numbers.

The devil branch manager seemed to be doing his job more properly than expected.

"Anyway, why is it so quiet outside? "There was such a big tremor just a moment ago?"

"You probably didn't notice anything strange, sir. "There is a relatively strong barrier in this office."

The branch manager politely answered Seongjin's question. In just a moment, his attitude changed to an even more polite manner.

He was in the process of organizing the materials instructed by Seongjin by hand, and occasionally entrusted the selected documents to his subordinates.

Then, the goat devil with a large lump on the back of his head glances at Seongjin with resentful eyes and piles them on one side.

"Then what about the priests? "You're so blatantly giving off demonic energy and no one notices?"

"Priests don't come and go often around here. "All the big churches in the city were relocated far away."

Seongjin slightly raised his eyebrows.

"Relocate?"

"Yes, sir. "Even if they hide their demonic energy well, priests are very annoying to us."

According to Schmidt's explanation, it was a relatively simple matter to separate the logistics relay station from the church. By donating good land and capital through the capital of the merchant association, a new church was built on that land.

Of course, it cost a lot of money, but there was no significant opposition to carrying out the work. Because it was something that no one wanted for the church to become distant. This is because there were many devil contractors in key positions in the Merchant Union.

Seongjin was shocked.

"Everyone is playing well in the devil's hands. Is the empire's economy really okay as it is?"

Then Schmidt shook his head.

"Surprisingly, the devil himself does not encourage his contractors to cause massive amounts of harm. "Unless there is a place like a dark cult hiding in the outskirts, where sacrifices are made and special rituals are performed."

"Why is that so?"

"You can only survive if you don't cross the line. "His Majesty's eyes are reaching every corner of the empire."

According to the 'Guidelines for Living a Successful Empire for Demons', as long as a few taboos are not broken, the Holy Emperor does not have much to do with what the devil does. This is because we have been bound by strange rules called [agreements] for many years.

Originally, the Emperor at the beginning of his reign had nothing to hesitate about.

The demons were driven out of the capital in the blink of an eye, and the demon contractors were busy executing everything they saw.

Although he took a friendly stance toward vassal states, he showed a firm stance in exorcising the devils hidden deep within that society.

Where is that? Not only did he frequently show miracles across the entire continent, but when the opportunity arose, he directly invaded the demon world and slaughtered demons, causing them to tremble in fear.

But he suddenly stopped a few years ago, after the [Agreement] was created. From then on, the Holy Emperor did not leave the capital, and he did not even touch the demons unless it was extremely intrusive.

"agreement? "What on earth is that?"

As Seongjin frowned, Schmidt shook his head.

"Even the devils don't know the specific details."

It is said that through various experiences accumulated over the past years, demons also have their own standards for the allowable range.

first. Harm humans with demonic power, but do not go far beyond the scope of human capabilities.

You can easily eliminate one or two political opponents with demonic power. Anyway, if you plan well and hire an assassin, you can achieve the same effect.

However, if a demon is summoned in the public eye or if it is too obvious that it is a supernatural phenomenon and harms people, it will be restrained by the Holy Emperor.

second. Do not confuse society with the power of the devil.

It is possible to use demonic power for economic gain. However, when a demon suddenly descends and causes a large-scale massacre, or when a supernatural disaster is caused and the logistics movement on the continent is disrupted, the retribution of the Holy Emperor cannot be avoided.

'Is that why the empire operates relatively stably even though there are so many devil contractors?'

As Seongjin was thinking that, Schmidt's expression became serious.

"And lastly, and most importantly, here is the thing."

third. No matter what happens, never, ever, mess with the children of Seonghwang.

"... children?"

"Perhaps that is something you know better, right?"

Schmidt, who responded to Seongjin's question, added with a meaningful expression.

"What happened to the dark church that tried to kidnap you when you were young? "Didn't those in the Church of Rest leave behind even a single piece of bone that day?"

... kidnap?

It was when Seongjin was about to ask something more.

"Ugh! Guard! Guard!"

"It's murder! "Someone here is dead!"

"Priests! "Hurry and call the doctor and priest!"

Followed by a crash, rumble! The sound of countless footsteps echoing through the hallway.

Seongjin and Schmidt, facing each other, opened the office door at the same time and went out. Then, the panoramic view of a chaotic hallway filled with guards running around in a hurry unfolded before my eyes.

"where are you? "Where is it?"

"This is Director Collins' room!"

"Hurry up!"

Then, I saw the secretary and Masain walking in this direction, wading through the crowd of people running in one direction. Masain's face, looking at Seongjin, was full of embarrassment.

"Why suddenly? Director Collins. "His room is where I just left, sir."

179*

179. List of Contracts (5)

The commotion soon calmed down. This is because it was revealed that the murdered Director Collins was a devil contractor.

The doctors and priests who were quickly called in silently made the sign of the cross when they saw his black, rotting body in an instant.

This was an erosion phenomenon that occurred when the souls of humans who failed to properly fulfill their contracts were dragged into the demon world. There can be nothing more certain than this as evidence of a contract with the devil.

And as the erosion progressed, a relatively white, prominent pattern appeared on Collins' forehead.

A long sword raised downward and two hooks crossing diagonally. It is the stigma of Saint Terbachia, deeply pressed down by divine power.

In other words, this midday murder was actually a summary execution at the hands of an exorcist.

"I can't believe it. Director Collins is a devil contractor... . He was known to be a fairly devout believer in the Lord God. "A few days ago, at the birthday party, I even made a bold statement to Cardinal Benitus that I would increase my regular donations."

Upon hearing the results of the investigation, Masain sighed with a mixture of embarrassment and relief.

It is truly deplorable that a member of the Merchant Alliance was in cahoots with the devil. However, this also served as evidence that the deaths of Masain and Director Collins had nothing to do with each other.

This incident happened right after I broke up with him in a difficult situation.

Schmidt's secretary may have served as an alibi, but if he had been unlucky, the charge of Collins' murder could have been covered up entirely.

"Anyway, it is truly incomprehensible how such a wrongdoer was able to infiltrate the important position of director of a logistics relay station."

In response to Masain's lament, Seongjin and Branch Manager Schmidt made eye contact for a moment.

In fact, isn't it the opposite? What is even more mysterious is how the exorcist broke through the security and carried out the execution alone in a devil's den teeming with devil contractors.

'Shall we keep quiet?'

'I keep quiet.'

He's already become more sensitive to things related to the devil.

It was obvious how Masain would react if he found out that most of the people in this building were devil contractors.

"There is another problem. "The question is who is the exorcist who executed Director Collins?"

After hearing various whispers from his secretary, Schmidt opened his mouth to Seongjin and his group.

"We have just finished tracking down the whereabouts of all exorcists staying in Regina. There are five people who were temporarily staying at a church on the outskirts, and two of them boarded a ship heading to the Union of Cyprus today. "It is confirmed that the three still remain in the church."

And he continued speaking while glancing at Seongjin.

"Besides him, there is one exorcist who is staying unofficially. However, it is said that after unpacking at the accommodation, he never came out."

Ah, Sir Sharon, who stayed at the lodge.

As expected, pretending to be a resident employee is of no use. Everyone already knows that Seongjin is accompanied by the Holy Knights of the Monster Task Force.

"Whoever it is, it's surprising that they managed to hide in the logistics relay station."

Sir Massain, who was listening, said:

"The Exorcist must have come in right after I left Director Collins' room. "If that's the case, it means he's been around here for a while, but I haven't noticed anything suspicious of him as a knight anywhere except the security guard in the hallway."

If he was able to avoid Masain's eyes, it would mean that he was already a Dekaron Knight in Auror operation, or that he was a Paladin who had mastered advanced assassination skills.

"Lord Masaine, are there any other Dekaron Knights among the Exorcists?"

"no. "The only Dekaron Knight of the Knights of St. Terbachia is the leader, Sir Leandros."

"If you do that, maybe Sir Leandros himself?"

"It won't be like that. "He recently left for the south by order of His Majesty."

"I feel like I'm possessed by something... .."

Seongjin, who was listening to their serious conversation, scratched his cheek.

Hmm, wouldn't that actually narrow the scope?

First of all, the only exorcist nearby was Sir Sharon in the dorm, right? Then again, it means that my father secretly visited Sir Sharon under the guise of her.

'But why did this guy suddenly appear in Regina?'

At the same time, Schmidt's complexion, who was deep in thought, turns pale. Although he doesn't know the exact story, he seems to have come to the same conclusion as Seongjin about who was involved in this matter.

"... Sir Masain. "Did something happen in Director Collins' room?"

In response to Schmidt's question, Masain slightly frowned.

"I don't know exactly. "I assumed he was trying to do something, so I just gave him a quick scolding and kicked out the door."

And in the explanation that followed, Schmidt declared:

"That's it!"

"yes?"

Masain was confused, but Seongjin understood what the devil branch manager was trying to say.

The third guideline for the devil. No matter what happens, never, ever, mess with the children of Seonghwang.

"I guess they made a fuss to warn those around them. "Perhaps in these matters, it would be better to set a clear example."

Seongjin also agreed with what Schmidt said.

At least the devil contractors within the logistics relay station would now be more clearly aware of the scope of application of the third guideline.

"By the way, sir."

"huh?"

"I may be presumptuous, but the scope of those 'children' is so... .."

At the devil branch leader's soft sigh, Seongjin silently nodded.

Only Masain, who did not know what was happening, looked at the two people in turn with a puzzled expression.

* * *

"The owner of the top is more of a miser than I thought."

"okay."

"Do we really need to leave the workers at the relay station behind and make them do the work for us? "If you don't camp, you have nothing to do, so you don't want to be teased even for a moment, right?"

Dasha nodded half-heartedly at the words of the woman murmuring next to her.

They were hired by the Milo Merchant Marine Company, and were currently riding a wagon into the logistics relay station.

They said it was an order from the top management to have the workers carry the luggage instead, as they did not want to pay additional fees for damage to the relay station.

'By the way, all temporarily hired personnel are included here. 'Could this be a coincidence?'

As a seasoned informant, Daasa's senses sound an ominous alarm.

The reason she was able to be hired at Milo Sangang was because there was a sudden vacancy. Several people were suddenly caught up in a fight in downtown Hwangdo and suffered serious injuries.

The owner of the top hurriedly searched for additional staff, and at that time, Dasha was hired as a kitchen assistant. All I had to do was hide until I reached Sigismund Range.

However, Giacomo Milo, the owner of the merchant, was a more suspicious man than he seemed.

Even though we conducted a thorough background check, we always left open the possibility that this sudden personnel change was someone's conspiracy.

It was only when the cart arrived in front of a warehouse inside the logistics relay station that Dasha was able to clearly realize that fact.

'I'm thinking of weeding it out at least once!'

The place they arrived was no ordinary building.

You can feel sharp eyes focusing on the carriage from all over the place. Assassins are hiding throughout the warehouse.

In a situation like this, it's only a matter of time before you get caught. Although he is currently partially cloaked as an Auror, skilled assassins would soon begin to doubt him.

And the dry eyes of the merchant who got off the carriage and looked back at his employees.

Dasha had a hunch.

'It's over! 'I have to get out of here first!'

As Dasha traced the location of the dagger she had secretly hidden in her bosom, she began to draw in her mind the optimal course to escape without being interrupted by the assassins.

At that moment, Milo's secretary suddenly came running towards Giacomo in a huff.

"... Collins moving?"

"Yes, rumors are already spreading within the relay station that he was a devil contractor!"

It was a soft whisper, but Dasha, who had enhanced her hearing as an Auror, could hear their conversation clearly.

"What is the branch manager's reaction?"

"The policy is to be self-respecting and not to do anything that stands out. Perhaps it is impossible to differentiate personnel today... .."

"You don't seem to be paying any particular attention to our top?"

"yes. "There was no further comment."

"hmm... .."

Giacomo rested his chin and thought for a moment, then entered the building without saying a word. She seemed so absorbed in some new problem that she had completely forgotten about her employees.

"I'll be using the relay station workers today, so everyone go back to their dorms."

The secretary urgently reaches out to the people and then disappears, following Sang Sang-ju.

Dasha then sighed in relief and adjusted the hem of her skirt.

'How am I going to get over this just this once?'

And that night.

Dasha, who found Seongjin's lodgings after gathering all the information she had worked so hard to gather, was very embarrassed. This is because she held out a stack of her documents to her as if she had been waiting for her.

"... This?"

"Customs clearance records from the top of the mill and actual sales records examined by the Merchants' Association itself. "If you compare it to the reported sales, there will be quite a big difference."

Dasha couldn't hide her surprise as she quickly scanned the documents. With this much data, wouldn't we be able to search and seize the top right now?

Where on earth do you get this quality information?

"huh. "We now have a trustworthy helper within the Merchant Union."

And when Dasha heard the identity of the helper, he became the flagship.

"Director Wilhelm Schmidt? "Are you the best worker in the Merchant Union, reputed to be a devil without blood or tears?"

Oh, that's right. It must be like the devil.

That guy is a real devil who took over the body of the contractor.

"Anyway, those materials will be submitted to the court later."

"It's definitely good material. However, even if it is an excuse to detain the merchant, it may be difficult to completely tie the merchant. "I will cut off my tail and be released on bail alone."

Then Seongjin shook his head.

"Oh, don't worry about that. Dealing with the merchants will be a heresy court. "You'll never get out?"

"yes?

And at Seongjin's next words, Dasha's mouth opened wide.

"Giacomo Milo is a devil contractor. "That is also information obtained directly from the branch leader."

As the story progressed endlessly, Dasha felt dizzy.

"... Demon contract? "Do you have any proof?"

"There is circumstantial evidence. I just need to find solid physical evidence from now on. "It would be great if, while investigating what was happening in the Sigismund Territory, we could also discover its connection to the Dark Church."

"yes... .."

The information the prince obtained in just one day was extraordinary.

If this continues, won't he end up finishing the entire investigation on his own? What is the significance of her being attached as an informant?

While Dasha was in a state of self-destruction, Seongjin suddenly raised his head as if he remembered something.

"Oh! But Dasha. There are some things I need to deliver to the imperial palace right now... .."

* * *

It's a day's drive from Regina to the ecliptic.

The items, which were sent overnight through an informant, had already arrived at the imperial capital by noon the next day.

"Are you little Saint Aurelion? "You sent it as a souvenir of your trip. This is a rare gift."

Chief Chamberlain Louis stroked his chin as he looked at the small bald wooden statue on the desk in his office.

Little Saint Aurelion.

Usually, it refers to a small wooden statue of a saint that is given as a talisman by a person waiting to wish for the safe return of a person going on a trip.

It is said that Saint Aurelion was an outstanding administrator and diplomat who traveled throughout the continent throughout his life. What the saint gave as a gift in hopes of protecting his or her loved one's journey has now become a kind of custom.

Regina is a base city where all merchant ships heading to the north of the empire pass through at least once. Thanks to this, there were many places where these little statues were put up and sold to symbolize the safe return of the trip.

Perhaps the prince saw the small statues placed here and there in the shopping district and misunderstood them as Regina's specialty products.

Seonghwang stared at the small wooden statue with a numb face and then opened his mouth.

"It's funny when you think about it, Louis. I wasn't this anxious even when Sisley first went on the visit. Sisley was only ten years old at the time."

That's right, isn't Mr. Mores' range of thinking and hitting quite extraordinary?

Lewis barely swallowed the words that were rising to his throat.

"But now I have to admit it. "Mores is a child who not only knows what to do well, but at times shows results that are beyond imagination."

As he says that, something like a faint smile flashes across his face.

The chamberlain, who had served him for a long time, realized that the King was very pleased with the gift, which was rare, and quickly spoke.

"How about decorating the front of the paperweight so that the little saint can be easily seen?"

"okay. "That would be nice."

So Little Saint Aurelion was placed in the center of the desk in the office, next to the white rabbit eyepatch.

A gorgeous mansion near Bestrang Street.

Herna and Kadesh frowned secretly as they looked at the two bald old statues that looked identical.

"Is Mores an idiot? "What if someone going on a trip sends something like this?"

"Mores is Mores. "I always felt like a fool, but then again, what did you expect?"

hmm. The twins, who had been fiddling with the wooden table for a while, soon placed old men instead of pieces on either end of the chessboard and stared at it for a moment.

"... Should we go see what Mores is doing?"

"... Shall we do that? "It just takes a moment."

"I'm just curious about what Red is doing."

"huh. "I'm making sure Red is doing well."

The twins, holding their hands together like that, quietly closed their eyes as they felt the channel opening.

And the ownerless Jinju Palace.

In front of the plentiful lunch table as always, Amelia asked while gently stroking the wooden statue.

"What is this? "What is this item used for?"

"It's something that's commonly sold on the streets of Regina, sister. "They say it's like a talisman to pray for a safe return from a trip."

Logan, who often passed by Regina while leading the punitive force, told this. Then Sisley tilts his head.

"By the way, Brother Mores is also very strange. "Are you the one who went on the trip?"

The girl rolled the bald adult onto the tablecloth.

And the three people looked at their wooden table in silence, forgetting about eating.

"... Anyway, little old man, you're kind of cute."

"That's right."

"It's so delicate and cute."

Soon, a warm atmosphere arises between the brothers and sisters.

[Ugh. The food tastes bad, so please eat in moderation...]

Cadmus, who couldn't do better, eventually sighs and retreats.

"Ba, Bab!"

Thanks to this, it was natural for Seo Yi-seo to shed tears of emotion upon receiving her body back during meal time for three days in a row.

180*

180. Pavlov's Kalmen (1)

After leaving Regina, Seongjin and his party continued their smooth journey for a while.

In the meantime, I was able to stay at a proper village lodging approximately once every two days. However, the size of the village gradually became smaller, and from the seventh day of the trip, every day was camping.

Thanks to this, I couldn't get any great souvenirs other than 'Little Saint Aurelion'.

Well, it is said that Sigismund Territory is a fairly large territory, so wouldn't there be at least one thing worth keeping as a souvenir? If it doesn't work out, you can just extort it from Orden.

At that moment, Orden, who was on the other side of the campfire, trembled and looked his head left and right.

I mean, he's a good guy who has a clue about simple, ignorant topics.

The trip was now entering its tenth day.

I heard that as we move further away from the imperial capital, it is time for bandits disguised as slash-and-burn farmers and bandits made up of Ortona refugees to appear.

However, perhaps because they moved with the Wolf Knights' flag proudly displayed in front of them, no one dared to stand in the way of Seongjin and his party. Thanks to this, the extremely peaceful journey continued.

Of course, there were some people who were shaken by groundless anxiety.

"It's been so quiet for a few days now that you're here. There's something..." ... "

"huh?"

"Ominous! "Accidents won't happen all at once, right?"

What kind of nonsense is that, Lord Martha?

Anyone who hears this will think that I get involved in incidents and accidents every day.

[Are you really going to deny it? Where did you sell your conscience?]

Shut up! You bastard devil who forgets his duty and speaks of his conscience!

Of course, there have been minor changes in the meantime.

First of all, numerous merchants moving in the same direction dispersed one by one to find their own way. And after a week of travel, Seongjin and Milo were the only ones left.

Around that time, Giacomo Milo, the owner of the merchant, came to Seongjin with a gift to say hello.

Until now, it must have been somewhat ambiguous as it was mixed with many top companies. However, since he was going to be a companion all the way to Sigismund Ridge, he seemed to feel the need to say hello to the prince properly at least once.

Through Regina's demon branch manager Schmidt, Seongjin already knew that Milo Sangjangju was a demon contractor. So, he thoroughly inspected the upper part of the state together with the Demon King.

[hmm. There is a slight trace of demonic energy left in the soul. However, I can sense this because I am the same as you. It is evidence of a contract, and it is not enough to be presented to the

Heresy Tribunal.]

It is said that once a demon contractor succeeds in summoning, he or she then communicates with the demon in the demon world through a type of mental connection called a contract.

This was a different mechanism from summoning the devil to reality, and even if he had a close conversation with the devil, it seemed that the contractor himself would not become full of demonic energy.

[Well, it's a different story if you borrow the power of the devil and make it manifest strongly, or if you summon the devil directly.]

'... 'Is it tricky?'

I felt like I wanted to just get rid of it and then present the eroded body as evidence.

However, if that happens, a slightly awkward problem arises.

If you testify that you knew the owner of the merchant was a devil and punished him, you must provide sufficient evidence to persuade the Heresy Tribunal.

Otherwise, Seongjin will also be suspected of being in league with the contractor, or accused of being a devil worshiper and investigated together.

However, if you claim that you did not know that the owner of the merchant was the devil, you would also be brought to the court for murdering a person without reason. As a result, the victim was just a devil contractor.

The best way is a scenario in which the owner of the merchant dies without Seongjin's help.

'Is there any way to kill him naturally and accidentally? Or maybe try a contract murder without getting caught?'

[Isn't there an option in your mind to just collect evidence normally?]

Well, there was an easy way for Seongjin to assassinate the owner of the top directly using Auror concealment. I was just thinking of leaving this as a last resort.

Probably, no matter how good the Auror concealment is, it would be impossible to completely avoid the eyes of Director Bruno and Seonghwang.

Above all, didn't Seonghwang tell him something before?

-Sometimes, wouldn't it be okay to leave that burden to someone else?

At that time, Seonghwang was not angry at Seongjin for trying to kill Isabella. I think he would respect whatever choice Seongjin makes.

'So we can't make Mores a senseless murderer.'

There is a family that cares about and cares about him so much, so you can't ruin Mores' life just out of greed to take the easy path.

'Anyway, there's something that bothers me a little... ... '

Will the devil who made a contract with Milo Sang-ju recognize the devil in Seongjin's head?

In fact, didn't the devil branch leader and his subordinate, the goat, keep tilting their heads at the demonic energy they sensed from Seongjin?

[Because they are not summoned to this dimension like those guys, you won't notice them easily. If you just become deeply aligned with the contractor, wouldn't most people eventually notice? I think the demonic energy we emit is more distinct than I thought.]

Now that I think about it, I am reminded of the sharp reactions that high-ranking clergy, including Cardinal Benitus, showed toward Seongjin.

If you think about it, Seongjin is a prince who exudes a stronger magical energy than a human who made a contract with the devil. I feel like they can't help but be wary and hostile.

* * *

As the journey became longer, Seongjin's group and the Wolf Knights became increasingly close friends.

Especially during meal times, everyone spent more time mingling and chatting around the bonfire.

Among them, the most popular person is Laurent, a bard who recently joined the group unexpectedly.

At first, he was frowned upon as a useless gourmet, but thanks to his unique friendliness as an entertainer, he naturally blended in among the knights. In the sense that she creates a friendly atmosphere during her trip, she is getting her money's worth.

In particular, the knights of the Wolf Knights really liked Laurent's song.

You say you have a few hit songs, but it seems like your sensibility is completely unredeemable.

"Laurent, I can sense a spirit of courage in your songs that is not easily found elsewhere."

"You can compare the pain of a broken heart to the feeling of an arrow being pierced through the heart! "Are you truly a genius?"

"The part where a beautiful woman instantly steals Fernand Braque's heart is by far the most overwhelming. When I listen to that song, I feel like I'm vividly seeing the scene of Emperor Remus the Great leading his army through the conquered territory like a gale!"

Why do I feel brave spirit in love songs? What kind of song is that person writing?

And Sir Claudia, who decided to teach Laurent about [Makjang], gave this evaluation.

"Laurent. I don't think love songs really suit you. "How about writing something like a war epic from history or mythology?"

"War epic... .."

"Your songs are overflowing with excitement and grandeur that are sometimes out of place. On the other hand, there is no natural attraction or excitement that should come from a love song."

The young artist frowned in agony.

"Natural attraction, excitement... . It all sounds good. But aren't they actually far from the worst?"

"First, true love has to bloom, and then it's fun to get to the end."

After saying that, Sir Claudia wrinkled the bridge of her freckled nose.

"Well, if you're really going to write a love song like that, why don't Laurent try dating properly first?"

Quang.

A young man with deep internal injuries stumbles in shock.

'... 'What on earth are they doing?'

Lord Claudia, why does it look so funny, but maybe it's my imagination?

Seongjin clicked his tongue and came out to the large field next to the campsite.

It was already dark, but I still planned to take some time to practice my sword before going to bed. Because I was in the carriage all day, I didn't have time to move my body at all.

Of course, as a result of focusing only on meditation the entire time I sat, I had some gains. Finally, the 7th floor of Auror was completed.

Director Bruno was very surprised.

-Lowering. You are truly amazing. I don't know how you meditate without losing focus in a carriage where your body keeps shaking irregularly.

When I stood in the field holding a nutcracker, Masain, who had come before Seongjin, was sweating hard and swinging his sword.

After visiting the logistics relay station together in Regina, these days, he was accelerating his personal training by sleeping less at night. As if he had decided to become a Dekaron Knight right away.

And next to him, Director Bruno was holding Sir Calmen and giving him a leadership lesson.

The longsword, swung in its sheath, skillfully avoided the guard and hit Lord Calmen's shoulder hard.

Pow!

"Kaaak!"

Sir Kalmen, who rolled on the floor, was covered in dirt and grunted.

"Mr. I won't do it! "You say you don't do it, but why do you keep hitting people under the pretext of sparring!?"

"If you do something wrong, you deserve it!"

Uh, wasn't it just a beating rather than a leadership sparring? What did I do wrong again this time?

Seongjin blinked his eyes, and Calmen noticed his gaze and turned to look at Seongjin with wide eyes.

"Ugh! What else are you looking at there... ..!"

Before the words were even finished.

Bah!

The leader's longsword strikes him in the back of the head.

"Oops!"

Calmen let out a scream of despair and fell to the floor, unable to get up.

And then Leader Bruno, who knocked out his student with one blow, runs in front of Seongjin and prostrates himself.

"I am truly sorry, sir! "I will pay close attention from now on!"

"... .."

Seongjin sighed.

I don't know what to say, because this really seems like an anger disorder that I can't control as I want.

As I looked at Kalmen stretched out with pitiful eyes, I noticed that a large lump was bulging on his head.

"... Who did you say something rude to again this time?"

"that... I feel sorry for the vice-captain of the Wolf Knights... .."

Director Bruno's head lowers even further.

It is said that most of the group got along well with each other, but Lord Calmen often clashed with the Wolf Knights.

His personality, which is not very social, causes him to clash at every turn with the knights of the north, who have become rough-tempered while fighting against the harsh cold.

The problem is that it cannot be easily solved by Lord Calmen's will alone.

Sir Calmen was much more obedient these days than before. When I bumped into Seongjin, I politely behaved awkwardly and carefully lowered my eyes to avoid eye contact as much as possible.

Even at a glance, I could tell that he was being as careful as possible with his appearance so as not to offend etiquette.

There was only one exception: when his emotions were aroused for any reason.

Not only when I'm angry, but also when I'm extremely focused on something, such as training. In this case, Calmen's blood poured out to the top of his head and he spewed harsh words at no one at all.

Then, when the anger cools down, you fall into a sense of self-destruction and become even more despondent, and the stress from such interpersonal relationships leads to further explosions of anger, a vicious cycle.

"Maybe it's because I grew up in that environment since childhood."

It is said that Sir Carmen, when Director Bruno first met him, was a venomous little boy who did not hesitate to throw back insults at his stepfather, who was swearing and beating him up.

It turns out that Lord Calmen's house has been the house of the biggest curmudgeon in the neighborhood for generations. So, Director Bruno made an excuse that was not an excuse for his student, saying that he must have learned to swear first before babbling.

"He reflexively takes that attitude even before he can think with his head. "I warned him several times about that, but I couldn't fix it by just beating him up."

As a result, his time as a squire was also a series of hardships. He often gets beaten up or attacked by senior knights. In the end, he was unable to properly fit in with the knights and had to volunteer to work at a remote villa.

Despite his antipathy toward Mores, there was a reason why he applied to work at Jinju Palace.

"sorry... do. Lowering. I am... never..."

Sir Calmen, who came to his senses after a while, lowered his head and apologized to Seongjin.

However, as if he himself was not confident in his promise, his voice was gradually becoming quieter.

'hmm. It's really difficult like this...'

There are limits to what General Manager Bruno can do in advance to crack down and apologize.

With organizational life at this point, how can a grown-up knight really function as a human being?

How can you take someone out to a formal event without fear of something happening?

Seongjin, lost in thought, muttered without realizing it.

"This is it because I'm anxious. "Do you think you should just be a resident knight at Jinju Palace for the rest of your life?"

"... ..!"

Seongjin smiled warmly at Calmen, who opened his eyes and raised his head.

okay. What can I do? I have a big heart and should get rid of this friend.

Seongjin tapped his shoulder and asked in a casual manner.

"By the way, Lord Calmen. "Do you know who Pavlov is?"

181. Pavlov's Kalmen (2)

Thanks to your temper, you won't be able to get expelled anytime soon.

It's perfect for staying somewhere, so from now on, try to stay at Jinju Palace if possible.

* * *

It was something Calmen had only recently realized, but contrary to his fierce appearance, Prince Mores had a very tolerant personality.

Until now, I had made many big and small mistakes in front of him, but each time, I had overlooked them without paying much attention. If it had been anyone else, I probably would have beaten him a long time ago.

-I consider myself lucky to be able to serve such a good person as you, Lord Calmen.

Sir Claudia, who had already become a loyal follower of the prince, warned him several times.

-Perhaps you don't feel comfortable just because the prince is still young? What will you do if the mistakes you make are not just mistakes, but become a problem that damages your reputation? If you don't change that bad habit, I won't leave you alone again!

But Kalmen thought that couldn't be true. Among the resident knights of Jinju Palace, is there anyone who takes the prince lightly?

Anyone with the slightest sense, no, anyone who has seen the prince training even once. I couldn't help but notice how dangerous and unusually dangerous he was at times.

However, as time passed and the same mistakes were repeated over and over again, Calmen began to feel this way.

'... 'Do I really think the prince is easy?'

As such doubts began to arise, Calmen could no longer confidently make any promises in front of the prince.

"sorry... do. Lowering. I am... never..."

The prince, who was contemplating something with a sullen look on his face, said as he listened to that shabby apology.

"This is it because I'm anxious. "Do you think you should just be a resident knight at Jinju Palace for the rest of your life?"

"... ... !"

Kalmen, who suddenly felt a strange sense of déjà vu at those words, raised his head and raised his eyes.

I don't think that's possible, though.

Didn't you once hear something similar to this from the prince?

But that thought didn't last any longer. This was because the prince was looking at himself and smiling cruelly.

The meaning of the mouth tilted up to one side and the coldly shining eyes was clear.

-You bastard. If I keep fussing over it, it will get buried?

Kalmen was completely frozen. It was truly an instinctive fear that came from deep within the soul.

And the prince, who leisurely walked in front of him, playfully tapped Calmen, who was very nervous, on the shoulder.

-Hey, don't be scared. Why are you so scared? huh?

It's as if I'm hearing auditory hallucinations that say this over and over again.

Then the prince opened his mouth as if he was amused by Calmen's reaction.

"By the way, Lord Calmen. "Do you know who Pavlov is?"

There was no way I could answer.

Pavlov?

To be honest, I don't know who that is, but it's probably someone who was rude in front of the prince and was dealt with without anyone knowing.

The message the prince wanted to convey to him was clear.

-If you don't want to quit your job right now, be careful in the future, okay?

Kalmen bowed his head and thought.

okay. That can't be possible. Who dares to look down on this person?

Meanwhile, Seongjin's face was filled with pride as he looked at the young knight staggering back to camp.

'Sir Calmen, I see you were a little touched by this brother's encouragement?'

Then the Demon King, who was silent for a moment, sighed and said.

[...] Seongjin Lee, don't go anywhere and laugh like that. Did you understand?]

why? what? why?

* * *

Pavlov's dog.

It is a model of learning theory that explains classical conditioning, which almost no one on Earth knows about.

What goes one step further is learning through operant conditioning. In other words, it is a simple principle that actions that are rewarded increase and actions that are punished decrease.

The next morning, I caught up with Carmen and Director Bruno and explained the theory to them, and they looked dumbfounded.

"So what does the dog's drooling have to do with Calmen's behavior?"

Seongjin added a simple explanation to the leader's question.

"To put it simply, it's like this. In order to change the habit of reflexively getting upset, you can attach an aversive condition to it and have Sir Calmen learn it repeatedly. "By making it unpleasant, you gradually reduce the behavior."

"But I said earlier that it was clearly training for dogs... ..?"

Kalmen asked with a doubtful look.

Hmm, unusually sharp, huh? I've already figured out that the essence of this theory is dog training.

"But you. "I've pounded this guy hard every time he's had an accident, but it's been no use."

"Rest assured, I have no intention of doing such an inhumane act of violence. "Chief Bruno."

Seongjin responded politely.

Of course, at first, I thought about hitting Seongjin and Sir Calmen on the head every time they lost their temper.

There is an unfounded belief that if we artificially cause concussions and bleach our brains once in a while, simple repetitive learning will become more firmly embedded in our minds.

But I soon changed my mind. This is not the Pearl Palace, and Sir Calmen has some respect.

It was clear that being beaten by a superior in front of other knights would be quite humiliating for the knight. Of course, Seongjin's face will fall to the ground after being beaten.

So Seongjin needed the help of a strong helper. That was why Edith was called to this event.

"From now on, the success or failure of this matter is entirely up to you. "Please, Edith."

"Is there anything I can help you with, sir? "What on earth can I do?"

To the puzzled maid, Seongjin gave instructions in a solemn voice.

"Edith, could you please make me a cup of tea?"

"... yes?"

"I hope you can show off your skills to the fullest."

To provide an experience more intense than any other harsh violence.

Then, Director Bruno looked back at Seongjin with a look of astonishment. The meaning of those narrowed eyes is clear and obvious.

'Is this person the devil?'

Uh huh! This is all for your student, Director Bruno.

So, after a while, a cup of dark brown Melbourne tea was placed in front of Calmen.

"What can I do with this...?" ... ?"

Seongjin gave simple instructions to a confused Calmen.

"It won't be difficult, Lord Calmen. "Just say a cool curse and then drink it all down."

"... yes?"

"Come on, come on."

When Seongjin smiled softly, Kalmen, who was frozen for some reason, hesitated and brought the teacup to his mouth.

"Oh, wait. "Don't forget to swear."

"... dog... X type?"

What is that spiritless swear word?

It was ridiculous, but yeah, whatever. First of all, starting is important.

When Seongjin nodded, Sir Calmen slurped down his glass with relief.

And then.

'K^&@ (ㄱ 8y솔트에 꿀JM#T?!'

He jumped up from his seat with an expression that was difficult to describe, but soon sat down on the floor and started to turn yellow.

"Kek! "Wow!"

In the end, Kalmen, who spat out the tea in a large amount, looked at Seongjin with cold sweat and trembling eyes.

Seongjin calmly orders as he holds out the next cup of tea to him.

"Now, next curse."

"... ... !"

"Next swear word."

In the end, Calmen, unable to withstand Seongjin's pressure, timidly opened his mouth.

"... foot."

"huh? I can not hear you. "Bigger!"

"Fuck you! "What are you doing, you bastard!"

So this is all your fault. yes?

Seongjin emphasized that fact to Calmen several times.

"I'm helping you become your own person."

"... .."

"Now, if you understand, should I swear next?"

Then I felt the devil trembling in my head.

[Wow, scary guy. Are you now gaslighting your subordinates?]

'shut up!'

Seongjin waited patiently until Calmen calmed down.

Calmen then bowed his head and was silent for a moment, but then he swore in a trembling voice.

"... "You poisonous bastard."

"Hmm, is it too weak? Stronger!"

"You damn bastard!"

"There is still a long way to go, Lord Calmen! Now, fill your heart with anger!"

Then Kalmen got up from his seat, gathered up all his anger, and shouted into the air.

"Kaaaaaa! "There are XX and XX people in this world!!!"

At the same time, wow.

Calmen poured the tea down his throat in one go.

'Kyaemi&dyaep[(#)]##셔^ㄸ3io3#@솔섹뽕!!!'

He flinched as if he had been electrocuted by a high-voltage wire, and then just cooed with a pale, tired face. fell to the floor.

"Kalmen!"

Surprised, Manager Bruno runs towards him.

Edith, who was looking at that scene, said with tears in her eyes.

"ruler... "Cruel!"

Hey, did you know that you were the one in that car?

"Lowering! "Wouldn't it be better if you just hit this guy?"

Looking at Calmen, who collapsed with foam at the mouth, Director Bruno made an earnest appeal.

"Otherwise, I will punish you more severely in the future, so please at least drink that devil's drink!"

hmm. Seongjin frowned and scratched his cheek.

'Why is everyone making such a fuss? It's not like I haven't eaten it before. 'If you keep drinking that, you'll get used to it.'

In my opinion, I thought it was a humane method, but why do I keep feeling like I'm abusing Calmen?

[Maybe it's because it's not an illusion?]

'Oh, shut up!'

* * *

"No matter how you look at it, the merchant owner is a miser."

The woman who was picking up tree branches grumbled at Dasha.

She was a friendly woman who occasionally spoke to Dasha. She, along with Dasha, was also hired as a new member of Milo Top.

The woman always went around with her hair neatly wrapped in a white towel, but unusually, she shaved all of her eyebrows, giving her a strange look.

"It really is."

When Dasha responded like that, the woman wrinkled her nose and expressed her dissatisfaction.

"No, think about it. If you picked up enough firewood yesterday, wouldn't you be able to rest for a day? Why are you telling me to save up tree branches that I can't even use? 'I'm going to throw away everything that's left and say it's a burden anyway!'"

"Hehe."

Dasha was currently collecting dry firewood with the kitchen assistants at the top of the mill.

After somehow safely leaving Regina, Giacomo Milo no longer tried to vet new personnel. So for the past ten days, her schedule has been very peaceful.

But that doesn't mean the doubts have been completely resolved.

When I see them keep doing useless things that may seem a bit excessive, it feels like unspoken pressure to not pay attention and just do what they are told to do quietly.

So Dasha was careful not to arouse unnecessary suspicion.

Important data has already been roughly secured. Since I was going to stick with the prince and his party all the way up to Sigismund Ridge anyway, I decided to skip reporting unless it was urgent and had finished talking with Prince Mores.

Perhaps conclusive evidence that the merchant was a devil contractor would not appear so easily. So Dasha decided to take her time and slowly observe the top from now on.

"I think this is enough, shall we just go back?"

"Is that so?"

Dasha gladly responded to the woman's words and stood up.

And the two men walked toward the campsite carrying bundles of firewood.

"Are you from Barça? Are you from down in the South?"

The south the woman asks about probably refers to the land of the pagans.

"The South is the South, but it's not Barça. "I am from Anatolia."

"okay."

The woman frowned slightly as she answered that way. Thanks to her bald eyebrows, only her vertical wrinkles stand out, giving her an even more eccentric appearance.

"Now that I think about it, we've been so busy that we haven't been able to speak to each other properly yet."

"Oh, I see. "I'm Sabrina."

When Dasha smiled and gave her an alias, the woman smiled brightly, extending her hand to her.

"My name is Olivier. "The journey is not far away, let's take care of ourselves."

182*

182. Pavlov's Kalmen (3)

After leaving the Imperial Capital, Giacomo Milo was in a bad mood.

At first glance, everything seemed to be going smoothly.

The raw materials for [tea], whose supply and demand had been unstable for a while, have been secured in abundance for the first time in a long time. Archduke Sigismund, who was clumsy intruding on businesses, has also become quiet recently.

Of course, he still did not give up and showed persistence in following the top, but considering the advantage of having the Wolf Knights accompany him on the ascent, it was not so much of a nuisance.

Nevertheless, Giacomo felt an uneasy feeling as if an invisible threat was surrounding him and slowly tightening his grip. It was like a kind of feeling that had been cultivated through her long journey up the mountain.

[Summon me slowly, Giacomo. Now that we're far enough away from the ecliptic, there's nothing more to take, right?]

In that respect, Salos, the devil who made a contract with him, was not very trustworthy.

As a high-ranking devil, he possessed considerable power, but he also possessed the indifference that was the privilege of the powerful. Therefore, he was generally ignorant of human affairs.

Even now, without paying attention to the current situation, he was begging me to summon him quickly.

[You said you were suspicious of the newly hired people, right? So do I. There is definitely a smell of the Dark Church somewhere around here!]

Rather, Giacomo was doubting whether the accident involving his employees was accidental.

So, the plan was to identify new employees with the help of the devil at a logistics relay station where there was little interference from the church.

Perhaps, if it had not been for the sudden death of Director Collins, the suspicions would have been resolved long ago and the company could have continued its journey with peace of mind.

[Now, hurry up and call me! I will personally discern their souls. If there is someone hiding something, I will kill them at once! I will tear you to pieces so that not even your soul remains!]

Giacomo sighed at those harsh words.

'It's impossible now, Salos. There are paladins nearby.'

[Paradise? Why are you hanging out with those guys?]

'Didn't I already tell you? I'm moving with Prince Mores and his party.'

[Hmm? Ah, I did. Did she say that there was a 'prepared one' by her side?]

Salos referred to the 3rd prince as 'the one prepared'. One day, Giacomo asked the reason, and Salos, who usually carelessly said anything, was unusually reluctant to say anything.

-This is a matter in which high-ranking demon kings are deeply involved. We don't know the details.

How on earth could the prince of the Holy Empire have anything to do with high-ranking demon kings?

Although I thought he was causing a lot of bad rumors, he was reluctant to be involved in many ways.

'By the way, Salos. Any news from Prince Ricardo?'

Ricardo Scarzapino.

He was the one who greatly helped Giacomo, who was ignorant of demonology, summon a high-ranking demon named Salos. Thanks to this, Giacomo Milo, who was a small and medium-sized merchant of little significance, was able to become one of the largest merchants in the North within a few years.

It's really strange to think about it now, but even though Ricardo was a high-ranking nobleman who had lived in the imperial capital, he was strangely good at demonology.

He also had deep connections with the dark sect that was prevalent in Ortona, a land he had never set foot on.

It was Ricardo who interceded to ensure that the deal with the Sigismund Order, which was under the influence of the Penitent Church, went smoothly.

In addition, he helped ensure that the Milo Merchants were constantly supplied with some items that could only be obtained through the Order.

In return, Ricardo asked for only one thing: distribution of the [Medicine Tea] that the Dark Church was manufacturing. At first, we only received and traded part of the product as an assortment, but recently the transaction volume has increased, and now we are operating a workshop by directly transporting raw materials from the upper level.

[Why him?]

Salos reacted indifferently. Unless you were the subject of the contract, it was no longer of interest to the devil.

'There is information that he was attacked by the Dark Church.'

The news was that the day before his birthday, Ricardo was attacked by an unknown assailant and his mind has been going back and forth ever since. In addition, there were widespread rumors that his younger sister, Isabella, who often went to the top to run errands, was also sick.

According to unconfirmed information, a Dark Order medal was discovered at the scene of the attack.

Now most of the transactions are direct between Milo and the Dark Church, but since this is the work of the person who made the deal in the first place, I couldn't help but be concerned about his well-being.

Could it be that the Dark Church, which felt that his intervention was no longer needed, was trying to get rid of Ricardo cleanly?

[joy! He must have gone looking for another doll. Isn't it obvious? Rather, you probably aren't in a position to worry about him leisurely right now.]

'yes?'

Giacomo was confused and didn't understand what was happening, but Salos clicked his tongue.

[If the Dark Church really had a hand in it, they wouldn't have done it targeting just one puppeteer.]

And at Salos's next words, Giacomo couldn't believe his ears.

[The Church of Penitence has been following the Sangang since a while ago. Doesn't that mean they're after you too? I said I could smell the Dark Church somewhere around here! Even if this happens, you won't summon me?]

* * *

The bitter tea feeding plan was completely abolished. This is because Lord Calmen, who came to his senses, refused to drink tea.

"Mr. Better just hit me! yes?"

Seongjin, who saw his eyes becoming more rebellious, gave up.

'Such a patient person...'

There was one more problem.

It was originally a punishment designed to be implemented secretly to save Sir Calmen's face, but soon most of the party learned about this 'mutt training'.

This happened because they were all excellent Auror users and could not completely hide their sounds.

Anyway, Seongjin felt the need to change his training method a little. So, after much deliberation, he decided to compromise with light corporal punishment.

Quick punishment!

A blow of intensity that is not harsh!

Still, it's a shock that will definitely stick in your mind!

'After all, it's just one night!'

Seongjin slowly relaxed his shoulders and thought.

'Besides, I somehow feel like I can hit it very skillfully.'

I quickly gained confidence that I could maximize pain while reducing local tissue damage by delivering a uniform amount of impact to the entire head.

Probably because I was hit hard by someone.

"Okay, get ready."

At Seongjin's signal, Kalmen laughed lightly. Compared to getting beaten up by Leader Bruno, it seemed like it was a bit ridiculous.

"swear word!"

"Pick it? "You fucking bastard!"

And then, a loud hitting sound echoed through the campground.

Sigh!

"Gagging!"

Lord Kalmen fell backwards, screaming at the top of his lungs. Then he grabbed his forehead and started struggling like crazy.

A powerful shock that felt like my brain was bleaching white!

Seongjin, who was calmly watching Kalmen with his arms crossed, waited for him to calm down for a moment before opening his mouth.

"Now, wake up, Sir Calmen. "I have to swear next."

"... ..!"

"hurry. "We don't have much time."

Sir Calmen, who barely staggered to his feet after hearing those words, now had a clear expression of fear in his eyes.

"Okay, next."

"... X child... .."

Why have you become so timid again? Seongjin clicked his tongue and raised his hand.

At this, Sir Calmen reflexively flinched and kept stepping back.

Sigh!

Because Seongjin didn't miss a moment's timing, he once again screamed that he was going to die and rolled around on the floor.

"Kwaaaak!"

And the members of the Wolf Knights watching from the side commented.

"Didn't you just hear something very ominous?"

"No way, it's only night?"

"no. Something is unusual. As you can see, the angle of his fingers, the timing of his flick, and the snap of his wrist that absorbs the recoil! "All of those things are moving with extreme efficiency to strike one point, right?"

"It definitely feels like I'm seeing the essence of a one-point strike. It's even beautiful!"

After receiving two more hits.

Sir Calmen's forehead swelled unusually, and eventually Father Gustav was called in to treat him.

Sir Ilma, the leader of the Wolf Knights, who was watching the scene from afar, turned to Bruno and said.

"You are very enthusiastic."

"Yes, that guy is also full of will to fix things."

There was a light of compassion in Director Bruno's eyes as he said that. However, he soon controlled his emotions and bowed his head towards the knight commander.

"Thank you for generously forgiving my disciple's rudeness. Lord Ilma."

Not long ago, Kalmen quarreled with the vice-captain of the Wolf Knights, which created an unpleasant atmosphere between the prince and his party and the Wolf Knights for a while.

An incident that could have hurt the pride of the knights. If it had not been for the intervention of the leader, Lord Ilma, it would not have ended with a simple apology.

She looked at Bruno's lowered head for a moment and said.

"You think of that knight like your child."

"He is definitely a student I have looked upon for a long time as if he were my own child."

After answering that, Bruno let out a deep sigh.

"Maybe it's just me who considers him a child. "My hair has gotten a little thicker, but now it hardly listens to me."

Then Lord Ilma smiled slightly.

"I understand. I also have a daughter of a similar age. "I know very well how many things don't go as her parents want."

Then she closed her mouth for a moment and looked at the campfire, her eyes deepening.

"With all due respect, Sir Bruno. Do you know my husband?"

"yes. I saw you about ten years ago during the subjugation of the demon species. "Aren't you Sir Sebastian, now captain of the guard?"

"yes. "It's a shame, but when we got married, my husband and I were the most famous couple in Sigismund."

Ilma and her husband Sebastian were the most promising knights of the Wolf Knights since their youth.

The two naturally began a friendly competition, and what blossomed between rivals who had been at loggerheads for such a long time was a love that was close to camaraderie.

After becoming aware of my feelings, it didn't take long for me to get married.

At that time, Ilma had already been appointed as the leader of the Wolf Knights at a young age, and Sebastian was also the commander of the guards in charge of the security of the territory and the vigilance of the Demon Guard.

In other words, the marriage was the union of the two strongest people in the Sigismund Territory.

Therefore, when the long-awaited child between the two was born, everyone in the estate had no doubts. That the child will also become an outstanding prosecutor who will surpass the talents of his parents.

"But my daughter didn't have any talent with a sword. Even though she looked exactly like him, her grandparents even told her that she was not their granddaughter. "When she was young, she was obedient and good, but she quickly became crooked."

Parents who are always busy and grandparents who neglect them.

My daughter Louise, who had nowhere else to focus her mind, began to go outside.

"The only thing that could soothe my depressed daughter was 'Max,' the count's hunting dog. "Perhaps Max was the only true family to that child who spent a long time alone."

It was a family.

Bruno had some idea of how the story would end.

"Even when winter came and the demonic beasts frequently invaded the county, Louise still did not return home until late. He wandered around the outside with Max. "He was scolded for being dangerous and beaten several times, but he did not change in the slightest."

Then one day it happened.

One of the village watchmen reported that he thought he had seen Luise being chased by a demonic beast on a distant mountain ridge.

When the couple heard the news and rushed there in a panic, luckily Louise was safe. However, what they discovered at the same time was a blood-splattered floor and a dog's body torn to pieces by a demonic beast.

"And from that day until now, my daughter has never once broken curfew."

Sigh! Ggging!

The sound of a blow echoes through the camp again.

Ilma looked at the knight rolling on the floor for a moment, then looked back at Bruno and spoke slowly.

"I learned this from my daughter's case. "When a young person with clear opinions changes his or her own behavior, it is usually because he or she feels extreme regret after losing something precious."

183. Pavlov's Kalmen (4)

"Lord Calmen. If it's that hard, let's quit. "How about we think of a different approach?"

Seongjin asked as he watched Kalmen rolling on the floor after being hit for the fifth time.

It's because I'm worried, Lord Calmen.

Well, I don't think you're very smart. Even now, it seems like my IQ is dropping in real time, so why am I worried?

"Off, no! It's bearable!"

"really?"

"of course!"

Seongjin sighed.

This guy is being stubborn again in a strange way.

"Anyway, you're in serious trouble. "I was beaten by my father much more than this."

"... .."

Calmen also had nothing to say about that.

I wonder if this was really the kind of pain that would make me roll on the floor. It wasn't, because it was much more painful to get hit by Manager Bruno. The prince's words that he is controlling things within an appropriate range are probably true.

But it was a strange thing. If the prince hit me on the forehead, I felt an extreme sense of fear, as if I would die at any moment.

An eerie feeling, as if something like a large stone or an ax blade was being struck from above, splitting the skull in half at once.

That was the reason why Calmen kept screaming ugly without even realizing it.

At the same time, I felt a strange sense of déjà vu. A very uncomfortable feeling, like I'm forgetting something important.

"You are right, Sir Calmen. Harshing your body like this is not the answer. "Why don't you think of another way?"

Priest Gustav persuaded him by pouring divine power into his forehead, where a blue bruise was starting to appear.

"Perhaps the reason you can't control your anger is because you suddenly fell out of the Emperor's favor. "When I get back, I'll be a lot better than I am now, so take it easy."

"... .."

As he said, Calmen also wanted to stop doing this right away.

Even though it is only night time, it is strangely painful. So much so that I even thought about trying the bitter tea from the mean-spirited maid again.

The problem was that the Wolf Knights were openly watching this scene.

"How many generations will that guy last?"

"There's so much fuss that I'm going to die, but isn't that the limit?"

"That guy is a knight of the imperial palace? "Now that I look at it, it's like a kid with no blood on his head yet, chuckle."

I'm crying!

Despite Father Gustav's dissuasion, Calmen, who was completely angry, stood up and approached Seongjin.

"Please, please, one more time, sir!"

"... Ugh, yeah. okay."

In front of Seongjin, who sighed, Kalmen confidently shouted.

"You crazy bastard!"

And bam!

With a tremendous impact, the ground flipped over in an instant, and soon Calmen's mind turned completely white.

"uh? Lord Calmen!"

"Lord Calmen, are you okay?"

"knife... ... !"

His eyes close, and the sounds shouting at him become far from his ears.

And beyond my blurred consciousness, I heard someone's voice like a dream.

-Are you okay?

Calmen cried out unconsciously and answered internally.

Who actually hit you, and who are you making fun of now?

Then, a hand is stretched out in front of me along with a soft laugh. I couldn't see the other person's face clearly, but somehow it felt like the surroundings were brightening up.

-Thanks to your temper, you will never be expelled. It's perfect for staying somewhere, so from now on, try to stick to Jinju Palace as much as possible.

okay. Someone once said that to Calmen.

Who on earth was that? As I tried to scoop it up, it felt like my heart was pounding.

-I knew something like this would happen someday! If anything happens to His Royal Highness, I will never forgive you!

The scene changes before he knows it, and an angry shouting sound can be heard from next to him. A familiar voice that always nagged him.

As he rode like crazy, chasing after someone who was far ahead of him, Kalmen thought absentmindedly.

Ah, this is the same nightmare. When I open my eyes, it will quickly disappear from my memory like a mirage.

-It's all because of you! If only Lord Masaine were here!

Soon, as always, mixed scenes flashed through my mind, and complex, indefinable emotions shook Calmen one after another.

-Is it you? Last night with our Olivier...

-You fool! Whose offense have you offended now?

Then, as always, Kalmen, now much younger, was standing in the imperial palace garden.

-You are so lucky too. He's the perfect guy to live off a simple meal and then live as a guest anywhere.

yes. This reminds me of

I can never forget who I am.

- I just happened to give you the sheath in the perfect place, so you should be grateful for the rest of your life. under. under. under.

How could he forget those strangely sparkling silver-grey eyes that were looking straight at him as if he were having fun?

Damn it! Damn Prince Mores!

As I was struggling in the grip of intense anger, a cool voice suddenly rang in my head, awakening Calmen's spirit.

[Because life is so uncertain, the soul cannot settle down and wanders around the border of life and death.]

'... uh?'

At the same time as those words were said, a definite attraction was created in the floating body, and Kalmen began to sink downwards.

My heart, which was beating like crazy, gradually slows down, and my whole body is enveloped in a warm sense of relief. The sights that had been fluttering here and there, disorienting him, gradually moved out of sight one by one and disappeared completely.

Finally, the perfect silence came.

As he closed his eyes and savored the quiet peace, someone's hand touched Calmen's forehead. Soon the cool, warm warmth that started from my forehead spread throughout my entire body.

And a voice gently admonishing him.

[You will have to catch it properly this time. There is not much time left for you to be able to lean on this small wound.]

... what?

Before Kalmen could question anything, an irresistible voice commanded him.

[Open your eyes.]

"... ..!"

Flashing.

Following the command, Kalmen reflexively opened his eyes.

What came into his field of vision were the faces of several people looking down at him with concern from above.

"Kalmen! Are you okay?"

"Sir Calmen!"

"Are you awake, Lord Calmen?"

Kalmen blinked blankly.

what? Surely there was a similar situation some time ago?

When he came to, he was lying on the bare floor of the campground. Many people, including Director Bruno and Priest Gustav, are crowding around him.

And Exorcist Sir Sharon was in the middle of pouring out divine power while touching Calmen's forehead.

"Oh, thank you... .."

"... .."

"... Lord Sharon?"

Calmen, who was suddenly saying thank you, called her out with an unfamiliar feeling. This is because for an instant, a faint silver glow seemed to pass through the exorcist's eyes.

But when she closed and opened her eyes again, Sir Sharon's eyes had returned to their original black color. She smiled at him, parting the corners of her mouth.

"Hehe. Are you all right, Lord Calmen?"

"Ah yes... .."

With her support, Kalmen stood up.

I had clearly fainted and woke up, but somehow my body felt extremely refreshed.

'... 'What is it?'

It felt strangely unrealistic, to the point where I felt like I was still in a dream.

And Kalmen's eyes met Seongjin, who was looking at him with a sullen expression from the other side.

"How are you, Lord Calmen?"

"Oh, yes. it's okay. Lowering."

Then Seongjin pouted his mouth and grumbled.

"Of course it should be okay! "Because of your stubbornness, I'm the only one who gets scolded later for no reason!"

"... yes?"

"Uh, it's nothing."

Seongjin turned around, leaving the confused Calmen behind.

After Calmen suddenly and unexpectedly fainted, a frightened Seongjin immediately went to see Sir Sharon. I was worried that the injury might be serious enough to require the man's help.

Of course, he took matters into his own hands, but didn't he have a record of eating the back of Kenneth Diggory's head before?

And at his request, Seonghwang, who came in the form of Sir Sharon, stared at Seongjin in silence for a moment.

I didn't say it out loud to Seongjin because it was in front of others, but it was clear what those cool eyes meant.

-For some reason, it has been quiet for a while.

I looked at Calmen for a moment to see if he was busy with something and then left, but it was obvious that I was going to say something to Seongjin later.

'Eight! Why is this happening because of that guy? But these days, he's becoming a pretty dependable son!'

[...] That's a joke, right?]

Of course, there was an unexpected positive effect created by this accident.

The knights of the Wolf Knights, who at first gave Kalmen a negative look, are now giggling and looking at him as if he were some kind of mischievous newcomer.

"Hey, you kid! "What is it that hurts so much?"

"This is my first time seeing someone faint after being hit so hard! Lol."

Then Kalmen got angry.

"Mr. Ui! "Why don't you try it yourself and tell me?"

"Mr. Ui? This guy hasn't come to his senses yet! "I guess I should get another hit?"

"Arthur. "If he gets hit any more, he's going to cry!"

"Sii! Who cries! Everyone, stop laughing like that! Now is this fun? yes?"

"Kkkkkkkkkkkkkk!"

Normally, the knights would have rolled their eyes and created an unpleasant atmosphere as soon as he opened his mouth, but now they giggle and move backwards whenever Sir Calmen starts saying bitter things from his mouth.

Even the vice-captain of the Wolf Knights, who had first given Calmen a double insult and almost became his bitter enemy, did the same. He was laughing heartily, wrapping his log-like arms around Lord Calmen's neck.

Sir Ilma, the leader of the Wolf Knights, looked at the scene and spoke with admiration.

"Did you really expect this outcome, sir?"

"huh?"

"You punished him to a level that was not humiliating in front of everyone, and you earned the sympathy of the other knights and at the same time induced their intimacy!"

"... ..!"

At those words, Director Bruno gave me a look filled with surprise and respect.

No, that's not it.

Seongjin scratched his cheek and looked at Calmen walking away among the knights.

Well, wouldn't this be okay as is?

For some reason, it looks a little different from the picture I expected.

* * *

Today too, Dasha, who was collecting firewood far away from the campsite, raised her head at the sight of multiple people approaching with bated breath.

'... We're getting closer today, aren't we?'

For several days now, she had been intermittently detecting the presence of dozens of people chasing the merchant.

Because they were maintaining their distance from the upper level, the actual mercenaries hired by the upper level Milo were unaware of anything and were enjoying their peaceful journey.

At first, I was suspicious that they might be targeting Prince Mores' group.

However, after observing their movements for a few days, Dasha concluded that their target was the Milo Sangdan.

Sometimes, when they camped far away from the prince and his party, they always came towards the direction where Milo Danang was located.

The guys who had been quietly following me for over 10 days were now approaching closer with no intention of hiding their presence.

'It's coming from the forest. Are you planning to attack me now?'

Dasha fumbled for the dagger hidden under her skirt in preparation for just such an emergency.

By that time, she and the other workers who had been collecting firewood had all returned to the camp, and now only Olivier, with his headkerchief wrapped around his head as always, remained next to Dasha.

'Maybe the new people are all part of a gang... ... '

At this point, I thought that the suspicion of supremacy was valid.

Over the past few days, I have seen several newly hired people secretly leaving the upper level and returning at night.

Judging by the fact that they completely fooled the mercenaries, they were fairly skilled assassins.

Assessing the approaching signs, Dasha put down the firewood and stood up.

'okay. Just in time, an incident occurred that involved a lot of employees. Somehow I thought it would be easy to infiltrate the top.'

"Hey, somehow I thought it would be easy to get in."

"... ... ?"

For a moment, Dasha thought she had spoken her thoughts out loud.

When I turned my head, the woman, Olivier, who happened to be looking toward the forest, looked at Dasha with wide eyes.

"... oh?"

She touched her hollow eyebrows and then smiled with a strange expression on her face.

"I thought about it, but maybe that one too?"

184. Penitence (1)

"Whoa, calm down!"

As Dasha quickly stepped back and pulled out her dagger, Olivier quickly raised both arms.

"Although this is just my wish, we are not enemies. yes?"

At the same time, he took a couple of steps back, as if he was fully aware of the range of Dasha's attack. At a glance, you can see that he is not an average person.

'How could you not notice someone like that right next to you?'

Dasha pointed his dagger and glared sharply at her.

"... "Since when?"

"Uh, no! Oh my! "Sabrina, I wasn't spying on you!"

Perhaps because she wanted to make him trust her, she smiled brightly at Dasha. Unfortunately, the lack of eyebrows made the face look even more bizarre.

"I threw it too, just in case! "I think they noticed the guys hiding in the forest."

"... .."

"I really had no idea until now. "Are you really good at killing people?"

It was the same for Dasha.

There were some awkward moments, but aside from the lack of eyebrows, Olivier seemed the most normal among the new recruits.

"Honestly, everyone else was suspicious, but I thought it was definitely not you!"

"why?"

"That's obvious, right? I never knew that a girl as striking as you would proudly show her face! "Barshain assassins are not common anywhere!"

iced coffee. That was the reason why Dasha quickly excluded Olivier from the boundary line.

I never would have thought that he would show up with his eyebrows shaved off when asked about being an assassin. It's sure to leave a lasting impression on anyone.

"Think about it. "All the newly hired guys are spies, wouldn't you think that at least one of them would be a proper employee?"

"... .."

In the end, all of the new employees hired by the Imperial Capital were suspicious people. The situation is so absurd that I almost laugh out loud.

At that time, Olivier, who was watching Dasha, quietly made a suggestion.

"Come on, let's compromise. "If we're going to end up here, one of us will definitely die, and the other one won't be much better."

"Then what are we going to do?"

"Let's pretend we don't see each other just this once. As you can guess, this undercover was a complete failure, right? So now let's go our separate ways!"

The group chasing the top never comes with a good purpose. If we survive this conflict, Milo Sangju will prioritize the remaining new personnel.

The decision was quick.

"... "What is your purpose for infiltrating?"

"I want to say, 'Do you think you'll say that obediently?' But, okay, okay. "If the goals conflict, that will be difficult."

Olivier shrugged his shoulders.

"Let's be nice to each other. I was just ordered to keep a close watch on the merchant. you?"

You can't take that literally.

But Dasha thought that there was at least a high possibility that that woman was not targeting Prince Mores' personal safety.

then.

"The purpose of this side is also to monitor top-tierism."

"good. Then there won't be any problem."

With those words, the two slowly took a step back and widened the distance between them.

And when I decided that I had reached the point where memorization was out of reach, I stopped on the spot and made eye contact for a moment instead of saying goodbye.

""

""

That moment.

The two pretended to turn around and simultaneously fired weapons full of auras at each other!

Pow!

Percussion!

The stiletto passed by Dasha's eye and pierced the tree right next to it, scattering crumbs.

As expected, the sharp dagger that grazed the nape of Olivier's neck broke several tree branches and then stuck at an angle into the tree trunk behind him.

'shit!'

And as soon as the final attack failed, the two pulled out the memorized weapons that flew at each other and started running in opposite directions.

Ride, ride!

"Sabrina, you! I will never forget it! How dare you betray my trust!"

I wondered if I could hear Olivier's long shout, but it quickly became far away.

Dasha also gritted her teeth as she ran quickly between the trees.

"That's what we're going to say! 'You bare eyebrows!'

I don't know who you belong to, but I will definitely kill you next time!

* * *

Around that time, people even at the top of Milo began to notice the strange incident.

"Master Giacomo! "A mysterious group is approaching from the forest!"

The mercenary leader hired as an escort came to Giacomo's tent and reported.

"How big are they?"

"About twenty. It is said that he was not armed in any way. "It doesn't seem like a group of thieves roaming around the area."

Of course, Giacomo already knew their identities. Because the devil Salos has been raging in my head since a while ago.

[Hurry and call me! The Dark Church is coming! The only ones who cultivate that cursed demon tree are the Dark Church! I will sweep away all of this body!]

Ignoring Salos appropriately, Giacomo gave instructions to the mercenary leader.

"I'll talk about it first. "It could just lead to an armed conflict at any time, so be as alert as possible."

The fact that so many people are coming without any message is probably not a good intention.

However, the Dark Church and the Milo Merchant Marine have an implicit business relationship. There is nothing good to come from conflict, so I thought I would try to talk as much as possible.

'Furthermore, if the matter escalates, it may draw the attention of the Wolf Knights unnecessarily.'

In the unlikely event that your relationship with the Dark Church is discovered, you will have to summon Salos to silence him. Not only the entire Wolf Knights, but even the prince accompanying them.

Praying that the worst situation would not happen, Giacomo slowly got up from his seat.

Just as he came out of the tent, a group of people appeared from the other side of the forest.

They were wearing worn-out black monastic robes, and most of them had skinny bodies that looked like they were about to die. Among the face as hard as an old tree, only the two eyes shine brightly and give off a bizarre impression.

Not only that, but their faces and arms, exposed through their clothes, were covered with countless scars and wounds.

Evidence of a long period of penance. They were the members of the Church of [Repentance].

Murmur.

While the mercenaries were agitated with their weapons drawn, they stopped only when they reached the front of the camp.

"I came to see Giacomo Sangdou."

The person who said that and took the lead in the group was, as expected, a large woman dressed in worn-out monastic robes.

She was a woman whose entire body was covered in muscles and scars, and her appearance was more apt to be described as a gangster rather than a church member.

"It's been a while, Bishop Belinda."

Giacomo opened his mouth, swallowing dry saliva.

We met several times for business purposes, but I always felt intimidated in front of her.

"What on earth is going on? So far, I thought we had a pretty good business relationship. Am I wrong?"

Then the woman snorted with a grim expression.

"Huh, good relationship? "Such bullshit!"

In that ominous atmosphere, the tension among the mercenaries heightened further.

"First, tell me your business. I don't want to make a big problem here. "The Third Prince and his group and the Wolf Knights are nearby."

"Whether it turns into a problem or not depends entirely on their response."

"What do you mean by answer?"

Then, Bishop Belinda's expression suddenly distorted.

"Hey, merchant Nari. "We are ignorant people living in the shadows, so we don't know much about mourning."

"... .."

"But at least I know one thing. "If you receive the item right away, you have to pay the full price."

Giacomo was taken aback by her words.

"As for the price of [the medicine tea], didn't you pay it last time?"

"It should have been a bill that could be used properly."

"It is clearly said that it will be handled at the logistics relay station?"

"Are you saying the money wasn't paid according to the bill?"

Bishop Belinda twitched her cheek at those words.

"They didn't bother to check my identity in detail."

"why?"

"Do I know why? You'll know right away! I heard that it was a special order from the branch manager to pay only those with certain identities! "Didn't you say something nonsense to him?"

Giacomo looked dazed in shock.

Branch Manager Schmidt? Why all of a sudden?

Of course, this happened under Seongjin's instructions, but Giacomo had no way of knowing that fact.

He tried to hide his nervousness and stroked his goatee.

"Then isn't there also the Scarzzapino family? I clearly remember that Sogongja served as a guarantor for the bill, and if that were the case, he would be happy to pay the price on my behalf!"

In the beginning, before direct trading began, both the religious order and the Milo merchants traded goods through Ricardo Sogong. Even now, some items are being relayed by a ghost merchant created by Sogongja.

But as soon as those words were over, Belinda's mood became even harsher.

"Okay, great! I just happened to want to talk about that too! "Why on earth did you attack Ricardo?"

"what... ... ?"

For a moment, Giacomo was dumbfounded.

"What is that?"

"Are you kidding me? They said they attacked Su Gongzi and took the token of our church! "Isn't this the intention to harm him and our denomination at the same time?"

"... ... ?!"

"It was clearly a medal leaked from our workplace. Who else but you could do something like that? Thanks to that, the Inquisitors have been running rampant in our area lately!"

Of course, this was actually Seongjin's doing.

Anyway, Giacomo, who didn't know the whole story, realized that something was going on.

His face was white and his mouth was clenched, and the vicar's voice became even louder.

"What on earth are we doing? "Now that we can run our business on our own, aren't we going to bring in the church and end the difficult relationship with our denomination?"

Giacomo felt himself becoming dizzy.

Why did things suddenly become like this?

Meanwhile, the pressure from the diocese continued.

"When the Archbishop of Confession found out about this, he was very angry. "If you don't pay right away, he told me to personally deliver that [penitent wood] to you!"

As soon as she finished speaking, several penitents came forward carrying what looked like a large jar.

It was a jar almost the size of a human torso. It looked like a flower pot because it was filled with black soil. There are colorful and ominous patterns drawn around it.

[this! Stop it from sprouting, Giacomo! That is the tree of the Demon World! It is a cursed seed that can even snatch your soul!]

At that time, he heard Salos' desperate cry in his head.

'You want to stop it from sprouting? how?'

[Blood must never touch the seeds of that Demon Tree!]

'Blood?'

When the penitents placed the jar in front of Belinda, she pulled out a small dagger from her bosom and let out a bitter laugh.

"Now then, answer me, Giacomo. "Do you want to pay right now?"

"Now, wait! I will pay! I'll pay, so just give me a moment..."

"At the end?"

"exactly. There is no way you would be taking such a large amount of money with you when you go on a business trip! As soon as this commercial trip is over, I will personally process the bill in Regina..."

"Wait until then?"

"Oh, or at least until we reach Sigismund Territory! "I will try to raise money there somehow!"

As Giacomo continued speaking, the vicar's eyes gradually grew colder.

"... .."

"Can you please understand?"

Then she twisted her lips and let out an eerie smile.

"You dirty apostate! "Of course I didn't trust you guys!"

Sigh!

Hot blood sprayed from the hand that was tightly gripping the dagger.

* * *

[Lee Seong-jin, I feel something uncomfortable nearby?]

While I was meditating before going to bed, the devil suddenly called Seongjin.

'Uneasy feeling?'

[huh. The magic energy is light, but there is something unusual about it.]

Seongjin felt depressed for a moment, but didn't feel anything unusual.

I'm tilting my head like that.

[Huh? What is this? Seongjin Lee! be careful! Suddenly Magi... ..!]

Before the words were even finished.

Coo!

Suddenly, a large shock wave occurred and the entire carriage shook.

'what?'

Surprised, Seongjin quickly opened the carriage door and jumped out, only to find Martha and Lord Valerie running towards him.

"Lowering! "Get out of the way first!"

"Lord Martha? "What the hell is going on?"

"I don't know either! "It looks like something happened at the top of the mill!"

Milo top?

Then Sir Valerie added from the side.

"Something is unusual, sir! I wonder if the sudden explosive increase in demonic energy means that a demon has been summoned... ... !"

It was right then.

Wow!

From somewhere, a sharp and strange sound rang out, shaking the cool night air.

It was like the screams of something that was clearly not a person, but something that had gone wrong, wailing from the depths of hell.

While everyone in the camp was scared and holding their breath.

Kaaaaaa!

That ominous sound was heard again. It was clearly the direction where the top of Milo was located.

"Lord... ... !"

Masain, whose mouth was open in a daze, muttered with a pale face.

"I knew it would be like this! "For some reason, it has been very quiet for a few days."

Then, he turned to Seongjin, who was listening to the sound with an expression full of curiosity, and asked this!

"So, what did you do this time, sir?"

"... "What?"

Seongjin was greatly taken aback by that sudden question.

no! I am wronged, Sir Masaine!

This time I really didn't do anything! Really!

185. Penitence (2)

The campsite, where I was just about to fall asleep, suddenly became brightly lit with torches.

Suddenly, with Seongjin's group at the center, Orden, the Wolf Knights, and even the bard Laurent were gathered together in a circle.

"Has the cause been determined, Lord Ilma?"

"The scouts just returned, Archduke. According to reports, it appears that a demon was summoned from the top of Milo."

"... devil?"

"yes. I saw a monster radiating black magical energy. It looks just like a tree, but it twitches and grabs people and horses at random. "It is said that most of the top of the mill has already been rolled up."

Orden frowned.

I was suspicious of his ties to the Dark Church, but he summoned a demon out of nowhere?

"I don't think it was what the Milo merchant intended."

Seongjin, who guessed what Orden was thinking, opened his mouth.

"No matter how much you think about it, there's no reason for that. "If a commercial transaction is canceled, the person who suffers the greatest loss is the commercial owner himself."

"Maybe he realized we were investigating him? Was it an attempt to destroy evidence and witnesses at once?"

what? Did you really think this was being investigated in secret?

Also, why are you destroying evidence like this? It's not clear if we'll get caught up in it, but you're replacing your top in this awkward position?

Seongjin was dumbfounded, but unfortunately, there was no time to give him a face. Suddenly, in the darkness outside the camp, someone staggered towards them.

"Do, help... ... !"

Seongjin immediately recognized his pale face. He was a mercenary from the Milo Sangdan side who had been with him on his recent 10-day journey and had become familiar with him, knowingly or unknowingly.

He had a lot of thick tree branch-like things wrapped around his body, and black demonic energy was constantly flowing out from there.

"Please save me... ... !"

As the mercenary fell down in front of the camp, unable to speak, Edith reflexively tried to run towards him. Although of course her Sungjin and Sir Valery caught her at the same time.

just as expected.

Wow.

The mercenary's writhing body seemed to turn black, then shriveled up in an instant. It was erosion of the body by demonic energy.

Seongjin naturally couldn't help but think of Director Collins, who died at the logistics relay station.

'Is the author also a devil contractor?'

[No, Seongjin Lee. That's just a phenomenon that occurs due to exposure to highly concentrated demonic energy.]

The devil bastard answered.

[Now do you realize how dangerous Magi is? If you are an ordinary human without divine power, you will instantly end up like that just by touching the demonic energy.]

There was a reason why Schmidt was so embarrassed when he saw Seongjin, who was still fine even after opening the list of demons emitting poisonous magical energy.

'Is Dasha going to be okay?'

Anyway, I was most worried about the safety of Dasha, who had infiltrated the Milo upper level.

Of course, since he is a capable person, I think there is a high possibility that he would have retired in time.

Considering that there has been no report to Seongjin despite such a big incident, it seems like it really was an incident that happened suddenly and without any warning.

"Grand Duke, what will you do now?"

Lord Ilmar asked Orden.

Although the Wolf Knights were skilled demon beast hunters, they were not paladins, so they were naturally vulnerable to demonic energy.

Not only has he never faced a demon species without the help of a battle priest, but the few battle priests currently remain in the Sigismund Territory.

Orden thought for a moment, but made a quick decision.

"If something was wrong and an unexpected attack was made on the upper level, then as a subject of Delcross, I couldn't just sit back and watch."

Even if it is the work of Milo, who is suspected of being in collusion with the Dark Church.

Moreover, this road is the only passage leading to Sigismund Land. If the rumor spreads that the upper class was wiped out due to an attack by a demonic species, the remote territory may become completely isolated.

He gave instructions quickly.

"We are dividing the workforce a little. "I will leave two knights to guard you and two knights to protect the non-combat personnel, and the rest will follow me with Lord Ilma."

At those words, all of the Wolf Knights begin to move in unison.

However, despite their quick movements, there was a heavy tension that could not be hidden on the faces of the knights facing an unfavorable battle.

Meanwhile, Orden came in front of Seongjin and bowed his head.

"Sir, please allow me to receive help from the Holy Knights of the Monster Task Force."

This means that instead of leaving behind two knights from the Wolf Knights, they will borrow the paladins Sir Valery and Sir Sharon.

"hmm..."

Seongjin thought for a moment.

There are only two knights, but if you add the permanent knights that Seongjin has with him, the distributed power cannot be ignored.

Above all, along with the leader, Sir Ilma, the strongest person in the group is Sir Masain. He would definitely not want to be away from Seongjin for even a moment.

"How about we all just go together?"

four?

Seongjin spoke naturally as the eyes of those around him widened.

"If something goes wrong with you, isn't it difficult to guarantee that I too will be able to escape safely? In that case, let's not spread the personnel out for no reason from the beginning."

"Well, sir... .."

"And I don't know if you know, but Lord Massaine and I have a relic. Now that there is a shortage of priests and paladins, I think the two of us are quite important forces."

Although it is a fact that I only learned relatively recently, it is said that objects carried by a saint for a long time have the status of sacred relics.

However, this does not mean that physical power becomes significantly stronger or that divine power suddenly emerges.

It's just that high-quality weapons can sometimes cut things that ordinary weapons can't.

Lord Massain's sword, Misra, was a good example.

It is said that after the 7th Holy Emperor, who was excellent at martial arts, wore it, it was given to the leader of the Holy Knights on two occasions, and was later officially recognized as a sacred relic.

According to the story, it is one of the legendary weapons made by melting down the spear of the main god that sealed the demon dragon in the beginning.

And nutcrackers. This sword is, without a doubt, the strongest relic.

Although this may seem a bit unsightly at first glance, isn't it something that the representative of a living god has carried around for half his life?

Above all, there was an important reason that Seongjin had to follow them that he could not bear to mention.

'If the devil continues to emit that kind of magical energy, I may be the only one who can come close to him.'

I don't know if it was because he was already dead or because he was an evil spirit, but in any case, Seongjin seemed to have something similar to immunity to demonic energy.

In that case, the way to minimize unnecessary damage would be to take the lead from the beginning.

"However, the safety of the ship is more important than anything else."

As Orden said that, he glanced behind Seongjin.

However, strangely enough, Masain, who seemed to be the first to object, was standing behind Seongjin with his mouth tightly shut and holding Misra.

In reality, the person who dissuaded Seongjin was the wrong person.

"Sir, just a moment... .."

Sir Sharon spoke to Seongjin with a somewhat frustrated expression.

"It's okay if it's just for a little while, so could you please wait in a safe place for a while?"

And she came closer to Seongjin and whispered softly.

"Huh, it seems like a [gap] has opened up in the imperial palace at times like this. "I cannot contact you right now, so please wait at least until His Majesty returns."

Unfortunately, it was said that it would not be possible to make a success as easily as before. That was probably why he seemed busy and left without saying anything.

Seongjin sighed.

"Lord Sharon. I appreciate your concern, but we have to deal with the task ahead of us. How long do you plan to depend on your father for everything?"

What on earth does everyone think of that guy? From where to where does he have to look?

Seonghwang is just a human being who lives diligently, pressed for time all day, and is not really a god who transcends time.

"... .."

Sir Sharon closed her mouth in surprise at Seongjin's words.

"If it's a matter of my safety, don't worry. I won't do anything that would make my father worry. It's just that we don't have the luxury of dispersing our power. "I have no intention of going out and doing something dangerous for no reason."

And Seongjin raised his head and spoke to the people gathered around him.

"If we can't leave the devil alone anyway, let's face it with the best force we can muster. If you decide that it won't work, you can all retreat together and request support. I will not seek your own safety, nor will I force you to do something that is beyond your capabilities. "We just have to do what we can."

A slight look of relief appeared on the faces of the group, which had been stiff since the mercenary died from demonic energy.

The fact that they had to face a strong demon race did not change, but there was still something about the prince's words that put people at ease.

"Non-combat personnel remain here. As instructed by the Archduke, find a safe place with the two knights. "The rest of us are heading to the top of Milo with me."

Seongjin glanced at the people listening to him and then spoke briefly.

"Come on, let's go."

As Seongjin walks away holding the nutcracker, the group, including Sir Martha and Leader Bruno, quietly follow him.

Also, although he was not conscious of it, the Wolf Knights, led by Orden, were also naturally following in the prince's footsteps.

"I couldn't find a single doubt in his eyes. "I lift up my sword and lead it to where it should go, so who would dare oppose it?"

Laurent, who remained at the camp and watched the scene, unconsciously muttered and flicked the strings of the lyre.

* * *

Kiiiiiii!

There was a huge tree wriggling in the middle of the upper camp.

At first I thought it looked like an oak tree in the middle of winter with all its leaves falling off.

But while I was surprised and thought, "Ah," the trunk grew thicker, and the branching branches wriggled like snakes and swallowed everything living around them.

What looked like cracked tree bark from a distance were actually writhing tree trunks tangled together.

Between the twisted stems, black, ominous magic blooms in full bloom. Those touched by this terrible demonic energy instantly withered and were now swaying, tied to tree branches like fish on a string.

'Is it too late!'

Giacomo Milo, who was looking down at the Magic Tree from a hill far away, clicked his tongue when he saw the huge tree that had already filled the camp and stretched towards the sky.

It was extremely painful to watch the horses and numerous wagons that he had worked for a long time being destroyed in vain.

'In this case, I'm borrowing his power from the beginning... ... '

I regretted it, but it was already too late.

Immediately after the cedar trees began to sprout.

Only Giacomo managed to escape in time by using the power of Salos from the tree of the demon world that was quickly devouring the surrounding area.

And that was all he could do.

[It's already late. Giacomo.]

Salos lamented in his head.

[There is no way to stop it before it sprouts. That cursed tree attracts not only human life but also the demonic energy of demons and uses it as nourishment.]

In other words, there is nothing that cannot be done to deal with the Demon Beast, but Salos also cannot avoid losing some power.

And he had no intention of taking such a loss for the sake of the person with whom he had merely exchanged a contract.

"Then what should I do with that magic tree, Salos?"

If it continues to grow like this, wouldn't that tree alone be able to devour the continent?

[I will stop at an appropriate line. When it exceeds a certain size, the amount of absorption of each other by the stems of the Demon Tree also increases, so it cannot spread with the same momentum as the first time. However, it will only grow to the size of a city.]

In other words, it is inevitable that this entire area will be completely destroyed.

[Maybe the success will appear before then.]

In either case, it was out of Giacomo's hands.

As I was giving up, I saw a group of armed troops carrying torches approaching from the other side. It was the Wolf Knights and the prince's party.

'Are you planning on dealing with that terrifying figure while staring at it?'

I know that the Wolf Knights are strong, but that's only when dealing with regular armies or demon beasts.

'How can they, who are not even Holy Knights, deal with a Demonic Beast that is so full of demonic energy?'

Giacomo, who had been observing them so comfortably, was momentarily startled.

This is because it felt as if Prince Mores was looking straight in his direction for a moment.

'... ... !'

Is it an illusion?

As the prince turned his gaze towards the Demon Count again, Giacomo tilted his head in silence.

[Hoo?]

At that time, Salos opened his mouth as if he was amused.

[I didn't expect this. Maybe they too have a chance of victory.]

'What are the odds?'

[They have a holy relic!]

At that time, the demon tree seemed to sense the vitality of the creature, and quickly stretched out a thick branch towards the prince and his group.

And the next moment.

Hiss!

A faint golden aura seemed to emerge from the prince's group.

Kuaang!

It cut off all the branches extending out and caused a strong explosion on one side of the Demon Tree's body.

186*

186. Penitence (3)

Although Seongjin managed to persuade the group to move, he couldn't hide his embarrassment as he walked.

Thinking about it again, it wasn't a very smooth incitement, and the statement that he wouldn't do anything dangerous was also a lie that would soon be discovered.

The reason he decided to follow the Wolf Knights in the first place was because he judged that it would be most efficient for him, who was fine even after being exposed to demonic energy, to step forward.

It was probably the same for the demon lord, who scolded Seongjin in various ways throughout the trip.

[Who do you mean you don't depend on? When your subordinate went over earlier, you were shocked and looked for your father.]

Uh, okay. There was that too.

'... No, but at the time, I really thought I had killed Sir Calmen!'

Seongjin scratched his cheek, recalling the strange sensation he felt earlier. Strangely, at that time, I had a strong feeling that Lord Calmen was going to die at any moment.

I was clearly thinking that the amount of impact had been carefully controlled, but it was a bit creepy that he suddenly rolled his eyes over an insignificant blow.

'Still, it doesn't change the fact that we do what we can on our own.'

Seongjin thought as he habitually stroked the characteristic metal grooves on the nutcracker.

Although we cannot save people who are dying like Seonghwang did.

At least Seongjin was confident that he could fight the enemy in front of him until he died. Just doing it on his own would save his father a little bit of work.

And that guy is now in the [gap]? Then, even if you come out, you will still get severe motion sickness, so I tell you not to worry about this place and just get some rest.

Then the demon king sighed as if the earth was falling apart.

[Ugh. Doesn't your father become more anxious because you act like that every time? What do you mean, fighting until death?]

'Oh, it's noisy!'

Seongjin and his group quickly arrived at their destination.

There wasn't much to look for. No matter how small it was, the huge tree was at least 15 meters tall and had already covered the entire campsite where the top was, spreading out its thick roots in all directions.

Kyaaa!

Caw!

The screaming sound that I thought was the scream of something was actually the noise made by living, wriggling tree branches rubbing against each other.

Above all, that strong magic energy.

The black magical energy emitted from the tree was so thick that the pitch-black haze was clearly visible even under the dark night sky.

"Where are all the people at the top...""

The group first looked to see if there were any survivors, but were soon horrified to realize that the things hanging and shaking from the tree were not fruits but shriveled corpses.

"Ouch!"

Several young knights are disgusted.

It has to be that way. At that grotesque scene, even Lord Ilma, who was quite experienced in subjugating demonic beasts, felt completely appalled for a moment.

It was ironic that Prince Mores, the youngest of the group, was the one who maintained the calmest attitude.

'How can someone who grew up in the imperial palace be so calm?'

Even Sir Martha has a grumpy look on his face.

Looking at the gray eyes that showed no signs of agitation, Sir Ilma was quite impressed.

'Are you really trying to avoid showing that you have lost your composure as a superior? As expected, he is very different from the rumors!'

Of course, contrary to her illusion, Seongjin was actually busy looking for Dasha among the corpses.

'... First of all, I don't think there are any of these.'

Seongjin quickly scanned the area around the tree and was relieved to see that there was no body that looked like Dasha among them.

and.

'There is another survivor.'

It seems like everyone was so caught up in that strange tree that they didn't notice it. Far away on a hill, an ordinary person who had no Auror training was hiding and watching.

Seongjin strengthened his eyesight with aura and confirmed his appearance with his own eyes.

'Giacomo Milo.'

Did he survive alone? In this situation, you didn't manage to summon the devil you had contracted with.

Should I call this cautious or timid?

In order to find out what happened, we need to catch that guy and kill him, but the priority would be to do something about the tree that is growing so well in front of us.

"Does anyone know anything about that demon species?"

In response to Seongjin's question, everyone in the group focuses their attention on Sir Sharon and Sir Valerie.

"To be honest, I've never seen anything like that, not even in 'Apocalypse Now.' "It looks exactly like a plant, but I doubt it's a devil species."

Sir Valerie answered with a perplexed expression.

"Of course, there is no doubt that that terrible energy is the devil's energy."

At that time, Sir Sharon looked into space with blank eyes and began to mutter.

"... Tree of the Demon World... . A weapon hidden by the remnants of Penance... . The essence of penance..."

At first glance, rather than explaining the tree, it looks closer to being driven out of one's mind by a terrible sight.

While the group was paying attention to her with worried eyes, Director Bruno secretly pursed his lips at Seongjin.

'I'm channeling Arenja.'

aha. You're requesting data from the server.

And after a while, Sir Sharon regained focus in her eyes and opened her mouth.

"... after. Since history, there have been two sighting reports of that tree. It is said that of these, only one subjugation record remains."

Sir Sharon quickly poured out an explanation in her characteristic thin voice.

The official name of the tree is [Demon Tree].

However, because both times the trees were released into Delcross were the actions of the Church of Penitence, the name [Penitence Tree] is added in the records.

According to the classification standards of the Orthodox Church, in principle, it corresponds to type 4 of other devil species, but the rules of engagement are said to be similar to type 1 devil species. This is because although it is slow, it moves similar to type 1.

"It is said that at that time, His Majesty the 5th Holy Emperor, 18 Holy Knights, 20 Knights of the Royal Guard, and 16 Battle Priests participated and fought in a Granus type 1 defensive formation. They react sensitively even to weak divine power, so if they receive the blessing properly, even ordinary knights..."

It was then.

The tree that was just writhing in place suddenly began to move towards Seongjin and his group.

Even though the distance was quite wide, the tree, which gradually grew in size, had already reached a distance where it could detect the group.

Squirt!

Seongjin raised his hand to the nutcracker as he saw the thick tree branch flying from the front. The intention was to wait for it to reach the front and cut it down at once.

Hiss!

The golden sword that was pulled out from the side first swung wide, shooting out a long trail of moonlight. It was Lord Masaine.

'... 'Auror explosion?'

The faint lingering moon violently split the flying branches and reached the tree trunk.

and.

Kuaang!

It causes a very strong explosion, shaking the entire tree trunk strongly. A strong wind blew around the campsite.

Hwiiiiii-

The impact was so strong that the part of the corpse that was hanging fell helplessly to the floor and broke apart with a crunching sound.

The tree suddenly stopped moving, as if it had been electrocuted, and made an unpleasant grinding noise.

"... ..!"

The entire group looks at him with wide eyes, and Masain, who has overpowered the ship with a strong preemptive attack, asks with a determined look on his face, as if he has decided on something.

"... "Are you going to hold it like this, sir?"

"... .."

Seongjin blinked his eyes.

Since it was impossible to control this gentleman, probably Seongjin, he seemed to have decided to take the initiative himself.

Seongjin nodded, thinking that this was truly his attitude.

"okay. Lord Masaine."

Compared to the previous record that Sir Sharon had mentioned, the current power seemed to be completely insufficient.

Seongjin and Masain. 15 members of the Wolf Knights including Orden, leader Bruno and 3 resident knights. And two holy knights from the monster task force.

But still.

'... Somehow I feel like I can do it.'

Seongjin looked around at the group with such a strong premonition.

Even when I was on Earth, in the early days of the Gate incident, it was common to encounter monsters I had never seen before. And every time, Seongjin's intuition was always accurate.

When they felt like they had to retreat, they suffered damage that was close to annihilation, and when they decided that something would work out, many of them survived even after the struggle.

And in this guy's case.

'Perhaps without much damage... ... !'

Has Seongjin's confidence been conveyed?

Orden, who stared at him for a moment, soon turned his head and gave instructions to Sir Ilma.

"leader. We cannot carry out the divine design with our full power now. But the fact that there are no other records means that there may be numerous separate solutions."

"Yes, Grand Duke. "First, let's search for him by hitting and running."

Sir Ilma, who answered like that, shouted to all of the Wolf Knights.

"Everyone spread out and surround him! Everyone, think about dealing with the Glatzer Troll! "This demon may be huge, but it's definitely not faster than that damn ice monster!"

As soon as familiar instructions are given, anxiety disappears in an instant.

Even so, the eyes of the knights, highly exalted by Masaine's aura explosion, sparkled with faint excitement.

"The trick to blocking demonic energy is the same as its coldness! "It's not harmful as long as it doesn't touch the body, so hold on and block it with your aura as much as possible!"

Then Sir Valerie waved from behind.

"Now, if you're anxious, I'll bless you one more time, so come over here!"

Then the knights scattered in all directions, laughing loudly.

"The Inquisitor is also very talkative."

"... yes? What?"

"So, who are you telling me to scare?"

"Huh?"

"They must have made fun of me because I was a coward who couldn't take a single step without a blessing! "I guess this should be seen as a challenge to the Wolf Knights, right?"

"... no?"

As they gradually recovered from the shock and dodged and cut down the tree trunk that began to squirm, the knights even showed the leisure to make lame jokes.

Among all of this, the one that stood out was definitely Sir Ilma.

Unlike the knights who stepped back from a distance and cut down branches step by step to avoid the magical energy from reaching them, she fearlessly ran close to the tree trunk, creating a sword screen wide enough to cover half of her body.

Of course, there was nothing to lightly trim the tree trunks that flew in from time to time. and.

Whick!

She easily rode over the huge root flying in front of her on her back as if performing a trick, and used the momentum to cut into the exact center of the tree trunk.

Pow!

From the deep wound, black magic energy pours out like blood.

Sir Ilma, who quickly backed away from the explosive eruption of demonic energy, kicked a knight who had lost his balance on the violently shaking ground and sent him flying far away. At the same time, he cuts off the tree branch chasing him.

Wow.

Seongjin was impressed as he brandished the nutcracker.

'Lord Ilma. 'Somehow, you've gone too far in fighting while taking care of your junior knights?'

Orden Sigismund's performance also stood out.

The beautiful movement of a sword that swings, bends at a strange angle, and extends forward. Seongjin recognized that movement right away.

A variation of the Banajas 3 formula that Sisley once admired and imitated. And the power was just as the little boy said.

Boom!

A thick tree root, almost as thick as the pillars of the Bastian Church, exploded at once, scattering hundreds or thousands of pieces of wood.

Seongjin suddenly thought that one day he would like to see with his own eyes the scene where the Wolf Knights take on the Glacher Troll.

"You must not look away, sir! "The demon energy is getting stronger."

Sigh!

Masaan warned, cutting down two flying branches at once.

As the saying goes, just cutting down trees wasn't the end. The tree, which had wounds here and there, began to wriggle and ooze even stronger magical energy than before.

Kiyi!

Meanwhile, new branches growing from below were filling up the wounds more tightly, making an unpleasant friction sound.

'... 'There's no end to this, right?'

Seongjin thought as he took a step back with Masain.

The tree seemed to have stopped rapidly expanding its territory, but it was still growing little by little by adding new branches.

On the other hand, the movement of the knights was increasingly restricted. The more trees were cut down, the more polluted the air became with the released demonic energy.

'Besides, this place will become more and more tiring. If we don't think of another way before that... ... '

At that time, the Demon King called Seongjin.

[Lee Seong-jin.]

'huh?'

[I remember once hearing that in order to eliminate the ever-growing Demon Tree, the growth core, its source, must be completely separated.]

... what?

Seongjin asked, rolling to the side to avoid a branch falling from above.

'Is that a similar concept to the monster's core?'

[Well, it might be similar in function.]

Quaaaang! The tree branch that barely grazed Seongjin returned to its trunk, clawing deeply on the dirt floor.

Seongjin asked, getting up and running backwards.

'But why are you telling me that important thing now?'

[I wasn't sure because I had only heard about it through hearsay! I've never actually seen the Demon Tree!]

The Demon King protested as if it were unfair.

[So, just in case, I have carefully looked at the entire Demon Tree. I was wondering if growth nuclei could be seen.]

So, what I mean is that we're talking about that now.

'So you found that core?'

[Yes, probably. Inside the tree, there is a part where the demon energy is particularly pulsating and shining brightly.]

'So where is it?'

Then the Demon King hesitated for a moment and answered.

[At the very top of the Demon Tree...]

'uh...'

Seongjin looked blank for a moment, looking up at the distant Demon World tree, which was now well over 20 meters away.

No, how on earth do you get up there?

'... Are you sure?'

[I'm not sure. But no matter how much I look, there's nothing special about other places, so it's probably right.]

Okay.

Seongjin let out a low groan, but there was no time to think about it any more. Meanwhile, the height of the tree was soaring upward in real time!

'Let's try something first!'

Nettle -

Just then, a branch as thick as a log came flying from the front, and Seongjin concentrated his concentration as he gathered auras on his legs.

And before Sir Masaine could even cut it down.

Paang!

He kicked off the ground and jumped up as high up the branch as possible.

"... Lowering!"

Leaving behind Masain's cry of astonishment.

Crash!

Seongjin began to run without hesitation over the branches full of black magic energy.

187*

187. Penitence (4)

"... Lowering!"

Suddenly, at the sound of Sir Masaine crying out, the knights who were struggling with the branches all turned their heads in the direction of the sound.

"... .. ?!"

And they saw a sight they had never dreamed of.

Prince Mores was running on the magic tree.

Cutting and dodging branches flying from here and there. Occasionally, when a branch at an appropriate height flies in, it jumps up and jumps across the branch to show off its skills.

The sight was extremely unrealistic, like watching a squirrel climbing a tree at high speed.

That wasn't the only surprise. Isn't the prince fearlessly wandering through the fog of black demonic energy that is reluctant to even touch his body for a moment?

"That crazy... .. !"

Kalmen, whose mouth was wide open, unconsciously let out a rude curse, but this time no one blamed him.

Because no one had any disagreement that what the prince was doing was truly crazy.

"What on earth is that!"

Lord Ilma, who had become thoughtful, hurriedly tried to chase after the prince.

However, she could only move from branch to branch a couple of times at most. Even though she was able to jump a much higher distance than the prince in one go, thanks to her Auror skills that were close to those of Dekaron Knight.

And it was the same for Masain, who immediately ran under the tree trunk.

Not only was it difficult to move on a tree that was shaking violently, but there was not always a branch in the right position to be the next stepping stone.

Is that all? I had to avoid attacks coming at me randomly from all directions, and I had to pay close attention not to be exposed to magic energy for too long.

In the end, the two gave up climbing any further and had no choice but to look worriedly at the prince, who had already climbed halfway up the tree.

Sir Ilma mutters.

"How can you move like that? Should I call that amazing... .."

I couldn't even think of making a harsh attack like an Aura explosion, in case I lost my footing due to the shock. Masain neatly cut off the flying branch with his Misra, and looked anxiously at the sight of the prince who was now far away.

"Lowering... .."

Meanwhile, in Seongjin's head, the devil was freaking out and going crazy.

[Hey, Seongjin Lee! What should I do if they keep doing this!]

'Well then, what should I do? 'There's nothing you can do from far away, right?'

Seongjin responded with a sullen expression and jumped onto a branch flying from the side at just the right time.

Tuk.

Then the branch shook like a wave and tried to shake off Seongjin.

Although the ground beneath my feet shook violently. After sliding down for a while, splitting his branch with a nutcracker, Seongjin kicked his feet and jumped onto the next branch before he completely lost his balance.

Paang.

And the moment I landed, I reflexively lowered my head due to an eerie feeling.

Squirt!

A branch flew at incredible speed from behind and passed by my head. Not only are the attacks coming from the tree, but the branches that are returned to the main body are also targeting Seongjin.

"... Phew."

Seongjin let out the breath he had been holding.

It's a situation where you really can't relax even for a moment.

Cold sweat is running down my back, dopamine and adrenaline are pouring out of my body, and the corners of my mouth slowly turn up even though I'm not very happy.

but.

'... It's worth it.'

Branches were constantly flying in all directions, but in the end, each and every one of them was just the movement of an extremely instinctive creature.

Without using fakes or looking ahead like a human would, just straight-up physical force aimed at the target.

There are no situations where the timing and damage range must be varied, such as chemicals spewed out by monsters or sonic attacks.

If so, the movement route that needs to be calculated becomes even simpler. Of course, if we had to take into account the magical energy emitted by the tree, it would have been a little more difficult.

Kiyi!

The movement of the demon beast becomes faster and rougher. However, Seongjin also gradually expanded his vision and awareness, and his forgotten sense of the past began to revive little by little.

A branch that passes by like a sword, a branch that strikes from above like a hammer, and a branch that flies by scratching the air like a whip.

Seongjin continued to run upward, upward, without missing the short gap and momentary connection that these things created as they intertwined and intersected.

However, after a while, the smooth climb finally reached a crisis when it reached the halfway point of the Magic Tree.

Unlike the lower branches that move actively up and down, the branches that move relatively downwards from above did not give Seongjin time to move up.

As a result, the speed gradually slowed down, and the number of times exposure to attacks inevitably increased.

'If I had known something like this would happen, would I have learned archery a long time ago?'

For a moment, I felt that kind of regret.

Well, even if I had learned it, I doubt I would have been able to hit an invisible target.

'There is no other way. All I can do is get as close as possible and cut it down!'

Kwasik!

Seongjin, who hit a nutcracker with all his might into a tree branch that came flying by, hung on to his sword and floated upwards along with the branch.

And it's good. It fell off the twisting branch, making a strange sound, and began free falling for a while.

"Lowering!"

A frightened cry can be heard from below.

Oh, I'm sorry for worrying you, Lord Masaine.

It won't take long though.

Phew.

Seongjin, who managed to get his sword into a branch that was hitting from the side, concentrated a lot of aura on his arms to hang on to the shaking branch.

Crunchy.

Suddenly, an eerie sound came out of my overused arm.

'... If I do this just a little bit wrong, my joints will hurt, right?'

Seongjin gritted his teeth and held on, pulling out the nutcracker just as the branch bounced diagonally and rising into the air again.

"Tsk!"

While he was floating defenseless in the air, a branch struck him.

However, Seongjin, who prepared for the impact and concentrated his aura, swung his sword against the branch and used the force of the blow to lift his body even further.

And before his body was completely thrown off, he managed to pierce the nutcracker into another branch.

The result was a more intense rodeo. As it was pushed to the periphery, a terrifying fall occurred every time the branch shook.

'I can't last long here. 'We have to get up there as quickly as possible.'

After performing such breathtaking acrobatics several times in succession.

After passing 3/4 of the magic tree, Seongjin was able to see the branches extending upward again.

Seongjin was relieved as he put his legs down on a branch that, although precarious, could barely stand on. Although my overworked legs were still painful, it was true that I felt much more comfortable than when I had to endure all the impact with both arms.

However, as the movement of the body became easier, the black magic energy blooming from the top of the Demon Tree also became more dense, so Seongjin had to be a little more careful in moving from branch to branch.

'Where is that growth nucleus?'

Seongjin, who had barely reached what could be called the top, asked the Demon King.

[It's the eggplant in the exact center. The top of the branch growing upwards!]

A branch in the exact center.

Seongjin was impressed when he heard the answer. An unexpected problem arose.

'Even if it's the central branch, it's not visible to the eye?'

So, the top center of the Demon Tree was surrounded by a black cloud made of dark demonic energy, so nothing could be distinguished.

[Magic energy seems to come out concentrated in the center of the growth core. So wouldn't it be a good idea to aim for the center of the Magi?]

'What is the size of the nucleus?'

[It looks like it's about the size of your fist.]

Seongjin looked at the clouds, which were at least 2 meters in radius, with a slightly embarrassed face.

No matter where you aim and stab, there seems to be a higher chance of missing.

'I have no choice but to keep swinging the sword at random until I cut out the core...'

As we got closer to the center, the attacks from the tree branches became less frequent, probably because the tree's structure made it easy to extend branches outward.

Seongjin moved his body more leisurely and approached the center in a circle.

and.

Wedge!

Seizing the opportunity, he flew into the clouds and unleashed Banajas Type 2, which boasts the widest horizontal slash range.

Huh.

The air in the area where the nutcracker touches becomes extremely thin, and a temporary disconnection of magical energy occurs.

[this! It's a little lower than there!]

As we came out of the cloud, the demon lord cried out as if he was disappointed.

Seongjin asked as he cut down a branch that was flying towards him.

'How far off did we miss?'

[The location is somewhat close. But you have to go at least one head further down from there!]

Something is ambiguous.

Seongjin moved from branch to branch and measured the location of the core once again.

If possible, wouldn't it be better to aim a bit downwards?

And the second time he dived towards the center.

Seongjin came out of the cloud with a disappointed look on his face, feeling a slightly dull taste in his hands.

[...] ah! Slightly wrong! The wind brushed at a slight diagonal, so I missed the branch!]

The Demon King sighed.

And that moment.

Pow!

A branch that flew through the clouds without his knowledge hit Seongjin violently. The failure was that I was so busy trying to get out of the cloud that I couldn't find the branch.

He reflexively blocked the attack with a nutcracker, but Seongjin's body had already bounced a long way from the tree.

[Lee Seong-jin!]

The body falls at an incredible speed.

Seongjin quickly opened his eyes and looked for a tree branch nearby that he could stand on, but he couldn't find it at all.

'Uh... ... !'

The problem was that the attacks of the tree branches became less frequent, perhaps because they realized that Seongjin, who had been thrown away, had been completely defeated.

Since there is no attack, there is no foothold to stand on!

'If you're unlucky, you could die?'

Seongjin fell headfirst and clicked his tongue.

From a height of more than an 8-story building, it wasn't even a free fall, but a powerful downward fall!

Seongjin tried to protect his head and neck with Aura as much as possible, and looked at the floor during the short time he fell.

If there was a technique like Aura Burst, it would have been possible to reduce the speed a little just by throwing a downward attack.

Seongjin, who was thinking like that, suddenly discovered something below and was frightened.

It was Lord Masain who ran towards Seongjin without even thinking about avoiding the demon.

"Uh oh, get out of the way! Sir Masaine!"

If we collide at this speed, we'll both die!

Wouldn't it be better to try a failed method, whether it works or not?

However, that stubborn knight did not even pretend to listen, but settled down at the landing spot and opened his arms towards Seongjin.

'... 'Holy shit!'

Seongjin had no choice but to load the nutcracker with Auror and violently throw it to the floor. Hoping that the recoil from throwing the sword would reduce the speed a little.

Quang!

The sword loaded with aura was deeply embedded in the dirt floor.

"this!"

From over there, Director Bruno extends his hand toward Seongjin.

Whiing.

A small wind blowing from the leader wrapped around Seongjin's body.

Dekaron Knight's Aura materialization. However, the aura was too weak to slow down the falling boy.

'... Crash!'

Seongjin closed his eyes tightly, anticipating Masain's gruesome injury.

But at that moment.

Phew!

For some reason, Seongjin's body suddenly felt like it was rising upward.

'... ... ?'

However, the surprise was short-lived as Seongjin and Masain fell to the floor with a great shock.

Craddangtangtang!

"Lowering!"

"Lord Martha!"

Leader Bruno and the Wolf Knights came running in fright.

"Are you okay, sir?"

"Lowering!"

sparkle. As soon as Seongjin opened her eyes, she immediately stood up.

"Lord Martha!"

I was a little dizzy from the shock, but even though I fell from that high up, there wasn't a single broken spot.

Surprisingly, Lord Masain received the Holy Spirit just right!

Even Lord Masaine seemed to have no special injuries. It seemed like she got a mild concussion from falling behind her and hitting her head on the floor.

Seongjin inwardly clicked his tongue at this miraculous situation.

"Okay."

Masain, who got up fine, rubbed the back of his head and groaned.

"I never thought practicing booming as a child would help in times like this... .."

Buong practice? What is it?

Anyway, Seongjin quickly got up and started nagging Masain.

"Have you decided to die now, Lord Martha? Assuming you got caught up in the fall! Also, why are you treating Magi so carelessly? "Are you out of your mind now?"

Then Masain's face suddenly distorted.

Seongjin is startled by his increasing ferocity, and for the first time in a long time, Masain yells at Seongjin! He shouted.

"Now that you know that, are you rushing into a place full of demonic energy!? "Why on earth did you suddenly do something like that?"

"No, I..." .."

"I won't do anything dangerous! "Didn't you definitely say that?!"

Seongjin, slightly surprised by the unusual atmosphere, averted his gaze.

This time, Seongjin realized that he was angry to the core and made an excuse.

"I'm sorry for causing you worry. But Sir Masain! "There is the core of the Demon Tree at the top!"

"... "Nuclear?"

"Yes, I guess it's the driving force that keeps that tree growing."

Masain, who had already caught monsters with Seongjin on two occasions, quickly understood.

"So if you destroy it, you can catch the Demon Tree?"

Seeing his slightly softened attitude, Seongjin nodded enthusiastically.

"that's right. I almost cut it, but I narrowly missed it. I'm not like that for nothing! Really!"

"... .."

"We didn't have time to discuss it earlier. I won't do that arbitrarily anymore! Really sorry!"

When Seongjin came out in a completely low posture, Masain closed his eyes tightly and touched his forehead for a moment.

Then he took a deep sigh and asked:

"... "Then, how can I destroy that thing, sir?"

Oh, good. My anger is cooling down quickly.

188*

188. Penitence (5)

An extraordinary emergency meeting was held.

While the knights were keeping the roots of the Demon Tree in check, Seongjin discussed the strategy of conquering the Demon Tree with Masain, Leader Brno, Orden, and Lord Ilma.

"You didn't say anything like that before, did you?"

"You suddenly found out during the battle? How on earth... .."

When talking about the growth core, Orden and Sir Ilma ask, unable to hide their doubts.

Well, this is a common reaction.

Seongjin says, 'Ah, I see.' There was something strange about the palace people following me.

"His Majesty Mores has the ability to immediately see the weaknesses of something wrong. "That's why we had to recruit Hae Hae to the monster task force."

Masain spoke confidently, but the embarrassment did not disappear from the faces of the two people.

It's natural. There was no way they could trust the two people who had extensive experience in subjugating demonic beasts and said, 'The prince knows the weaknesses of evil when he looks at them.'

"I'm also concerned about the top of the tree. Isn't it strange that the magic energy is particularly dense at the top? This probably means that it is the center where demon energy is created, the most important part of the Demon Tree."

When Director Bruno, a former Dekaron Knight, also helped out from the side, the two men reluctantly agreed.

"Lord Masaine. What do you think of Kyeong's auror explosion? "Will it reach me?"

Seongjin asked, looking at the tree that now seemed to be nearly 30 meters tall.

"If you aim well, you will reach it. Of course, the vibration will be greatly weakened, making it difficult to demonstrate its power properly. only... .."

Masain explained that there are too many obstacles to overcome along the way.

The probability that an Aura blast fired from the ground would avoid all those countless tree branches flying at random would be almost zero.

"What about firing multiple shots?"

"It is possible a few times, but it is not a technique that can be performed in such a quick succession. I haven't fully mastered it yet, and I also need time to overlap sword names. "Maybe more branches will grow in the meantime."

I thought about taking turns firing them with Lord Ilma, but in the first place, Aura bombing was a popular technique in the imperial palace. Sir Ilma looked embarrassed, saying that he wouldn't be able to learn it all at once.

"The Wolf Knights also have knights who are skilled with bows. But no matter how much aura you put on the arrow, it would be impossible to pierce through so many branches at once."

"Of course, it's best to get as close to the top as possible and cut it down."

Masain frowned after coming to that conclusion.

"But for us, stunts like lowering were impossible. Sir Ilma and I have tried many times... .."

"Right."

Seongjin answered like that and looked back at the tree.

'Of course, there would be a sure way for me to go up and cut it myself.'

But opportunities were limited. When I first climbed the tree, I felt like I was overdoing things by turning my Aura around too much.

You can try one more time, but if you don't get to the top and cut down another branch, you're in trouble.

If only I could have seen what the demon lord sees.

'... uh? for a moment.'

Seongjin blinked as a flash of thought passed through his mind.

I am definitely lending my sense of smell and taste to the devil bastard. But is this sharing of sensations truly one-sided?

When the Demon King first tried to connect his senses of taste, didn't I see something strange in my field of vision for a moment?

'Hey, devil!'

[huh?]

'Can you possibly connect the visuals with me?'

[What?]

'Wouldn't it be possible to share your perspective with me, like you do when eating, and show me what you see?'

Then the Demon King looked embarrassed and answered.

[...] Wait a minute, Seongjin Lee. That may be too sudden, but it will probably be difficult.]

'why?'

[First of all, there is no way for humans to experience the senses of a demon without being completely possessed. The dominant relationship between the senses is so clear. Moreover, this is a special case, so it is even more impossible. Because I do not have a body, there is no sense to share.]

'Then what are these things you see?'

[Strictly speaking, it is not 'seeing'. It's just something I can sense because I'm in a soul state. Maybe you will know when you die and become a soul? It is a 'spiritual eye' that living humans do not have.]

'hmm.'

I fully understood what the demon lord said.

But then, what was all that haze that Seongjin had seen before?

[It's probably because you're touching your senses and stimulating them incorrectly. Was it not temporary sensory confusion?]

The Demon King seemed to think nothing of it, but strangely enough, Seongjin was strangely confident that it was not just confusion.

Although it was only a brief glimpse, I felt like I was seeing something closer to the essence of things.

'If it's impossible for him, can't we try the reverse on my part?'

Somehow it seems possible...

Seongjin closed his mouth and tried to vividly recall the momentary sensation he felt at the time.

Strange lines carried by the wind, and a green haze shimmering over the swaying grass. The yellow and blue shadows that overlapped with people.

[uh? Seongjin Lee, what are you doing now? ... ?]

The demon king asked as if he was embarrassed, but Seongjin concentrated his consciousness even more and sank within himself. Then, the memories of that time begin to come back vividly, as if they were lies.

A tea cup that glowed blue and blue steam rising from it. A pink haze coming from the cold ground.

And, the bright shadows of the priests and paladins glowed exceptionally white.

Seongjin didn't realize it, but before he knew it, a faint red light that had never existed before was blinking in the center of his pupil.

[Lee Seong-jin?! What did you do now?]

While the Demon King was shocked, Seongjin raised his head and slowly looked around.

Then, a new scene filled with colorful and brilliant light, completely different from before, unfolded before my eyes.

Aside from the deep blue torches held by the knights, the dark night sky, devoid of any light, was covered in a soft red light.

Even in the air that was thought to be empty, there was a faint light.

There are only demons covering the Demon Tree. The evil energy was just writhing in an ominous black color without any color.

Seongjin remained in that state and observed the tree carefully.

Strangely, in the middle of the trunk of the magic tree, faint shadows that appeared to be human shapes were seen gathered together.

Although it was hard to tell from the outside, there was clearly an empty space at the bottom of the tree, and there must have been a living person left there. Of course, it was fading as if I would die soon.

The yellow light that gathered and spread out from them turned into one long line along the tree trunk and continued all the way to the top.

And the exact center of the tree where the line of light ends. In the middle of black magic energy.

A round lump of light is visible, emitting bright light as if pulsating. Perhaps that is the growth core that the Demon King spoke of.

[this! How could this happen! A human without spiritual eyes can steal the devil's spiritual eyes so easily?]

The Demon Lord shouted in an almost panicked state.

However, there was no time to seriously explore this condition with him. My eyes were already tingling badly, and I was starting to get a strong headache from the back of my head.

'I don't think I can keep this up for long?'

Seongjin decided that way and declared to the Dajjagojja group.

"I'll go up this time too."

"yes?"

"Lowering! What on earth is that... ... !"

Masain, who was about to shout loudly, was shocked and stopped talking.

In the eyes of the prince, who was staring at the tree as if fascinated, a light that now felt very familiar was seen.

Silver-grey eyes that emit a strange light in the dark of night, as if they themselves are a light source. And an ominous red pupil that occasionally blinks within it.

"I don't have time to explain at length now. But if I go up this time, I will definitely be able to cut it down. So, I need you guys to help me so I can go up quickly."

Seongjin's confident words made the group look at him, speechless for a moment.

The young prince was enveloped in a strange aura that was somehow different from usual. He was so overwhelmed by the atmosphere that he did not even dare to raise a different opinion, but the prince ordered his companions without any discomfort.

"Lord Masaine. Knock on the tree first with an Auror blast. Since the light's attack is very strong, it will probably be able to minimize the movement of the demon beast for a while."

"... .."

Masain did not answer readily, but Seongjin, who faced her slightly trembling eyes, was convinced. If he insists on doing it, he can never say no.

"Lord Ilma. If the Aura blast stops the tree, will you be able to raise me as high as possible? "In the beginning, I want to conserve Auror use as much as possible."

"... "Yes, sir."

Lord Ilma looked like he was struggling and answered reluctantly.

Originally, it was natural that the prince's safety should be prioritized above all else, but for some reason, it occurred to him that there would be no way to get rid of that demonic beast other than the method suggested by the prince.

"Grand Duke. leader. You two, along with the Wolf Knights, cover me from below. If the sword energy doesn't reach you, it would be okay to use arrows. "It's just that if I climb more than halfway up the tree, his attack itself becomes a stepping stone, so I don't need to provide any more cover than that."

"All right."

Orden nodded with a dull face.

After catching a glimpse of Manager Bruno, who was looking at him with meaningful eyes, Seongjin turned towards the Demon Lord.

"Okay then, shall we begin?"

My legs are heavy when I walk. My overworked shoulders and arms are feeling tingly and even mildly numb.

Above all, my whole body throbs from the shock I received from falling earlier.

Nevertheless.

Despite all these adverse conditions, Seongjin somehow felt confident that he would be able to move up more easily than before.

Because now before his eyes, previously unseen paths and new possibilities he could not even imagine were wide open.

Kuaaaaang!

An intense explosion caused by the explosion of all Auras.

The magic tree, whose base had burst open, trembled as if it had been electrocuted, and then stopped moving with a squeak sound.

"Now, sir! Lord Ilma!"

At Lord Masain's shout, Lord Ilma started jumping onto the magic tree while supporting Seongjin.

Whisper, thump!

Auror users on the 9th floor, close to Dekaron Knight.

Indeed, the difference in power was something that could not be ignored, and even with Seongjin in tow, she leapt to a position much higher than the distance Seongjin could run alone.

In that way, they broke through the bottom of the Demon Tree quite smoothly.

However, when he had just passed the first third of the tree, Sir Ilma's gallop faltered for the first time.

Although the movement of the demonic tree has not yet fully recovered, the demonic energy that has been accumulating since before is surrounding it like a thick fog.

Seongjin glanced up and ordered her.

"Go back now, Sir Ilma."

"yes? Lowering! but... .."

"I'm fine, don't worry."

"... .."

Lord Ilma was a little hesitant, but soon agreed and lowered Seongjin onto the branch.

For some reason, I started thinking that it would be strangely difficult to refuse the prince's orders.

"Well then! Good luck!"

Sir Ilma shouted and fell down. Of course, he didn't forget to cut one of the thick branches into pieces as he went down.

Chiaaaa! Squeak!

The magic beast awakens from shock and begins to wriggle again. However, after tapping her foot a couple of times, Seongjin looked at the path clearly laid out before her in a relaxed manner.

okay. It's a path.

The movement of branches shooting up randomly, and the movement of branches bending like whips in all directions.

The possibilities implied by the countless movements become several distinct solid lines that are intertwined and unraveled, emitting a sparkling light.

After blinking his now burning eyes a couple of times, Seongjin started running along the path without hesitation.

Peeing! Hiss!

Every now and then, an arrow flies past the side and gets stuck violently in the branch attacking Seongjin. The branch was shocked, flinched, and then flew back, making the prediction even more difficult.

Seongjin's eyes were already following the arrow's entire path and the resulting consequences without missing a single detail.

When you step into a space where you think you can see branches like an illusion, new branches sprout up and fill the space without fail.

If you jump in thinking that the path is slightly different from the actual branch that flies, the arrows that were covering you will soon hit the branch and fit the path.

Running along the path in a trance, Seongjin couldn't tell whether he was predicting the path or deciding.

"... "How is such movement possible?"

The knights who were shooting arrows under the tree looked at the prince in fascination without realizing it.

It was amazing when he first climbed the tree. The movements the prince was making right now were so surprising that they were almost bizarre.

When he hangs on a wildly shaking branch and rises and falls, a new branch flies in its place as if waiting and pushes the prince upward and upward.

It literally felt like a ray of wind flowing naturally through the trees.

In that way, the prince instantly gained altitude and set foot on the top of the ever-growing Demon Tree.

[Lee Seong-jin! It's no longer possible!]

Seongjin, who had been following the path as if possessed, came to his senses when he heard the devil's desperate cries.

'huh?'

[Do you know? You're a little weird right now! My eyes are getting damaged!]

'uh... ... '

Only then did Seongjin sense the warm liquid flowing down his cheek.

'He said his vision had become a bit blurry for some reason.'

I thought it was because the magic energy had become darker, but maybe it was just the eyes themselves that were getting cold.

Not only that, but my mind wasn't normal either. The headache, which was not only painful but also hot, felt as if the nerves in the back of my head were gathered together and lit on fire.

'But it's almost over!'

Without losing his last concentration, Seongjin raised the nutcracker towards the round sphere shining in front of him.

Boom, boom, boom!

The growth core of the magic tree that emits light as if pulsating.

As if sensing the approaching danger, the demonic energy emanating from it became even stronger.

Whick!

With one light slash, the immovable target fell from the stem so vainly that it rose into the air.

Passsss.

The core instantly loses its light and breaks into pieces.

Kiiiiiii...

The branches that had lost their cores also twitched and twisted, then shrunk and fell helplessly to the ground.

The ground under my feet suddenly became empty and I felt my body floating.

'Oh! yes!'

Come to think of it, I only thought about cutting this down and forgot about the escape route. If this guy doesn't attack, there won't be any foothold to stand on.

The air became empty for a moment.

I tried to turn my blurry vision and look down, but my nerves, overworked to the limit, clicked shut my consciousness as if flipping a switch.

Closing his blood-filled eyes, Seongjin fell helplessly 30 meters below.

189*

189. Method of Penitence (1)

After the prince climbed up the Demon Tree like the wind and disappeared above the treetops with lush branches.

Kiiiiiii...

When the magic beast suddenly stopped moving and began to shrink, Bruno realized that the prince's plan had succeeded.

"... Did you finish it?"

But the joy was short-lived.

The group was shocked as they watched the remains of the Demon Tree sinking faster than expected.

The tree was shrinking in size until it completely crumbled and disappeared into thin air. Like most dead demons, they are quickly being summoned back to the demon world.

Oh wait! if it goes like this... ... !

"Your Majesty Mores!"

just as expected.

The prince's body, which floated in the space left behind after the demonic count disappeared, soon began to fall downward at a rapid pace. As if something had happened above, he was drooping down as if he had completely lost consciousness.

"Lowering!"

Sir Masain, who had become thoughtful, threw his sword on the floor and ran towards the prince.

"this... ..!"

Bruno also tried to raise a small amount of aura and stretched out his hand towards the falling prince.

However, it was not enough to support the boy's body as he began to accelerate. Bruno gritted his teeth and thought.

'It would be better if the consciousness of the lower level was still awake!'

When the first prince fell from the Demonic Water.

It was Sir Martha who safely caught the falling prince, but at the last moment, it was a large number of auras that suddenly materialized that decisively slowed the prince down.

And Bruno definitely knew that familiar Auror. A unique rough yet delicate aura that appears and disappears every time the prince meditates.

It was clear that the prince, who was inexplicably skilled in using Aurors, had unconsciously materialized Aurors when a crisis arose.

But now that I am unconscious, I can no longer hope for such a fluke.

'... If only His Majesty came here now!'

However, Bruno, who glanced back at Sir Sharon with such a glimmer of hope, was soon unable to hide his look of disappointment.

This was because she was staring blankly into space and muttering non-stop as if she had completely lost her mind.

Even without that, the uncontrollable channeling was running wild.

"Have you come? Have you finally come?"

"But why are you doing this to me...?""

"Wind, blow! Faster, faster, faster, faster, faster... .."

"Mores, wait! Slowly, slowly, slowly, slowly, more slowly..."

"Ah, I see! We are waiting!"

But, is it just a coincidence?

Immediately after Sir Sharon started muttering, somehow the wind around them felt like it was slightly speeding up.

A wind that blows naturally, slightly different from the materialization of an auror, blows fiercely towards the prince from bottom to top.

At the same time, the speed at which the prince was falling was decreasing slightly. As if something was pulling him out of thin air.

'... 'How on earth did this happen?'

While the embarrassed Bruno glanced at Sir Sharon, her incoherent muttering continued.

"Ahh, I didn't want to disappear like this!"

"Wake! Seongjin Lee! Seongjin Lee!"

"We are waiting for you forever."

"Quickly, quickly, quickly..."

"Slowly, slowly, slowly..."

"You have answered our prayers, now just command!"

That moment.

An amazing thing happened right in front of the group's eyes.

As the demonic tree disappeared, the demonic energy that had lost focus and scattered suddenly began to come together as if they had their own will.

And the demons soon flocked around the prince. As if countless hands were holding him.

Little by little, the speed of the falling prince is slowing down.

"Good luck dad! Hurry up! hurry! hurry!"

"Dad, Your Majesty! Daddy, Your Majesty! "Dad, Your Majesty!"

"Lee Seong-jin! Seongjin Lee!"

"I am waiting. Only if you come to us and command us... .."

Now Sir Sharon was shedding tears incessantly.

Unable to control channeling, she ends up deeply sympathizing with even the faintest emotions that come with her thoughts.

It was the channeling of a sensitive psychic who could pick up even the faintest thoughts that Bruno could not even detect.

"we are... Just be quiet... .."

Stumbling.

With those words, Sir Sharon lost consciousness and fell to the floor. Her flagship, Bruno, quickly supported her and shouted.

"Lord Sharon!"

We hurriedly checked Sir Sharon's condition, but fortunately she was breathing evenly. It seemed like it was probably a temporary side effect from excessive channeling.

Meanwhile, Prince Mores, whose speed had slowed further, was now slowly descending as if he were a feather fluttering in the wind.

"... How could this... .."

The entire group stared blankly at the incredible sight, feeling entranced by something.

And finally.

The prince easily rested on Lord Martha's arm, wrapped in the magic energy that surrounded him like a cradle.

* * *

Slurp and clatter.

Nate slowly opened his eyes on the rippling water.

I always got extremely sick when I came out of the crevice, but every time, the artificial pond in the prayer room did its job well.

It is about eliminating the sense of disconnection from other spaces.

If you exclude the force you feel in your body as much as possible, you will be able to adapt to reality much faster when you return from a gap.

As I was leaving my body in the gently swaying waves, I naturally remembered the command my son had given me not long ago.

-Father, I have a favor to ask.

The day before he left the imperial capital, his son came to see him and boldly opened his mouth.

-ask.

-yes. I won't be here for a while, and I feel really uneasy about just leaving.

Nate was dumbfounded.

Who is anxious about whom now?

-okay. What did you ask for?

-It's very simple. If there is someone who opens a gap again while I am away, please give them a hard time. If there are people invading Delcross, put an end to them... . No, if you get rid of them before they invade... ..

-... ..

- Isn't this it? Even if you only have the intention of breaking in, it's better to do everything from the beginning... ..

Nate, who was watching his son diligently remembering everything that came to mind, couldn't help but chuckle.

Even though it was never properly explained, the child seemed to have thought about his own role and wanted to somehow create cause and effect.

-It's a waste of mental energy, Mores. In order to move cause and effect, you need a specific object that you perceive, whatever it may be.

Sigurd Sigurdsson, for example.

As long as he was hidden in the doll's body, he was treated as a full-fledged human being according to the [Agreement].

Therefore, as long as he did not break the rules of this world or commit an act that was beyond the scope of humans, cause and effect did not occur, and therefore the Holy Emperor could not touch him first.

That is the limitation of success required by the [agreement].

My son's will was the only exception. The only condition here was that the son had to recognize exactly who his doll was and request it.

However, Nate cannot be the first to tell us about the identity of the doll. Because it violates the [agreement].

This was also the reason why Sigurd Sigurdsson had to throw away the doll immediately after his son discovered his identity.

As long as the son knows the identity of the doll, he can die at the hands of the Holy Emperor at any time at the son's request.

-Do you mean that anything is useless unless it is a specific target? Hmm, then... ah! How about this?

The son pondered for a moment and said.

-If you get caught in a gap, always come back safely. father.

Hwiik.

A weak wind enveloped me and my son for a moment.

Nate was blinking blankly, and his son, who astutely noticed this, smiled brightly.

-haha. There was definitely a response this time! It worked, right?

okay. Perhaps the cause and effect created by that child was at work. Nate thought as he slowly rose from the surface.

The intruder this time was a rare, powerful alien monarch, but it was resolved relatively more easily than expected.

'But I was away for quite a while.'

Beep-

As I impatiently open the channel, my head is filled with loud tinnitus. Because the gap had severely distorted the space, it seemed that channeling was not yet working properly in this area.

'First, you have to get out of here and listen to the night report from Sir Sharon... ... '

Although the motion sickness had not completely gone away, Nate walked out the door of the prayer room, his feet dragging wetly.

However, the expression on Katrina's face, who was waiting outside the door with a blanket, was somehow unusual.

"This is a message from Arenja, Your Majesty!"

Nate frowned at those words.

If something is urgent, wouldn't it be okay to send a message directly?

It's Kornsei.

It's like a group of shrewd people who don't even come near when a gap opens.

But at her next words, Nate's face hardened.

"Prince Mores and his party are said to have encountered a demonic species called [Demon Beast]. The subjugation was successfully carried out under the leadership of the prince, but your Majesty was seriously injured... .."

Nate didn't listen anymore and expanded the channel.

However, Sir Sharon failed to respond to his call. It looks like he's either unconscious or so severely overloaded that he can't receive Nate's thoughts.

Instead, he heard his children crying and desperately looking for him from somewhere.

[Good luck dad! Hurry up! hurry! hurry!]

[Dad, Your Majesty! Daddy, Your Majesty! Dad, Your Majesty!]

Without even having time to say anything to Katrina, Nate suddenly threw himself away and became a spirit.

-Faha!

Hearing Katrina's cries in the distance, he began to fly towards the place where he last saw his son.

* * *

"Lowering! Lowering! Are you okay?"

Masain shouted urgently as he laid Prince Mores on the floor.

At first glance, the prince didn't seem to have any major injuries, but for some reason, the fact that his eyes were continuously bleeding was unusual.

In addition, he never regained consciousness, and his forehead was as hot as a fireball.

"Call the priest! "Hurry up and treat me!"

However, no one was willing to approach them. It was because of the demon energy that surrounded the prince.

Masain, who noticed this, tried to disperse the demonic energy by stirring it with his hands, but strangely, the demonic energy that had gathered around the prince did not fall easily and only continued to circle around him.

"Lord Masaine! For now, avoid Gyeongdo!"

"Erosion is already happening!"

As he said, numerous black stains were already forming on Masain's face and arms.

Although he was a member of the Seonghwang family that was relatively strong in demonic energy, he had no choice but to continue to be exposed to dense demonic energy. It was the result of not caring for the prince earlier.

Even in this terrible demonic energy, is it fortunate that the prince still shows no signs of erosion?

But at this rate, it was only a matter of time.

"Let's purify the demon energy first!"

Not only Sir Valery, but also the hastily summoned priest Gustav was mobilized and began to pray to purify the demonic energy.

However, as the car was stamping its feet without any significant results, there was a sharp voice scolding Manager Bruno.

[You idiot! What are you doing if you don't shout out loud?]

'... 'Red?'

Bruno asked in surprise.

'How did this happen? 'What on earth happened up there?'

[That's not important now! What is that crazy paladin doing? Quickly tell him to call his father!]

Then Bruno answered with a disappointed look on his face.

'As you can see, Sir Sharon is unconscious right now. 'It's impossible right now.'

[what? But are you letting go like this? Then shouldn't you call him quickly?]

'But Red. With my poor channeling, I cannot convey my thoughts all the way to the ecliptic. Moreover, I am not even a vessel worthy of containing Your Majesty.'

[Then wake up the crazy paladin quickly! Without borrowing his body, it will be difficult for him to do anything even if he comes here. It will have a big impact on causality!]

The Demon King, who was furiously scolding Bruno, suddenly shouted in surprise.

[uh? what?]

'Why are you doing this, Red?'

However, General Manager Bruno also immediately noticed the abnormality. Dekaron Knight's keen senses detected the subtly heavier density of the air.

"What is this?"

Priest Gustav and Sir Valery, who were in the middle of praying, looked up in confusion.

Suddenly, I felt like the whole place was filled with divine power.

A sacred feeling, like when you enter the ecliptic and encounter grace for the first time. An aura that ranged from reverential to frightening filled the air around them.

and.

Coo!

With a strange pressure pressing down on the area.

It's a disaster.

The demonic energy surrounding Prince Mores evaporated all at once and soon disappeared without a trace.

190*

190. Method of Penitence (2)

[Repent. Repent.]

Seongjin was listening to a sound coming from somewhere.

It was a man's voice, humming a tune as if singing. Although it was hoarse and cracked, the voice still had the power to dig deep into a person's inner self.

Bethelah.

As if responding to the voice, several people join in and chant a short slogan.

'... What does this mean?'

Once Seongjin paid attention, surprisingly, the voice gradually got closer.

[We are all sinners.]

Bethelah.

[So kneel down here and repent for all your sins.]

Bethelah.

'Bethelah... ... '

Seongjin absentmindedly repeated that slogan.

It's not unfamiliar at all. I'm sure I heard this from someone a while ago.

So, maybe it was Rohan's bastard?

While Seongjin was thinking about this, the man continued talking.

[Listen. We were born on this earth by tearing our mother's belly, drinking our father's blood and trampling on this land. That's all! I would not hesitate to give up an equal life in order to breathe a few more days. They bring harm to the world just by existing, and what atrocious sinners they are!]

Bethelah.

[Even a handful of breath or a word we exhale will be nothing more than mere filth that pollutes the world. Ah, so how can I just watch this quietly? How can one endure this without repenting?]

Then, many voices in agreement chant a soft song.

Ah, Lord. We are all sinners. Please punish us for our sins.

[Then, brothers, brothers of penitence! How will you repent for that deep sin?]

People answered the man's question.

I will punish myself by throwing myself into penance.

I will constantly confess my sins through pain.

With their blood we will wash away all evil.

Now Seongjin was not only seeing their sounds, but also seeing their appearance right in front of his eyes.

The sight of hundreds of people kneeling on the cold stone floor in a huge cavity and praying.

'... 'Is this a dream?'

However, these scenes are too vivid to be dismissed as mere dreams.

They were all pitifully thin, their faces visible through their shabby monastic robes, and their limbs were covered with countless scars and wounds.

And in the center, where people are looking up, there is a man standing on the podium.

He, like the believers, was thin, and his body was full of new wounds.

However, despite this, the appearance that looked down on the people was extremely imposing and imposing. His bushy beard and unkempt hair flutter here and there like a lion's mane.

[That's right! Everything becomes clear only through our suffering. Only endless penance will make us aware of our sins!]

The man's loud voice echoes through the pupils and shakes the souls of the believers.

People repeated after the man as if they were fascinated.

Bethelah.

Only endless asceticism.

[Only utter suffering will help you repent!]

Bethelah.

Only utter pain.

[Pain, suffering is the only way to truly repent.]

Seongjin, who was watching the scene, thought in bewilderment.

Hey, they say if you believe, they will give you wealth and fame. Or say that you will be given eternal life in heaven.

'No matter how fake it may be, how does this kind of evangelism work for people?'

Okay, let's give in and say that all humans are sinners.

Then you can repent in a more productive way.

Putting yourself in pain is just self-satisfaction that is of no help to the world, right? In the end, you are just consuming a lot of oxygen and emitting carbon dioxide.

'If you have the stamina to punish yourself, you should at least cultivate a field and be of help to the world! Still, if you can't forgive yourself, don't be a nuisance and just sleep in a corner.'

Seongjin snorted and thought so.

But as if he had heard his thoughts, the man on the podium suddenly turned to Seongjin.

'... ... ?!'

The moment their eyes met, a light of astonishment appeared in the man's eyes.

[■■■■ ■■?!]

'what?'

[What are you doing there now... ... ?]

What are you? Are you talking to me?

How are you looking at me?

What did you just call me?

At that time, someone's familiar voice echoed in my mind.

[Go back, [Mores].]

... father?

Whisper for a moment.

The scene before his eyes became distant, and Seongjin's consciousness quickly soared somewhere.

* * *

Tap, tap, tap.

Seongjin opened his eyes, feeling his body shaking occasionally.

Familiar cushioning and vibration. Perhaps he was now lying in a moving carriage.

"Are you awake, sir?"

"... Sir Masaine?"

Seongjin turned his head toward the sound, but couldn't see him.

"... .. ?"

For some reason, my vision was strangely dark, and something seemed to be closing my eyes.

I looked puzzled and tried to touch it, but there was a hand blocking my movement.

"Leave it as it is, sir. "I don't know if you remember, but he suffered a serious injury to his eye."

"injury... .."

Only then did the memories of the previous day quickly pass by in Seongjin's mind.

The appearance of a gigantic demon tree, the annihilated upper level of Milo, and the colorful and brilliant scenes that unfolded before my eyes as I borrowed the demon king's senses.

And the headache that was eating away at the back of my head, and my eyes that were burning brightly.

Strong.

Just thinking about it makes me feel like the headache from back then is coming back. Seongjin gave up thinking any more and relaxed her entire body.

"How long do I have to do this?"

"Father Gustav's judgment is that it would be better to not see the light of day for a while. Since Sigismund is not far away, it would be a good idea to show it to the council member there and then remove it."

"hmm."

I felt over the bandages, but I couldn't feel any pain in my eyes.

'I think I'm fine...'

However, Seongjin decided to listen to Masain.

I wanted to quickly check if my eyesight was okay, but it would still be better to listen to the priest's advice. There is no harm in being careful.

'Besides, Lord Martha, the atmosphere is somehow unusual.'

As if he was trying hard to suppress something, I could sense an air of danger coming from him.

Is this unsettling?

If Seongjin tried to do something on his own, it seemed as if the seal would be lifted at any moment and an angry command would pour out of his mouth.

"Lord Masaine. How much did I sleep? Now..."

I cautiously opened my mouth, but just then the carriage clattered to a halt.

"You slept all morning. "It's almost time for lunch."

Masain stood up and spoke in a low voice.

"Well, now that I've confirmed that you've woken up safely, I'll just go. "A dedicated maid will come and serve the meal, so please don't skip it and eat it, Your Majesty."

Masain then opened the carriage door and went out.

Without even giving me the chance to ask questions about what happened yesterday or about the Demon Tree.

'No, wait a minute!'

At the very least, I wanted to ask how I was unharmed after cutting the growth core and falling from such a high place!

Seongjin, who was lying blankly, immediately shook his head and spoke to the demon king.

'Wow, Sir Martha, I think he's really angry.'

[...]]

'... 'Demon King?'

But there was no answer from him.

It definitely feels like something is stuck in a corner of my head, right?

'Hey, what's wrong with you again? Why aren't you saying anything? What's going on?'

Then I felt a small vibration stirring in my head.

[Sniff...]

uh?

Hey, are you crying? why?

[...] Who cries? I'm tired and need to rest, so don't talk to me for a while!]

The demon lord who fired like that soon fell into silence.

'... Huh? 'Why is everyone doing this?'

It was so absurd that Seongjin sat in his seat with his mouth open and dumbfounded until Edith brought the meal.

Meanwhile, Bruno, who had just sensed the prince moving, asked Sir Martha when he came out of the carriage.

"Lord Masaine. "Did you wake up safely?"

"yes."

"That's a good thing."

Bruno breathed a sigh of relief.

There was a time when I really wondered what would happen, but luckily everything worked out smoothly.

yesternight.

The sacred energy that suddenly landed where the party was, instantly blew away the demonic energy surrounding Prince Mores and completely purified the remaining remains of the Demon Tree.

The prince's body was then enveloped in sacred white light. The bleeding from his eyes stopped immediately, and even the minor scratches on his body completely recovered.

It was literally a miracle that appeared suddenly.

-Lord!

Lord Masain, who gently flipped his eyelids to see that the prince's eyes were fine, sat down with an expression that made him look ten years older.

The miracle did not stop there. Even some articles that showed signs of gradual erosion were completely restored.

Even Lord Masain, who had black spots all over his body due to the severity of the erosion, was cured without a trace.

Thanks to that, the Wolf Knights, who had been whispering about the demonic energy surrounding the prince, were immediately taken aback.

The sacred energy disappeared immediately after that, but the group, including Priest Gustav, spent some time voluntarily praying in gratitude to the Lord for a while afterwards.

-Perhaps His Majesty's spirit came to you.

Sir Sharon, who came to his senses later, said so.

Certainly, the prosperous person that Bruno is familiar with would be more than capable of performing such a miracle.

Bruno was still a little dazed, as he had never before performed such a miracle with just his soul.

"Then I have work to do, so I'll stop."

Sir Masaine said that in a quiet voice, and walked towards the field, tightly grasping his sword. It looks like he plans to take a short break and practice again.

'Don't be in a hurry, you should take your time...'

Bruno stroked his mustache while looking at the back of the knight, who looked somewhat nervous.

I knew that he had been accelerating his training recently.

Especially today, my eyes are literally half-closed, and I've been swinging my sword at every opportunity since dawn.

It's not that I can't imagine the terrible helplessness that Sir Martha must have felt last night.

One, it is now time for him to aim for the 10th floor as an Auror. It is time for him to look at his inner self in a somewhat relaxed manner, rather than just practicing blindly.

"Captain Bruno!"

At that time, an exorcist came running calling him from over there.

Last night, while channeling, I suffered from overload and collapsed, but now I seemed to have fully recovered and seemed to be fine.

"Ah, Sir Sharon. "Are you feeling okay?"

"Fine... No, that's not important now!"

To Bruno's question, she answered with a straight face.

"Somehow, something is strange. The channel is closed until now! So please tell me in more detail what happened yesterday!"

"yes? "What is that all of a sudden?"

As Bruno asked in bewilderment, Sir Sharon exclaimed with a rare expression of nervousness.

"Your Majesty's channel! No matter how much I called, there was no answer at all!"

* * *

Nate was currently in a kind of [gap] with his soul.

Because someone used power to directly summon his soul here.

Of course, this place was different from the unstable [gap] that otherworldly monarchs usually forcibly open to invade.

A place where the owner of space is determined and the structure of space and time is relatively stable. It was a place where the [Meeting of the Six] that protects the dimension would sometimes be held.

'Tatiana will probably lead the morning business meeting well, and Katrina will take care of my personal affairs. There is still room.'

A vast space where time and space have completely stopped, colored in faded gray and frozen here and there.

Nate, who was swimming in the middle of it and worrying about various things, soon felt a little irritated.

'I feel like I want to cut it down right now... ... '

Breaking it down with force and returning was not a task, but dealing with it afterwards becomes difficult in many ways.

That was why he was waiting for the owner of the space, mustering up all his patience.

[How long are you going to make me wait like this? Could you please hurry up and hold a meeting, a hearing, or something else?]

Nate finally ran out of patience and opened his mouth.

As his voice spread out, creating a gentle vibration, the frozen space vibrated and made a crackling friction sound.

[Or are you protesting like this? Don't make me waste your time if you're not going to help me anyway. As you know, I am a very busy person.]

In the end, it was around this time that Nate started stroking the salmon around his waist and seriously considering splitting it.

[...] The meeting will not be held.]

He heard a heavy voice that was quite familiar to him.

Suddenly, a tall old man appeared behind Nate and was staring at him. He is an old man wearing a simple gray robe.

His face was very clear and sharp, and if he had been younger, it would have seemed like he had quite a sensitive look.

The outline, which had gradually become rounder over time, combined with the shapely eyes, made the viewer feel a strange sense of brilliance.

[I persuaded them well. What is it like? Have you cooled off now?]

In the golden eyes of the old man staring at Nate, only the pupil is slit vertically and narrows.

[...] Elderly.]

Nate took his hands off his waist and sighed softly.

191*

191. Method of Penitence (3)

The old man has protected this dimension of Delcross since the distant past.

He saw with his own eyes the era of the three ancient dragons come to an end, and after the 'Initial Agreement' was concluded, he played an active role as a guardian of the dimension, and after the founding of the Holy Empire of Delcross, he personally created and led the 'Council of Six'.

He was an old man who had lived for such a long time and had seen many things, but even to him, the young man in front of him was a very mysterious being.

An extraordinary boy left behind by the Sentai Oracle, who risked his life. He is a boy born with infinite talents, as if he had God's love all to himself.

At first, all I wanted to do was get a little help from such a boy. But when he came to his senses, he had suddenly become a huge pillar that could support the dimension alone.

Aren't we reaching the edge of God's power that even the elderly have yet to glimpse?

'... Nevertheless, this child is human.'

Unfortunately, the young man's human limitations were clear. He was unable to maintain the neutral attitude that a transcendental person should display, and did not have the slightest hesitation in using his power for personal purposes.

It would have been natural for the 'meeting of six', which had not seen several accidents, to ultimately decide to give him rein in the form of an [agreement].

But this incident may have made everything clear.

The fact is that if this dangerous young man puts his mind to it, he can easily crumple the [Agreement] like a piece of paper, even if he easily endures the disadvantages that will come.

In the end, the wise old man had no choice but to maintain the status quo by appeasing both the 'council of six' and the young people.

[What on earth is this? Berseus is on the rampage. I'm saying we need to call a meeting and take all authority away from you right away.]

However, despite the old man's gentle scolding, Nate's expression remained sullen.

[He is a person who, if he could, would have committed it without saying a word. Isn't that impossible, so you're borrowing the authority of the conference?]

[It's not just Berseus. All members are anxious about your unexpected behavior.]

[Is that so?]

[okay. There are many opinions that we need to decide on your successor even now. They say that even if you cannot exercise the power of a king, it will be better than causing accidents on your own. It would have been great if we had understood their anxiety earlier.]

The long, slitted pupils of the old man who said those words came to rest on the brightly shining golden tube above Nate's head.

Then, a faint sneer appeared on his face as he noticed my gaze.

[That's interesting. Why not give it a try? This is something we cannot hope for.]

[...] Hey, Nate.]

[Convene a meeting and decide on a successor. Then I will immediately hand over the position of Guardian, take his wife and children, and remove myself from this dimension. If you wish, I will also release [Disaster] into the world as is.]

[...]]

[Just like last time, everyone will gather here again and just watch helplessly as another dimension fades away. How about we all toast together? It would be perfect to crack open the moonshine that Mithra is proud of.]

The old man sighed quietly at that sharp reaction.

When meeting face to face, Nate had a somewhat calm and detached aura. She has a callous attitude that does not reveal her true feelings about most things and does not show even the slightest agitation.

Even an old man who had lived for a long time was a person whose true intentions were difficult to guess.

However, when he becomes a soul, the story is different. Because it was impossible for the soul to hide its emotions and thoughts in the first place.

That was why the old man tried to face him in spirit as much as possible. Of course, along with expressing my honest feelings, I had to endure the occasional cynicism and sarcasm.

[I'll tell you this, old man.]

Nate raised the corners of his mouth and smiled crookedly.

[The reason I waited quietly in response to the elder's summons was nothing more or less than a sign of respect for the elder who has worked hard for the world.]

Perhaps by summoning Nate here, the old man was trying to show the members of the 'Council of Six' that his influence over him was still intact.

After reassuring the members, I tried to make a nice picture by giving a little warning to Nate as well.

If it had been my true self, I could have just pretended that I couldn't win. But now, Nate was neither able nor willing to hide the repulsion he felt.

[The reason I accepted the [agreement] full of unreasonable restrictions was also because the elder said that it would be somewhat advantageous for the Delcross dimension for the 'Council of Six' to continue. But what was the result? When [the disaster] occurred, what did the 'Council of Six' decide and do?]

[...]]

[If I had known that everything would be held back like this...]

Seeing the young man expressing pure anger about the 'Meeting of Six', the old man thought that he should calm him down.

[Wasn't the matter too heavy at that time? Now everyone knows that your judgment was right.]

What the old man said was true.

When the [Disaster] exploded, Nate was the only one who insisted on forcibly separating the two resonating dimensions, and this argument aroused the ire of the members at the time.

Naturally, he faced strong opposition, but this young man said he had no time to persuade him and instead pushed through with force.

In this way, Delcross barely escaped total destruction and survived with a flimsy half-wall.

Now everyone realizes that there was no other way, but the problem at the time was that Nate was able to easily suppress the members' opposition with his strong power.

That memory remained a great threat to the members of the 'Council of Six'.

[But then and now are different. You are currently falling for the tricks of evildoers and are obviously walking down the wrong path. So, aren't all the members worried about your unexpected behavior?]

The old man patiently and calmly encouraged him.

[You must also know how to let go of what is already gone. But what about the 'that' you cherish now? Anyone can see that going against nature is nothing more than harm to this world.]

[...] I will not tolerate any more than that, no matter how old I am.]

[Please cool down a little and see the results of what you have done. What is happening to 'it' that has been freely released into the world! I heard that they even opened a door to the demon world in the ecliptic?]

[...]]

[It's the same in this case. Where does the magic tree often appear? How do you not know that one of the upper sections was accidentally caught in this accident!]

Then, in the eyes of Nate, who was glaring at the old man fearfully, a strange silver glow appears.

[Are you discussing the cause and effect of something in front of me? If I do, I will tell you clearly. If it had not sprouted early because of that child, where would the tree of the demon world have taken root and how many lives would it have taken?]

[that...]

[Unlike all of you who remain silent in the face of impending disaster, at least the steps the child takes are contributing a little to the world.]

The old man kept his mouth shut.

The opponent is an oracle who is said to have dared to steal the eyes of the gods. There will be no mistake in those words.

[...] It's all consequential talk. Just because more people survived, we cannot ignore the sacrifices of others. You can't play numbers with your life, right? Moreover, the fact that 'it' still distorts countless causes and effects in the world does not change.]

In the end, all the old man could say was such a trivial, fundamental protest. But Nate's reaction was cold.

[If you are going to say such useless things, please send me away. There is nothing to worry about. Same as back then. In the end, no matter what I do for that child, the causality of the world has no choice but to tolerate it. Don't you know?]

The eyes that met the old man's gaze gave off a cool glow.

[Anyway, a world without that child breathing cannot exist.]

The old man immediately understood the eerie meaning of his words.

That was truly a consequential story.

* * *

It was late in the afternoon when Seonghwang opened his eyes.

"your majesty!"

"your majesty! Are you out of your mind?"

Empress Melody, who was anxiously guarding the side of the bed, smiled happily and took the Emperor's hand.

"... melody?"

Seonghwang blinked blankly and looked around.

Then, behind her, we see Luis, full of deep emotions, and Francis, his lieutenant, who looks somewhat dissatisfied.

Francis narrowed his eyes and stared at the Emperor, then presented his report in a businesslike manner.

"Have you finally arrived, Your Majesty? Thanks to oversleeping, Captain Katrina is doing the useless work of guarding the front of the prayer room with the knights. "Officially, His Majesty is still in the prayer room."

It wasn't just for a day or two that the adjutant complained that he couldn't see the leader suffering even the slightest bit. Seonghwang sighed slightly.

"okay. "Tell Katrina that you had a hard time."

"yes. "Okay then, I'm going to go see the leader to end this useless play."

The adjutant, who pushed up his glasses, simply bowed and left the room without any worries. Now that the Emperor has regained consciousness, further escorting is virtually meaningless.

"The Empress concluded the political meeting successfully. "The official audience is taking a little longer, but he said he will soon finish all his schedule and come here."

Seonghwang closed his eyes without any response to Lewis' report. However, Melody, who had been seeing him for a long time, did not miss the slight look of relief that flashed across Seonghwang's face.

And there was silence between them for a moment.

I don't know for sure, but as always, she is probably receiving various reports and giving instructions through some unknown method.

While he was putting out the fire in such a hurry, Melody reached out and touched the head of the lying Seonghwang. It's like her habit of being nice to her daughter when they're together.

"What happened? "I was very worried."

Melody cautiously asked Seonghwang, who eventually opened his eyes and got up.

"Everything was resolved safely. "It wasn't like I was tied up next to you."

"You've rarely been away for this long without saying anything, right? "Everyone was worried about Your Majesty."

Perhaps sensing something in her voice, one of Seonghwang's arms slowly comes up and wraps around Melody's shoulder.

From the time she first met him, the arm that had firmly supported her in every moment of crisis. Melody quietly rested her head on one of Seonghwang's shoulders, feeling even the slightest hint of anxiety disappearing like the melting of her eyes.

"Was it trouble because of the wrong things again? "You really are creating problems without getting tired."

"... .."

"Even though Your Majesty is suffering like this, there is no end in sight. I always get nervous every time Sisley goes on the road. If this is the case, I wonder if the day will come when I can escape the ecliptic and travel to my heart's content... .."

Seonghwang did not answer. However, Melody was able to realize her answer as she felt her arm around her shoulder gain a little more strength.

"Hehe. Don't worry. "It's not Your Majesty's fault."

"... "It was a promise to show you the canal city someday."

"Never mind. That's all fine too."

That was Melody's sincerity.

The Emerald Palace where she lived had a huge garden that was maintained with more care than any other villa. The largest greenhouse in the imperial palace was built, and there is a beautiful pond with small waterways flowing through a maze of twists and turns.

The beautiful garden that has been gradually expanded is proof that the Emperor has not forgotten his old promise. Melody thought that was enough to make her happy for now.

"I must say this now, but back then I actually liked the promise of a canal city and a vineyard."

Melody, who confessed such a small confession, burst into laughter.

In some ways, it was a smile that was very similar to Sisley.

"Actually, I fell in love with Your Majesty's face, not the promise."

"... .."

And the thing about hitting the back of the head out of nowhere was the same as my daughter's.

Melody smiled brightly and lightly stroked the hair of Seonghwang, who looked somewhat lethargic.

* * *

At that time, a small untimely commotion occurred in the Ruby Palace.

For some reason, Empress Lizabeth left the room with her hands severely burned.

"Mama Lizabeth! "How can this be!"

"Are you okay?"

"I'll call the doctor right away!"

However, the Empress shook her head with an expressionless face.

"Don't tell His Majesty, but quietly call a doctor from outside the imperial palace."

"Haona... .."

"Do you understand? "I don't want to worry him."

In response to her extremely firm words, the head maid quietly bows her head.

While the chief maid left and the dedicated maid went to get cold water, the empress returned to the room and stared at the table in the room in silence for a while.

There, 'Little Saint Aurelion', with half his head burned, was rolling around. Not long ago, that unknown thing was a small statue sent to Lizabeth.

Lizabeth, who had been glaring at the unsightly tanned statue, soon looked away and quietly closed her eyes.

If something is already irreversible, it must at least come to an end.

Perhaps that will be the only penance she can make.

192*

192. Sigismund Order (1)

After coming to his senses in the carriage, Seongjin felt frustrated because he could not properly understand the situation of the group for a while.

His eyes are completely covered with bandages, making it difficult to move, and for some reason the devil bastard is all sulky and stuck in his head.

As for Lord Masain, he just checked Seongjin's condition and quickly left, and now he's swinging his sword near the carriage as if he's protesting.

'I guess I'm really angry this time... ... '

It was so uncomfortable that the chaotic flow of auras that was not well controlled could be felt even to Seongjin.

I feel like I want to punch him, but I'm holding back because he's the prince, right?

'No, isn't this all too much? I did my best in that situation!'

puck!

Seongjin, feeling aggrieved, kicked the carriage seat hard.

Fortunately, after a while, Seongjin was able to hear a brief story from Edith, who had brought lunch.

"We decided to split the group in half. Archduke Sigismund left for the county first with us, and most of the Wolf Knights, including Commander Ilma, remained on the scene."

"Split it in half? why?"

"I heard that the Archduke suggested that it would be a good idea to show you to the councilor in Sigismund as soon as possible? "The others probably haven't left yet because they're busy cleaning up after themselves."

I thought it was strange that the group's popularity had decreased drastically.

I wonder if there were any casualties.

"Oh my goodness! "I heard that you played a big role in cutting down that demon species?"

Edith continued as she poured stew for Seongjin, who was blindfolded.

"The drivers were all in an uproar over that story, weren't they? "Prince Mores created an Auror blade and cut down the trunk of a huge Demon Tree with a single sword!"

Seongjin mumbled and thought shakily.

'... No, I just climbed the tree hard.'

How on earth does a story become so exaggerated? Suddenly an Auror Blade?

By the way, Edith, you watch me practice every day and still believe that?

"Sir Claudia was especially proud. I am so proud of you, saying that you are truly a genius... Now, please do it, my Majesty."

The stew is in my mouth without any time to reply. Seongjin thought as she chewed her food, feeling utterly bewildered.

Lord Claudia, why would someone who should know get caught up in such nonsense?

"And that Mr. Laurent, he seemed very impressed after hearing your performance. "I've been holed up since last night just holding the lyre because I'm reminded of the evil spirit of martial arts poetry!"

"... ..!"

Seongjin was shocked.

what? Now you're telling me to turn that nonsense into a song and stuff it forever? Why, with Laurent's lame sensibilities?

"Hehe. Aren't you looking forward to what kind of masterpiece will be created, aren't you? Ego!"

"... .."

The prince, who had just become an Auror, cut down a demon species that even the leader of the Wolf Knights could not cut with a single blow with an Auror blade?

Is it possible for such a ridiculous song to resonate throughout the ecliptic?

'No matter who hears it, wouldn't they laugh excitedly because it's an exaggerated propaganda praising the prince?'

Such a shame! Isn't this too cruel for a price paid to reduce damage to this side as much as possible?

Dejected, Seongjin completely lost his appetite.

After that, Edith continued to offer stew to Seongjin and chatted about various things without him ordering it.

It is said that right after Seongjin cut off the growth core, fortunately, the demonic tree was summoned back to the demonic world without any unusual events.

Aside from Seongjin, who suffered a serious eye injury, no one was seriously injured or contaminated with demonic energy, so the hard work was worth it.

"Unfortunately, they said the Milo upper tier seems to have been wiped out. So, I heard that the knights stayed behind to collect their remains and retrieve some of the preserved items from the top. "Inquisitor Sir Valery stayed with them just in case something happened."

"hmm... .."

I clearly saw that the owner of the merchant was still alive.

Giacomo Milo seemed to have taken advantage of the battle to hide somewhere.

Anyway, I guess I heard the general story. Seongjin was about to eat lunch when he heard a knock on the carriage door from outside.

"Lowering. This is Orden. "How are you feeling?"

"I'm fine. what's the matter?"

"If you don't mind, I have something to discuss."

"Oh, come in."

Then Orden and his subordinate Herman opened the door and came in. As they each sat down in the seats across from Seongjin, Edith put down her dishes and went out without notice.

As soon as the carriage door closed, Orden first greeted Seongjin politely.

"First of all, I would like to thank you. It would have been difficult for our Wolf Knights alone to take on the Demon Beast, and even if we had taken down them, we would have had to endure great damage. "I owe you again."

hmm. I didn't even think about this because we were all caught up in it, but it looks like this simple guy is creating debt on his own and accumulating interest.

It was truly a desirable phenomenon.

"Okay, what do you have to say?"

"It's about the subsequent investigation."

This is what Orden first reported to the monster task force. The reason was that the Milo clan was distributing unidentified tea into the territory through connivance with the dark church, and that they were asking for action to be taken against this.

However, due to this incident, the case has become a bit ambiguous.

The Milo Sangdan, the culprit behind everything, was wiped out by the Demon Tree. In that case, Orden thought that this was the end of the situation.

But Seongjin shook his head.

"Not yet, Grand Duke. Yesterday evening, I definitely saw Giacomo Milo, the owner of the merchant. "I didn't have time to talk because the Demon Counter was in a hurry."

"... Is that really true?"

"Yes, it looks like he escaped safely. "If he's alive, nothing is over yet."

Orden seemed a little surprised, but he didn't seem to doubt Seongjin's words.

"If that is true, it is highly likely that Milo Sanjangju has returned to Regina."

Hermann said as he clattered the dishes next to him.

"Going that far alone? Is it possible?"

"It won't be impossible. "Didn't you say before that you suspect he may be a devil pact?"

It was like that.

This is a fact that was discovered through Branch Manager Schmidt of the logistics relay station. The devil himself even checked the list of devils, so it's probably certain.

So Seongjin had hinted about this to several people involved in the investigation, including Dasha.

"Until now, he has been wary of us, but now that he has lost all of his top tier, he will have less trouble. "I heard that if a demonic contractor starts to use its power properly, it can do things that ordinary people can't even imagine."

Seongjin nodded and asked.

"Then what is the basis for the merchant's return to Regina?"

"That's because there is a logistics relay station there. All customs records are kept, and temporary help may be obtained from the funds of the Merchants' Union. Since it is the place where all logistics in the northern part of the continent gather, it would not be impossible to obtain necessary supplies in an urgent manner and organize a temporary business."

Although it suffered great losses due to this incident, Milo Sangang will remain as long as the owner of the Sangdan is alive. It was also a sturdy top that could not be shaken once rolled up.

Therefore, the Milo Merchant Marine Company had an obligation to supply daily necessities in a timely manner to the Sigismund Order with which it had an exclusive contract.

Moreover, Hermann explained that no matter what he was planning against Sigismund, he was not going to give up on a plan he had been working on for years.

"That means that if we wait in the territory and conduct various investigations, Giacomo Milo will come looking for Sigismund on his own. "There is no need for us to intentionally inquire about his whereabouts."

"yes. "Maybe not."

hmm. Seongjin was lost in thought, and without thinking, he took the stew held out in front of his mouth and asked.

Mumbling.

"And sir, actually, I have something more important to discuss with you."

Orden had kept his mouth shut until then. He seemed to sense the presence around him for a moment, and then he opened his mouth softly towards Seongjin.

And when Seongjin heard his words, he flinched and asked.

"Are there any survivors?"

"yes. Surprisingly, some people were found alive under the magic tree."

In a place where erosion occurs immediately when an ordinary person touches it? How?

'... Oh, come to think of it!'

When Seongjin first shared the Demon King's spiritual eye, he remembered taking a quick glance at the structure of the Demon Tree as a whole.

At that time, I clearly saw shadows at the bottom of the tree that I assumed were the souls of living people.

After that, I was so out of it that I completely forgot about it.

"The reason the Wolf Knights stayed behind is not only to collect the remains and retrieve the items from the upper chamber, but also to properly arrest the survivors."

"... .."

Judging by their cautious attitude, they probably aren't the top survivors.

Since it was discovered right under the Demon Tree, it may be the culprit that summoned the Demon Tree.

According to Sir Sharon, the Demon Counter is also called the [Confession Tree], and it is also the Church of Penitence that is suspected of being in collusion with the Milo Sangang.

then.

"Are they perhaps remnants of the Penitent Church?"

Then, Hermann next to him spoke in admiration.

"Yes, you are correct, sir! Looking at their behavior and circumstances, I suspect they are also a penitential sect!"

And sook. A spoonful of stew enters my mouth as if complimenting me.

Mumbling.

what? Something strange from earlier?

But without even thinking about it, Orden spoke next to me.

"That is exactly what I would like to discuss with you. "It is right to interrogate them and investigate the connection between the summoning of the Demon Beast and the Milo Merchant Marine, but taking them straight to the Sigismund Territory like this will inevitably involve many risks."

"Are you willing to risk it?"

"yes. Someone in the territory... Either intercept them midway, or let them escape... There is a risk of... .."

Orden suddenly stuttered, but Seongjin understood exactly what he was concerned about.

They are even considering a situation where the Margrave interferes with their interrogation, or even acquits them of charges.

Moreover, if such an unfortunate incident occurs after openly allowing them into the territory, the Heresy Tribunal may be suspicious of their relationship with the Dark Church.

"... That is why Inquisitor Sir Valery remained with us."

At least on the surface, they are under the control of the Inquisitor, but they are probably considering ways to detain them outside the territory or bring them into the territory privately.

"You are truly brilliant. "When discussing anything with me, I don't know how convenient it is because I don't have to explain anything in detail."

Along with Hermann's smiling compliment, something pops into my mouth again.

Mumbling.

"... huh?"

Seongjin suddenly realized the identity of the sense of discomfort he had been feeling earlier and unconsciously stopped the chewing exercise he was doing.

At that time, I heard the sound of dishes being clattered next to me. And soon after, Seongjin realized that something had been pushed right in front of her face.

"... But Hermann, what is this doing?"

"Oh, did you notice, sir?"

Hahaha, Hermann continued with a friendly laugh.

"This is shameless. Because you almost had food left. It's an old habit that I don't even know... .."

Then he explained awkwardly.

"Actually, since I was young, I fed my younger siblings a lot on behalf of my busy parents. The most obvious thing to do is to distract the kids with other topics and secretly spoon-feed them. "I don't even know how to do it, and before I know it, I've finished the whole bowl."

"... Hermann? "What on earth is this to me?!"

Orden's panicked voice is heard from next to him. He seemed to be so focused on the conversation that he didn't notice anything strange at all.

Does this guy know how dangerous it is to put anything into the mouth of the royal family?

Seongjin was so dumbfounded that he was about to open his mouth when he heard the sound of clattering and scraping the bottom of the stew.

"Now, just have one more drink and you'll be done, sir."

You never give up until the end.

Hermann. He was quite a strange guy.

193. Sigismund Order (2)

That afternoon, the imperial palace.

Chloe Mia de Valois got off the carriage and crossed the Silver Rose Labyrinth garden with a little excitement. There was a formal invitation from Princess Amelia.

Recently, she was frequently visiting the imperial palace under the pretext of studying with Prince Mores, and even so, she was receiving a lot of envy from the ladies her age.

However, as the prince was leaving on a business trip, he personally introduced himself to Princess Amelia. She promised to have tea time with the princess on a regular basis, and this was her third visit.

'If this continues, becoming the next social queen is not my dream!'

An exchange with the beautiful princess, who is said to be the Emperor's favorite.

Even if the princess marries a foreign royal and leaves Delcross, the deep friendship she developed will be a great help to Chloe in her future social activities.

'Besides, the princess is such a wonderful person!'

On the first day she was invited, Princess Amelia unexpectedly made this request to Chloe. I want to study Breton and other foreign languages properly, so I ask for regular help in the future.

And surprisingly, the princess spoke Breton and Lohan at a fairly high level.

Since Chloe also did not yet have a deep knowledge of the Lohan language, she happily decided to hold a study group of sorts to exchange help with the princess.

It has already been a thousand years since the imperial language became the official language of the continent.

There was a prevailing perception that wasting time learning a foreign language was inefficient.

Nevertheless, Chloe had a lot of fun learning foreign languages.

What words are derived from one etymology, and what differences do they currently have in each country?

What difference in nuance occurs if the sentence is translated literally? How are small grammars different?

Chloe loved the moment of realizing those minor differences and the process of adjusting the misalignments to fit together.

And recently, when she began studying with Princess Amelia, Chloe had the amazing experience of broadening her horizons of knowledge.

The conversation with the princess, who had a lot of knowledge about various countries on the continent, gave me a vivid feeling of being connected to the culture and history of that country, which was just a simple foreign language.

As a result, rather than building good connections, I found myself truly looking forward to meeting the princess.

On the contrary, it was clear that Chloe also left a good impression on the princess. After having her first tea time, the princess smiled brightly and said this to Chloe.

-What Mores said was true. He was said to be a talented person who will lead the Ministry of Foreign Affairs in the future...

Ministry of Foreign Affairs? I just want to be the queen of society and live a wonderful life that everyone can see?

However, from that day on, Chloe sometimes imagined herself becoming a competent government official and achieving success.

'Did you arrive a little early...?'

In front of the quaint drawing room, Chloe thought as she adjusted the hem of her pretty purple skirt. Since the feast day of St. Grazier was just around the corner, she was deliberately dressed in a color reminiscent of the uniforms of the knights of St. Grazier.

Chloe's curly hair is also decorated with a lot of purple flower grass, whose flower language is [sacrifice]. This is also the virtue that the Knights of St. Grazier considers most important.

There are times when others would give her a glare, saying she was giving it too much meaning, but still, the princess immediately recognized the things Chloe had carefully prepared the other day.

'So this time too...'

Chloe was led into the living room, her cheeks flushed with anticipation.

"Lady Chloe! Welcome. Ah, it's already getting closer to Saint Grazier's feast day."

Princess Amelia greeted her with a smile as bright as a rose.

Look, I thought the princess would properly recognize this.

"I guess I came too early. But what is all this?"

As I sat down on the sofa and looked around, there were a lot of small pieces of cloth scattered on the tea table, along with a belt ring.

'... Sewing it yourself?'

As expected, the princess's pretty fingers were full of puncture wounds here and there.

What on earth can the princess do while hurting herself like that?

While I was wondering that, I saw a few small, crinkled pockets on one side of the table.

"pocket... Did you make it, sir? "What is it for?"

Then, in an instant, a dark expression crossed the princess's face.

"It's no big deal, Lady Chloe. Actually, I had a nightmare last night. It was a scary dream where the cute little Saint Aurelion fell down, down, and was torn to pieces. "When I woke up in the morning, I felt so anxious that I felt like I had to do something to this little statue."

So, he was making a pocket for the little saint by hand.

"If that's the case, you have a dedicated maid, right? "Will you make a pretty pocket for me?"

"I don't know how to explain this, Chloe. "Somehow, I feel like this will only be meaningful if I touch it myself."

Chloe looked at the princess's desk with a bewildered expression.

There, a bald old man wrapped in colorful silk is smiling with a kind face. A statue of Saint Aurelion that Princess Amelia proudly showed off when they last met, saying she had received it from Prince Mores.

This is what Chloe thought at the time.

'Prince Mores really has no interest in the detailed meaning of the gift...'

In any case, it seemed that the brotherly love between the brothers in the thriving family was not usually very deep, as they treated such a trivial gift with so much care.

Thinking about her brothers who went on business trips abroad and didn't have any gifts, Chloe felt a little envy towards the princess.

"It looks simple when you think about it, but I have no idea why it shriveled up like this after I finished sewing it."

Amelia looked at several failed projects and sighed.

The pocket she pictured in her head actually had a separate model. It was the white lace pocket that Sisley showed at Jinju Palace during lunch.

-Last night, I had a nightmare about the bald old man being engulfed in flames. So this morning, Seo Yi-seo and I made a pocket for the old man to fit into. Since several layers of consecrated silt cloth were sewn together, it will definitely be a small blessing on Mores' journey.

This was why Amelia, who was already tormented by nightmares, decided to make the pouch herself with great care.

"I also want to bless that child's journey. I wanted to give at least a little help like this..."

Because the princess looked very discouraged, Chloe couldn't help but roll up her sleeves.

"So, wouldn't it be okay to get a little help? "I'm not confident in sewing, but if we do it together, we can make prettier pockets."

So the two put aside their foreign language studies and devoted hours to sewing.

It was ironic that Chloe, who picked up a needle and thread for the first time, actually sewed much more skillfully than Amelia.

After struggling for a while, the two were eventually able to create a clumsy pouch that fit the little saint.

It was a bonus that a small flower pattern was embroidered on the end of the pocket, and a cute cone-shaped hat suitable for a bald old man was created.

'... There's something satisfying about it.'

The textbooks that I worked so hard to prepare were put aside, and the flower grass that decorated my hair was disorganized and a mess.

'But isn't this good as is?'

Chloe, who was looking at the princess with a bright smile that brightened up the living room, had been smiling happily along with her for some time.

* * *

Aside from being sensitive to presence, being blind is extremely uncomfortable.

It was a natural fact, but Seongjin was feeling that fact to his core after only half a day in the carriage.

Time passed quite quickly as I meditated, but as I closed my eyes, small problems that I had not even thought of continued to arise. Even though Edith was there to help and support him closely.

In the end, out of frustration, I tried to secretly lift the bandage while no one was around.

[I'm watching everything, Seongjin Lee.]

In my head, the demon lord warned me in a gloomy voice.

[I will tell everyone. Then he will tell everything to your guardian.]

'... ... '

Who is the protector, who!

Seongjin, who was momentarily speechless, belatedly protested to the demon king, but his hand was secretly lowered from the bandage without his knowledge.

This is because it immediately reminded me of Lord Masain's face with a hard expression.

[joy!]

The devil bastard snorts, then sinks into his head again and begins to ramble on about something.

What on earth has that guy been doing since a while ago?

And when dinner was over, Manager Bruno, who had not been seen all day, visited Seongjin. For some reason, he seemed very tired.

"There was a little problem at the imperial palace today. "His Majesty was unable to regain consciousness until the afternoon, and Arranger was put on complete alert."

what? By afternoon? That long?

Seongjin jumped up from his seat without even realizing it.

Sir Sharon had already heard that a gap had opened in the imperial palace last night.

However, I thought that if it was a success, it would have been completed on its own. Didn't he prepare cause and effect in advance to prepare for such a time?

"Ah, you have now returned safely and returned to work. Rest assured."

The leader said this as he caught Seongjin, who was about to run out of the carriage.

Although Seongjin sat down again after those words, he couldn't completely relax his mind. Because he remembered the terrible motion sickness he experienced last time.

It was so hard when I was there for a short time, is he okay now?

"According to Arendja's information, the period of time that [the gap] was open was not very long. "There is probably another reason why Your Majesty was unconscious."

Director Bruno was one of the few people who really knew about [Gap].

Even when he was originally a close associate of Seonghwang, he knew that strange things that were difficult to explain would sometimes happen around him.

And now that he has become Arenja's salary thief, most of the restrictions on information have disappeared.

Thanks to this, Seongjin was able to hear a more detailed explanation of what happened last night from Manager Bruno.

Strange phenomena surrounding Seongjin, who fell after cutting down the magic tree.

About the demonic energy that flocked to Seongjin and the holy energy that suddenly appeared and purified everything.

"okay. Lord Masaine..."

Seongjin became solemn for a moment when he heard that Masain Gyeong, who had not been able to properly take care of his body because he was busy protecting himself, had suffered from erosion so severe that it was almost impossible to recover.

Sir Martha, you have reason to be angry.

If you say you want to hit someone, I think you should be willing to give them at least one hit.

"But fortunately, the same energy that drove out demonic energy and restored my body also completely cured Lord Masain's erosion."

It wasn't just Lord Masain who suffered erosion. No matter how much you protect your body with aura, it is impossible to completely block magical energy like smoke floating in the air.

Most of the knights who participated in the battle experienced large or small erosion.

However, the erosion, which should have been suffering for a while while being treated by priests, was swept away by the holy energy and completely disappeared.

Even the materials held by the top are the same.

A significant number of items that would have been completely unusable due to contamination by demonic energy were purified and preserved. Thanks to this, we were able to somehow supplement the daily necessities that were lacking until the mill returned to the top.

"Archduke Sigismund and the Wolf Knights seemed to believe that the divine blessing bestowed on the Holy Family had caused a miracle... .."

However, not only Director Bruno but also Seongjin could easily tell who had caused the miracle.

While they were unconscious, that gentleman must have come to visit them.

"So, is your father okay now?"

"Yes, sir. "I heard that you also received a regular report from Sir Sharon earlier."

"okay."

And there was silence in the carriage for a while.

"... "I can't just ignore this?"

Seongjin, who was contemplating something with his mouth closed, eventually opened his mouth in a slightly calm voice.

"Who is saying that they can use those materials as they please? "The person who completely purified the unusable items was the wrong person?"

I don't know, but the fact that Mr. Seonghwang couldn't wake up for over half a day may not be completely unrelated to this incident. So, you can't just ignore that effort, right?

"I will make the Lord Milo and the Margrave pay for it."

"yes? "How?"

When Manager Bruno asked again in confusion, Seongjin twisted the corner of his mouth to the side and gave a mischievous smile.

"I have to sell it to the Margrave for money. "Isn't it obvious?"

194. Sigismund Order (3)

The next morning, Seongjin called Orden and Hermann and unilaterally informed them of the following matters.

-The recovered goods are definitely the property of the merchant, so the County of Sigismund must pay the entire price for the goods to the merchant.

-Of course, the cost of the knights' hard work in collecting and recovering the items and the transportation costs of transporting them to the county must be properly deducted.

Orden, who had been listening quietly, nodded silently.

"That seems to make sense. "I will do so."

Then, Hermann next to me cleared his throat slightly.

Hey, no way. Did you think that the top tier was wiped out and plan to eat them all raw?

"I beg your pardon, sir. Milo's whereabouts are still unknown, so who should he pay the money to? In addition, Giacomo Milo is currently suspected of being a devil pact. "As soon as we have evidence, we will arrest you right in our territory."

In other words, if he was arrested in the County of Sigismund, his property would also naturally be confiscated from the territory.

There was a church that ostensibly performed the function of a heresy court, and most of the church's property belonged to the lords who ran it with their own money.

"Tsk tsk, Hermann. "That means that one person knows one thing and the other does not."

Seongjin clicked his tongue and explained everything to the young administrator.

"first. Giacomo Milo was formally reported to the Monster Task Force by the Archduke. The Inquisitor and Exorcist of the task force with investigative authority have already begun the investigation. Therefore, he is clearly under the jurisdiction of the imperial capital."

"yes? But didn't we start the simple investigation first? Arresting him and trying him is also in the territory... .."

"No, his trial will be held in the imperial capital. A complaint has already been prepared to be submitted to both the court and the Heresy Tribunal. So that we can file a complaint as soon as he arrives at Sigismund's estate."

"... four?"

Surely you guys can't prepare for trial faster than that? We're still having a hard time finding any solid evidence, and the investigation will begin in earnest only when the merchant owner shows up, right?

"So he is a prisoner under the jurisdiction of the imperial capital. Your property will also be confiscated by the imperial capital. Accordingly, the Sigismund Order has an obligation to transport him to the imperial capital immediately after arresting him."

In what gap?

Hermann muttered in bewilderment.

Seongjin twitched the corner of his mouth confidently. Even before departure, they were ready to summon the owner of the merchant, using as evidence the minor corruption that Dasha had investigated and the medal that Orden had submitted.

Crucially, we obtained information from Branch Manager Schmidt and created the basis for the search and seizure of the court.

All that was needed was proof that he was a demon contractor, and thanks to the demonic beast that appeared this time, that problem was also solved.

Even if it was not the owner of the sangang who summoned the Demon Count, the testimony of the paladins who accompanied him was enough for the Heresy Tribunal to arrest and investigate him.

"And there's one more thing to keep in mind. Giacomo Milo belongs to the Merchants' Union. "I don't know if you are familiar with the terms of membership, but from what I heard, much of his wealth was already pledged to the Merchants' Union from the start."

"Merchant Association... .."

"After he is arrested, he will probably have to pay a huge penalty, but who do you think the Merchants' Association will charge that to? No matter how much they seize your property, will it all be taken away by them?"

"... .."

You probably didn't even think about this part.

This is what Seongjin also heard from Branch Manager Schmidt at the logistics relay station.

Of course, the branch manager said that he would do his best to avoid problems with penalties and collateral, but this would be enough to scare that naive young administrator.

"And there is one more important problem than anything else."

In the silent carriage, only Seongjin's voice rang out clearly.

"He was involved in a scandal and put a member of the Holy Family in great danger. "I should also receive generous compensation for that."

So the conclusion is.

"Give me the money."

"... yes?"

"You just have to give it all to me. "I will deal with the Merchant Association, so don't worry too much about what happens next."

Then I heard Hermann taking a breath.

"Some kind of big guy is charging a penalty from Seonghwangga..." ...
."

"what?"

"No, no. "You are right."

The administrator, who quickly weighed the profits and losses in his head, eventually surrendered and cried.

He must have been happy all day long, saying that he had saved a lot of money on the territory's budget thanks to his efforts. Feeling a bit sorry for Hermann, who was looking sullen, Seongjin decided to show some kindness.

"Since we exterminated the Demon Tree with the help of the Wolf Knights, we will also deduct the appropriate cost. "Bring the rest of the payment to me as soon as it's ready."

"Wow, it turns out that I'm a total thief..."

"what?"

"No, it's nothing, sir."

Then, Seongjin suddenly felt strange eyes staring at him.

As I perked up, I saw that not only Herman, but also Orden, Sir Martha, and even Captain Bruno were staring at Seongjin in silence.

Seongjin, who sensed their anxious feelings just by looking at them, pouted his mouth.

What did I say wrong?

what? why? what?

* * *

Anyway, that day and the next day. Seongjin's smooth yet frustrating journey continued.

When you try to secretly take off your eye patch, the quiet Demon King suddenly becomes agitated, and when you try to get out of the carriage to relax, Masain appears from somewhere and whines.

It makes you wonder if the condition was that serious before recovery.

'I really... . There are things I have done, so I will endure it just this once...'

But I could only sit and meditate for a day or two, and staying in the carriage all day made me feel sick to the point of death. With the aura accumulating day by day, my patience also gradually increased.

And around that time, the surrounding temperature began to drop rapidly.

Sometimes, when the carriage door was opened, snowflakes would blow in with the cold wind and land on Seongjin's cheek.

"It's because I'm slowly falling under the influence of the Demonic Sutra."

Masain said as he wrapped me in a thick cloak prepared for cold weather. Next to him, Edith is putting thick gloves on Seongjin's hands.

"Are Sir Martha and Edith all right?"

Judging from the presence next to them, both of them were still wearing their usual light clothes.

"Yes, sir. it's okay. "Because we are using aurors to block the chill."

Seongjin furrowed his eyebrows at Edith's answer.

'In terms of Auror level, I am now slowly surpassing Edith. 'Why am I treated like a child?'

As if he sensed Seongjin's thoughts, Masain added an explanation.

"It's because you built up your Auror levels too rapidly. "Usually, you naturally acquire 'Auror homeostasis' by going through a cycle of seasons before and after entering the initiation."

"hmm..."

"It's about distributing the aura evenly throughout the body, so when the amount of aura you use is small, you slowly build up the layers to adapt. But I haven't taught you how to use it yet, have I?"

It's not that difficult, so just get used to it slowly from now on. Masain reassured Seongjin like that.

However, Seongjin was not the kind of person who would sit still after hearing those words.

Seongjin, who listened to the detailed explanation while guiding the two people, soon succeeded in spreading the aura throughout the body and generating heat without any special demonstration.

But the problem was exactly what happened next.

'... 'Is it too easy?'

Seongjin lost interest in an instant.

It was so easy that I couldn't even practice it!

'Continuously warming your body by using aurors is not much different from continuously moving your body and generating heat in cold weather, right?'

There is a sense of accomplishment in concentrating and building up layers, but it is not fun and annoying to just blindly consume auras.

Seongjin, who grumbled internally, put on his thick cloak and immediately stopped using the Aurors.

'Is it because I keep covering my eyes? For some reason, everything is bothering me and I just end up sleeping.'

Of course, the biting cold was still there, but Seongjin had an alternative.

A small, flat stone placed inside a glove. It was a magic stone that Sisley gave me before leaving.

Warm.

Seongjin smiled happily, savoring the warmth that was conveyed appropriately.

'The little boy has quite a bit of foresight. 'This is quite warm.'

It was while I was lazing around in the carriage for a while, rolling stones.

"... ... ?"

Suddenly, Seongjin raised his head, feeling an unfamiliar gaze as if someone was observing him from afar.

Although it was only for a split second, the gaze was quickly withdrawn. It was a very intense yet dry gaze that swept over everything from head to toe.

'... Hey, devil? 'Didn't you feel it?'

Seongjin called the devil with an uncomfortable feeling.

but.

[what? What gaze? If you're tired, don't talk nonsense and go to sleep. I'm busy right now!]

Once again, I heard a harsh scolding from the Demon King.

That's really strange.

Anyway, what is this guy doing so busy?

"The gaze? "I didn't feel anything unusual."

Manager Bruno, who was next to him, was also embarrassed and answered Seongjin's question.

'... 'Is this really an illusion?'

If even the former Dekaron Knight leader couldn't sense it, it was probably Seongjin's mistake.

Wow.

From somewhere in the distance, you can hear the long howl of a wolf.

Seongjin, who had been feeling anxious for a moment over the carriage, soon felt drowsy and buried himself under his warm cloak.

On the fourth day of having his eyes bandaged, Seongjin was finally able to be free from the frustrating bandages.

When the messenger who left for the territory first arrived, the Count Sigismund family hurriedly sent the family doctor.

"The territory is only a day away, but I decided that I needed to check on my condition as soon as possible, so I asked the attending physician to come here."

Certainly, if something were to happen to the royal family who were visiting the estate at the invitation of the Archduke, it would be Margrave Sigismund who would be in real trouble.

Seongjin also had no intention of telling Orden that he had worked hard for no reason. Because he wanted to take off the bandages as quickly as possible.

And as was natural, the condition of Seongjin's eyes that the doctor saw was completely normal.

"You may take off the bandages now, sir. Of course, you should not look at the light that is too bright or stare at the snowy mountain for too long just yet."

"Okay, thank you."

Seongjin took off the bandage and sighed in relief.

In fact, since the success came and went, I assumed that he had probably recovered well. It's just that the Demon King and Lord Masain's behavior has been a bit odd recently, so I just tried to please them.

And for the first time in a few days, Seongjin stepped onto the ground outside the carriage alone, without anyone else's support. Meanwhile, the landscape had completely changed, and now the surroundings were all snow-covered fields and snowy mountains.

after.

I exhaled without thinking, and white breath appeared in the air.

"Lowering! Are your eyes okay now?"

Sir Claudia, who was guarding the bonfire, came running in with joy.

"huh. "They say it's okay."

"I was worried! I was really worried! You can't ever run off alone like that, leaving us alone again! yes?"

"uh..."

Seongjin absentmindedly nodded, looking into her eyes where joy and rebuke were mixed.

Come to think of it, over the past few days, Sir Claudia has been constantly snooping around the carriage and looking around.

It is a loyalty that can feel a little blind. Sir Claudia, why on earth can I care so much?

"Uh, Mr... "Can I take off the bandage now?"

Soon after, Kalmen appeared holding firewood and asked that question with his mouth wide open.

you bastard Did you just try to swear again?

"... "No, no."

"..."

"Seed... "It's not really!"

It was when he was subtly disparaging Calmen.

'... 'Again!'

An unfamiliar sensation running down the back of my head.

Seongjin turned his head and looked at the snowy mountain in the distance.

There is definitely someone watching you from up there on that mountain. This time it was definitely no illusion.

'Hey, devil? 'Can't you feel that?'

[why? What is it?]

The demon lord still seems to have no idea.

After all, you have no choice but to check it with your own eyes.

Seongjin, who was carelessly trying to take a step towards the snowy mountain, suddenly realized that Masain was watching his every move with his eyes, and sighed.

Oh right. Maybe you like that guy who is in complete overprotective mode?

Awww.

A little closer than yesterday, the long howl of a wolf was heard.

195. Sigismund Order (4)

"... "Would you like to take a walk?"

Seongjin nodded to Masain's question.

"huh. walk. "I just want to go up to that area."

Seongjin decided not to get on the nerves of this sensitive knight for the time being. Wherever we go, we will talk first and follow him around as much as possible.

If he sneaks out one more time, he won't sleep and will be monitored. Of course, to deceive the eyes of the senior knight who was closely guarding him, Seongjin still lacked that 'faith'.

"I want to take a good look around the snow-covered scenery. "I've been feeling frustrated because I've been stuck in the carriage these days."

Masain's eyebrows twitch and raise for a moment. I could clearly see her thinking, 'What kind of trick is this?'

"It's still dangerous to walk around. Because the demonic realm is close, you never know when the demonic spirit will appear. "For the past few days, I've been hearing wolves howl nearby."

"All I have to do is have you escort me, right?"

"That is... I also don't have any experience dealing with magical beasts, so I don't know what kind of unexpected situation might arise... .."

However, Herman, who was listening from the side, helped Seongjin without notice.

"You don't have to worry about that, Sir Martha. Wolves spend the summer near the Sigismund Territory and move up to northern Ortona before fall. "The sound of the wolf you heard was probably a straggler from the pack."

"... .."

"Since we've stopped on the way, we'll have an early lunch here. It will take some time to prepare, so it would be a good idea to have a moment of refreshment with the prince... uh? "Why are you doing this?"

Hermann, who belatedly realized Masain's sinister expression, trailed off. Then, Director Bruno silently taps his shoulder, filled with condolences.

"uh? uh?"

Seongjin smiled happily at Hermann, who was sweating coldly as he felt the unusual atmosphere.

Hermann. I will not forget your sacrifice.

Are you really amazing at making me feel like I want to voluntarily reduce the price of an item?

* * *

Knock knock knock.

Footprints are engraved in the white paper-like snow field.

A sight of tall coniferous trees standing silently, covered in clean ice flowers. Seongjin looked around, once again filled with emotion.

'Snow, how long has it been since this?'

After Gehenna's invasion, the Earth experienced an abnormal climate and suffered from high temperatures like midsummer all year round. Thanks to this, there has been no snow for decades.

Seongjin, who had been truly appreciating the surrounding scenery without realizing it, soon came to his senses and focused his senses on the purpose of coming here.

'That gaze... ... '

The gaze that had been following Seongjin as if it were going to be cut off was now moving away from him at a certain distance as the distance reached a certain distance.

And it was only around that time that the demon lord noticed something unusual.

[I think I know what you're talking about, but I'm not sure. It's too blurry.]

'okay?'

[But how did you know? Is it still so far away that I can't even see your soul?]

Well, that's fine. What is this?

Anyway, is there any way to catch up with the owner of that gaze? Even if you try to chase after them, it is not easy to run because your knees are deeply buried in the snow.

Seongjin turned his head and looked at Masain and Orden following him a few steps behind.

Masain, who was opposed to taking a long walk, only reluctantly gave up his stubbornness when Orden, who had a lot of experience subduing demonic beasts, offered to accompany him. Of course, he still had a dissatisfied face.

On the other hand, Orden looked relaxed, as if he had just gone for a walk.

'No, wait. 'Your steps are really light, aren't you?'

Unlike Masain, who pushes the snow away with each step and creates a long ditch, Orden moves easily, treading lightly on the snow.

The snow was thin and wide around his footprints, leaving faint traces like snowshoe tracks.

Wow, it looks really amazing and comfortable. Is it something like the 'answer' that I've only heard about?

"Grand Duke. "How do you do that?"

Then Orden paused for a moment and looked down at his feet.

"Ah, this is called 'Schunischhe', an old Auror practice that is only passed down to the Sigismund Territory. "You can't take your snowshoes on and off every time the road changes."

In short, to quickly navigate the frozen landscape, you have to alternate between dirt roads, icy roads, and snowy roads.

That's why the knights of the Sigismund Territory learn how to use Aurors like shoes at the right time.

In the snow, the footprints are spread widely by using the soft aura, and on the ice, the rough and unrefined use creates friction like spikes.

"How on earth do you do that? "Can I learn too?"

"well. It is not a skill that can be learned in a short period of time. If we were to look at the tips of how to use it, it is similar to 'opening a small sword screen' in Banajas Type 4 and Type 5. Just put it on your feet and not your hands."

"hmm."

Seongjin tried to use the auror while recalling Banahas Type 4 step by step. However, it was not easy for him to immediately apply the Banahas method of holding and unfolding the sword to his feet.

As he was frowning and taking pictures of the snowy field, something like a slight smile appeared on Orden's face.

"I can't help it now, sir. Unlike just emitting external energy from the sword, you need to create a circuit that circulates the aura from the outside and returns it to the body. "It takes quite a long period of training to be able to do it unconsciously while walking in the snow."

"okay?"

Seongjin was disappointed for a moment, but then a thought occurred to him.

wait for a sec. Is it really necessary to follow the Banahas exercise from the beginning? Doesn't it seem like operation is just getting more complicated?

All you have to do is spread the aura out to the sides of your feet, that's rather simple, right?

If the idea occurred to you, there was no need to hesitate to take the test. Didn't Seonghwang say that in [Gap] a while ago?

-When an idea becomes concrete, it reaches reality like this.

Seongjin tried to recall the sensations of that time as vividly as possible. Focus all the aura in your body on your feet and move as if you are wearing wide, light snowshoes.

The auror will spin along the round snowshoes and return to the body through the tangled web of auras.

width. width. width.

Orden watched with amusement as the prince fluttered in the snow with his eyes closed.

But that lasts only for a while. His eyes, which were rarely surprised, gradually widened.

"... .. ?!"

As time passed, the depth of the prince's feet became shallower, and after a while, he was running without hesitation across the snow field. It was a sight that was hard to believe even when you saw it with your own eyes.

"Haha, look at this! Sir Masaine!"

Now the footprints the prince left behind were paler and wider than those made by Orden. With the aura wrapped around his feet, the prince excitedly ran up the hill.

"Lowering!"

Sir Martha, who was frightened, quickly moved through the snow, but the prince was already far away.

And Orden, who was staring blankly at the two, muttered softly.

"... genius?"

He, who has been praised as a genius swordsman since he was young, never thought the day would come when he would say something like this to someone else.

'No, but...''

Something was subtly different.

External energy is clearly emitted in a certain pattern, but it does not seem to follow a very specific method. Judging by the marks left in the eyes, the starting positions of the eruptions were different.

In addition, even though an external circulation circuit is not created or operated, the aurors circulate on their own and return to the body.

Is this something that can be explained simply by the term 'genius'?

"Lowering!"

Meanwhile, Seongjin, who was happily running for a while after leaving Masain's call behind, suddenly had a good idea.

What would happen if we operated this more smoothly, reduced friction, and narrowed the width extremely?

The image that came to mind in detail was soon realized as an aura. Masain was horrified to see the prince, who had climbed so high, quickly gliding down his gaze.

"Hey?"

"Ahahaha!"

Shuung!

Seongjin easily passed Masain and Orden, but when he reached the middle of the hill, he couldn't slow down and rolled around in the snow.

The image reminded me of something similar to skiing, but when I tried to ride it like skiing, it wasn't easy to control.

"omg? Lowering?"

"Are you okay?"

The two people, who were thinking about running down toward Seongjin, stopped for a moment. This is because the prince suddenly got up and ran back toward the top of the hill, scattering snow powder.

Wow.

A wolf's howl could be heard from somewhere, but no one was paying attention to it anymore.

Do do do do.

While Masain was wondering whether he should chase this way or that way, Seongjin, who quickly overtook him, had already reached the end of a fairly high hill.

"I... .."

And before Masain could even call.

Sigh!

Seongjin quickly slid down the hill on his auror skis, which accelerated even more than before.

The speed was so fast that it was difficult to open my eyes due to the force hitting my face.

And Seongjin passed by Masain and Orden and disappeared in an instant beyond the coniferous trees in the distance!

"... ..?"

"... .."

The two people, who were completely dumbfounded and looked in the direction where the prince had disappeared, were shocked when they realized the situation only later.

"Oh my, you!?"

"Hey!!"

With bloodshot faces, the two hurriedly started running toward the forest, chasing after Seongjin.

* * *

Surprisingly, Seongjin's run did not last long.

I slipped into the forest and found that the coniferous trees were lined up quite tightly, blocking the path.

I tried hard to avoid the collision, but the acceleration was so fast that I couldn't control it properly.

Quang!

In the end, Seongjin crashed into a huge tree trunk and rolled around on the floor for a while, unable to control himself due to the shock.

To make matters worse, a bunch of snowballs fell from the tree, and Seongjin, who suddenly looked like a snowman, was lying on the ground comfortably buried in the snow.

"Okay... .."

I guess I was too absorbed in my newly acquired skills.

Squeaky.

While he was rubbing his shaking head with his hand, the Demon King suddenly called him in a very nervous voice.

[...] Hey, Seongjin Lee.]

'huh?'

[Come to your senses and look ahead.]

'... what?'

Seongjin asked that question, but soon he sensed that something unusual was right in front of him and opened his eyes wide.

Crrrrr... ..

just as expected. A large animal was standing next to the bedside of Seongjin, who was lying down. It was a huge gray wolf that looked almost the size of a calf.

Seongjin was convinced as he faced the dry gaze of the guy who was examining him as if searching.

'... 'This is him!'

The guy who was circling around Seongjin and his group and howling recently.

This is the guy who was constantly watching Seongjin from afar.

Beat, beat, beat.

As the wolf slowly approached, Seongjin reflexively fumbled with the nutcracker tied to his belt.

But first, he decided not to draw his sword and just watch what the guy did. This is because in his pitch-black eyes, which did not resemble a wolf, there was a clear light of reason that was difficult to dismiss as an animal.

Eventually, the wolf's breath came so close that it almost touched the tip of my nose.

[Who are you and are you following me?]

A clear train of thought spoke directly to Seongjin's mind.

"... ... ?"

Seongjin blinked his eyes.

Wolves can talk?

Then I felt embarrassed for a moment. Once the other person was willing to talk, there was no need to refuse.

Seongjin, who tried to hide his surprise, asked the guy back.

"Then who are you and have been looking over here since a while ago?"

[I came to see it because I felt the energy of my people nearby...]

"cognition?"

Then, black eyes without a single ray of light stared at Seongjin for a moment.

[Looking closer, the energy is lighter than I thought. I guess not.]

"..."

[But when I looked at it again, it seemed similar again...]

What man?

Seongjin, who didn't hear anything, suddenly got angry.

"So you're saying we're of the same race or not?"

Then the bridge of the wolf's nose wrinkled, revealing its hidden upper teeth.

Crrrrr.

[Why do you blame me for being weird? This is all your fault.]

"It's my fault?"

[That's right. If we mixed up hay and straw bales and asked you to guess whether it was feed or filler, would you be able to answer easily? It depends entirely on the will of the person who mixed it.]

Well, the example is strangely specific, isn't it?

While Seongjin was thinking that, he suddenly felt a chill spread throughout his body.

As the temporary excitement subsides, the snow surrounding the body is quickly losing body heat.

As I was shaking slightly, the wolf tilted its head and asked.

[Are you still cold even though you're wearing so many layers of fur? Even with that level of aura?]

Wow, I thought it wasn't an ordinary wolf, but could it be that they can also sense auror activity?

"But think about it. The idea of using auras to continuously warm your body is an ignorant way to overcome cold weather through exercise... .."

No, let's stop.

What am I doing against the wolves now?

196. Sigismund Order (5)

Seongjin staggered out of the snow, controlling his body temperature with his aura.

It was quite uncomfortable to lie down and face the wolf upside down.

Fortunately, while Seongjin was relatively defenseless, the wolf took a step back and sat calmly on the floor. This means that they have no intention of attacking right now.

Seongjin, who made that judgment, diligently searched for the bastard along with the Demon King while trying to shake off the snow that had stuck to his cloak.

'Hey, what on earth is that guy? 'Why is the wolf talking?'

[I'm not saying it directly. I am sending strong thoughts.]

'Yeah, whatever it is. Is it the demonic beast of the devil? Or maybe he's the devil?'

[hmm. well? I don't particularly feel any magical energy...]

The demon lord also seems somewhat puzzled.

Well, the only way to start is to ask him directly.

"good. Talking Wolf. Should I say I'm glad to meet you like this?

"Let's make a statement first."

After adjusting his clothes to some extent, Seongjin opened his mouth to the wolf.

"I am Mores Klein, the prince of the Holy Empire Delcross. you?"

Then the wolf looked at Seongjin and tilted its head.

[Are you saying you are the third prince who was invited by the Grand Duke? But according to the rumor, Prince Mores is a pig... excuse. I heard that you are relatively overweight.]

Well, he's a very polite wolf.

[Furthermore, I sense that you are very similar to my people. Are you really a simple human being?]

"... okay."

Seongjin admitted a beat late.

Strictly speaking, he was an evil spirit possessing Mores' body, but after all, Mores himself was human. He couldn't possibly be of the same kin as a wolf or something.

Then the guy looked closely at Seongjin's face and nodded.

[All right. It seems that it was purely my mistake to think that they were of the same race. Considering that the Archduke is accompanying him, the identity you revealed must be true.]

What the hell is this guy?

Not only do you know people's rumors, but you recognize Orden's face and even know that he invited Mores?

[I have felt your presence coming here a few days ago. I was just trying to keep an eye on you because I thought you were my compatriot, but I had no idea that I would end up talking to you alone.]

The fact that he walked away when Seongjin approached him must have meant that this situation was unexpected even for him.

[Now that things have come to this, I have something to ask you. Are you the one who summoned the Demon Beast?]

... what?

Seongjin furrowed his eyebrows, and the wolf asked again.

[And one more thing, why only you? Where are the Wolf Knights who should be with the Archduke now?]

Do you know about the Demon Tree and the Wolf Knights?

Around that time, Seongjin thought of another possibility about this guy's identity.

It is neither a witch nor a devil. So, is this perhaps another soul that was taken away by a normal wolf?

What does it mean to say that I felt a kinship with Seongjin? In other words, I felt a sense of kinship as a fellow evil spirit, or something like that?

"hey. I'm sure I would have asked for a full statement, right? "You know what the hell you are, and I have to tell you everything, right?"

When Seongjin growled without hiding his displeasure, the wolf flinched and lowered his head as if caught off guard.

Round eyes and slightly open lower jaw. It was amazing that you could clearly see the guy's embarrassed expression even though it wasn't a human face.

[okay. I was rude because I was in a hurry. 'His' name is Max.]

"Okay, Max. and?"

[This is an ordinary wolfdog that lives in this area.]

"... what? common? "Wolf dog?"

In the end, Seongjin couldn't stand it anymore and got angry.

"Hey, dude! Are you really going to say that you mistook me for a wolf dog? "Don't you think this is a very poor explanation?"

Then the wolf dropped its tail and whined.

[I am very sorry about that. However, if you are from the Seonghwang family, I cannot give you a detailed explanation about myself. This is an inevitable choice for all of us, so can you please understand?]

"What understanding! You bastard, tell me the truth right now! "Are you an evil spirit who was killed by a wolf dog?"

[It's an evil spirit, I can't stand it!]

"Otherwise, how do you know about the Demon Tree? How far is it from here to there? Are you a member of the Dark Church? "Are you an evil spirit from the Penitent Church?"

[This is a pointless speculation. I am not a member of the Dark Church!]

"Then what is it?"

[So this is Max! I can't give you a detailed explanation, but at least I didn't lie to you!]

Then the Demon King whispered to Seongjin.

[That's true, Seongjin Lee. Although there are some parts that are a bit questionable.]

"Okay..."

Seongjin wiped away his anger by touching his throbbing forehead.

If he's not a witch, a devil, or even an evil spirit, then what on earth is this guy?

At that time, the wolf turns its head to the side and sniffs the air.

[...] Wow, it looks like we don't have much time left now.]

At the same time, Seongjin also detected a presence. I saw the signs of Masain and Orden rushing towards us.

The two looked at each other as if they had made a promise.

"If you can never tell me what you are, let me ask you this: "Are you the one who is causing harm to the Sigismund Territory?"

When Seongjin asked that question, his hand had already reached the nutcracker.

Then the wolf stared at Seongjin. The eyes are dry with little emotion, and even seem somewhat detached.

[At least in my subjective judgment, I am not a harmful being here.]

The devil bastard whispered.

It's true.

Seongjin, relieved, lowered his hand from the sword and sighed. Then the wolf asks Seongjin.

[Please give me one clear answer as well. Did you summon the Demon Beast?]

"No, I'm not. "I have no idea who did it."

[...]]

The wolf stared at Seongjin for a moment with spotless black eyes and then nodded.

[all right. I will trust you.]

Lightly. After wagging its tail a couple of times, the wolf turned away from Seongjin. It looks like the two are probably planning to leave before they arrive here.

At that time, Seongjin suddenly became curious and asked.

"Hey, Max. "What would you have done if you said I was the one who summoned the Demon Beast?"

[...]]

Then the wolf, who had been taking a couple of steps, turned his head and answered.

[Isn't it the same as you? I tried to make sure you never do something like that again.]

"... .."

On the outside, they seemed to be talking calmly to each other, but in reality, they were both ready to fight to the death.

At that time, a voice was heard from over there desperately looking for Seongjin.

"Lowering!"

"Hey!"

Taking that as a signal, the wolf lightly kicked its eyes.

When Seongjin confirmed the location of the two people and turned his head again, the wolf had already completely disappeared beyond the forest.

* * *

"Whoa... .."

A small sigh echoes softly through the training hall.

The paladins of Lilium stopped training all at once and looked back at the stage.

There, Prince Logan, their idol and spiritual leader, was touching Arjuna's handle with a gloomy face. It was like a habit that appeared whenever she was upset.

And this was Lilium's impression as she looked at it.

'Ah, that look full of worry! This too is like a sacred painting!'

The prince's deep blue eyes were filled with a high-dimensional depth that a criminal could not even fathom.

Why is that great prince, who always thinks only of the subjects of the empire, so troubled this time?

"He is clearly thinking of his subjects who are suffering from Hae-soo."

"No, you always worry about your subjects. Haven't you been taking the lead in helping the monster task force lately? He must be honoring the subjects of the imperial capital who sacrificed their lives in the terrible plague."

"With such short-sighted thinking, can you even follow his toes? "The prince is clearly distressed as he thinks about the distant future of the empire!"

Of course, none of them had any idea that Logan was thinking these thoughts with such a sad face.

'I want to make it too. Little Saint Aurelion's Pocket... . An adult's bald head has never felt so cold... ... '

'Amelia's flower petal embroidery was really cute. It would look pretty even if you used lace silk like Sisley. But how do I make that?'

'The more I think about it, the more embarrassed I feel. At this age, I have no experience with sewing or knitting... ... '

Amelia has always been a person with good intuition. And Sisley even has excellent foresight.

If those two people said there was nothing out of the ordinary, there must be something there. So, it would be a good idea for Logan to also put a little bit of effort into this little statue like they did.

Above all, Logan couldn't help but worry that his little saint was being treated poorly compared to the two others.

He took out the wooden statue he had kept in his arms and looked at the saint's warm, smiling face without saying a word.

'I am truly sorry, old man. I am a worthless person who has no special skills and cannot even make a small cone for your head.'

It was a lament about the situation of the youngest sword master on the continent.

And the Paladins of Liliun who were watching this were whispering loudly.

"Does this mean that not only will we continue the legacy of Saint Bastian, but now we will also imitate the virtues of Saint Aurelion?"

"How can you be so wonderful! Isn't this really the right idea? Although we are divided into several holy knights for convenience, aren't we originally knights of the main god who must follow the will of the main god and pursue all his virtues?"

After the Liliun Knights' training session was over.

The knights were finally able to hear from Logan the full story of his worries.

And they were deeply moved again.

'Perhaps he is such a warm-hearted person! 'You can't believe you show such deep affection even for the brother who has been tormenting you for years!'

"It's so shameless to cause you these unnecessary worries."

All the Liliun knights shouted at Logan, who spoke with embarrassment.

"No, sir! "Of course it's something we should help with!"

"I know the best place to place the little saint. "Would you please leave the saint to us?"

"Best place?"

When Logan tilted his head, the knights responded by raising their hands over their brief armor.

"I swear to the Lord that I will place little Saint Aurelion in the safest, most sacred place!"

"There is no place on the ecliptic more blessed than that!"

Toward the trustworthy knights of Lilium, Logan smiled brightly, something rare.

"Thank you everyone! "Thanks to you, I can take a breather thanks to you."

Ah, to the followers, it will be a sacred smile like a ray of glory from the Lord.

That evening, St. Bastian Church.

Archbishop Wesker, who visited the prayer room to pray to wrap up the day, was startled by the view of the prayer room that was somehow different from usual, and looked around with harsh eyes.

And soon it was the flagship.

In the place where the beautiful statue of St. Bastian should have been, a little bald old man was standing and laughing!

"... ... ?!"

What is that?

One of the high-ranking priests spoke with a perplexed face at her absurd muttering.

"So, what is it? I guess it's Saint Aurelion..."

"okay. Why on earth is Saint Aurelion here? "Isn't this the most blessed place in the church, honoring the will of St. Bastian?"

"That was the earnest request of the Lilium knights. "Please keep the little saint here at least until Prince Mores returns."

"Lilium?"

"Yes, I heard it was for Prince Logan..."

Those idiots who can't communicate!

Wesker held his throbbing forehead and let out a low groan.

At the same time, the office of the main palace.

As usual, Seonghwang, who had received a report on his children's status from Lewis, quietly pondered as he looked at the small adult lying on the desk.

'Is it not enough to offer blessings every day? I can't believe my sincerity for my child isn't enough, I still have a long way to go... ... '

197*

197. Sigismund Order (6)

The place where the giant type 4 demon species swept over was extremely cruel.

The ground was layered with scratches from the roots of the magic tree, and the black, eroded corpses of people and horses were lying everywhere. Despite extensive purification, the bodies were shriveled to the point where identification was impossible.

The Wolf Knights roughly collected them, buried them in the ground, and began the task of salvaging useful items from the broken wreckage.

Fortunately, unlike the creatures whose lives were completely stolen, most of the items on top were intact other than physical damage.

The work of the Wolf Knights accelerated as they additionally rescued some of the horses that had escaped to the outskirts and a couple of unbroken wagons.

Thanks to this, they were able to complete all settlements and depart for Sigismund Range two days after Seongjin's group left.

"Lord Valerie."

Sir Ilma, who had been organizing the ranks by going back and forth between the knights and carts, slowed down his horse and approached the Inquisitor once he had finished organizing things to a certain extent.

"I will tell the drivers to take turns watching. So, how about taking a little rest?"

Currently, Valerie was keeping an eye on one of the wagons.

There were about a dozen prisoners crumpled up there, most likely remnants of the Penitent Church.

"As soon as we arrive at Sigismund Territory, the knights will take care of handing them over to the church."

Then the Inquisitor shook his head.

"Thank you, Sir Ilma. They will be transported to the Imperial Heresy Tribunal. "It would be a little troubling if a hasty summary judgment occurred in the church there."

"... .."

"I will personally hand them over to the guards and take them back when I return."

A firm expression of intention not to hand over disposal authority to the Margrave.

Lord Ilma did not question him further. This is because I assumed that there was something complicated going on.

Although she did not receive a separate explanation from Orden, she, too, had recently sensed the subtle aura of discord flowing between the head of the family and the archduke.

"Anyway, it's surprising that they survived in the middle of that demonic energy. "The area around the campsite was completely withered, with not a single blade of grass left."

"Isn't the fact that they remain unharmed even amidst the demon race's rampage strong evidence that they are devil worshipers?"

"okay. But is this level of restraint okay? If you even try to commit suicide... .."

Although they were close to death, they might do something extreme if they realized that they were being dragged to the Inquisition.

Then the red-haired Inquisitor smiled.

"The Church of Penitence does not fear the torture of the Inquisition. Rather, they will be willing to endure the pain. "This is the only advantage of the Penitent Order."

Valerie explained that they believe that suffering is the only way to repent and the ultimate path to being embraced by the Lord.

As he said, Lord Ilma looked a little tired as he looked at the prisoners whose bodies were covered in scars and wounds.

"It's a doctrine that no one in their right mind can follow."

"Aren't they the ones who serve the devil, who loves human sin and misfortune, as a god? So, it's not something I can understand why they do such crazy things."

It was right then.

"... You dirty apostates! "Who does Ethan dare to frame?"

Flashing.

One of the prisoners opened his eyes wide and scolded. It was Belinda, the parish president.

Even though she had lost a lot of her life force from the Demon Tree and was becoming extremely thin, her eyes were burning brightly as she glared at Valerie.

"Shame on you, you evil things! Heretics! "You are sinners who betrayed the Lord who sacrificed everything for this world!"

Due to the sudden commotion, everyone in the group unconsciously listens to Belinda's voice.

Ethan, who are you calling a heresy now?

"Look at the evidence of that ugly sin! You have forgotten the main lord, and according to your own taste, you have elevated a worthless human being into a new god named saint! They also made their images into sculptures and scattered them across the continent, praising and worshipping them instead of the gods. But how can this not be called heresy?"

Even though the prisoner was shouting that he would be punished right in front of him, Sir Valerie was just smiling with an at ease look on his face.

In the end, Lord Ilma came forward and scolded him in a stern voice.

"Be careful with your words and actions! Adults receive only the courtesy and respect they deserve as adults. He is not held up as a god."

Then Belinda glared at her with glossy eyes and gritted her teeth.

"Can you be sure? Can you swear that you have never once made a wish to the demons named saint? Are you sure deep down that you are not looking for an easy name to call on behalf of the Lord?"

"I've never... .."

"Do not lie! Know your sins, you apostate!"

It was so reckless that I couldn't communicate at all.

Who on earth do devil worshipers call the devil?

Sir Ilma hoped that this blasphemous and unscrupulous man would quickly shut up, but for some reason, Sir Valery listened quietly and then quietly asked a question.

"Then the reason you summoned the Demon Beast to this land was to punish us apostates?"

Then Belinda glared at him with a laughable expression and then snorted.

"I can clearly see your shallowness. But there's nothing we can't deal with! Yes!"

He admitted that it was the Church of Repentance that summoned the Demon Beast.

"But why was it a campground at the top of Milo? "Thanks to you, your friend wasn't caught up in the unfortunate event?"

"what?"

"I mean Milo Sangju. "Isn't he also your brother who worships the same god?"

"What? "Aaaah!"

At Sir Valerie's words, Belinda began to scream, almost in a fit, with sparks flying in her eyes.

"dare! dare! "How dare you bring that apostate who deserves to be torn to death against our brothers!"

"Isn't it?"

"That makes sense! From the beginning his contribution to our plan was only a small part! He couldn't even do that properly, so he ended up being executed by our hands! Do you understand?"

And from her mouth, words of unpleasant curses towards Milo Sangju poured out for a long time.

"You're the one who will do shit even if you die! How could that filthy apostate even guess our noble [preparation]! "A great cause for which brothers of all denominations have prepared with all their heart for many years!"

"... Spare?"

When Sir Ilma, who was listening, unconsciously asked a question, Belinda stretched her back towards her and shouted proudly.

"Yes. Now, listen carefully! In order to reclaim the name of the main god, our brothers... ..!"

Right then.

"Oh my gosh!"

Pow!

At the sudden blow of the Inquisitor's fist, the vicar rolled his eyes and fell back.

In his weakened state, a light blow to the face was enough to cause him to lose consciousness. As the attention of the entire Wolf Knights, including Sir Ilma, was focused, Sir Valery shrugged his shoulders as if he were embarrassed.

"We didn't try to get them to open their mouths after being tortured, but we tried to listen to what they had to say. "But it's all just nonsense."

It's a lot noisier than I thought. ha ha ha.

With everyone quiet, only the Inquisitor's empty laughter echoed in the air.

* * *

After a skiing skirmish on a snowy mountain.

Seongjin, whose feet were numb, calmly returned to the carriage with the two people.

"This was truly unintentional, Lord Martha. "It's just an unfortunate accident that happened because I'm not very good at 'Shunishuhe'."

Seongjin carefully made an excuse while watching Masain's thoughts. But surprisingly, Masain didn't nag Seongjin much.

I simply straighten the winter clothes that have become disheveled from rolling around in the snow, and shake off the snow that has settled on the winter clothes on their heads.

But if he looked alright, to be honest, his face looked as if it had been shaved for at least ten years.

-I don't expect much from you anymore. Just please don't die suddenly like before.

Come to think of it, did he ever say that to Seongjin?

It seems like he has decided to give up on what he has to give up, but that part made Seongjin feel even more uncomfortable.

Rather, it was Orden who gave Seongjin a stern warning.

"Lowering! The influence of the Demonic Sutra is very strong in this area. No one knows when and what kind of accident will occur. Please consider Sigismund's position in inviting you here!"

"hmm... .."

Seongjin reflected deeply in his heart.

Sheesh, I can't believe I'm getting nagged by someone like Orden. Even though I'm angry, I have to be more self-respecting from now on.

"Oh! "But I saw a very big wolf in the forest."

Masain looked surprised next to me, but I guess that's all over now.

Seongjin decided to prioritize his curiosity.

"Actually, I'm not sure if it's a wolf. "In some ways, it seems like he was a wolf dog."

Seongjin spread his arms wide open to Orden, assessing the size of 'Max'.

"So, roughly speaking, this is it? "Are there many big wolves like that nearby?"

Then Orden's expression became strange.

"The wolf... "You mean?"

"It was that big, how could it possibly be? "I'm sure you saw it wrong."

Hermann, who was listening to their conversation from the side, intervened.

"Unless it is something like the Lycan Slope of the Demon Lord, it is an absolutely impossible size."

"Then what about wolf dogs?"

"It's not that different from a wolf dog. "Wolf dogs are often used as hunting dogs in the Sigismund Territory, but I have never seen a dog of that size in all my years."

Hey Max. You say you don't lie, you bastard?

How on earth did this happen? uh?

"Then, other than the dogs raised on the estate, are there any dogs that found their home in the wild?"

When Seongjin asked with a shocked expression, Hermann shook his head resolutely.

"Sometimes wolfdogs are created through self-breeding, but such cases are extremely rare. Even if they do exist, in most cases they become completely wild and join a wolf pack. By now, it would have moved to northern Ortona with other wolves."

hmm. That's right.

Seongjin thought for a moment and then asked the last and most important question.

"By the way, Hermann. "How different are Sigismund's wolf-dogs from ordinary dogs?"

"yes?"

"So, just in case, just in case... .."

"... ..?"

"hmm. How smart are you? For example, just talking to the owner...

... ."

Then Hermann smiled warmly at Seongjin, like a grandfather looking down on his immature grandchild.

"Talk to your dog. It's a very romantic story. "You truly love animals."

"... .."

"Haha, everyone imagines something like that at least once when they're young."

... An ordinary wolf dog is a piece of shit.

Max, you cheater!

Before the next afternoon, Seongjin and his party were finally able to arrive at Sigismund Range. It was a territory formed in a huge basin surrounded by low mountains.

When they arrived in front of the gate, the security forces were mobilized to greet Seongjin and his group. They recognized Orden, who was in the lead, and let the group in right away without any further confirmation procedures.

'... 'The territory is bigger than I thought?'

When the carriage stopped just inside the gate, Seongjin stuck his head out the window and looked around.

I thought it was a completely rural village, but the entire basin was a fairly large estate filled with houses.

Due to the nature of the climate, there were not many rice fields within the territory, giving it a slightly urban atmosphere.

'And it's cold...''

Even though it is late summer, the weather in Yeongji is already winter.

The heavily trafficked floor had already melted snow and was all muddy, but the roof of the building was still covered in white snow.

"Lord Sebastian!"

Orden got off his horse first and quickly walked towards the man who seemed to be in charge.

"Have you had any trouble, Grand Duke?"

The man greeted Orden with a gentle smile.

Guard Captain, Sebastian Battel.

Even at a glance, it was clear that he was as strong as Sir Ilma, the leader of the Wolf Knights.

If Lord Ilma had the force of sharp fangs that could bite at any moment, the guard captain was giving off a heavy and static force as if he were a huge mountain.

"okay. Ah, the Wolf Knights stayed behind because they had some business to take care of."

"I heard the news. "I will take you straight to the Count's residence so that you can relieve the fatigue of your long journey."

After saying that, the guard captain led all the guards and approached Seongjin's carriage.

He then placed his hand on his chest and showed impeccable manners.

"I meet the Third Prince of the Holy Empire. "It is an infinite honor to be able to serve you like this."

"Oh, nice to meet you."

But the moment his eyes met, Seongjin felt a strange sense of déjà vu.

Have I ever seen this person?

Why does it feel so familiar?

198. Louise (1)

The captain of the guard, Sir Sebastian Battel, was a remarkable man in many ways.

He is as tall as Sir Francis and has a sturdy, well-trained body.

Although he has a gentle appearance, not like a warrior, the powerful force that comes from him is truly as strong as a castle wall.

'There's no way you wouldn't remember such an impressive person?'

Seongjin was tilting his head, and Manager Bruno gave him a quick reminder from the side.

"Lowering. "Sir Sebastian is Sir Ilma's wife."

what? really?

Seongjin looked at him with new eyes.

Just like Lord Ilma, this guard captain also possessed a force similar to that of Lord Masain.

That means they are both preparing for Dekaron Night, and aren't they truly the strongest couple on the continent?

If a fight were to break out between the two, the whole estate would be shaken.

While I was thinking such nonsense, the guard captain, who had no way of knowing this, politely bowed his head again.

"I contacted the count's residence in advance. "I will meet you right away, sir."

In this way, Seongjin and his party arrived at Count Sigismund's residence under the guidance of Sir Sebastian.

The mansion was located on a low hill to the northeast of the estate. It was a huge building with uneven lines, as if it had been repeatedly expanded over a long period of time.

'... 'Is this the count's mansion?'

A rough wall with exposed stones, or a small window that doesn't look like it would be damaged.

To Seongjin, who was accustomed to imperial buildings with large terraces and clean plaster walls, the count's residence felt more like an old castle or fortress than a mansion.

"I heard it's an older building than St. Bastian's Church. Indeed, it is the mansion of a famous family that has firmly protected the continent from the demonic realm for over half a century. "It is truly majestic."

As Masain exclaimed his admiration, a strange look appeared in the guard captain's eyes.

"I'm glad you see it that way. "Sometimes customers who come here for the first time from other regions are disappointed because of the unfamiliar food."

There have been several renovation attempts so far, but most of them are canceled in the planning stage due to the large scale. Moreover, the insulation problem cannot be solved with the architectural styles popular on the continent.

Only the wide garden in front of the mansion was decorated in a style similar to the imperial capital. Because of the weather, all the rose leaves withered and fell off, and only the dull branches remained.

As we passed the dried-up garden and got off the carriage, a group of people waiting for Seongjin bowed their heads and shouted.

"God's blessing on Delcross, a thousand-year-old kingdom!"

It seemed that not only the people of Count Sigismund's family but also the employees had come out in full force.

While I was bewildered by the warmer-than-expected hospitality, the elegant middle-aged woman in the lead took a step forward and gently lifted the hem of her skirt.

"I meet the glorious Prince Mores. "It is a great honor for our family to serve you like this."

It was Countess Sigismund, who had been married from Anatolia, far south of the continent.

Her beautiful face with fine wrinkles is filled with pure joy for Seongjin and his group.

"Thank you for your hospitality, Countess. "I wonder if I'm causing trouble for no reason during a busy time for the estate."

I thought you would be reluctant to visit Seongjin to some extent.

When I said hello to her, thinking it was unexpected, a soft smile appeared on her face.

"no. Originally, I should have greeted you at the imperial capital. This year, I was unable to attend the birthday party because my mother was sick. "It always brings me great joy to have guests from warm regions visit us."

At that time, Orden looked around and asked.

"But, mother. "What about the head of the family?"

"iced coffee. She went out to the defense of Magyeong with her grandfather. "The temperature is low this year, so the lycan slope is moving south earlier than usual."

"... "Even your grandfather?"

"Isn't Lord Ilma out of the territory? So, in case of an emergency, he said he would personally inspect the border."

Vincent Sigismund, who made a name for himself as a great general of the empire, seemed to continue his activities in an orderly manner even after transferring his title to his son. Well, seeing as he is also a Dekaron Knight, it is unlikely that his strength will decline.

"Recently, he always went around singing and saying that he felt an unusual energy in the magic scene. "Now that I have a legitimate excuse to go to the Demon Lord, wouldn't it be good for him?"

After adding that, the Countess looked back at Seongjin and said.

"It is the time when Lycan Slopes, who spent the summer in Magyeong, are slowly moving to the vicinity of the county. "Because of this, the head of the family has to be absent, but in return, I will do my best to ensure that you are not neglected in your hospitality."

Seongjin nods and holds out his arms, and his wife lightly folds her arms. And the two naturally walked into the mansion in unison, as if they were old friends.

"I have already received great help from you. "Didn't you deliberately send the family doctor to me?"

"Ah, I was very worried because I heard that you were seriously injured during the journey. Are you okay now?"

"I'm fine. "Everyone is just overly concerned."

"Isn't that how noble your body is? Actually, I was very surprised earlier. "You looked much healthier than when I saw you last year."

"Is that so?"

"Yes, looking at you, you look a lot like His Majesty the Holy Emperor and Empress Elizabeth."

Then Seongjin burst out laughing.

"I feel relieved to see you like that. "Even now, it's not enough to be an escort for a beautiful lady."

"Oh my, you too! Ho ho ho. "You make the heart of an old villager so excited!"

Behind them, the count's people and servants walk one after another.

Only Seongjin's group, including Orden, was looking at the scene with their mouths wide open and bewildered faces.

what? What about that natural conversation?

Is that person really the brazen prince who was running around in the snow until yesterday?

"You are, after all, a great person. "Look at that smooth handjob!"

"Lord Claudia! "What a manipulative act!"

"... Is it blood? "Do you have the qualities of a born libertine?"

"Shh! Lord Calmen! "Such blasphemous words!"

Masain, who reflexively thought of his uncle and Prince Logan in turn as he heard the resident knights whispering, immediately turned pale and shook his head.

"No, no way. Even I can't do that..."

* * *

Seongjin was treated very warmly.

A luxurious bedroom filled with warmth, as if a fireplace had been lit long before the group arrived, was waiting for him.

In addition, Seongjin was even provided with a dedicated user.

"He is the most outstanding child among the servants. "He is currently taking butler classes, so you can ask him to do most of the work."

The butler brought a boy neatly dressed in uniform and introduced him as such.

"This is Louise Battel, sir. "I will serve you with all my heart."

He looked exactly the same age as Mores, and seemed very calm and serious for his age. The way he bows his head to Seongjin is a boy befitting a knight rather than a servant.

Seongjin, who was worried that the inflexible Edith might cause an accident at the count's house, was relieved of his worries thanks to this.

"Yes, please take care of me too for a while."

Seongjin, who greeted him like that, looked at the boy closely, feeling a strange sense of déjà vu.

therefore...

"Hmm, didn't we see you somewhere?"

"... yes?"

The boy looked embarrassed for a moment, but quickly adjusted his expression and shook his head.

"I haven't left the territory yet. "I understand this is my first time greeting you here."

Well, I guess so.

Seongjin, who inadvertently asked a question, looked puzzled and tilted his head.

That's really strange. It's clear that this is my first meeting, but I feel this way many times today.

"... By the way, Battel?"

When Seongjin asked a question, Louise nodded as if she understood.

"Oh, I guess you met your father on the way here. "My father is Sebastian Vattel, commander of the guards of the County of Sigismund."

"what?"

Seongjin, who blinked for a moment at the unexpected information, asked again.

"wait for a sec. Then you can't help but respect me... .."

"Yes, it is. "I am Ilma Batel's wife."

... Women's food?

Seongjin was astonished.

'I thought you were really a boy?'

Then the devil bastard snorted.

[What is he saying now? At first glance, she looks like a girl, right? A guy with good eyes is strangely dull.]

Well, I thought the lanky thing was just because he was a young boy, but maybe Luise is older than he looks.

"Lunch is ready. "Can we take you to the restaurant right away?"

As I was looking at her blankly, Louise calmly informed me of the next schedule.

Daughter of Sir Ilma and Captain of the Guard, Sir Sebastian.

Indeed, I can't help but feel familiar, as if I've seen it somewhere before. Because the girl resembled both her parents.

The cool features and disciplined posture were exactly the same as Sir Ilma, and the light flaxen hair and calm eyes were exactly the same as Sir Sebastian.

"Or I'll run you a warm bath so you can relax."

"Uh, no. "Let's go to the restaurant now."

Seongjin took off his thick winter clothing and handed it to Louise.

However, at the moment she handed over the clothes, Seongjin's sharp eyes noticed something unusual on her hands.

'... Learn swordsmanship?'

The girl's long, long hands had calluses characteristic of someone who had held a sword for a long time.

Considering her parents, this wouldn't be strange. Didn't she say she's taking deacon classes now though?

Seongjin was puzzled, but he didn't ask any further questions and followed Louise out of the room.

Wong wong wong!

As I was walking along the first floor hallway with Louise, I heard several dogs barking from somewhere.

"Do you have a dog?"

Then Louise glanced out the window and explained.

"These are the hunting dogs that the Count keeps. "It's time to return from training."

"okay?"

Come to think of it, Hermann was like that too. In Sigismund Territory, which is in contact with the Demon World, a lot of it is said to depend on the abilities of hunting dogs.

It is said that hunting dogs are raised and trained professionally at the count's residence. They manage the bloodlines of excellent hunting dogs, and some breed them with wolves to obtain wolf dogs.

Wong wong!

Wow.

A long howl as if looking for someone.

Seongjin, who had been quietly listening to the sound, had a strange premonition and turned to Louise and asked.

"Perhaps we can take a look at the hunting dogs now?"

For a moment, a faint look of embarrassment flashed across her face. But then she takes out her pocket watch, takes a moment to gauge the time, and nods.

"There is a shortcut to the main building through sponsorship. Since the kennel is close by, I think it would be enough to take a look around. "I'll bring some winter clothes, so could you wait a moment?"

"no it's okay. "You can just use an auror."

There's nothing that can't be done, even if it's just for a little while.

But it was when Seongjin took a step forward with cold support.

Doo doo doo doo.

Suddenly, a large dog ran across the garden at breakneck speed and rushed at Seongjin.

"... ... ?"

Huh?

Seongjin, who was caught off guard because there was no hostility at all, stumbled under the weight of the heavy dog and fell to the floor.

"Lowering!?"

Before he could come to his senses, something wet touched Seongjin's face. The dog that aggressively crushed Seongjin started licking his face.

Startled, Louise quickly waves her hand and knocks the dog away from Seongjin.

'What is this again?'

I woke up with an absurd feeling, but what was so good about this dog? Now it started jumping around Seongjin, wagging its tail.

"Max, Max!"

Soon, an old man who appeared to be a zookeeper hurriedly ran towards them.

"Max! You bastard! "What are you going to do if you suddenly run away like that?"

... Max?

Then the dog called Max barked lowly at the old man as if saying something. It looked like she was scolding him.

Wong wong!

'Max, is this a coincidence?'

But perhaps because of my mood, the dog's appearance really looked familiar.

Overall, it resembles a wolf. A dark gray back and sides that fade to grayish brown. And the hair on both cheeks and stomach shines white.

... no way?

"... Max?"

Seongjin called the dog in a trembling voice.

OK.

Wong!

As if in response, the dog barked loudly and sat down on the floor, wagging its tail.

"Max? really? But why don't you say anything..."

Seongjin trailed off. Then, the dog tilted its head and licked Seongjin's nose and cheek with its wet tongue.

Even if you wash your eyes and look for Izzy, you can't see it, it's just an active puppy.

Seongjin was in great shock.

"Unbelievable..."

Max! What on earth happened in the meantime?

How did you end up like this?

199*

199. Louise (2)

"Max! Anything is fine, so please just say something."

Wong wong!

"What the hell is going on? Have you ever suffered a serious head injury within a day? Amnesia?"

licking.

"Oh, stop licking and be quiet. sit down!"

Kiing.

"Oh, good job. Are you smart? hand! Hey, that's nice!"

Seongjin, who was gently scratching behind the ears of Max, who was whining cutely, and giving him a ton of praise, suddenly noticed the strange gaze and raised his head.

Sure enough, Louise had a strange and mysterious look in her eyes, and the old zookeeper literally said, 'What kind of crazy person is this?' He was looking at Seongjin with that expression.

what? What's wrong with you?

[Lee Seong-jin, come to your senses.]

The devil bastard sighed.

[No matter how you look at it, that dog is not the same as before. First of all, the size itself is so different, right?]

'is it?'

Seongjin stroked the bridge of Max's nose and between his eyebrows and looked at the dog closely.

but. The Max I met on the snowy mountain looked to be about the size of a pony or calf. However, although this thing is large, it is not much different from the size of a normal wolf.

'More than anything, your eyes are different...'

In the eyes of Max, who was looking up at Seongjin, the pumpkin-colored irises unique to wolf blood were shining.

On the other hand, how was Max in the snowy mountains? Weren't they horribly pitch-black eyes whose true nature was unknown?

'Common sense suggests that linking the two is a ridiculous idea...'

But yeah.

"Max."

At Seongjin's call, Wong! A strong answer comes back right away.

See, after all, this guy is Max.

* * *

Seongjin arrived at the restaurant a little late.

This was because Max and Huwon had been rolling around for a while unexpectedly, and their clothes were all messed up with dirt and dog hair.

After asking for understanding and taking a seat, the Countess smiled kindly and asked.

"I guess you like animals very much. "Do you have a dog?"

Well, Seongjin's every move is being reported to her in real time.

However, rather than blaming him for his rudeness, my reaction was that I just thought it was cute. Since there are many children of the same age, they seem to be tolerant of these issues.

"I think I would like to raise one. "This is my first time seeing a wolfdog, but it's very impressive."

"Ho Ho. is it so. "They are certainly elegant dogs that retain the majesty of beasts of prey."

The woman who answered like that raised her wine glass and continued speaking.

"But despite their cool appearance, wolf dogs are unfortunately not suited to being raised like regular dogs. "They rarely rely on humans."

"Is that so?"

"yes. Wolf dogs have strong self-esteem and do not particularly crave affection from humans. "Because they are so independent and aloof, training is also very difficult."

Seongjin chewed his appetizer and listened quietly to her explanation.

"They don't think of humans as their masters. That's probably the biggest difference from regular dogs. When fighting against demonic beasts, they clearly stand on the side of humans, but they only recognize that they are protecting the same group. They have no loyalty to their owners or a desire to be loved by their owners. "No matter how much you want to keep them by your side and pet them, they are indifferent children who do not show any affection to their owners."

... There was a lot of cuteness, right?

Seongjin, who remembered Max rolling over on his stomach and rolling on the floor, immediately shook his head and thought.

'Well, he's a guy who speaks with thoughts, so he's probably no different from an ordinary wolfdog.'

From then on, the meal proceeded in a friendly manner.

The Count's children, including Orden, and Sir Martha were sitting there together. However, most of them were engrossed in their meal and were quietly listening to the conversation between Seongjin and the Countess.

Mostly, the wife would talk about the characteristics of the estate or its unique cuisine, and Seongjin would enthusiastically chime in with her comments.

"You can't tell me how surprised I was when I first got married and tried bear meat."

The main dish was bear meat steak, which the countess explained was also a dish rarely seen except in the Sigismund region and the northern part of Ortona.

"It's embarrassing, but at that time, I cried in secret, thinking that all northerners only eat scary food. But when I actually tried it, I realized it was lighter and more delicious than deer meat."

"It certainly is. "The flavor is amazing."

The meat, covered in strong spices and grilled to a crisp, was just edible, but Seongjin let out a sigh as if he had just encountered an unprecedented delicacy.

It was clearly a service for the countess.

'I think my gastronomic standards have increased while living in the Imperial Capital.'

Of course, there were some who were truly moved.

[ah! This is so delicious! After all, meat has a strong fiery taste! Seongjin Lee, let's ask for more of this, okay?]

Well, anyway, since the demon lord is satisfied, I guess that's it.

But that peaceful time ended the moment tea with dessert was served. This is because Orden, who saw the contents of the tray, became thoughtful and shouted at the Countess.

"mother!"

"Oh my, it's a surprise! Why are you doing this all of a sudden, Orden?"

While everyone was startled by the sudden shout, Orden jumped up from his seat and shouted in an angry voice.

"Didn't I tell you this clearly before? This tea is not good for your health, so stay away from it! "Have you forgotten my warning?"

It is said that they were secretly investigating the car without the head of the family knowing, but it seems they couldn't just sit back and watch other family members drink it.

Then the Countess looked around with a very embarrassed face.

"No, dear! Orden! If you say that, what does that make me a host? "Wouldn't your Majesty greatly misunderstand?"

"So why are you doing this here?"

"I just wanted to introduce the unique foods of the Sigismund Territory to Prince Mores, who is visiting after a long time. "Everyone has been drinking well for years, so why are you so special?"

As her face suffered in front of a member of the imperial family, the countess's voice began to raise her voice little by little.

"Orden! It's such a shame! "Where on earth do you leave all your etiquette behind and do something like this in front of such an important guest?"

"The real shame is me! It is I, the prince, who personally visited your estate at my invitation! "What kind of disrespect is this to serve something like this whose origin is unknown?"

"You don't know the source! Isn't this the product that the head of the family personally inspected and signed a contract to supply? "I must tell the matriarch about this matter!"

What should I do now?

The Countess, whose pride has been hurt, does not seem to back down easily, and Orden, who must move without the head of the family, is now expressing his suspicions to make the entire Count's house buzz.

The guest, Masaine, was naturally embarrassed and couldn't say anything, and the rest of the Count's children were just watching without even thinking about stopping the two people's argument.

At first glance, they appeared to be quiet and reserved, but Seongjin did not miss the faint mockery and hope that passed through their eyes.

Orden's younger brothers were secretly hoping that the heir's strong position might be shaken by this incident.

Seongjin smiled bitterly.

'Brothers who compete for succession usually have this kind of atmosphere. I don't really like Orden, but I still feel a bit sorry for this situation.'

Anyway, there is only one thing for Seongjin to do here.

I quietly looked down at the teacup in front of me, and there was a light pinkish liquid flowing with a gentle scent of wild flowers.

'This is the same medicine as that drug...' ... '

The first few times it just gave me a mild sense of uplift and happiness.

After thinking this to himself, Seongjin picked up the teacup and slowly brought it to his mouth.

[...] Seongjin Lee? Hey, what are you doing now...]

The Demon King is greatly embarrassed and asks in a trembling voice.

Because everyone was preoccupied with the noisy argument, only one person noticed Seongjin's unexpected behavior.

'countess... ... !'

Yes, just her.

Even while arguing with Orden, the wife's eyes were extremely calm as she glanced at me.

Did he view his son's well-intentioned warning as simply a sign of rebellion against the family and the head of the household?

Anyway, what is certain is that she is the perfect ally of the matriarch.

And she is currently strongly suspecting that this car may not be the reason Seongjin and his group came here.

[Hey, stop! What are you doing now? This is made from Loferum eggs! This is the water that creates the gray plague!]

Hehe. Demon King, please know. The human stomach is stronger than you think.

Having experienced the end of the world, there are not many foods in this world that cannot be eaten.

Horok.

Soon, the sweet scent of flowers passes into my throat along with the faint scent of earth.

"... ... !"

The Countess' eyes, who were watching Seongjin, widened. I guess I never expected that he would drink tea without hesitation during such an intense argument.

As she closed her mouth and stared at Seongjin, the eyes of everyone in the restaurant naturally followed her and focused on Seongjin.

"Lowering? "What is this now!"

A frightened Orden runs towards Seongjin, and in the meantime,

Seongjin pours all the tea into his mouth and puts down the teacup with a percussion.

"The scent is very unique. It's not a bad tea, as it's smooth on the throat and doesn't have a strong bitter taste. "Can I know your name?"

To Seongjin's calm question, the Countess answered with a slightly trembling voice.

"... "It is said to be good for health, so we just call it [Yakcha]."

"is it so. Is tea good for your health? "I'm probably used to Melbourne for my taste, but sometimes I like a unique tea like this."

Seongjin, who nodded and responded, gently reprimanded Orden, who was now staring at him with a hard face.

"It's a good-tasting tea, so why? Archduke, there is definitely something unusual about you. "The Countess will take care of it."

"... .."

"Stop bothering your mother for caring so much about dinner, and now let's talk about something else. Actually, I'm most looking forward to seeing Demon Lord here. "Does the legendary Glatzer Troll really appear in the Demonic World?"

And at the same time, Seongjin quietly winked at Masain, who was looking pale.

'Lord Masaine, take care of your expression. I didn't drink poison, but our purpose will be revealed.'

Anyway, it seems like both of them are secretly clueless about what's going on in the world. What would have happened to both of us if I hadn't taken care of it, yeah.

Even after the meal was over, refreshments and chatting continued for a while.

The atmosphere was not as cordial as at first, but as the topic shifted to the Demonic Lord, the Count's children also began to add a word or two.

Seongjin listened quietly to their conversation, occasionally rubbing his temples with his hands.

'I'm dizzy... ... '

weird. This is not the reaction I expected at all.

Why are my eyes spinning as if I drank such strong alcohol?

[Hey, Seongjin Lee. are you okay?]

The devil's voice that occasionally asks questions feels far away, as if it is echoing from far away.

'Is it also the medicine truck's fault?'

But I haven't heard of any symptoms like this. The Countess and the other children drank tea together, but they all seemed fine.

Besides, there was another problem.

[Even the prince of the Holy Empire is still a child. I can't come to my senses because of the story about fighting against demonic beasts. It's laughable.]

I was so dizzy that I started hearing strange auditory hallucinations.

[it's a shame. Let's fight a little more. How great it would have been if it had gone out of favor with the matriarch like this.]

[Orden, that bastard, it's so disgusting to see him pretending to be so arrogant without knowing the end. I wish I went somewhere and died quickly.]

[If you become friends with the prince, will you invite him to the imperial palace? I want to leave this village quickly.]

Seongjin blinked his eyes and thought blankly.

Orden, you bastard. You may be simply ignorant, but you are still the best among your brothers.

[Ah, now that Orden has stepped forward, his face has been completely ruined. Was it really just my suspicion? Did the prince really just come to have fun?]

countess.

I thought she was a warm person like my mother, but I was disappointed. From now on you are my enemy.

"... Lowering."

Masain, who had been looking closely at Seongjin earlier, stood up and spoke as if sensing that his condition was unusual.

"countess. If you don't mind, I will take you to my room. "My recent injury hasn't fully recovered yet, so I think I need to rest a bit now."

Only then did the Countess notice Seongjin, who was blinking sleepily, and made a fuss.

"Oh my, look at my mind! "I enjoyed the conversation so much that I was able to keep the guests, who were tired from the long journey, for this long!"

In that way, Seongjin walked toward the room, supported by Masain.

Meanwhile, my body felt strangely floating, and the auditory hallucinations ringing in my ears were getting worse.

[Hey, Seongjin Lee. Can you hear me?]

[...] What is this all about? What is it all about? Why am I here?]

[Repent! Repent!]

[Hey, come to your senses! What are you doing now? ... !]

[Ugh! A monster, a monster! Save people! Wow!]

It's so noisy it's killing me. Where on earth are you talking like this?

It was as if everyone was shouting at him through loudspeakers.

I don't even know how far I walked on my own feet. When I came to my senses, Seongjin had already returned to the room and was lying on a warm bed.

Masain asked while holding his sword next to him and removing the uncomfortable outer clothes.

"What makes you uncomfortable, sir? Was there a problem with that car earlier? Reply right away... .."

"Uh, no. What to do with a cup "Lord Masaine knows very well that that's not the cause, right?"

I think that was the cause, but I couldn't say it straight because I didn't know how Masain would react.

"I just suddenly feel really sleepy. "I'm just going to sleep quietly."

Seongjin pulled up the bedding and quickly closed his eyes.

"Now Louise will take care of me, so don't worry. "Lord Masaine, take a break."

Masain, who stayed by the bed for a while, finally left after seeing that Seongjin's breathing had become even.

And as soon as he left the door.

sparkle.

Seongjin opened his eyes and gestured to Louise, who was standing in the corner.

"... ..?"

Louise came closer to the bed with a nervous expression. Then, as if he sensed something, he sniffed, his nose twitched slightly, and his eyebrows furrowed slightly.

"... Medicine tea?"

"huh? "Oh, right."

Even while his head was spinning, Seongjin thought it was amazing.

How do you know that smell? There wasn't a very strong scent? Plus, I ate bear meat cooked with strong spices earlier.

"Why on earth... .."

Louise's expression as she looked down at Seongjin seemed a little absurd.

Does he know anything about medicine trucks?

I was curious at first, but there was something else urgent to do first.

"Louise, let me ask you a favor. now... .."

As Seongjin opened his mouth like that, something suddenly flowed from his nose along with a spinning sensation.

Louise, startled by the smell of blood, shouted.

"Lowering! Reply right now... ..!"

"no!"

Seongjin, who shouted sharply, let out a small groan as he held his head, which was pounding despite his own voice.

"... Okay. If you make a fuss now, you'll be in trouble. "For now, keep it a secret from everyone."

"but... .."

"And among my companions... Sir Sharon, there is an exorcist. Just keep quiet... .."

Seongjin, who spoke up to that point, trailed off.

The auditory hallucinations that had been getting louder since a while ago went beyond ringing in my head and were now resonating so loudly that they shook the whole world.

[Repent! Repent! Repent!]

"Lowering... ... !"

With Louise's voice receding far away, everything suddenly became dark.

200

200. Louise (3)

A junior who came to visit me bowed his head with an apologetic look on his face.

-I'm really sorry, senior. Still, I'm so glad you're safe.

Hearing that shameless guy's words, my fists naturally tighten.

However, Seongjin, who realized that even the slightest movement would cause a catastrophe, gave up on immediate punishment and rested his head quietly on the hospital bed.

I really can't kill that bastard.

-Anyway, you are really great. Who would have imagined walking back from there?

The junior who brought a chair and sat down next to him was waving with an expression that seemed extremely harmless.

-개새끼야. Cough!

When I answered without thinking, I coughed and small droplets of blood spattered out.

Cluck cluck.

Still, he is in good condition considering he suffered from severe airway burns. Without the help of a respirator, I was able to survive to some extent with just a small oxygen line in my nose.

-This is not all because of you! Cough! How can a guy who served in the control tower confuse LIMA and ROMEO? Crazy bastard.

Thanks to a wrong order, Seongjin left the operational area alone and became stranded in the middle of the Fire Caterpillar nest.

The Fire Caterpillar was a monster that spewed deadly poison. I barely escaped the situation with a moment of wit and extreme concentration, but originally, as soon as I was isolated, I would have been engulfed in poisonous smoke and turned into a handful of blood.

The junior was well aware of this fact, so he stayed by Seongjin's side for a while and obediently pretended to take care of himself.

-I've thought about it sometimes before. My senior acts so noble even when he only eats Jjambap. Haven't you been able to drink a sip of water for the past two days?

While I was diligently eating my long-awaited patient food, a junior who was carrying water next to me suddenly said something unexpected.

Seongjin's eyebrows twitched.

What kind of bullshit is this?

-That senior's arrogant attitude in everything. Is that some kind of compensation mentality to hide low self-esteem?

-what?

-Extreme hunger can ruin a person, but I think you eat while observing all manners. How did you get into that habit?

Seongjin felt his appetite drop.

What did this guy eat wrong? You've been reciting instructions out of your mind, and now you're making a fuss about people eating?

Originally, I would have just slapped myself on the back of the head and finished it off, but unfortunately, my physical condition was not right now.

-Do not make noise when chewing. Use chopsticks properly. Isn't this just ordinary home education? What's the problem?

-... yes?

As if he had heard an unexpected answer, the junior looked at Seongjin dumbly for a moment. Then she asks again with a suspicious expression.

-Are you serious about that?

-What if you don't mean it?

what? why? what?

I moved my chopsticks and glared at him with a sullen expression on my face, and my junior suddenly burst out laughing so loudly that the entire hospital room was gone.

-ha ha ha! Are you a senior? Home education? Ahahaha!

The guy who was holding his stomach and bursting into laughter eventually fell off the chair and slumped down on the floor. He laughed so hard that he now had tears in his eyes.

Is this bastard here to visit the hospital or to give someone medicine?

-ha ha ha. This was the funniest joke I've heard recently. Thank you very much, senior, for leaving us with a pleasant memory at the end. I'm serious about this.

"I must have laughed so much," said the junior who had barely recovered himself.

-last?

-yes. I have to say hello to you soon. I should have made this move myself a long time ago, but I was too complacent because I was just hoping for a fluke.

He adjusted the laces of his combat boots, tidied up his clothes, and spoke calmly.

-Senior, do you know that? This world will soon be destroyed anyway. Sooner or later everyone will die, it's an inevitable fact.

Then, the junior blinked his right eye busily and stared intently at me with his remaining eye.

-Then why are you still persistently alive? It's all pointless now, so why are you waiting so desperately?

Seongjin knew very well when that guy's habit came out.

Left amblyopia. Jinx looking at his prey.

You bastard, close your eyes right now.

Who is it looking at like that now?

Seongjin, who was reflexively tracing the position of the familiar sword, suddenly realized that his waist was empty and was shocked as if he had been hit hard on the head.

... uh?

No nutcracker? why?

* * *

omg!

Seongjin suddenly opened his eyes and took a deep breath, breaking into a cold sweat.

'... 'Nutcracker!'

As soon as he came to his senses, he hurriedly groped his waist. And as always, Seongjin checked the sword belt and hilt in the familiar location and then heaved a sigh of relief.

'Oh, what is it? 'You were surprised.'

Thump thump thump.

As my heart beats faster, a sense of reality slowly comes to me.

'Was it all a dream...?'

The moment I realized it, the pain in my entire body that I had felt so vividly before quickly subsided. I no longer feel the burning sensation of my airways that used to sizzle every time I take a breath.

Well, it was already over ten years ago. I thought I had completely forgotten about it by now.

Sungjin, feeling relaxed, lay down and blinked for a moment.

'But where on earth is this?'

When I look up, I see a very unfamiliar ceiling. The place where Seongjin was lying was a room as small as the palm of your hand.

'... Was there a place like this in Delcross?'

Bright lights of unknown origin pour in, and the plain pastel-toned wallpaper covering the ceiling and walls gives it a modern feel.

As I stood up in confusion, someone spoke to me next to me.

[Did you even have a dream? Just lie there.]

A calm voice that now feels very familiar.

When Seongjin, startled, turns his head, he sees a familiar figure.

[...] father?]

The only furniture in the room was a small bed that Seongjin was lying on and a desk so small that it could be considered a side table.

And there was Seonghwang standing in front of the desk.

He was dressed in light casual clothes, without the robes he usually wore, and spoke in a casual manner while leafing through the few books he had.

[Or would you like to read a book? It seems that it will still take more time for the effect of the tea to completely wear off.]

... Medicine tea!

Only then did memories from before he lost consciousness flash through Seongjin's mind one after another.

After drinking the medicinal tea given by Countess Sigismund, Seongjin felt that something was unusual and immediately tried to call Seonghwang.

The fact that he is here now probably means that Louise has properly listened to Seongjin's request.

However, I thought that if the success came, I would definitely borrow Sir Sharon's body, but how did this come about?

'Hey, devil? Are you listening? 'What on earth happened in the meantime?'

I quickly called the demon lord, but there was no answer.

Instead, Seonghwang chose a book and approached Seongjin at a leisurely pace.

[No matter how much you call it, you won't hear it now.]

[...] yes?]

[This is a space where all external thoughts are cut off. Therefore, the thoughts here also cannot flow out.]

A space where even the devil's thoughts are cut off. A powerful voice that is transmitted directly as if it were ringing in your head, not in your ears.

After thinking over and over again, Seongjin came to one conclusion.

[This is not the real world.]

Then Seonghwang slightly tilted his head and answered.

[I don't know. It is a bit absurd to say that it is not reality.]

Then he sat down on the edge of the bed and quietly focused his gaze on Seongjin.

[However, given that this is not the Delcross dimension, it may not be reality. This is the newly created Flame Dimension.]

[Flame injury... ..]

[okay. There was no other way to completely block the thoughts pouring in from all directions.]

Seongjin slowly pondered the meaning and was astonished.

Wait a minute, are you saying that this guy created a small dimension to block thoughts?

'Are you saying that if you become God's representative, creating dimensions one by one is not a task? no way... No matter how much you think about it, it's not normal, so can there really be no consequences?'

Come to think of it, Seonghwang's complexion seems paler than usual, perhaps due to his mood.

[Are you okay? Isn't it because of me that you were overexerting yourself?]

When Seongjin asked worriedly, Seonghwang asked back as if he was puzzled.

[swarm? Why did you think that?]

[Your complexion looks a little bad?]

[...]]

Seonghwang then blinked his eyes as if he was a little embarrassed, and then let out a small sigh as if he realized something. A slightly bitter smile appears on his face as he looks down at the book in his hand.

[no. I guess it's just because this isn't a place I have very good memories of. It's all in the past anyway, so don't worry about it.]

Well, in order to create such a specific and realistic image, the caster's memory would have to be the foundation.

And those memories may not always be good ones.

[I'm sorry, father.]

Seongjin bowed his head obediently and said.

No matter what my initial intention was, it is true that I drank the medicinal tea with my own hands.

At the time, I thought I had found the best way to smoothly overcome the situation, but who would have guessed that I would suddenly experience auditory hallucinations coming from all directions.

As expected, Seonghwang, who seemed to have guessed the situation to some extent, raised his head and looked at Seongjin.

[It's worth knowing. You probably never expected this result.]

[Yes, that is actually true. I thought one drink was nothing.]

Even though Loferum eggs are part of the raw material, according to the process obtained by Orden, the content is extremely small.

Although medicinal teas have been circulating in Sigismund's territory for several years now, only a small number of them have begun to show clear abnormal symptoms. After all, these are all recent events.

I never thought I would suffer from such terrible auditory hallucinations just because I drank one drink.

'wait for a sec! Now that I think about it, I saw that a new dimension was created to block the evil spirits... ... !'

So does that mean that what I heard earlier wasn't an auditory hallucination?

Are you saying that they are all real thoughts?

At that moment, Seongjin's head began to spin.

Medicine tea and Loferum eggs. An organ that receives gray plague and death. People of Sigismund's territory who talk nonsense and slowly go crazy.

'I have a rough idea of how medicinal tea affects people. But, then, the reason why such a change happened so quickly only to me... ... '

Somehow, a bad feeling creeps in.

Seonghwang, who was quietly observing Seongjin's complex expression, gave a hint at the right time.

[I'm sure you have guessed it to some extent by now. The medicinal tea distributed in the Sigismund Territory clearly creates flame crystals with an extremely low probability in the minds of those who have taken it for a long time.]

If you take it for a long time, there is a low probability.

And in Seonghwang's next words, Seongjin's anxiety turned out to be true.

[But a small amount of medicinal tea may be enough to stimulate what is already there.]

Seongjin's eyes shook violently.

That means only one thing.

[So, I was originally...]

No, it's not me.

Seongjin looked at the familiar combat uniform he was wearing and the tattered bandages wrapped around both fists, biting his lip and shaking his head vigorously.

The sword belt and nutcracker that I thought were tied to my waist had also disappeared without a trace.

It's natural. This is a world of flames.

It is a space where strong thoughts create substance.

[Mores is-]

Seongjin continued speaking in a trembling voice.

[That child had an innate ability to burn. Was he originally a psychic like the twins?]

Suddenly, the fact that Seonghwang's gaze was at a height not that different from his own struck Seongjin deeply.

201

201. Louise (4)

Did Mores have a decision to burn from the beginning?

In response to that question, Seonghwang looked at Seongjin with unreadable eyes for a moment and then blurted out something strange.

[You're thinking useless thoughts again with that small head.]

[...] yes?]

[Yes, son. You guessed right. You were born with a decision to pray from the beginning. For some reason, it wasn't activated every time, but sometimes, when I was playing around with Herna or Gades, I used channeling well.]

what? son?

At that moment, Seongjin felt something welling up inside him.

This guy is really... .. !

Seongjin jumped out of bed and shouted at Seonghwang, who was staring at him without even moving a muscle.

[How long are you going to pretend like you don't know?]

A question that had been hanging around my throat for the past few months as if it had been gripped tightly, and I couldn't bring myself to say it out loud.

When it finally opened up, the anxiety, doubts, and sadness I had been feeling all burst out at once.

[Why do you still call me son? Successful Majesty. Can't you even see me now?]

Even without looking in the mirror, Seongjin knew very well what he looked like. Because I was able to draw the detailed outline of the face just by feeling the air touching my skin.

This is because he has lived without changing a single inch for decades since he became a hunter and began absorbing the energy of monsters.

[Do you know what? Even after all this, I am very old! You probably can't even imagine!]

In fact, I believe that you are my son.

No, it's the same even if you don't know your age.

Just looking at it at face value, I'm not your older brother now!

[why... ... !]

And finally, the question I wanted to ask the most came out of Seongjin's mouth.

[Why aren't you looking for your real son?]

Excited.

With each word uttered, the tightly closed bolts open one by one.

[You can do that! Didn't you find me even at the border of the dimension? But why do you pretend not to notice that an evil spirit like me has taken over your son's body?]

Excited.

My heart began to beat harder and louder, as if I was knocking on a door.

It felt as if the blood had drained from Seonghwang's seemingly insensitive face, but once the words were poured out, he could never take them back.

[Is that by any chance? Is there no way to keep this body alive until the real Mores' soul is found? Then you just have to tell me the truth! I will give it back to you as you wish!]

okay. Right now, I can still, not yet, give it back.

As long as you don't make me regret this body anymore.

My heart is pounding.

Is this just my own pulse, or is it the struggle of something else that I don't know?

Seongjin couldn't decide whether he should just pour it out or suppress it and lock it up again, as it would burst out at once as soon as there was even the slightest gap.

[No matter how evil I am, I am not shameless enough to steal the body of a young child! So, it would be better for both of us if we stop doing unnecessary family games at this point! Are you really okay with this? What are the sins of Sister, Logan, and Sir Martha who know nothing!]

Emotions are heightened and thinking is rapidly accelerated.

It's a disaster.

My consciousness expanded and I began to reach every corner of the narrow room.

Now Seongjin was looking at Seonghwang, who had his mouth shut with a stern expression, and at the same time was contemplating himself screaming at him from afar.

Ah, I know what this is.

I'm sure I'll feel this way someday... ..

[Calm down.]

Tuk.

Seongjin, startled by a light hand suddenly touching his head, stopped thinking for a moment.

Oh, wait, wait! Something is happening now.

Tuk.

Before he could catch his senses, Seonghwang knocked on Seongjin's head again. As if pouring cold water on her, her head slowly begins to clear.

Tap, tap, tap.

The pats that continued at regular intervals gave Seongjin a strange sense of stability and at the same time served to prevent his thoughts from running wild.

In an instant, my vision returns to normal and my heartbeat calms down.

[You shouldn't doubt yourself like that. There is no need for you to get there yet.]

When I came to, Seongjin was breathing heavily as if he had been sprinting for a long time.

And to Seongjin, Seonghwang called in a soft voice.

[Mores.]

This guy is still... ... !

Seongjin, who was trying to push away Seonghwang's hand in a surge of defiance, was dumbfounded when he realized that his field of vision had been far below his.

... what?

Seongjin opened his eyes wide and looked at his hands.

Although there are calluses here and there, the hands are clearly smaller and younger than the ones in memory.

Clearly, Mores'... ? What is this?

[Mores.]

[...]]

Seongjin stubbornly kept his mouth shut and shook his head.

How did this happen?

okay. This is a world of flames. I wonder if this guy can even change my appearance at will...

[Son.]

[...] yes.]

I reluctantly answered the voice that kept urging me, and Seonghwang sighed softly.

[okay. With that personality, I must have endured it for a very long time. I don't know that you must have been very frustrated because you didn't know the English language. But have you thought about this? Why didn't you ask me this a long time ago?]

Why did you do that?

Well, at first I didn't want to get kicked out for no reason, and later on, it was bothersome to think about it in a complicated way.

Moreover, when I thought about the people in Seonghwang who were worried about Mores' whereabouts, I couldn't stop talking.

But at the same time.

'... Is that really all it is?'

On the other side of my mind, these doubts were creeping in.

[Then, why is it only now that I can finally say that question out loud?]

[...]]

As I looked up at Seonghwang with complicated feelings, he shook Seongjin's hair one last time and withdrew his hand.

[That's because you have now, however clumsily, escaped the dimension of Delcross. Perhaps you were instinctively aware of the conditions and restrictions for fully belonging to a world.]

[...] Conditions and restrictions?]

After confirming that Seongjin had completely calmed down, Seonghwang slowly sat down on the bed and picked up the book he had put down.

[okay. It worked out just fine. Let me explain to you about this flame dimension that I just created.]

It was a random story that was suddenly taken out of context, but Seongjin listened quietly.

As a result, I had a feeling that the end of the explanation would be in line with Seongjin's question.

[Once upon a time, there was a [disaster] that led to the destruction of a world. It was an uncontrollable force that cut off and destroyed everything, and also broke down the boundaries of everything and mixed them up. The disaster even made all the strong thoughts that sometimes crossed dimensions useless.]

Whirling.

Seonghwang's eyes were dark and sunken as he half-heartedly turned the pages and continued talking.

[So an arrogant person came up with this idea. If he completely covers the border with a disaster, wouldn't he be able to completely isolate those with spiritual abilities who stand in his way?]

[Psychic people?]

[okay. And surprisingly, the plan succeeded. No matter how strong the thought was, it was impossible to overcome the barrier of [disaster]. Many psychics met such vain ends at his hands.]

widely.

Seonghwang closed the book loudly and quietly faced Seongjin.

[This place is nothing more than a shadow imitating that place. It's a clumsy dimension where there is only a small space and the disaster surrounding it. There are no consistent physical laws or even proper entities. So, you and I, who exist here now, have unstable bodies that reflect the state of our souls. Since the vocal cords that produce sound and the atmosphere that transmits it are clumsy, conversation can only be achieved through thought.]

Seongjin, who was pondering his explanation, suddenly thought.

How did such a place remain so specifically in Seonghwang's memory?

[By the way, Mores. I, the king of this dimension who created this dimension, suddenly had this thought.]

Seonghwang slowly lifted the book upward and continued speaking.

[Actually, there is no paper in this dimension. Since there is no civilization that makes paper, perhaps this book is actually made of stone tablets.]

At that moment, the book slipped out of his hand.

Coo!

It hit the floor hard, making a heavy sound.

[...] ... !]

Did the book just turn to stone?

[But now that I think about it, that book is a history book of 387 pages. So the stone tablets that make up that book must be exactly 387 pages.]

Kiyi.

Suddenly, the book starts shaking violently on the floor.

Seongjin looked at the scene in astonishment. The sight of 387 stone slabs being broken, broken, and constantly compressed to fit into one small book.

[But then again, this suspicion arose.]

Seonghwang's face looked extremely inorganic as he looked down at the book that was shaking as if it was going to explode at any moment, and for a moment, Seongjin wondered if he had turned into a piece of stone like that book.

[Is there history to be recorded in this dimension? Is there a proper stone to engrave this on? Maybe that book never existed from the beginning?]

shaking.

The book, which had begun to shrink rapidly, was now unable to overcome the compressing force and was floating in the air about a span from the floor. The volume changes so rapidly that the entire small room begins to shake as if it will collapse.

'... Dangerous!'

Seongjin was able to foresee the consequences of this scary prank.

[now stop... ... !]

at that time.

Pow!

The book suddenly disappeared, causing a small explosion.

At the right time, Seonghwang's hand, which was holding the book, also took the same shape.

Sigh!

The right arm flies off, and blood-red purple scatters throughout the room.

[father!]

Seongjin, who was frightened, ran over and helped the stumbling man.

However, Seonghwang was barely supporting himself by leaning on Seongjin's shoulder, and was muttering something like this with a calm expression on his face.

[Did you see it? The king of the dimension's hasty words have unintentionally completely twisted the fate of this great history book.]

Quick.

Blood spurted out from Seongjin's forehead.

[Is now the time to say such absurd things? Quickly try to do something about this with divine power!]

Seongjin hurriedly dragged the bedding and wrapped it around Seonghwang's arms, trying his best to stop the bleeding. However, the effort was not worth it, and in an instant, the blanket became soaked with blood.

[...] But suddenly this question arises again.]

No, what else are you curious about?

Stop talking nonsense and tell me to do something about this right now!

[In this place where there are no laws of physics or any power that governs the world, does a power called divine power really exist?]

This guy... .. !

Seongjin became thoughtful and shouted.

[stop! How can I say something like that in this situation? there is! Of course there is divine power! Wherever the Father is, the strength is always there! No matter what, doubt what you have to doubt!]

However, the nobleman, who had turned pale due to a large amount of blood loss, began to say strange things again in a weak voice.

[okay. As you say, there is no doubt that I am God's representative. God's representative is someone who proves the existence of divine power, which is God's blessing to the world. So I thought about it. So what am I? Can I really exist in a place where there is no divine power?]

... no way?

Seongjin couldn't believe it. Is this guy even aware of what he is talking about?

And Seongjin's ominous premonition soon became true. Seonghwang's body gradually became fainter, and it began to slowly disappear from his feet, as if he had erased it with an eraser!

Seongjin, who was completely distraught and worried that he might disappear completely, grabbed his remaining arm and shouted frantically.

[sorry! I did everything wrong! Now I won't doubt anything! I am my father's son! It's true!]

[...]]

[Feel free to call me your son! Call me Mores! No, I'm just Mores from the beginning! yes It's okay!]

[...]]

[I did everything wrong! So please!]

Tuk.

Suddenly, I felt a hand patting my head as if comforting me.

Tap, tap, tap.

'... right hand?'

I was startled and raised my head, but before I knew it, Seonghwang was looking down at Seongjin with a normal face.

His body, including his right hand, had already been completely regenerated, and not even a single drop of blood splattered on the wallpaper remained.

And the same angry yet calm voice as always.

[Yes, it is truly a desirable attitude.]

[uh...]

Seongjin's face distorted.

No, this guy really said, let's see!

202

202. Louise (5)

'... 'I'm pissed!'

In order to suppress his boiling anger, Seongjin exercised extreme patience.

The reason he did not grab the Emperor by the collar right away was purely because of the idea of filial piety that was deeply engraved in his bones as the benefactor of the country of courtesy in the East.

After all, you can't be a bastard who wields violence against the man you call father!

[Do you understand now?]

Seonghwang, perhaps aware of Seongjin's feelings, patted his head quite affectionately and continued speaking.

[You must fully understand how dangerous the words you just said were. Such hasty definitions, doubts, and negativity can sometimes lead to dire and irreversible consequences.]

But his explanation didn't even reach Seongjin's ears anymore.

No, he called me his son!

At one point did you treat me like a child who was thrown into the water, and now you threaten me with bloodshed under the guise of discipline?

[Above all, son. You are an oracle of unprecedented potential. It has infinite potential to overcome the boundaries of the world.]

Didn't they say that it will help me avoid making heartless choices in the future?

You reassured me that you would always be my strong support, but now you are acting like a self-harming blackmailer!

[So you should not be defined carelessly in any world or in anyone's mouth. Even by yourself.]

I was able to keep Isabella alive because you were there.

This means that instead of immediately turning over Milo and Scarzzapino, I was able to take my time and let things proceed as they should!

[so... Mores, are you listening?]

Why does this guy think I was put in charge of this annoying monster task force in the first place?

Isn't this all to help you and protect Delcross, where you and the people of the Seonghwang family live?

But what is the meaning of Delcross without you?

[why...]

Seonghwang, who only then noticed Seongjin's irreverent gaze, pulled his hand away with a slightly embarrassed expression.

[Why are you doing that? What is uncomfortable? I tried to block him, but he got hurt in the explosion earlier...]

Soon, a hand filled with divine power approached, but Seongjin struck the hand away in a defiant manner and opened his mouth with a sullen face.

[Did you burst your arm so loudly just to give that explanation?]

Then Seonghwang blinked for a moment, then nodded hesitantly.

[...] okay. An example of how it can lead to such drastic results...]

[So, you committed such a ridiculous self-harm just to set an example?]

Seongjin's voice when he asked that was very calm.

However, Seonghwang, who noticed the unusual anger hidden within him, quietly kept his mouth shut while secretly observing Seongjin's feelings.

[Do you know? I just thought my father was really dying.]

[...]]

[I thought you would completely disappear from this world! You said I was your son? But what on earth are you doing in front of your child? yes?]

Seongjin gritted his teeth as he realized that his voice was trembling at the end of his words.

Oh, I'm so pissed I'm going to die.

[...] But Mores. You know, I can't do that anyway...]

Does that mean you won't die?

Seongjin was dumbfounded.

[no! If you don't die anyway, isn't that kind of injury nothing? Do you think that makes sense? Then me too! Any wound will be fine if my father heals it, so why are you cracking down on me not to cause accidents?]

[...]]

[Why is your father like that in everything? Didn't you actually evacuate the guard knights before and confront Cadmus alone, but this time you're using yourself as a teaching aid? How could I be so anxious that I could take my eyes off even for a moment? yes?]

Seonghwang's eyes tremble slightly as if he is shocked. He stared at Seongjin like that for a moment, then lowered his eyes and sighed softly.

[...] okay. I'm sorry if I surprised you.]

He raised one hand and slowly washed his face dry.

[There might have been a simpler way, but my thoughts were short. I was trying to convince him by just showing him the results. I guess I've been spending too much time with him recently. I was being influenced by that way of thinking whether I knew it or not.]

... That kid?

[Sorry, Mores.]

Seonghwang apologized again with a slightly downcast expression.

Although Seongjin was furious, he felt his anger quickly cool down as he looked at this gentleman's sullen face.

Ah, it can't go on like this. I need to say something more to this guy.

[Mores. This is what I really wanted to say.]

Seongjin, who was unable to properly control his anger, listened with a slightly softened face.

[Do you know what happens if I, the king of the dimension, call something by the wrong name here?]

[...] why? Will it explode again?]

Seongjin asked back with a sullen expression.

It was a sarcastic remark filled with some dissatisfaction, but Seonghwang let out a soft laugh and said, "Haha."

[Yes, that is correct. Mores, do you see that pen?]

Seongjin reflexively turned his head in the direction he was pointing, then tilted his head and asked.

[Pen? Father, there are only books over there... ..]

Even before the words were finished.

Pow!

The book lying on the desk suddenly exploded. The impact was so great that the desk caved in and shredded paper flew everywhere.

[...] ... !]

Fortunately, there was no major shock thanks to Seonghwang opening the Auror curtain at the right time, but Seongjin quietly broke into a cold sweat as he finally realized the seriousness of what Seonghwang had said.

The words he warned Seongjin several times were not empty words.

'Really, if I just call it wrong, it explodes? 'The king of the dimension is quite scary when you know it.'

While I was looking at the pieces of paper flying like snow with a bewildered face, Seonghwang called out to Seongjin in a low voice.

[...] Mores.]

[yes?]

[Son.]

[yes... . uh?]

Come to think of it. Why am I so fine even when this guy calls me random things?

I looked up at the Holy Emperor with wide eyes, and his mouth slightly curved.

[...] ... !]

wait for a sec.

So what this gentleman is saying is that I am really his son and Mores?

So you want to tell me that it's okay for you to call me that?

'But can't that be? I'm Seongjin Lee from Earth! I am Mores, that is absolutely impossible... ... '

Tuk.

Before he could continue his thoughts, Seonghwang, who didn't know how he knew, lightly tapped his forehead and warned him.

[You have to be careful. Didn't you clearly say with your own mouth earlier that you wouldn't be suspicious?]

That's because the situation was urgent at the time.

No, but how on earth can that be?

Seonghwang, who was looking at Seongjin's confused expression, quietly added an explanation.

[There is almost no precedent for two oracles to coexist in one era. Above all, Oracle cannot be hastily defined. Even the slightest difference in perception can lead to irreversible consequences just by recognizing the distortion.]

[...]]

[Do you understand? If you find it hard to believe now, at least don't close that possibility completely. That will suffice for now.]

Seongjin quietly considered his words.

At least don't close the possibility that I am this man's son.

'uh... ... '

So really?

However, while I felt a deep sense of relief when I thought of that, I suddenly became embarrassed to look at the Holy Emperor's face.

It was because I remembered all the times I had gotten angry and shouted at him when I came here.

'Oh, I'm so embarrassed... .. '

To be honest, who would have known that I would end up acting like a rebellious adolescent brat at this age.

Until now, I was confident that I was somewhat of an adult.

'Even when I was in middle school and high school, when darkness instead of blood flowed through my veins, I never once shouted at my parents.'

At that time, Seonghwang tilted his head and muttered.

[What flows through your veins... .. ?]

what?

Seongjin asked, feeling anxious.

[Father, are you even reading my thoughts right now?]

[...]]

'Are you reading?'

Seonghwang then averted his gaze as if he was embarrassed and began to give a lengthy explanation.

[Didn't I explain the laws of this world earlier? All conversations take place through thoughts, so a thought that is strong enough to become a thought is not much different from muttering out loud. I didn't just read your thoughts... ..]

... You're reading.

But Seongjin thought of another possibility there.

good. If a man with a grandiose status, like the king of some dimension, can't open his mouth hastily, shouldn't I just read his thoughts?

Seongjin concentrated his mind and glared at Seonghwang's mouth.

'Now, stop by! 'Listen!'

Then, after looking at Seongjin blankly for a moment, he raised one corner of his mouth as if he understood.

[You are far away, son. At least it is still 650 years early.]

'... ... !'

Seongjin sighed, feeling his motivation disappearing at once.

By the way, it's been 650 years. Well, it's a strangely specific period of time, isn't it?

While the effect of the medicinal tea remained, Seongjin stayed in the newly created dimension for a while, talking about various things with Seonghwang.

[...] So, does your father listen to those thoughts every day?]

Seongjin asked a little worriedly.

After experiencing the power of the flame crystal, I couldn't help but be very worried about him, who had strong psychic powers.

It didn't take long for Seongjin to receive the thoughts in earnest, but even in that short period of time, he felt like he was going to go crazy.

[For psychics, this is no big deal. As time goes by, you will develop your own tricks. The reason you had such a hard time is because you faced a new sensation unprepared and defenseless.]

Therefore, Seonghwang warned that it is best to avoid drinking medicinal tea carelessly in the future if possible.

[Ah, but why don't you come here often these days? What's going on in the imperial palace?]

It may have sounded like a complaint, but honestly, I was curious.

Isn't it a bit strange that the man who had been possessing Sir Sharon for a long time stopped walking after the incident at the Demon Tree?

Then Seonghwang sighed with a confused look on his face.

[I ended up touching too many causes and effects with my soul state. So, for the time being, I am being a bit cautious about interfering with the north.]

[As expected, it was my father who healed my eye at that time. [He also treated knights who suffered from erosion.]

[okay. What the old man said was right. Although she shouted loudly in front of her, it is also true that she needed to cool down a bit.]

At that time, he saved so many people from a state of incorporeal souls. In addition, the entire area contaminated by the Demon World was completely purified.

And Seonghwang told Seongjin many other stories.

About the existence of the 'Council of Six' that protects the border of the Delcross dimension, and the 'agreement' made with them.

About what is currently happening in Sigismund Territory and about the people we need to pay close attention to in the future.

Seongjin suddenly became curious and asked.

[But why are you telling me all this?]

Even though we have moved beyond Delcross, the restrictions have become relatively lighter.

Then Seonghwang smiled slightly.

[Don't you know, Mores? Now that you have activated the channel, you are no different from a complete oracle. Even if I didn't tell you, you would have gotten all the answers just by asking questions. It's just that the process must have been very difficult.]

So, Seonghwang creates an entirely different dimension and seals off all of Seongjin's channels, while at the same time giving him the answers he would have come up with through pain.

[uh...]

[Of course, when I think about the results you would have achieved by struggling alone, I feel like I am getting a little for nothing. So what can you do? Even if you do this, you have to strike a balance.]

yes? how?

Seongjin tilted his head, but soon sighed in resignation as Seonghwang's hand approached him.

Holy shit. I knew it would be like this in the end.

Seongjin closed his eyes tightly.

[It's almost time for the medicine to take effect. It will be difficult for you to look at me often for a while, so please take care of yourself from now on.]

Sigh!

* * *

"Kkuek!"

I screamed and opened my eyes to find myself on a warm bed.

This is the exact place where he lost consciousness, leaving a request to Louise to call Sir Sharon.

[...] Seongjin Lee?]

'Uh, okay. 'Did anything happen?'

[Nooooooooooo! Hey, Lee Seong-ji!]

The devil suddenly sensed that Seongjin had returned and started whining to leave the room.

[hey! What happened to you? Why was there still no answer? Do you know how worried I was?]

'Oh, please be quiet. 'My head is still pounding.'

Seongjin, who was frowning and getting up, came face to face with the absurd face of Louise, who was still sitting next to the bed.

"... Kuek?"

Seongjin, who was embarrassed, secretly avoided her gaze.

Uh, Louise. Just forget about that.

203. Louise (6)

"How are you feeling? "Are you feeling dizzy or something?"

Louise asked, supporting Seongjin from the side.

"huh."

Of course he was fine. Because my father, who possessed Lord Sharon, completely cured me.

However, Louise, who did not know this, still looked worried.

"You lost a lot of blood. After all, wouldn't it be better to be seen by a member of the National Assembly?"

"are you okay. "Didn't the paladin come and go earlier?"

"Of course, as you commanded, I only called the exorcist quietly. Haonde, my dear. While I was treating Hae-jeong, I noticed her presence a little... .."

"huh?"

"... "No, it's nothing."

Louise shook her head and stood up.

Even the slightest worry was erased from his face, and only the cool-headed expression typical of a competent user remained.

"It's been a while since we ate. "You're going to be hungry, so I'll prepare some snacks for you."

Seongjin scratched his cheek as he watched her leave the room with a measured pace.

'No way, Louise. Did you find out that his father was possessed by Sir Sharon?

The more you look at it, the more it becomes apparent. Even though the royal family is shedding a lot of blood, they don't panic and handle things quietly.

He seems bold and quite quick-witted.

[What happened to you?]

After Louise left the room, the devil came to question Seongjin as if he had been waiting for her.

[Your father came here by borrowing the body of that crazy knight. But when I thought about getting treatment, the presence of your soul suddenly disappeared. She said the woman left the room without her too. What on earth happened?]

'okay?'

Seongjin's soul went to the flame dimension created by Seonghwang. However, the soul did not completely leave the body and the body did not die.

'Does it feel similar to that? Even when the [gap] opened in the imperial palace, I felt as if my body existed in two places at the same time... ... '

Perhaps dimensional movement is not simply a concept of moving from one neighborhood to another over a long distance.

While I was deep in thought, the demon lord added excitedly.

[really. Don't be surprised, Seongjin Lee! I discovered something amazing in that time! Do you know exactly what happened after you drank the medicinal tea earlier?]

It is said that at that time, the demon king was in his cozy nest in Seongjin's head as usual.

'Your nest?'

[okay. There's a perfect place for your soul in your head. I like to sit there, rest my chin and look outside.]

Sit down? Are you holding your chin?

Aren't you a soul without a body?

[But after you drank that tea, oh my! I wonder if something happened to my nest, and the area under my butt suddenly started to glow brightly.]

... Regardless of whether such body parts exist in the soul, such expressions are somehow unpleasant.

But my mind is shining, is that really true?

[Voila! It turned out that the place I had been making my home until now was Yeomsangjeong-an, right?]

The demon king, energized by the new discovery, was now stretching out his soul to the fullest in Seongjin's head.

[Isn't it huge? Mores also had a decision to burn! She's never shined before, so I didn't notice! For some reason, I thought it was a very cozy space for the soul to stay!]

'... ... '

[Same as those twins. Unlike ordinary humans, it is located exactly in the center of the back of the head! With this, one thing becomes clear. That flame crystal that resembles a monster is clearly inherited from your father's bloodline!]

iced coffee. Perhaps that is a characteristic of the Kornsim clan.

Earlier, Seonghwang briefly explained about their clan. From what I heard, it seems that the entire clan forms one huge mental network through soul terminals.

It makes me wonder if that's a characteristic of group monsters.

[But you know what? My nest was a much more delicate and wonderful organ than the twins! In the core of the icosahedron, which had no flaws at all, seven elegantly rising arches were exactly symmetrical and extended in all directions! I honestly have never seen such intricate and beautiful flame crystals before... ..]

The Demon King, who was talking excitedly as if he had a supercar in front of him, became puzzled when he realized Seongjin's shocked reaction.

[...] Isn't it surprising?]

'No, whatever.'

Because I heard this from Seonghwang a long time ago.

Moreover, the success and events that took place at the funeral level were too dramatic to be surprised by every single thing. For a short period of time, the emotional exhaustion was extreme.

[Tch!]

When Seongjin didn't show the expected reaction, the sarcastic devil bastard grumbled.

[It's no fun like this! The things I have prepared for you over the past few days have been completed through this decision, but if you keep doing this, you won't show it!]

'Have you prepared something? what is that?'

Seongjin asked, feeling his interest suddenly pique.

Somehow, I had a feeling that the 'preparation' that the demon lord was talking about was not usually important.

I heard you often spend time alone in your head and procrastinating. Have you been doing that?

[Tch! it's okay. It's obvious it won't be that surprising to you anyway. Just forget it. Don't be disappointed after finding out.]

The Demon King was pouting and grumbling as if he was indifferent, but the emotions conveyed in Seongjin's head were not like that at all.

Please ask. Ask me more.

My heart is pounding.

As if it were a heartbeat, a vibration full of excitement was coming from him without any filtering.

'... It looks like you've really prepared something great?'

But this guy. Does he know that his feelings are clearly conveyed to Seongjin like this?

Seongjin, who felt somewhat sad, smiled bitterly.

'What is that, huh? say it. I'm dying of curiosity.'

After coaxing and coaxing him for a while, the devil finally calmed down and confided in Seongjin, pretending that he couldn't win.

[Do you remember when you robbed me of my spiritual eyes not long ago?]

How could you forget that?

As a result, my optic nerves burned out and I almost lost the use of my eyes forever.

[After that happened, I thought about it carefully. Regardless of the method, the fact that you were able to share my spiritual vision means that you also clearly have a corresponding sense.]

When Seongjin first came up with the idea of sharing the Demon King's senses, the guy said that his senses were different from 'vision' and that it would be impossible.

However, contrary to expectations, Seongjin easily took the man's spiritual eye and used it well to kill the Demon Lord. Although the results were quite disastrous.

[So, in the meantime, I have been touching various senses in your head from time to time and closely examining whether there is any part that agrees with me.]

Indeed, it seems that the reason he has been mulling over and over in his head for the past few days was because he was working on that kind of work.

'I was giving up, but you were able to do that on your own?'

I guess it must have been quite a bit of work?

Then the Demon King responded as if it were absurd.

[What are you giving up? I know very well that that's not the case, so I thought I should prepare in advance when I have some free time.]

'preparation?'

[okay. I'm sure your personality is such that you won't hesitate to do it again if you feel it's necessary, right? But I am the Fire Demon Lord, who owns the sword of Gehenna. If you blindly rob me of my senses like you did last time, this time I might really burn your brain completely. In that case, wouldn't it be much better for me to find a safer way?]

'... ... '

Seongjin could not deny the devil's words.

And on the other hand, I felt a little grateful to the demon lord who had deliberately taken such trouble for me. It's a feeling he never thought he'd feel from a bastard just a few months ago.

'So, saying this now means that there has been some level of success?'

[of course. Now, look carefully.]

The demon lord, who was fiddling around with things in his head, finally shouted confidently.

[Voila!]

At that moment, a new scene truly unfolded before Seongjin's eyes.

The world I saw just moments ago, covered in multi-colored, brilliant light.

'This... ..'

The fire in the fireplace glowing blue, and the warm blue air emanating from it.

Pink chills seeping in from the windows and walls.

I could even see people beyond the wall.

Judging from his presence, the yellow shadow standing outside the room clearly belongs to Lord Calmen.

And the shadows of many people moving between the upper and lower floors... ..

'Is this amazing? Hey, devil! You've really accomplished something amazing!'

When Seongjin let out pure admiration, the devil bastard said, "Hahaha!" He burst into laughter.

[How do you feel? The power of this Demon King! Do you finally understand the greatness of this body even a little?]

Seongjin felt curious and looked around.

The faint shadows moving diligently through the hallways were probably ordinary people, such as servants or maids.

On the other hand, people with bright blue or yellow colors are clearly knights with strong auras.

In the case of the yellow shadow moving vigorously in the back, it was a person with such strong aura that it glowed so brightly that it almost looked like gold.

Looking at the presence, it was clearly Lord Masaine. As expected, I am busy practicing whenever I have time.

[Actually, I was thinking it was a little strange that I had not achieved any results over the past few days. No matter how much I searched, I couldn't find any sense of 'spiritual vision' from you. At least until this morning.]

The Demon King added an explanation to Seongjin, who was frantically looking around.

'But how did you succeed?'

[It's a medicine car.]

'Medicine tea?'

[Yes, Seongjin Lee. Everything became clear because you drank it! The truth is that you don't actually have spiritual eyes.]

'... what?'

Seongjin was taken aback by the unexpected answer.

Do you have no spiritual eyesight?

So what was the feeling that day? And what happened to all the things I'm seeing right now?

[I also became aware of this clearly after your flame crystal was activated. The fact that it was not your spiritual eyes that were in tune with my spiritual eyes, but your decision to think about it itself!]

The demon lord continued his explanation in an excited tone.

It turned out that what he sensed was being received in the form of thoughts into the flame crystal, where it was transformed into visual information that Seongjin could sense.

[Actually, I thought it was strange from the beginning. Originally, the sight I see was a five-colored scene surrounded by spiritual light. But what I experienced while sharing your senses was completely different. It seemed as if all the possibilities of things in the world were unfolding in the form of light at once!]

'Light of possibility... .. '

I felt like I knew what he was talking about.

When dealing with the Demon Tree, Seongjin experienced the sensation of seeing in advance the branches of the tree, each arrow, and even the flow of air.

[What I was robbed of at that time was not my spiritual eyes. I was simply robbed of the leadership of my vision and forced to share my vision with you.]

'hmm.'

[That's how I see what you see, and my spiritual eyes also follow your gaze. The thoughts created by that sense are received by the meditation crystal and converted into visual information, and that information is then repeatedly transmitted to me through your vision!]

He continued speaking so quickly without stopping that the guy who didn't even need to breathe was panting.

[That complex, overlapping, inefficient information movement occurred simultaneously for every single object in the vicinity! So, how could the eyes and optic nerves have been intact to handle that? It is inevitable that everything will be ruined and necrotic!]

'... .. '

Seongjin looked around, half-listening to the Demon King's complex explanation.

Certainly, even though it had been quite a while since I received sensation from him, unlike before, I felt no pain at all other than a slight burning sensation.

'I guess I finally found a way to solve it.'

[huh. Once I knew the principle, it was a pretty simple problem.]

The Demon King, having calmed his excitement a little, shrugged.

[This happened because you and I were forced to be tied to one narrow sense called 'vision' in the first place. So, before that happens, all I have to do is convey my thoughts and that's it. Then, the flame crystal will automatically change your senses according to your perspective.]

'The decision to burn... ..'

[okay. Your flame crystal is normally inactive, so it cannot receive external thoughts, but it seems to perform its own function as long as it transmits internal thoughts like this. Of course, if this goes on for too long, it will strain your nerves a bit.]

no. But this alone will be of great help.

Seongjin suddenly had a premonition.

Seonghwang had warned me earlier as a precaution. If possible, it is best to avoid drinking medicinal tea carelessly.

That means there is a possibility that there will be several situations in the future where Seongjin would consider drinking medicinal tea.

After thinking that far, Seongjin praised the demon king with a pure heart.

'good job! Next time bear meat steak comes out, I'll gladly eat two plates despite my reputation!'

[Mhahahaha!]

It was right then.

Tap, tap, tap.

From across the hallway, I saw a very unique shadow approaching the room.

A slim new figure that alone emits a soft purple light among the yellow and blue shadows. Although the Aura activity is hidden in some way, there is a bright shadow that clearly indicates that the person is a strong Aura user.

Knock knock.

After knocking politely, Louise came into the room, pushing a tray with dinner in it.

"I brought you dinner, sir."

Then, she was startled and looked straight into Seongjin's eyes.

"My goodness, your eyes... .."

After sharing his thoughts with the Demon King, the inside of Seongjin's pupil was blinking with a faint red light that was difficult for an ordinary person to discern.

"Haha, Louise has really good eyes."

Seongjin lifted his eyebrows at her and praised her.

The nose is really nice too. No matter how you look at it, this is not an ordinary servant.

"Oh, and Lord Calmen?"

At the sudden call of the prince, Kalmen stuck out his face through the open door.

"Yes, sir?"

"Looking again, you still lack training. What is brightness? Be more diligent."

"... yes?"

At Seongjin's sudden beating, Carmen alone had a puzzled look on his face, not knowing what was going on.

204. Louise (7)

First morning at Sigismund Range. Seongjin opened his eyes at the same time without fail.

But instead of jumping up and starting to meditate like he usually did, he lay still, looking at the faint rays of light coming through the small window.

It was a strange feeling that is difficult to describe. A disturbing and breathtaking feeling that will disappear even if you turn your head slightly.

'Why do I feel so strange? 'Is it because I'm not used to sleeping there?'

Or maybe I overexerted myself and stayed up too late last night.

With that thought in mind, Seongjin raised his hand to block the sunlight, and suddenly his eyes fell on the small hand of a familiar yet unfamiliar boy.

'... ah!'

I thought I knew.

From now on, he really has to live a proper life as Mores. He may be feeling the burden unconsciously.

It will definitely be different from my previous life, which was filled with one goal: revenge. It's not an extra vacation at the end of life, and it's certainly not a life that you keep for a while before giving it back to someone else.

This is the full life of a young boy with brilliant potential, a family who loves and is loved, and who must never fail.

'That's too much for an old man like me.'

Everything that seemed so clear until now suddenly felt so vague and uneasy.

But it also felt exciting, so it wasn't such a bad feeling.

'Well, I guess I'll have to try something.'

That's how I make up my mind.

smart.

With a knock on the door, Edith comes in carrying a water bottle as always.

"Did you cough, sir?"

Ah, Edith.

My dedicated maid who is shameful no matter where I put her.

Please don't cause any trouble while staying at the count's house.

When Seongjin stared at her unusually, Edith was a little embarrassed and hurriedly made an excuse.

"Ah, I'm sorry, sir. Yesterday, I neglected my work as I was following the butler and receiving necessary training at the count's residence. Fortunately, Louise took care of most of the work, but did you find it very inconvenient?"

"no. "It was okay."

okay. Maybe the number of times you gave me gall tea is much more than I know.

I'll remember this, so let's do better in the future.

Then Edith trembled and muttered.

"what? Why do I suddenly have chills... .."

While she was working hard to activate the aura inside her body, Masaine also came to Seongjin's room as usual.

"Sir, did you have any trouble last night? "How are you feeling?"

"Oh, welcome. Lord Masaine."

Seongjin responded by getting up and looking at Masain's face once again.

Now that I think about it, that guy has been consistently kind to Mores since I first met him.

Normally, I would just say, 'You have such a loyal personality.' I probably would have done it, but as soon as the possibility that the target might actually be me arises, the feeling becomes more subtle.

Did I really know his faithfulness?

Also, have you responded sufficiently so far?

"... "What do you think, sir?"

Masain, sensing that Seongjin's mood was a little different from usual, asked curiously.

"no. Nothing."

Seongjin rubbed his eyes and sighed.

It's a big deal. If this continues, how will we see the faces of the successful people in the future?

'Amelia is Sister Amelia, Logan is Logan, and the little boy is... ..'

And that's not all.

What about the bad karma that Mores has committed so far? Does that mean there is a possibility that it was actually all my doing?!

Seongjin suddenly felt dizzy.

"Lowering?"

Hearing Masain's worried voice, Seongjin shook his head to shake off his wild thoughts.

No, what can I do if I think about it here and now? First, you have to bump into something.

First of all, there is only one thing to do now.

'I need to finish work here quickly and return to the imperial capital!'

Let's get everything done quickly.

As a side note, I also looked for some travel souvenirs.

* * *

"I am going to meet the Margrave Sigismund."

After a light breakfast.

Orden and Herman, who were suddenly called by Seongjin, were stunned by the remarks made by Prince Dajjagojja.

So suddenly?

"I beg your pardon, sir. "Shouldn't this investigation be conducted without the knowledge of the head of the family?"

"That's right. "There is a high possibility that he will be displeased, so shouldn't we first look for conclusive evidence to exclude Milo Dandan?"

The two people were very embarrassed and tried to dissuade Seongjin. It seemed like he was worried that the young prince's impulsive actions might lead to something wrong.

"hmm."

"Besides, sir, if at all possible, the head of the family...""

Orden, who had said that far, could not bear to say anything and trailed off.

A token of the Dark Church discovered while investigating despite the opposition of the head of the family.

You might not want to believe it, but you couldn't completely rule out the possibility that the head of the family was directly involved with the corrupt group.

But Seongjin shook his head resolutely.

"Oh, don't worry about that. According to my independent investigation so far, although the Margrave may have been aware of and tolerated the atrocities committed by the Milo clan, there were no circumstances to suspect any particular relationship with the Dark Church."

"... yes?"

An expression of relief and confusion flashed across Orden's face at the same time.

It would be nice if it were true, but the sudden assertion seemed very suspicious.

"Is this an independent investigation? What on earth... .."

"These are the territory operation records from the past several years. The financial condition of the estate. Records of transactions with the top. Number of births, deaths, and disappearances of Young Ji-min. "Records of the demonic beast's large and small migrations south, number of subjugations, etc."

Sigh.

Orden and Hermann were at a loss for words after seeing the high-quality documents spread out on the table.

Only one day has passed since the prince came here. When on earth did you get such detailed information?!

While the group looked at the documents and couldn't help but admire them, Seongjin smiled happily inwardly.

'good. 'It'll be over sooner than expected, right?'

It may have been a surprise to them, but in fact, Seongjin had assumed from the beginning that there would be a number of cases where he would meet the Margrave and negotiate.

Before coming here, Seongjin conducted research with two major possibilities in mind.

first. There is a possibility that Sigismund has already fallen into the hands of the Dark Church, or that the Margrave himself is deeply involved in something that has been wronged.

In this case, it would have been inevitable to carry out a large-scale operation by involving the Holy Knights of the Imperial Capital.

The people of the Sigismund family, including Orden, would have had no way to survive, and the territory would have also suffered irreparable damage.

'But when I actually got here, I couldn't sense the involvement of anything evil, let alone the devil.'

This was confirmed through the demon lord's spiritual eyes.

In addition, the territory's finances, as seen on paper, are not bad, and it has been stably preventing the invasion of magical beasts for several years.

Is there any reason for the Margrave to join hands with the Dark Church?

Here the second case arises.

It is possible that the Margrave, who judged that the distribution of medicinal tea was not actually harmful to the territory, decided to completely ignore it.

And for this case, Seongjin was considering peaceful negotiation through appeasement or threats.

"You are amazing, sir. "This is really carefully researched material!"

Meanwhile, Hermann was reviewing the documents and constantly expressing admiration.

"There is nothing wrong with it. Additionally, some of these contain confidential information that only insiders can access. "How did you get all these?"

"hmm. "I can't reveal his identity, but I have a very capable informant attached to me."

"Huh, such a great source of information...""

Everyone could not help but admire the resourcefulness.

"uh? But wait..."

At that time, Hermann found something in the documents and muttered in surprise.

"This handwriting definitely belongs to the head deacon? Moreover, the payment section really has the head of the household's signature..."

Patter.

Seongjin quickly gathered up the documents and hurriedly made an excuse.

"Hmm, so I have a very capable informant attached to me."

"..."

"... "It's like handwriting forgery."

Seeing the two people staring blankly in disbelief, Seongjin cleared his throat and turned his head.

[Hey, why don't you just tell the truth before it escalates?]

'Are you crazy? I'm a guest now!'

You have the dignity of a prince of the Holy Empire.

How could I possibly say that I confidently robbed the matriarch's study on the first night I came to the estate?

'It's a shame. If Dasha had been with us as planned, she might have been able to easily copy and return them... ..'

For now, let's leave all the research to Dasha. Since the head of the house was away at the time, the theft would not be discovered for a while.

Anyway, Seongjin decided to play it cool until the end.

"... "I understand what you are saying, sir."

Orden, who was looking at Seongjin with strange eyes, soon smoothed his chin and sighed.

"I will not ask any more about the source of these materials. "What do you plan to do when you meet him?"

"I will persuade you well. "Just cut off the deal with the Milo merchant."

"It won't be that easy. "If the Dark Church has not discovered a weakness but is voluntarily tolerating it, then the head of the family must have a legitimate reason of its own."

There was even a faint hint of frustration in Orden's eyes as he said that, as if he were facing a huge wall that he could not overcome.

'It's so difficult even though it's your father... ..'

I also heard this from Dasha.

Although he stands between a father and son who are praised as geniuses in swordsmanship, the Margrave is said to be a man who stands out as much as he does with the management of his territory.

He probably doesn't have special charisma.

"But rest assured. There are ways to think about it all. "As for the medicine truck, I will meet him in person and make a clear deal."

Seongjin had the materials that Dasha had scraped, as well as many records accumulated by exorcists and inquisitors over the past decades.

If you combine them well, you can turn a single territory into a den of the Dark Church in an instant. That's algebra.

He threatens to bring in the Heresy Tribunal to his territory, but would he have the wit to pretend to be the Margrave?

As they were thinking that and smiling happily, Orden and Hermann's faces suddenly turned white.

huh? What's wrong with you?

The devil bastard sighed.

[So you said it? Go somewhere and stop laughing like that.]

No, why are people not allowed to laugh as they please?

* * *

That evening, Dasha, who had sneaked into the count's residence, was thinking on a tree.

Count Sigismund's residence was a very difficult place for an assassin to break into.

First of all, it was quite difficult to climb up the terrace, as well as the rough walls without any irregularities. Even the building structure is extremely simple, so it is not possible to use other geographical features.

Above all, since the windows were all the size of my palm, I was worried that I might get caught.

'As expected, I saw an opportunity and sneakily approached the hallway... ... '

At that time she was startled.

Suddenly, the prince peeked his head out through the small window and began gesturing in the exact direction where Dasha was.

'Dasha! Come in, come in.'

'... ... ?'

Are there still traces of people around the prince?

Dasha hesitated for a moment, but was unable to disobey the prince's order to call him again and eventually climbed through the small window.

And waiting for her there with the prince were two former knight commanders with conflicting expressions.

They are Captain Bruno, who is smiling politely, and Sir Martha, who has a grim expression on his face.

Surprisingly, Dasha was embarrassed by the situation and just blinked, and the prince apologized as if he was embarrassed.

"I'm sorry for confronting you so suddenly, Dasha. But I was thinking that I should create a place like this someday."

"Lowering..."

"Of course, I know that hiding your identity from Dasha is more important than anything else. But we are now a community destined to be together forever. So let's be as efficient as possible. huh?"

Then, former Dekaron Knight and General Manager Bruno pulled his mustache and nodded.

"I was wondering how long I should pretend not to know you. I feel relieved to be able to open up like this now. "My name is Bruno."

He is a man known as a legend among commoners.

As Dasha bowed her head, the leader added with a happy expression.

"So, as soon as you arrived at Sigismund Territory, you found that much information in one day, right? "The prince speaks so highly of you."

"... yes?"

"I always thought he was a great person when I visited Jinju Palace, but I never thought he would be so good at information. "I saw it again."

Dasha looked back with a face full of doubts, but Seongjin secretly avoided her eyes.

The next person to speak was Sir Masain, who looked somewhat dissatisfied.

"Are you the source of information? "It was Iza who taught me the wrong trick called 'Auror Concealment.'"

Hiccup.

What is coming has come.

I was hiccuping with a tired face without realizing it, but Sir Masaine momentarily relaxed his frozen face and nodded.

"But I can't help but acknowledge your resourcefulness in finding such confidential information in a short period of time. From now on, please be more careful to make up for the decline so that there are no mistakes."

In response to the unexpected reactions of the knight commanders in succession, Dasha looked back at Seongjin with a bewildered expression.

"... Lowering?"

Oh, I'm sorry, Dasha.

Good things are good things, so why not just ignore them?

205. Louise (8)

"I'm glad you're safe, Dasha."

After sending Masain and Manager Bruno back to the room, Seongjin spoke to her with joy.

"I know Dasha's skills well, but it was an accident that happened so suddenly, right? "She was worried that she might have been caught up in the Demon World with the top."

It was true that I was worried. One of the first things I asked Seonghwang out of concern for was her well-being.

Then Dasha, who had been busy copying documents, looked back at Seongjin and raised her eyes.

"Thank you for your words, sir. But you must have firmly believed that I would come back safely and take care of these things, right? If it weren't for you, there's no way you would have caused an accident like this."

Ugh.

"How dare you think of stealing the Margrave's papers from Sigismund? "The expenses must not have been that high."

No, I suddenly became anxious. Also, compared to the imperial palace, the boundaries were more lax than expected.

The guards patrolled at regular intervals, but the doors, safes, and locks were all old-fashioned.

When I said that, Dasha made a chewed-up face and lamented into space.

"oh my god! I guess I messed up my situation. "Who are you blaming for this?"

It has to be that way.

At least lock picking is a skill I learned from Dasha when I came here.

"Consider yourself lucky. "If Sir Vincent, the Dekaron Knight, was here, I wouldn't have even dared to do this."

"okay?"

"yes. If I were to compare it, it would be the same as sneaking into His Majesty's office and stealing documents without His Majesty's knowledge."

"... .."

Feeling like his forehead was getting sore for no reason, Seongjin silently rubbed his forehead.

After that, Dasha continued to transcribe at a rapid pace and gave a brief explanation of what had happened so far.

It is said that after hiding in the forest to avoid the Demon Tree, and confirming that Seongjin was safe, she briefly chased after the fleeing remnants of the Penitent Church.

"Remnants of the Penitent Church?"

"Yes, sir. "They were hiding at the top, disguising themselves as workers."

Dasha took advantage of the opportunity to infiltrate Milo when the company was hiring a large number of new personnel.

But it turns out that the people he was hired with were all spies with a sinister purpose. There is a suspicion that the commotion that injured the top workers from the beginning may have been caused by the Penitent Church.

"They were trained to assassinate, but they didn't feel professional. "I think they may have been trained by the Dark Church itself for external activities."

They continued to maintain awkward contact with the Penitent Church during their journey, but just before the Demon Beast was summoned, they all escaped and fled to their home base.

Some went towards the Black Forest, and the rest all headed towards Ortona.

"... Ortona?"

"Yes, the Penitent Church has been secretly gaining ground there for a long time. "I heard that there are areas where they are openly active because there is no force to control them after the fall of the country."

As the chase seemed to take longer than expected, he asked a trusted colleague to follow him and followed him through Sigismund's command.

Then a story came out about Olivier, the eyebrowless assassin.

"Olivier? "Where have I heard this name before?"

When Seongjin tilted his head, Dasha shrugged her shoulders as if it was no big deal.

"Why not? Olivier is the most common girl's name in Delcross. It is the name of the moon spirit who is said to have fallen in love with the first emperor and blessed him. "It is said that at a time when those romantic stories were popular, there was a girl named Olivier in every other house."

"okay?"

"yes. I guess that's why I shamelessly gave it that name. I proudly announced that it was a pseudonym. "I don't know where you belong, but the next time we meet, I won't let you run away so easily."

Dasha wheezed for a moment as if she was upset, but Seongjin had a strange feeling that it wasn't for such a simple reason.

"Oh, and the Wolf Knights that are left behind. "We'll probably arrive here tomorrow evening."

Crack.

Dasha said, organizing the documents neatly. With his characteristic quick movements, he copied down all the necessary information.

Where is that? They are chasing the remnants to the vicinity of the Black Forest, and are also fully aware of the movements of the Wolf Knights in the opposite direction.

Well, the more you look at it, the more capable you become.

"Your hands are really fast. amazing."

"you're welcome. Then I will quickly bring these back. "Did you take it from the safe in the study?"

"uh? no. "I just picked it up from here and there."

"is it so? "I usually keep important documents in one place, but this is unusual."

Sure.

Seongjin, who briefly looked into the Margrave's study, had a strong feeling that this man was not an easy person.

From the books on the shelves to an ordinary-looking paperweight on the desk. It seemed like they were just randomly placed here and there, but there was a certain consistent flow and complex regularity of its own.

Somehow, I think it would be troublesome if I scattered it.

"Wouldn't it be better if I went with you?"

"Is it even necessary to do that? "Just tell me the location and I will put it there."

"Hmm, this is a bit tricky to explain..."

After contemplating for a moment, Seongjin eventually began to give her a detailed explanation.

"Then listen carefully, Dasha. Famifasol, Dorare, Solmirara. In this order, there is a desk, a bookshelf, and a safe."

"... ..?"

"The order in which the documents were located. And the bookshelves were in numbers 3 and 7, in that order, 'dung ta-ta-dong, thud-thud, thud-thud, and the desks were in numbers 1 and 2 all at once. It was beautifully knotted with a red string. And lastly, the safe is a bit complicated. It's 'tap-tap-tap-tap-tap...' ... '."

"... ..!?"

Dasha, who had been listening to Seongjin's explanation for a while, ended up putting up both hands and feet.

That's how we infiltrated the Margrave's study together.

Seongjin started inserting documents in the dark without a moment of hesitation.

"Is that my position?"

"Yeah, I told you earlier, right? "Pamifasol in that order, boom, boom, boom, boom, boom."

"... .."

Dasha, who was looking at Seongjin as if she were fascinated by something, soon lowered her head and muttered in a low voice.

"No matter how you look at it, the place of birth is wrong. A born assassin after all... .."

"what?"

"No, it's nothing."

* * *

The next morning.

"Tell the Countess that I am sorry. I need to practice some sword fighting in Huwon today. "The journey to get here was so tiring that I haven't had time to practice at all recently."

The head deacon, who had come to personally announce the meal time, looked embarrassed upon hearing Seongjin's answer.

Recently, there was a dangerous atmosphere in the count's residence.

That's because the prince who visited the estate did not show up at the restaurant until the third day after the first day's lunch.

At this point, it is impossible for anyone to not know. That the prince is indirectly expressing his dissatisfaction with the count's hospitality to guests.

Thanks to this, the Countess's mood became increasingly uncomfortable day by day, and her servants had to pay attention to their behavior as if walking on thin ice.

"Your Majesty, what is your lunch schedule...""

"Ah, I'm planning to grab a quick lunch from my room and go to the aviary. I recently made a great friend, a wolfdog named Max, and I'm going to go see him. "Please tell your wife well."

Depending on how you listen to it, it may sound like a rude remark, saying that a wolf dog is more important than a countess. There is no way I can convey these words as they are.

In the end, the head deacon had no choice but to ejaculate while sweating profusely.

"Your Majesty Mores, if you have any discomfort with the Count's treatment, please let me know..."

Then Seongjin looked at the grizzled head deacon for a moment.

"You're probably not asking because you really don't know, right?"

How dare you test the prince of the Holy Empire like that?

Well, it was only then that I saw Orden and saved face with my generosity. So wouldn't it be natural that there should at least be some gratitude or apology for that incident?

But if you pretend not to know and keep your mouth shut, who am I to be nice to you? huh?

"I didn't do anything wrong, so there's no apology."

"... .."

The prince has a more reserved personality than you might think.

However, it is unlikely that the countess will readily apologize to the prince who is younger than her children.

The butler closed his eyes tightly as he felt his vision becoming dark.

[To be honest, Seongjin Lee. You actually have other plans, right?]

At that time, the devil bastard quietly opened his mouth.

'What am I?'

[Didn't you like it when you first discovered the new efficacy of medicinal tea?]

'That's just a coincidence. It's true that they're rude.'

[With your personality, I won't cause a hassle over that. Is there any need to refuse delicious food? Ah, are you really trying to find fault with the Margrave with this?]

Well, the more cards you can use, the better.

Anyway, after eating lightly for a few days, the devil's dissatisfaction seems to be piling up.

Seongjin stood up and added a word to the dejected butler.

"Anyway, tell him not to worry about this. Oh. "If possible, could you bring me some bear meat steak for lunch?"

Then the demon lord ran wild in joy in my head.

[Bear meat! Bear meat! Bear meat with a fiery taste!]

Okay, I'll give you bear meat, so shut up.

You devil bastard who knows too much!

Seongjin headed to the breeding farm accompanied by Louise and Sir Claudia.

Going to see Max was not an empty phrase. This is because I was strangely convinced that the huge wolfdog 'Max' at that time was definitely this guy.

'If I had known this would happen, I would have asked my father when he was there.'

I felt that kind of regret later, but whatever.

I've heard many other important stories, so I'll be satisfied with that.

'If you think about it, Oracle is really like a cheat key.'

It is understandable that Chamberlain Louis subconsciously thinks of his father as omnipotent. From what I've heard, even if it takes a little time, you can eventually find the answer to everything you want to know.

If it was so bad, I would have even thought about carrying a medicine tea with me from now on and taking it from time to time.

There is only one reason why Seongjin is refraining from doing so.

The moment he drank the medicinal tea and opened the channel, it was obvious that Seonghwang's father would come running here right away. What a nuisance this is to an already busy man.

"We have arrived, sir."

At that time, Louise, who was ahead, opened the entrance to the aviary.

Wong wong!

When Seongjin appears, Max runs over excitedly to greet him.

Panting panting.

Despite the majesty of a wolf dog, the sight of it running around with its long tongue out was like that of a poop puppy.

"Yes, yes. Max. How have you been?"

Seongjin looked around, helping the guy who was running wild.

Then, I noticed a strange air current flowing through the kennel, and the dogs were all huddled together in the corner, leaving the wide cage behind.

Kiingkiing.

It was truly a sight to see him with his tail curled up between his legs, as if he was scared.

They all appear to be large, imposing wolf dogs, but why on earth are they acting like that?

"Why are they like that? Are you sick?"

Then Louise answered in a calm voice.

"It looks like you're a little tired after morning training."

"okay?"

"That's right."

"hmm... .."

I glanced at Louise's face, but there was not the slightest sign of agitation in her calm, dark eyes.

Well, does it matter? Because I just came to see Max.

"okay. Now that we've seen your face, shall we have some fun, Max?"

After saying that, Seongjin took off one of the gloves he was wearing, threw it away, and shouted.

"Come on, Max! "Ask me!"

OK.

Wong!

Max barked loudly in reply and stared at the gloves falling in a parabolic curve along with Seongjin with eyes filled with anticipation.

Tuk.

A glove that falls into a corner without any protection.

"Max?"

Wong!

Max's bright eyes looking at Seongjin seemed to be saying this.

Yes, I told you to watch it.

It flies well. But is that the end?

"... "I guess I'm stupid."

Sir Claudia whispered from behind.

No, I heard that training a wolf dog is difficult, but I wonder if even basic play like this can't be done.

"We don't know that wolf dogs can relate to people in that way."

"I don't know?"

"Yes, they are fundamentally different from dogs who instinctively want to interact with humans. That's why they say it's difficult to teach."

Sir Claudia tilted her head at Louise's dry explanation.

"Doesn't that mean you're stupid?"

"It's a completely different thing."

"Hmm?"

Max, who was just excited, whether aware of people's evaluation of him or not, wagged his tail and nuzzled into Seongjin's bare hand.

Perhaps he likes the disappearance of the leather smell, and he playfully sticks his head in and sniffs it.

Then he bit it, and for a moment I thought it was a playful bite.

"Max!"

Percussion!

At some point, Louise struck the dog with a lightning-like movement of her hand.

Keke!

Max, who had been hit hard on the side of his nose, whimpered and widened the distance.

Everyone was confused by the sudden situation, but before they knew it, Louise came forward and grabbed Seongjin's hand. And isn't he looking around with a pale face?

"... Louise?"

"I apologize, sir. I'll just check it out in a moment."

She took her time and meticulously examined Seongjin's hands.

And when he soon confirmed that there was no damage to his hand, he seemed relieved.

"Fortunately, there were no injuries."

"of course. It didn't hurt. "I thought Max was just joking."

Then Louise looked straight at Seongjin. His eyes were so dark that his emotions could not be easily read.

"Sir, the wolves of the Sigismund Territory travel to and from the Demonic Land. So, you must not allow a wolf dog that carries their blood to bite you."

"... .."

"Even if you expose your belly and show submission, or no matter how friendly you are."

It was a voice so firm that it felt strange.

206. Louise (9)

-When the year is unusually warmer than usual, flowers sometimes bloom even in the harshest cold. It is said that the rare and captivating scent of the flower drives wolves and lycanslopes crazy. Therefore, if the scent of flowers is permeated by the wind flowing from the demonic landscape, the hunting dogs should be controlled and they should not leave the house at all.

Even with her grandmother's threatening stories, young Louise always snorted.

That was until one day, when I smelled an unfamiliar and sweet scent while taking a walk.

-... Max.

Even though she was busy taking care of her nursing baby, she was a loyal friend who followed her around whenever it was time for a walk.

That is, until I saw the death clearly reflected in the eyes of that faithful dog.

* * *

"Max."

Louise, who came to the breeding farm early in the morning, tried shaking the unseasoned beef jerky.

But the arrogant wolf-dog only glanced at her face and turned his head away.

Max's cub, unlike his mother, never opened his heart to her.

Louise couldn't tell whether it was the distance that came from the forced master-slave relationship, or the smell of her mother's blood that she smelled as a cub.

In the end, she had to trudge back home, as always, without any results.

"Sniff. Did you see that dog again? "It seems like they haven't been to the kennel lately."

Her father, who happened to be eating a quick meal by himself, asked. He must have smelled the scent of dogs in the air.

Louise, who was rummaging through her portion of the cold stew for a moment, answered half-heartedly.

"Max has not been at the estate for the past few days."

"okay? Old Man Ben wouldn't have been so lax in cracking down on the kennels, but he's pretty good at escaping from us. "We have an important guest coming today, and I don't know if it's okay to leave him wandering around like that."

Her father, Sebastian Vatel, is the commander of the estate's guards.

Originally, he would have patrolled the Guard's guard posts with the Margrave on behalf of Knight Commander Wolf, who was late returning home.

However, he received a message that the Grand Duke was bringing an important guest, and now, unusually, he is sitting in the estate.

Instead, Vincent Sigismund, the former Margrave, used this as an excuse to expel him to the Demon Lord.

It was under the pretext of protecting the Margrave, who was not particularly distinguished by military force, but no one knew that it was actually just an excuse to avoid the prince. Because he has always been uncomfortable with people from the Seonghwang family.

"Should we return to the magic room immediately after Mom arrives?"

In response to Louise's question, he picked up the sword and shrugged.

"I guess so. Aren't the temperatures unusually warm this year? "The behavior of the Lycan Slopes is unusual."

From time to time, the faint scent of flowers blows through the warm wind.

Trying to hide the creeping anxiety, Louise stuffed the bland stew into her mouth.

"By the way, Louise."

Sebastian, who looked at her blankly for a moment, hesitated a little and continued speaking.

"that... Work, how... "Is it worth it?"

"... .."

"The head deacon praised you. "He's such a stubborn guy that he doesn't do anything about it, but it seems like you're doing very well at the count's residence."

For a moment, her father's eyes fall on her hand. I'm sure you know that she hasn't been able to let go of her obsession until recently, and that she wields her sword alone.

In the end, Louise had no choice but to smile bitterly and answer like this.

"Yes, it's fun. "It also suits my aptitude well."

What if it doesn't fit?

Prince Mores, who finally arrived at the estate, was a very different person from what was rumored.

When the boy, who was neater than expected, got off the carriage, people could not hide their confusion for a moment.

With his sullen expression, he seemed somewhat cold, but when he smiled at the countess, the air around him instantly became brighter.

Thanks to this, the count's relatives were immediately fascinated by him.

Well, didn't you quickly tame that arrogant Max? Definitely not an ordinary person.

'But I am Max's owner... ..'

I would be lying if I said I wasn't a little disappointed.

"Thank you for your help. "You are very strong."

As the prince's luggage was being carried to his room, a woman carrying a huge trunk on each arm said something like that.

"My name is Edith. She is your dedicated maid. Please take care of yourself during your stay."

"This is Louise."

It can't be just a maid. An Auror user of that caliber is definitely a secret escort disguised as a maid.

But Louise decided to pretend not to know for now.

Since he was invited by the Archduke, Prince Mores must have come to secretly investigate the 'medicine tea'. In that case, it is understandable that you would want to have a strong bodyguard by your side in case of any emergency.

However, Louise, who was in the middle of carrying luggage, suddenly detected a very strong scent of flowers in the prince's bag.

"... "Rose scent?"

A flower that does not bloom properly in the cold Sigismund region. So, the strong floral scent that I have only encountered occasionally in perfumes used by countesses and young ladies.

"yes?"

Edith was confused for a moment, but then nodded as if she understood something.

"iced coffee. That must be the quarantine perfume sprayed by Rep. Jibril. They say they make preparations in advance to avoid getting sick while traveling. Since you were so disgusted with it, I brushed it off, but I guess it's still there? Louise, you have a sensitive nose."

As her explanation flowed through one ear, Louise felt a vague, sourceless fear.

This is definitely different from the scent of that day and the sweet scent of medicinal tea. But why do I have this ominous feeling that everything is going wrong?

And Louise's anxiety soon became true.

The prince who had participated in the luncheon dinner was brought to the room as a dead body for some reason.

Louise was astonished when she detected Ye's familiar scent mixed between his body odor and the faint scent of roses.

"... "Medicine tea?"

Then, despite not even being able to open her eyes properly, the prince answered her calmly.

"huh? "Oh, right."

Louise was confused.

He was a guest invited by the Grand Duke, who had gone to the imperial capital to investigate the distribution of medicinal tea. He definitely thought he had come to solve the territory's problems with him.

Of course, you know something about the dangers of this car, right?

"Why on earth... .."

But there wasn't much time to think about it.

The prince suddenly began to bleed a huge amount from his nose, and after saying to call an exorcist, he soon lost consciousness and collapsed.

Louise chewed her lips nervously.

What should I do with this?

This person is a noble prince of the empire. If something goes wrong with him like this, he and the entire earl family will be angry.

Originally, we should have called a doctor and a priest right away.

'... There must be a reason why they told us to keep it a secret.'

Moreover, even though it had only been a short time since she had met the prince, Louise was clearly feeling it.

Strangely enough, underneath the prince's seemingly light-hearted actions and speech, there is a strange power that is difficult for ordinary people to resist.

For now, let's follow the orders.

Louise finally came to that conclusion, lifted the bedding to cover the traces of bleeding, and quietly left the room. And by inquiring about Prince Mores' party, they were soon able to bring in the exorcist he had mentioned.

"What's going on?"

When Louise suddenly appeared with Sir Sharon, the young knight standing as a guard asked in confusion. Although he was a fairly high-level Auror user, he seemed completely oblivious to the commotion in the room.

[...] Tsk.]

The exorcist who was entering the room looked at him for a moment and clicked his tongue in disapproval.

While the knight was dumbfounded by the sudden cold attitude, the exorcist turned to Louise and gave an order.

[You should wait outside.]

"... ..!"

Louise, who naturally made eye contact with her, immediately trembled from the eerie feeling that came over her.

Strange silver-gray eyes that shine alone in a dark hallway.

'... 'Wasn't it a black eye?'

Louise was embarrassed.

When I first met her, I thought she was a strange woman with an eerie smile.

Now, she felt like she was facing the head of the previous generation, perhaps much heavier than him, and had a noble and intimidating feeling that she could never resist.

Most of all, her eyes.

Scary eyes that instantly remove all the light in the world that teases our shallow senses, and gaze into the pulsating abyss beneath them.

Those eyes, which perhaps resembled the gaze of a god, went beyond my skin and penetrated my thoughts and soul at once.

[...] okay. Are you ultimately going to go down that path?]

She was completely overwhelmed and frozen, but then she turned her gaze away from Louise and said something incomprehensible.

[But what can I do now? Everything is the child's choice... ..]

"... .."

[Be thoroughly prepared for what comes from the North.]

With that said, finally.

Percussion!

The door closed violently in front of her eyes.

No matter how much I thought about it, it was not the amount of blood loss that a person could experience in one day.

However, that evening, the prince suddenly became sober and even wandered around the count's residence alone during the night.

"Did anything happen to you overnight?"

Louise, who came to work early in the morning, noticed a subtle change from usual and asked the night security guard.

"huh? iced coffee. Louise. The prince slept quietly all night. Is this the average distance from the ecliptic? "I heard you were so tired that you couldn't even attend the dinner last night?"

I wonder if the security guards, who are said to be quite active, did not notice anything.

Sniff.

Louise raised her head and took a small breath.

What is clearly lingering in the hallway is the body odor of a new prince that appeared last night. In particular, Louise couldn't be confused by the light rose scent permeating his clothes.

And that body odor continued all the way to the matriarch's study on the second floor.

'no way... ... ?'

On the first day I came to the territory, I wanted to do something big like that.

Louise tried to push away the doubts creeping into her head.

But coincidentally, from then on, Hermann and the Archduke's people began to move quickly.

"Louise. "Can I ask you a favor?"

Hermann cautiously called to her from the hallway.

"I hope they select just two people who are addicted to medicinal tea, especially those who have severe hallucinations. "It's amazing how quick you are at identifying people like that."

"Yes, that's not difficult."

Louise had a particularly good nose compared to others, and was able to quickly spot people with a strong scent of medicinal tea.

It was she who first warned about the dangers of medicine tea. She did the same thing to the Archduchess and Hermann several times afterward for their investigations.

"But what are you trying to do to find them?"

"I want to take you to the imperial capital. "We will hand it over to the court as evidence to accuse Milo's evil deeds."

"Can we stop the distribution of medicinal tea with that?"

Isn't that too simple? It took so long to find clear evidence about the harm of medicinal tea.

When Louise looked suspiciously, Hermann sighed softly.

"This is the prince's order. You say you want to negotiate with the head of the family directly. "Now all we have to do is secure the victim of the drug truck and confiscate part of the vehicle as evidence from the retail store."

"... .."

As expected from Louise, the prince visited the estate to resolve this matter.

'But does that really work?'

But, as expected, Prince Mores actually acted as if the investigation was now over.

He is going out of the room, singing a song to bring the head of the family to this place immediately.

"When does Margrave Sigismund come?"

"Hmm, my dear. I've sent someone, so soon..."

"So when is it coming?"

"Wouldn't it take some time to repair all the guard posts?"

"So when are you coming?"

"Hey..."

While Hermann was crying because of the constant bullying, the prince raised his head and quietly looked up into space with unfocused eyes.

At that moment, Louise saw a faint silver light passing through his eyes.

"I can't wait to go home."

If I don't hurry up, I think I'll miss the time. I think I'll be stranded here for a long time.

Even though he was not a child, Prince Mores whined like that.

It was the evening of the third day since the prince arrived.

The Wolf Knights finally returned to their territory. It was accompanied by a group of prisoners and an enormous amount of daily necessities.

And at the same time, a reply from the head of the family arrived from the forefront of the demonic realm.

"Confirmed large-scale abnormal movements on Lycan Slope. The number of individuals moving south is about... Two thousand?"

Hermann's face turned pale.

"The Wolf Knights will return to the demonic realm right away. Guard Commander Sebastian Vatel mobilized as many combat-capable personnel in the territory as possible... .."

As Hermann's voice began to tremble as he read the letter, the Archduke next to him continued his report in a calm voice.

"Lowering. It is said that Lycanslope Lord was seen among the group."

His face is also depressed.

This was an unprecedented disaster that struck the Sigismund Territory.

"Over the past 10 years, there have been big and small conflicts with the magic beasts moving south, but no matter how many there are, the number has never exceeded the spirit. "Let's put the medicine cart aside and now is the time to gather all the resources of the territory."

"... .."

"It looks like a conversation with the matriarch will be a long way off, so I think it would be best for you to return to the imperial capital as soon as possible."

However, the prince's reaction upon hearing the report was unexpected.

He stared into space for a moment, scratched his cheek, and then sighed softly.

"okay. "I thought that was probably the case."

After saying that, Prince Mores stood up with a sullen expression on his face.

"Lord Masaine. Summon the resident knights. Commander, please bring Sir Sharon and Sir Valerie."

As the knights hurriedly left the room, the prince began to put on his robe by himself.

Luise quickly approached and attended to him.

"... "What are you trying to do?"

The Archduke sensed an unusual atmosphere and asked in confusion.
OK-

Crash.

Lastly, the prince, who wore a sword belt with a nutcracker attached to it, spoke as if it were obvious.

"We are also going to the devil's eye."

207. Lycan Slope Road (1)

A few days before Lycan Slope began its large-scale southward movement.

A strange guest came to visit the Marquis D'Aciano, a former great nobleman of Ortona.

He was a very tall man, and wearing a cape with intricate embroidery and a colorful half-mask, he looked strange, as if he were attending a festival.

The servant who was guiding him to the marquis was startled by the guest's flashy attire, but soon lowered his head and calmly opened the door to the banquet hall.

"The day is coming when the Prince of Cyprus will finally wear that mask."

A huge table that you only see at banquets.

The Marquis d'Aciano, sitting alone in front of him, was greedily devouring the mountain and sea delicacies that had piled up.

Berseus Dashiano.

At the height of the civil war, he was a hard-line royalist who fought against the republicans, and now that Ortona is completely over, he tightly controls the area and reigns like a king.

Contrary to his rugged appearance like a bandit, his political acumen was very delicate and sophisticated. Not only did he easily absorb the weak nobles in the vicinity, but he also accepted many of Ortona's refugees as his subjects without much fuss.

It is no exaggeration to say that the current Dacia Noryeong, which has grown like that, has become a small kingdom rather than a single territory.

"Cyprus is not a kingdom."

The cold eyes of the man who responded like that rested on the marquis's thick beard for a moment.

His beard was a mess of small pieces of flesh and blood. This is because he was tearing off the entire thigh of a female deer, which had not been cooked properly and was oozing blood.

With such a dirty look on his face, the Marquis d'Arciano responded politely as if he were a wise man.

"Do not decline the honor you deserve, old friend. Is there anything in this world that is not a kingdom? Instead of the cutlery that upholds the king's authority, beautiful gold shines brightly. "Only fools do not know who they are governed by."

As he said, the Marquis d'Arciano detested anything that tried to deviate from the laws of the kingdom. For him, the kingdom was the same as the providence of nature.

Every group must have a 'lord' to rule over it. Fair qualifications, equal rights, etc. are just nonsense barked by toothless dogs who have never been involved in hunting.

That was why he took the lead in destroying the foundationless republican government.

He sided with the royalists and overthrew the idiotic republican government, and eventually expelled the unworthy king, turning Ortona into a lawless zone of the might of the jungle.

And now he reigns as the king of this area. Proving his qualifications as a monarch.

"Well, those country idiots don't even care how successful the empire is right now, right? "Everyone is equally foolish."

He took a gulp of red wine to clear his throat, and only then did he formally ask the man to sit down.

"I've never invited you, but a guest is a guest. Please sit down. "Even if there isn't much to prepare, I hope you have a pleasant meal."

However, the half-masked man did not sit down.

Not only was a meal that smelled of blood unpalatable, but now was not the time to leisurely eat.

"I've warned you many times over the years, Berseus. "Even now, your people are destroying my garden."

"A flower garden? It's a flower garden. "Isn't this an herb garden where drugs are grown?"

Berseus snorted and played with his damp beard.

"okay. Now that I think about it, the temperature is quite warm this year. That unlucky Deleria must have already spread throughout the forest. Don't worry. "When those ominous things bloom, I will send the group down to the south on my own."

"You know very well that sending him down in moderation is not enough."

The half-masked man walked slowly and approached the Marquis. But instead of sitting next to him, he put his arm on the back of the high chair and lowered his head to look down at the marquis.

"How long are you going to keep playing puppet like that? Isn't it a hassle to police your descendants from afar every year? While I'm leaving, I just need to come down to the south, further south."

"More from there? "How far?"

"Don't act like a fool. That's not like you. "Isn't the southern part of the Demonic Land already your land?"

"It's not the same, it's my land, without a doubt."

"exactly. So, if you can unite with the forces of Tarshiano, won't you become the owner of a huge kingdom that no one can conquer? But why are you leaving Sigismund in the middle alone?"

Hehehe.

Then Berseus snorted loudly and picked his ears as if he had heard something.

"Nonsense. The southern part of the Demonic Land is the territory of the barbaric Lycan Slope. And Dacia is definitely a land of humans. Well, it's one thing to be barbaric, but isn't it natural to have a clear border between two regions that can't mix? "Why would I attack them if Sigismund provides a fence for them?"

"It is your prejudice to think that you cannot mix. "Isn't there already a king of the Lycanslopes living as if he were a human, Lord Berseus?"

Then krrrrrr-

A low, growling sound resounds from deep within the Marquis' vocal cords. The eyes of a beautiful beast glaring at the man gave off yellow light.

"It would be a great mistake to think that everything is played out in your hands, arrogant [Puppetmaster]. "Our meeting of six people is not that foolish."

Then the half-masked man leaned against the back of the chair and shrugged his shoulders.

"Then I guess you're just a coward. So, how do you feel? "It feels like a human boy, whose life was just a light in the wind a few years ago, is now sitting on top of the six people who protect Delcross and is controlling you."

Kuang!

At that moment, the Marquis struck with such force that the huge dining table was instantly broken into pieces.

Cheonggang. Cheonggang.

All the plates fell to the floor, and the mashed food gave off a strong bloody smell.

"You'd better take good care of that senile snout, puppeteer!"

Long fangs protrude from Berseus's angry mouth.

Even though his body was huge for a human, his muscles were now even more bulging and anyone could see that he looked far from the shape of an ordinary human.

The Marquis growled menacingly at the man, pointing out sharp claws that had grown over two inches long.

"Do you think I don't know your intentions? By instigating the Penitent Church, they intentionally tried to erase the top by using an eye-catching method of summoning demonic beasts. "As if everything from beginning to end was the work of the Dark Church!"

If he moves his hand even a little, his head will be blown off. But the masked man answered without blinking an eye.

"It's just because all the eyes of cause and effect were there together."

"The goal was to eliminate it? Don't be funny! Do you think I will easily fall for the tricks of you who are so obsessed with hiding your tail? "It's not enough to eliminate the top with Milo, but now you're going to move our species and eradicate the Sigismund Spirit?"

"Also, because all causal eyes are there."

The half-masked man answered like that and continued speaking casually, shaking off the food residue that had splattered on his cloak.

"You need to think carefully. Thanks to my actions, the Guardian of Delcross has exhausted a lot of causality in the north. I won't be able to move easily for the time being. And the third prince plans to stay in the Sigismund Territory for a while. "Isn't this a golden opportunity to eliminate the evil that causes all the absurdity of cause and effect in this world?"

"So you want me to get rid of it? It's ugly, puppeteer. Are you trying to survive by getting rid of him somehow?"

"I won't deny that. My life now depends entirely on his actions. But isn't that the same for you too?"

The wall inside the half-mask staring at the Marquis gave off a cold light.

"After the Guardian of Delcross divided the world at will, the fate of your race was already decided. One day, they will be treated as mere beasts, and in the end, they will all be subjugated by the hands of humans."

"... .."

"Perhaps this will be the last chance you are given. "This is the only opportunity for Lycan Slope to take deep roots in the human realm."

Slurp.

The sharply sticking out fingernails disappear and the pointed snout returns to its original appearance. The Marquis, who had suddenly returned to his original appearance, stared at the man in silence for a moment.

And sniff.

Berseus, who confirmed the man's scent by ringing his nose once, leaned back and let out a sneer.

"You're talking loudly. Even though his insides are stained black with hatred for Seonghwang. "No matter how hard I try to hide it, I can't fool my nose."

"... .."

"Doesn't he want to somehow get revenge by getting rid of something he cherishes? Because he is literally the one who killed your body. Sigurd Sigurdson."

The Marquis swiped the red blood from the corner of his mouth with his tongue and smiled bitterly.

"But there is no disagreement with what you said about this being a good opportunity. I'm not willing to be fooled if you cooperate properly. It would be all the better if the Holy Emperor could not move, but if he were to force it to move, it would also result in irreparable loss of cause and effect."

Tuk-tuk. The Marquis burst into laughter, tapping the puppeteer's cloak with his blood-soaked hands.

"Yeah, that's not bad. ha ha ha."

Thanks to this, the puppeteer's eyebrows furrowed, but there was no way for the Marquis to notice the expression hidden behind the half-mask.

Of course, I had no intention of showing my displeasure. If Berseus had known that fact, he would have been so happy that he would have wiped his hands on his clothes.

"That's what came to mind when you mentioned cooperation, but I'll give you some good information here as well."

The puppeteer opened his mouth, shaking off the area his hand had touched.

"Do you know? "The Nebraska blood still remains in the Sigismund Territory."

"... .."

An eerie light appeared in the marquis' once relaxed eyes.

The puppeteer, who felt that his discomfort was relieved even a little, smiled confidently.

"What if he gets into trouble with his fellow countrymen and something unfortunate happens that breaks his true nature? If you don't get rid of him quickly now, you'll lose your meager status entirely. "Lord Berseus."

* * *

Sigismund Range was a natural fortress with a fairly clear topographical border from the Magyeong.

To the south is Lake Salz, a huge lake that extends to the border of Rohan, and to the north are two canyons crossing high glaciers.

In the only snow field leading to the basin where the territory was located, numerous ice walls and guard posts that the Sigismund people had slowly built over the past hundreds of years were tangled together.

- Against demonic beasts that have no concept of siege, this line of defense will never be breached!

This confidence was the basis for considering self-rescue measures without requesting any special support, despite the unprecedented large-scale movement of Lycan Slope.

Of course, pride in having been able to successfully fend off demonic beasts alone for hundreds of years may have also played a role.

"There is no other place to ask for help anyway."

Saying that, Hermann sighed.

The only immediate neighbors are the bat-like Castile and the Ortona-eaten Daciano who sided with the royalists.

Of course, you will not go over the Sigismund Territory, which is Delcross's territory, carelessly, but if you bring them in, you will definitely have to pay a higher price than necessary.

"hmm."

First, 250 troops, including the Wolf Knights led by Lord Ilma, hurriedly left for Lord Ilma.

The 400 troops organized by Guard Commander Sir Sebastian as the first group are scheduled to depart now. After the second and third formations are completed, excluding the minimum security personnel, the total number of troops will be a little over 1,100.

Even if you include all the troops stationed at the border of the Demonic Realm, you cannot shake the feeling that their absolute numbers are quite insufficient.

"Shall we ask the imperial capital for help?"

"The territory is not at its full power yet, sir. There is no change to the fact that they have to overcome the ice walls piled up in the snow field anyway. "The battle will probably not be much different from previous years."

For a moment, I was taken aback by the unprecedented number of 2,000 lycan slopes.

Orden, who had already regained his composure, spoke with a calm expression.

"Hmm, really?"

Why? I have a feeling that I am somehow not good enough.

Well, actually, I've already sent word to one place asking for help, but there's no need to talk about it now.

As Seongjin thought so, he stroked the head of Max, who was sitting next to him.

Then, the wolf dog showed affection that was not befitting its size and pressed its body against Seongjin's leg.

Kiingkiing.

"It's the first time I've seen him be so kind to a person."

Orden, who was looking at the scene, said in wonder.

"Even though it looks like that, he is the highest-ranking wolfdog out of all the wolfdogs I own, sir."

"okay?"

Now that I think about it, I am reminded of the wolf dogs that were so scared at the kennel not long ago.

He was the head of the military base at the kennel for such a pooppy puppy? Could it be that they were completely discouraged because of Max?

"Are you serious, Max?"

I asked that question, but Max just tilted his head with an innocent expression.

Kiing?

Seongjin couldn't resist the cuteness and gently scratched the bridge of his nose.

Well, it might not matter anyway.

Because it's so cute.

* * *

And that evening.

An urgent report requested by Seongjin through the Monkey Watchtower has arrived at the Blue Rose Labyrinth.

-I'm bored. come over. It would be better if you bring the Lilium Detachment.

"Mores sent this?"

"Yes, sir."

In response to the informant's answer, Logan looked at the letter carefully with a puzzled look on his face.

But the postscript that followed was even more shocking.

-P.s. Don't worry about expenses. I made a lot of money too.

Make money?

Weren't you on a business trip?

"... Seongjin Lee. "What on earth are you doing in Sigismund?"

208. Lycan Slope Road (2)

"Brother Mores? "I was bored so I told Sigismund to come and surprise me?"

What is that without any hesitation? Don't you understand English?

Sisley tilted his head for a moment and then nodded, saying "Aha."

"but. Because that's what Brother Mores does. It's the exact opposite of what I expected, but the bigger the twist on the original, the better. Have a nice trip, brother."

Logan furrowed his eyebrows at the youngest member's strange answer.

To be honest, what Sisley said was completely incomprehensible.

"But what kind of justification is that for coming to play? There are many duties in the imperial capital that a prince must take care of. This is not the time to play around. Besides, I haven't been able to watch your training yet... .."

However, upon hearing those words, Sisley shook his head resolutely.

"are you okay. Training is something you repeat alone, so what? I thought you wouldn't be able to teach me for long anyway.

"Originally, my brother would have been busy boarding a ship in Cyprus by now."

"... I?"

"huh. It was a time when sea magicians were on the rise. But strangely, seeing as it has remained quiet so far, it seems like Brother Mores has done something in the meantime and things have changed."

"... ... ?"

The two were now at the training hall of the Knights of St. Marsyas. Logan, who had recently gained some free time while staying in the Imperial Capital, was watching Sisley's Auror training every morning.

After joining the Order, Sisley participated in all of the regular training of the Knights of St. Marsyas.

However, Auror training lessons were an exception, and this was because there was no teacher who could properly teach the saint who had unconsciously awakened Auras on her own and had accumulated quite a few levels.

There are many instances where the aura released from a saint without her knowledge flies into a fatal position in the blink of an eye.

The instructors were so confused that they gave up teaching, and in the end, Logan, the unofficial Dekaron Knight and Sword Master, had no choice but to roll up his sleeves.

"I'll have to discuss it with Abama later. "Shall we practice first?"

"Oh, just a moment, brother. "Just fix this."

Then, whimpering, the little saint dragged a bunch of armored scarecrows piled up in a corner of the training hall.

"What is all this?"

"hmm. "These are the scarecrows that I broke while practicing yesterday afternoon."

Logan looked at the armor crumpled like a piece of paper with a bewildered expression.

It's not just crumpled. Isn't it completely flat, as if it had been dropped from a cliff and crushed by a huge rock?

At this rate, wouldn't it be better to just melt it again?

"This is good, Brother Logan. "At least there wasn't a hole, right?"

"... .."

When I first started taking Auror introductory classes.

Sisley, who was practicing weaving Aurors according to the rules, soon ran into a huge difficulty.

As the Auror's striking points were able to be concentrated at one point, the flail she wielded had a penetrating power similar to that of a lance.

Rather than the collapsed scarecrows, the pierced and completely unusable scarecrows began to pile up.

Only after the lesser Logan was taught additional methods of dispersing the blows was the destruction brought to a halt.

And the result is armor that has been flattened by splash damage alone. Well, it looks like the saint herself was satisfied with that.

"This is all thanks to you."

Sisley, who praised Logan like that, clenched his fists.

Kang! Kang! Kang!

Every time the saintess swung her fern-like fist, the nearby Inquisitors flinched and trembled.

"... Still, the training is not completely fruitless."

Logan looked at that for a moment and nodded.

Although the delicacy of operation was lowered, at least it was possible to control the degree to which the plate mail that had been distorted could be opened by hitting it in the opposite direction.

"I think this is also subtly practicing auror control, brother."

"It is fortunate that the armor of the Holy Knights has a high ratio of wrought iron. Otherwise, it would have shattered the moment you hit it. Ah, Sisley. "It's still crushed there."

"here? okay."

Kang! Kang!

In contrast to the brother and sister's peaceful atmosphere, inquisitors with tired faces occasionally passed by, glancing sideways at the two.

* * *

Late morning that day.

Waiting for the political meeting to end, Logan visited Seonghwang's office.

Logan also wanted to go to Sigismund Territory. He was worried about whether Seongjin was conducting a proper investigation, and he thought that if the devil's servant was there, he would definitely be of help.

He just couldn't tolerate the ridiculous excuse of 'going out to have fun' as a stubborn person.

However, when I actually went to the office and looked at the situation, I realized that Sigismund's situation was worse than I thought.

Although it was not official news, the imperial capital's intelligence department was already aware of the news of abnormal movements in Lycan Slope through Arranger.

'It's only been one day since trouble arose in Siegsmund. But news has already reached the ecliptic? Indeed, this is the power of the empire that has reigned as the conqueror of the continent for a thousand years... ... '

Logan felt a chill in his stomach.

Of course, this was Logan's mistake as he was not fully aware of the existence of Arranger, a group of psychics organized by Seonghwang.

"Yeah, that's what the kid said."

"Yes, Abama. But considering the situation there, shouldn't this ultimately be seen as Mores' request for reinforcements?"

Logan looked down at the letter Sungjin had sent with a confused face.

Lycan Slope 2,000.

Logan, who often went out to subdue demonic beasts, could easily grasp how enormous this number was.

Originally, Lycanslope was a magical beast with a size and physical strength that was superior to that of humans. That single number can never be countered by a single human soldier.

In addition, there are quite a few strong individuals who show strange talents, like human Auror users.

Perhaps Lee Seong-jin wants the imperial capital to send a large army?

"What do you think, Amelia?"

Seonghwang, who was looking at Logan blankly for a moment, turned his head and asked Amelia, who was there.

"Yes, Father, Your Majesty. I believe Mores' request could not have been more appropriate."

The princess opened her mouth in a calm voice.

"It is still too early to officially move troops from the imperial capital. Isn't this information given by an official source? Even if troops were dispatched out of pure goodwill, it was enough to give the impression that the county was being monitored in advance. "All kingdoms and territories subject to the empire will be on high alert for this."

"I see."

"The most important problem is that there has not yet been an official request for assistance from the Margrave. According to the castle law and imperial law, unless the lord is accused of devil worship or has grounds for disqualification, leading troops across the border of the territory without the lord's request is strictly prohibited."

Logan listened to Amelia's voice as if fascinated.

I thought he would be stamping his feet, saying that he had to go quickly to help Mores, or that he had to get the child out of the estate right away.

The only thing that calm voice utters is the truth. Did my sister, who was always kind, have this side?

"Also, under imperial law, simply stationing troops near the border in excess of one-fifth of the total military that a territory can mobilize is considered a serious hostile act that threatens the territory.

Therefore, it is impossible to prepare for an emergency by stationing troops near the Sigismund Range in advance."

Seonghwang nodded at her answer and asked another question.

"So what do you think about the Holy Knights, Amelia? There are already regular missionaries traveling across the continent without borders. "Sending out paladins who dedicate their lives solely for the sake of the Lord's will does not seem to go against the purpose of caring for territories and subjects in danger."

Then, a joyful light appeared in the princess's clear gray eyes.

"The Holy Knights, the sword and mace of the Lord God, are probably a group that cannot act on their own due to their fair and altruistic nature. Any official activity of the Holy Order requires prior approval from the Holy See. Even if they do simple volunteer work, they are a group that must control themselves to ensure that there is no deviation from the maintenance of adults. Therefore, it is difficult to be perceived as having engaged in reciprocal activities for a specific territory."

"Then when will they move? "Is it just a decorative weapon stored in a scabbard?"

"When it is clear to anyone that the subjects of the continent have fallen into a ricochet. And it is when there is evidence of a serious disqualification for the lord, which is equivalent to devil worship."

Recently, Princess Amelia often appeared in the Emperor's office like this.

After a successful political meeting, I sat next to him, listened to reports coming to him, and learned about the tasks he handled. Thanks to this, some were raising concerns that the princess might be jumping into the battle for her succession in earnest.

On the other hand, there were other opinions.

After the birthday party, the issue of the princess's national marriage began to surface in earnest, and the story was that the emperor was trying to teach his beloved daughter about government affairs in earnest.

Whatever the reason, the emperor was very satisfied with the little time he spent with his daughter outside of the audience, and Amelia was very satisfied with helping her father, who was suffering from a heavy workload.

"Then why did you decide that Mores' request was appropriate?"

"Yes, Father, Your Majesty. By clarifying his purpose, the child 'come to play', he made it clear that he had no military purpose whatsoever in Sigismund. He also requested a small detachment rather than a unit of knights, making it clear that he would not pose any threat to the territory."

"I see."

"This is the Liliun Special Forces, renowned for their voluntary subjugation of demonic beasts. Even if there is no formal request from the lord, no one will find fault with their small movements."

Seeing his daughter becoming more intelligent day by day, Seonghwang smiled slightly, as if satisfied.

"Did you hear that, Logan? "I guess that's what Mores meant when he asked me to come visit."

"... .."

"As for the size of the troops that can move privately in the imperial capital, it is probably about the size of the Lilium Detachment, as I heard. That would not be an official request from the county, but rather a picture of a person stopping by to see Mores while running a punitive force. "I think that would be the most acceptable support we can provide."

Certainly, the Lilium Detachment possesses the most outstanding combat power among the Knights of St. Bastian. This is a group that gathered together from the beginning because they admired Logan's military power and personality, and did not neglect training every day to follow in his footsteps.

But did she expect it all?

As Logan looked blank at the sudden turn of events, Seonghwang tapped his shoulder and continued speaking.

"Okay, Logan. "Officially, let's take the form of a regular subjugation to watch out for demonic beasts that move as the seasons change."

"... Yes, Abama."

Logan answered with a puzzled expression.

"and... .."

Seonghwang stared at Logan with unreadable eyes for a moment, then nodded.

"okay. Let's do it like this. "If you safely bring Mores to the imperial capital, I will return the remaining amount of the subjugation team's activity expenses as your pocket money."

"... ..!"

Wait a minute, after Lee Seong-jin, there is also Abama!

Do you think I have some kind of money demon?

As I opened my mouth in complete bewilderment, Amelia smiled brightly next to me and opened a document.

"This is the cost of the regular activities of the punitive force every year. "This time, I will return after completing the subjugation in Sigismund Territory, so I think at least half of this amount will be saved."

omg.

Logan checked the documents and swallowed a sigh of relief.

'At this rate, the dream of rebuilding Ortona will soon come to fruition... No, not this.'

Logan, who was momentarily fascinated by the eye-watering amount, soon fell into a deep sense of self-destruction.

How did General Gael Bertrand, who was praised as a knight among knights, end up like this?

But the boy soon composed himself.

'no. Wasn't I prepared to bear any stigma for the sake of my country, Ortona? That's just the nickname 'money ghost'... ... '

Logan realized that it was time for him to take a step forward.

Look at that Sisley.

It seems like only yesterday that he was held in the arms of the Holy Emperor with a tooth in his mouth, but isn't he now becoming a dashing holy knight who can destroy and repair scarecrows on his own?

What about Amelia?

Although she was a delicate little girl who needed to be looked after, she has grown up and is showing the aspect of a seasoned politician who understands and supports the deep meaning of Seonhwang and Seongjin.

'Besides, the same goes for Lee Seong-jin.'

You said you made a lot of money in that short period of time.

With his actions, he is severely criticizing himself for foolishly wasting time in the imperial capital.

'Lee Seong-jin, I have not yet forgotten the purpose of life you found for me. From now on, I will try to make money properly. So that I won't be embarrassed by you anymore.'

* * *

Tuk-tuk.

"Sir, why are you doing this? What makes you uncomfortable?"

Masain asked the prince who had been shaking his head intermittently since before.

"Uh, Lord Masaine. never mind."

Seongjin shook his head and then lightly tapped his ear one last time.

'What got in your ear? 'Why does it itch so much?'

Besides, I've been feeling strangely uncomfortable since a while ago.

Is it because we are heading to a place that can be called a battlefield for the first time in a long time? It seems like something is off.

Seongjin was currently at the tail end of the second troop and was heading towards Magyeong. Orden, as well as his resident knights and paladins.

"Hey!"

Seongjin, who fell behind for a moment while tapping his ears, soon skillfully increased his horse's speed and caught up with the procession.

Although he was not very familiar with horseback riding when he started, Seongjin was always a quick learner when it came to using his body.

"What do you think, Max? Do you think we will win?"

When I playfully asked the wolf dog that was following me at my feet, it looked up at Seongjin for a moment with clear amber eyes.

And then.

Wow.

Max raised his snout and howled long into the air.

Then from afar.

Oooh.

As if on alert, a long, drawn-out cry could be heard faintly.

It was a clear sign that they were approaching the border of the demonic realm.

209

209. Lycan Slope Road (3)

Dull bravery is like a blind spear that stabs its allies.

Wise valor is the guiding light for your allies.

purple! The meaningless struggle of that black demon race.

Even a rain of arrows couldn't stop him from running.

The blades of the branches cannot reach his armor.

Eventually, the young warrior raised his shining sword... ..

"The tree monster shot him with an arrow? Why does the arrow try to stop the warrior?"

Laurent let go of his lyre and sighed in response to the little boy's question.

"It was in the song earlier, right? Of course, it was the Wolf Knights who fired the arrow. but... .."

"mom! This guy is stupid! "The Wolf Knights are shooting arrows at our warriors!"

The only listener, a sniveling little boy, jumps up from his seat and runs towards a woman. He was the owner of the bar who allowed Laurent to sit down.

She clicked her tongue slightly at the downcast bard.

"It's nice to hear free songs, but is it okay if I have to pay like that every time?"

"That's right. "I heard that the people here really welcome bards."

"Well, since the time is right, no one drinks alcohol in the evening these days."

The interior of Sigismund's estate was in disarray. News of the large-scale southward migration of the demonic beasts has spread, and the head of the guard is in the process of forming his unit by selecting combatants step by step.

The residents of the territory were busy locking doors when the sun went down, and it was highly unlikely that anyone would have the time to ask for a bard's song in such an atmosphere.

The reason I've been doing nothing lately is probably not just because Laurent's song sucks.

"So, who is that great warrior in the song?"

The woman asked while stroking the head of the little boy hanging on the hem of her skirt.

"Didn't I tell you before? "It is me, the prince of the empire."

"Then when will you, the prince, meet the blue-eyed girl?"

"... yes?"

"Isn't that what you're singing now? "The Wandering Prince and the Blue-Eyed Maid."

"no... .."

They are His Majesty the current Emperor and Empress. And now the hero of this story is not Him, but His Fourth Son... ..

Laurent, who was thinking a lot in his head, soon sighed.

Do I really need an explanation? No matter how much he saw the qualities of a great hero, Prince Mores was still just a bastard prince who was not even recognized by these people.

"Come on, let's sing the prince's love song. "In the past, my heart fluttered when I heard songs about great heroes, but as I've gotten older, I really like stories about unfamiliar love these days."

"But my love songs are still lacking. With all my pride as a bard, such a poor song... .."

"If you play me a great song, I'll give you a drink in return."

The free alcohol had no artistic spirit or anything.

Laurent sang 'The Wandering Prince and the Blue-Eyed Maid' in front of her, followed by 'The Genius Swordsman and the Fair-Blonde Princess', and finally, he poured out his latest work, 'The Genius Wandering Swordsman and the Moon Maid'.

The golden crocuses bloom and fall, and the owl mourns all night long.

Tiriring.

When the sad tune ended, the woman clapped her hands with a satisfied look on her face.

It's a song that is evaluated as being cliché, but proven clichés always work somewhere.

"Dear Lady of the Moon, it's been a while since I heard a good song. It really reminds me of 'Princess Lycanslope', which I used to listen to often. "The princess also said that she couldn't forget the dead knight and waited for him all her life."

That was a great love song too. The woman memorized that.

Then Laurent opened his eyes and asked again.

"Lycan Slope? "Isn't that just a magic beast?"

The love between a demon princess and a human, such a scary story?

But towards Laurent, who was disgusted, the woman clicked her tongue.

"After all, outsiders don't know. According to the story that has been passed down here since ancient times, the original Lycan Slopes were not crazy beasts like that."

"... "You're saying it wasn't a witch?"

"okay. Those lowly bastards who are currently wandering around the devil are inferior beings who have lost their sanity and have become complete beasts. It is said that the original lycan slope closely resembles a human. It is said that they were a noble race of people who had been visiting this land consistently since the era of the three ancient dragons. "It is said that the princess who fell in love with the human knight was also an elegant and beautiful woman with almond-colored eyes."

"This is the first time I've heard anything like that."

The idea of a different race similar to humans was something that Laurent, a bard, had never heard before as he traveled around the continent and heard many stories.

Then the woman hit him hard on the back and giggled.

"Well, that's because the priests won't sit still if such a story spreads. They say that this story is not in the scriptures and that it is all a trick of the devil. "You can't just talk about the past and get handed over to the Heresy Tribunal, right?"

"I see."

When Laurent nodded, the woman whispered to him as if she were revealing a big secret.

"You played three great songs, so I guess I'll tell you this too. Do you understand? According to the story, the descendants of the Lycan Slope are still alive and well somewhere on the continent. "A real lycanthrope with wolves as its servants."

"... "A wolf?"

"okay. The real Lycan Slope uses wolves as freely as if they were limbs."

* * *

Kkkkkkkk!

The wolf-dog bared its teeth and barked toward the north. It was not the northwest snowfield they were heading towards, but the direction of the glacier canyon.

Since he was clearly on alert, Seongjin calmly concentrated his energy in the direction Max was facing.

But other than the increasingly heavy snowfall, there was no sign of anything special.

"Do you know what's over there, Max?"

When I asked that question and stroked his head, Max stuck out his tongue and wagged his tail.

It's like, you know? know? It seemed like he was saying this, and for some reason, Seongjin felt uneasy.

"Lowering."

At that time, Orden came to Seongjin's side.

It appears to be wearing simple armor designed for mobility, with two swords on its waist and several javelins on its back. It was probably basic equipment for hunting demonic beasts.

"From now on, the ice wall gets thicker and thicker. Since horses cannot move, from now on we will have to move only on foot."

As they said, in front of them stood a thick wall of ice with a gap so low and narrow that two people could barely move. Up to 400 troops are trying to pass through that narrow gate one after another, creating a severe bottleneck.

On the way here, we passed through high ice walls and wooden fences several times, but from now on, we are faced with truly terrifying ice walls built to defend against monster beasts.

"It is an extremely cold area that even carts cannot pass through. As a result, the bases on the ice wall are absolutely short of supplies. It will never be an environment worthy of you living in. So, can you please think again?"

Orden had already dissuaded Seongjin from coming to the battlefield several times.

Of course, Orden himself knew better that Prince Mores had great skills, contrary to rumors. Nevertheless, whether he could safely leave him in the close combat area of the demonic realm was another matter.

The prince is a member of the noble family of the Holy Emperor and is Amelia's beloved younger brother.

Just in case he ends up in danger.

'Amel will never see me again!'

Just thinking about that made Orden feel like his heart was breaking.

But Seongjin, who looked at him blankly for a moment, shook his head.

"I don't expect any extravagant treatment from others on the base."

"But you. There is no need for you to take any risks. We appreciate your willingness to share in Yeongji's hardships, but please also consider our position as we cannot take him to a dangerous area.

"You can still easily return to your territory now."

okay. It's not that I don't understand his position.

Orden probably doesn't think of Seongjin and his group as a meaningful force.

As for the number of people Seongjin has now, there are only four resident knights, including Lord Masain, and two paladin knights.

Of course, Sir Masain and Sir Maria are rare high-level knights, but they are hothouse knights of the ecliptic with no experience in hunting demonic beasts. If you consider it as an overall force, it would not be a very meaningful force.

"But Archduke. "I have to stay on the battlefield for the time being."

Because the Liliium contingent led by Logan will come here to pick me up.

A Liliium detachment would be a meaningful force. He must have faced all the sea waters of the continent, and that included the demonic beasts of the Demon World.

Above all, our Logan is the second coming of General Gael Bertran, the final sword of Ortona. He is the youngest sword master!

"... "You mean the Liliium Detachment?"

When Orden was taken aback by the unexpected news, Seongjin smiled with confidence.

"okay. I called you to come over before leaving here. It's a direct call from the prince, and the margrave is already on the battlefield. So now, even if the detachment comes here, the Margrave won't be able to say anything, right?"

The Margrave was very uncomfortable with Logan's stay and had a history of expelling him from the estate.

However, they say that they have personally brought the prince to the battlefield for his safety, but will Margrave Sigismund dare to stop them?

Since I'm on the battlefield, I'll do some subjugation of demonic beasts, send a threat to the Margrave to stop selling medicinal tea, and help Young Ji-min to raise his reputation.

After hearing the explanation, Orden barely seemed to understand.

"I understand, sir. Then, from now on, you should never leave your safe zone. "If you think it's dangerous, evacuate immediately."

"okay. "I'll be careful."

Seongjin also had no intention of coming forward for no reason.

I just want to sit quietly in the safe base and watch the battle between Lycanslope and the Wolf Knights.

I wanted to see with my own eyes the battle of the magic beast experts that Sisley was so impressed by. I'm also curious about the difference between the boss mob I met in the labyrinth and the lycan slope in the demon world.

However, in response to Seongjin's obedient answer, Orden looked very suspicious.

"Is it for real this time? "Your Majesty says you are careful, but I have never seen you properly protect yourself."

Ah, on the topic of Orden!

This simple ignorant guy figured out so much in such a short period of time?

It was only when the sun was setting that Seongjin and his party were finally able to pass through the ice wall.

"I've only heard about it, but seeing it in person is truly majestic."

Lord Martha shrugged his shoulders and lifted his head like a turtle, exclaiming. The entrance was so narrow that he, who was tall, could not even stand properly.

The ice wall was so thick that it took quite a long time for them to pass through the tunnel-like entrance.

"This is still the first ice wall. It is the narrowest wall connecting cliffs. "It grows in the form of a fan as it goes into the second and third waves, so in the case of the third ice wall facing the snow field, it is 40 meters high and almost 300 meters long."

"Such incredible!"

Director Bruno let out a sigh in response to Orden's explanation.

How can such enormous structures be built in one territory?

This was possible because the border adjacent to Magyeong has a harsh climate where ice does not melt all year round.

Compact the dirt, rocks, and snow well, then pour boiling water over them. Then, after a few hours, it freezes hard and turns into a rock. Then, pile rocks and snow on top and pour water.

If you keep repeating this, you can create a fairly tall ice structure in just a few days with a small amount of manpower.

"Hoo!"

"Wow!"

After exiting the tunnel, Seongjin and his group were once again impressed by the appearance of the ice wall, which was different from the inside.

Inside, it was a rugged mound that was easy to climb up, but the ice wall seen from the outside was a smooth and steep ice wall with a slope of less than 5 degrees.

"Because the load supported by the walls was heavier than expected, it was not possible to make them completely right angles like a normal castle. Cracks form quickly. However, if you gradually build up at a gentle slope from the bottom, you can maintain a structure that is close to a right angle, at least on the outside."

As Seongjin and his party couldn't help but wonder, Orden seemed secretly proud. A faint smile appeared on his blunt face as he explained the structure of the ice wall in detail.

Right then.

growl!

Suddenly Max lowered his body, baring his teeth into the air.

"Max?"

Seongjin, who was puzzled, also noticed something unusual almost at the same time.

'... strong!'

A strong man who far surpasses Lord Masain.

Someone with a force comparable to that of Balthazar, the greatest knight on the continent, was now running towards them like the wind.

"What kind of guy are you?"

The sound of those shouting from far away quickly becomes closer.

Whick!

Someone leapt from the ice cliff and boom! It immediately landed in front of the group.

The ground in the area shook due to an impact so large that it could not be ignored, and small pieces of ice fell from the ice wall.

"... Grandfather!?"

Orden shouted in surprise, and while he was still shouting, the old man had already reached Seongjin's nose. He was already in perfect condition, holding the blue sword in one hand.

An old man with a sturdy build that would make you believe he was a young man, if not for his graying hair. He glared fiercely at Seongjin and shouted in a harsh voice.

"What are you? "How is it that he can hide such a violent spirit and act calmly, pretending to be a novice Auror user?"

"... what?"

The group froze in shock at the harsh words directed at the royal family.

"Grandpa, hold on for a moment! Don't be rude! this person is... ..!"

Orden became thoughtful and grabbed him, but the old man didn't even pretend to listen and swung his fist at him. It was like lightning.

Pow!

"Keuuk!"

As Orden stumbled and fell backwards, the old man ground his teeth at Seongjin.

"What are you doing to my grandson!"

"Wait a minute, it was the old man who just hit him."

Director Bruno muttered next to him, but whatever. The old man's glaring eyes glowed with blue fire as he glared at Seongjin.

"Answer me! This is wrong! "What did you plan to do by deceiving my grandson and sneaking into our territory!"

Well, aren't there all these old people who just leave without any hesitation?

Seongjin answered with a puzzled expression.

"This body is the prince of the Holy Empire. "What are you asking like that, old man?"

"What? Prince? No way?"

The old man began to tremble, and now he started hurling his point at Seongjin.

"Do not lie! It can't be! Decades! If you haven't spent your whole life on the battlefield, how can you have such a vicious spirit! Are you a devil? okay! Gero is a devil disguised as a human!"

Oh, he's a brave old man.

Seongjin was looking at him blankly and thinking, when Masain suddenly pulled out his sword and blocked Seongjin's path.

"Let's see! Let's see!" Be quiet, Sir Vincent! "There are limits to the respect given to the empire's greatest generals!"

Masain growls at the old man with an evil look on his face.

Chaeng, chang!

Following him, Commander Bruno and the knights all drew their swords.

"no?"

Only then did the old man look a little embarrassed. Because all the Imperial Guard knights and Holy Knights came out to protect Seongjin.

"Hmm."

Seongjin slightly raised his eyebrows at him.

good. Another negotiation card to present to the Margrave was accumulated.

210

210. Lycan Slope Road (4)

Vincent Sigismund.

Former Margrave of Sigismund and one of the few Dekaron Knights on the continent.

He is the one who completed the three giant ice walls and stabilized the boundaries of the Demon World. After transferring the title of earldom to his grown son, he was active in the southern front and made a name for himself as a great general.

Although he was excellent at inaction, he was also famous for saving his allies from danger several times with his animal-like intuition. Even though he has no divine power, he has even been able to detect demonic species with his keen senses.

Of course, when Seongjin saw it with his own eyes, he was just a stubborn old man.

"Prince Mores? Do you really think I don't know his face? Ah! "I am not fooled!"

Masain urged him again to show proper respect, but the old man only stubbornly turned his head away.

"If you're a prince, isn't he a child who hasn't even written his terms yet? But the presence coming from over there is definitely not that of an ordinary human being! Unless they are crazy about murder, how could there be such a person in this peaceful era? It is obvious that they have spent their entire lives going back and forth between the Ortona Civil War and the Southern Front!"

The old man seemed to be paying attention, as he was referred to as

'that guy' rather than 'that guy'. The Holy Knights, who wouldn't know if they were demons, continue to surround Seongjin, so even he is at a loss.

Of course, it is not a crime of lese majeste that can be overlooked with such tact.

"I will not warn you again, Sir Vincent. "Hurry up and apologize deeply to your Majesty, and set the proper example you deserve!"

"Masain! They are probably deceiving you and the paladins in some way! "Do you really not know that?"

"You really did it until the end... ..!"

Feel so good. It would be a bit of a headache for the Margrave to get rid of all these blasphemies.

At this point, should we force Sigismund to make a deal with a new merchant and take advantage of the relay fees?

While making such calculations in his mind, Seongjin looked at old man Vincent with curious eyes.

'Come to think of it, Logan said that too when we first saw him.'

It was said that Seongjin's presence was completely different from Mores'.

There's no way Logan wouldn't know that an old man who wasn't even a sword master noticed it. Seongjin guessed that it was probably because the memories of the struggle spent on Earth were affecting his current presence.

'That means, at least when I was young Mores, I had no memories of being on Earth.'

How can you be Mores?

Considering Seonghwang's warning not to be suspicious, he just assumed that he, like Logan, had been reincarnated in Delcross.

However, when he was Mores, he clearly had no memories of Seongjin, and Seongjin also has no memories of Mores as a child?

'More than anything, will Logan willingly believe this? My father confirmed it, but it's just speculation, and there's no clear evidence...
... !'

While Seongjin was in such trouble, Orden, who was barely able to gather himself by holding his side, began to get extremely angry at the old man.

"Grandpa, please don't tarnish our family's name any more!"

"what? Scam? Are you saying that you are ashamed of this expense? This shameful bastard! Who am I? "This Vincent Sigismund can compete with Balthazar, the greatest knight on the continent!"

But Orden's expression was cold.

"Honestly, it's not like you can objectively compare yourself to Master. "You may be a sword master, but you are not my grandfather."

"What? Such a beautiful sight! "He's like a naked thunderbolt who doesn't know what's up or down!"

"You just committed a great crime of disrespect towards me, and now you're telling me that you don't know what's up and down!"

Come to think of it, Orden was also famous as the best disciple of Balthazar, the greatest knight on the continent.

When I wondered why I had another teacher, leaving behind my grandfather who was a Dekaron Knight, there was a reason. The two people had very different personalities.

"I cannot tolerate further disrespect to someone who came willingly to help our territory!"

"This guy! "How dare you tolerate someone so much!"

"As the Archduke of Sigismund, I am warning the seditious elements who are resisting the Empire!"

Then old Vincent, who was shocked, shook his chin in anger.

"Right now, are you accusing me of being a seditious element?!"

"Isn't it true?"

"What on earth do you think you are? Even if that were true, shouldn't we stand on the side of our own flesh and blood and protect them to the end?"

Then, blue sparks flew out of Orden's eyes.

"Well said. "Did someone whose blood and flesh were so precious do something like that to Princess Amel when she was young?"

"what... what?"

At those words, the old man suddenly looked visibly embarrassed.

"Why, why is that story suddenly coming up here? "It has already happened."

"Your grandmother has been tormenting you so persistently, but have you ever tried to protect the princess?"

"Isn't that important! Hey! now stop!"

for a moment. This was something that could never be ignored.

Now that I think about it, I think I once heard that the Count Sigismund family was my sister's maternal family.

Director Bruno, shocked by what he felt at that moment, trembles and looks back at Seongjin.

"... Lowering?"

Ignoring his shocked gaze, Seongjin called Masain, who was looking at the two people's scuffle with an embarrassed look.

"Sir Martha."

"Yes, sir... ..!"

The blood drained from Masain's face as he inadvertently turned his head.

"It's because I don't remember much from before. "Could it be that Princess Amel, whom the Archduke speaks of, is Sister Amelia?"

"Well, that is... .."

"What did that senile old man do to my sister?"

"... .."

Before His Majesty found Princess Amelia, there were rumors that the count's family treated her poorly. It's just that neither His Majesty nor the Princess has ever mentioned this, so they say it's just a rumor... ..

Masain reluctantly explained that and looked at Seongjin's complexion with anxious eyes. It was as if he was worried that he might pull out a nutcracker and rush at the old man at any moment.

No, what are you looking at me for? I'm not that thoughtless person.

At least officially, I won't be the first to draw my sword. Really.

Seongjin caught a glimpse of the worried gazes of his companions and slowly walked towards the two people.

"Grandpa, you've always been like that! "Let's focus on useless things and close our eyes on really important things!"

"No, when did I..." ..!"

The old man who was raising his voice suddenly looked at Seongjin in surprise.

"Well, what is it? Those eyes. I'm going to make a life-or-death decision with myself right now... ..!"

"Why do you think I can't do it?"

Well, from the outside, it would be like a low-level knight fighting a Dekaron Knight.

But you know what? It may take a bit of effort, and I will have to pay a considerable price, but I still have a picture of dealing with you in my mind to some extent.

The words of the person making such calculations were always the same, whether they were humans or monsters. In the end, I will be the one standing on the ground until the end.

"I thought that would be possible with just that level of auror... .."

"If in doubt, why not just close your eyes and take the plunge? Aren't you suspecting me of being the devil anyway? "Perhaps once you draw that sword, everything will become clear, old man."

Because that's what I don't want either.

When Seongjin raised one corner of his mouth, the nervous old man reflexively put his hand to his sword.

"Sir, what is this?"

Only then did Orden seem to have cooled off a bit, looking at Seongjin and the old man in turn with a puzzled expression.

A sudden, close call situation.

"Lowering!"

Masain must have sensed that the air current was unusual, so he quickly ran in front of Seongjin. Soon, the knights who received a signal from Leader Bruno rush to block the gap between Seongjin and the old man.

Then the old man who was watching quietly put down his sword. The pressure emanating from the prince was so overwhelming that Dekaron Knight was almost overcome by the force and pulled out his sword.

"Tsk."

Seongjin clicked his tongue slightly.

"No matter how senile the old man is, he still seems to have the spirit not to draw a weapon against a member of the imperial family in front of others."

"Lowering... ..!"

Masain, who had realized that the prince had really intended to fight Dekaron Knight, looked as if he was about to faint.

However, Seongjin tapped Masain on the shoulder and spoke softly.

"Leave it alone, Lord Masaine. It looks like the old man has become a little senile after working too hard for his fiefdom. You can't possibly charge an old man with a feeble mind and body like that for treason, can you? Stories should be told between sane people. "I will meet the Margrave right away."

treason.

A heavy crime that Orden wanted to avoid even though he was referred to as a seditious element.

The prince threatened the margrave that if he made a mistake, he could even charge him with 'treason'.

"that... .."

The old man opened his mouth belatedly, but Seongjin coldly turned away from the old man. He won't even give you a chance to apologize in the first place.

As the prince takes the lead and starts walking towards the second ice wall, Orden, the knights of the Royal Guard, and the Holy Knights silently follow behind him.

Eventually, when Seongjin and his group got far away, old Vincent turned his head and muttered softly.

"... Oh my, this is a big deal. It really seems like the prince is right. "That cruel smiling face is definitely the same as my father's."

* * *

It was after the sun had completely set that Seongjin and his group arrived at the base on the third ice wall.

Wooooow-

Here, the cries of lycan slopes could be heard from quite close by. As I stood on the ice wall and looked down at the snowy field, I saw several pairs of brightly shining eyes flickering as they looked in this direction.

"It looks like they're not coming straight here."

"Yes, sir. There are bases and guard posts made of ice outside the ice wall, but although we occasionally touch them, we have not launched a full-scale attack yet."

Sir Ilma, who had arrived in advance and was maintaining the base, greeted Seongjin and his group and explained that.

It is said that this is very different from their usual behavior of hunting soldiers in groups. It seems like they are testing something, or it seems like they are herding soldiers into an ice wall.

Perhaps it was because of the presence of Rod, who was said to have been seen among the group. That entity is systematically controlling the Lycan Slopes.

"Take advantage of it." "I don't know what the purpose is, but is it okay to gather soldiers like this?"

Seongjin asked, praying for the demon king's spiritual eyes and checking the shadows of the lycan slopes shining bright purple.

"Nothing has changed much, no matter what their goal is. Until now, they have never crossed the third ice wall. The soldiers at the guard post have all retreated into the ice wall by today. "Now we will meet their forces here."

Damage so far is one dead and a few injured.

Ridiculously, the damage occurred because the retreating soldiers were unable to cross the ice wall at the same time.

This is inevitable because the entrance to the snowy field is a gap narrow enough for one person to barely pass through. Even that was now blocked by a large stone rolled with a crowbar.

"People come and go here?"

"Usually it's blocked here too. "When I'm in a hurry, I lower the ladder from the ice wall."

It was a structure where a rope ladder was lowered from above or pulled up with a rope. At least Auror users can easily climb up the wall, but it will be difficult to climb over the wall after receiving even a severe injury.

Naturally, this question arose.

"Why don't they build a proper gate?"

No matter how much it is for defense, the entrance is so narrow. At least the horse should be able to move.

"Well, we tried to make a door, but it was impossible."

The problem arose because the door could not be properly installed between the ice walls. No matter what structure it was made of or what material it was made from, the door would often freeze to the wall the next day.

When I made a swing door, the hinges were frozen to the wall, and when I tried to pull the door up with a pulley, the entire chain was frozen to the pulley.

Since the ice wall was not built with proper embankments, supporting the load of the door was also a problem. Occasionally, cracks may occur in the ice wall due to the excessive load of the pulley hanging without an axis.

"Hmm, I see."

Seongjin nodded, and Lord Ilma looked back at the group with a puzzled look.

"But why is everyone in this mood? "What happened on your way here?"

Perhaps it was because they had been traveling together for several days, but they seemed to have noticed the strangely rigid atmosphere of the group.

Moreover, the prince, who had a sullen face as if he were indifferent to everything, had a particularly grumpy face today.

"Something happened. "I guess I'm just a little tired from coming all the way here."

Seongjin shook his head and smiled at Lord Ilma.

"By the way, Sir Ilma. "It is a little late, so can I finish the explanation and meet Margrave Sigismund right now?"

The rarely seen prince's gentle and gentle smile,

However, at that moment, Sir Ilma felt a strong chill running down his spine for some reason.

211. Lycan Slope Road (5)

"Can I meet the Margrave right now?"

Seongjin asked with confidence. According to his expectations, there must have been prior notice from the Margrave about this meeting.

Sure enough, Lord Ilma, who was frozen for a moment, soon nodded and answered.

"Yes, sir. The head of the family is preparing to welcome you. "I will take you to the barracks right away."

If you think about it, even if you are a member of the royal family, you are nothing more than a lump of burden that you cannot use with all your might.

Nevertheless, it was clear that the leader of the Wolf Knights came out to meet him and willingly gave him a tour of the base, probably under special instructions from the Margrave.

You must have heard to some extent about the conflict with old man Vincent. So, the idea is to buy some time to properly understand the situation.

And I hope that the young prince, who was distracted by the majesty of the ice wall, will feel somewhat relieved. Perhaps he hopes that there will be a fluke that will make him forget Old Man Vincent's rudeness.

[...] hey.]

As I was walking behind Lord Ilma, thinking about various things, the demon king spoke carefully to Seongjin.

[Are you still angry? Why do you keep smiling?]

Just as he said, Seongjin was smiling.

'Oh, it's nothing. The Margrave seems to be more shrewd than you might think. 'I'm happy about that.'

[Huh? Are you happy?]

okay. How could I not be happy?

At least he's not a bumbling fool like Orden. He is a guy who is fully capable of protecting his share even if he rushes in with determination.

'That means you can eat as much as you want without feeling guilty.'

[...] Ugh, I happened to get caught by this guy...]

The Demon King sighed.

No, but whose side is this guy on?

The group arrived at a place where tents were gathered together.

A truly spectacular sight unfolded, with a wall of ice filling up every gap between the tents, perhaps to protect them from the cold wind. It looked like small huts made of ice.

"It's an ice tent. It's cold just to look at it."

As Sir Claudia, with a red nose, trembled and muttered, Sir Ilma looked back and smiled.

"When you go in, you will be surprised at how well it keeps you warm, Sir Claudia. "It's several times warmer than just one tent."

As they said, the tent was completely covered with a light layer of white snow to keep warm. Sir Claudia, who saw that, was frustrated again.

"There is no flue in the tent at all..."

In this place where supplies are scarce, even starting a fire is a luxury. This means that you have to endure the cold with all your aura.

Seongjin and his group were then guided to the largest tent in the center of the ice tents, which served as both a strategy meeting room and the head of the house.

"Meeting the Third Prince of the Holy Empire."

As if he had been waiting for them in advance, the Margrave greeted them in front of the tent.

Hendrick Sigismund.

A man known to not stand out between his father, a Dekaron Knight, and his son, who is said to be a genius swordsman.

"It is the greatest honor of Lord Sigismund that a descendant of the Holy Family personally inspects the ice wall. 'It's cold. Let's eat inside.'"

He was a mature man who looked heavy and shabby. He also had straight, handsome features that looked a lot like Orden.

Just a roughly shaved chin with traces of stubble and messy hair sticking out made him look extremely ordinary.

Of course, there were other things that caught Seongjin's attention.

'The clothes are neat, and the beard is left on purpose.'

Just like the impression I got from the study, I can't shake the feeling that it was an intentional distraction.

Seongjin decided to not waste any more time exploring with him.

"I will be blunt, Margrave. 'I have something to discuss with you.'"

"... .."

The Margrave seemed a little surprised by the prince's quick speech, but he soon informed Lord Ilma and instructed him to guide the rest of the party to their lodgings.

When they were left alone, he asked Seongjin to sit down and smiled kindly.

"Please sit here, sir. Fortunately, this tent is large enough to accommodate a small furnace without any ventilation holes. "It is a luxury that is difficult to enjoy at an ice base."

And when Seongjin took off his cloak and sat down, he took it in his own hand and showed a slight acknowledgment.

"Anyway, you look very different than when I saw you at last year's birthday party. "If I were a faceless person, I would think you were a completely different person."

Seongjin's eyebrows twitched.

So, do you think Old Vincent's disrespect was just a mistake and you want to take the plunge?

"okay. I understand. "If you are slow to discern between interests and interests, you may not be able to recognize them and may make a mistake."

"yes? that..."

"However, if he continues to act arrogantly without remorse even though he has had enough time to realize his mistakes, he is clearly either insane or harbors evil intentions towards the empire."

"Lowering..."

"How is it? Have you come to your senses now? "Are you willing to kneel down to apologize?"

"..."

Seongjin's cool gaze and the Margrave's dry gaze met for a moment.

As if he had decided that the other person was not someone who could be grilled and boiled, the Margrave straightened his posture and sat across from Seongjin.

"My father has been putting a lot of effort into examining the magic scriptures recently. You were once called the greatest general of the empire, but now that you are older, your judgment sometimes becomes clouded. "For a child, this is a very sad thing."

His voice was very somber. A voice that might be heard by a child mourning the decline of his aging father.

At the same time, he subtly emphasizes that his father contributed greatly to Delcross.

"How can I apologize for this rudeness? Can I ask for your forgiveness on behalf of my father? Instead, ask him to kneel and I will do so. "I ask you to consider the veteran's hard work in serving the empire and be generous to me."

Seongjin looked into the Margrave's eyes, which were still dry despite his gloomy expression.

If you can get away with something just by saying something, what can you say?

At first glance, he seems to have thrown away all his pride as a lord, but in reality, the Margrave knows well that Seongjin will not make such an apology. Because it doesn't make any sense.

'He was probably being reported on everything about my movements over the past few days.'

I know that the prince is deliberately refusing to eat with the count. Moreover, he did not immediately scold old Vincent for his rudeness.

In that case, he must have come to the conclusion that Seongjin probably wants something from the Count family.

"okay. "I fully understand your position."

Seongjin nodded obediently.

"By the way, that old old man happens to be a Dekaron Knight."

"... .."

"I have never heard of Dekaron Knight, who perfected his mind and body by achieving balance with the Aurors, becoming senile."

The Margrave smiled awkwardly, as if embarrassed, but his eyes became sharper than ever. Looking straight at him, Seongjin spoke clearly and forcefully.

"That means he is not senile but truly seditious, or he is not a Dekaron Knight."

"That means... .."

"If you are a subversive person, I cannot allow you to remain as a Dekaron Knight. If he is not a Dekaron Knight, there are plenty of people who can replace him anyway, so it doesn't matter. "If, as you say, his judgment is clouded, isn't it time to take the sword out of his hand?"

The color drained from the Margrave's face as he realized the meaning of those words. At this point, he can no longer maintain an inertial smile and pretend to be a nice person.

What the prince is saying now.

"Your Majesty, you are now abolishing Dekaron Knight's Auror... .."

The Margrave's voice trembled in shock, but Seongjin's expression remained cold.

"It's not unprecedented. "You know that too, right?"

"... .."

"What an unfortunate incident. Coincidentally, his crime was also lese majeste. "He abolished his Auror himself to atone for his disciple's sins."

The Margrave was also not unaware of the anecdote.

Bruno Green.

A man of great standing who came from a commoner to become a Dekaron Knight.

"Do you understand? The crime of disrespect towards the royal family is such a serious one. Because he was once called the greatest general of the empire and the last bridgehead of the Demonic Realm, I did not humiliate the old general in front of everyone. But if you knew that kind of consideration, isn't it clear now what kind of attitude you should show me?"

"... .."

On the contrary, Seongjin smiled lightly towards the Margrave, whose expression had completely disappeared.

"I want to tell you this, Margrave Sigismund."

Seongjin tapped the handle of the chair out of habit.

"I have tried my best to accommodate you as much as possible. Because of the friendship I developed with your son in the imperial capital. Do you know? "I could have used my own safety as an excuse to request large-scale military support from the imperial capital."

It did.

However, even to Seongjin, who had no common sense about this world, it was not a good idea to arbitrarily draw troops into another territory.

So, I thought about a method that would have less impact and be more efficient. That was the Lilium Detachment.

"The Lilium Detachment is one of the most apolitical groups in Delcross, and is one step away from the influence of the church. Moreover, I am confident that they are an elite unit that is the best against demonic beasts. "Thanks to me, didn't the picture of receiving appropriate help and solving the demonic situation on its own in the territory without outside help have been completed?"

"..."

The Margrave was silent for a moment, then sighed softly and rubbed his forehead.

Seongjin, who noticed a faint look of disappointment crossing his face, relaxed his stiff posture, leaned back against the backrest, and smiled.

"Okay then. "Let's first discuss the items we collected from the top of Milo."

[...] Ugh, I happened to get caught by this guy...]

The Demon King sighed.

No, but why has this guy been moving to the wrong side?

The conversation that followed went smoothly.

"These are items contaminated with demonic energy. Are you saying you will get the full price for all of them?"

"How could that possibly be the case? "Shouldn't the price be higher?"

"... yes?"

"They have been purified by the miracle of the main god and have become sacred items that have even been blessed. "Are you just going to eat it raw now?"

"no..."

At first, I was just going to be satisfied with the full price, but what happened earlier changed my mind a little. I need to save a lot of profit and buy a gift for my sister.

"Milo merchant owner Giacomo Milo will be arrested on charges of being a devil contractor. The top of Milo is now over. So let him stop the exclusive contract with him and stop distributing the medicinal tea immediately."

I guess there can be no difference of opinion here.

The Margrave had a lot to say, but he soon closed his mouth with a resigned expression.

"From now on, we will start trading with other merchants. My condition is that you do not have an exclusive contract with any one company and that you continuously interact with at least two companies. And one of the top things to do is to be introduced to Branch Manager Schmidt of the Merchants' Union."

Branch manager Schmidt? Why does he suddenly appear?

The Margrave frowned slightly.

Of course, Branch Manager Schmidt was already Seongjin's hand and foot, but there was no way he would have known that fact. I could only guess that perhaps it was under the influence of Grand Duke Asein, the powerful figure in the Merchant Union.

"What benefit do you gain from that?"

"When you talk about profit, you sound sad. I am the prince of Delcross, Margrave. "Whether I sleep or wake up, I only think about the safety of my subjects."

"... .."

The Margrave's eyes narrowed.

Because neither those who said it nor those who heard it knew that it was nothing more than empty nonsense.

[You are saying that you will obediently make the devil do something good? Be honest. What on earth are you planning?]

Well, I just thought I might make some profit along the way.

Plus, Schmidt has some debt.

When I instructed them to create a stable route to supply salmon from Ortona without going through Cyprus, they all looked like they were dying.

The initial investment that needs to be made is quite large.

[But why must it be salmon? There must be many more efficient products to start a business with, right?]

That's because the item I'm most interested in is salmon.

I told you, right? They said they would open a salmon specialty store in Hwangdo.

'... And what else are you ripping off?'

While thinking about this and carefully examining the inside of the tent, something suddenly caught Seongjin's eye.

"... uh?"

* * *

"Lord Masaine. "Look at this!"

That night, Seongjin, who returned to his lodgings after finishing his meeting with the Margrave, shouted at Masain.

"I have received a great deal from the Margrave!"

Masain blinked and looked at Seongjin for a moment.

Just a moment ago, the temperature around me felt like it was going to drop, but what happened in the meantime made me feel so relieved that I was jumping up and down?

Either way, Seongjin was very excited and unpacked the long object he was carrying in front of him.

"... Henesys long sword?"

What appeared in the package was a long sword that looked bloody.

The last weapon created by a famous Ortona master craftsman full of anger and regret just before the country was torn apart.

At first glance, it was similar in size to Logan's sword, but its appearance was completely different from Arjuna's.

Unlike Arjuna's curves, which formed flowing waves, the sharp protrusions that jutted out from the blade were as ugly as saw blades or thorns.

Also, what is the material like?

The black iron, which Masaine had never heard of, was assumed to be a special metal, and shed an eerie luster along the well-honed saw blade.

"how is it? Are you going to give it to Sister Amelia as a gift?"

... what?

Masain quietly broke into a cold sweat.

"I beg your pardon, sir. "This looks like a sword possessed by a devil."

Doesn't it have a hideous appearance, like something a devil from a story would carry around?

Giving a sword like this to Princess Amelia, who is like a rose?

However, after hearing Masain's honest evaluation, Seongjin smiles happily at him!

"yes? Right? Looks like a devil's sword, doesn't it? So this is perfect!"
"This is totally your taste!"

212. Lycan Slope Road (6)

"... "You gave me that sword!?"

Old man Vincent's face turned pale.

I couldn't bear to see my son, so I snuck back in late at night, and the famous sword that I cherished and never let go of wherever I went had disappeared.

"you... you... ... !"

Given the prince's mood, I guessed that he wouldn't just let it go. I never expected him to steal my beloved sword!

Although he was devastated by the unexpected result, Hendrik Sigismund, the person who handed over the sword, had a calm face.

"Aren't you just looking at it every day without being able to use it anyway? "That sword does not match my father's imperial sword method or Banahas practice."

"You're saying that because you don't know the true value of that sword!"

What is that sword!

Isn't this the greatest sword forged by the hidden master who is known to have created General Gael's Arjuna?

"Why did I spend so much money to get it! "If Ortona had not fallen, would we have been able to obtain that treasure at such a price?"

"After all, it is the sword of a ruined nation, and it is a sword suited only to practice methods that are being put into practice. Why do you care so much about the ornaments found by idle collectors? "It's not like your father."

"But that doesn't mean it's so easy to get that precious cloud iron sword..." ... !"

"If you try to get the Cloud Iron Sword again, it's not impossible."

No, that's not it!

Old man Vincent stamped his feet in frustration.

"That's no ordinary meteor! "It was said to be a sword made of a material that could never be reproduced with current continental sword technology, and the method of handling it has now been lost!"

But Margrave Hendrick's eyes remained cold.

"Then doesn't that mean you can't forge a new sword with it anyway? What on earth do you use that for? "No matter how rare it is, didn't your father plan on taking it to the grave instead of selling it anyway?"

The son, who had no interest in the sword, did not place any value on the ugly sword that would not be of any help to the family.

In the end, old Vincent had no choice but to swallow his anger and yell at his son.

"But it's my sword! "Shouldn't you have at least asked this father's intentions?"

"Do you mean intent?"

For the first time, a hint of anger flashed in the Margrave's previously dull eyes.

"Then did your father commit such an accident by asking about my intentions? "Treason? Did he intend to roll up the whole clan and eat it?"

"That's just the young bastard's pretense! "Treason!"

"I heard you drew your sword? I heard he almost pointed it at the prince? "Do you think I don't have eyes or ears?!"

In the first place, old Vincent committed lese majeste in front of too many people.

I tried my best to make it up to a small mistake, but Prince Mores was not as soft an opponent as I thought.

"Do you know where that is? Can you imagine how thorough the preparations he has made to tie our family into a state of immobility! "Why do you dare to touch someone like that?"

After receiving reports of his movements at the Count's residence, I expected that he would be a formidable person despite his young age.

But when I actually met Prince Mores, it was all just the tip of the iceberg.

Weren't the words the prince quietly uttered while requesting the discontinuation of the distribution of medicinal teas be enough to chill the margrave's spirit at times?

-Milo merchant owner Giacomo Milo will be arrested on charges of being a devil contractor. There is already enough evidence, and a complaint has already been filed in the Heresy Tribunal.

At first glance, it seemed like Milo was cleverly aiming only at the top, but the Margrave did not know that if he took just one step further, the Sigismund family could become entangled with the Dark Church.

Moreover, thanks to the atrocities of the old man who thoughtlessly committed the crime of blasphemy, couldn't he have been denounced as a devil worshiper who dared to rebel against the royal family under the instigation of the devil?

If the prince had only had a strong mind, he could have made it happen with all his heart. Because the prince also hinted at that several times during the conversation.

-Of course, since there was no time to rest due to the vigilance of the demonic realm, you would not have been able to keep track of everything that was happening in the corners of the territory. If he had known, I think the Margrave would not have tolerated this.

However, it was obvious what the prince was really trying to say as he slightly twitched the corner of his mouth while saying that.

-You left it knowingly, right? I know everything. There is also evidence. If you mess up even a little bit in the future, you know?

There is only one reason why he didn't do it. He said that even if he buried the Sigismund family now, there would be no benefit for the imperial family.

What kind of family is the Sigismund family? If you give a certain amount of support every year, isn't it an efficient dog that will protect the boundaries of the magic world on its own?

-We communicate really well with you. I think we can continue to be good partners, Margrave.

Anyway, regardless of its utility, the prince had no hesitation in forcing various things on the pretext of his weakness. It seemed like they wanted to cut down on the subsidies that came from the imperial family every year.

Even if I had slowed down just a little bit, I would have been completely wiped out without even leaving a single root.

It was truly fortunate that the prince finally sold his attention on a useless decorative sword.

"I can't believe I'm tempted by such a fancy, decorative sword. "No matter how experienced I act, I'm still just a young boy."

"What a show! Hendrick, that is truly a sword like no other in the world... ... !"

Hearing the complaints of the unfair old man in one ear, the Margrave quietly sighed in relief.

* * *

That night.

Seongjin, who completed his meditation before going to bed, fell into a comfortable sleep inside the ice tent despite the cold temperature.

It felt great to get something unexpected, and the little magic stone Sisley gave me did its job well.

Thanks to this, Seongjin's bed became reasonably warm to the point where it felt comfortable, even without using a separate auror.

'I guess I'll have to thank the little guy later... ..'

Seongjin repeated that and fell asleep contentedly.

Former Dekaron Knight Bruno, as well as Sir Martha and Maria, who were skilled in Auror management, quickly adapted to the cold and fell into a deep sleep.

However, the situation was different in the case of Sir Claudia, Sir Calmen, and the two paladins.

It's not that he was immature in using Auras, but he wasn't at the point where he was unconsciously circulating Auras while he was sleeping.

The soldiers provided a small brazier considering the circumstances of the first-time guests.

However, in order to heat the furnace in a small ice tent that did not even have proper ventilation in order to maximize heat retention, the tent entrance had to be left slightly open to let in the cold wind.

Eventually, they, who had been sleeping and waking up repeatedly inside the tent, were unable to overcome the cold and rushed out of the tent.

Fortunately, there were a couple of bonfires set up outside the tent. Soldiers on watch and those working night shifts were all gathered in front of the bonfire, drinking warm stew and tea.

"Don't be so nervous, come here and warm up. "I'll give you a cup of tea."

For the people at the base, it was quite amusing to see young, inexperienced knights from the Imperial Capital unable to adapt to the cold and having trouble sleeping.

However, he did not intentionally try to be territorial just to make them suffer more. This may be thanks to the stable atmosphere of the front line and the reassurance provided by the ice walls, which gave me peace of mind compared to the flocking army of demonic beasts.

Of course, it was also the fault of the Wolf Knights, who traveled with them in the Imperial Capital, who treated them quite friendly.

"What car is this?"

"Oat tea. "It is probably a grain that is not commonly eaten in the Imperial Capital, but the only grains grown around here are oats and a little barley."

The group, who had been nervous about Sir Oscar's answer as if it might be a medicine tea, sighed in relief and accepted the warm tea.

Sir Oscar, vice-captain of the Wolf Knights, was in charge of night security on behalf of Sir Ilma. Although I didn't know the details, I could sense that the group from the Imperial Capital was strangely reluctant to use the [Medicine Tea].

"No need to worry. Drinking medicinal tea is prohibited on the front lines. Occasionally, someone will relax and fall asleep or talk strangely in their sleep while on guard. That's why the Margrave himself recently banned medicine trucks from entering the base."

Sir Valerie and Sir Sharon gave each other a small glance. As expected, it was clear that Margrave Sigismund had some knowledge of the influence of the medicinal tea.

The group is warming up while drinking warm grain tea.

Ooooh-

Lycanslope's cries were once again heard nearby.

"Those guys are messing around again! "What on earth are they planning?"

Following Sir Oscar, who grumbled and got up from his seat, the group climbed the ice wall and looked towards the snowy field in the distance.

As the saying goes, several lycanslopes were hovering near the ice wall. However, when they detect them on the ice wall, they are soon driven out into the coniferous forest.

They continue to gather in the snowy field, but they rarely come within direct firing range of the bow.

"Your eyesight has increased."

As Sir Valerie said, the number of people wandering around the snowy fields and touching the ice walls has increased to dozens.

"There are a lot more lycanslopes gathered in that forest. The number gathered now alone is over 1,000, and that number is moving south. "Isn't it a pretty scary sight?"

When I looked at the direction Sir Oscar was pointing to, I saw dozens or hundreds of bright lights shining brightly through the dense coniferous trees.

Perhaps the Lycanslopes, who have a vision far superior to that of humans, are observing each and every movement of the party even from a great distance.

"Although they were engulfed by the demonic energy of the Demon Lord and turned into demonic beasts, they are still people who have basic thoughts. Even though he went south along the road, he probably didn't have the courage to cross the ice wall."

Sir Oscar snorted.

However, to the group who were not familiar with the magical beast called Lycan Slope, the calm eyes that were all focused in this direction seemed somewhat ominous, like a sign of something.

Isn't it like the sight of wild beasts taking their last breath before their prey?

"... Is it because of my mood? "It's like I'm waiting for something."

At the end, Sir Claudia's trembling voice.

The group stood quietly on the ice wall for a while, unable to take their eyes off the forest's glare.

* * *

licking. Something wet licks my cheek.

Seongjin, who suddenly woke up, came to his senses when he heard a low voice calling him.

[Lowering.]

Early morning, before dawn.

A wolf larger than a calf was standing next to Seongjin's bed, staring down at him.

It was so large that it filled the tent, but the reason it didn't look that threatening was probably because of its calm black eyes.

"... "Max."

[Shh-]

Seongjin stood up and opened his mouth, but the wolf quietly warned him.

[The knights you brought may wake up. All you have to do is nod your head.]

Only then did Seongjin realize that the other person was speaking with resignation.

What on earth is going on?

[If it's okay, would you like to come out with me for a moment? I have something to show you.]

now?

Seongjin was dumbfounded by the sudden proposal, but with an ominous premonition that he did not know what it was, Seongjin put on a warm winter suit and put on a sword belt with a nutcracker attached to it.

Then softly. After wagging her tail once, Max turned her back on Seongjin.

[There is no time. I have to get back quickly, so get on my back.]

... Take a ride?

No, it looks like it's about the size of a pony.

Seongjin hesitates, but Max's tail wags gently and peacefully. When Seongjin, who had been strangely distracted by him, climbed onto the back of the horse, the wolf made a request in a low voice.

[Please kill all signs like before.]

Auror concealment?

Seongjin, who roughly guessed, killed the sight, and the wolf immediately rushed out of the tent. And soon the wolf's windy run began.

It was so fast that I couldn't even open my eyes because the wind was blowing so hard in my face.

The wolf jumped over the ice wall in an instant, then jumped onto the high cliff and started heading north.

[Lee Seong-jin.]

At that time, the Demon King whispered.

[I have been feeling a little bit of magical energy from this wolf just now.]

okay?

Seongjin checked the surroundings with the help of the demon king's spiritual eyes.

Sure enough, a purple aura spreads beneath Max's feet every time he steps on the ice.

'Can you feel that at Max's feet?'

[Huh, after hearing it, it seems like that... ..]

Meanwhile, Max was heading north like the wind, and before he knew it, he was running over a steep ice canyon.

Eventually, the place where the wolf stopped was a high hill overlooking a small group of Lycanslopes.

"That... .."

[That is the Lycan Slope Road.]

Even without the explanation, Seongjin could intuitively know that the gnome was the leader.

A huge body that appears to be 1.5 times the size of the others.

'You're wearing clothes...''

It was like that.

Unlike the Lycanslopes, who were naked like wild monsters, this one wore short skirt-like clothing and even had a sparkling goldwork necklace around its neck. In many ways, doesn't it remind you of the Lycan Slope Road you saw in Labyrinth before?

Of course, the one I saw in the labyrinth was bigger and more flashy.

'But, wait a minute. Which means Rod is here... ..'

Are you saying that their main target isn't the 3rd ice wall?

What on earth are you planning?

[Due to the closedness of the guard post and the lack of means of transportation, it is not easy for the Wolf Knights to scout this far.]

Max, who was looking down at the scene, spoke quietly.

[In addition, Sigismund has not yet suffered a large-scale attack in the canyon. Demonic beasts, including the Lycan Slopelord, are plotting in the canyon, but Sigismund will also send his third force to the ice wall of the snowy field today. If all goes according to plan, the troops in the canyon and around Lake Salz will not be reinforced at all.]

okay. I understand how worried he is.

Perhaps they want Seongjin to personally convey this fact to the Wolf Knights and the Margrave.

however.

"Why are you showing this to me?"

To be honest, it's not just Seongjin, it's okay to be seen by anyone in the Wolf Knights.

[that... ..]

Then Max hesitated and opened his mouth.

[This is because it is difficult to ride on the back except for degradation. If it weren't for my feet, it would be impossible to reach the canyon in one go.]

"hmm"

Seongjin looked at Max's tail, which was moving around alone. Compared to the bastard's calm expression, his tail was showing excitement as if it were a separate creature.

"This guy can transform at will and moves like his own limbs, but it still seems impossible to completely control the emotions his subordinates feel."

Seongjin looked straight into the eyes of the giant wolf dog and smiled.

The dry yet calm black eyes that I had become accustomed to seeing often recently.

"Right, Louise?"

213

213. Lycan Slope Road (7)

When a channel opened out of nowhere, I stayed in the flame dimension created by Seonghwang for a while.

Seongjin heard many stories from Seonghwang, including one about the 'Council of Six' that protects the Delcross Dimension.

They were also called 'guardians of the border'. As the saying goes, they were representatives of the 'border race' that had been living on the border of the dimension since ancient times.

[A borderline race?]

[okay. They are a high-ranking race that travels from Ionia to the Delcross dimension from time to time.]

It is said that Delcross was originally a solid dimension that resonated with its counterpart, the original world, forming a complete circle.

The name of that world is Ionia.

A beautiful world that was destroyed by a flood of [catastrophe] many years ago, and is now completely gone.

Among the five races that guarded the border of Ionia at the time, a representative from each race served as a guardian of the border for generations.

And under the leadership of the former 'Guardian of Delcross', they formed the 'Council of Six' to protect the border between the two dimensions.

[Who is the Sentai Guardian?]

[This is a wise ancient dragon that has protected Delcross for the past thousand years. I can't tell you his true name, but I call him 'elder'.]

Unbelievable! Dragons really existed in this world!

If I could, I really wanted to tell Sister Amelia.

'But it's surprising that the representative of Delcross is not human.'

In fact, the race that dominates all of Delcross is human.

Well, it is said that until Cadmus, the first prosperous man, laid the foundation of the empire, humans were considered a barbaric lower race by the Ionian races. So even if humans took the lead in something, they would never have followed suit.

[The Ionian races had unique characteristics that were different from humans. Most races had something called [Essence] that protected and supported the spirit of the clan. The spirit connected to the entity was constantly communicating with [essence] to maintain reason and preserve their high-dimensional mental world without loss.]

It is said that they easily cultivated civilization through that [essence].

Even without any special training, my spirit was extremely elevated and my mind always remained calm.

Also, without having to work hard to learn something, the knowledge of our ancestors was passed down to our descendants.

[They were all scientists and philosophers, artists and warriors at the same time.]

It was probably natural for them to achieve a high level of civilization. By simply sharing the small joys that individuals discovered and enjoyed with [Essence], the species continued to develop rapidly.

However, Ionia fell, and its brilliant civilization came to an end.

It is said that because the border races reached the Delcross dimension, it was possible for some of them to take refuge here when the world was destroyed.

However, in that urgent situation, it was impossible to completely transfer the [Essence] that supported the spirit of the entire race to Delcross.

In the end, two of the five races lost part of their essence, and two other races lost their essence completely.

[One of these races is the Lycanslope, Mores.]

An elegant race that once had both intelligence and military power, and had giant wolves as their servants.

However, now the connection with the essence has been lost, reason has become clouded, and it has been completely contaminated by the demonic energy of the demon world, reducing it to a mere beast.

Demonic beasts that only respond to the will of the Lycan Slope Lord and move without will like swarm monsters.

At that point, a natural question arose for Seongjin.

[If they lost their essence and were reduced to beasts, how does the Lycanslope Lord maintain their sanity? And how can they still remain in the 'Council of Six'?]

Then Seonghwang smiled slightly at Seongjin. He seemed to think it was a pretty good question.

It seemed as if he was proud of his well-raised young son, which made Seongjin feel strange.

[The current Lord, Berseus, is not a pure-blooded lycanthrope. He is a distant descendant of Dacianus, a Lycanslope who was the ancestor of the Marquis of Daciano a long time ago.]

And the explanation of the success that followed was surprising.

It is said that some lycanthropes that have been traveling to and from Delcross since ancient times have, in rare cases, combined with humans. There was a slim chance that mixed-race descendants were born from them.

And the descendants are said to have inherited their parents' strong strength and mental ability to rule their families. Sometimes, we were lucky enough to inherit some of our ancestors' 'knowledge'.

But even for those descendants, the limits of their lineage were clear. No matter how hard I tried, I couldn't completely connect to the [essence] like a pure-blooded lycan slope.

Those differences led to discrimination and persecution of mixed-race descendants.

[then... ... !]

[okay. They probably never thought that the human bloodline, which they considered uncivilized, would become the last bastion of their own reason.]

Because it was a half-body disconnected from the essence, it was able to maintain its reason without relying on the essence. And that has now led to a reversal in the relationship between pure Lycanslopes and mixed-race descendants.

[however.]

Seongjin tilted his head.

[The ancestor of the family, then isn't the current Marquis a very distant descendant from him? I think the lineage is too distant to maintain the traits of Lycan Slope.]

[okay. Nowadays, most descendants have almost lost the traits of their ancestors.]

Seonghwang nodded and stared at Seongjin with slightly deepened eyes.

[By the way, Mores. Do you know about 'atavistic inheritance'?]

* * *

"Right, Louise?"

As Seongjin asked that question, he looked straight at the huge wolfdog in front of him, and at someone who was clearly a distant descendant of Lycanslope who had the wolfdog as his servant.

[...] ... !]

The black eyes, which had always been so calm and even dry, were shaking aimlessly for the first time with a look of embarrassment.

'Max' hesitated and took a step back from Seongjin.

[How on earth...]

At that moment, a huge amount of aura surged from the wolfdog's body. He was unable to properly control his emotional agitation, and a part of his auror that he had been thoroughly conserving was revealed to the surface.

[omg! A pretty strong Magi, Seongjin Lee! How have you been hiding this so well?]

The demon lord took a deep breath and shouted.

It is probably related to the strengthening of the aura that Seongjin is feeling. I thought he was a very different auror from others, but I never thought that the auror itself was actually combined with magical energy.

But Seongjin could no longer continue his thoughts. This is because Louise's agitation upon realizing that her identity was discovered was unexpectedly strong.

[How did you find out about that? There would have been no clues to guess or evidence to be sure! Even in this era, there is no way that there is anyone left who knows the truth about Lycan Slope!]

Although the words were said in resignation, her voice sounded as if she was out of breath.

[Who did you hear it from? Who else knows that fact besides you?]

"calm down! I just happened to find out about it by coincidence!"
"Lycanslope traits sometimes appear in descendants as an atavistic inheritance!"

Seongjin also did not suspect Louise of being 'Max' from the beginning.

When I think about it now, I wonder why I didn't recognize Max's gentle attitude and unique dark eyes before.

Still, who would associate a giant wolf with a normal person?

When I met the guard captain, Sir Sebastian, I felt that the atmosphere was somehow familiar, and the fact that I felt that impression even stronger when I saw Louise for the first time was probably just a case of déjà vu.

Of course, Louise showed a special side at times. However, he thought that maybe it was because his nose was unusually better than that of ordinary people.

It was after Director Bruno's cautious remarks that Seongjin began to doubt her in earnest.

-She goes to work early in the morning and works at the count's residence until late at night, so when on earth is Louise practicing swordsmanship like that? He's really diligent.

Seongjin muttered that as he passed by, and the leader's face took on a serious expression and he confessed to him. Louise gave up her path as a swordsman because she failed to become an Auror.

-As the daughter of Sir Ilma and Sir Sebastian, I had all the expectations. It's truly a pity. When she was young, she was an Auror and had a hard time with her late initiation, so if she were to suffer, wouldn't she be able to understand her hardships?

At that time, for the first time, Seongjin tilted his head.

No, leader. Surely the leader doesn't know? He's a really strong kid!

Looking at the Auror's excellent concealment, it is clear that his Auror proficiency is no joke. But does it make sense that you haven't even been initiated yet?

But it wasn't until I started using the devil's spiritual eye in earnest that I became convinced.

After seeing her Aura with my own eyes, which was significantly different from that of an ordinary person.

'... It was definitely purple.'

Unlike ordinary people's auras, which glow in a spectrum from yellow to blue, Louise's was a vivid purple. As if something was mixed up with the aura.

And I checked it out yesterday when I arrived at the third ice wall. The contaminated aura that glows purple is truly a characteristic of Lycan Slopes.

Once there, the various clues that had been playing around separately in Seongjin's mind began to come together.

Descendants of lycanthropes and giant wolf dogs.

A trait of Lycan Slope that is said to appear unexpectedly due to atavistic inheritance.

And Louise has no choice but to hide her skills from others.

"Besides, you called me 'lowly' earlier. "When we met in the snowy mountains before, I said 'you'."

[...] ... !]

"You've gotten used to the name you call me. Do you know what else? Your way of speaking is quite unique. "I've been with you for a few days now, so how can I not understand your tone of voice?"

Then the wolfdog blinks as if embarrassed.

Fortunately, Seongjin's explanation seemed to have had some effect. The Aurors that were running wild in all directions slowly began to sink into the body.

"I was also curious why you always pretend like you can't use Aurors. You're naturally strong, right? I saw it clearly when I ran here, Louise. You handled 'Schunishuhe' really perfectly, didn't you?

"Whether it is in the snow or on ice, it runs lightly without slowing down at all."

[...]]

Slurp.

The aura seems to seep into the wolf dog's body and is completely absorbed. The black eyes, which had suddenly regained complete peace, were looking at Seongjin with a cautious light, as if examining his intentions.

[Wow, that strong magic energy has disappeared without a trace. It's really amazing.]

The demon lord mutters in admiration.

It was definitely a great Auror concealment. It was enough to fool not only Lord Martha, but even Captain Bruno.

Didn't they sneak into the tent and sneak out Seongjin? If Dasha had known this, she would have struggled with a sense of shame, saying that she was being pushed around by wolves and dogs.

[...] My parents don't know about this, sir.]

Louise finally opened her mouth and, unexpectedly, made an excuse for her parents.

[As a child, when I first developed Aura, I felt something was strange. My Auror is somehow different from other people. And even in my young mind, I felt the need to completely hide this from others. Since it was a decision I made entirely on my own, my parents firmly believe that I have not even entered the profession yet.]

okay? I thought maybe Sir Sebastian would know.

Because he really has a similar personality to his daughter.

"Isn't it the lineage from your father's side that you inherited?"

[Yes, that's right, my Majesty. However, in my case, the trait was expressed accidentally over a long period of generations. My father knows nothing about this lineage.]

Descendants of Lycanslope who sometimes inherit the 'knowledge' of their ancestors.

In this way, Louise naturally understood and responded to the situation she was in through her innate knowledge.

Having wolf dogs as servants, giving them auras and then taking care of them. Even without learning from anyone, I was able to learn it on my own as naturally as breathing.

[Then maybe it would be better now, sir.]

After finishing her explanation, Louise asked in a calm voice.

"What are you doing?"

[I am Lycanslope. They are the same race of demonic beasts that threaten the territory in the Demon World, and they are a different race that the empire classifies as a race of devils.]

"What does that matter? Louise has never done any harm to the territory, right? "Do you think we can just stay as is?"

[But aren't you the prince of the Holy Empire?]

Louise's eyes even looked determined when she asked that question.

Even if you know the truth, you can't easily believe in the option of leaving it alone. It was clearly visible that he was considering a situation where he might secretly bury the imperial prince and destroy the evidence.

Considering the safety of not only herself but also her parents in the estate, it may have been an inevitable choice for her.

Didn't she say this to Seongjin the other day?

-If you are from the Seonghwang family, I cannot give you a detailed explanation about myself. This is an inevitable choice for all of us, so could you please understand?

Well, regardless of understanding, it cannot be taken lightly.

Seongjin warned as he gently fumbled with the handle of the nutcracker.

"It would be best to judge carefully."

[I am a good person. I don't want to hurt you.]

Louise's eyes, which had been stained with complex emotions for a while, calmed down. It was clear that he had chosen something in his mind, but it didn't seem to be a good direction for Seongjin.

Crrrrr.

Because the deep low frequency ringing in the throat was a clear signal of threat.

[No matter how much I think about it, there is no other way. Could you please cooperate obediently?]

"What are you going to do?"

[I must make you one of my subjects.]

What man?

"hey! Do not be ridiculous! It's not that I don't know your position, but I also have family who worry about me just like you do. "I can't just accept your situation unconditionally."

[This is the best path for everyone. Do not worry. It will be over soon.]

The wolf dog's mouth opened and its sharp teeth gave off an eerie glow.

Right then.

Boom!

The wolf dog's limp tail suddenly began to shake violently.

[oh? Max? wait for a sec... ... !]

And push shush. Like the air blowing out of a balloon, the wolfdog began to shrink in size little by little.

what?

While he was puzzled by the sudden situation, a wolf-dog with such an awkward appearance approached Seongjin, wagging its tail excitedly. and.

Wow.

With a small crushing sound, the wolf dog's sharp fangs lightly bit Seongjin's hand.

"... ... ?!"

[...] ... !]

Seongjin was embarrassed.

Not only was that not Louise's intention as he was reading, it was a playful bite that did not feel alive at all. Thanks to this, he had no intention of defending himself at all.

Blood flowed from her hand, and at the same time, Louise's scream-like cry rang out.

[Oops, Max! If I disconnect now... ... !]

And just like that, my thoughts were cut off.

"... Max?"

Let's sing "gingaminga."

Wong!

The wolf-dog let go of his hand and barked loudly in response.

Clear amber eyes with a faithful glow.

Max, the wolfdog who had already returned to his original size, was licking Seongjin's wounds and wagging his tail happily.

214

214. Lycan Slope Road (8)

What you see before your eyes is a vast and majestic snowy landscape.

Beyond the sheer ice canyon, tall coniferous forests covered in snowflakes stretch endlessly to the horizon.

Eventually, as the first dawn broke, the elegant silhouette of nature slowly turned golden.

"The scenery is really nice. There's no way back... .."

Seongjin, who was sitting on the cliff with a helpless feeling, opened his mouth while scratching the ear of Max, who continued to stroke next to him.

"Hey, Max."

Wong wong!

"I somehow get the feeling that you don't like her, but can't you just invite Louise here one more time?"

Then, ki-ing! Whip!

Max seems to have understood what Seongjin said, but he puts his ears back slightly and whines. Is it because of my mood? It's like, 'Why are you saying that?' I also felt like I was being blamed.

"... "Do you hate it that much?"

Then the wolf dog, which was staring at Seongjin with bright eyes, stuck its head in and licked the wound on his hand.

The bleeding had already stopped a long time ago, but the dog's sharp teeth marks were clearly visible on the hand that had been bitten quite deeply.

What does this mean? Looking at the amount Max was doing, I don't think his intention was simply to attack.

[hmm. Although it is very weak, I feel like a kind of thought circuit is connected between you and that mongrel dog through that wound.]

The Demon Lord, who had been contemplating the wound for a while, spoke in a slightly sullen tone.

[Maybe it has something to do with the way the Lycanslopes control the family. That mixed breed dog left a kind of 'imprint' on you.]

'... 'Max made me one of his subjects?'

Seongjin asked, tilting his head.

'It doesn't seem like anything has changed, does it?'

Then the Demon King got scared and shouted.

[Will that work? Whether you belong to a demon or a demonic beast, relationships connected through thoughts are not always one-sided. Although this is a relationship led by that mongrel dog, the superiority relationship between you and that bastard is very obvious just by looking at it! Think about it, Seongjin Lee. You are having a spiritual conversation with this great Demon Lord, but you are not particularly under the control of my thoughts, are you?]

Well, I see.

I thought that because I was a member of the family, I would become something of a puppet. Just like the Lycanslopes follow the Lord's orders.

[That mongrel dog wouldn't have expected something like that, right? That guy forcibly cut off the connection with the Lycan Slope by simply creating a new imprint with you.]

Come to think of it, didn't Max try something like this before?

Even though I was hit hard by Louise and failed.

-Your Majesty, the wolves of the Sigismund Territory travel to and from the Demon World. Therefore, you should not allow wolf dogs, which are descendants of their blood, to bite you.

The fact that Louise, who was always quiet, overreacted at that time may mean that she knew Max's intentions from the beginning.

'Then why didn't they stop me from even trying?'

From the beginning, I thought her intentions and Max's feelings were separate things.

Still, it's your family, right? Was it so lax in maintaining control over the family that a relationship could be blown away by such a light bite?

[From what I saw, that Lycan Slope was also a guy with quite strong thoughts. Rather than saying that this mixed-breed dog overcame his dominance on his own, maybe he just didn't use such strong restraints in the first place?]

Maybe so.

I have a feeling that perhaps what Louise was trying to do with Seongjin may not have as much coercive power as expected.

'Anyway, one thing is certain.'

It seemed that Louise had completely lost control of Max.

Considering her personality from what I've seen so far, there's no way she wouldn't come back here even if it was possible.

"Then how should I go back now...""

I don't know, but the approximate distance from the ice base to this place is well over 15 to 20 kilometers. Plus, it's not a straight, open street.

It will take quite a while to walk since I don't know the road well.

Seongjin was quite good at performing shunishuhe, but he didn't yet have the confidence to perform a trick like running vertically down a steep cliff like Louise.

Kiing.

Max, who has no idea what to do, taps Seongjin with the tip of his nose and wags his tail.

Not moving? Are we still here?

Seongjin chuckled and patted Max on the back, as if he could somehow hear the dog's voice.

"okay. Don't move. "When you're lost, you don't just wander around without a plan."

Why don't you go?

"This is all because of you, Max. What if I blow Louise away like that without any countermeasures? "Can't you transform or use Aurors on your own without him?"

When he lightly scolded Max, he pretended not to understand even though he understood and rolled around in the snow, showing affection to Seongjin.

In any case, it seemed clear that Max did not know how to handle Aurors. The wolf dog had been running around Seongjin happily, burying its sides in the snow instead of just sneezing.

'If you notice that I have suddenly disappeared from my quarters, Sir Martha. It's going to be a mess again...'

The morning sun is slowly rising high. Lord Masaine wakes up early to start training, so he must have opened his eyes by now.

I'm not intentionally trying to upset him. Well, nothing ever goes as planned.

Seongjin sighed softly and stood up.

'Now I have to make a decision.'

Since I know the general direction, I should be able to get back on my own, no matter how many days it takes.

There is only one variable that comes to mind.

There is a possibility that someone who can find his location will get here faster than Seongjin could get back alone.

Whether it was Louise or anyone else.

'The reason it's hard to find a lost child is because the child usually isn't there and wanders around.'

So wouldn't it be better to just stay here quietly? Of course, I'm not saying I'm lost.

It was when Seongjin was thinking so much.

[...] Hehe!]

Suddenly the Demon King let out a soft scream.

'uh? what's the matter?'

Surprised, Seongjin asked urgently, but there was no answer from the demon lord. It is stuck deep in the flame crystal and just trembles.

'what? This situation. It feels somehow familiar?'

Then, gently.

I felt like a soft wind, slightly different from the cold wind, passed by my body.

'... no way?'

Seongjin, who had a premonition of something and looked around, soon opened his eyes and looked down at his hands.

Suddenly, I felt a tickling sensation, and suddenly, Max's teeth marks on my hand disappeared without a trace!

"haha... .."

Without realizing it, I let out a light laugh.

Because I couldn't have known what this meant.

'I'll be able to contact the group through Arenja soon!'

Then there was nothing to worry about anymore.

All you have to do is think about what to do next.

Seongjin felt much lighter and sat down in his seat.

Then, I strengthened my eyesight as much as possible with my aura and began to closely observe the surrounding terrain and the movements of the lycan slopes.

* * *

"Lowering! "Hey!"

That morning, the ice base was on alert.

A major accident occurred where the 3rd prince of the Holy Empire, who was treated in extreme poverty, disappeared from his lodgings overnight without a trace.

"... "How?"

Masain, who was wandering around the base with a thoughtful look on his face, muttered in despair.

It was truly like a ghost crying.

Ahead of an all-out war against the demonic beast, many troops were guarding the base tightly all night long. Where on earth did you disappear from their eyes?

For a moment, my vision became dark, but this didn't happen for a day or two. Masain quickly came to his senses and went to Manager Bruno to report this fact.

Then, without delay, the leader finds Sir Sharon and urges him to contact Arenja.

The exorcist, who had been channeling toward the ecliptic since dawn, rubbed his dark eyes and sighed in relief.

"You found it. "He is said to be currently at the northern border of his territory."

"North?"

"yes. It is home to mountain glaciers and canyons. You don't have to worry now that you're safe. "It's not too far from the guard post in the canyon, so he tells us to join him there."

"iced coffee... .."

In a moment of relief, Masain lost strength in his legs and staggered for a moment. Sir Sharon, who was looking at him with somewhat pity, added:

"Oh, and you said it wasn't anyone's fault. "Your Majesty, you were just involved in an unfortunate accident, so you are told not to scold me too much when you meet me."

"Ugh!"

Masain, who had hit the nail on the head, kept his mouth shut.

It's not that it wasn't, but instead of the relief that swept over me, now a fiery anger began to creep in. The moment I saw the prince's face, I was ready to start yelling.

Anyway, since I knew the whereabouts, there was no need to delay. The group hurried to prepare to leave the base without even bothering to eat breakfast.

"... "The northern canyon?"

Naturally, the Margrave frowned when he heard the news.

Since they didn't attack the prince's group with all their might in the first place, it didn't really matter when they left the base.

But suddenly it's the northern canyon? Is that even possible?

"okay. Didn't I also say that Nunui Gorge was uncomfortable? "How about sending a little more troops there?"

Old man Vincent is giggling next to me.

The prince has gone missing within Sigismund's base. What kind of convenient statement is this? The prince and his companions are not saying anything right now, but if they are held accountable later, how will they handle it?

Margrave Hendrick, with a hard look on his face, coldly cut off his words.

"As I have said many times, it is extremely inefficient."

"You seem like a guy who doesn't understand this kind of thing. Anyway, what was it like? "Did you say Prince Mores left that sword behind?"

Old man Vincent was excited about what might happen, but he soon became depressed when he saw Masain coming out carrying a beautifully wrapped sword.

"Anyway, we can't just let them go. We need directions to the canyon, and at least we need to send out some search crews... .."

There was a candidate who was just the right fit.

"I will go with you."

Orden, who had already completed all preparations, followed the group with two Wolf Knights and several soldiers.

In any case, the third force of hundreds selected by the guard commander was scheduled to arrive at the ice wall soon. He calculated that even if he got out of here, there wouldn't be any major problems.

Above all, isn't Prince Mores the beloved younger brother of Amel and a guest at the estate he invited? If his safety was at stake, it was natural for him, as the eldest son of the family, to step forward.

"But Archduke, is it true that Prince Mores is in the north? "How did you get there by yourself during the night?"

Sir Oscar asks curiously.

It was a natural question.

In order to go from the snowfield to the canyon, you first had to return to the territory through the second and first ice walls.

From there, we had to walk back toward the canyon on a rough road for more than half a day. This would be impossible unless you were a Dekaron Knight like old man Vincent.

However, Orden's thoughts on this were extremely simple.

'Well, because it's your job... ... '

If you think about it, hasn't there been a time before when you were swept away by a butterfly and flew somewhere, and then came back riding a beam of light? For some reason, I thought something like this could happen to that prince.

"Well, let's hurry. "Your Majesty is waiting."

So, Lord Masain's words were no longer heard.

The group, including Orden, left the base and began moving at high speed toward the second ice wall.

* * *

"... "Ask for vacation?"

The butler looked at the girl holding out the documents with a stiff expression and asked curiously.

He was a child who worked diligently without missing a day, even giving up his vacation days. But why suddenly at a time when the territory was in disarray?

"Something important has come up that needs to be done. Please repair it."

Louise's voice as she said that was even solemn.

"No, that's not difficult... .."

The head deacon looked up and down at the girl's outfit, which was quite different from usual, with a puzzled expression on her face.

A loose shirt with the sleeves rolled up and trousers. As expected, the loose cape was dragging on all the way to the toes. He was probably borrowing his father's clothes.

In addition, although it is well hidden by the cloak, the silhouette sticking out on one side is clearly the hilt and pommel of the sword.

'What on earth is happening... ..'

Although he filled out the proper application form with polite handwriting, it appears that he did not consider the possibility of rejection at all. If you don't give me permission for this, doesn't it seem like they'll run out without permission at any moment?

It felt very uncomfortable, but in the end, the head deacon had no choice but to nod.

"Okay, I've worked hard so far, so now it's time to take a break. Have a nice trip."

With that, Louise left the count's residence, leaving behind the somewhat shocked face of the butler.

As I was quickly walking along the shortcut to the back gate, I soon came across a familiar hunting dog kennel.

Kiing! Wow!

The dogs were so scared that they were stuck in the corner of the kennel. Some of them were defecating on the spot because they couldn't bear the fear that came with them.

Although it was pitiful, Louise was unable to properly control the vicious force rising up.

Max has escaped his control.

The prince of the Holy Empire was stranded in a snowy field.

It was the worst situation.

'The canyon is a very cold place... ... '

Aside from keeping his secret, he was worried about how long the prince could survive there once he was alone.

Even thinking about the first time I met him, wasn't he shivering from the cold because he couldn't warm his body with his Aura?

'This is all my fault!'

I was so embarrassed that I made a hasty judgment.

The opponent is the prince of the Holy Empire and the son of the Holy Emperor, who is called the representative of God. He won't be an opponent he can easily deal with.

Moreover, even though he was well aware of Max's fondness for the prince, he never expected the dog to react in such a way!

'I have to handle the situation as much as I can.'

So as not to cause further inconvenience to my parents, who are protecting the territory with all their might from demonic beasts.

Louise, who was moving at such a fast pace, eventually stopped moving when she reached the border of the territory and took off her shoes. I also take off the belt that was holding him tightly around his waist and stuff it into my back pack along with his shoes.

"Whoa... .."

After completing her preparations, the girl quietly closed her eyes, breathing in the cold morning air.

And he contemplates his inner self in a way that has never been done before, but is clearly still somewhere in his ancestors' memories.

Huh.

At that moment, the aurors that had been dormant for years began to be released at once. An ominous purple aura mixed with demonic energy flickers on the surface of his body with a distinct substance.

The slender body, which was not much different from that of girls of the same age, continues to expand outward. Crunchy, crunchy. His skeleton distorted and his body grew to the point where his father's large clothes were too tight.

Crrrrr.

As the exhaled breath sank low, the low frequencies of the beast began to mix in from time to time.

How much time has passed?

What finally appeared was a young Lycanslope wearing a large cape.

The only thing that made it possible to recognize that it was Louise was her pale flaxen hair, the same color as her hair, and deep-set black eyes.

Sniff.

Luise, who smelled the air out of habit, soon guessed the direction of the canyon and quickly started running.

Wooooooo-

At that time, a threatening cry was heard from afar, putting her on strong alert.

It was a signal that the Demon Lord's Lycan Slope Lord had sensed the birth of another Lycan Slope Lord.

215. Flower Garden (1)

At dawn, dawn comes.

The Marquis d'Arciano, who had been drinking alone all night, bared his teeth and smiled at the sight of an uninvited guest.

"Coincidence? "It seems like the number of people looking for this body has been increasing recently."

At those words, a person's shadow suddenly appears in the empty air. Someone is leaping through space from [the gap].

As far as the Marquis knew, there were only two people in Delcross who could freely perform this feat. And now one of them is tied by the [agreement].

"I see you often these days. "Guardian of Delcross."

As expected, the person who showed up was an old man he knew well.

The old man's wise face looked like that of a famous scholar, but the golden eyes that glowed beautifully in the darkness were by no means those of an ordinary human being.

In response to the greeting the Marquis gave, the old man frowned slightly and responded.

"Be stubborn in moderation. "Isn't there a separate guardian now?"

"Isn't he your temporary agent anyway? "I cannot dare to acknowledge such a half-hearted person as the guardian of this world."

"Your approval is not very important."

The old man coolly cut off the Marquis' words and spoke about his business in a slightly annoyed manner.

"I guess you don't know why I came here. "Stop what you're doing right now, Berseus."

"What did I do?"

"I have a guess as to who you were instigated. Are you crazy now? "How can you be so captivated by the words of such a person and disrupt the cause and effect of the world so much!"

Then the Marquis of Dashiano, Berseus, shed arsenic blood.

"If the problem is that cause and effect are in disarray, isn't there someone else who can control it before me? "That insolent brat just broke the [agreement] again."

"No, it didn't overflow this time."

"What? No way?"

"You seem to have forgotten, but the current guardian is a child who is better at coordinating cause and effect than anyone else in the world. And even if it were overflowing, it wouldn't justify what you're doing now, Berseus."

Then Berseus' eyes flashed grimly.

"Then tell that proud guardian directly! I want you to come here and stop me yourself! I will not convene a meeting or withdraw authority. "Why on earth are you so soft on him?"

Then the old man closed his mouth.

Just as Berseus was inducing Lycanslope, who had lost his mind, to violate the Emperor's agreement, the Emperor would also have hoped to create sufficient justification for him to go beyond the appropriate line and hunt.

So, instead of the energetic young people, an old man who just wants the world to be quiet has to step forward.

"Listen carefully, Berseus. If things continue like this, your species may be destroyed this time. "Aren't they the ones who barely saved us from [disaster]?"

The old man began to gently scold him, but the king of a race that was about to be destroyed picked his ears with a look on his face that said, "That's such a trivial thing to say."

"Honestly, what does it matter whether they perish or not? They have been reduced to animals anyway, and someday they will all disappear at the hands of humans. Don't you just need a true 'Border Guardian' to inherit the [Key] of the dimension? "That's me."

"you... .."

"I'm not going to make excuses now. Actually, I did some theater to inherit the [key] from 'Council of Six'. "I was sick to my stomach pretending to be for my fellow countrymen."

"... .."

Before the fall of Ionia, Berseus suffered all kinds of contempt and persecution from his pure-blooded compatriots.

It's not that I couldn't understand his feelings, but I expected that all his anger would have been resolved now that he was standing at the top of his people.

However, the hatred towards the mixed-race Lycanslope Lord's race was deeper-rooted than expected.

"Are you planning to take revenge again now? "What does that mean to you?"

The old man tried to persuade him with a perplexed face.

"You know very well, right? Those who had problems with you were swept away when the [Disaster] flooded. Most of those who survive now are innocent. And aren't they all already yours? The southern part of the Demon World is your territory. "It's all your kingdom!"

"exactly. He said that too. "Why don't I know something that anyone can see?"

After responding like that, Berseus instantly glared at the old man with sharp eyes.

"But what should we do with this? I found it and threw it away. "The descendants of that arrogant Nebraskan."

"... ..!"

"Don't say you didn't know. Guardian of Delcross. "Do you think I don't know that you 'council of six' want to replace the half-rod that has fallen off at any time?"

Percussion!

Berseus emptied his glass in one go, set the empty glass down roughly and growled at the old man.

"So, write it down clearly. I have no interest in the petty status of Lycanslope Lord, but I can't stand to see them being passed over to Nebraska's descendants and become his power! Even if I have to erase them all from this world, I will not just hand them over. Do you understand?"

* * *

"So, what on earth are they doing?"

Seongjin, who had been observing the Lycan Slopes for a while, muttered. He was unable to crane his neck and ended up with half of his body hanging over the edge of the cliff.

If I raised my aura to the maximum, I could clearly see the lycan slopes busily moving between the coniferous forest and the canyon. The problem is that no matter how much I look, I can't figure out what I want to do.

The things moving below were about a dozen Lycanslopes, including

Rod. But what this group of people did was truly bizarre.

Rod points somewhere in the ice canyon, and one of them climbs, digging his claws into the slippery cliffs. Then, when it reaches the limit, it slips or falls straight down.

As the height was higher, the person who fell was never okay. Then, they drag the dead or injured Lycanslope into the forest and disappear, then move to the next location and repeat the same thing.

Isn't this behavior too self-destructive to be seen as simply looking for something?

'I guess I need to get a little closer... ... '

I wanted to disguise myself as an Auror and go down, but in the current situation, that wasn't possible.

When he tried to climb down the cliff alone, Max whined sadly at Seongjin.

Even now, it's a dangerous distance, and if a dog howls, they'll get caught right away.

However, even if you try to go down carrying the dog, it is obvious that you will be discovered since Max cannot erase his presence.

"Max. After all, it would be unreasonable to ask for something like Auror concealment, right?"

When Max said that, he looked at Seongjin.

A face that seems to say, 'Why are you asking me that?'

'Is it because of my mood? Somehow, I feel like I know what Max wants to say better than before... ... '

Is this the effect of the thought circuit?

Then a sharp retort immediately came back to me in my head.

[Of course it's my mood, Seongjin Lee! The connection with that mongrel dog is not strong enough to convey thoughts properly!]

'Uh, okay.'

[Do you understand? The soul conversation we are having with something like that is on a completely different level!]

No, but why has this guy been so angry since a while ago?

'First, open your spiritual eyes. 'You might see something different.'

At Seongjin's request, the Demon King grumbles and opens his spiritual eyes. Soon the entire snowy field was dyed the familiar pink color.

Now Seongjin seemed to understand, to some extent, the rules of color that are translated into vision.

Cold objects such as snow appear pink, while campfires and warm food appear blue. However, seeing as the pink color became lighter on cold nights, it seemed to show a relative temperature difference rather than an absolute temperature.

On the other hand, the color of the energy or aura of a living thing varied depending on its nature and strength, not temperature.

[Color?]

When I asked the Demon King about this, he looked puzzled.

[well? Well, isn't it interesting? The spiritual eye is closer to simply showing the essence of things. Is that perceived as a color to you?]

Perhaps what Seongjin was seeing was not the sense of the spiritual eye itself, but something that happened during the process of converting the image crystal into visual information.

Anyway, Seongjin turned his attention to the Lycan Slopes, which were now glowing purple, and took a close look at what they were doing.

And soon I discovered something strange, different from what I could see with my own eyes.

An object emitting bright scarlet light from the hand of the Lycan Slope Lord.

'... 'What is that?'

It was an object small enough to be completely obscured by Rod's hand, and the intensity of the light was changing every moment as if it were pulsating.

And soon Seongjin was able to realize another fact.

The timing of the Lycan Slope Road pointing towards the canyon coincided with the time when the object was blinking at a very high speed.

Seongjin narrows his eyes and cranes his neck to look at the object more closely.

Growling.

Max suddenly put his ears back and exposed his teeth as he felt something.

At the same time, Seongjin also sensed it. From the rear, the vaguely familiar figure of someone was approaching them at high speed.

'This... ... !'

Seongjin, who guessed his identity, withdrew his spiritual eyes and quietly waited for him to approach.

just as expected.

Sniff. Soon, a familiar face rises up from the cliff and lands in front of Seongjin.

It was Louise.

"Luckily you are safe, sir! Are you okay? "Aren't you cold?"

She shouted urgently and approached Seongjin.

Seongjin, dumbfounded, stared at Louise for a moment. This was because the girl who asked that question was actually standing in the snow with her bare feet.

You look really cold right now, barefoot and wearing baggy pants that are rolled up so your ankles are exposed.

"Uh, I wasn't cold until now, but the moment I saw you, I got really cold. "What are you doing without shoes?"

"Am I not Lycanslope? "I don't get cold."

"Do you look like a human to me now?"

"Of course I detransformed before I got anywhere. "Because the location cannot be pinpointed by the Lycan Slope Lord."

It's still a calm voice.

at that time.

Crrrrr.

Max tilts his ears towards Louise and straightens his tail. Clearly wary of her.

Louise looked at Max with mixed eyes and then turned her head.

"It was your family. Is it okay to leave it like this?"

When Seongjin asked Max, who was very excited, as he comforted her, she took out her shoes from her backpack and sighed.

"yes. "It was going to happen one day."

"okay? "Seeing what you did earlier, I thought you were going to try to get your family back by all means."

"... At that time, I made a mistake. "I apologize, sir."

Max is said to be Louise's first and only descendant.

Originally, Louise had completely hidden her abilities as a lycanthrope, but faced with a puppy that had lost its mother and had no food or drink, there was no other way.

Moreover, it is said that Max refused to be touched by Louise, who was covered in the scent of his mother's blood.

Louise, who couldn't bear to see the dog biting her hand viciously whenever she touched it, became attached to Max and made him one of her servants.

And there was only one restriction she placed on Max.

-Never refuse food from your master when necessary.

Thanks to this, the puppy was able to gobble up the food that Louise gave him. In the end, her antipathy toward him was not resolved, and her hostility grew along with her own size.

Up until now, I had managed to keep a low profile, but as soon as I was completely freed from the clutches, the suppressed antipathy began to surface.

"okay? They somehow managed to keep him alive until now. "Max was ready to bite you whenever he got the chance."

That was a sincere question.

Even though it was a clumsy relationship and not a proper family member, Seongjin clearly sensed the deep hostility conveyed by Max.

The reason Max didn't attack Louise right away was because she was too strong for the wolf dog to handle. I'm sure Louise didn't know this.

"Max is a dog that has special meaning to me, sir."

A rare, sad feeling faintly appeared in Louise's eyes as she answered like that.

"Even though we knew that both sides would end up twisted in the end, we had no choice but to maintain our relationship like this."

"okay."

"But maybe it's time to sort things out."

And Louise bowed her head politely to Seongjin.

"From the moment he first saw you, Max decided to follow you.

"Once you make up your mind, you will never change your mind, so please take good care of Max in the future."

"Hmm, whatever."

Seongjin scratched his head. Actually, even if Louise said she would get it back, I was planning on taking it away.

Max's actual owner was technically the Margrave, but it wasn't hard to get it as a bonus.

This has been decided. I have to take Max to the imperial capital like this.

"By the way, this is the problem of Lycanslopes. Louise, do you know what they are after?"

In response to Seongjin's question, Louise looked down the cliff and narrowed her eyes.

"Of course, what they are ultimately targeting is the Sigismund territory. I don't know how you knew, but Lycanslope Road has been looking for me for some time now. "I can clearly see its cries filled with warnings and threats."

I heard that I've been hearing wolves howling a lot lately, so it seems like it all had a special meaning.

"But I just get the feeling that something is being planned. "To be honest, I don't really know what they're aiming for."

Then Seongjin tilted his head.

hmm. Isn't there a simple solution to that?

"Can't we just make one of them our servant?"

"yes?"

"I heard you got caught anyway? Then isn't it okay to move openly?"

"Let's just go catch one now!"

Even Louise, who had always maintained her composure, couldn't help but be greatly embarrassed by Seongjin's unexpected words.

"Now?"

"huh. Are you strong? Are you going to catch me and Rod while I'm at it? "That guy has something that bothers me."

"... yes?"

Louise couldn't believe her ears even after listening intently.

What is this person talking about?

216

216. Flower Garden (2)

"Are you serious, my lord?"

Seongjin tilted his head as he looked at Louise's confused face.

why? If you have the ability to take control of a group of people, isn't this the first thing you should think about?

If possible, make Rod a subordinate. I think this is the best way to find out what they're doing. It would be better if it could be prevented altogether.

"It doesn't seem to be such a simple matter."

Realizing that Seongjin was sincere, Louise looked down the cliff and made an embarrassed face.

"First of all, those Lycanslopes probably don't even know what they're doing. If you were in your right mind, you wouldn't fall off a cliff like that. Just from the feeling conveyed here, you can tell that they have almost no reason left. Even if I made him a subordinate, I doubt there would be anything he could find out. There... .."

And her eyes turn to Lycan Slope Road.

A ferocious lycanthrope that is much larger than other individuals, has red fur, and even wears a necklace.

"There's something about that 'road' that bothers me a little. On the surface, it seems like that entity is controlling all of Lycan Slope, but perhaps because of my mood, my senses feel like that is not the end."

"It's not the end?"

"yes. I can't feel any real sense from that entity either. This is such a strange thing. Even when he was looking for me and threatening my territory, I thought he definitely felt a strong will towards me. "Is that really the Lycan Slope Road?"

Ah, I think I can give you the answer.

I heard this or that from my father.

"It's probably because that 'lord' is also someone's servant. That one is probably the strongest of the pure-blooded Lycanslopes. And the real Lycan Slope Lord who has that bastard as his servant is none other than Berseus Dashiano, the master of the old spirit of Dashian."

Louise's eyes widened at those words.

He seemed perplexed as to how on earth Seongjin knew such a thing.

"Really. "I heard this from the most reliable source."

Seongjin confidently confirmed. These are the words of God's representative.

Louise, who had been carefully considering something, nodded.

"yes. The basis is not clear, but it sounds quite reasonable. Assuming that there is someone else controlling that rod, all the discomfort I felt makes sense. "This is the difference between when he directly controls it and when he only carries out orders."

Just like when she directly controlled Max.

"If so, that creates another problem, Sir. "We still don't really know the abilities of the Marquis d'Arciano."

Lycan Slope can distribute power to his subordinates according to his capabilities. Just as Max, a wolf dog who could not use aurors at all, expanded his body and used Schnee Shuhe freely.

In that case, it is unclear how strong the fake rod over there will become, contrary to what it appears to be.

Since they are already pure-blooded Lycanslopes, their physical conditions will be superior to Louise's.

"Furthermore, it is dangerous to try to make someone your subordinate directly. If you are already a member of someone else's family, there will be a mental struggle with me over control. The worst case scenario is that I could end up under his control."

hmm. The number of such cases was not taken into account.

Seongjin was lost in thought for a moment as he touched the handle of the nutcracker.

'But no matter how I look at it, I think the answer is to take away what that fake Lord is holding...'

I want to quickly catch that guy, finish him off, and go home.

The worries didn't last long.

"Louise, let me ask you two questions."

The prince's gray eyes looking down at the lycan slopes looked unusually serious, and Louise nodded without realizing it.

"Yes, please speak, sir."

"first. Can you point your sword at the lycanthropes?"

That's what it takes from the beginning.

From a human's perspective, they are just demonic beasts threatening the territory, but Louise is both a human and a lycanthrope. Wouldn't they feel that they are massacring their poor compatriots who are not in their right mind?

Then the girl smiled bitterly for a moment and then answered with a determined expression.

"It's not like we don't have any experience killing them. They are fully aware that there is no turning back and that I must live as a human from now on. Even if I don't feel like it, it won't be enough to hold me back when I need it."

"Okay, then the second question."

Seongjin looked back at Louise and slightly raised one corner of his mouth.

"Let's assume that the Marquis d'Aciano manipulates that fake Lord and exerts the utmost power he has. So do you think he can take on Vincent Sigismund?"

"... .."

Louise pursed her lips for a moment. Because it was difficult for him to answer that question right away.

If the Lycanslope Lord reaches his full potential, will he be able to surpass Old Man Vincent, the Dekaron Knight?

What does that mean, if it's not just Dekaron Knight, is it worth doing?

"I don't know much about the Marquis d'Arciano, but I am at least certain that he is not a Decaron Knight. So no matter how strong the moving body is... .."

"okay."

Seongjin nodded with a carefree expression.

Then it's okay.

Louise, who was looking at his face closely, sighed and took off the shoes she was wearing.

I wonder where that confidence came from, but when I look at the prince, I feel like it's not just empty words, so it's really strange.

"Why the shoes again?"

"You never know when you'll transform, right? "These are expensive new shoes that I bought a while ago."

"Oh, I see."

Seongjin, who answered calmly, picked up Max, who was whining next to him, and spoke.

"Then, shall we go down here first?"

* * *

Slurp.

The two came down the cliff easier than expected. In the meantime, it was thanks to Seongjin's Schunishuhe progressing further.

Although it was not easy to maintain balance as he was holding a large dog in his arms, Seongjin imitated Louise and slid down the cliff without much difficulty.

"A person who uses Aurors so skillfully, why was he shivering from the cold back then?"

Hearing Louise's voice mutter in confusion, Seongjin just shrugged his shoulders.

What should I do about something boring and annoying?

And the two hid Max and his luggage under a large rock.

Whine!

Seongjin wrapped a rope around the dog's neck while comforting Max, who was desperately trying to catch up. It was found in Louise's backpack.

"I'll come pick you up right away, so just stay here for a moment. huh?"

They were steadily reducing their numbers by falling off cliffs themselves, but there were still quite a few lycan slopes left. If you don't attack with Auror concealment and reduce the number of people as much as possible, you will have a hard time.

"You must never cry or anything. I'm getting scolded. got it?"

Seongjin gave a stern warning.

Then Max looked at Seongjin with a resentful expression, stopped whining, and started biting the leash with his teeth.

"let's go."

Convinced that Max understood what he said, Seongjin winked at Louise and cast Auror Concealment.

Louise, who was looking at them curiously, also followed closely behind him, completely hiding her presence.

"I don't know how you are able to communicate with Max even though you are not of the same race. It's amazing that the engraving was done properly in the first place. "I thought I could sense a familiar presence from you somewhere."

Come to think of it, from the first time she saw Seongjin, she asked him if he was one of her compatriots.

"But will you be okay? "If it's a rope like that, Max will break it in no time."

"Yes, of course."

If it doesn't break, you're in trouble.

You just need to be able to hold off until the first few surprise attacks are successful. What if another demon we haven't found attacks Max in the meantime?

Luise's face fell as she heard Seongjin's answer. Even though he seems to have a simple way of thinking, he actually has a lot of thoughts about various things.

Meanwhile, Seongjin astutely examined the surrounding terrain and the distribution of lycan slopes. At dawn, the number of demonic beasts that numbered in the dozens fell from the cliff one by one, and before we knew it, the number had decreased to around ten.

After quickly calculating, Seongjin gave simple instructions.

"Let's start from the edges. "I go from the right, Louise, you go from the left."

And before Louise even nodded.

Hwiiing.

With the wind blowing from somewhere around his body, Seongjin jumped into the back of a lycanthrope that was looking up at the cliff.

Phew.

The nutcracker pierced his left side, avoiding his ribs and digging deep into his chest in a diagonal direction. According to the calculations, this is probably where the guy's heart is located.

This was because the height of the smallest Lycan Slope was basically over 2.5 meters, and it was judged that it would not be easy to cut the thick muscles of the body to the heart by cutting honestly from behind.

Fortunately, the blade loaded with aura easily cut through the beast's tough muscles like tofu.

Hehe!

Sensing the beast's flinching reaction, Seongjin turned his body half a turn while fixing his hilt, and slashed the nutcracker diagonally downwards.

Crackling.

The sword that cut deep into the chest pain was pulled out, scraping the spine. Lycan Slope, whose spine and part of his spinal cord were cut off in the process, eventually fell to the ground helplessly, spewing out blood.

Wow!

Crrr!

Only then did the Lycan Slopes, who felt something strange, look back at Seongjin.

Meanwhile, Luise, who had rushed to the left of the guys, went straight into the heart of one of the magic beasts that was turning.

Boom! Wow!

The heavy bastard sword, wrapped in a dark purple aura, sliced through the beast's ribs and ripped out its heart in one go.

It was an incredibly exciting move that was hard to believe since he had never swung a sword properly until now, hiding his skills.

Choi ah!

Fountains of hot blood splatter on the cold, icy floor.

'haha!'

Seongjin, reassured by the movement without any hesitation, immediately headed towards the next target.

Paang!

He jumped up with Aura wrapped around his legs, and powerfully stabbed the lycanthrope, which was still unable to understand the situation, from the bottom up.

Phew!

Whoops!

Seongjin, who stumbled and stepped on the body of the creature that was slowly falling backwards, was able to hold on to the nutcracker that was deeply dug in, so he was able to face the creature's face directly.

That fleeting moment. Shock and doubt flashed through the beast's eyes, which were blurred and bloodshot.

Stumbling.

When the guy belatedly swung his arm helplessly towards the intruder on his chest, Seongjin was already pulling out a nutcracker and kicking the guy's body.

Gurgling.

Instead of crying, the guy fell down spewing out bright red phlegm.

Paang!

Seongjin turned around as he stepped on the cliff and quickly ran towards the next guy who started barking and baring his fangs.

Kaang!

Sharp nails block Seongjin's sword. Next, a fist was quickly swung at his head, but Seongjin, who slipped away, deflected the sword and slashed the man's abdomen.

Cough!

The thing stumbles with a scream. But unfortunately, this time it was not fatal.

Clumping.

As if it were a separate, living creature, its muscles quickly contracted and began to stop the bleeding on their own. They were a race whose regenerative power was unrivaled.

'If things continue like this, you'll get better soon, right?'

I was about to swing my sword without missing the hesitating guy, but other Lycan Slopes rushed towards Seongjin at the same time.

Wooooooo-

Crrr! Kkkkkkkk!

'this!'

I gave up on finishing it and dodged the fiercely swinging claws and punches here and there, and then directly struck the threatening claws coming from the front with my sword.

visor! Quad deuk!

With a growl and a growl in his throat, Lycanslope grabbed the nutcracker with his other hand.

He was cut by a blade carrying an Aura and was bleeding, but looking at him fiercely with red, bloodshot eyes, he seemed to be very poisoned.

Although his reason was blurred, the basic concept of joint attack remained, and while he was arguing with the guy, other Lycan Slopes rushed towards Seongjin.

However, Seongjin is not the kind of person who will give such a chance.

Ugh.

By focusing all of my body's aura on the nutcracker, I was able to forcefully wrench the sword from the ignorant man's grasp.

Seongjin pulled out his sword and urgently lowered his posture to avoid the incoming punch.

Hehehe!

The guy with both hands completely tangled up makes a pitiful cry and retreats. Seongjin quickly pulled her body out of the gap and looked at the surrounding situation for a moment.

Perhaps it was because they went on a rampage first, but most of the Lycan Slopes seemed to rush towards Seongjin. Thanks to this, Louise was able to maintain a relatively leisurely attack and defense against the remaining demon beasts.

In the meantime, the fake Lord just stands there blankly, as if he still hasn't figured out the situation.

'... ... ?'

I felt a strange sense of discomfort for a moment, but I didn't have time to observe it properly. This is because other lycan slopes rushed in fiercely.

A fierce battle continued for a while.

However, since each individual's combat power was limited, it was probably a matter of time in the end. Unable to withstand the hit-and-run attack that cleverly used the terrain of the canyon, the Lycan Slopes fell to the ground one by one, spattering blood.

That was when Seongjin left the last two Lycan Slopes.

"Lowering!"

Suddenly, Louise's voice was heard calling him urgently from behind.

"... ... ?"

When I turned my head, I saw Louise with wide eyes, looking up at something and breathing heavily.

Seongjin, who had been following her gaze without thinking, was momentarily taken aback.

"... ... !"

The red Lycan Slope Road where I was just standing there dumbly.

For some reason, that guy was frozen in place, looking down at Seongjin and Louise, tears like chicken droppings.

217. Flower Garden (3)

Before starting the battle, Seongjin expected a considerable melee.

This was an idea that took into account the Lycan Slope Lord that was fought in the labyrinth boss room before. At that time, Orden and I had a hard time against him.

The fake Lord in front of me right now was not as good as him, but he had a much stronger body and aura.

Even though my reason was clouded, I wouldn't have been able to resolve the situation so quickly if I had just rushed in with the other guys.

But now, the leader of those demonic beasts is staring at them and shedding tears.

It was a sight that neither Seongjin nor Louise could have imagined.

"The reason that guy has been standing there so stupidly... ..!"

The red, bloodshot eyes and blurred focus did not belong to someone who had properly regained their senses.

However, the expression on his hazy face, as if he were daydreaming, was a mixture of oppressed and twisted remorse and sorrow, and seemed to be full of joy.

This is clearly the appearance of an intelligent life form.

Seongjin flinched for a moment, but held the nutcracker and adjusted his posture. This is because the two Lycanslopes that were still remaining rushed towards him at the same time.

Grrrr!

Kkkkkkkkkk!

Taaat. Instead of swinging the nutcracker, Seongjin quickly stepped back and took a defensive stance. If we want to find out more about why he does what he does, we have to first clear up the situation completely.

'You can catch two quickly, but... .. '

However, after learning about another possibility about these demonic beasts. Naturally, we have no choice but to be cautious in future attacks.

Unlike before, taking a little more time, Seongjin organized the remaining two lycan slopes step by step.

"Lowering... .. "

Meanwhile, Louise was standing there as if nailed, staring blankly up at the fake Lord.

The two hands holding the bastard sword are already hanging down listlessly. The will to fight was completely lost.

"Louise."

As Seongjin approaches and calls out, black eyes filled with complex emotions look back at him.

Shock, hope, guilt, pity.

It is a whirlpool of raw emotions rarely seen in a girl who maintained a calmness unbecoming of her age.

"Lowering. I like these... .. "

He swung his sword, telling himself over and over again that they were no longer his kin, that they were just magic beasts without reason.

Perhaps he was so blinded by his own safety that he gave up on finding a way for his fellow countrymen from the beginning.

Could it be that he has already made a mistake that can never be undone?

"I think maybe my compatriots... .."

A thinly trembling voice trails off at the end of the sentence.

At that time, the fake Lord must have heard Louise's voice and trembled.

"... cognation."

Crrrrr.

The sharp muzzle of the demon beast let out a syllable with a clear meaning along with a low-frequency growl.

Amazingly, it was the language of the empire!

"... "My people."

At the same time, the status of the fake lord also changed. Even though I was staring at Seongjin and Louise, for the first time, a clear sign of recognition towards them appeared in my eyes that had been somewhat blurry.

"... Lycan Slope, the official language of the empire?"

Louise, shocked, opens her eyes and mutters...

Sigh.

The fake Lord, who sniffed loudly and sucked in tears, spoke in a clearer voice.

"okay. They are of the same race. This nostalgic feeling is definitely Nebraska's... .."

And the fake Lord looked at the two people in turn and asked a question.

With a voice full of remorse and with an infinitely deeper resonance.

"Are you trying to destroy that devil's [flower garden]! Are you willing to become the last hope of your poor, deluded compatriots?"

* * *

Lycan Slope, Vajra.

He was, by far, the legendary Lycan Slope Lord, the last pure-blooded Lycan Slope with Nebraska blood.

The day when [disaster] flooded and covered everything in Ionia.

Lycanslope Lord Murat, who had evacuated his clan to a temporary shelter, ordered him to do so.

-Protect the remaining compatriots with all your might, Vajra. If something happens to me, don't be fooled by the empty words of the 'Council of Six' and lead them with your own judgment. Now the only one I can trust is you.

Lord Murat solemnly left, saying so, never to return.

And soon after, the representative of the '6-person council' came to them and forced them to make a cruel choice in a cold voice.

-Are you going to commit suicide yourself? Or will you die by my hands like this?

As if saying that he would annihilate everyone was not just empty words, he was already holding a gray sword in one hand and staring at Vajra. He had sinister-shining silver eyes that did not show the slightest emotion.

At that time, Berseus, the demon guard who was next to him, made an urgent suggestion.

-How about this? Let's take refuge in Delcross instead. It may be impossible to save everyone, but at least some of our people will be able to survive. I will keep the path to the Demonic Sutra as open as possible.

Vajra hesitated. The [Demon Realm] managed by Berseus was not a good land for pure-blooded lycan slopes to set foot on.

It was a miserable prison where people of the same race who had lost their connection to the [Essence] and had completely lost their senses had to wander around until they died as ugly beasts.

However, Berseus drove a wedge into him once more as he suffered.

-If this continues, all of my fellow countrymen will not escape death at the hands of the author. What are you hesitating about? Has not Lord Murat entrusted the future of your people to you?

The decision was quick and there were no major interruptions.

The representative of the 'Council of Six', who was quietly watching what they were doing, raised his sword and declared in a calm voice.

-This is also your choice, it is not a cause and effect permitted to me. However, you will forever regret not taking the lives of your compatriots now.

A faint feeling of compassion passing through his eyes.

Suddenly, an ominous premonition came over Vajra's head, but the door to the Demon Lord had already opened and his compatriots were desperately rushing towards the Demon Lord.

As a result, the number of people who survived was less than half of those who were in temporary refuge.

The red [disaster] that rushed in without waiting for them mercilessly wiped out the rear of the compatriots and immediately poured down in front of their noses.

-Close the magic mirror! Berseus!

I had no choice but to mercilessly close the dimension door in front of my compatriots who were crying out in fear and despair.

-iced coffee!

Deeply frustrated, Vajra stood in front of the closed door and mourned for a moment for his lost compatriots.

It was right then.

-Puhahahahaha!

An unstoppable roar came from next to him.

Vajra raised his head in puzzlement and came face to face with a demonic prison guard who couldn't hide his happy expression while baring his fangs.

-Beerseus?

-Ha ha ha ha ha! You stupid beasts! They pretend to be proud, proud, and noble, but when they become desperate, they jump in to become prisoners!

-... What?

He was dumbfounded, unable to grasp the situation, but Berseus' eyes widened as he looked at him.

-You still don't understand? Now you are all my prisoners!

At the same time, the sweet scent of flowers rushes to the tip of your nose.

That was the last memory that Vajra clearly recognized.

* * *

"I was aware of the fact that the moment we reached the demonic state, the minds of our compatriots would definitely become clouded. Still, I thought there would be some time to reorganize the compatriots... .."

"... "What was that flower scent?"

Louise asked with a serious expression. It seemed like there was something going on.

"It is a blue flower that emits a scent that paralyzes reason. It has been growing wild in the depths of the Demon World for a long time. That is why this place has been used as a prison for the compatriots since ancient times. "So that those who have lost their senses do not commit unnecessary acts or suffer for no reason."

"prison... .."

"But somehow, when we arrived, those blue flowers were in full bloom all over the forest. "The entire center of Demon World has become a [flower garden] full of drugs!"

After saying that, Vajra looked at Seongjin and Louise and shed tears again.

"His warning was correct. "I cannot regret the decision I made that day any more deeply."

The Lycan Slopes wandered around the demon world for years, losing their reason.

Sometimes, I follow the instructions that come to my head without any meaning or purpose.

Go down south.

Attack the humans.

Go back to the deep demonic sutra.

The Lycan Slopes, not knowing that they were dying, fought for power with the demonic beasts as instructed, and when they became hungry, they preyed on their own kind.

It was truly the life of a complete, cruel animal.

How many years have you been wandering around like that? Vajra, who occasionally came to his senses, gradually stopped thinking.

Well, well, well, well.

The glorious goldwork that once proved Nebraska blood was now nothing more than a clutter that made an annoying noise.

"And a new order has recently been issued."

The instructions were simple.

Gather your compatriots in a snowy field with a view of the ice wall.

And find something in the canyon.

"Looking for something? what is that?"

In response to Seongjin's question, Bajra shook his head.

"I don't know the details either. "I was just told to use it."

In his outstretched palm, he held a small piece of ice that gave off a faint light as if it were pulsating. It was a strange ice that did not melt at all even if he held it in his hand for several days.

[Gasp, Seongjin Lee!]

At that moment, the demon king took a deep breath and shouted.

[That's an item from the normal world!]

Well, I thought so.

Isn't ice that doesn't melt something that completely defies the natural laws of this world?

'We've only seen things from the normal world once or twice, so why are you making such a fuss?'

The Demon King stamped his feet as if he was worn out by Seongjin's scolding.

[The rules that govern that thing are so strong! You may not know this, but even things in the normal world have grades! And that's definitely an incredibly high-class item that's hard to see again!]

'okay?'

[huh! I want to take a closer look at that! Can't we ask for that?]

Is it all that difficult?

Even while Seongjin was talking to the demon lord, Vajra's explanation continued. It is said that he received the following instructions along with this piece of ice.

-Find a place in the canyon where the ice pulse becomes stronger.
And check out the vibrations felt in the glacier.

Naturally, one thought came to the minds of Seongjin and his group.

'... 'Is there something in the glacier in the canyon?'

Anyway, from then on, the several-day canyon exploration began.

It was an ignorant expedition without a map or turntable, but Bajra didn't care. The canyon they had already explored was soaked with the blood shed by the Lycan Slopes.

And the cruel exploration ended when there were only a few lycan slopes left to climb up the ice wall. This is because small humans armed with swords suddenly appeared before my eyes.

But why?

Even though they were brutally slaughtering their own people, the moment he saw them, Vajra's heart began to beat violently.

'... They are of the same race!'

okay. This is clearly the energy of the same people.

It was buried beyond his consciousness and he couldn't even remember it anymore, but it was a nostalgic and powerful energy that stimulated his instincts.

In this way, he was lifted from the hell-like world of illusions to reality.

"Please help! "Those who inherited the legacy of Nebraska."

Hot tears flowed from Vajra's eyes as she said that.

There was no time anymore.

Before my mind becomes covered with hazy fog again. Before the ruthless [Lord], who holds a grudge against his own people, notices the incident.

"Please destroy the [flower garden] of those flowers deep in the demonic realm. Otherwise, the future of our people... .."

Seongjin and Louise, who had just been ruthlessly slaughtering Vajra's compatriots.

Nevertheless, just because the two bear a faint trace of their old blood relatives, Vajra has no choice but to rely completely on them.

The heat generated by that desperate feeling was conveyed to the two even in the cold air of the canyon.

"Please tell me the location of that [flower garden]."

Louise opened her mouth in a stern voice.

"... Are you helping us?"

"I don't know whether it will help you in the end or not. Anyway, as long as you invade Sigismund Territory like this, the ending you will face is predetermined. but... .."

As she said that, her eyes were strangely dark and sunken.

"At the very least, I want to prevent you from making the worst choice because you are possessed by Demon Lord's [Flower Scent]. At least this is my truth."

"iced coffee! Thank you! Thank you so much!"

hmm.

Seongjin tilted his head at Louise's words.

okay. It would be natural to want to help our fellow countrymen who are weak in spirit and body.

'But why?'

I don't feel like leaving things like this.

After thinking deeply for a moment, Seongjin looked up at Vajra and asked.

"hey. "If you don't know what it's for anyway, how about handing it over to me?"

Bajra, who made eye contact with Seongjin after hearing those words, suddenly felt a strange sense of déjà vu.

Strange eyes that sometimes appear silver-grey under the morning sunlight. Hadn't he once seen those eyes forcing him to make a choice?

As if possessed by something, Bajra held out a piece of ice towards Seongjin. Somehow, this time she felt like she wanted to hear those words.

It was right then.

[Hoo.]

A soft, eerie sound of laughter came from Vajra's head.

[...] I finally found it!]

218. Flower Garden (4)

For a moment, a chill ran down my spine.

Seongjin reflexively pulled back and tugged on Louise's long cloak next to him.

Thanks to this, she almost fell head first, but she corrected her posture by touching the floor and asked with a puzzled look on her face.

"Lowering? Why all of a sudden... .."

At the same time.

Kuwaan!

A huge crater formed on the ice where Louise was standing. It was the result of Vajra's ignorant fist that hit the mark.

The shock wave was so large that some of the snow accumulated at the top of the canyon fell to the bottom.

"Why suddenly?"

Louise was greatly taken aback by Vajra's sudden change in attitude. Isn't he the one who just now was complaining about his detailed story and pretending to be all kinds of sad?

"That's not Vajra."

Seongjin responded, pulling out a nutcracker and aiming it straight ahead.

Louise was also startled and raised her sword. In an instant, he noticed the presence of a person who had suddenly changed.

[...] I finally found it!]

In the minds of these two people, a loud voice with a ferocious resonance was heard.

[It's crawling on its own feet! It must have been quite troublesome to hunt down all the Sigismund spirits!]

A method of communication that involves sending thoughts through relatives. There was no way Louise, who had treated Max like a subordinate until recently, would not have known that method.

"... Lycan Slope Road!"

As the saying goes.

The ice fog that had been floating like smoke cleared, revealing Vajra, who was clearly different from before.

The massively bulging muscles and bristling red fur made the creature's body appear even more gigantic.

Is that all? Before she knew it, she had lost her wits and her blurred eyes were shining eerily as she glared at Seongjin and Louise.

It was a clearly hostile attitude.

[Humans. Which of you are you?]

The Lycan Slope Lord who rules Vajra, probably Berseus, growled and asked the two people.

Between the sharp, long fangs that were fully exposed, a strong puff of breath spread white in the cold air.

[Which of you is a hybrid with Nebraska blood?]

Same with Vajra.

The Lycan Slope Lord Berseus, who controlled him as a member of his family, also felt the energy of Nebraska in both of them, albeit slightly.

But he already knows there is only one Nebraska bloodline. In that case, wouldn't one of the two be a member of a mixed breed that wouldn't mind being beaten to death?

[Answer quickly!]

But the moment he heard that question, a strange premonition flashed through Seongjin's mind.

And before he could clearly recognize it, Seongjin had already opened his mouth and started talking nonsense to the Lycan Slope Lord.

"okay. Why are you looking for me? "You worthless mongrel."

"... ... !"

[...] ... !]

Louise and Rod's eyes widen at the same time as they look at Seongjin.

"... Lowering?"

[What? How dare someone call you a hybrid now... ... !]

The demon lord was also scared.

[Hey, Seongjin Lee? Are you crazy?]

hmm. I know. I feel like I've done something big.

But regardless of that perception, Seongjin's mouth was steadily provoking the guy.

"What's wrong with someone who knows? The world knows that neither you nor I are pure-blooded lycanthropes. Then you shouldn't have brought up the mongrel thing in the first place. "Can't you even do simple calculations like that, you poor mudblood?"

Then Rod's face became grim.

[You... What are you doing... .. !]

"Then why did you do that? I was just trying to stay quiet, but some damned mongrel was making noise and squealing throughout the territory, thinking he was looking for me. It's annoying. "Still, can a sweet sound come out of my mouth right now?"

Of course, everyone heard this from Louise.

That alone seemed to convince him completely that Seongjin was his target.

[Kuhuhuhhh!]

The guy who let out a roar that made the entire canyon roar is glaring at Seongjin. Now the guy's eyes were burning with anger, so much so that sparks flew out.

Slowly, the dark purple aura spreading from his entire body began to gradually become stronger, as if reflecting the level of his anger.

[...] I'll kill you!]

I'm afraid those words will end.

Coo!

With a heavy impact sound, the jumping rod rushes toward Seongjin and Louise. As if they had made an appointment, the two split to two sides and avoided the guy's attack.

Meanwhile, Louise, who received Seongjin's glance, kept her mouth shut, but the question in her eyes was clear.

'why?'

Well, it's hard to explain now, but somehow I felt like it had to be that way.

Anyway, it doesn't change that it's just the two of us dealing with him. If so, then this misunderstanding may act as a big variable in the future movement of the thing with a separate body, right?

[Is there any chance that you will end up at the hands of your father if you get seriously injured here?]

The Demon King sighed and muttered, but Seongjin remained calm.

It's okay, it's okay.

I said I caught the Lycan Slope boss once.

Quang! bang! Rumble!

The narrow canyon shakes with great impact, and the snow and mountain glaciers piled up on the summit collapse with a thunderous sound.

The physical abilities of pure-blooded Lycanslopes are so ignorant that there is no way for a bulldozer to rush forward with Aura wrapped around its entire body.

And after dealing with the guy for a while, Seongjin came to the conclusion:

'... The movements are so unfamiliar! 'Is this completely different from Blata Mentis?'

[Then are the insect-type monsters and the lycan slope the same?]

The demon king, who was inferior, scolded Seongjin in an angry voice.

'But the one I caught in the labyrinth didn't move like this!'

In fact, the boss mob that Seongjin caught with Orden was a guy with the data of Blata Mantis overlaid on the appearance of Lycan Slope. Of course, there was no way Seongjin knew that fact.

Kuang!

The ice in the canyon shatters sharply and bounces in all directions due to the guy's random punch.

Fit fit.

Some of them grazed Seongjin's cheeks and drew several red lines.

Even though he kept a sufficient distance and was dealing with him moderately, it persistently chased after Seongjin, emitting its aura to its maximum potential.

Even Seongjin couldn't help but suffer minor scratches against a guy like that.

[Then what on earth are you doing! Why are you telling such a lie to get that guy's attention!]

'no. Somehow, I felt like I had to do that.'

If you think about it with common sense, it's true. The Marquis of D'Aciano is not just a lord of the Lycanslopes, but a nobleman with great power among humans.

Even if it's not today, you can target Louise, a commoner, whenever you get the chance.

[So you're saying you're okay?]

That's right, I'm the prince of the Holy Empire.

Is it okay if the last one is a marquis? Do you think you dare touch me?

[...] I'm amazed!]

The Demon King clicked his tongue.

"Lowering!"

At that time, Louise shouted from behind him and swung her bastard sword.

Boom.

The heavy sword was swung wide and struck towards the guy's thigh.

An attack that only considers the amount of impact. Since the target is so large, it is believed that there will be no chance of a miss.

but-

Kwasik!

Her fingernails covered in purple aura easily blocked her sword. Then, as she swung her arm as if to shake off her sword, Louise's light body, which was touching her sword, was easily thrown away and flew away.

"Tsk!"

Louise flew almost to the other side of the cliff, spun around and stepped on the ice with her bare feet. Even though there was no significant difference in Auror operation, their physical conditions were very different in the first place.

"... ..!"

She looked at Seongjin with an urgent face, as if asking for permission. It looks like he wants to transform into a lycan slope right now.

However, Seongjin has already heavily drugged the guy, so he can't reveal his identity on his own now. That's a good decision.

Seongjin shook his head slightly towards Louise.

'Let's just go.'

The odds of winning were good.

First of all, it was difficult to see him using the body of a pure-blooded Lycanslope properly.

'The Marquis d'Aciano is not a man who uses his fists properly!'

I am used to using both hands. The two hands that mercilessly smash into the canyon are being swung with similar strength and evenly.

However, Seongjin, who had lived his entire life swinging his fists, could tell that those were not the movements of a guy who had learned to punch properly.

[What a rat!]

Rod was furious.

This is because Seongjin not only pulled out like a loach every time, but also made huge wounds without missing the opportunity.

The wound quickly improved thanks to the regenerative power of Lycan Slope, but even so, he couldn't help but feel angry.

[Kwaang!]

The cliff shatters again with a nervous cry.

Seongjin kicked his feet and flew to the other side, narrowing his eyes and watching the guy's movements.

'Plus, that damn gap... ... '

The spacing of a one-handed weapon that can be wielded lightly, a little further than a fist.

But it's the same as punching. Judging from his arm movements, it is a weapon that does not require delicate angle adjustment.

'Is he actually a guy who uses blunt weapons? ... '

It was time to think like that.

What Seongjin discovered in the guy who gritted his teeth and turned towards Seongjin was-

"Uh, that... ... "

Seongjin opens his eyes wide and looks at it intently.

The rod struck the ground like lightning and rushed right in front of his nose.

'... Oops!'

Although my body reacted late, the result of that momentary hesitation was painful.

Rod quickly caught up with Seongjin and succeeded in grabbing him and slamming him to the floor.

[Lee Seong-jin!]

Quang!

"... "Wow!"

With an impact as if I was colliding with heavy equipment, my breathing stopped for an instant.

"Lowering!"

Louise's scream-like cries were heard from afar. In an instant, my vision turns white and then returns.

Cough!

Field coughed, and Seongjin struggled to understand the situation with his unresponsive head.

Although it quickly surrounded the Auror, the impact of the pureblood Lycan Slope's impact with all its might was significant.

'My spine seems fine. Maybe a couple of ribs came out...'

Clumping.

The guy poured out his aura and pushed Seongjin hard onto the ice floor. It seemed like they wanted to crush him like this, but Seongjin's auras that resisted were also formidable.

but.

[Finally caught it!]

Now a moving target.

Rod let out a laugh and raised his remaining arm. He wanted to crush Seongjin's head in one fell swoop.

Gritting his teeth, Seongjin focused all his attention and measured the timing. He does not take his eyes off the bastard's fist, tightly gripping the handle of the nutcracker.

Right then.

Ta-ta-ta-tat!

With the sound of lightly running in the snow.

Wow!

Suddenly, a dog lunged from behind and bit Rod's forearm, which was raised upward.

It was Max.

"... ..!"

[What is this again!]

Rod suddenly appeared and looked in bewilderment at the dog hanging on his arm.

Compared to ordinary dogs, Max was a much larger wolf dog, but since he was hanging on a lycan slope well over 3 meters high, there were no cicadas in the old tree.

But even so, the burning eyes of the wolf dog were nothing short of brave.

I am strong! I am huge!

Seongjin clicked his tongue inwardly, feeling like he was hearing that kind of voice from Max.

Is this guy mistakenly thinking that he has transformed?

"Max!"

Louise rushed over and swung her sword.

However, Rod lightly swung the arm on which the dog was hanging and once again shooed her away.

Despite such a large series of movements, Max, who was hanging with his teeth buried in his forearm, did not move.

[...] What is this?]

Rod stared at Max with a dumbfounded expression. Then, for a moment, his eyes narrowed slightly.

[okay. Was it the blood of the Ionian wolf? Although it is a clumsy hybrid, it is probably a bloodline rarely seen in this dimension.]

Slurp.

With the wolf-dog hanging, it raises its arm straight toward its muzzle. Looking at the sharp fangs sticking out, it looks like it is about to bite the wolfdog at any moment.

[Well, it might be useful if you make it a servant.]

It was right then.

Suddenly!

With an eerie cracking sound.

Oh my gosh!

Suddenly, a strong fountain of blood surges into the air, blocking his vision. At the same time, one arm suddenly becomes empty.

Rod looks at his severed forearm in disbelief.

Hwiiing.

Seongjin, holding the wind-wreathed nutcracker, staggered to his feet.

"... Do not be ridiculous!"

From the face drenched in the blood of Lycan Slope, all that was visible was pale silver-gray eyes that glowed fiercely.

The moment he met those cold gazes, Berseus felt his heart sink.

[...] Have I seen you somewhere?]

Is it because of Nebraska blood? Why does that person feel so familiar?

Crrrrr-

Facing Rod, who was reflexively showing his teeth and being wary, Seongjin also raised the corners of his mouth and fiercely showed his teeth.

"Max is mine. "You 'mongrel' bastard!"

Let's see, let's see, how dare this now?

219

219. Flower Garden (5)

The fact that he succeeded in capturing Seongjin means that he, on the other hand, will no longer move. The same thing was true that they were fixed targets for each other.

In that case, all you have to do is focus the aura on your entire body and cut it off.

"This is what happens because I stare at my dog for no reason!"

Seongjin snorted inwardly at Rod, who was staring at his bleeding wrist in bewilderment.

I wanted to laugh out loud, but it wasn't possible because I felt a stabbing pain every time I took a breath. It really looks like a few ribs came out.

Seongjin aimed the nutcracker at the creature and carefully traced its ribcage with his left hand. This is to place an aura in detail on the area suspected of having a fracture so as not to interfere with subsequent movements.

Then he shouted the dog's name with strong intention.

"Max!"

Then, the wolf-dog, who completely understands Seongjin's intention, lets go of Rod's forearm and jumps to the floor.

[...] ... !]

Then, he quickly bit down on Rod's hand that had fallen on the ice and widened the distance!

This was a measure to prevent Lycan Slope, which has excellent regeneration, from being restored.

[Kuh?]

Rod, who missed the opportunity to retrieve his hand even though he opened his eyes, made a dumb sound.

No matter how fast the lycan slope recovers, it is nearly impossible to completely regenerate a hand from nothing.

The guy looked frustrated and moved his body hesitantly to follow the dog. But Louise was not one to miss that momentary gap.

Phew!

A bastard sword heavily laden with purple aura pierces the man's shoulder and protrudes above his collarbone. A large amount of blood surged once again.

[Ugh?]

Beerseus, who was embarrassed, grabbed the blade with his free hand to stop the blade from digging in further. At the same time, his mind began to spin in confusion.

'I was wondering why I didn't transform even when I was cornered, but it turns out I didn't have to!'

The skills of the people I thought were easy are stronger than you think.

The boy, who thought his quick movements were annoying, instantly blew off his hand with the cutting power that allowed him to skip several levels of his Aura.

Also, the girl who wielded an unreasonably heavy sword adapted quickly as the battle continued and was using her Auror stably.

[this... The power of Nebraska's blood... ... !]

That boy even takes the Ionian wolf as his servant and manipulates it at will!

[If the transformation is done properly, there is no way to know where the weight of the scale will tilt.]

Rod, who had already firmly believed that Seongjin was a descendant of Lycanslope, was seized with a sense of crisis that he might have to make an ugly escape from those brats.

Deep inside, I want to beat them both to death, even if it means burning their bodies. However, we could not lose Vajra, who controlled all of the Lycan Slopes here.

[Crumbling!]

Gritting his teeth, Berseus strengthened his hand holding the sword and tried to slowly push the blade away.

Quad deuk.

However, Luise, who pushed the blade with all her weight, was also no easy task.

"Hmph!"

It may not have been visible to Rod, who was looking back, but Louise was already almost on the verge of transformation. Sharp fangs are sticking out from his mouth, and his fingernails are also growing sharply.

Perhaps, if Seongjin hadn't woken up in time, he would have transformed into a lycanthrope and fought the guy.

"Whoa... .."

After gathering himself, Seongjin held the nutcracker upright and scoffed.

"I felt sorry for the person being manipulated, so I tried to avoid causing physical harm as much as possible... .."

The argument is that until now, things were in their own hands.

A thoroughly down-to-earth attitude. The enraged Lord's veins bulged in his eyes.

[...] Don't be funny!]

Unlike the outside of the body, which can be defended with auras, the internal organs are extremely vulnerable.

The slightest movement was enough to tear his back and shoulders, but to Rod, who was already suffering, such injuries were nothing.

Crrrrr-

To prevent the sword that pierced his body from heading towards his heart, he held the tip of the sword in place with his hand and began to force himself to stand up. Then, with a clang, Louise's sword touched his collarbone, making a harsh sound of scraping the bone.

Hilarious.

Eventually, Louise's sword, which was holding on, begins to be pulled out little by little.

"If things continue like this, I might really end up killing Vajra."

Seongjin, who was quietly watching the scene, opened his mouth.

Although he said these words while glaring at the Lycan Slope Road, his actual target was a different listener.

-If you continue like this, you might end up hurting the only member of your compatriot with whom you can communicate. Is that okay?

Then Louise, who understood Seongjin's intention, gritted her teeth and shouted.

"... It doesn't matter! As long as he is strongly bound to the family, he can never escape from the load. Rather, it would be for his benefit to let him go in peace!"

"okay."

Seongjin nodded and ordered.

"Then let him go now."

"... ..!?"

Louise was taken aback for a moment by the unexpected command.

why? Shouldn't you hit the guy as much as possible while you're holding him?

She looked at Seongjin with confused eyes, but the gaze of the prince facing her did not waver at all.

Gray eyes full of firm confidence, fully aware of what he is doing and its results, reaching somewhere that is difficult for Luise to fathom.

Sreuk-

Inadvertently, the strength in my hand loosened and the sword was pulled out of its own accord.

[Where!]

When his body suddenly becomes free, Rod fully stands up, roaring. I realized that the person in front of me was trying to do something unusual.

The bastard raised his remaining hand and attacked the prince, spilling his blood.

"Lowering!"

[Lee Seong-jin!]

The vicious nail was just about to reach the prince's head.

wickedness-

The nutcracker swings without a sound.

Banajas exercise, 2nd type 2.

A sword type with the widest horizontal cutting range among the standard swords of the Imperial Knights, refined over a lifetime by the renowned genius Banahas.

"I... ... !"

For a moment, Louise stopped breathing.

It was obvious that the attack, which was deformed and swung at an oblique angle, was carried out within the gap between the simple long sword.

Nevertheless, somehow, in Louise's eyes, it felt as if the tip of the sword had cut through the air of the entire canyon and reached beyond the coniferous trees.

On that beautiful road, the cold air freezes, and time freezes.

Rod's head, which was nearby, was just on the road.

Hwiik-

The head, neatly separated from the body, flew lightly through the air.

As magically frozen time passes, Rod's body slowly falls to the floor.

Coooooooo!

Rod's heavy body narrowly passed Seongjin's side and fell to the floor. Due to the impact, thick snow fog scatters in all directions.

"..."

Louise could not come to her senses from the lying scene unfolding before her eyes.

Only Seongjin, who had delivered such a huge blow, just kept the nutcracker on his belt as if nothing had happened.

"Okay..."

Seongjin, who held his side and groaned for a moment, lightly gestured towards Max, who was running around anxiously on the other side.

"Max, come here!"

Wong!

The wolf dog, who understood Seongjin's words like a ghost, put Vajra's hand on the floor and quickly ran towards him.

Boom boom.

As if reflecting the animal's excited mood, its furry tail wags busily. Seongjin was dumbfounded.

"Hey, man. "What are you so excited about just because you did a good job?"

After giving a somewhat harsh scolding, Seongjin began to give a long speech to the dog who was sitting quietly in front of him.

"Do you understand, Max? I can clearly see something dangerous, but I shouldn't rush into it without thinking like that. How do you think the person next to you feels? Do you know how surprised I was earlier?"

OK-

Kiing?

Max tilted his head and looked up at Seongjin.

but-

I defeated him. Didn't I do well?

Just a bright face.

"Ugh, you immature thing... .."

Seongjin sighed and patted Max's head, then suddenly noticed Louise looking at him with a strange expression.

"what? why? what?"

"... "No, it's nothing."

what. I feel bad for some reason?

Then the Demon King let out a long sigh.

[That's right. Put your hand on your heart and take a look at yourself, you immature troublemaker!]

'... shut up!'

Poor Vajra was completely killed by that last blow.

While Louise silently looked down at the guy's unfocused, wide-open pupils, Seongjin picked up a handful of clean snow and rubbed it on his face.

"It's a pity that we couldn't save Vajra, but there's no time to be discouraged. "There is still more for Louise to investigate."

"... "Do you want to investigate?"

"huh."

After answering that, Seongjin pointed to a large rock at the bottom of the canyon.

"The remaining Lycan Slopes."

"... Are there any left?"

"huh. "Seeing as that guy has found a reason, I somehow kept the others alive just in case."

So it took some time to get it done.

Leaving Seongjin's words behind, Louise quickly ran behind the rock. And he was astonished at the terrible scene that unfolded there and stopped breathing.

"This... .."

There were two lycanthropes writhing there, with all their limbs cut off and only their torsos left.

Their bodies were meticulously buried in the snow, perhaps to prevent regeneration by freezing the cross sections. And all the severed limbs are stretched out on a high rock at a distance.

The two lycanthropes, with only their heads barely above the eyes, bared their teeth at Louise with cloudy eyes.

Grrrr-

Kkkkkkkk!

She looked at the devastation that Seongjin had created with a mesmerized face.

I understand that regeneration is fast and that binding is impossible, but isn't this still too cruel?

"There was no other way. "I deliberately left the limb nearby, hoping to get it to regain its senses if possible."

When Seongjin approached and made an excuse, Louise responded in a weak voice.

"... "It would have been better to kill him with a single sword."

"That's your opinion. "These guys' opinions might be a little different, right?"

The prince's eyes as he answered like that seemed so cold that he looked so cold.

"Once you're alive, there might be a next time."

"... .."

It made sense. But somehow, it is difficult for me to agree in my heart.

Thinking like that, Louise placed her hand on the heads of the poor things that were just writhing without any reason.

"... Climb the ice. Find where the vibration is. "That's the extent of my thoughts that I can barely read."

There was no surprise.

Louise, who had been investigating the consciousness of the bastards, soon sighed and stood up.

"My mind has already become so clouded that even if I made you one of my servants, there would be no room left for me to fight properly. "There seems to be no way for them to regain their senses."

And she swung the bastard sword herself.

Flutter! puck!

The heads of the Lycan Slopes are smashed in one go. Hot blood surged for a moment and then froze cold on the icy floor.

Louise looked at the scene in silence, then turned her head towards Seongjin and spoke in a low voice.

"I will take you to the nearest guard post from here, sir."

The voice was so dry that it sounded rather sad.

* * *

Louise's feet, which transformed into a lycan slope, were very fast.

She quickly jumped over several ice cliffs and ran across the canyon. Eventually, she came to a snow hill overlooking a small guard post and stopped.

"It's right there, sir. "The message will have arrived from the ice wall base by now, so they won't recognize you and attack you."

After explaining that, Louise lowered Seongjin, who was carrying her on her back, onto the snowy field.

Seongjin, who was feeling a little motion sick from the rapidly changing vision, also placed Max, who was still holding him in his arms, on the floor.

Wong wong!

Max, who was finally freed from his uncomfortable position, started running around the snow field, wagging his tail.

"How are your injuries? "Can you walk?"

"Uh, it's okay."

Compared to Lord Masain's CPR, this is just a minor bruise.

"But Louise, you're not going?"

For some reason, it seemed like he wanted to send Seongjin alone.

Then Louise answered with a bitter smile.

"yes. I would like to serve you until the end, even if it is because of your injury, but if I show myself, won't they find out that I secretly crossed the guard post? Besides, sir, I saw that flower garden in the devil's eye... .."

Louise, who had said that much, raised her head and stared into the distance for a moment.

Beyond the steep canyon, lies the deep heart of the demonic landscape that cannot be seen from here.

"I must see with my own eyes the reality of that [flower garden]."

No, it would be better if we just went back to the estate together.

Suddenly Seongjin had this thought.

"If that's the case, wouldn't it be better to form a proper scouting party in the territory?"

"Aren't we gathering troops in preparation for a large-scale invasion? The territory won't have the capacity to do that. "It would be faster if I ran alone."

"... .."

Seongjin thought for a moment about what more he could say to stop her.

However, the moment he met the determined black eyes, he realized that no matter what Louise said, he would never change his decision.

Even though you know that something will go wrong, sometimes there are situations where you can't just do anything.

"okay. "Please be careful."

I don't know if you'll be back here any time soon.

Louise tilted her head in confusion at Seongjin's greeting, which seemed a little less energetic than usual. But since an injury is an injury, it seemed like he thought it would be like that.

"Then, my lord, please be considerate."

Louise, who left such a concise greeting, rushed like the wind and soon disappeared beyond the canyon.

220

220. Heart of Ice (1)

"Kaaaaaaak!"

Berseus screamed and got up from his seat.

The water bottle shatters with his swinging fist, and the remains of food and dishes fly everywhere.

"You damn bastard, how dare you, how dare me!"

The Marquis' employees, who were unexpectedly hit by shards of cutlery while serving meals, screamed and held their heads.

In the end, the marquis' rampage finally came to an end after the banquet hall was ruined and the heavy oak table was broken.

"go away!"

Then, the workers, who were shaking with fear, rushed to leave the banquet hall.

Crrr-

Berseus, who was feeling angry at being left alone, let out a soft cry and ran his hand down the back of his neck.

The exhilarating feeling of my neck being blown off by a cold blade was still vivid in my mind.

"That damn thing...""

More than anything.

The image of that strange boy pointing a sword straight at me is strangely stuck in my mind and cannot be erased.

Anyway, what happened happened.

As soon as the loud anger ended, the remaining problems in reality rushed into his mind like a tide.

'... If this happens, the plan will be greatly disrupted.'

I thought everything was over once I discovered my Nebraska ancestry. But instead of killing him, didn't all the Lycan Slopes that sent him back to the canyon suffer?

Above all, losing Vajra, a member of his family, was the most painful.

'Now there is no member of the family capable of leading the entire group...'

Berseus did not have all the lycanthropes of the Demon World as his servants.

Not only can he not form relationships with subordinates one by one, but if he continues to deal with polluted minds, his mind will eventually be affected as well.

So, he made a few particularly strong individuals his followers, and then controlled the rest of the group through them.

Vajra is the one with the strongest control among them. Isn't he the only pure-blooded Lycan Slope of Nebraska blood?

Having lost such a member of the family, it was unknown how many Lycanslopes would leave the front lines at will.

'... I can't help it. 'Preparations are far from over, but we have no choice but to move while we can still control it.'

After making that decision, Berseus began to busily give orders to his remaining subordinates.

'This is a golden opportunity! A chance to sweep all the annoying things into one place and make them all destroy together!'

So, I will destroy the lives of all possible lycanslopes.

Until the evil that disturbs cause and effect and the cursed bloodline of Nebraska are completely eliminated.

* * *

North of Sigismund Territory.

A small guard post at the forefront of a glacier canyon.

The soldiers, who had been on the lookout for the urgent message that came from the ice base, were relieved when they spotted a boy and a dog staggering down the hill.

However, when I went out to greet him, I immediately turned pale. Because the boy was drenched in blood from head to toe.

Toad, toad, toad.

Every time he steps, pieces of frozen blood fall down, sparkling like jewels.

'How can you still be alive after shedding that amount of blood?'

The boy, who noticed the soldiers' tired faces, wiped his cheeks with his hand and spoke with a calm expression.

"It's not my blood."

Yes, you should. It's okay.

In a small guard post where there is no priest, let alone a doctor, if it's all your blood, you'll be in big trouble!

"His Majesty Mores... "Is that correct?"

One of the soldiers asked hesitantly. I received the message, but it was because I couldn't believe this situation.

Then the boy nods his head casually.

"Yes."

Compared to his messy appearance, his attitude was quite noble.

"Oh, and this is my dog, Max."

An introduction that somehow makes me feel proud, Wong! The energetic barking returns.

The soldiers exchanged looks with puzzled faces. There was no soldier of Sigismund who did not know Max, the largest and foul-tempered hound among the margrave's hounds.

Panting!

Is that charming dog that sticks out its tongue and wags its tail in approval, really that unruly Max?

"Well, it is said that the group left the ice base early in the morning. If you hurry, you will probably arrive here late in the evening."

One of the most senior soldiers among them spoke in a trembling voice.

I would never have thought that a shabby place like this would serve the prince of the Holy Empire. Still, as the person in charge of the guard post, I had to treat them as well as possible.

"It's not enough, but I'll take you to your place first."

"Okay, thank you."

Thus, Prince Mores was led to a small ice tent.

"If you just wait a moment, I will turn on the brazier right away."

The soldier said so, but the prince vehemently refused.

"Shouldn't we have to open the tent entrance for ventilation anyway? The supplies for a small guard post like this are useless, so there's no need to waste such money for me."

The soldier was impressed by the enemy's thoughtful attitude of caring more about the situation at the guard post than about himself.

Of course, he didn't know that the prince had a magic stone that was as good as a hand warmer.

Afterwards, the soldiers snooped around the prince's tent for a while.

However, the prince, who assumed that he would be difficult to treat, simply spent time quietly in his quarters without making any special requests until lunchtime had passed.

'Aren't you really a calm and well-behaved prince!'

'Even if our child looks half as good as that person...''

They soon returned to their workplaces with peace of mind.

Meanwhile, the situation inside the tent was a little different from what the soldiers expected. Because Seongjin and the Demon King were talking non-stop through their thoughts.

[This is a good thing. There is no such thing as a complete mess.]

'Well, I can't help it.'

He said he wiped his face and hands with snow, but his blood-soaked hair and clothes were already frozen solid. When he touches his head, red ice pieces fall to the floor.

Seongjin roughly shook off the ice and sat down, wrapped in a blanket and holding a rock as a hand warmer.

"Okay..."

Not only the fractured side, but also the entire body was intact. Above all, it was extremely cold.

Then Max, who was whining and sniffing, quietly sits down next to Seongjin.

[Why don't you do that? Warming up your body with aura.]

'It hurts, man.'

This was the reason why I was unable to operate as an Auror at all while I was here.

Because I used it too hard during the battle, my whole body hurt as if it were being broken just by turning my auror slightly.

It's better to be a little cold.

'It might have been better to use a little bit of the auror in the passage...'

Seongjin thought as he felt the gentle waves still lapping at his chest.

The reason he overdoes things like this every time is because the total amount of Auras he possesses is absolutely insufficient compared to the required Auras. So, this problem can be solved as long as you use the Aura of the passage.

But why?

When he started to use this, the sense of crisis that something irreversible might happen one day would hold Seongjin back from trying to pull the auror every time.

-Mores, keep in mind that when you pull the water in a channel, the things on the other side are also pulled in.

okay. Above all, that's what Seonghwang's father said.

Doesn't Seongjin know better than anyone else that his warnings should never be ignored?

'As Logan said, it's only a matter of becoming stronger. 'Let's not be too hasty.'

With the help of hand warmers and the wolf dog, the cold, frozen body slowly begins to melt.

Seongjin, feeling the fatigue from the early morning sleep coming on, slowly closed his eyes, leaning against Max.

[weird...]

Nodding.

How long had I been dozing off like that?

[...] I can definitely feel it around here, right?]

Seongjin opened his eyes to the demon king's nervous muttering.

'why? What?'

[no. I've been feeling the presence of a strange spirit since a while ago.]

The guy was bustling in and out of Seongjin's head.

[If you're this close, there's no way I wouldn't know? But why can't I see anything?]

'Where do you feel that?'

[From the items you packed earlier.]

'Hmm, really?'

Well then, shall we take a look?

When Seongjin gets up, Max opens his eyes and looks at him, then yawns and puts his head down again.

Seongjin picked up the winter clothes that had been left in a corner and searched through the frozen pockets. Then, small miscellaneous things pour down on the tent floor.

A magic stone received from Logan.

Amulet and pendant obtained from the labyrinth.

A small trinket hanging on Vajra's chest.

And a small piece of ice with a faint light blinking. A product of the symmetrical world that never melts.

The Demon King let out a laugh.

[Well, it's absurd even to look at it again. In the meantime, you had the presence of mind to take care of these things.]

Ice sculptures and Vajra's accessories.

They were items that Seongjin had stolen one by one during the battle. Louise probably doesn't know anything either.

'I especially need to take care of this.'

Seongjin responded by rolling a piece of shining ice in his hand.

Wasn't this piece of ice the reason why the battle with the Lycanslopes began in the first place?

'why? Didn't you say you wanted to take a closer look too?'

[But...]

I didn't know you would end up in such a miserable situation.

Even though the devil was grumbling like that, he seemed to be carefully examining the miscellaneous items.

[I think this is suspicious.]

Eventually, what the demon lord picked out was Vajra's accessory. A delicate work of art with bright beads attached to a flat metal plate.

Ah, this.

'Now that I think about it, I almost died because of this.'

[Then, I guess the reason you hesitated earlier...]

'Oh, right.'

When the road guy charged at him from the front, this instantly caught Seongjin's eyes.

While trying to take a closer look, I ended up accidentally allowing the guy to hit me.

'Isn't it somewhat similar to this?'

Seongjin asked as he placed the amulet and accessories side by side.

Nebraska's Summoning Amulet. This is the item obtained by defeating the boss mob in the labyrinth.

[Oh, really?]

When I compared the two side by side, it seemed even more clear. The flat plates were similar in size, and the detailed carved reliefs were also similar in some way.

The only difference was that Vajra's jewelry had beads properly attached, and the amulet was empty.

[that's interesting? This too is an item from the normal world. It's also quite high-level. Where on earth does something like this keep popping up?]

The Demon King, who was mumbling like that, pointed out a bead attached to Vajra's jewelry.

[I guess this is a bit strange. This dirty bead.]

'hmm.'

In fact, Seongjin was also curious about this bead.

Of course, it was a fleeting moment, but I remembered that when I first took off the ornament, there were clearly transparent beads attached.

But now, one of them is shining bright red-brown.

[If you look closely, this looks like the soul of the normal world. It's difficult to judge because the letters overlap so much.]

The soul of the normal world? letter?

[huh. I explained it to you once before, right? The soul of the world of normal images is very unique, unlike the world of mental images or real images.]

Seongjin traced his vague memories and recalled the explanation given by the Demon King.

It was like that. Did you say that the soul in the normal world is not in the shape of a person, but in the shape of a sphere or crystal?

'But the soul is something that can be touched with hands.'

[Strictly speaking, it is a bead with a soul.]

'A bead with a soul... ... '

[Why, isn't it true that there are no cases where souls or thoughts dwell in objects? Since it's just a soul from the normal world, it doesn't show any signs even if it dwells in it. Because it's like a round bead.]

In other words, does this mean that even if an object is possessed by a ghost, the ghost does not appear?

'Then what are the letters talking about?'

[You already know this, right? Objects in the normal world always come with standardized explanations. That's why I can recognize things belonging to the normal world as soon as I see them.]

Suddenly, the experience in the labyrinth passes by.

A strange world where every time you touch it, a notice pops up like a game.

[Of course, it is not as clear a notice as you see in the normal world. But even in the real world, you can sense that unique feeling that remains. Even though I can't read everything, traces of the letters are visible in my spirit.]

But I'm not sure because there are a lot of things from the normal world gathered here. The letters all overlap.

The Demon King is muttering like that.

In the end, Seongjin decided to borrow the spiritual eye from the Demon King and check it for himself.

As the red light begins to blink from the pupil, a now familiar world of five colors unfolds.

'It's a notice... ... '

With those eyes, I looked closely at the objects of the normal world.

Then something strange happened. Although small, something like faint letters began to glimmer over the objects.

□Soul Stone□

□Sign of Nebraska□

Those were the letters that I finally recognized after looking at Vajra's accessories for a while. Especially in the case of those transparent beads.

□Soul Stone□

It seems like it was something that really put the soul into it.

And that reddish-brown stone that bothered me.

□Vajra's Soul Stone□

'... 'Vajra?'

Does it really have a soul? And Vajra's soul?

When Seongjin, embarrassed, turns his attention to the piece of ice he took from Vajra, this time, these letters appear on it.

□Glacier Troll's Ice Heart□

... what?

* * *

Before the sun sets, Seongjin's group, including Masain, arrived at the forefront of the canyon.

Even while coming here, Masain was very worried. The more I imagined what would have happened to the prince who suddenly fell into the northern canyon, the more anxious I became.

But no matter what you imagined, the reality was much more.

"... ..!"

When they were guided to the ice outpost, what they encountered was Prince Mores, whose entire body was covered in blood.

Not only his shirt and winter clothes, but even his light blonde hair was soaked in blood. At that moment, Masain's eyes turned white and she stumbled for a moment.

However, the prince who discovered Masain smiled brightly and waved his hand.

"Lord Martha!"

Then, he groans and clutches his side.

"What makes you uncomfortable, sir?"

When Masain was scared and ran away, the prince lightly waved his hand.

"No, that's not important now. Do you know what I found? "Look at this!"

"It's not that important..." ..!"

"Well, what this is is the heart of a Glacher Troll. "With this, I found out what they were planning!"

So, Lycan Slopes... ..

Rod falls from the ice of the canyon... ..

The prince's chattering voice fades away, and my mind gradually becomes more distant.

-You were just caught up in an unfortunate accident, so you are told not to scold me too much when you meet me.

Sir Sharon said so.

But Masain was able to make a statement.

Absolutely not, Your Majesty.

I can confidently say that the image of him not being involved in an accident, but rather actively looking for an accident!

"Oh! And you know what? "I'm going to get a dog starting today."

"dog..."

"I'm going to properly rip it off from the Margrave, so it's like he already belongs to me. Oh, don't worry about management! Edith will take care of your food and bath, and Sir Haven and Sir Calmen will clean up your toilet."

In the end, Masain couldn't stand it anymore and gathered all the Auras in his army and shouted loudly for the guard to leave.

Teek!!!

221

221. Heart of Ice (2)

Glatzer Troll.

It is a huge ice monster that is said to be over 10 meters tall when standing upright. Bern claims to have seen something over 12 meters tall, but that bastard is just bluffing for a day or two.

They have a strange life cycle where they go into a state of pseudo-sleep in the depths of the demon world during the summer, then wake up in the cold winter and slowly begin to become active.

It moves alone, and nothing is exactly known about its population or breeding period.

It usually wanders around the deep glacier area encompassing the northern part of Salz Lake, but on rare occasions, it comes down to the border between the territory and the demon world.

In that case, if they are not subdued in time, the territory will suffer a great loss, as they attack people indiscriminately and their very existence brings severe cold damage.

It is unknown why they were named 'trolls'. Because they look completely different from the trolls that have been passed down in stories from the era of the three ancient dragons.

okay. Why is this a troll? Is it even a living thing in the first place?

Disagreements as to whether this is truly a living demonic beast have been raised consistently since ancient times, but the position of the Orthodox Church on this has always been firm.

Your Majesty, the Great Emperor, according to the children of Bern, there is an inside story to this.

If we deny that they are living demonic beasts, we will naturally classify them as demons who make dead things alive, and at that moment, we will have to dispatch a large group of Holy Knights to subdue demons?

However, none of the cardinals have any intention of dispatching the paladins under their command. While they are busy keeping each other in check, why would they do something that undermines their own power?

Of course, Vern, who causes divisions among the cardinals and starts fights, is the worst guy.

Anyway, common sense tells us that this absolutely cannot be a living thing.

Unlike Lycanslopes, who overcome the cold with their hot body temperature, Glacher Trolls do not try to overcome the cold. As the name suggests, it has a body made of 'ice' and only moves actively in the cold.

They don't even have proper internal organs!

The heart, shining and beating in the chest, will be its only organ.

Of course, it is questionable whether it functions as a heart as its name suggests, but there can be no argument that it is at least as deadly an organ as the heart.

As soon as the heart is taken out of the body, the hard ice body, which is not easy to break, disintegrates in an instant, and eventually completely melts and scatters into the air.

-From Granius' [Exploration of the Miraculous Continent], a banned book designated by the Holy See

* * *

Seongjin received immediate medical attention. Of course, amid Masain's storm-like nagging.

While Sir Valery and Sir Sharon diligently poured divine power on him, the resident knights diligently collected firewood and scooped up clean snow. As it is not enough, I am trying to heat the bath water to wash away the blood.

'Being able to clean one's body on the front line is probably a luxury that a prince can enjoy.'

No matter what, power is the best.

Seongjin, who was sitting leisurely with Masain's nagging in one ear, suddenly looked to the side, feeling a chill running down his spine.

'... uh?'

Was it because of my mood? For a moment, it felt like Sir Sharon's eyes turned cool and flashed silver.

And Seongjin soon realized that it was not an illusion.

Neither Sir Valerie nor Sir Sharon had exceptional healing powers, and their recovery was slow. But right after that happened, the pain suddenly disappeared as if it had been washed away, and vitality surged throughout his body.

Above all, Seongjin did not miss the moment when Sir Sharon's right hand moved.

Of course, it's just a fleeting moment. Sir Sharon soon returned to her usual self.

'and... ... '

Seongjin was able to realize it right away.

'If there weren't people around, I would have had a great night!'

They said it would be difficult to come to the North for a while, and it seemed like my father possessed me for a short time and then disappeared right away.

Of course, there would have been time to hit the night. However, Sir

Sharon would not have been able to attack the prince in front of others.

Seongjin was greatly relieved.

'Okay, we've passed the critical juncture. At least by the time he returns to the imperial capital, his father's anger will have completely subsided, right?

Because he's the type of person who gets angry quickly.

Then the Demon King looked dumbfounded and said sarcastically.

[Are you relieved that you didn't get hit now? uh? Where on earth did the reflection go, reflection?]

Shut up! You nagging demon lord!

Don't you and Sir Martha think this is too much?

And that night, a large tent was erected at the guard post. This was to accommodate the suddenly increased number of people at once.

The abundant supplies that Orden and his party had prepared were also piled up on one side of the tent.

Considering that we rushed like crazy, not even eating, the preparations were quite thorough. I guess this is all experience accumulated while defending the border of the Demonic Realm for a long time.

Thanks to this, a rare and rich dinner began at the front line post.

Seongjin and his party felt relieved that they had found the prince safely, and the soldiers guarding the guard post felt a crowded atmosphere for the first time in a long time.

Everyone was excited and a quite lively atmosphere was created.

"Thanks to Prince Mores, we can enjoy all these luxuries, hahaha."

"But what happened to you that caused you to be so isolated in the demon world? Ah yes. "I won't ask."

One of the soldiers who had been casually asking a question was startled by Masain's rapidly becoming depressed expression and changed the topic.

"Haha, by the way, the prince is truly amazing."

"You must have been very surprised, but the young prince seemed so resolute!"

"I heard you even cut down the devil's beast on your way here?"

"That's it! How thoughtful you are to be considerate of lowly soldiers like us! "I was very impressed!"

Simple compliments without any special rhetoric follow.

"When I return to the estate, I will definitely tell my son! "The prince of the theocratic empire is so great even at such a young age. Shouldn't you follow his example?"

Then Masain's face, who was listening, became subtle.

It feels good to hear the prince's praise, but since it is something I cannot agree with with my heart, my feelings are complicated in one way or another.

Of course, Seongjin, who looked neat, was moving the dishes in an ever more polite manner.

"Look at how he's acting like a fool. "As expected, our poker face is amazing!"

"Is that something you would call amazing? "Isn't he just a swindler?"

"Uh-huh! "And unless you are willing to drink a bowl of Edith's Melbourne tea, keep your mouth shut, Lord Calmen!"

"Huh. This is something that people in the monster task force are familiar with. "You have great potential."

"... Even Lord Sharon?"

The irreverent whispering next to me was a little annoying.

Uh-huh! I can hear it all, you guys!

It was around that time that Seongjin spoke to Orden about [Ice Heart].

"Are you saying the Lycanslope Lords are trying to mobilize the Glacher Trolls?"

Orden asked with a doubtful look.

"And this is proof of that?"

"okay. "You don't think Lycanslopes would carry this around for no reason, right?"

Seongjin said as he handed Orden a piece of ice that was still not melting and was still dripping cold.

Even now, using the demon king's spiritual eyes, Seongjin could clearly see faint letters. There are even instructions written in Korean.

❑ Glacier Troll's Ice Heart ❑

❑ @#Vera%d Dungeon boss, ❑❑ obtained from the Glacher Troll King. You can set the activity conditions of the registered entity and give commands with simple sentences.❑

❑ Item grade: A❑

❑ Number of objects that can be registered: 3/25❑

❑ *Current status#;aoie& server cannot be confirmed.❑

Is it because this is not a normal world? The letters themselves were faint, and various sentences were overlapped here and there. Because of that, it took Seongjin quite a while to understand a few sentences.

What's surprising is that the devil bastard can't read this at all. Since he said it's a letter he's never seen before, it probably isn't really Hangul as it appears.

I could only guess that this was probably something that occurred in the process of processing information obtained through spiritual eyes into visual information.

"Certainly, the shape has some similarities to the heart of a glacier troll. But it's so small, and the light is still vivid. "It won't be the heart of a glacier troll."

Orden looked at the ice sculpture closely for a while and then said.

"Is it originally bigger?"

"Yes, sir. The Glacier Troll is a monster that can reach a height of 10 meters. The heart is also larger than the human head. And the moment that heart is removed from their body, it loses its luster and shatters."

"hmm... .."

In fact, this piece of ice has a strong feeling that it is a small control tower that controls the Glacier Troll, rather than the heart itself.

However, it was frustrating because there was no way to explain these letters that only Seongjin could see.

"Grand Duke, you saw it too, right? The lycan slopes of the ice wall were clearly waiting for something. "Maybe it's the Glatzer Troll."

"However, Glatute Trolls are mindless magical beasts that wander aimlessly through glaciers and snow fields. They just wander around as individuals and do not form groups. "For a demonic beast to follow the orders of a demonic beast of another species, that is also unprecedented."

"So you're saying there's absolutely no chance of a Glacier Troll appearing on the front lines?"

"yes. They don't move until mid-winter. "By now, he's probably asleep somewhere in the devil's eye."

"... .."

It certainly makes sense.

Since they are the ones who have always guarded the boundaries of the Demon World, they are probably right about the habits of the Glacher Trolls.

Even if you can see the explanation, there is no guarantee that it will function properly in the real world of Delcross.

'But since it works, wouldn't they want to use it?'

The same goes for the magic stone given by Sisley. Although it is an item from the normal world, it works well as a hand warmer.

Moreover, there were some parts of the explanation that were particularly difficult to understand.

□ You can set the activity conditions of the registered entity and give commands with simple sentences. □

According to this sentence, wouldn't it be possible to configure the Glature Troll to ignore its habits and move at higher temperatures?

'Anyway, there's no harm in being prepared.'

Seongjin came to that conclusion and gave instructions to Orden.

"First, contact the ice base. "So that we can prepare for an attack by the Glacher Troll."

Then he nodded obediently.

Although he thought it was a pointless worry for the prince, he decided that there was no harm in strengthening security.

"I understand, sir. "I will contact the ice base early tomorrow morning."

But at that moment, Seongjin felt an eerie feeling passing through his chest.

Wait, wouldn't that be too late?

"no. Send it right now."

"... yes?"

"I want you to take action right away so that we can reach the Margrave by tonight."

"... .."

Orden looked at Seongjin with a puzzled face.

However, when I met his eyes that seemed to shine unusually brighter than usual, I answered with a slightly more serious expression.

"yes. I will do that. Lowering."

* * *

"Glatcher Troll? "What is that all of a sudden talking about?"

That night. Old man Vincent asked the Margrave after checking the urgent letter from the canyon guard post.

Then Margrave Hendrick closes the letter with an embarrassed look on his face.

"It appears that Prince Mores has mentioned the possibility of Glatzer Trolls appearing on the front lines. "This is Orden's request to prepare for this."

"Why the glamor troll in late summer? Even if that guy shows up there, do you think Vincent will just let it go? Bullshit... .."

Then the Margrave's eyes deepened.

"What Prince Mores pointed out is something else. Due to the structure of the ice base, it is difficult for large troops to secure a retreat route, so they told us to prepare in advance. It's not wrong. "There is no other fortress with such a narrow entrance, other than the Ice Wall Base of the Demon Lord."

Then the old man snorted.

"If that were true, it would be a pointless worry. Are you saying such nonsense even after looking at the height of the third ice wall? Even if a Glature Troll really comes, it can't jump over an ice wall that is over 40 meters high. "There is no need for us to retreat."

This was the reason why they leisurely gathered their troops without being overly nervous even in the face of large-scale swarms of Lycan Slopes.

but.

"Today, the third force sent by the guard commander joined us, and over 700 troops have already gathered at this base. Even if the battle ends safely, isn't it a big deal to send them all back to their territory?"

"so?"

"If the third ice wall doesn't break through anyway, I think it would be a good idea to slightly widen the entrance to the second ice wall."

When will that thick ice wall be dug up and widened? Even if construction is carried out, it freezes little by little and eventually becomes narrow! It's all useless!

Although old Vincent was grumbling behind his back, the Margrave called the night guard and ordered them to work all night.

There was nothing good about offending the prince, who had a tough personality, and he thought it wouldn't be a bad idea to prepare in advance for his return.

And at dawn the next day.

A soldier who was crossing the ice wall to change duties was caught by an uneasy feeling, so he stopped and looked at the snowy field.

Strangely enough, it was an unusually quiet night, with none of the lycanthropes that usually hang around near the ice wall in sight.

"That... what?"

After staring ahead for a while, he suddenly noticed something strange and used his aura to sharpen his eyesight.

Dream, dream.

Am I half asleep? The white snow field of the snowy field was gently shaking as if it were alive and moving.

"Hey, what on earth does that look like?"

"huh? "What is it?"

As they observed the strange horizon gradually approaching the ice wall, their eyes widened at the reality of the horizon gradually revealing its outline in the darkness.

"Am I dreaming now...?"

That's right too.

They were now faced with a strange sight that they could not even imagine in their dreams.

Ooooooh-

Oooooh-

"... Glatzer Troll... ... ?"

Surprisingly, the identity of the white things covering the long horizon were dozens of Glacher Trolls crawling forward in a line.

222

222. Heart of Ice (3)

Before the Vigilant discovered a large movement of Glacher Trolls. Fortunately, there was someone within the ice base who noticed the abnormality a little early.

"Vincent!"

Lord Ilma, who was hurriedly leaving the ice tent after receiving an unbelievable report from a soldier, bumped into Old Man Vincent.

The old man, who was already fully armed, looked in the direction of the snowy field and had a very disappointed look on his face.

"When the prince's message came, I thought it was some kind of nonsense, but I never thought the Glatzer trolls would really come."

This is Dekaron Knight's affirmation. This means that it is by no means an illusion of caution.

"Let me check the situation first."

Lord Ilma climbed the ice wall and looked at the snowy field.

Indeed, numerous Glacher Trolls can be seen covering the snowy field. It had already been over 20 years since she joined the Wolf Knights, but it was a bizarre sight that even she had never seen before.

The sight of giant ice monsters lying down all at once, writhing and crawling, seemed comical at first glance.

"This is it. "This is the first time in my life I've seen glamor trolls hanging out like that."

The white-haired old man standing next to her also rubs his eyes in disbelief.

It was fortunate that the alert was able to spot them quickly because they were large. There are still hundreds of meters away from them.

"30..."

A glamor troll with just the right numbers.

They are lined up almost symmetrically around the center of the ice wall and face straight towards the ice wall. Is it really true that someone is moving these people in an organized manner?

Suddenly, an ominous picture flashed through Lord Ilma's mind.

Even if the Glacher Troll can fully raise its body, it is nothing compared to the height of the ice wall.

But what if that kind of organized leadership is possible, so that they can keep gathering to target one point?

'It becomes a huge ice hill made up of Glaturre Trolls!'

If that number of people can successfully unite without falling behind, they will be able to reach the height of the ice wall.

It was a terrifying imagination.

'no! Now is not the time to worry about this.'

Sir Ilma shook his head.

The power of the Glaturre Troll itself is not something that can be ignored.

If they all arrive here safely and start pounding on the ice wall, it will only be a matter of time before it breaks, no matter how thick the ice wall is made.

On the other hand, the movement of the soldiers dealing with them will be extremely restricted.

"It would be best to reduce the number in the snowfield as much as possible. "I will take the quick-footed knights out and deal with them."

Old Vincent seemed to have the same thoughts as Lord Ilma.

"Don't do that. "I will help too."

While Lord Ilma hurriedly summoned the Wolf Knights and reorganized them, the soldiers' preparations were in full swing on the ice wall.

"It's an attack! "It's a Glatzer Troll!"

"Hang a pulley on the ice wall!"

"All archers to their positions!"

I was embarrassed for a moment. The soldiers, who had been trained all their lives defending the Demon Guard, calmed their minds by unconsciously following familiar tactics.

A dusky dawn with the sun still not rising.

Bright torches were lit here and there, turning the gray ice wall yellow.

"Save your arrows until they come into direct range. "Rather, the archers in the back row focus on using the pulleys so that they can pull up the retreating Wolf Knights in time!"

"Yes, Captain!"

"Archers in the front lines should be as alert as possible to Lycanslopes that may appear from behind!"

An arrow fired aimlessly in a situation where allies are mixed up is a double-edged sword.

Of course, they are not Wolf Knights who will be hit by blind arrows, but there is no need to worry about their own arrows when dealing with Glacher Trolls.

In any case, unless you had a fairly strong Aura, it was difficult to inflict any meaningful damage on the Glacher Troll with arrows.

At that time, a young Wolf Knight asked with a puzzled face.

"They are coming in completely prone. How do you deal with something like that? This is the first time so many people have come here. "There was no such case in the rules of engagement."

Originally, after forming a group and surrounding the ice monster, it was cut from the feet to reduce the area touching the floor. Then, it moves downhill, makes it lose its balance and collapses, and then targets the heart.

These were the standard rules of engagement for fighting an ice monster that was up to 10 meters long.

However, Lord Ilma dismissed the concerns with a firm voice.

"If that's the case, isn't that something to be thankful for? "If we lie down, their hearts will only get closer to our sword attack!"

"yes!"

Her abstract shouts fell one after another over the heads of the knights who were in high spirits.

"Everyone, stay alert! Don't think that they are all! "The Lycan Slopes are definitely coming after them!"

Meanwhile, Margrave Hendrick, who had been summoned by old Vincent, realized that the moment he realized the situation, he had to prepare for the worst.

"Hurry up the construction to widen the second ice wall. And send a message to the First Ice Wall to order them to do the same."

"yes? but..."

"It doesn't matter if part of the ice wall collapses. "Hurry up!"

Hendrick, who scolded the soldier like that, looked nervously at the watchtower on the ice wall and chewed his lips.

'I don't think the three ice walls will collapse, but...'

However, these are the words of the prince who noticed the Glacher Troll's attack that no one expected. It wouldn't be a bad idea to assume the worst case scenario and prepare for it.

And around that time.

Changes have also occurred among the glamor trolls.

When the ice wall became brightly lit and the troops in the base were busy moving around, some of them seemed to have realized that they had already been caught, so they jumped up from their seats and started running towards the ice wall.

Wooooooo-

Ooooh-

At that time, Sir Ilma, who was just preparing to fall down the ice wall, suddenly witnessed a strange sight.

'... "There is a distinct time difference in the commands?'

Even as about half of the Glatute Trolls approaching from the left rise up, the ones on the right are still crawling in an awkward posture.

'At least two chains of command... ... !'

There are people somewhere checking the situation here and manipulating it. If that's the case, those Glatzer Trolls might not be what they were prepared for.

Sir Ilma, whose thoughts had reached that point, shouted at the Wolf Knights.

"All of the Wolf Knights follow me! "We must catch as many Glacher Trolls as possible in the snowy field!"

And she spoke to the old man for the last time.

"Vincent. i look forward to."

An unprecedented situation faced by Yeongji.

The most reliable force here right now was Old Man Vincent, the only Dekaron Knight.

"okay. "I will take the lead."

Old man Vincent answered like that and scratched his head.

"But it's so strange. How dare you come from a snowy field like this. I thought I was more concerned about the north somehow... .."

"Please hurry!"

"I understand!"

Whick! Old Vincent, who launched himself without a rope, slid down a steep ice wall that was as high as 40 meters.

Next, the Wolf Knights also fell one after another down the ice wall, riding on ropes attached to pulleys throughout the ice wall.

"Based on the basic training formation of 5 people, we will take out the ones on the edges one by one. It looks like it will be an unprecedented battle, so the leader of each group must be flexible in luring the guys and connect with the next group based on the situation!"

"yes!"

At that time, old man Vincent, who ran out with a fog in his eyes, collided violently with a Glacher Troll charging at the forefront.

Kuang!

One of its legs shattered, and ice shards flew everywhere.

Woooooow-

A scream, not a scream, as a signal -

"Everyone charge!"

The Wolf Knights, with Lord Ilma at the head, ran through the snow field, each doing their own shunishuhe.

* * *

"They say the ice wall base is currently under attack!"

Canyon in the north.

Everyone at the guard post woke up early because of the scorpion that flew in at dawn.

"Dozens of Glatzer Trolls... .. ?"

Orden, who received the letter, spoke in a trembling voice.

I couldn't believe it, but it really happened as Prince Mores said?

The group all looked back at the prince with shocked expressions.

"hmm?"

The young prince, who was rubbing his eyes with a half-asleep look on his face, shrugged his shoulders at everyone's gaze.

"Oh, so I told you? "It seems like the Lycanslopes are controlling the Glacher Trolls?"

"... .."

Orden and the group that followed him exchanged glances.

It was something that was hard to believe at first. This was the first time that Sigismund became the guardian of the Demon World, and so many Glatzer Trolls had never gathered in one place, and it was impossible to imagine that they would be controlled by another Demon Beast.

Anyway, what has already happened has happened.

"Grand Duke. After all, shouldn't we hurry back to the third ice wall?"

"Not only Lord Ilma but also Vincent are at the Ice Wall Base. I don't think it will fall apart easily... .."

"That's right."

While they were whispering in low voices.

Prince Mores, who looked at the area near the canyon for a moment with thoughtful eyes, called out to Orden in a low voice.

"Grand Duke."

"Yes, sir."

"How about taking all the soldiers here and retreating to the territory? "If they try to make a diversion, it would be dangerous for a small number of troops to remain at this guard post."

"diversion... is it."

If he had heard this yesterday, Orden would have confirmed it without delay. Demonic beasts, who are just beasts without reason, could never do that.

However, the large-scale attack by the Glacher Trolls, which was thought to be absolutely impossible, was confirmed to be true.

then.

'Either the demonic beasts move directly, or someone controls them from behind. 'For someone who can make such an organized movement, a bucket is definitely not an impossible task!'

Orden hypothesized that Glacher Trolls and Lycanslopes were flocking here at the same time.

The guard posts built here and there in the canyon are defense bases surrounded by fairly high ice walls on rocky highlands.

However, not all of them would be capable of withstanding the large-scale attack of the demonic beast.

'If you retreat late after assessing the situation, you run the risk of becoming isolated in one place. In that case, it would be better for us to move and join all the troops at the guard post and go to the entrance of the canyon...'

Although it was not as large as the 3rd Ice Wall, a fortress was built near the border of the canyon and the territory, with the entrance tightly blocked.

Move all your troops there and ask Sir Sebastian to send additional men.

'... 'I can endure it!'

It was about time he came to that conclusion.

Ooooh-

Suddenly, the wolf dog let out a long howl across the canyon.

Then, as if the prince remembered something, he raised his head and spoke.

"Oh, right! "There were things to check and take with me."

"yes?"

"I think it's about time we arrived. "I called you here earlier."

"... ... ?"

It was when Orden was wondering. Suddenly, through his sensitive senses, he felt a small, earth-shattering vibration.

"... ... !"

Orden was startled and stood up. This was because it was approaching at an incredible speed, and the vibrations were growing unstoppably.

Then, after a while, one of the soldiers standing guard let out a sound that sounded like a scream.

"that... "It's a Glatzer Troll!"

"What? Glatzer Troll?"

Everyone at the guard post became thoughtful and stood up.

Boom boom boom!

Just as he said, what appeared across the canyon with a tremor was a huge ice monster measuring 10 meters in height.

A dull appearance whose facial features cannot be clearly seen as it is covered in snow and ice fragments. An unrealistic yet familiar sight, with countless chunks of ice rippling like muscles in time with the movement.

"You mean it was really a bucket...? ... !"

Orden muttered helplessly.

'At least until your Majesty takes refuge in the territory, we must stop them here!'

Slurp.

When Orden steeled his resolve and pulled out his sword, he and his companions also rushed to aim their weapons at him.

It was right then.

"Oh, so that's what a Glatzure Troll looks like?"

Prince Mores stood up and spoke calmly.

"Lowering! Hurry and avoid!"

Sir Masain was frightened and grabbed him, but the prince looked closely at the approaching Glacher trolls with curious eyes.

Then, as if he were puzzled, he muttered something like this!

"uh? But one isn't enough?"

"... yes?"

"Everyone, don't worry. Those are the kids I called. "He's our ally."

... what?

As Orden looked at him with wide eyes, the prince looked a little proud and added an explanation to him.

"I told you yesterday, right? "It seems like the Lycanslopes are using this piece of ice to run a glacier troll."

"... ..!"

"If you want to prove it, you'll probably have to try it yourself. There were three entities registered in this ice heart, so I just summoned them. "But I don't know where one went."

Is that real?

While everyone was shocked, the prince scratched his cheek and said.

"Hmm, I guess I got caught on a glacier somewhere on the way."

But the words are almost over.

Thump thump! Another vibration is heard from afar.

While everyone was standing there dumbfounded, only the young prince spoke with a happy expression on his face.

"Oh, it looks like everyone is here. look. I already gave them names. "What if we call them Bingsu No. 1, No. 2, and No. 3, respectively, in the order they arrived?"

223. Heart of Ice (4)

Preparations to retreat from the guard post were quickly made.

These were soldiers who changed duty stations every few days and went back and forth between the territory and the guard post. He must have had a history of packing things easily.

After burying the remaining preserved food in the snow, the guard post was soon left with nothing but empty ice tents.

"Then, let's move on to the next guard post like this."

Orden, who completed the final inspection, reported to Seongjin.

On the way back to the territory, they plan to stop by all possible guard posts and collect soldiers. Emergency summons signals were sent to some guard posts that were too far from the route.

"But Grand Duke, how can they..." ... "

Sir Oscar was whispering next to me with a serious look on his face.

'Do you understand?'

Orden looked back in embarrassment.

There, three giant ice giants standing side by side against the backdrop of a rugged canyon are shining silver in the rising sunlight. If you didn't know that they were magical beasts, you could say it was a majestic sight.

I never thought I would face them so peacefully.

"What's wrong with you? Of course I will take those shaved ice!

"Because it is our precious power."

Seongjin, who noticed the group's shocked reaction, strongly insisted.

"My lord, I wonder when those demonic beasts will change... .."

"Don't worry. 'I'm in control."

Despite Seongjin's assurance, the group's anxiety did not subside.

In particular, from Lord Masaine's grimly stiff face, I could feel the determination to kill them right away if they were to stumble.

"Lowering! Hurry and throw away that stolen item! 'I will break it to pieces now!"

When the shaved ice first appeared, Masain literally went wild.

Well, if it were a heretic or a devil, it would have been a natural reaction for him to be horrified. Even in Seongjin's eyes, the sight of the Glature Trolls completely ignoring the laws of nature was nothing short of bizarre.

'... 'Isn't there a separate axis of strength or joints?'

Surprisingly, they didn't even have a skeleton. Let alone internal organs, there is no connective tissue that connects body parts.

It was just chunks of ice tangled together and floating in the air in the shape of a giant giant!

If I didn't know much about the laws of the normal world, I would have thought that Seongjin was the devil's work.

[This... Rather than a troll, it's closer to a golem from the normal world?]

The Demon Lord, who had been looking at them for a while, groaned and said.

'Is there really something like this in the normal world?'

[huh. There are things that move like this according to the laws that govern the world. This is a common sight in the early normal world.]

There are cases like this not only of golems, but also of living creatures.

The Demon King added.

[It's so simple that it doesn't have volume or proper mass. It's as if only the shell of the body remains, floating and moving in the air, centered around an invisible skeleton.]

... What on earth is the normal world?

In any case, it was the two Holy Knights who calmed Masain down in a situation where he could have been stabbed.

"This Vince... The demon energy is not felt much in the field. "Hehe."

"It is said that opinions were divided from the Whales to the Inquisition regarding the Glatture Troll, Lord Martha. It is not alive, and there is no evidence that it is the work of the devil, according to 'Exploration of the Miraculous Continent'... Hum hum! Oh, of course I'm not saying I read that banned book!"

Thank you, Sir Sharon!

And Sir Valerie, how far have you read the banned books on the subject of the Inquisitor?

"Lord Masaine. It would be a huge benefit for us if these shaved ice could help us fight off the enemy Glacher Trolls. "He will jump into dangerous work first for us."

"... .."

"don't worry. We can take their hearts out at any time and stop them from working. "As long as I'm in control, I won't rebel at all."

Masain then looked suspicious and checked with Seongjin again.

"So you're saying that as long as those things are moving, you won't have to fight?"

"Uh, well. "Wouldn't that be the case?"

Only after Seongjin said that did Masain finally put Misra on his belt.

However, even after that, the discomfort the group felt from shaved ice still did not seem to be resolved.

Every time the shaved ice took a step as they walked away from the guard post, the group was visibly startled.

'If it were in the imperial palace, everyone would have done it without asking...'

Seongjin secretly yawned and thought so.

'Well, since my father is here in the imperial palace, everyone feels at ease.'

With that, the group began moving slowly towards the next guard post with huge shaved ice on their tails. It is said that there are a total of six guard posts on the way to the territory alone, so there is still a long way to go.

Beat, beat, beat.

While walking behind Masain, Seongjin occasionally played with the snowshoe marks he had left by blowing his aura to erase them. It could be seen as an application of Schneeshuhe.

"You are truly amazing, sir. Among us, you are the only one who can move without snowshoes. "You are no better than the Sigismund people."

Sir Valerie, who was watching this with curious eyes, narrowed the distance and spoke.

"Well, it's not really training..."

If I don't do something like this, I feel like I'll fall asleep quickly.

"How tired do you look?"

"huh. 'I had a bit of trouble sleeping.'"

Last night, Seongjin strained his spiritual eyes and closely examined objects in the normal world all night long.

Then I got a vague idea of how to use ice cubes. And because I was testing various things with this 'ice heart', I didn't wake up until almost dawn.

[Was there a need to investigate in such a hurry? No matter how much you go through the decision to pray, if you use the spiritual eye for that long, it will eventually take a toll on your body.]

The devil bastard lightly.

But it was unavoidable.

□Number of objects that can be registered 3/25□

look. There are already three registered on the ice sculpture, right? So, isn't it natural that you want to call it right away as a test?

'Plus, I keep getting nervous. 'I feel like whatever I do, I have to hurry.'

Seongjin's initial plan was to join the group and immediately lead them to explore the canyon. Like the Lycan Slopes, you hold a piece of ice and examine the ice in the canyon one by one.

There is evidence that they are trying to control additional entities by registering them, so wouldn't it be possible to intercept the Glacier Trolls by imitating them?

'but... ... '

When I met the group again, I realized that it was a completely impossible plan.

There is no possibility that Masain will give permission, and as long as he is tightly guarded by your side, it will no longer be possible to escape secretly.

'Well, I've been having a lot of accidents lately.'

It seemed like I needed to be a little more cautious. After the Demon Counter Incident, Masain's anxiety and nervousness could be felt.

So, instead of trying to secretly explore the canyon, Seongjin stayed up all night searching for signs floating on the ice sculptures.

❑ Glacier Troll's Ice Heart ❑

❑ @#Vera%d Dungeon boss, ❑❑ obtained from the Glacier Troll King. You can set the activity conditions of the registered entity and give commands with simple sentences.❑

❑ Item grade: A ❑

I thought it was like a game, but it was really like an item. Plus, there's a dungeon boss.

Given that it is given to you when you catch the Glacier Troll King, wouldn't it be good to assume that there are already several items like this?

❑ *Current status#;aoie& server cannot be confirmed.❑

It's a server...

Is the 'server' with this broken name also within the normal world, or is the server perhaps the normal world itself?

Does the fact that it cannot be confirmed mean that it is a world that has already disappeared, like Ionia?

It was while I was fiddling with the ice cubes and thinking about various things.

Suddenly, Seongjin felt a strange feeling as if his consciousness was being sucked into a piece of ice.

'... ... ?!'

I was so startled that I lost sight of the ice cube, and that feeling immediately disappeared like a lie.

[what's the matter?]

'No, something...''

I held the ice cube in my hand again and concentrated, and as expected, my consciousness was sucked somewhere again.

But fortunately, contrary to Seongjin's initial worries, his soul did not suddenly leave his body like before.

Rather, it was closer to the feeling of being in a [gap]. Consciousness that exists in two places simultaneously is another type of expansion of consciousness.

'... It's a little different than back then.'

At the Scarzzapino mansion and in the world of flames created by my father.

Seongjin once felt as if his consciousness was greatly heightened and he was becoming bigger. At that time, her father definitely tried to dissuade her like this.

-You don't need to get there yet.

then.

If this was really dangerous, surely my father would come to stop me right away?

Seongjin, who came to that conclusion, closed his eyes while holding the ice cube and waited for a moment.

'... hmm. 'Father, you're not coming either.'

what. Then it's okay, right?

Only then did Seongjin feel a little relieved and surrender to the expanding consciousness. At the same time, in his spirit, thin solid lines began to appear vaguely extending somewhere from the ice cubes.

It was as if his consciousness was marking where he should go.

'One, two, three.'

Coincidentally, there were three lines in total.

☐Number of objects that can be registered 3/25☐

This can't be a coincidence. Seongjin was able to realize it intuitively.

okay. Just like the connection with Max, Seongjin's consciousness is connected to the Glacher Trolls through the ice sculpture!

Not long after that, Seongjin felt that his consciousness existed simultaneously in the ice of a canyon, in a snowdrift in a snowy field, and at the edge of a cold, unfrozen lake.

It was a brief and faint passing sensation, but perhaps these were the Glature Trolls registered in the 'Ice Heart'.

I tried to focus my attention on them a little more closely, but suddenly countless information windows began to appear in front of my eyes. There are so many overlapping things that it is impossible to recognize them even though they are in the process of being burnt.

'I'm crazy... ..'

Seongjin had no choice but to focus his attention on one of them. The closest thing to this place is the Glature Troll in the ice of the canyon.

And only then was Seongjin able to separate meaningful text from it.

[Sleep=

☐Temperature scroll: Activity (ice separation) -/- Sleep (ice fusion)☐

☐Mode setting: Auto / Manual☐

'The fact that the Marquis d'Aciano is looking for the Glature Trolls means that he can control them in the real world, right? Then, can I possibly move too?'

After struggling for a while and continuing trial and error, Seongjin was finally able to put the Glacher Troll in [Active] state. I found this out by turning the mode to 'Manual' and moving the temperature setting bar randomly.

Strangely, all of these could be controlled through meditation. Although it required a high degree of concentration.

Soon, the Glatre Troll started by Seongjin began to move from the spot, grinding away the ice.

'Something is acting strangely?'

First of all, I was glad that no more information windows appeared. The text is already disorganized and complexly overlapping, so what would have happened if the selection window had appeared randomly like in a maze?

'Come to think of it, the hand warmer Sisley gave me was like that too. 'Because you can make appropriate adjustments just by thinking about the temperature you want.'

It seemed like that was the way to move things in the normal world in the normal world.

Anyway, while trying to move the guy, there was one thing that Seongjin definitely learned.

first. Perhaps there are other Glacher Trolls sleeping within the ice of the canyon.

And second.

'It must be someone other than the Marquis d'Arciano who is running the Glatzer Troll!'

Although Seongjin is not good at multitasking, he is still not much weaker than others. Nevertheless, controlling an entity with thoughts requires such great concentration.

But while you are in control of your subordinates, you connect them and the Glacher Troll again through thoughts? Is it even worth the effort to do it through Lycan Slope, where reason is already clouded?

'Plus, they tried to connect more entities here. There is no way that many numbers could be controlled from such a distance. If they attack using a Glaturre Troll, there will definitely be someone controlling the Ice Heart nearby... ..'

In this way, Seongjin controlled the remaining two individuals and made them head towards the guard post. By then it was already early morning.

Crack, crack, crack.

Seongjin, who was absent-mindedly concentrating on the Glaturre Troll, whose movement was delayed due to breaking the thick ice little by little, suddenly thought.

Ugh, I want to eat shaved ice... ..

Then I fell asleep.

"Even former Dekaron Knight Commander Bruno can't perform Schneeschke so skillfully, right? "Your talent truly seems to be far beyond the scope of humans."

At Sir Valerie's next words, Seongjin, who had been blankly recalling yesterday's events, suddenly came to his senses.

"As expected, Sir Claudia always lives by the phrase 'our humble genius.' There is really nothing wrong with that."

"... Sir Claudia?"

"Yes, sir."

Sir Valerie nodded, rounding her eyes and smiling.

"Sometimes she is so affectionate that I feel like she is truly [attracted] to you."

"... .."

Uh, something...

It was when Seongjin was staring blankly at Sir Valerie's face, feeling somewhat unfamiliar.

Kuaaaaang!

Suddenly, there was a huge shock from behind and a thick fog rose up. The group, startled, rushes to draw their weapons.

"Oh, sorry for startling you. "Bingsu No. 3 tripped on a stone and fell."

Seongjin reassured the group with a puzzled look on his face.

It was Bingsu No. 3, a glamor troll that took a long time to break through the ice.

When I gathered three Glacher Trolls in one place, surprisingly, it was possible to make them act as a group. Thanks to this, Seongjin was able to control and move these guys without much difficulty.

But was he mistaken?

What makes No. 3 feel a bit sluggish compared to No. 1 and No. 2?

224. Air Raid (1)

Forming a formal punitive force takes more time than expected.

As it is a task that consumes a large amount of national treasury, it usually takes a year just to set goals and schedules and gather personnel.

However, in the case of the Lilium Detachment, the situation was different.

It was a unit that frequently carried out subjugation, and it was a place where fanatics gathered who would jump into the fiery pits of hell if they were with Prince Logan.

In addition, Prince Logan, who led them, was in a hurry like never before, and with the addition of the Holy Emperor's breath, the progress was truly smooth.

Chief Chamberlain Lewis wiped his cold sweat from his forehead as he prepared to see off the detachment that was leaving the imperial capital, preparing as if he was frying beans in a flash of lightning.

'A lot of things have happened recently. Something unusual is happening on the continent. Otherwise, His Majesty wouldn't be in such a hurry... ..'

There was another worry for Lewis recently.

Katrina Belpine.

The loyal knight commander known as the Emperor's Shield refused to leave the Emperor's side for several days.

He knew it well as he had been assisting the business for quite a long time.

The only time Katrina gets so bad is when things are not going well.

just as expected.

The morning before, Seonghwang, who was preparing to attend a political meeting, suddenly sat down on a chair without saying a word. Then he seemed to fall down on the desk and lose consciousness!

When Luis ran away in shock, Katrina, who was next to him, calmed him down.

"Your Majesty, something happened and you were away for a while. Doesn't this happen often? Rest assured, Chief Chamberlain."

As she said, Seonghwang came to his senses after a while, but Lewis could not control his pounding heart.

Since he has served Seonghwang for a long time, he is not unaware of such cases. But recently, he has been leaving my body without warning too often.

Besides, a few days ago, wasn't there a time when you couldn't regain consciousness for a while after leaving your body like this?

'So, it probably started with Prince Mores... ..'

Seonghwang, who noticed Lewis' worried gaze, raised his hand with a nonchalant expression.

"It's no big deal. I came to see Mores for a moment. For some reason, he was far away from his group. "I guess you could say he was like that kid, but in a short period of time, he brought another strange beast by his side."

Apart from his slightly tired face, Seonghwang seemed to be in quite a good mood.

However, there was no way the Chief Chamberlain could not recognize the fleeting concern that flashed across his face.

"If you were going to keep watching impatiently like this, wouldn't you have told me to return to the ecliptic immediately when the Lycan Slope moves?"

Seonghwang smiled faintly in response to Lewis' question.

"If you carry a child in your arms for the rest of his life because he is afraid of falling, won't he eventually be able to learn to walk?"

"... .."

Solving the large-scale movement on Lycan Slope seemed to be a task comparable to 'baby steps' for Seonghwang.

Seonghwang said it indifferently, but there were two blind spots.

One is that the level of injury suffered by the 'child' from falling was so fatal that it was unrivaled.

Another thing is that in order to take care of a child who waddles and runs everywhere, parents must first put aside everything and follow the child around all day.

'Besides, you've been going to the prayer room too often lately!'

These days, the Holy Emperor has been going to the prayer room in the heart of the palace almost every day.

[Gaps] have opened more frequently than before, but it may not be just that. He must be moving his soul somewhere and doing something else at the same time.

Originally, he was a man with no change in expression and an insensitive face, but the fact that he had particularly dry eyes after going to the grave was not at all a good sign in Lewis's opinion.

'... This situation cannot continue forever.'

The chamberlain could understand how Director Katrina felt as she could not leave Seonghwang's side all day. She, too, feels a sense of crisis regarding the current state of the city.

And before long, their fears turned out to be real.

Seonghwang, who was walking towards the conference hall for the morning political meeting, suddenly stopped and sighed softly.

"this... .."

A strange silver glow flashes through his eyes as he gazes somewhere far away.

Seonghwang just turned away.

"Katrina, I'm going to the prayer room now."

"... Is it [niche]?"

"okay."

The loyal knight commander seemed a little surprised, but soon bowed his head and began giving various instructions to his subordinates.

Meanwhile, Seonghwang quickly gave orders to Lewis.

"Louis."

"Yes, Your Majesty."

"It may be sudden, but please contact Tatyana to ask her to help with government affairs. I sent Benitus an official letter that I had prepared saying, 'Do not show off.' Delegate external matters to Capran and Cesare as before, but discuss them in advance with Cardinal Meyer if possible. and... .."

After speaking up to that point, Seonghwang paused for a moment, then twisted the corners of his mouth with a strange expression.

"If you see a guild informant who always comes here, tell them. 'I don't think I'll be able to go see 'that kid' for a while.'"

... That kid?

Before Lewis could question anything, Seonghwang left immediately after briefly conveying what he wanted to say. Following him, the Knights of Saint Aurelion, led by Katrina, follow one after another.

Eventually, only Louis, the chamberlain, and Sir Francis, the adjutant who had been entrusted with all duties by Katrina, were left in the place.

"Phew."

Francis muttered, pushing up his glasses and letting out a small sigh.

"How long will the leader have to suffer like this? "His Majesty Mores will have to return to the imperial capital soon."

At first glance, it sounded like an unknown cause-and-effect relationship, but Lewis understood it right away.

okay. Mores is me.

This uneasy atmosphere slowly began to surface after he left.

'... But is that all?

When did all sorts of disturbances begin to occur in the ecliptic, which seemed to be peaceful and unchanging forever? When did His Majesty start to become noticeably busier?

In fact, wasn't it after the prince woke up from his fever?

'What on earth is happening to him or to this Delcross now, Your Majesty?'

Captivated by a vague and ominous feeling, Lewis stood blankly for a while, looking in the direction of the deserted prayer room.

* * *

Nate, who entered the prayer room, immediately hugged the people and slowly closed his eyes.

As always, his consciousness expanded greatly and quickly swept across the continent.

First, he looked at his son who was far away.

Would you say he is truly like that kid? With the ice monsters that I haven't seen in a day on my tail, I'm running somewhere with Masain. He should definitely not overdo it anymore.

The Liliun punitive force is heading towards Sigismund at full speed. I think Logan will make it just in time.

In a flower garden full of blue flowers, I see a girl standing in shock. Yes, you will have no choice but to do that eventually.

Nate's gaze moves south again, and towards the ecliptic.

His godson is seen chatting with barbarian warriors in front of a huge sea animal that he hunted in a swamp. It's good that he grew up to be a strong warrior, but it would be nice if he returned to the imperial capital soon.

Amelia, holding a book open, caresses a small wooden statue with a worried look on her face. She's a pretty sensitive kid, so I guess she just can't concentrate on the book.

Sisley was also seen training with the Inquisitors. Her daughter's expression has brightened a lot recently, but she occasionally looks back at her northern sky with a worried face, as if she has an unusual premonition.

Tatiana attending a political meeting, Melody sitting in the greenhouse garden and praying, and... Lizabeth.

[Good luck dad! We will not take our eyes off Mores!]

[Dad, Your Majesty! We will crack down on Arenja well, so go!]

The twins, who are the most childlike yet pretend to be more adults than anyone else, convey their thoughts to him.

Nate was a little relieved by this, and as always, he twisted the open [gap] greatly and distorted the space to face himself.

Then, beyond the sharp, tangled cross-sections of space, the aspects he knew came to him with strong thoughts.

[You knew. Wasn't this all foreseen from the beginning?]

An old man is looking at Nate from afar.

[Now you will painfully realize how arrogant your actions were!]

Berseus holds the [Key] in his hand and smiles crookedly.

[If you change your mind at any time, come see me. Although the result may be painful, it will also be infinitely more beautiful.]

Mitra said, holding the bottle high.

[Krillarak! ㄸMae;Bttala#Gak!]

A huge stingray, which had forgotten even words, screamed as it gnawed at the [key] with its sharp teeth.

[I will never understand or admit what you did to us!]

A woman with heavy rain on her back said.

[If you can't turn it back, at least I hope your heart is at peace...]

A tree that had lived for countless years whispered.

And that concludes it.

Coo!

The alien demon king who fearlessly invaded Delcross alone revealed his gigantic form along with the entrance to the bottomless pit.

* * *

"... ... !"

"What do you think, sir?"

When Seongjin suddenly stopped, Masain looked back and asked curiously.

'what? Why do I suddenly get this eerie feeling?'

Seongjin tilted his head.

Perhaps reflecting his mood, the aura on his chest that was blocking the passage fluctuated greatly before quieting down.

"... No, nothing. "There's no time, so hurry up."

Seongjin tried to ignore the uncomfortable feeling and quickly walked towards Masain.

They had just stopped by the fourth guard post and were forcing the soldiers to retreat.

Every time I stopped by the guard post, the laughable incident of the soldiers going crazy over three shaved ice was repeated.

Still, when Orden explained it calmly, he somehow seemed to understand. Is it truly befitting of the sentinels of the devil's land to not show any agitation over trivial matters?

It was when they were about to lead the increased number of soldiers to the next guard post.

"... Grand Duke!"

Someone shouted from behind, running towards them at high speed. Instead of retreating the guard post, he was the fastest knight left to guard against the devil.

"Grand Duke! Gasp! "That Glatzer Troll!"

Hearing the driver's urgent cry, Seongjin and his party looked back at him blankly.

okay. As you can see, it's a glamor troll.

But now they tell me to call them shaved ice No. 1, 2, and 3.

However, the face of the knight who finally ran in front of the group was extremely serious. Panting heavily, he quickly reported to Orden.

"Glacier trolls, wow, on a large scale... It's an air raid! Gasp! "The number is by no means less than the Ice Base!"

"... ..!"

That wasn't the end.

"And wow, behind them are the Lycanslopes! "It seems like all the 500 animals that were thought to be heading to the snowfield turned towards the canyon!"

"this! "Was their actual target towards the canyon?"

Orden gritted his teeth and shouted.

Because most of the territory's power was concentrated on the ice wall base, the canyon fortress is currently almost empty.

"What is the distance?"

"Less than an hour."

It was hopeless.

They had already requested additional troops from the guard captain, but the enemy army was likely to rush into the fortress before they could even leave the territory.

"Let's hurry to retreat! "Send a signal in advance to the canyon fortress!"

Seongjin, who had been quietly listening to their conversation, raised his head. Soon Seongjin's urgent gaze meets Masain's nervous gaze.

-Sir Masain. You know that too, right? Maybe I can find out who controls the Glacier Trolls among them. If you just catch him, you will be able to greatly reduce the damage to your allies.

Just by looking at Seongjin's eyes, Masain knew what he wanted to talk about.

And Masain's answer to that was decisive.

-No way, sir!

Seongjin, facing those evil eyes, slightly turned his head.

okay. I thought so.

"Grand Duke. If you hurry, you'll somehow get to the fortress on time. I'm not going to go to the third ice wall, but isn't the height of the canyon fortress that high? "Once we get there, we'll probably be able to withstand their onslaught for a while."

Orden responded to Sir Oscar's words with a worried face.

"I guess so. The problem is the guard posts on the outskirts. "I sent a signal, but perhaps it would be unreasonable for them all to retreat in time."

Do we have no choice but to abandon the soldiers of the territory with whom we have endured hardships so far?

It was a time when Orden and the knights were in great agony.

Suddenly, a bright idea appeared in Seongjin's mind.

"ah! "What if it were like this?"

And after hearing his explanation, Masain and Orden's faces turned pale in an instant.

"... yes? yes?"

225. Air Raid (2)

Thump thump.

Earth-shaking vibrations approach quickly from afar.

Several soldiers who were rushing to the fortress following the emergency retreat signal looked at each other with puzzled expressions.

It's not even the time for the glamor trolls to be out and about, so what does this mean?

And they were soon able to visually confirm the identity of the vibration. This is because giant ice monsters suddenly appeared from the corner of the curved canyon.

"Ugh! "It's a Glatzer Troll!"

"escape! Run away!"

There is no way that they, who are only lowly soldiers, can deal with that gigantic magical beast.

The soldiers began to flee with all their might, using their best tactics. Fortunately, it ended quickly.

"Oh, don't go far!"

"Stop! "I am an ally of Sigismund!"

... what?

The soldiers who looked back and hesitated at the shout coming from the ice monster's eyes widened in another sense.

On the shoulder of the monster standing at the forefront, they saw the figure of someone they knew well. It was Orden, the archduke with a gaunt face.

"These are Vince... It is said that they are "We will not attack you."

bean... I beg your pardon?

"I came to help you retreat. "There's no time, so hurry up and get on here!"

"... Take a ride? "You mean the Glatzer Troll?"

"Rest assured that the prince is under good control."

It was a statement that made me doubt my ears, but wasn't it really three monsters kneeling in unison and lowering their posture?

My mouth was wide open at the unbelievable sight, but to my surprise, there were passengers on top of the ice monster. I could see the frightened faces of the prince, the knights of the Royal Guard, the Inquisitor, and even some of my fellow soldiers.

At that time, the prince who was attached to the head of Shaved Ice No. 1 poked his head out and warned him.

"At least get up to the top of your shoulders! "It's the part where the fall is the least when running!"

"... .."

"ah! Don't ride the guy in third. He fell a few times on the way there. "If you're not careful, you might get crushed by a pile of ice!"

The soldiers climbed up the ice monster's body, hesitating as if they were possessed by something. So let them settle down near the shoulders -

"Okay then, let's go."

Take the prince's words as a signal.

Kurrrrrr.

Making a heavy noise, the three Glature Trolls slowly stand up.

"Hold on tight! Don't forget to protect your head and neck with Aura!"

The prince's words were mixed with the sound of the wind and could not be heard properly. Because of the monsters' sudden acceleration, a strong wind blew into their faces.

The soldiers screamed as they grabbed random chunks of ice.

Thump thump!

Once again, the air in the canyon shook violently, and the snow on the cliff fell in patter.

'I wasted too much time!'

Meanwhile, Seongjin, who controls three shaved ice, was anxious in many ways.

Even though I now have passengers and have the hang of it, it took more time than expected to persuade the soldiers I met for the first time to get on the shaved ice.

Well, it's not something you can't understand. Because they have lived their entire lives fighting against demonic beasts in the demon world.

So, in a hurry, I let the shaved ice run at full speed, and this time the ride quality got extremely bad. Even if you keep hitting the car next to you while racing off-road, I can confidently guarantee that the impact will be less than this.

'I can't do this twice. When I was young, I had a fantasy about giant robots.'

It's a shame that he protected his body with aura, otherwise he would have suffered a concussion long ago.

"How much time is left now?"

"We only need to go around two more guard posts, sir!"

After answering like that, Orden looked at Seongjin with new eyes.

If you think about it, isn't Prince Mores the one who thought of the possibility of an attack by Glature Trolls and figured out how to control them?

Not only was the ice base able to prepare in advance, but it was also able to save the lives of soldiers it had almost given up on.

"Sigsmund owes you a great debt once again."

Seongjin made a bewildered expression at those words.

This and that are all debts. you man Then it goes bankrupt.

"What is so great about this?"

Yes, the first thought that came to Seongjin's mind was an extremely simple one.

If shaved ice measuring over 10 meters were to run at full speed, how fast would it be? Since the low hill can be crossed in one step, wouldn't it be possible to save all the soldiers who are delayed in retreating?

Even if you don't make it in time, you might be able to sneak by among the invading Glacher trolls.

Of course, the backlash against the idea was extreme!

In particular, Masain was furious and got angry at Seongjin.

"I don't even know what kind of devil's trick this is! But you are riding that suspicious thing yourself? "How will it appear to others?"

"Then, I'll take Sir Valerie with me as proof that it's okay. "What's the problem with the Inquisitor, who can be considered the spokesperson for the Inquisition?"

"yes? Why did I suddenly... .. ?"

Since when did I become the spokesperson for the Inquisition? Don't I have the right to veto?

Ignoring the red-haired Inquisitor muttering helplessly behind him, Masain's blood rose even more in his neck.

"It was only yesterday that you came back covered in blood! But you're doing something dangerous by yourself again? "I am absolutely against it!"

"Then why don't you, Lord Martha, ride with me? If I'm going to do something dangerous, I'll at least do it in front of Lord Masaine. "If something happens, you can help me appropriately, right?"

"Ugh... .. !"

Ah, Lord Masaine. Did you just do it? yes?

"... But low! Aside from us, that Vince... The question is whether soldiers who see them for the first time will ride them obediently. How did you come up with the idea of boarding a magical beast in the first place?"

"Then let's take the Grand Duke along as proof that the shaved ice is safe! The heir of a reputable territory will explain it well to them. yes?"

"... .."

No, there's something about that that I don't like," Orden pursed his lips with an expression on his face.

Where to go on the Orden topic!

The lives of the soldiers here are at stake, right? In the first place, you have no choice!

That's how we got here as a group, riding on shaved ice 1.

The control felt clunky as we had to make the three Glacher Trolls move in unison, but fortunately, except for Bingsu 3 rolling on the floor a few times, the plan went smoothly.

Oh, except for the fact that some soldiers who were inexperienced in using Aurors were vomiting or stretched out from exhaustion.

Some time after that-

"Ahh! "It's a Glatzer Troll!"

"Relax! "It's an ally!"

"Don't ride No. 3, protect yourself with Aura!"

After repeating the process, Seongjin and his party were finally able to rescue all the soldiers at the guard post.

"Lowering. "There is no time anymore!"

Seongjin concentrated his mind on Orden's shout.

Sir Oscar, who led the rest of the party to the Canyon Fortress first, probably explained the general situation to the people. Then, even if he runs a little noisily, there won't be a big fuss.

"Everyone, hold on tight!"

At the same time.

Coo!

Three ice monsters kick off the floor and jump up at the same time. The frozen ground and the ice bridge collided violently, and small ice fragments scattered in all directions sparkled dazzlingly in the sunlight.

Hwii-

"I flew... ..!?"

With the soldiers' shocked cries.

Kwaaaang!!

The Glaturre Trolls jumped over a wide chasm in one go and began running gallantly toward the border of the territory.

* * *

At that time, at the Canyon Fortress, Sir Oscar was in the midst of an argument with the fortress's manager.

The person in charge was a fairly old knight named Sir Hans, who had retired from active duty due to an injury and was now in charge of all security around the canyon.

"So let's widen the entrance to the fortress as much as possible!"

"No, vice-captain. Does that make sense? The demonic beasts will come soon. "There isn't enough time to close the entrance and freeze it!"

"But the Archduke said he would bring back all the stragglers! "How many of them will be able to quickly climb the ice wall on a pulley rope!"

"But you can't neglect the defense of the fortress, right? "The safety of the territory is at stake."

In response to Sir Hans's awkward answer, Sir Oscar lowered his voice as much as possible.

"There is also a young prince from the Holy Empire among the group! Are you going to tell him to climb this height himself on a rope?"

"That's true, but... .."

Sir Hans picked his ears with a disapproving look on his face.

Then, boom boom boom!

A tremendous tremor began to approach from afar. The vibration was strong enough to slightly shake the ice walls of the fortress.

"Oh, look! The Grand Duke has finally arrived... ..!"

Sir Oscar's face, which had been turning around with a smile, suddenly hardened.

What appeared across the canyon were dozens of Glacher Trolls coming in droves.

It was an enemy airstrike.

"... Grand Duke!"

Sir Oscar grits his teeth with a sad look on his face.

In the end, you couldn't make it on time!

"... coming."

At that time, the exorcist, who was staring into space with blank eyes, spoke softly.

They were all members of the prince's party with strong personalities, but among them, it was the Holy Knight who tended to give off a particularly gloomy aura.

Even now, she was grinning evilly and mumbling something unintelligible in a hoarse voice.

"yes. That's right. It is as you said. Hehehe. Because Mores is Mores, right? Ah, yes. is it so. Mores is none other than Mores. "Huh."

A strange appearance, as if possessed by a ghost.

Sir Oscar was looking at her with a tired face, but suddenly Sir Claudia jumped up and shouted.

"oh! Look over there!"

She had already strengthened her eyesight with Aura.

"excuse me! "Your Majesty is coming!"

Just as she said, three familiar ice monsters appeared at the fork in the canyon leading south. That figure running with people carrying them on their shoulders.

"Lowering!"

"Your Majesty!"

However, the group's happiness was short-lived.

Coo! Thump thump thump thump!

With a strong impact sound, one of the enemy Glacher Trolls suddenly increased its speed and started running towards the fortress. The intention was clearly to notice the movements of the prince and his party and stop them!

Sir Oscar shouted in urgency.

"I'm going down! "Hurry and lower the pulley!"

"Oh, no, but... .."

But there was someone who hit Sir Oscar's player.

In an instant, a knight catches the rope in front of him and jumps without fear from the top of the fortress, which is well over 20 meters high.

It was the resident knight, Sir Maria, who usually spoke little and was quiet.

[illegible]

A pulley spinning like crazy.

The soldiers belatedly took the line, but Sir Maria, who had slipped on the ice wall as if she were falling, had almost reached the bottom.

Sniff. She jumped the remaining distance without hesitation, slowly walked forward and drew her sword. She was facing the enemy Glatzer Troll straight in the face.

Maybe it's because I'm not used to Schneeshuhe enough to run yet. However, there was a weight in that deliberate movement that strongly attracted the hearts of the knights.

Sir Oscar, who was unconsciously mesmerized by the sight, came to his senses belatedly and grabbed the next pulley.

Doo doo doo doo.

At that time, the prince's guards had almost reached the edge of the fortress. However, the Glature Troll running alone from the front was a little faster.

The ice monster did not slow down and rushed towards Sir Maria, who was blocking its path.

"Sir Maria!"

She is clearly the Greenhouse Knight of the Imperial Capital who is dealing with a demonic beast for the first time.

Nevertheless, the momentum of the high-ranking knight, who was slowly leaking a distinct external energy, was more than enough to overwhelm the momentum of the ice monster that was launched at once.

Cheoeok.

With a step taken with the weight of a large mountain.

Sir Maria's sharp sword cuts deep into the thick ice in concentric circles.

Banajas Type 5 Type 6. Bee hive sting.

Kwa-kwa-kwa-kwak!

The blade of the sword shot out like lightning, brutally stabbing the leg of the Glacher Troll that was approaching. The essence of a stab that boasts one of the most destructive powers in the standard swordsmanship of the Imperial Knights.

Whoops!

The monster, whose feet were blown wide open, momentarily lost its balance and stumbled. At that moment, Bingsu No. 1 came right next to the guy, lightly passed him and walked quietly behind him.

Craddangtangtang!

The huge ice monster fell to the ground noisily, momentarily shaking the fortress.

"Sir Maria!"

When Seongjin reached out for Shaved Ice No. 1, Maria quickly jumped on top of it and shouted.

"You were almost late, sir!"

"Anyway, that's true! "What on earth is this dangerous?"

The prince who was shouting so loudly had a truly angry face.

Sir Maria, who looked at Seongjin with wide eyes for a moment at that unexpected scolding, eventually let out a light laugh.

"I was worried too, sir."

"... "No, whatever."

Seongjin sheepishly turned his head and gave an awkward look.

"Lowering! "Hurry!"

"There is no time!"

At that time, I saw the group on top of the fortress stamping their feet and shouting at him.

Seongjin roughly estimated the distance to the enemy and informed Orden without hesitation.

"Time is running out. "I guess I'll have to open the fortress entrance myself."

"yes? Lowering. What are you going to do..."

Orden asked in confusion, but instead of answering, Bingsu No. 3 burst out of line from the side.

Seongjin, who gradually got a knack for controlling shaved ice, began to individually control No. 3, which was light and had no people on board.

"no!?"

Sir Hans is frightened by the sight of an ice monster approaching with terrifying force.

"Open the way, Shaved Ice No. 3!"

With the prince's orders.

Kuaang!

The mighty fist of the Glatrue Troll rushed towards the narrow fortress entrance.

226. Air Raid (3)

Cooung-

With one punch from the ice monster, a large hole is dug at the entrance to the ice wall. The entire fortress shook at once from the impact.

"What the hell is this!"

A frightened Sir Hans stuck his head out of the ice wall and screamed.

"Lowering!"

Orden, who had become thoughtful, belatedly tried to dissuade Seongjin.

Hwiik-

There was no hesitation in the movements of Shaved Ice No. 3. The fist raised high comes down and hits the ice wall again.

Quaaaang!

".....!"

Damn it.

This time, part of the ice wall cracked and the area near the entrance collapsed significantly. When Bingsu No. 3 pulled out his arm, which was stuck deep in the ice, a cave wide and deep enough to fit a wagon was created.

Crashing, broken pieces of ice fall to the floor.

"...Is that how strong the Glacher Troll is?"

The ice monster's two punches were enough to scare everyone present.

During the winter these would sometimes come down close to the border, but they never caused any significant damage to the ice wall.

'If they come all at once and keep pounding on the ice wall with that kind of force...'

Isn't it only a matter of time before the fortress falls?

Orden, forgetting to stop the prince, imagined the worst with a blank face.

In fact, this happened because it was a proper punch from someone who had fought with only his bare fists his whole life, but there was no way Orden would have known that fact.

"It would be impossible to cut through all the passageways. The lower wall is too thick."

The person who showed such terrifying destructive power seemed to be somewhat dissatisfied.

"Anyway, why are you making such a stupid face, Archduke? You need to move now!"

"...yes?"

"Take the people and hide inside there. It can't be helped that the entrance to the tunnel is a little crushed, but you will be able to clear the blockage easily."

The approaching Glature Trolls are already just around the corner. There was no time.

However, the number of soldiers rescued was quite large, and to make matters worse, there were not many people who could properly brace themselves due to the enormous forced march.

It will be difficult for everyone to enter the fortress through the entrance tunnel in time.

Seongjin, who judged that, improvised and created a space to evacuate them. While I was gathering myself one by one and moving through the tunnel, I needed a place to hide from the enemy, even if only for a moment.

"...It's clear to the outside anyway, so what's the point in taking refuge there?"

"I'll take care of that, so don't worry."

"....."

I have no idea what they are going to do. However, after catching a glimpse of the prince's confident eyes, Orden was overcome by a strange feeling that something might really work out.

"Hurry up!"

Kurrrrrr.

The shaved ice cars carrying people bow down in front of the entrance and lower their posture. Dozens of soldiers who were hanging in a huddle began to climb down the ice monster's arms.

Most of the soldiers were walking unsteadily, but there were also many soldiers who were unable to move at all.

Surprisingly, Bingsu No. 2 carefully moves his arm and brushes them away toward the pit. It was a fairly delicate movement.

Not only Sir Maria, but even Sir Valerie, who was relatively intact, jumped down and started helping the people.

"Aren't you going?"

Orden, who was carrying two soldiers who had fainted from concussion, looked back at Seongjin and asked.

"Because I have to control the shaved ice. And Lord Martha...."

He also looked at the people with the hope that he would help them, but Masain flatly refused with a hard look on his face.

"I must be by your side."

Uh, okay. I expected that.

It was when Seongjin was scratching his cheek shyly.

Kurrrrrr.

Suddenly, the enemy Glacher troll that had fallen down wriggled and tried to get up.

"...this!"

Seongjin, who had completely disengaged from the group as he was carrying out the detailed work of moving people, attempted to move shaved ice No. 3 at the same time, which he had been putting down for a moment in his haste.

Fortunately, Seongjin's will was passed on to Bingsu No. 3.

Coo!

Thanks to this, the ice monster, which almost got up and rushed at him, was quickly overpowered by Shaved Ice No. 3 and rolled on the floor. The guy wriggled violently, but Bingsu No. 3 was using his limbs to tie him up tightly, as if he was wrestling.

Orden, who was nervous for a moment, sighed in relief and spoke to Seongjin.

"Then, your Majesty, please evacuate in time."

But there was no answer back.

It has to be that way. Seongjin was already busy controlling the three shaved ices individually.

While Bingsu No. 1 lowers his posture and assists, Bingsu No. 2 carefully moves the people into the pit. And Bingsu No. 3 was working hard next to her to subdue the enemy Glacher Troll.

So, you really don't have the energy to care about your body.

"Hurry, Archduke. I think your Majesty will only move once your evacuation is complete."

Orden, who was nodding at Sir Martha's recommendation, suddenly felt something eerie and looked at the prince's face again.

"...Lowering?"

what? For a moment, I felt like the prince's eyes were sparkling strangely.

But there was no time to delay. Orden, urged by Masain, jumped down toward the ice cave carrying his soldiers.

'weird... ... '

Meanwhile, Seongjin was thinking blankly, holding his ice heart.

He was clearly busy controlling the shaved ice with the same tricks as before. At some point, I lost consciousness and felt dizzy, and it was no longer a hassle to move them in turns.

'No, something is different.'

Right now, I am not 'manipulating' these things to move.

I feel like I have become shaved ice. I had a strange feeling, with my body and mind splitting into three branches and my vision expanding in all directions.

-The evacuation is over, sir. Now you too must move.

Masain's voice in my ear feels distant, as if a layer of veil were covering it.

Nevertheless, Seongjin clearly understood the meaning of his words and the situations occurring around him.

And what you should do now.

'Now we have to stop the ice wall, Bingsu No. 2.'

As soon as Seongjin thinks that, the ice monster closest to the entrance moves its body.

Kurrrrrr.

The large hole in the ice wall was completely covered by the body of Shaved Ice No. 2. Even though there were no specific instructions on how to move, it was done in what Seongjin thought was the most ideal form.

And before his eyes, a guide window to the world of normalcy, clearly distinguished from before, appears.

□Individual 2□

□Temperature scroll: Activity (ice separation) ----- Sleep (ice fusion)□

As Seongjin moved the scroll in thought, the temperature of the ice monster stuck to the wall dropped sharply and it began to freeze solidly on the ice wall.

Damn it.

Small ice crystals grow here and there, filling up all the gaps between the Glatute Troll and the ice wall, as well as some of the cracks.

"...What is this...."

Everyone in the fortress held their breath at the sight, which was hard to believe even after seeing it with their own eyes.

Sir Hans, who had been running wild just now, saying that the prince must have gone crazy, was so shocked that his eyes were now popping out.

"Lowering!"

At that time, Masain called Seongjin again in an urgent voice.

The ice wall has filled in before they can escape, and they are now forced to climb the ice wall on ropes.

However, even though the enemy is right in front of us, there is still no answer from the prince who holds the heart of ice in his hand.

Masain, who was shaking Seongjin with a look of frustration, suddenly noticed something on Seongjin's face and took a deep breath.

".....!"

The prince's eyes were shining strangely.

An inorganic brilliance that seems to reflect everything in the world. It is not an unfamiliar sight to Masain.

Didn't someone he knew well often do this too?

"...Excuse me, sir!"

Masain, who intuitively sensed Seongjin's condition, quickly carried him on his shoulder and looked around.

The entrance is already completely blocked with frozen shaved ice No. 2. He measured the height of the ice wall, then his face hardened and he launched himself with all his might.

Papak!

Masain jumped upwards from the head of Shaved Ice No. 1 and stepped firmly on the ice, holding on to the rope hanging on the wall.

"All, pull! Pull the rope!"

Sir Oscar, who was anxiously watching the scene from the fortress, encouraged the soldiers.

Soon, the rope that supported Masain and Seongjin's bodies began to pull upward.

"Sir! Sir, what is happening all of a sudden?"

You have to wake up first.

Masain, having decided so, called out to the prince repeatedly while holding on to the rope with one hand.

But there was still no reaction from the prince. Even though his eyes were clearly open.

-Are you okay? Lowering! Come to your senses!

And Seongjin was also keenly aware that his current condition was not normal. She was listening to Masain's voice without missing a single word.

It was just that his shouts seemed to be heard in my ears and at the same time as if they were coming from very far away.

His limp limbs were shaking uncomfortably with Masain's movements, but Seongjin couldn't even think about supporting himself.

Instead, it was shaved ice No. 1 that began to move in response to his will.

Kurrrrrr.

Bingsu No. 1 slowly stood up with his back to the fortress and stood facing the group of Glature Trolls that were right in front of him.

24 Glazer Trolls.

Including the guy who fell in front of the fortress, this is probably the maximum number that 'Ice Heart' can register.

'... Ah, yes.'

Seongjin suddenly realized.

Those are my enemies. But Lord Martha won't let me fight them anyway.

Then, isn't there someone here who is willing to fight the enemy on my behalf?

'I already know that. 'But why would I bother to return to my body now?'

The bodies of shaved ices are huge, strong, and can be reused at any time. It's okay to run wild!

Clumping.

Following Seongjin's will, Bingsu 1 clenched his fists vigorously.

A strong fist that can crush and destroy most living things in an instant. A pleasant smile bursts out along with a refreshing sense of liberation.

'haha!'

Then, Bingsu No. 1 responded and cried out loudly.

Woooooo-

and.

thud. thud. thud.

The ice monster ran lightly with wide steps and immediately swung its fist as soon as it encountered the enemy. It was natural that they could not respond properly to such a sudden preemptive attack.

Whoa!

With a tremendous impact sound, the head of the Glacher Troll standing in the lead exploded at once.

* * *

"Lord Masaine!"

"Hey!"

Masain, with the prince around him, was able to quickly climb over the wall with the help of the group on the ice wall.

Wong wong!

The wolf dog sent to the fortress first with the group ran at them, wagging its tail vigorously as if the leash had been cut off. Sir Claudia, who was pulling the rope almost as if she was about to cry, also throws the pulley aside and hurries over.

She looked at the prince slouching on Masain's shoulder and asked with a worried face.

"Lord Masaine. Why are you acting like this all of a sudden? You're hurt somewhere..."

"No, it's probably nothing. You'll be fine, Sir Claudia."

Masaine took off his winter clothing, laid it on the ice, and carefully laid Prince Mores on top of it.

Chop chop.

The dog that came next to him kept licking his cheek, but the prince still didn't move at all. If you don't look closely, you'll wonder if he's even breathing.

The only sign that the prince was alive was the occasional flash of silver in his half-open eyes.

"...Shouldn't we call the council member right away?"

Sir Hans asked cautiously, as the situation was obviously not normal. I hope that this will be enough to cover up the crime of lese majeste that I committed when I was not in a good mood.

But Masain shook his head.

"It's okay. Rather, please help those trapped at the entrance to move into the fortress. Not only the Archduchess, but also Sir Maria and Inquisitor Valery are still trapped at the entrance."

Then he stood up and looked at the demonic beasts approaching, filling the canyon.

Dozens of Glacher Trolls approached close by, and hundreds of Lycanslopes followed behind from a little distance away.

"We need to find a way to deal with those demonic beasts right now. Didn't you just see that? If those Glaturre Trolls stick and pound properly, the ice walls of this fortress won't be able to hold out for long."

"Huh!"

"For now, our group will go outside. How many other Oryo users are there in the fortress who can fight?"

Then Sir Hans muttered with an embarrassed look on his face.

"All those with good skills have been sent to the Ice Wall base. All that is left in the fortress now is a guard for minimum security. We have requested reinforcements from the territory, but now there are four Wolf Knights, including Vice-Captain Oscar. It'll be everything."

He had strong faith in only one ice wall.

Masain was conflicted at that answer.

Isn't this a hopeless number to even call it a military force? Can't we just carry the prince around and evacuate to the imperial capital like this?

at that time.

Slurp.

The sound of a sword being drawn was heard.

"But Lord Massaine, you will still want to fight as long as you can."

As if sensing his agony, Sir Claudia spoke with a determined expression. Commander Bruno and Sir Calmen also quietly look at Masaine, clutching their swords behind her.

A steadfast gaze that does not even think of retreat and does not show even the slightest sign of conflict.

Masain suddenly felt dumbfounded, and looked down at the prince lying quietly and laughed.

'Lowering. Since when on earth did our group become so helpless that they couldn't tell what was coming and just rushed in? Isn't this all due to degradation?'

But maybe that's the same for me too. Could it be that we are becoming incorrigible like these people?

Without knowing whether the heat quietly boiling in his chest was pride or shame, Masain slowly pulled Misra from his belt.

Then, as if they could not be defeated, the Wolf Knights also bravely drew their swords.

"The Gorge Fortress is the last bastion in the north that defends the Sigismund Territory! All Wolf Knights, raise your swords!"

Sir Oscar shouted in a voice full of spirit.

"Archers, raise your bows! If possible, load up the aurors and aim at their hearts!"

That was when they steeled themselves and were about to go down the ice wall.

As they held on to the rope and looked down, they saw an unbelievable sight.

thud! thud! thud!

The ice monster suddenly rushed forward with great force, blowing off the head of the leading enemy in one blow!

Whoa!

A loud bang accompanied by a huge impact sound that shook the canyon! The Glacher Troll's head falls to pieces.

".....!"

Before they could even see the flying pieces of ice, the ice monster quickly turned around and this time raised its elbow and struck the heart of the guy next to him.

Quang!

Whoops!

The heart of the monster that was standing stupidly was torn into pieces, and the body of the huge Glature Troll collapsed to the floor, helpless.

Craddangtangtang!

Tremors strong enough to shake the fortress surround the area.

Of course, the ice monster had already turned away from him and was already moving quickly in search of another target.

"...What is this?"

"Vince... is that Vince?"

The amazing action of one Glacher Troll.

Everyone in the fortress looked down in fascination, completely forgetting the sense of crisis from earlier.

"Oh! That...!"

However, Lord Calmen, who was stupidly opening his mouth, suddenly clapped his hands as if he remembered something.

okay! Surely those movements looked a lot like someone he knew?

therefore.

The young boy who had single-handedly defeated seven capital guards.

"...no way?"

Then, Leader Bruno, who had been quietly observing the battle of the Glatire Trolls, nodded.

"It certainly resembles his movements. It seems you are still controlling Vince."

Before he could finish his words, the four Glacher Trolls in the lead instantly became incapable of fighting.

While the panicked enemies were scrambling to find the target, Vince, who had run quickly, was now digging into the center of the Glatire Trolls.

"The Glatzer Troll... is it something that can move like that?"

Even Sir Oscar, who has been through many hardships in the Demonic World for over a dozen years, is seeing this for the first time.

While everyone in the fortress was shocked, only Sir Sharon looked into space with a relaxed expression and muttered.

"Hehehe. What is it? Mores, if your father sees you, he will definitely scold you. Yes. Hehehe. No, Mores, aren't you feeling too relaxed without your father's Majesty? It's okay. That's right. Hehehe."

227. Air Raid (4)

The northern canyon is a rugged area lined with high cliffs left behind by the disappearance of glaciers.

It is known that it is advantageous for defense because the border between it and Magyeong is relatively narrow, but it is not a space that can be blocked by a single person.

It is wide enough for giant 10-meter-long Glacher Trolls to walk side by side in a line.

Seongjin realized that even if he foolishly stood in front of the fortress, he would not be able to intercept all of this ice monster's troops.

'In that case, I'll make it so that you have to stop me from over there!'

That was the reason why Bingsu No. 1, who had destroyed those in the lead, suddenly jumped into the middle of the group of Glacher Trolls.

Puff puff!

The center of the line is greatly disturbed by Seongjin's rapid attacks. Then, they all stopped moving toward the fortress and began moving toward Bingsu No. 1 as their target.

'also... ... !'

Whoops!

Seongjin quickly shook his head, breaking the heart of one of the guys in the back line and drawing the enemies deeper.

As expected, there is only one 'Ice Heart' with 25 Glaturre Trolls registered. He's also a manipulator.

The enemy pilot, except for the one captured by Shavedsu No. 3, designates everyone as one group and manipulates them to react to one goal.

'... Besides, he's not that good at hand-to-hand combat.'

Although the glamor trolls surrounding the No. 1 shaved ice are shaking their fists in droves, their movements are so simple that they make you sigh.

If it were Seongjin, he would have focused on controlling one person and intercepting the intruder.

In any case, it was clear that the guy controlling the ice monsters was around here. Nine times out of ten, they will be at the rear of this line.

In that case, the closer Bingsu No. 1 approaches, the more threatened it will feel, and it will not be able to advance towards the fortress carelessly.

Rumble.

The pieces of ice that were shattered and scattered on the floor regain their shape and rise up. As I heard from Orden earlier, as long as they didn't destroy the heart at once, they seemed to be constantly replenishing ice to restore their bodies.

And this entire area is covered with abundant ice.

'But it's the same here!'

As soon as Seongjin thought that.

Kurrrr.

Bingsu No. 1's arm, which had suffered a major crack from repeatedly hitting the enemy, was repaired in an instant.

Seongjin spins his forearm, which is instantly covered with solid ice. Without realizing it, I raised the corners of my mouth.

'ruler. Let's see how long you guys can hold out?'

* * *

Wow-

Those who were anxiously looking out from the fortress came to their senses when they heard the pitiful howl of a wolf dog.

When I turned my head, the wolf dog that was licking the prince's cheek suddenly curled its tail and whined as if it was scared.

"...Your Majesty is smiling."

Sir Claudia said this after seeing the prince's faintly smiling face. Then he wrapped his arms around her shoulders and started shaking slightly.

"Wow, you're just smiling, but why does it feel like I'm getting chills for no reason?"

As she said, it felt like the temperature around me had dropped significantly, to the extent that it could be sensed even in the frigid Sigismund Territory.

'Well, it's not something you'll experience once or twice while living by His Majesty's side.'

After confirming that the prince was still breathing evenly, Masain turned his head again and looked at the canyon with worried eyes.

The Glature Trolls are slowly retreating, led by Vince, but is this really all the enemy has in store?

Even if that were the case, there were still hundreds of Lycanslopes camped out in the distance. After the Glacher Trolls' ranks collapsed, they stopped coming closer and just stared at the fortress with bloodshot eyes.

'Whether it's fast or late, if we want to force the enemy to retreat completely, we have no choice but to get out of the fortress.'

Masain thought like that and opened his mouth.

"As soon as the Glature trolls retreat, let's wake him up. It's true that the fortress has turned a corner thanks to you, but we can't leave him like this forever."

Then, from the side, Sir Sharon grinned darkly and added,

"Hehehe. Yes, the situation is not good for Mores. If you do something wrong, your father might leave everything behind and come back? That's right."

"....."

"Hehe. Mores needs some kind of opportunity. Are you saying that he needs someone to awaken his spirit instead of his father, His Majesty? Really."

Sir Hans looked at Sir Sharon with a puzzled expression.

For those who don't know much, she is making profane remarks about both the emperor and the prince.

"Bu, blasphemy...."

"This is not what she says, so pay no more attention."

Next to him, Director Bruno coldly cut him off.

"Bringing someone else in with you does not make the lese majeste offense you committed earlier, Sir Hans."

At those words, the aged fortress commander lowered his head in a cold sweat.

I made a mistake with my mouth for a while in my later years and things got so complicated.

Meanwhile, Seongjin, who had completely defeated half of the enemy ice monsters, was already in a trance.

Flutter!

Damn it!

The more you break the hearts of each of them, the more your keen senses from your prime come back to life, and your expanded spirit becomes endlessly exalted.

[Lowering...]

Someone's faint thoughts that seemed to disappear tickled his ears.

It was a voice that felt vaguely familiar and extremely sad.

[I must now go a long way from which I may never return. It will be a path that cannot be told to anyone. It's a world full of regrets, and the only person here who knows me as a whole is you. Please stay...]

Faint thoughts are cut off by that.

However, Seongjin was unknowingly answering to the master of thought that he did not know who he was.

are you okay. Even if it takes a long time, you will come back here someday.

[...] Do it, repent.]

[Bethelah. Only the penance of sacrificing one's whole life...]

And after that, a number of murky thoughts disturbed Seongjin's ears.

[Repent, repent.]

[Bethelah. Only the pain that leads to death...]

It's really noisy. Look at this! The entire northern region is covered with your thoughts! How long do you plan to keep doing such nonsense?

[Bethelah. So, only when we come to full repentance...]

Don't be funny. Shall I tell you the truth?

Even in death, your suffering will never end. Another eternal pain awaits.

It was when I was laughing like that without thinking. Suddenly, someone's strong will came into Seongjin's ear.

[■■■■ ■■!]

... what?

Seongjin tensed up and listened.

Even though the words were completely incomprehensible, he somehow realized that the voice was calling him.

[Are you really ■■■■ ■■? Ah, I finally found you!]

The moment it identified Seongjin, that thought immediately and strongly clashed with my will. The surprise and joy that emanated from him were so passionate that it was extremely burdensome to face them directly.

[The moment you came to visit me, I have been calling you ever since! I was told that there was no interference from the guardian, but now it looks like a 'gap' has opened up!]

okay. I guess so.

Seongjin thought bitterly.

[Now is your chance. Come back to us quickly! We are all anxiously waiting for you!]

okay. Maybe it would be better that way.

It's this and that, let's see, it's really annoying...

That was when I thought about it.

A voice that sounded like it was ringing suddenly invaded Seongjin's mind.

[Lee Seong-jin!]

Woe!

As if cold water had been poured on me, I suddenly came to my senses.

[this! Almost done! Alas, just wait a moment! Don't close the connection! ■■... ..!]

The man's voice quickly fades away, and Seongjin's vision returns clearly.

Clumping.

When I realized that my hand was inadvertently being held tightly, I saw that Seongjin was strangling the neck of a Glacher Troll with the hand of Shaved Ice No. 1.

'... ..!'

The guy who was lifted up by the neck by Seongjin was struggling on his legs.

At least that was the only thing that moved. When I looked around, I saw the broken remains of Glacher Trolls all over the place. The number seems to be well over 20.

Sure enough, I see three or four ice monsters running away in a hurry in the distance.

Did they decide that they could no longer lose power pointlessly? In the end, it looks like they are planning to retreat operationally.

As I was looking at them blankly, a clanging sound continued in my head.

[Wow! Seongjin Lee, do you know what I just discovered? Well, I guess controlling those things is... What are you doing now?]

The demon lord who left my mind for a moment to look around came back with a decision.

And the Demon King, who was closely examining Seongjin, was frightened.

[hey! Are you crazy? Why is my soul somehow coming out of my body again? What is this guy who already has an insecure connection with his body doing? Hey, you're really going to die!]

'... ... '

Around that time, changes occurred in the enemy's rearguard as well.

There was a big commotion among the Lycan Slopes, and soon they began to disappear one by one beyond the canyon. A few surviving Glacher Trolls stagger after the group.

'It looks like the guy controlling the ice heart is hiding among the lycan slopes.'

What should I do now?

Should we reorganize the remaining guys and attack again? Or shall we try to replenish the power lost in the canyon?'

While I was thinking that, the demon lord was racing in my head and making a fuss.

[Lee Seong-jin! Seongjin Lee! Hey, Lee Seong-ji!]

'Oh, it's noisy.'

Still, thanks to this guy, I came to my senses.

At some point, the strange sense of unity as if I had become one with Shaved Ice No. 1 had disappeared. Seongjin slowly blinked his eyes, feeling his body fully awaken.

"...Lowering!"

"Sir! Are you coming to your senses now?"

The welcoming voices of Martha and Sir Claudia are heard from the bedside.

Chop chop.

When I wondered why his face was strangely sticky, Max had been licking his face ever since.

"Uh, it's okay. Just a moment."

Seongjin responded by swinging his arm and biting the wolf dog.

Maybe it's because I was the first person to enjoy shaved ice until just now, but the movements of my arms and legs are strangely unfamiliar.

He slowly got up and tried to walk, but Masain, who noticed what he was trying to do, quickly supported Seongjin from the side.

"Shall we take you to the ice wall like this?"

Seongjin nodded without answering.

Yes, the enemy has retreated, but we need to finish off the remaining ones.

So Seongjin looked out of the fortress and focused his mind on the ice heart.

As my condition gradually recovered and I was able to stand on my own, the feeling of controlling the shaved ice was back to the cumbersome way it was at first.

But there was no rush. Controlling the remaining shaved ice was not that difficult, as No. 2 stuck to the ice wall and completely stopped its activities, and No. 3 had to just roll around on the floor with the Glacher Troll tied to it.

As Seongjin carefully focused on No. 1 and borrowed the demon king's spiritual eyes, a blurry information window appeared before his eyes, just like before.

□The Glatrue Troll is in a near-death state. The connection to the existing Ice Heart is forcibly broken. Would you like to register a new object?□

Ah, it is possible to obtain an object this way too. If I had known this would happen, I would have let some of them live.

Seongjin registered shaved ice number 4 as the ice heart without hesitation.

When we let go of No. 4, who was still on the verge of being strangled and broken, he hurriedly buried himself in the remains of his comrades and began to rebuild his body.

Rumble.

Seongjin then turned his attention to the Glacher Troll that No. 3 was holding. After beating the guy hard, he quickly registered him as number 5.

□Number of entities that can be registered: 5/25□

good. It's increased.

I don't dare to control them individually, but if we move as a group, it will be a pretty good force.

Only then was Seongjin able to take a breath and talk to the demon king.

'okay. Why were you making such a fuss earlier? 'What on earth did you find?'

Since I was feeling a little grateful towards him, I tried to ask him gently, but the words that came out were very blunt.

However, the Demon King, who had been anxiously rolling around in the flame crystal until then, shouted in an excited voice as if he was excited just by being asked.

[So, don't be surprised! I think the ones controlling them are either demon species or demon contractors!]

... That is an unexpected achievement.

[Are you sure! It was beyond my range of movement, but I could definitely feel the magic energy there! It was just one guy!]

okay. Since it's the devil's job, it's probably not wrong when it comes to devils.

'Then what is the relationship between the devil and the Marquis d'Arciano? Are they one of the same? Or is it just a temporary alliance?'

From what I heard from Seonghwang's father, I thought that Berseus Dashiano, a member of the 'Council of Six', would not have openly colluded with the devil.

This would mean that there is a separate reason for the devil to reach out to the Demonic Sutra.

While he was deep in thought, Seongjin suddenly caught sight of the small window that had been blinking and bothering him earlier.

☐Object 2 is fused to ice. Do you want to separate the object?☐

☐Temperature scroll: Activity (ice separation) -/- Sleep (ice fusion)☐

okay. First, we have to get out the people trapped in the ice wall.

With that in mind, Seongjin moved the scroll around to control the temperature, and the following window appeared in front of him.

☐Object 2 is fused to a sufficient amount of ice. If the separation location is not specified by the user, objects will be separated randomly within the ice.☐

... what?

At that moment, Seongjin's mind began to spin with an eerie premonition.

'Wait a minute... ... !'

Come to think of it, wasn't the place where Bingsu No. 3 was located deep in the ice of the canyon?

'Did a window like this come to mind back then?'

Maybe it was. I don't remember much because there were so many unfamiliar windows at the time.

Anyway, at the time, I wondered how it had gotten so deep that it was frozen.

'... What if it was melted into the glacier in this way after it was formed? And what if it randomly split off in the middle of a glacier?'

Orden said that.

Glacher trolls, who cannot be seen where they are hiding in other seasons, appear from somewhere and wander around the demonic landscape during the cold winter.

'What if the temperature drops below the set temperature, and fusion naturally changes into separation?'

Seongjin set the maintenance temperature of the Glature Trolls high, making them move even though it was not winter.

This was the reason why ice monsters, which caused severe cold damage just by touching them, gave off a cold that was tolerable even when people were riding them.

'Then they must have used the same method.'

When they mobilized the Glature Trolls, were they simply trying to pound the high ice wall from the outside?

'That's not it! Perhaps the most efficient way to break down an ice wall is... ... !'

... this!

Seongjin turned away from the group with a disappointed look on his face.

"We're in big trouble! The ice base is in danger now!"

228. Defensive Battle (1)

"The ice base is dangerous!"

The group was dumbfounded by Seongjin's unexpected words.

Haven't you finally defeated your enemy and can take a breather?
Why suddenly?

However, the party could never listen to the prince's words in vain.
Wasn't Prince Mores the one who warned in advance of the Glacher Troll's attack, which no one expected?

Above all, the prince, who always had a sullen expression on his face, was rarely showing signs of great agitation.

"We must quickly inform the Ice Base of the additional dangers of the Glature Trolls!"

"What do you mean by other dangers?"

Seongjin tilted his head to one side as if he was embarrassed by Masain's question. In his eyes, the blurry text on the information window appears particularly clearly.

□ If the separation location is not specified by the user, the location of the object is randomly assigned within the ice. □

If this is used as he expected.

"...I'll show it to you first."

Seongjin said that and looked around the entire ice wall.

Perhaps, if this were a normal world, a small map would have emerged where one could select the location of the ice monster.

However, in the original dimension of Delcross, what moves objects in the normal world is the user's strong will or strong thoughts.

So wouldn't positioning somehow work that way too?

'Somehow, I think it will work like this... .. !'

Trying to think of a specific location where he wanted Shaved Ice No. 2 to separate, Seongjin thoughtfully moved the scroll of the window.

□Object 2 is fused to ice. Do you want to separate the object?□

□Temperature scroll: Activity (ice separation) ----- Sleep (ice fusion)□

OK.

Cuckoo cuckoo.

Suddenly, with a loud noise, the entire fortress began to shake violently.

"What is this?"

Sir Hans let out a scream that was like a scream and fell to the ground. He was living a peaceful final year, but what he experienced on this day made him seem almost 10 years older.

"Look over there."

With the prince's words as a signal, an amazing sight soon unfolded before the eyes of the group.

From the inside entrance of the ice wall, which was intact, large chunks of ice suddenly separated and began to be pushed outward.

Kurrrrrr.

Large chunks of ice were pushed outward endlessly, forming a large tunnel, like a tunnel.

And they seem to roll in one place and come together, creating the shape of a huge giant towering toward the sky!

".....!"

Eventually, inside the fortress, where the tremors had subsided, a Glacher troll that had never been seen before stood proudly.

And at the end of the ice wall, which has been dug out as deeply as the volume of the giant ice monster, a large hollow ice cavity is revealed. This was the very space where Seongjin hurriedly evacuated the soldiers.

"You? What is this...?"

Orden, who had been digging an entrance with his sword inside, looked outside with a bewildered expression as his vision suddenly became brighter.

"...Unbelievable....."

The meaning of the prince's demonstration was very clear. The faces of the group members who realized this immediately turned white.

"Yes. If even one Glacher Troll touches the ice wall, the ice wall will no longer be a complete fence."

Seongjin put a wedge in their guess.

He was confident that he would pass through the shaved ice and rush into the territory without paying any attention to the ice wall blocking his path.

If only we could come up with a clear image like now and carry out careful manipulation to support it.

Of course, based on what I've dealt with earlier, I don't think the enemies are capable of such delicate manipulation.

'But even if the location is not selected and random separation is done in a crude way, the results do not change.'

Glature trolls that are fused to the ice wall can create large holes in the ice wall, depending on where they re-separate.

If we continue to repeat fusion and separation like that, the ice wall may one day become sloppy in its internal structure and collapse all at once.

On the other hand, on this side, without completely destroying the ice wall, there would be no way to fuse and attack the hiding guys.

No matter how you manage to defeat them, about 2,000 Lycan Slopes will attack the border where the ice wall has disappeared.

There is no doubt that we will inevitably lose.

"That's not possible! Until now, I've never known something like that was possible for a Glacher Troll...!"

"Well, that's probably because no one has attempted to directly control this guy yet."

Seongjin added, holding up the ice heart in his hand.

"Besides, there's no telling how many more items like this they have."

"....."

A moment of silence passed between them in the face of the overwhelming reality.

"...It may already be too late. First, I will report this to the ice base."

When Sir Oscar spoke in a trembling voice, Seongjin nodded.

"Yeah. That would be a good idea."

And Seongjin was lost in thought, touching his ice heart.

Although there are Dekaron Knights and Wolf Knights, it would probably cause great chaos if the Glacher Trolls start running amok inside the fortress.

Did the Margrave hear his warning in time? In that case, he might at least be able to quickly retreat his troops to his territory and engage in a defensive battle from there... ..

Masain, who was looking at him closely, opened his mouth in a low voice.

"...You want to go to the ice wall base to provide support."

"Yes?"

Seongjin, slightly surprised, shook his head.

"Oh, no! I'm not that thoughtless either. Old Vincent and Lord Ilma are there, right? From anyone's perspective, the situation is better than here, right?"

"It looks like the base is in danger, so I want to go anyway, but I guess you're concerned that Sir Maria and I will have to leave the fortress following you."

"hmm....."

It was as he said. Because there are only two people here who are higher level knights or higher.

Even so, it is a canyon fortress where most of the troops have escaped, and if even these two are absent, it will surely collapse in the next air attack.

So Seongjin... ..

"You're not thinking of sending just those Vincs there, are you?"

omg! Sir Masain, is he a ghost?

As Seongjin's eyes widened, Masain's face hardened.

"I thought that would be the case. After helping you for so long, I think I now know to some extent what you are thinking."

"....."

"I don't know much about the principles of how that stolen object works. Still, this one thing seems certain. If you send those things far away and it becomes difficult to control them, won't you try to cling to them, even if it means completely putting aside your own body like before? ?"

Seongjin was stung by the request and quietly averted his gaze.

It was true that I wondered if it would be possible to control it from a distance without looking, if only I could feel a sense of unity with the shaved ice like before.

"The ice wall base seems to be unstable..."

However, Seongjin also had some awareness of how much he had worried Sir Martha.

"Whew...."

However, Masain, who was slowly showing his sinister energy, touched his forehead and let out a long sigh.

"Take Lord Valerie with you, sir."

"...uh?"

"He is the spokesperson for the Heresy Tribunal, so even if you openly manipulate this wrongdoing, the church will not take responsibility for it."

Lord Masaine?

Seongjin blinked at those unbelievable words, but Sir Valerie quietly joined in from the side.

"Hey? So, the two of you from earlier, since when have I been the spokesperson for the Heresy Tribunal..."

"Besides, just because Sir Valerie is missing, there won't be any major vacuum in our strength."

"...No, Lord Masaine?"

The red-haired Inquisitor, who had suddenly been branded as a knight with meaningless power, raised his hand in protest, but no one paid attention.

"And it would be a good idea to take the archduke with you as well. If an outsider suddenly appears riding a demonic beast, who would easily believe that he is an ally? He will also be needed later to join and communicate with the people at the Ice Wall Base."

Orden, who had barely escaped from being trapped in an ice cave, approached with a puzzled look on his face.

"Well, what are you saying now...?"

noisy. On the topic of Orden.

Your opinion doesn't matter now.

"We will remain in the fortress with the Wolf Knights, sir. So don't worry about the fortress."

"....."

"As long as we keep the Glacher Trolls at bay, this fortress will be safe forever. No matter how many Lycanslopes come, we won't be able to easily get over this ice wall."

I thought he would be stubborn and say he would follow me wherever he goes.

Seongjin didn't know what to say to this man who seemed so determined. Her embarrassment, gratitude, and guilt all flood in at the same time, tightening her chest.

Masain smiled calmly as he looked at Seongjin's complicated expression.

"Then you won't have to completely abandon yourself like before again."

".....!"

Wow.

Regrets of conscience pierced my heart like a dagger.

* * *

[Keuuuu...]

The alien demon king groaned and tried to hold on to his fading presence.

However, from the body that was split diagonally, almost as if it had been torn in half, what little black demon energy was left was pouring out in vain.

If this continues, it is only a matter of time before the soul disappears completely.

'This is the end of this body? 'Am I, who has dominated and fused countless dimensions for so many years?'

This is a truly vain result, considering that we ran with such confidence.

When he raised his head with a somewhat sorrowful feeling, what was looking down at him were extremely indifferent silver eyes.

Just by looking at him, the Demon King felt like he was suffocating from the enormous pressure radiating from him.

'... 'Is that really just an agent of God?'

I flew away with a light heart because I was a human and proudly pretended to be the king of the dimension.

But what he encountered was something more alien than anything else in the world.

Although he is the only human among the kings, he appears more inhuman than any other king. Although he is one step away from cause and effect, he is also deeply involved in cause and effect.

okay. Just like the distant ancient gods who were in chaos did.

'How can something like this exist!'

Shouldn't humans be allowed to do that? No, something like this shouldn't exist in this world!

While the Demon King was screaming inwardly, Seonghwang suddenly raised his head, glanced somewhere, and said.

[I guess I have to end it soon. Another idiot driven by nonsense is coming here.]

okay. It's nonsense.

The idle demon lords who fell for that nice-sounding trick are probably rushing here to avoid losing the lead.

[...] Please let me go.]

The alien demon king, who was carefully assessing the current situation, opened his mouth with a nervous look.

[Let's make a deal! If you send me back safely like this, I will take revenge on those who encouraged me to invade this place! Doesn't that help you too?]

[Were you encouraged?]

[okay! It was a certain high-ranking demon lord who led me here. He tricked many people besides me! Isn't this clearly a ploy aimed at you and your dimension?!]

Then Seonghwang, who had been looking down at him for a moment, tilted his head to one side. Very puzzled.

[...] This is truly unknown. A person who personally oversees the life and death of all things in one dimension is completely unaware of the cause and effect that is connected to him.]

Apart from the expressionless face like a stone statue, the voice is somewhat sad.

[Was this dimension really the target of that high-ranking demon lord? Did the various demon lords he tempted really head here?]

[...] ... ?]

[How do they usually look at your dimension, and have they given you the order of coming here?]

[...] ... !]

... no way.

Looking down at the extremely pale and tired Demon King, Seongwang spoke calmly.

[You say you were drawn to a scent carried by the wind, but you don't know where the wind actually came from. Well, is it worth it? The intention is cleverly hidden in many stages.]

[I am... ... !]

[So you die here. Even if you return from here anyway, the only thing that will greet you will be beasts that will tear your flesh apart.]

With that said, finally.

Suddenly.

The long, white-light Auror blade cruelly cut the Demon King's head in half.

The guy who couldn't even say his last words began to slowly blur with his eyes wide open.

Pusssss.

The last remaining insignificant magical energy was scattered fleetingly between the gaps in the dimension.

It's going to be a long day.

Seonghwang sighed and gathered the salmon.

After defeating a guy who came at me to complete a hidden quest, this time he was such an idiot that he ran towards me without knowing that my house was being robbed.

Everyone is invading this place at odd times and for their own reasons, but even so, Seonghwang knows full well where this wind originated.

'And then... ... '

Before pulling into another space, Seonghwang quietly closed his eyes. This is to check on the children who were keeping his eyes on him during the moment of free time.

Seonghwang, who had been concentrating for a moment, suddenly let out a deep sigh.

'... 'Son!'

For some reason, I had been feeling uneasy earlier, as my mischievous son had just crossed a dangerous line.

-You knew. Wasn't this all foreseen from the beginning?

The old man warned me like that.

What can I do? Ever since I decided to be with that child, every moment has been like walking a very precarious tightrope.

-Ugh! Glacher trolls attack!

-Do not attack! It's an ally!

-It will pass like this, so everyone get out of the way! If you do it wrong, you might get stepped on!

Moreover, the child was currently doing something else strange.

Thump thump thump.

He was sitting on top of an ice monster that was charging at random, and was wreaking havoc on the boundaries of the territory.

As always, everything the child does is a mess.

'But son. I know that you will overcome the hardships that come your way in life.'

If so, that is enough.

Seonghwang slowly opened his eyes and aimed the salmon at the next approaching opponent.

229. Defensive Battle (2)

'... Please, there shouldn't be any trouble with Mores and Logan.'

Strangely today, the feeling of anxiety doesn't go away easily.

Amelia felt her hands shaking slightly as she turned the pages, and eventually closed the book and sank into the armchair and closed her eyes. And out of habit, she fiddles with the small wooden statue on the table.

'I should have told Mores to come back right away. No, he should have sent more reinforcements... ... '

It was all in vain.

The prince of the Holy Empire abandoning his territory in crisis. Even though he is young, what will his subjects think of him?

The same goes for reinforcements. No matter how much you think about it, you can't come to any conclusion beyond the Lilium Detachment.

"Whew...."

Amelia sighed softly.

Reason knows well that he made the right decision. But isn't that true of the heart?

Mores, that child is now in the midst of dangerous demons!

At times like this, Amelia felt regretful that she was the eldest daughter of the royal family. If she had been in the same position as Herna, she would have sent her entire knightly order to punish her father.

"Amelia. Look at this!"

At that time, Mirabelle, the personal maid, entered the study holding a large bouquet of flowers.

"The handsome prince of Rohan sent me these pretty flowers again."

"Leonard...."

Amelia frowned slightly.

That trash bastard, who was confident that he had made a connection with himself after the New Year, is persistently sticking to the ecliptic, showing up at various banquets and social gatherings.

The reason why Amelia keeps looking at this disgusting man instead of cutting him off.

It was partly to lay the groundwork for future moves in Rohan, but more than anything else, it was to bring his hidden associates to the surface.

Romaine. A gloomy half-masked man.

Leonard's closest aide and strategist who held the royal family of Rohan in one hand and sometimes performed strange tricks.

'And the [key] that Romain had...'

A device that made it possible to control strange races of people that had never been heard of before, as if they were limbs.

If you do not find out its identity and prepare in advance, it will pose a great threat to Delcross in the future.

While Amelia was deep in thought, Mirabelle asked in an excited voice.

"Where should I put this? How about decorating it here in the study so that I can look at it from time to time while studying?"

Such a terrible sound.

"Just throw it in the trash can."

"Oh my, why?"

"It's quite cliché to see the same rose every time."

"Hoho. Young ladies are usually influenced by a gentleman's sparkling wit and rich culture. But Amelia, a true and excellent gentleman is always honest and consistent."

Amelia blinked at her subtle words.

"...Does Mirabel like him?"

"Yes. Why not? He is so devoted to our princess. The more I look at him, the more I see him, isn't he such a gentle and handsome prince? Looking at him, I think it would be okay to go to Rohan with Amelia in the future."

It was a scary sounding statement.

At that moment, the afterimage of a miserable woman covered in fresh blood vaguely overlaps the smiling figure of Mirabell, embracing a bouquet of red flowers.

-You are a terrible devil, Leonard! I curse you! Even after death, I will curse you forever! Argh!

Screaming. That scream.

In the end, his tongue was cut off and his vocal cords were damaged, and he vomited like a mere animal's cry.

".....!"

Amelia closed her eyes tightly without realizing it.

"Ah! Of course, no matter how cool she is, she's still a lot worse than our princess."

Mirabelle, who noticed the princess's blood-stained face, gave a blank expression with a bewildered expression.

"...Yes, Mirabelle. It's a little early, but I have to stop by for lunch and then go to the Pearl Palace."

In the end, Amelia, unable to completely shake off the terrible afterimage of the past, carefully picked up the little Saint Aurelion wearing a conical hat and said gloomily:

"As expected, Amelia brought it too."

A lonely lunch with only two of the siblings left.

A small saint sitting across from us places a wooden statue on the table. She was a bald old woman decorated with white lace.

"I also felt strangely anxious today. I couldn't concentrate on training at all, so I came back early."

When I told them I was taking a break, everyone was really worried and took me outside the gym. I just waved my hand and saw him off. I thought all the inquisitors at St. Marsyas were scary, but it turns out that the people are kinder than I thought.

Sisley muttered like that.

Crunch crunch.

Even though Seo Yi-seo, in Cadmus mode, started eating next to her, Amelia couldn't willingly reach for the food for a while. Because her scary afterimages were still eroding her mind.

Sisley stared at her for a moment and spoke as if comforting her.

"Don't worry too much, Sister Amelia. Actually, I had a good dream last night."

"Nice dream?"

Amelia adjusted her posture and took a listening attitude. No one in the royal family knew about her younger brother's occasional precognitive dreams.

"Yes. It was a good dream. A bell rang above my head, and then I realized that Saint Aurelion appeared in front of me. He was wearing a red cone hat and for some reason had a long white beard. And a kind downpour of rain. There was heavy rain and laughter."

Amelia tilted her head.

Cone? mustache? Heavy rain?

Doesn't it seem a bit different from the image of him portrayed in the public eye?

"He smiled and told me that if the children of the Holy Family continue to be good children and pray hard for Brother Mores, they will soon provide him with great help."

"help....."

It was too awkward to be considered a precognitive dream. Still, isn't it a story of small comfort?

As Amelia's face turned pale, Sisley clenched his fists at her.

"Sister Amelia. And now there's me too, right? I've been hearing a lot of people say I have talent these days. I'll quickly become as strong as Brother Logan and continue to protect our entire family."

Amelia, who was looking at the fern-like white fist, eventually burst out laughing.

What on earth are you doing with those cute hands that are perfect for wielding a meat knife?

"You still have a long way to go, Sisley. You need to become stronger."

"More here?"

"So. You see the imperial palace knights every day, right? To become like them, you have to become much, much stronger than you are now."

"hmm....."

Earlier, I swung the flail and destroyed the scarecrow with just the wind pressure. The knight commander said that not only among squires but also among lower-level knights, there are not many who show such power.

However, after pondering for a moment, the little saint soon came to a clear conclusion.

Well, anyway, the stronger you get, the better it is, isn't it?

"Okay. You mean to work harder in the future, right? Leave it to me!"

The sisters smiled sweetly at each other as they shared a conversation that would probably have horrified the Knights of St. Marsyas if they had heard it.

* * *

Meanwhile, Logan, who had left for Sigismund Territory, was currently riding alone.

"There isn't much left now!"

Sigismund was a faraway place. If you travel from the ecliptic at your leisure, it will take about 15 days.

Even though he had been urging the detachment to speed up from the beginning, Logan could not hide his anxious expression from start to finish.

-Don't worry about us, go first, sir. I'll follow shortly.

In the end, the Holy Knights who set off together came to suggest that to Logan.

As the Liliun Detachment was accustomed to long periods of movement, the Paladins had excellent physical strength. If you make full use of your innate divine power and run your horse, you can move at a speed that is more than twice that of an ordinary person.

But even so, the speed was not enough for Logan.

The youngest Dekaron Knight and Sword Master in existence on the continent.

Logan's use of Auras allowed him to constantly accept and materialize the Auras around him, making it almost impossible for a horse to feel his own weight.

In addition, it constantly imparts strong divine power to the horse. That's how you can continue a long forced march without almost resting, sleeping, or eating.

-Then, let's meet at Sigismund Territory!

Normally, Logan would avoid this type of forced march, even if it meant thinking about his words, but this time, the situation was a little different.

Anxiety.

The anxiety that had been slowly growing since leaving the ecliptic had now turned into a feeling strong enough to tighten my body.

"I'm sorry, Roxana! Just give me a little more strength this time!"

When I patted its white mane as if to comfort him, his Rottweiler, which was running vigorously, let out a small cry.

'It's different from what you or Sisley feel. 'This isn't a premonition or anything.'

Logan was well aware of the extraordinary premonitions that sometimes appeared in children of the Holy Family.

I thought I was far from that, but now my heart was beating strangely fast and my mouth was burning with tension.

He knew where this feeling came from. When a large battlefield awaits right in front of him.

-If you safely bring Mores to the imperial capital, I will return all remaining funds from the subjugation team's activity expenses as your pocket money.

Seonghwang's words, which I heard before leaving, kept lingering in my mind.

The more I think about it, the more meaningful it becomes. He clearly did not say 'help Sigismund', but 'bring Mores back safely'!

'Lee Seong-jin already has several records.'

Even at this moment, there is no telling what that guy who just left is doing.

'Please don't do anything rash until I get there, Seongjin Lee!'

Hee hee hee!

Based on the divine power pouring in once again, Roxana increased her speed even more and let out a powerful cry.

* * *

"Ouch! It's a Glatzer Troll!"

"Don't be surprised! They are our allies!"

A familiar scream followed by an explanation.

Seongjin looked back at Orden with a tired face.

"How long are you going to keep surprising us with the same situation? Didn't you contact the estate in advance?"

Then Orden cried out to Seongjin with a tearful face for the first time in a long time.

"Now we are moving faster than the entire West, sir!"

Ah, I see.

Since I was used to radio on Earth, I had forgotten about the times here for a while.

Boom boom boom!

Bingsu No. 1 was literally running without hesitation. Every time I took a step, the scenery changed quickly, and even the slight hills were a step with long legs.

"...Sir, I really feel like I'm going to die."

Sir Valery, who was constantly self-healing with divine power, groaned from behind.

Seongjin and his group, who was in such a hurry, completely covered the distance that would have taken half a day on foot in less than an hour.

"Aaaah! Glatzer...!"

With a loud scream, a narrow ice wall appeared before their eyes. While the height is almost the same as the size of shaved ice, the entrance is small enough for one person to barely pass through.

"That is the final gateway to the territory!"

"good!"

Seongjin quietly held the ice heart in his hand and concentrated his mind.

☐Would you like to fuse object 1?☐

okay!

"Stop, Grand Duke! If we continue like this, we'll collide with the ice wall!"

With the frightened voices of the soldiers flowing through one ear, Seongjin moved the scroll forward in resignation.

☐Temperature scroll: Activity (ice separation) -/- Sleep (ice fusion)☐

Quang!

As soon as the ice monster hit the ice wall, it froze and fused.

Damn it.

At that time, Seongjin and his group had already jumped onto the ice wall. The soldiers gape as they watch them gliding high.

And even before his body was pulled by gravity, Seongjin immediately started separating the shaved ice and the ice wall.

□Object 1 is fused to ice. Do you want to separate the object?□

Of course!

□Temperature scroll: Activity (ice separation) ----- Sleep (ice fusion)□

Kurrrrr!

The ice wall separates and Bingsu No. 1 reappears. As soon as Seongjin and his group landed on its shoulders, the ice monster began running like a storm again.

Boom boom boom!

"What is that...."

The dazed soldiers looked up at the ice wall.

There, the ice wall was standing empty, convex on the outside and hollow in the same shape, like the shape of shaved ice, like the mold of an ice monster.

"If the enemy can pass through the ice wall at this speed, not only the ice wall base but also the territory...!"

Orden, seeing the fearsome movements of Shaved Ice No. 1, mutters as if he is concerned. Then Seongjin shook his head lightly.

"No, that won't happen!"

The place they were really trying to attack was probably the Canyon Fortress.

Didn't they try to slowly gather the Lycan Slopes in front of the third ice wall over several days and then concentrate all of the territory's troops on the ice wall base?

Even if they had passed through the ice wall base in this way, they would not have been able to break through the numerous troops gathered there at once.

But the situation is different in the empty canyon fortress. If we had been able to attack in this way, we would have been able to reach the territory in one go.

"But the guy who invaded the fortress had poor piloting skills, right? He must have been the enemy's main force."

"...okay."

Seongjin confidently shrugged his shoulders towards Orden, who looked much more relaxed.

I dare say, it would be hard to find someone as good at using the Ice Heart as me, right?

And they finally arrived at the entrance to the estate.

Hundreds of soldiers were lined up there, probably the fourth troop that the guard commander was assembling.

"Your Majesty!"

Although he seemed a little surprised by the appearance of the group riding the shaved ice No. 1, Sir Sebastian soon greeted the group with a calm face.

Then he delivered serious news.

"Ice Wall Base has fallen! It is said that Vincent and the Wolf Knights are currently remaining in the rear, holding back the enemies while the troops retreat!"

230. Defensive Battle (3)

The ice wall base has fallen!

At that news, there was a heavy silence among the group for a moment.

"It is said that the Glacher Trolls who attacked showed an unusual appearance. They said that they performed a trick of disappearing as if they were melting into the ice of the ice wall. It is said that they had no choice but to abandon the ice wall."

"That can't be possible...."

Since its predecessor, the Margrave, took a long time to complete, the Ice Fortress has never allowed a single intrusion by a demonic beast.

Although the possibility of being breached was considered, the shock Orden received was beyond words. Because it was a barrier that had already been standing strong even before he was born.

"The entrance to the ice walls looks like that. Is the troops retreating well?"

On behalf of the frozen Orden, Seongjin, who had maintained his composure, asked a question to the guard captain.

"Fortunately, the second ice wall was expanded last night by order of the head of the family. Although it is slow, the retreat is proceeding smoothly. It's just...."

After speaking up to that point, Sir Sebastian's gaze caught a glimpse of a group of soldiers passing by.

They are each holding tools such as pickaxes, hammers, and chisels and are moving around at a pace. At a glance, I could tell what they were moving for.

"In the case of the first ice wall, work was still in full swing, so it appears that the troops gathered there are stranded. We are currently working on expanding the entrance on both sides simultaneously."

Still, it seems that Margrave Sigismund did not heed Seongjin's warning in vain. Seongjin breathed a sigh of relief.

"Anyway, it would be unreasonable to send support right away from the territory."

"Yes, sir. It is difficult for the retreating soldiers to move now. I just hope that the remaining Wolf Knights in the rear will hold out well."

Sir Sebastian's voice as he answered like that was extremely calm. Even though his wife, Sir Ilma, is fighting a difficult battle in the rear.

Maybe deep inside you want to run alone.

However, now that the Margrave and the Wolf Knights are away, the only person responsible for the safety of the territory is Sir Sebastian himself.

Seongjin thought as he looked into the guard captain's steadfast black eyes.

'The more I look at her, the more I think Louise takes after her father.'

Louise.

As my thoughts naturally turned to her, I suddenly remembered a faint thought that had passed me by like a dream while I was piloting Bingsu No. 1.

-Lowering. I now have to go a long way from which I may never return.

Was that really Louise's voice? This is unknown at the moment.

Perhaps it was simply an auditory hallucination created by Seongjin's premonition. When she left for her flower garden, she had a strange feeling that if they parted ways like this, they wouldn't be able to see each other again for a long time.

'But if it was really Louise... ... '

They said they would come right away after confirming the reality of the flower garden, but then suddenly they have to go somewhere?

What on earth did she see there?

'... no!'

Seongjin shook his head and stopped his thoughts of going the other way.

'Louise, I'm the type of person who knows what to do. For now, we must first solve the problem facing the territory!'

Seongjin looked around and cleared his head.

"Are they the fourth troop that was supposed to leave today?"

"Yes, sir. As soon as I heard the news of the base's fall and retreat, I decided to build a new defensive position here. It's something I'm not used to, so I need some guidance."

As the guard commander said, the hastily conscripted soldiers were forming a textbook defensive formation under the instructions of several senior soldiers.

Since they had been accustomed to fighting on ice for a long time, it was like their first time facing a magical beast on flat ground.

Some troops are building low log fences, while others are diligently clearing ice and snow with shovels. Perhaps it was because I heard that the Glatute Trolls were fusing with ice.

Still, under the command of Sir Sebastian, preparations to face the enemy are progressing steadily. In this situation, what Seongjin could do was decided.

"Grand Duke. Hurry up."

Seongjin said, patting Orden's shoulder, who was still in shock.

"We can use Bingsu No. 1 to widen the ice wall at once. The retreat of the troops will be even faster. After that, let's immediately support the remaining Wolf Knights in the rear."

"Lowering....."

"The reason the Wolf Knights decided to abandon the ice wall was probably to fight them in places without ice. As long as they move away from the ice wall, they are still just regular Glature Trolls."

Then Sir Sebastian looks at Seongjin from the side with an expression of surprise.

what? why? what? If you guessed that, shouldn't you have told this guy a long time ago? Because he's just watching, this simple guy thinks the whole world has collapsed.

"Furthermore, even if it fell to the enemy, it would not be easy for them to completely collapse that thick tertiary ice wall. There is absolutely no way a few Glacher Trolls could handle the volume of ice."

"That means...."

"Even if there is a hole, it is only a small part of it. The large army of Lycan Slope will not all cross the ice wall and flock to the territory at once."

At that explanation, light slowly returned to Orden's eyes.

"Yes, that's right. Just as you said!"

"If you understand, move quickly!"

Then the red-haired inquisitor who was watching next to me grinned and waved his hand.

"Then, I will stay here and take care of the injuries of the retreating soldiers. May the Lord's blessings be with you both as you carry out this important mission! I hope you return safely."

Of course, before I could move a few steps, Seongjin caught me by the waist and dragged me away.

"Where are you running? Spokesperson of the Heresy Tribunal. I need to serve as proof that our shaved ice No. 1 is harmless."

"...Please save me, my dear."

* * *

Before the ice wall base fell.

The Wolf Knights, who faced the Glacher Trolls in the snowy fields, initially formed in groups and dealt with them smoothly.

In particular, old Vincent, who had been on the battlefield for the first time in a long time, flew around the battlefield as if he had wings.

Flutter! Flutter! Whoops!

The ice monster's body is cut into pieces by the old man's powerful sword strike.

Wooooooo-

The Glacher Troll, which was struggling as it quickly lost ice, eventually laid down on the snowy field with its heart exposed and defenseless. And with her single sword, my heart was shattered and I remained silent.

"Go for it as much as you want! Wahahaha!"

The old man's loud laughter echoes through the snowy fields.

In that way, they quickly reduced the number of glamor trolls. Soon, seven out of thirty were completely unable to act, and the Wolf Knights were dealing with the remaining ice monsters without much trouble.

So they didn't care when a Glacher Troll got close to the ice wall.

Anyway, it is a huge wall of ice that is more than four times the height of the body. When you reach the bottom, it is a thick barrier that is just over 15 meters wide. No matter how hard you hit something, it's probably going to crack.

The strange thing happened then.

Ugh.

This is because the Glature Troll that touched the wall became one with the ice wall and froze.

Although he had lived dozens of lives guarding the boundaries of the demon world, old man Vincent had never seen anything like this.

"Ugh?"

The old man's eyes widened, and Sir Ilma shouted as he ran towards him.

"Vincent! I guess there's a reason why the Lycan Slopes put Glacher Trolls at the forefront! Could it be that they're trying to gather together on the ice wall and create a bridge to cross over?!"

"what?"

The old man, who had a puzzled expression on his face, soon burst into laughter.

"Hahaha! Even so, it's all useless! All you have to do is cut it all up before it comes together properly!"

Rather, wouldn't it be a gentle target because it's frozen?

"I'll cut your heart out in one fell swoop like this!"

In this way, Dekaron Knight's sharp sword mercilessly cut into the frozen Glacher Troll.

All of the giant figures clinging to the wall were cut off, and the surface of the ice wall regained its smooth appearance in an instant.

however-

"...doesn't exist?"

The ice heart that should be inside the guy's body is nowhere to be seen.

Kuuuuuung-

It was then that a small vibration occurred.

"...no?"

A battlefield where gigantic beasts run rampant. I could have just dismissed it as nothing.

'No way?'

Dekaron Knight's keen senses recognized that the vibration was coming from deep inside the ice wall.

At that time, a Glacher Troll ran past the old man and stuck to the wall again.

Ugh.

The startled Dekaron Knight hurriedly cut down the giant, but as expected, no heart was found in its body.

"What the hell is this...."

And one. Another one.

While the old man and the Wolf Knights were panicking, there was a gap in their defense and several more ice monsters were frozen on the ice wall.

If you rush over and cut it open, you still can't see the ice heart. As if it had completely melted into ice.

"no way.....!"

Lord Ilma took a deep breath as he remembered the creepy family. The fact that they completely melted into the ice wall...

And unfortunately, her ominous imagination quickly became reality.

Kurrrrrr.

The top of the ice wall seemed to be shaking, and then suddenly, a huge Glacher Troll rose from the top of the ice wall.

Woooooo-

The soldiers, who were standing dumbfounded by the sudden situation, were thrown down the ice wall like fallen leaves by the arms of the ice monster, which was swinging at random.

What awaits them is ice 40 meters below.

"Aaaahhh!"

"Aaaah!"

Thump thump thump.

Soldiers hurriedly rushed to the ladder to avoid the demonic beast stalking the ice wall.

However, as people began to hang on to the ladder indiscriminately, the ladder lost its balance and fell to the floor along with the soldiers.

Pow! puck!

The eerie sound of something breaking reverberates one after another.

Coo! Boom!

The vibrations from the ice wall also began to gradually increase. Now, all the Wolf Knights in the snowfield can feel it.

Ooooooh-

To make matters worse, a series of long howls rang out from the chippy leaf forest in the distance. The units of the Lycan Slopes, who had been holding back until now, began to move in unison.

It was a nightmare.

"The ice... Ice, which had been a strong defensive wall until now, is now becoming a greater threat than anything else!"

Sir Ilma's decision was quick.

"Vincent! Matriarch! We must move our troops to a place where there are no ice walls! We must go to a place where there is no large ice where they can hide!"

When the Wolf Knights, who had lost their ropes and pulleys, managed to climb up the ice wall on their own and move inside the base, the Glacher Trolls, who now had no hesitation, crossed the snowy field and started slamming into the ice wall as much as they wanted.

Coo! thud!

Following the one wandering around on the ice wall, ice monsters wandering around inside the base soon began to appear one by one.

When the Wolf Knights attacked all at once, they were able to quickly take care of him, but other Glacher Trolls, who sensed his presence, clung to the ice wall again and hid themselves. And it appears again in a completely unexpected place.

Several unlucky soldiers fell victim to the ice monster's fists again.

"If we replace our troops, we can somehow survive. But if things continue like this, there will be too much unnecessary damage!"

The Margrave also quickly came to a conclusion. It would be much more advantageous to deal with them if they retreated and dragged them to the rear.

But it was not easy to retreat.

Although the entrance to the ice wall was widened overnight, it was still not enough for a force numbering over 700 to move quickly.

It was a time when we were supporting the slow retreat and struggling to deal with the Glacher Trolls who had come and gone for a long time.

They received incredible news.

"Matriarch! The first and second ice walls have completely collapsed!"

... what? how?

And they were soon able to see the answer with their own eyes.

Boom boom boom!

In the narrow retreat road leading to the second ice wall, a huge Glacher Troll proudly appeared.

"Aaaah! The Glature Troll is attacking! It's in the direction of the territory!"

"Has the territory been hit? Is it an enemy bucket!?"

and.

"No!"

"It's our troops! Get back now!"

They hear a somewhat familiar voice explaining this.

"...Grand Duke?"

"To the lowest level?"

A person is riding a Glature Troll? It was a sight that I could not easily believe even when I saw it with my own eyes.

However, the Glature Troll that rushed into the base quickly calmly crouched down and stretched out its arms to the floor. From anyone's perspective, it was a meticulous move to safely disembark the people on board.

"Am I dreaming right now?"

Old man Vincent mutters with a lost expression.

Hwiik.

Prince Mores, who jumped off the ice monster, approached him with an angry face and shouted.

"You frustrating old man!"

"...what?"

As an old man who had been revered as a Dekaron Knight and a great general of the Empire his whole life, it was an insult I had never heard before.

"This brat is actually a prince...!"

However, Seongjin shouted at the old man, Vincent, who was in tears.

"Are you doing this right now? Shouldn't we catch the guy who controls them first! Why is Dekaron Knight doing such a foolish thing?"

"What...?"

The old man's eyes widened at the unexpected words, and the prince seemed frustrated and pointed his finger at one side of the cliff surrounding the base.

"You really don't know that?"

".....!"

Only then did the old man open his eyes wide.

On the cliff the prince is pointing with his hand. In the dark shadows of the trees.

Dekaron Knight, whose senses were sensitive enough to catch demons even without divine power, immediately identified a suspicious presence when given the opportunity.

That ominous and evil feeling.

Just like that of a demon species.

"...How on earth?"

Does that kid know of a sign that even he couldn't catch?

Then the young prince gave a firm command to Dekaron Knight. A strange sense of intimidation, one that was difficult to resist, enveloped her entire body.

"What are you hesitating about? Catch that guy right now!"

231. Defensive Battle (4)

The total number of Glaturre Trolls registered in the Ice Heart is five.

So at first, Seongjin thought about taking two shaved ice with him. Of course, it was canceled due to Masain's strong opposition.

Perhaps he had figured out that the prince's condition would become more abnormal as the number of individuals controlled increased.

'The guy controlling the Glaturre Trolls may be closer than you think!'

Thanks to this, Seongjin had a lot of free time and was able to continue thinking about various things while moving Shaved Ice No. 1.

'Sir Sebastian said so. Old Man Vincent and the Wolf Knights are currently fighting fiercely against them within the base.'

That would mean that the person controlling it is seeing the situation inside the base with his own eyes.

Not only are they dealing with the Wolf Knights, but they are also dealing with the Dekaron Knights. How can they survive even for a moment with such clumsy control?

'Then he can never be beyond the ice wall!'

Unlike the canyon fortress, which is lined with high cliffs, the ice base is an open area with a snowy field in front of it.

And an ice wall over 40 meters high is blocking the base. It is impossible to visually see the situation inside the base from the rear.

'The only suspicious area is probably the cliff surrounding the back of the base... ... '

So is it okay to be a little optimistic about the situation? There's Sir Ilma and Old Man Dekaron Knight at the Ice Wall Base, right?

Maybe I'll find him before I get there...

Then, the devil bastard gently scolded me from the side.

[Lee Seong-jin, do you think all people are like you? Expecting your level from others is too much to ask.]

'hmm... ... '

Well, I was recently aware that my senses had suddenly become much more sensitive. Maybe even more so than during my Hunter days.

Since when did that start? Was it after capturing the Demon Tree? Or was it after drinking medicinal tea?

Anyway, recently, there were many cases where Dasha's presence was detected faster than the former Dekaron Knight, Leader Bruno.

And those senses were fully utilized to conceal their presence. Thanks to the greatly improved 'Auror concealment', wasn't there a time when he escaped from the base without Director Bruno's knowledge?

Of course, it was a secret from Dasha.

"Sir! We're almost at the base!"

At that time, Orden hinted to Seongjin.

Then, facing the front, he vigorously shouts the phrase he had been repeating over and over again.

"Don't be alarmed! These Glacher Trolls are our allies! We're here to provide support!"

Boom boom boom!

They were currently stuck to one side of the retreat road and running quickly against the movement of the troops. It is like facing the people who are retreating from the front.

Thanks to this, while running here, Seongjin was able to fully encounter the raw emotions on the soldiers' faces.

The fall of the third ice wall, which was thought to be a perfect defense shield. The intense fear, anxiety, and despair that surged from there.

For Seongjin, it is a distant yet not unfamiliar sight.

In the early days of the gate incident, these were the facial expressions the hunters had to face every time they were dispatched. Even those are facial expressions that we haven't seen since humanity was almost extinct... ..

'... 'Is it really worth despairing like this?'

In fact, Seongjin was looking at the current situation quite positively.

I was worried that they would struggle to hold out until the ice base was destroyed, but I guess the leadership's decision was quicker than expected.

The troops are almost intact, and the rear is tightly blocked by the Wolf Knights. But why is everyone making faces like the world is ending right now?

""

However, when I arrived at the ice base and saw the damage with my own eyes, the story changed a little.

Horrible corpses that appear to have lost their lives in a fleeting fall. There are still countless corpses being trampled upon by the Glatre Trolls.

Even though the Wolf Knights were struggling, it seemed that it was not enough to completely stop the ice monsters that were appearing here and there in the ice-enclosed base.

While numerous troops are blocked on their retreat, casualties are steadily accumulating in real time.

"this....."

Additionally, as Seongjin expected, he felt suspicious eyes staring at this place from a cliff not far away. He must be the one who created that mess.

However, old Dekaron Knight was completely unaware of this and was busy chasing after the Glatre Trolls who were repeatedly merging and separating on the ice wall!

Seongjin felt something rising inside him.

'It wasn't supposed to get to this point!'

Was the leadership's decision quick?

No, that's not enough. You could have been faster.

"Am I dreaming right now?"

The old man is even dazed as he looks at shaved ice No. 1. Before he could even recognize it, harsh words came out of Seongjin's mouth.

"You frustrating old man!"

You damn old man, do you really not know that?

You're a Dekaron Knight!

Couldn't you have sensed the danger a little earlier and bitten the soldiers off the ice wall?

Or maybe we couldn't have found the guy controlling all of this a little sooner!

What are you doing so stupidly?

[...] So, not all Dekaron Knights are all-powerful. You shouldn't force your standards or your family's standards on others.]

The Demon King sighed, but Seongjin didn't even seem to hear him.

"What are you hesitating about? Catch that guy right now!"

When I shouted at him like that, old man Vincent protested with an uncharacteristically depressed expression.

"Even if that thing is really a demonic species, isn't it just one guy? It's just spying on this place. If I leave this place now, the damage will only increase..."

"I'll take care of this, so leave it to me."

"No, how could you...."

But when Seongjin glared at him with his eyes wide open, the old man trembled as if he was startled by something. Then, for some reason, he slightly avoids his gaze as if it is difficult to face him.

"...No, I understand."

Whisper, thump!

Old Vincent disappeared over the cliff in an instant with nimble steps. The amount of auras he had and his skill at Shuni Shuhe were talents that were still difficult for Seongjin to imitate.

"Okay then."

Seongjin held the ice heart and concentrated his mind once again.

Now that we've solved the most important issue, let's organize this place.

Kurrrrrr.

Bingsu No. 1 wakes up in response to Seongjin's thoughts.

The feeling coming from the heart of ice is quite light. Even though I don't feel a sense of unity like before, I am confident that if I focus on one animal, I will be able to demonstrate quite decent combat power.

"Then, I'll go first, sir!"

Orden, with his sword drawn from behind, shouted as he ran toward one of the enemy Glatzer Trolls.

And the unique variation of Banajas 3, which unfolds simultaneously with Baldo.

Took!

Part of the ice monster's leg explodes, and the Wolf Knight, who was being pushed back badly, regains his stance.

"Your Majesty!"

"Don't be distracted and focus!"

"...yes!"

The red-haired Inquisitor also began to move his body.

"Sir. Me too first... ugh!"

"Ah. You can rest there, Sir Valerie."

You need to take good care of your condition.

Because you will be enjoying shaved ice with me a lot for a while.

"Suddenly a chill...?"

Seongjin caught a glimpse of him trembling with a pale face-

Cooung- Boom! thud!

Bingsu No. 1 began to move vigorously. Then, he mercilessly grabs the scruff of the neck of the nearest Glatute Troll.

Pow! Knock knock!

As it fluttered in the air and struggled, the Wolf Knights, who were struggling due to injuries, turned their heads in surprise.

"Lowering!?"

"You guys, go back for now."

Then, Sir Ilma looked back from afar and showed a tearful expression.

Even during battle, she always looked after her junior knights, but during a battle like this, she couldn't afford to help them all.

☐The connection with the existing ice heart is forcibly disconnected. Would you like to register a new object?☐

I didn't even have to rip off his arm and give him a few blows, but soon a welcome information window appeared in front of my eyes.

okay. I'll register, so just lie here quietly.

☐Number of entities that can be registered: 6/25☐

After roughly throwing the guy away, Bingsu No. 1 turned and ran quickly toward the ice wall.

Boom boom boom!

And then it rushed at a Glacher Troll that was continuously stepping on the corpses of already dead soldiers.

Flutter! Pow! Wow!

After hitting it with his fists a few times, he threw it on the floor and stomped on it with excitement, just like he did.

Sure enough, not long after that, an information window pops up.

☐The connection with the existing ice heart is forcibly disconnected. Would you like to register a new object?☐

Ugh, I hate this guy.

Let's just end this guy here.

... Damn it!

When the exposed chest is struck mercilessly, the heart is broken into pieces and the ice monster falls limp to the floor. The ice that made up its body also lost its focus and collapsed.

"What the hell is that...!"

While everyone in the base was surprised, Seongjin began moving Bingsu No. 1 in search of the next target.

How much time has passed like that?

As the Glacier Trolls that had been appearing sporadically were eliminated one by one, the Wolf Knights were gradually able to concentrate their power.

The process of subduing them accelerated, and soon most of the ice monsters moving within the base lost their hearts and fell to the ground.

Now, the only remaining Glature Trolls were those who were repeating separation and fusion within the ice wall, and those that Seongjin had subjugated, including Shavedsu No. 1.

□Number of entities that can be registered: 8/25□

There are three additional ones registered in the Ice Heart.

Although the number was small compared to those whom Seongjin personally killed, it was decided that there was no need to leave behind those who had committed mass murder.

Anyway, moving just one shaved ice more efficiently can help with power.

"How on earth...?"

As the retreat became relatively leisurely, suspicious views towards Seongjin naturally began to surface.

Gossip and gossip.

"Taming a demonic beast, I've never heard of such a thing."

"How on earth does Prince Mores control the Glacher Troll? It could not be the devil's...."

Isn't the suspicion gone with just one Inquisitor?

Well, I guess it's not unreasonable. These are the magic beasts that had driven them into a hopeless situation just a moment ago.

It would be difficult for anyone to understand this situation, as those giant ice monsters were sitting calmly on the ground at the young prince's command.

"If you have time to talk nonsense, find at least one more injured person!"

At that time, Lord Ilma scolded the soldiers.

"There are still those guys left inside the ice wall! Thanks to you, we only saved an hour, but you never know when they might attack again like they did before!"

Re-raid.

Towards the people who were fading just by imagining it, Orden, whose spirit had become ferocious, issued a threat.

"You are a great benefactor of our Lord Sigismund! Anyone who dares to show disrespect to a member of the Holy Family will be dealt with severely!"

... That Orden guy somehow feels like he has accumulated one more debt in his heart.

Anyway, as Lord Ilma said, I couldn't let down my guard just yet.

thud. thud. thud.

Intermittent vibrations were still reverberating within the ice wall. This probably means that work to weaken the ice wall is continuing.

Occasionally, the surface of some ice walls broke and fell. If things continue like this, it will only be a matter of time before a hole appears somewhere.

Oooh.

Crumbling.

They seemed to think so too. The Lycan Slope unit, which had been gathered in the chippy leaf forest, has now arrived at the very edge of the ice wall. Their number is approximately 1,500.

'Is old Vincent still there...?'

Seongjin tried to raise his spirits, but there was no sign of both the devil and the old man, as they were far away.

Maybe he had already started running when Seongjin pointed to his location.

'If we can't kill him right away, there's still a way to find another guy instead.'

Seongjin held the ice heart and opened his spiritual eyes to the fullest.

Then, suddenly, a slight pain arose in my eyes.

[Don't overdo it, Seongjin Lee. You've been up most of the night with your spiritual eyes open since yesterday, right? It's no longer possible. No matter how much help you get from the flame crystal, what you share is my sense!]

The devil notices Seongjin's abnormality and quickly warns him.

'are you okay.'

Because I will do as much as I can.

After responding like that, Seongjin looked around the five-colored world he was now accustomed to. A world that the Demon King is probably looking at, but is sure to be a little different from his perspective.

'My meditation decision transforms the information I receive through my spiritual eyes into a complete perspective. So, to me, the connection between thoughts appears in vivid colors.'

Indeed, Seongjin was able to discover thin solid lines extending from within the ice wall.

Five lines lead from the snowfield and two lines lead into the canyon. Perhaps it comes from two hearts of ice.

It is said that the first one that attacked was thirty, so it was clearly the two Ice Hearts that attacked.

'The canyon is currently being pursued by old man Vincent. then... ...
'

Seongjin confirmed that the solid lines leading straight to the snowy field were coming together and touching a small dark green shadow.

An aura that was too far away to be detected as a presence, probably belonging to the second Glacher Troll operator.

'That one must also be related to the devil.'

Because energy mixed with black usually means it contains demonic energy.

[Lee Seong-jin.]

'If you follow that line, you can see where the Glacher Trolls are within the ice wall and where they will separate. Of course, that doesn't mean you can attack blindly. Because the ice wall will be damaged as well. Is there really no other way to prevent the ice wall from collapsing than to hit the guy controlling it?'

[Hey, Seongjin Lee!]

'I guess I'll have to go out of the ice to catch that guy. If one of them is caught in the hands of Old Man Vincent, that side will not hastily approach this side and will instead focus on replenishing the Glacher Trolls.'

Squeaky.

Seongjin was making those calculations while caressing his temple where the pain was getting worse.

Sigh!

Suddenly, I felt empty in my head and the world instantly returned to its original state.

All of the five colors seen through the snowy field disappear, and a colorless ice barrier blocks the gloomy vision.

".....?"

... Devil?

I raise my head in confusion.

[you idiot!]

The echoing voice, full of venom, hit me directly in my mind.

[What do you mean you only do as much as you can! You're not in a perfect state right now! If you keep doing this, I will never make your decision again! I don't even eat bear meat! No matter how delicious it is, I will never, ever eat it!]

... uh?

232. Defensive Battle (5)

'Why are you doing this all of a sudden? Now is a golden opportunity to find out the enemy's identity!'

Seongjin became impatient and tried to appease the devil, but the bastard was still stubborn.

[Promise me you won't open your spiritual eyes today! Otherwise, you won't be able to enter the nest, no matter how beautiful, wonderful, and hard to see again!]

... It seems that he liked Yeomsang's decision more than he thought.

'wait for a sec. It only takes a little while, right? Once this work is over, I will rest for a while, eat a lot of delicious food, and play a lot with you... ... '

[...] Hmm! If you thought you could tempt someone with something to eat, you were sorely mistaken! This body is not that clumsy beginner devil! He is the great Demon King of Gehenna!]

The Demon King emphasized that even a special bear meat steak with a fiery taste would be of no use.

In the process, specific foods such as lamb and lemon pine appear. These are probably the things that left a particular impression on him.

First, Seongjin roughly put the food pouring out at random into his head and then spoke.

'Even if you don't tell me, I'm taking care of my condition.'

[You are so real! Is this how it is managed now?]

'Anyway, there's no difference if I use my spiritual eyes for a little while longer.'

[Do not be ridiculous! Do I not know you? Are you the one to end it with that? Don't you plan on moving the Glacher Troll by pulling out its soul like before, just to kill it right away? Or are you planning on sneaking out on your own later using Auror concealment and killing them?]

'... ... '

Seongjin was speechless at the devil's reply. Because his guess was exactly right.

Then the Demon King became angry.

[It's someone else's territory to begin with! Why do you, who have nothing to do with anything, have to sacrifice yourself for those pathetic bastards?]

'... what?'

sacrifice? who?

Seongjin, who was confused, immediately put on a pitiful expression and looked into the sky, where he thought the Demon King was.

'Am I crazy?'

What nonsense are you talking about?

This is not something incomprehensible like sacrifice or altruism. It's just a pure pursuit of profit for myself.

[...] profit?]

okay. Think about it, devil.

All people of Sigismund are subjects of the empire. They are precious beings who protect the territory of Delcross and enrich themselves by paying taxes to the Margrave, who will continue to rip them off from me.

In other words, they are my father's property, and at the same time, they are the property of our royal family.

[Eh?]

In other words, their lives are all 'mine.'

I'm trying to save some of my things, so what's the problem?

[What on earth is that sophistry?]

The Demon King responded shakily, but Seongjin fiercely opened his eyes and glared at the shaking ice wall.

'And the most important thing is that I feel very uncomfortable right now.'

I never let people touch what's mine. I think I should vent my anger in moderation.

We'll have to finish off the manipulator, or at least get one more Glacher Troll from them.

Otherwise, I feel like I'm going to die of fire at any moment!

[Tsk tsk, so what can you do with that dirty temper...]

'What, man?'

However, Seongjin could not argue with the devil for very long. This is because Lord Ilma, who had roughly summarized the situation, came to the side with a worried expression.

"Sir, I've prepared a cart, even if it's not perfect, so please come on up."

"huh?"

"Your help has been more than enough. We, the Wolf Knights, will finish the rest. For now, please return to the territory with the Archduke."

When I turned my head to see what she said, I saw that a Wolf Knight was indeed pulling something that looked like a cart. It's big enough to be called a handcart, but small enough to be called a rear carriage.

Perhaps because it is an ice base where horses cannot communicate properly, it seems to be one of the main means of transportation used here.

Seongjin furrowed his eyebrows slightly.

"I'm fine, Lord Ilma. We can walk together."

The intention of giving special treatment to the prince is good. Just imagining riding something like that is shameful.

"But, sir, you don't look that good right now."

"I'm a bit motion sick. It'll get better if I walk."

To be honest, wouldn't it be strange if I didn't get motion sick after riding on that big drop of shaved ice for half a day?

"Besides, isn't it too unsightly? I'm done with it. What kind of idiot in this world would ride something like that?"

"...It's one of the carts that the head of the family usually rides around in."

"Huh. This cushion is really nice."

Seongjin quickly sat down on the cart and said.

[...] Why are you acting so suddenly like me? Change everything you say.]

'There is no need to cause trouble with the Margrave now. He still has a lot to take in.'

I was willing to endure a bit of embarrassment for the immediate benefit.

Rattling rattling.

Just like that, the cart Seongjin was riding began to move. As Orden and Sir Valery followed him, they naturally joined the ranks of the retreating troops.

Bingsu No. 1, No. 6, 7, and 8, roughly designated as a group, also slowly follow the troops.

Thump, thump, thump.

The soldiers, who were startled by the sound of those heavy footsteps, occasionally glanced sideways at the cart that Seongjin was riding.

However, even though the base was getting farther and farther away, Seongjin couldn't take his eyes off the ice wall due to a sense of regret. Orden noticed his gaze and opened his mouth implicitly.

"Sir. Those hiding in the ice wall probably won't come out any time soon. There is no other way than to abandon the base, retreat, and reorganize a new front line. The number of Glacher Trolls has decreased significantly, so now the rear is completely left to the Wolf Knights. You can."

"hmm....."

That's true though.

Seongjin quietly looked at the occasionally shaking ice wall with a sulky face.

'If I had killed the pilots while I was at it, I could have preserved the base like this...'

Because I don't have the strength.

One step.

Because just one step is not enough.

"You have helped the territory enough. Aren't the Liliun Detachment and Prince Logan joining us soon? The situation doesn't seem to be that bad."

No, Sir Valerie.

Thinking that this is not enough is the same as feeling deep inside that it is not enough.

We could have had a much better outcome.

"I owe you an immeasurable amount of debt. I don't know how I can repay it all. I'm in no mood right now, so I'm saying foolish things, but soon the soldiers will realize how much of a favor they have been to you."

Orden, you simple bastard. Are you planning on digging up the entire territory and dedicating it to me?

You should learn from your father's clever side. Aren't you the next Margrave?

I was thinking about this while absentmindedly listening to the regular footsteps of the shaved ice makers, but at some point, I suddenly started to feel drowsy.

Well, I definitely feel a little more tired than usual.

'Even though you have a younger body, you can't lie about your age. I stayed up all night and suddenly got a ticket like this, won... ..'

As I was blinking, the two people's voices ringing in my ears began to fade away.

-Grand Duke. Those Vines, by the way. How about putting on the Sigismund family insignia? The hostility among soldiers will be greatly reduced.

-That sounds like a good idea. It would be good to distinguish it from the enemy Glacher Troll. I will take action immediately when I return to the territory. By the way, how are you feeling?

-I took light action using divine power, but it might be better to show the priest right away when I return. Wasn't it a difficult run for you and me? I don't know how you, a novice Auror, have survived so far.

Then Seongjin unconsciously snorted in his sleep.

'Don't be funny, you kids. You guys are still a long way off compared to me. How dare you compare? Comparative quality. At least 640 more years... ..'

That was the last conversation Seongjin remembered.

Using the rocking of the cart as a lullaby, Seongjin fell asleep.

* * *

Deep coniferous trees beyond the snowfield.

A huge lycanthrope was looking down at a woman and growling. He was none other than Berseus, who borrowed the body of a new relative after losing Vajra.

[How can this happen? Isn't it very different from the first story!]

Although his new main body was not a descendant of Nebraska, it was a useful family member with a decent lineage.

The sharp nails, like the blades of a wild beast, put terrible pressure on the woman, who looked infinitely thin compared to the lycan slope.

[Didn't your master definitely say that? You can attack the empty canyon fortress, attack the territory, and use the momentum to attack the ice wall base from both inside and outside! Sigismund will be engulfed in flames at once!]

However, the woman did not even blink at the terrifying threat.

"Bethelah...."

Red lips draw a long arc under a deeply pressed hood.

"What he said was not wrong one bit. The canyon fortress was empty, and although the number was less than expected, the Glacher Trolls were well prepared."

[But why... ... !]

"What do you think is the reason why the plan went so wrong? Berseus. I think it's because someone lost both the family and the 'Ice Heart' at the same time, and it ended up falling into the hands of the enemy."

[...] ... !]

"Who did you hand it to?"

Of the 25 Glature Trolls she collected over a long period of time, she only has 4 left.

The woman continued speaking while carefully rolling her 'ice heart' in her hand.

"You should know that it was a very important variable. So tell me, Berseus. Who on earth stole it from you?"

[...] The kid said he was of Nebraska descent.]

Berseus answered in a slightly uncertain voice.

When I think of that little bastard who mocked me for being a mudblood, my head still bleeds. But this incident was clearly his mistake.

But the woman who heard the answer tilted her head.

"A descendant of Nebraska? Well, I wonder what it will be like...."

[I could clearly feel the presence of Nebraska in him. Don't you trust me?]

"No, I don't think you missed the Nebraska trail. That's a different matter."

The woman continued her explanation, holding up her ice heart in front of her eyes.

"As you know, this is a product of the normal world. However, since this is not the normal world, unless you have spiritual eyes, you will never be able to recognize this. Controlling it is also completely impossible."

[morning eyes...]

"Not only that. He must be able to strongly interfere with the 'ice heart' with just his thoughts. This means that he is someone who possesses spiritual eyes and can freely move his thoughts to the point where he can create specific flame images in an instant."

[...] ... !]

A person who has spiritual eyes and is free from thoughts.

As far as Berseus knew, there was only one such person in Delcross.

[Has the guardian already returned?!]

But the woman shrugged her shoulders and smiled.

"Is that possible? You can't even guess how much effort the master has put into this matter. The Guardian has been successfully defending the defense so far, so it seems like he has forgotten for a moment, but the 'gap' is not that easy to deal with. no."

[if?]

"The cause and effect was greatly distorted somewhere we didn't expect. Originally, the Sigismund Spirit should have completely turned into a sea of fire right now. If you are the one who moves that cause and effect and controls the thoughts, isn't there only one left?"

Berseus does not specifically understand the 'thoughts' and 'images' that this woman speaks of.

However, when it comes to disrupting cause and effect, he also knew one thing.

[...] That evil thing intervened.]

"That's right. [The Reserved One]."

Berseus remembered the face of the boy who had stopped him and cut off Vajra's head with a single sword. Those cool gray eyes.

[okay. I said I'd seen it somewhere before, but that kid was the blemish on him.]

Berseus growled, showing his sharp fangs.

[I knew very well that he was a terrible libertine, but how dare he mess with Lycanslope's bloodline to create a child!]

"hmm?"

[...] hmm?]

And for a moment, Berseus and the woman tilted their heads side by side.

for a moment.

If she is the mother of 'the one prepared', isn't she definitely the daughter of Grand Duke Asein? Could it be the lineage of Lycanslope?

After a moment of awkward silence, the woman sighed softly.

"Put aside that Nebraska thing for now. I don't have time to focus on anything else right now. After all, once you start, you have to see some meaningful results, right?"

[If so, what do you plan to do now?]

"You continue to attack the ice wall. If my men go as planned, the third ice wall will collapse sooner or later. Then, you can lead the Lycan Slopes and attack the territory as is."

[What are you doing?]

"In the meantime, I will harvest additional seeds planted by my master for future all-out war."

Berseus clicked his tongue as if he was dumbfounded.

[After digging like that, there are still Glacher Trolls left?]

"Hehe."

Then the woman looked at Berseus and let out a light laugh.

"My master, the great [Sowing], there is no place in the world where he does not sow seeds. How can I possibly fathom all the innumerable arrangements. Bethelah...."

233. Defensive Battle (6)

[Gap] is a type of distortion created when space is forced into space.

So, when you go inside the gap, you can see the randomly interlaced and curved sections of the world spread out in all directions like broken stained glass.

Each of these sections becomes an intersection between the gap and the world.

So what happens if we look at that intersection from outside the gap?

If it were possible to accurately grasp the singularity that interfered with space from the outside, it would not be impossible to glimpse the gap beyond a cross-section of the world.

Like right now.

[How long has it been since Seonghwang's father has been away, and now he's looking for a gap on his own? I was so shocked that I thought I was going to lose my mind!]

The blue bead that was bouncing around in front of Seongjin's eyes spoke as if he was blaming him.

huh? But isn't your soul already gone?

[Dad, there is a reason why His Majesty was so worried. How long do we have to follow you around? You need to get your night's pay from now on.]

The pink orb sitting quietly on my shoulder chided me gently.

Isn't it time for you to respect your elders in a way that befits your age?

And Seongjin thought blankly.

'But who are you? Why are you following me? Do you know me?'

Then the blue bead bursts into laughter and vibrates slightly.

[Mores does that all the time! No matter how much I tell you, you leave only what you need and forget everything on your own, right? How many times has this happened?]

The pink orb also let out a small sigh and moved as if it were tapping its shoulder.

[Mores may be selecting things in his own way so as not to offend cause and effect. Let's stop talking nonsense and go see your Majesty. That's what you came here for, right?]

'... ... '

Seongjin felt the doubt and was convinced at the same time.

okay. It's as they say.

As if repulsing the sense of déjà vu that something like this had happened at some point, the thought of what can be done about it raises its head.

In this way, Seongjin began to fly in the night sky with the two beads in an awkward state.

[Now we're there! Mores.]

[It's right here! Mores.]

The two small beads guided him to a place with a small window showing a dim view.

It is a diamond-shaped thing floating in the air without a wall or window frame to support it. Perhaps, rather than a window, it can be called a small hole in the world.

When he looked there as if fascinated, a small space that Seongjin had seen before was revealed to his field of vision.

'... gap.'

[That's right, it's a niche that Seonghwang's father left in the imperial palace.]

[Dad, His Majesty was there all day today.]

[I like it when Seonghwang's dad is in trouble, but at this point, we're starting to get worried too.]

[Dad, I like it when His Majesty is in trouble, but I don't like it when it happens because of other people.]

Oh, that's right. It did.

Until now, Seongjin had been subconsciously looking for Seonghwang's whereabouts.

Didn't a lot happen today?

While I was controlling the shaved ice, my soul seemed to be escaping, strange thoughts were clinging to me, and my body, which had been overworked all day, had reached a point where I could never say it was okay.

This is a repeat of a situation where I would normally have looked into it many times, even if I had to force myself to do so, but strangely, there has been no news from that person.

I'm worried that something might have happened.

[It's only been a day since Seonghwang's father opened his eyes, Mores.]

[If you're going to find your Majesty like that, why did you leave the imperial capital?]

Make a lot of noise, you devils!

Can you even imagine the weight of what has been placed in my hands?

I'm not doing this for nothing. If you keep getting on my nerves, as soon as I return to the ecliptic, I will destroy the entire chess board!

[Wow! Mores is too much! Mores idiot!]

While the two beads were shouting together and running wild, Seongjin focused all his attention on the sight seen through the gap through the window.

I thought the view would soon change, but before I knew it, a vast volcanic area covered in lava spread out before my eyes.

And Seongjin was able to find the person he was looking for there.

'father!'

The Holy Emperor, holding a white-light Auror blade, was emitting a white light that was clearly distinguishable even in the thick volcanic ash.

Seongjin, who saw the familiar robes and golden crown, smiled and focused on him. Then, the scenery is pulled in as if a flower was being pulled, and the sight of the emperor becomes even closer.

- This is nonsense!

At that moment, Seonghwang was in the middle of a confrontation with someone.

The opponent was a man wearing fancy armor that seemed unlikely to exist in reality and wielding a greatsword with a strange center of gravity.

He doesn't seem to have much expertise in swordsmanship, and is swinging his weapon loudly in a strange form with unnecessary movements.

-Mr. How is that a boss mob? Even though it's a hidden quest, what's the point if the level of difficulty is this high?

The man shouted at Seonghwang.

Although he couldn't actually hear the voice, Seongjin was somehow able to understand the entire conversation between them.

Fortunately, thoughts do not hit your head at the same time without any chronological order, like in the gap. It seems that the only time the sense of time becomes tangled is when there is a gap.

-shit! Does this make sense? I am ranked 5th in the entire Pangea Chronicle server ranking!

As the man struggled and sweated, Seonghwang looked at him and nodded.

-If you do that, there is nothing to feel unfair about. All those who claim to be in a higher state than you have lost their lives to me.

-What? Is it even data accumulation? Shit! How do you catch something like this!?

And then there was the neat sword strike.

-Ugh!

The man died without any resistance and screamed.

At that moment, the volcanic area suddenly turns gray, and a large window appears above the fallen man's head.

□GAME OVER□

The place where Seonghwang stands began to change.

The volcanic area receded, and the hundreds and thousands of spaces he must have passed through so far were pushed back, like turning the pages of a book.

The sight of the world of images, images, and real images all coming together and mixing together was majestic at first glance.

Among them, especially in the normal worlds, without exception, the following characters come to mind.

□GAME OVER□

□GAME OVER□

□GAME OVER□

□GAME OVER□

.

.

.

Seongjin suddenly felt heartbroken.

What is all that?

All of those things so far?

-... ... !

Seonghwang was startled and turned his head, wondering how he had noticed Seongjin's gaze.

When he made eye contact with him, Seonghwang smiled, looking a little embarrassed, but at the same time clearly happy. For some reason, it felt like he was more expressive than usual.

-What are you doing? Go back quickly!

He waved his hand in silence and turned his head back to face the front.

Just like that, one world was far away, and another world was coming closer to his nose.

What opened the entrance this time was a black hell covered in fog.

As a gigantic monster with a vague shape slowly raises its head from the sea of fog, the Holy Emperor quietly waits for it, aiming his silver thorn as always.

[They came here at the same time, but since they are under the rule of the prosperous father, they have no choice but to follow his lead.]

[After going back and forth with Delcross for a long time, His Majesty Dad learned how to properly use the distortion of time.]

As the kids said, Seonghwang looked very tired, but he never felt like he was going to lose.

All of these things are properly controlled under his rules forever.

-Do whatever you want to do. If you wish to correct the absurdity, it will be done.

Suddenly, something I heard from Seonghwang not long ago comes to mind.

And now Seongjin wanted to answer him like this.

'Do whatever you want to do. If you wish to protect it somehow, everything will be done that way.'

and.

'No matter who they are, I will make sure that those who disturbed Delcross pay the price.'

Seongjin is different from the kids.

I didn't want Seonghwang's father to be in trouble, I was very worried about him, and I also hated the guy who made him do that.

Wow.

A strong thought wave suddenly arose from Seongjin, and the small beads were startled and began to spin around him.

[He's really angry again! Look at the window shaking!]

[Then tear open the gap and enter. Tell them to wake up quickly!]

Anyway, what kind of kid are you? How long are you going to harass people? Are you going to slowly kill his father?

Do it in moderation. If you don't, I'll grind it all up and drink it for you later, without leaving even a single bone meal behind!

[Wow! Sir Sharon!]

[wow! Brother Masain!]

Noisy! Don't disturb me!

First, I have to go find who that guy is and see for myself with my own eyes... .. !

As he was grinding his teeth, someone suddenly shook Seongjin violently.

"...under."

wait. Once I find out who did it, I... ..

"Lowering."

Shoot!

At that moment, I felt the scenes of the gaps in my mind slipping away like the ebb and flow. In addition, emotions and memories become blurred, and an urgent sense of crisis arises, as if everything is lost at once.

No, wait, wait!

"Lowering!"

omg.

When he opened his eyes, he saw the knight's face looking down at him with concern.

"...Lord Martha?"

"Yes, sir. It is me. Why are you sweating so much?"

".....?"

... Uh, well?

It feels like I was dreaming something.

Seongjin slowly let out the breath he had been holding and looked around.

The place where he lay was a dark and shabby private house. Instead of a candle, there was a torch hanging near the entrance.

Strong.

The moment I looked at the torch, a slight pain arose in my eyes. As the devil said, his eyes didn't seem to be in very good condition.

"Please lie down a little longer, sir. I'm still receiving treatment. Hehe."

Right next to him, Sir Sharon is holding Seongjin's hand and pouring out divine power. Looking at those dark eyes, it's the usual Sir Sharon.

Somehow, I felt lighter than before.

"What about the Canyon Fortress?"

Seongjin slowly got up and asked.

Well, the fact that Masain and the rest of the party are here probably means that things have become more relaxed enough to vacate the canyon fortress.

"It's safe. Maybe it's because of the Glature Trolls placed in front of the ice wall, but they weren't able to attack easily. It seems like they thought they could move again at any time."

Oh, that's right. Just in case, I lined up shaved ice numbers 2, 3, 4, and 5 at the entrance to the fortress.

The shaved ice seemed to have done its job well.

"We went out of the fortress and had a small skirmish with the Lycanslopes, but the Glacher Trolls did not attack again."

"okay?"

"Yes. Soon after, reinforcements arrived. Sir Sebastian sent quite a number of troops with the Wolf Knights. So I switched with them in the afternoon and came here."

Seongjin nodded.

"But where is this place?"

"It's a private house near the front line. The owner of the house has evacuated to another place. Currently, all the troops in the territory are confronting the Lycan Slopes who came over the ice wall."

For a moment, Seongjin was at a loss for words and stared at Masain.

Instead of evacuating the prince, who was unconscious and unable to fight, to the rear, he stayed at the front line?

Masain, who realized the meaning of that gaze, answered awkwardly.

"Ah, I was waiting because I thought he would want to move Vince as soon as he woke up. Everyone in the group is ready to go to the front line now."

"....."

"The situation on the front is not very optimistic. We will probably need your help."

Did you think I would be so excited that you were preparing to go to the front line a long time ago?

Seongjin felt his conscience pricking his lungs sharply.

Sir Masain. I really feel sorry for you.

As he left the house following his guidance, an unexpected sight awaited Seongjin.

"...this?"

After telling them to follow him as a group, he fell asleep, but the shaved ice seemed to have followed Seongjin on their own. All four cars were standing tall and waiting near a private house.

But aren't all the shaved ices wearing the Sigismund family insignia like a cloak?

Since the shaved ice was so huge, no matter how big the badge was, it looked like a small cape that barely covered the back.

It looked like knights lined up in a row, so it had a pretty grandeur to it.

Additionally, there is black paint smeared on their chests.

Two crossed swords and the sun surrounding them.

Although it was a little crooked and crude, it was undoubtedly the symbol of the main god and a symbol of Delcross.

"Haha, what do you think of my work, sir?"

Sir Valerie, who had just finished drawing a pattern on the chest of Shaved Ice No. 7, smiled cheerfully and said. He hung a rope around the necks of the shaved ice and used pendulum movements to draw patterns.

"Because appearances are quite important in all things."

As he said, the soldiers' faces looking up at the shaved ice showed signs of anxiety.

"Now they will be accepted as the Lord's soldiers in name and reality."

As Masain said that, his face also became relaxed. He was always disgusted by anything that was wrong, but that one symbol seemed to give him some peace of mind.

Seongjin reflected greatly.

'I can't believe I emphasized the importance of propaganda and fabrication to Sisley, and then missed this important detail.'

In my rush to help the ice base, I forgot an important lesson.

'If you want to cheat, you have to fool your allies first!'

[...] You don't really think that's a lesson, do you?]

The demon king, who had kept his mouth shut until then, eventually couldn't hold back and attacked Seongjin.

234

234. Defensive Battle (7)

"Someone masterfully controlled the Glature Troll? And you suspect that it was the work of [The Reserved One]...."

An old house in the suburbs not far from the Imperial Capital.

In a place that was sometimes used as a meeting place for seditious people, an old priest was staring into space with a bright green glow in his eyes.

He is [Sowing].

He was the Demon Lord of [Disease], who had been making good use of the poor Dark Church's old priesthood as a contractor ever since he was transferred to it by Romaine.

"It seems like it will be more difficult to take control of the northern region than I thought..."

Eventually, after finishing contact with his subordinate, he grumbled and returned to the living room.

As he casually sat down on the old sofa, acrid dust rose up everywhere.

"...Was the [Reserved One] involved this time too?"

[Greed], who was sitting in the living room, asks first. As always, she looked like a small girl with braided hair.

"Yes. I think so. I really don't know. I have no idea what it's working for."

"That's right, we are moving for the ultimate destruction of Delcross.

It's obvious."

"Is that really true? Even if it's not exactly what Romain said, these days, I'm increasingly having strong doubts about the meaning of [The Reserved One]'s existence."

When Pa Jong pouted his mouth uncharacteristically, Greed stared at him.

"Anyway, I didn't know that you would put an end to that guy's nonsense."

Berseus Dashiano is a member of the 'Council of Six' and the owner of the [Key].

It is an existence that cannot help but be in eternal opposition to the Demon Lords, who are only looking for an opportunity to divide not only the northern part of the continent, but also the entire Delcross dimension.

Then, Pa Jong lifted the wrinkled corners of his mouth and chuckled.

"We can cooperate for a while for what each person wants. Just as [Repentance] supported Sigurd Sigurdson to liberate those who were reserved, we will join forces with Berseus and the abandoned 'Doll' to take over the northern part of the continent. I'm raising my hand."

Well, the guardian of Delcross may not be so gentle.

Pajong added that.

"Berseus's wish is nothing but a vain delusion. In the end, he will be sanctioned by the 'Council of Six'."

"Well, guess what? As you know, their rules are quite ambiguous. What they consider most important is maintaining a balance between cause and effect."

A perfect world that was once paired with Delcross.

This is because the [catastrophe] that completely destroyed Ionia was originally caused by an imbalance between cause and effect.

"So they are shackling the hands and feet of the guardians who are trying to protect the continent, and are actually turning a blind eye to the dark church's moves to harm the continent. As long as it is done in the hands of 'humans'."

Pajong continued speaking, leaning diagonally on the sofa.

"Greed. [Cause and effect] is the only thing and everything for people like us. What is the reason for going all out to expand the church without invading the dimension from the beginning? We can exert maximum influence on the world without touching that cause and effect. "Isn't it for unfolding?"

"....."

"Oh, that's right. You don't seem to be interested? Because I don't raise a religious order or anything like that."

Ignoring the criticism thrown as a joke, Greed asked a question with an expressionless face.

"I know that you planned something by gathering the demon lords of the world of the real world and the real world. But how on earth does the normal world work? I didn't know that you could even exert influence on those strange worlds."

"Oh, that?"

Then, Pajong smiled somewhat secretly, then suddenly turned his face towards the girl and lowered his voice.

"Haha. Don't be surprised, Greed. It's [Ayeol]. The hidden Ayeol has appeared!"

"...Painful."

"Yeah. I was wondering what he was preoccupied with these days, and he was completely absorbed in playing around in the world of reality."

"....."

"So, I asked if he could help me gather the forces of the normal world, and he quickly created something called a [quest]. With just that, a huge number of normal worlds were born in an instant! Isn't that really like him?"

Greed slightly furrowed his brows as he heard Pajong talking excitedly.

"Vanity, vain! No matter how many clumsy kings of that dimension attack, do you think any of them will be able to defeat the guardian of Delcross?"

"ha ha ha."

Pa Jong smiled with a confident face.

"That is what one knows and the other does not know, greed. No matter how strong a person is, there is a limit to the human spirit. If you continue to face countless difficulties, you will eventually be used up and worn out. So, try to help him as much as possible. ... hmm?"

After speaking up to that point, Pajong suddenly frowned and trailed off.

"...But I don't know why I've been getting chills like this since a while ago. Is it because I changed my body so quickly because I have an old man's body?"

The devil of disease catches a cold, something embarrassing like that shouldn't happen.

I'll have to find a new, healthy contractor soon.

Pa Jong muttered while rubbing his goosebumped arms.

Meanwhile, there was another person who experienced a sudden chill at the same time as planting: Romaine, who was lying in the streets of Bertrand.

"Fouechwi!"

He sneezed so hard that his half-mask bounced up and down his face.

Thanks to this, Leonard, who was rolling around with a bottle of alcohol next to him, wakes up in surprise.

"What is it? Romaine. Can a body other than the main body catch a cold or something?"

"...That can't be right. It's nothing."

Big. Romaine cleared his throat and asked the prince.

"Anyway, what do you think of the princess's reaction recently, Leo? Did she seem interested in a national marriage with Rohan?"

"Well? I'm just diligently sending flowers right now...."

Leonard turned over and rested his chin crookedly.

"First of all, I think there will be progress only when Prince Mores returns. The princess never shows her face at trivial banquets. She is just like my father when it comes to being expensive."

So, I plan to ask the prince to create a position with the princess in earnest.

The prince added and took a sip of his drink.

"...You mean Prince Mores?"

Will he return safely to the imperial capital?

Romaine was arsenic.

Prince Mores was 'prepared' by the Dark Church. This was information I obtained after offering an offering to a high-ranking demon king some time ago.

If everything they said was true, the one who was prepared would become a big obstacle in Leonard's path in the future. It is something that should never be left behind in the world.

That's why I worked hard to convince the high-ranking demon kings that he should be eliminated.

"However, we cannot wipe out the entire Sigismund Territory with overwhelming force. This task requires an appropriate balance."

"Why is that again?"

Romain's mouth twisted at Leonard's innocent question.

"You're not really asking this, right? If the Sigismund Territory is easily defeated like this, then the next place the demonic beasts will target is definitely Rohan."

"ah."

In fact, Rohan, which has a part of its border with Lake Salz, is greatly benefiting from the Sigismund Territory.

Romain sighed towards the prince who nodded with an idiotic expression.

"Didn't you have Princess Amelia in mind? If you want to truly capture her heart, it would be a good idea to build up your common sense and culture right now. Rumor has it that the intelligent princess is already helping her father look after state affairs even at a young age."

"Hmm. Really?"

Leonard, who frowned and pondered for a moment, soon shook his head.

"Common sense and culture lose their luster in front of a brilliant appearance. I will just approach her with the image of a quiet man with a nice smile."

"...Ah yes."

You're trying to hide your ignorance by sparing your words.

How far can I go with this person?

Romaine let out a long sigh and suddenly turned his gaze to stare at the distant northern sky.

"By now, it is time for an all-out war to break out. The fate of Sigismund will soon be decided."

* * *

Seongjin was moving along with the group and chewing preserved food.

I had to put something in my mouth whenever I had free time. When I think about it, I barely ate anything all day due to various events.

'how is it? I think it's delicious.'

It was a special preserved meal prepared by the imperial palace, so the taste wasn't that bad. It has less of a unique unpleasant taste, and if you chew it for a long time, the taste of high-quality seasoning comes out.

When I diligently shared that feeling with the Demon King, he grumbled in a slightly calmer voice.

[joy! Even so, it's no use. I won't be opening my spiritual eyes anymore today!]

'Uh, okay.'

While Seongjin was sleeping, fortunately, the demon king calmly returned to his decision to burn. So Seongjin decided not to provoke him anymore and tried to calm him down.

'I understand what you mean. But you know that, right? If my father fixes it, these abnormalities will disappear as if they have been washed away. Now is the time to focus all your energy on more important things rather than dwelling on petty ideals.'

For some reason, I can't see him today, but won't he come here someday soon, borrowing Sir Sharon's body? Then you will recover quickly.

When I explained it like that, the demon lord sighed deeply, and eventually started clicking his tongue.

[You are a human. Sometimes he seems like he's thinking deeply, but then he acts like a completely thoughtless idiot. Have you ever thought about changing your perspective on that situation?]

'huh?'

[What about your father himself, who can heal you so well? Just because he gets better quickly, what if he tries to take on difficult tasks on his own or gets seriously injured? But can you tell me it's okay because you will recover soon?]

'... uh?'

A flash of light.

A faint image of Seonghwang's back passed through Seongjin's mind. It looks like it's glaring somewhere while aiming a silver thorn that shines white.

The image disappeared in an instant, but strangely, it left behind a heartbreaking impression.

what? I feel like I can't remember anything...

[Do you understand? You troublemaker! You should be lucky that all your mistakes are forgiven with just one night!]

'hmm...'

Seongjin, who was in a solemn mood, no longer tried to persuade the Demon King to open his spiritual eyes.

Anyway, I knew very well that if I made a request in a truly urgent situation, he would act like he couldn't win.

thud. thud. thud.

Fortunately, there was no need for a spiritual eye right now. Even without any special commands, the shaved ices followed Seongjin on their own.

It appears that the command to 'follow' is still valid.

"Sir, we're all here."

When they arrived at the camp prepared at the entrance to the territory, the front line happened to be in a moment of lull.

Lord Ilma, who was in the midst of reorganizing his troops, greeted Seongjin with a happy face.

"The ice wall lasted quite a long time, but in the end, all of the Lycan Slopes climbed over the ice wall before the sun set. There have been a total of two clashes with them so far."

"Right."

Seongjin nodded and looked at the enemy lines.

The sun has completely set and the surrounding area is dark, and the wide slope leading to the ice base is covered in the light of hundreds of stars. If you think that each starlight was the eye light of a wild beast, it was a very scary sight.

Not to be outdone, numerous torches were lit within the camp to brightly illuminate the surroundings.

When I saw those moving flames, a sudden pain in my eyes that I had forgotten arose.

It looks like the devil is right when he says that his eyes aren't in very good condition.

Even though Sir Sharon and Sir Valerie took turns pouring divine power on him, he has not yet fully recovered.

This may mean that it is not just fatigue of the optic nerve, but also permanent damage to the tissue.

'If my father finds out, he'll be really angry.'

Something is already making my forehead hurt.

"By the way, what happened to the old man who chased away the devil?"

Did old Vincent catch the guy who was controlling the Glatzer Troll? In the end, seeing as the ice wall collapsed, it may have been a failure.

Then Lord Ilma answered with an ambiguous expression.

"Well, it's not like you missed him, but should I say you caught him...?"

".....?"

"First, I will take you to the command barracks. We can talk in detail there."

Originally, Seongjin, who was an outsider and was young, would never have been invited to the command barracks.

Perhaps it was because of the power of the shaved ice shown while saving the ice wall base, but everyone was naturally treating Seongjin and his group as an important force.

When Seongjin arrived, a meeting was in full swing at the Margrave's barracks.

"They will try to compete at night as much as possible. No matter how much humans strengthen their eyes with auras, their night vision cannot keep up with the Lycanslopes."

Sir Sebastian explained calmly.

Lycanslopes have superior physical strength and are superior in numbers. They even use Aurors like humans.

There weren't many people who could properly deal with them in the dark of night.

Nowadays, thanks to those with superior military power, such as Old Man Vincent, Sir Ilma, and Sir Sebastian, the delicate balance is maintained.

But this balance of power will not last long.

"hmm....."

Seongjin, who was listening to their serious meeting, touched a small stone in his winter coat pocket.

Before leaving here, a magic stone given to Logan to prepare for an emergency.

[What are you going to do with it?]

The demon lord asked vaguely if he sensed an ominous feeling.

'Well, just watch.'

Seongjin raised the corners of his mouth.

If my eyes hurt, isn't it natural to want to make my enemy's eyes hurt too?

235. Defensive Battle (8)

Among the objects in the normal world, many of which were known to have utility even in the real world, mostly operated according to simple algorithms.

For example, consider 'heart of ice'.

Would people in the real world be able to guess the purpose of this complex object that cannot even be seen without spiritual eyes?

In that sense, the 'magic items' piled up in the imperial palace treasury also had a simple operation method.

Things that can be used simply with just a little thought. In short, they are objects that can move only with 'origin'.

The night before.

While searching through his spiritual eyes the items he had from the normal world, Seongjin naturally took a closer look at the items his brothers and sisters had gifted him.

□ Luminous stone: A stone that generates as much light as the user desires □

□ Heating stone: A stone that generates as much heat as the user desires □

An extremely simple operating principle that just happens as much as you wish.

Therefore, even people who do not have spiritual eyes would have been able to use it freely until now.

So what is the range of 'as much as the user wants'?

Since there is no separate temperature setting scroll, it was necessary to be clear about its limitations.

So Seongjin first tested it with a rock that Sisley gave him. I pictured in my mind the lowest and highest temperatures imaginable.

First of all, in the case of the heating stone, it did not become colder than room temperature. Well, if it had the function of lowering the temperature, it wouldn't have been a heating stone.

'Then what about high temperature?'

Then, a lava pool instantly formed around the heating stone placed on the ground. Even Seongjin, which I had secretly assumed would be the case, was even the flagship.

'... 'There are no limits at all?'

And the same goes for the luminescent stone tested subsequently. I was afraid that there might be radiation beyond ultraviolet rays, so I stopped the test halfway through.

'The only thing necessary for things in the normal world to move is [conditions].'

Seongjin thought as he rolled the stone in his hand.

Anyway, since it worked, there was no longer any point in worrying about what the energy source was or how it worked.

Meanwhile, the Margrave and his party were busy talking about the upcoming battle.

"Is that what Lord Ilma thinks?"

"Yes, matriarch. Until now, it felt like we were assessing this side's strength before launching an all-out war. But won't the next conflict be different?"

"Take advantage at night. It's a simple idea without a strategy, but it's also very clear. It's hard to believe that you're dealing with ignorant beasts."

"They have already shown cleverness in using Glatzer Trolls to cross the ice wall. Also, through two engagements, didn't we see how perfectly they are under control?"

Then Hendrick Sigismund rubbed his temples with a tired look.

"Yes, that's right. Is it because of the existence of the Lycan Slope Lord that was observed earlier?"

The Lycan Slope Lord they are talking about is probably Baz, who died at the hands of Seongjin.

However, Seongjin did not think it was necessary to mention it separately.

Anyway, I assumed that as long as Berseus Dashiano was around, another family member would become a Lord and perform the same role.

"They are located on relatively high ground compared to us located in the basin. Plus, they have a physical and numerical superiority. They set up a hastily constructed camp in one day, and I don't think they will bother to make it past today."

Sir Sebastian's words cast a gloomy shadow over the people's faces.

It is an unfavorable fight that must be fought head-on right in front of the territory. This is not a situation where you can think of it as a trick or something.

The only reinforcements that can be expected are the Lilium Detachment, and it would be fortunate if they had left the imperial capital by now.

"I never thought we would lose the ice wall like this!"

Old man Vincent lamented in a sad voice.

As the person who completed the three ice walls, it would be difficult for him to easily accept the current situation.

"If there's a variable here, it's if they have another strategy worth giving up the nighttime advantage. The Glacher Trolls might show up again somewhere. Or..."

In the quiet barracks, only Sir Sebastian's low voice flows calmly, with an ominous resonance.

"Another demon contractor, or the demon himself, may be involved."

As soon as those words were finished, everyone's eyes turned to a spot in the corner of the barracks.

And Seongjin, who followed them with his gaze, was able to understand why Sir Ilma had given such an ambiguous answer to his question earlier.

There was a severed human head lying around. The head is discolored black and distorted, making it impossible to recognize the original face.

'... corrosion!'

The guy hiding on the cliff was a devil contractor.

"I couldn't capture him in the end."

Old man Vincent shouted angrily, perhaps feeling that Seongjin's words were blaming him.

"It's not my fault! When I caught up with him, he was already half eaten by erosion and dying! Do you know how much trouble I had to go through just to cut off the head of a corpse so contaminated with demonic energy?"

"....."

"Are you listening? How far did I have to chase that guy to catch him like you said...!"

The old man's unfair complaints continue one after another.

However, Seongjin was listening to the devil's explanation coming from inside his head, with his voice flowing through one ear.

[That guy was probably slowly eroded while still alive. This may be because he was a devil contractor and used his spiritual eyes for a long time.]

'Is this because of spiritual eyes?'

[Ordinary people are different from you, Seongjin Lee. Borrowing directly from the devil's senses means being exposed to terrible magical energy. Even you couldn't have lasted much longer without the help of the Flame Crystal, right? There is no way an ordinary person could endure that.]

He was probably already half dead, and the devil had descended and was moving his body.

'I thought I could run away from Dekaron Knight for quite some time...'

Only then did one small question that had been floating around in Seongjin's mind from a while ago finally resolved.

Why couldn't the Glacher Trolls who broke down the ice wall follow us here?

'Then does that mean there is a high possibility that the one remaining has already died from erosion by now?'

[Probably so. Unless he really is a demon. After the devil has completely descended on the body, it is impossible to distinguish between the devil and the devil contractor using magic alone.]

Right.

Seongjin, who nodded, looked back at old man Vincent, who was jumping up and down, and asked.

"Did he have a 'heart of ice', old man?"

"...Ice heart?"

When Seongjin wordlessly took out his own item, the old man's expression suddenly became confused.

"Ah, that ice. Come to think of it, I did have one that looked like a chunk of ice."

"Did you bring it?"

"...Did you have to bring it?"

I just thought he was going to make one last effort. I thought he was holding the ice to throw, but does that matter?

Seongjin touched his forehead, leaving behind the old man who was mumbling something with an anxious face.

okay. Because you didn't know what this was. The one who was chasing him must have been surprised enough by the sudden erosion.

I understand. I understand...

"Why do I feel like there's nothing I can do by entrusting something to that old man?"

Dekaron Knight looked very hurt at Seongjin's muttering.

"Uh, how can you say such rude things to this body...!"

Gagging.

The shocked old man stumbled, but Seongjin had no time to pay attention to it. Because there was one more thing that caught me up earlier.

A guy who might die at any time due to erosion was pushed alone into the enemy camp? Maybe we won't be able to retrieve the Ice Heart?

'Do they still have enough hearts of ice and demon contracts left to deal with this?'

Moreover, the person who attacked the canyon fortress also did not

They knew better how unfavorable this fight was, as they were bearing the brunt of the unstable atmosphere of the front. So they couldn't understand it even more.

"...How can you do that?"

okay. How can you be so calm?

The soldiers squinted in disbelief at the boy standing in front of them.

The young prince, standing at the forefront of the battle line and quietly glaring at the Lycan Slopes.

"You must leave on time, sir."

"I know, Lord Martha."

Seongjin was now standing at the forefront of the camp, riding alone on his horse.

It was not to advance quickly, but to quickly retreat to the rear as soon as they encountered them. It was only after confirming several times that I would run away immediately that I finally received permission from Masain and the others.

"I don't know if it will work out as you said."

Next to him, Lord Ilma, who had drawn his sword, also made a request to Seongjin with a nervous expression.

"You must move your horse before the second row of spears all hit them."

"Don't worry, Sir Ilma. Just remind the soldiers one more time not to forget what I said."

Meanwhile, the Lycan Slopes were getting closer at a rapid pace.

The guys ran down the mountainside in one fell swoop and quickly came within range of the archers.

"Shoot!"

At Sir Sebastian's shout, the archers in the back row simultaneously released their bowstrings.

Puff puff puff!

Kyung!

Wow!

Those hit by arrows stumble for a moment. However, even though the arrows loaded with Auras were hitting them indiscriminately, their momentum did not decrease in the slightest.

Since they have excellent regeneration, they cannot cause significant damage unless one of their limbs is completely cut off.

Pow!

Of course there were exceptions. Sir Sebastian, who pierced the heart of Lycan Slope with an arrow filled with strong external energy, raises his bow high and encourages the archers.

"Shoot! Shoot! Don't spare your arrows until they reach the fence!"

Whirring, whirling. Hwiik.

Amid a rain of arrows, Lycan Slope, who was running at the front, approaches only a few meters ahead.

Doo doo doo doo.

The rumbling of the ground became stronger, and the wooden fence slightly shook.

"Everyone, get ready! You! I need you to step back!"

When Sir Ilma raised his hand, Seongjin pulled the horse's reins and made him take a step back little by little.

Masain blocks his path and aims directly at Misra.

And with the cry of Lord Ilma.

"Row 1!"

Plop! puck! puck!

As the spears rose from the wooden fence all at once, the Lycanslopes jumped head-on and were skewered.

Kyung! Keke! Cough!

Behind those who were pierced by spears, spraying fresh blood, another lycan slope floods in.

The soldiers holding the spears were pushed back helplessly by the heavy weight of the demonic beasts that attacked one after another with all their might.

"Row 2!"

Lord Ilma's instructions continue.

The Lycan Slopes that had surpassed the first row were pierced by the newly raised spears in the rear row and were crackling violently.

"Lord Masaine!"

It was then that Seongjin gave a signal and turned his horse.

After confirming the prince's retreat, Masain nodded and shouted.

"Everyone close your eyes!"

Boom boom.

At the same time that the voice of a high-ranking knight filled with Aura swept across the battlefield, the luminous stone left Seongjin's hand and rose high in the air.

"Shine!"

Flash!

A white flash swept across the sky of the battlefield.

The light coming through tightly closed eyelids was so powerful that Seongjin suspected that he had made a mistake in his control at the moment and was emitting radiation.

Kyung! Keke! Kyung!

Lycan slopes with night vision activated rolled on the ground, screaming desperately. This was the moment when their charge was stopped for the first time.

Of course, there was no damage to our troops.

"Kwaaaaak! What is this? Oh my, my nuuuun!"

As Dekaron Knight screamed in a voice full of Aura, my ears rang.

Seongjin clicked his tongue slightly as he ran his horse. It appears that the blow was not easy as he had strengthened his eyesight as much as possible with a strong aura.

'No, I told you to close your eyes. 'You foolish old man!'

What if the person who should be at the forefront right now is rolling around on the floor with the Lycan Slopes?

"Now! Strike them all!"

Fortunately, Sir Ilma, who faithfully followed Seongjin's advice, raised his sword and shouted. At her cry, the Wolf Knights drew their swords and rushed towards the helpless demon beasts.

Suddenly!

Sharp swords clad in external energy cut off the heads of those rolling on the floor without hesitation.

thud. thud. thud.

The next ones to appear at the front line were the four shaved ice that Seongjin had previously released on the slope.

The sight of them walking slowly, waving their short capes, is majestic, like giants from legend.

It was an army made up of the miracles of the god, without a doubt, with the clear symbol of the god engraved on its chest.

"Lord..."

The soldiers, mesmerized by its majestic majesty, unconsciously make the sign of the cross and mutter.

□ Mode setting: Auto / Manual □

Since there was no one to delicately control them, Seongjin had already switched them to auto mode. Of course, she had to persuade the demon lord for a while to borrow his spiritual eye for a while.

When Seongjin repeatedly promised that he would not go directly to the front lines, the Demon King reluctantly accepted Seongjin's request.

'Anyway, this guy and that guy are so anxious because they can't get me back!'

Seongjin grumbled inwardly as he rode backwards. He was still holding the ice heart in one hand.

What shaved ice players needed now was not precise control. A strong thought that only specifies a goal.

'good! The Lycan Slope in front, they are all our enemies!'

With Seongjin's instructions-

Whoa whoa-

Ooooh-

The giant ice monsters let out a dull roar and began charging towards the Lycan Slopes at once.

236. Defensive Battle (9)

Buuuung-

A massive arm, like a piece of heavy equipment, swings wide horizontally.

Wow! Kyung! Hehe!

The pitiful screams of the lycan slopes rang out here and there.

The power of the shaved ice was truly overwhelming.

With one step, the sea full of demonic beasts splits helplessly, and with a single wave of the arm, a dozen Lycanslopes fly helplessly into the air.

There was no need for delicate manipulation.

In a place where lycan slopes were spread all over the world, all the shavers had to do was swing their limbs at random.

Flutter! Flutter! Crackling.

The situation was even worse for the lycanthropes lying on the ground.

The demonic beasts that were blind and unable to avoid them were trampled by the shaved ice's footsteps and were instantly reduced to mush.

Even after being crushed by an ice monster weighing tens of tons, there was no room left for regeneration. The path along which the shaved ice passed was completely covered with the fresh blood and flesh of the lycan slopes.

"...I've only heard about it, but seeing it with my own eyes is truly amazing."

Overwhelmed by its power, Sir Sebastian stopped swinging the sword and admired it.

If even the serious guard commander is like that, what about the single soldiers who witnessed this miracle?

"iced coffee!"

"Apostle... I am the Apostle of the Lord!"

The look of despair disappears from their faces.

When the ice wall base was helplessly attacked, weren't the Glacher trolls like demons that came out of hell?

But when the monster became my ally, I couldn't feel so reassured.

'Even without ice walls!'

'... Maybe we can stop it!'

The morale of the soldiers began to soar.

"Let's go! The blessings of the Holy Family are with us!"

"The Lord has not abandoned Sigismund!"

Wow!

Soldiers vigorously jumped into the lycan slopes, waving their weapons.

* * *

Meanwhile, the face of the person who actually created such a miracle was not that bright.

"not good....."

Seongjin frowned and muttered.

He was currently in the rear with the Margrave. Because it was on a low watchtower, the battlefield was somewhat visible at a glance.

At first glance, it looks like we have gained the upper hand, but this atmosphere will not last long.

The initial strategy only slightly made up for the numerical inferiority, but there were still a huge number of lycan slopes remaining on the mountain slope leading to the ice wall.

"They recovered faster than I thought."

Already, people are coming out one by one to pull themselves together.

I had heard that it had good regenerative powers, but I had no idea that even the eyes could be that strong.

"Couldn't you try the method you used earlier one more time, sir?"

Seongjin shook his head in response to the Margrave's question.

"No matter how foolish they are, they will never suffer the same thing twice."

Of course, there was no way to retrieve the magic stone that was thrown in the middle of the battlefield.

"We were so unprepared for this situation. We had a high ice wall, so even though the territory was growing rapidly, we didn't think of putting up a decent wall around it. It's all my fault!"

At first glance, Margrave Hendrick's face looked sad as he lamented like that.

But Seongjin had no idea that he was telling the truth. His dry, dry eyes still looked busy with various calculations.

And that thought was correct.

"This situation is an exception among exceptions. Rather, it is highly likely that the activities of demonic beasts will be reduced in the coming years due to this latest movement. There won't be enough money to rebuild the territory this year, so it would be beneficial in many ways to simply repair the ice wall stronger. Rather, it would be better to use this incident as an opportunity to increase royal support... ..'

Seongjin glanced at the Margrave, who was shaking his head, and clicked his tongue.

I think I know what this author is thinking, because things in this world rarely go as expected.

If things continue like this, I might regret it greatly someday. I don't know why I have that feeling.

Feeling uneasy, Seongjin turned his attention back to the battlefield.

Meanwhile, the front line had been pushed quite a bit towards the mountainside.

"The Wolf Knights' dance is truly amazing. It's just as I heard. Of course, I was a little disappointed with the Dekaron Knights."

When I blurted out this while glaring at old Vincent who was staggering from afar, Margrave Hendrick smiled with a good look on his face, pretending not to notice.

"How could this be possible with just the power of the Wolf Knights? All of this is thanks to you, who brought the Glacher Trolls."

"hmm."

"Besides, Lord Masain's inaction is truly unbelievable! They say he is the youngest captain of the royal guard, and he is indeed a member of the royal family."

As said, a bright golden aura flashed brilliantly from time to time at the forefront of the battle line. Needless to say, he is Lord Martha's Auror.

Wow.

Seongjin's hand caresses the handle of the nutcracker, and without realizing it, strength goes into it.

I decided that it would be more effective to release four shaved ice than to run around alone, so I quietly retreated, but I felt like jumping in there right now.

"Sir, the activity of the auror is very unstable. It is impossible to move now."

Manager Bruno, who was next to him, must have noticed Seongjin's nervousness and gave him a firm warning.

Currently, Director Bruno remains as Seongjin's escort. This was a measure taken by Masain, who judged that it would be advantageous in many ways for him to go to the front.

If we can't keep the prince somewhere, let's take the first step and get the job done as quickly as possible. Perhaps he had been thinking this way recently.

'Is it because of me that even Sir Martha got involved?'

I can't believe that a man who would have lived a respectable life as the youngest captain of the Royal Guard ended up having such a rough time on the front lines.

While I was silent for a moment, the demon lord was making sarcasm in my head.

[Don't act like you regret anything, Seongjin Lee. You're going to quickly forget it anyway and get into trouble again, right?]

'... shut up!'

People are just reflecting!

Meanwhile, old Vincent, who had been rolling around on the floor, finally returned to the front line.

Although his vision was still blurred, he was pushing himself up and swinging his sword. This is because he had some awareness of his current position.

However, the two eyes that had not yet recovered were bloodshot, and tears like a waterfall were pouring down non-stop.

"Ouch! I was just wondering what you were going to do! I thought I'd be fine since I was protected by an auror!"

Anyway, it was all my own fault.

The old man pursed his lips as he endured the stinging pain and cold sensation.

Of course, he thought he had completely lost face, but this also had an unexpected effect.

The figure wielding a sword with bloodshot red eyes and a very distorted face is literally a demon that crawled up from hell. It was so ferocious that even the lycan slopes who had no sense of humor were startled.

"Why are you guys moving already? I'm still sick!"

As if the old man was taking out his anger on the guys, he belatedly dug deep into the wire and started running wild.

Seongjin diligently checked on the safety of his party scattered throughout the front lines.

The group was doing better than expected.

Not to mention the performance of Sir Maria, a senior knight, Sir Claudia and Sir Calmen, who are faithful to the basics, are also mixing in among the soldiers and steadily cutting down the demonic beasts.

They were knights of the imperial capital, called greenhouse knights, but as they gradually became accustomed to dealing with magical beasts, they all began to demonstrate their skills to the fullest.

Sir Valery, who was criticized by Masaine as 'out of his power', is doing his job well.

"Hehehe!"

Sir Sharon, wielding a curved sword with a grinning face, was somewhat creepy.

In particular, the chemistry between Sir Claudia and Sir Calmen was unexpected. The two were continuing an organic battle, going back and forth, giving and receiving.

"Hoo."

Director Bruno stroked his mustache as if wondering.

"...It's as if they've been fighting back to back for a long time. I know they don't have a very close relationship, but it's really surprising."

"I know?"

Of course, the one that stood out the most was Masain.

Hissing-

I heard that a long golden afterimage is cutting down the lycan slopes.

Quaaaang!

Soon it explodes with a powerful explosion. A group of demonic beasts at the front split up and down and died.

Auror explosion.

It is a very unfamiliar yet beautiful technology to the Sigismund people.

As the Wolf Knights pushed in in time, the front line was quickly pushed back to the mountainside.

But even so, there was no sign of nervousness on Seongjin's face.

'When will you come...?'

They still have a hidden history. I had that feeling.

And in such cases, Seongjin's premonitions were usually correct.

just as expected.

Thump thump thump.

After a while, instead of the vibration of the shaved ice, a new vibration was detected approaching from far away. The sound of the footsteps of dozens of giants.

"That...!"

It didn't take long for our soldiers on the front lines to sense the anomaly.

An ominous vibration shaking the ground.

The Sigismund soldiers who had guarded the Demon World for many years could not have known the cause of the tremors.

"no way....."

"Gravure Troll...?"

Above their pure white heads, on the gentle ridge leading to the ice wall base, dozens of ice monsters soon appeared.

25 Glatzer Trolls.

A scale that immediately overshadows the majesty of four shaved ice. It was clearly the maximum number that could be used with an ice heart.

"As expected, the guy who targeted the canyon fortress came here!"

Seongjin quickly opened his spiritual eyes and controlled the ice heart.

☐Mode setting: Auto / Manual☐

Seongjin separated Bingsu No. 1 from the group and slowly steered him toward the slope.

It's too far to control from here, but if you run wild in a melee, you might end up stepping on an ally.

In that case, it would be better to just jump into the middle of the enemy lines, even if your movements become a little slower... ..

Then Seongjin suddenly felt an eerie feeling and turned his head towards the north.

'... uh?'

When I listened closely, I realized that the vibration was coming from more than one direction.

Thump thump thump.

A new sign appeared on the northern road leading to the canyon.

As I continued to stare, to my surprise, about a dozen more Glacher Trolls appeared there!

The canyon fortress was in the way, so it was a direction I didn't expect to be attacked from.

"Could it be that the fortress was attacked...?"

It was a reality I did not want to believe. But strangely enough, that is not the end.

Thump thump thump.

This time it was southwest. As expected, about a dozen Glacher Trolls appeared, climbing through the tall coniferous trees.

Didn't they say there's a huge lake and cliffs over there that demon beasts can never invade?

'A total of 50 Glature Trolls? And from three directions?'

Holy shit... .. !

Seongjin gritted his teeth.

[for a moment! Seongjin Lee!]

The startled Demon King tried to dissuade him, but Seongjin's strong will forced him to share his senses.

It's a disaster.

Soon his spiritual eyes open, and a vision filled with five colors of light unfolds.

'How many people are there? How many people control the Ice Heart?'

Squeaky.

Sungjin, enduring the pain that was getting stronger, opened his eyes wide to find the thoughts of the Glacher Trolls.

Fortunately, the effort was not in vain, and Seongjin eventually succeeded in finding faint lines of thought among the dizzying Aurors on the battlefield.

But the results were unexpected.

"no way....."

[Hey, Seongjin Lee! You have eyes!]

Surprisingly, all of the glamor trolls' thoughts were connected to one point.

And what is at the end is a powerful, dark green flame!

According to Seongjin's will, the field of view rapidly expands, and the sight of the mountainside quickly approaches.

What was there was a woman wearing a large dark green robe.

She held an ice heart in each hand. He is truly moving 50 magical beasts by himself.

'That guy is the devil! I'm not a demon contractor!'

Seongjin knew right away.

[aha?]

At that time, the woman must have felt Seongjin's gaze and looked up into space.

Under the deeply pressed hood, bright red lips draw a long arc.

[Someone said it and it turned out to be you. You are prepared.]

... Those who are prepared?

[I haven't heard that you have spiritual eyes. Indeed, it seems you were the one who stole the ice heart from the canyon. My master will be very interested if I tell you this.]

Stop talking nonsense, devil!

You die by my hands today!

thud! thud!

Bingsu No. 1 responded to Seongjin's will and started running. I paid no heed to the Lycanslopes or the Glature Trolls, and only aimed for that dark green ominous flame.

[Hehehe, where!]

Wooooooo-

Glacher trolls tried to get in his way, but Seongjin ran while dodging them. The strange sense of unity he had experienced once before, as if he had become the number one shaved ice, came to him again.

Only the headache and eye pain that had been getting worse from earlier were preventing his soul from completely separating from his body.

Squeaky.

Suddenly, my vision became blurry and I felt something flowing down my cheek.

[Lee Seong-jin! stop! It's impossible now!]

I know it's impossible, devil.

But if we can't kill that guy here, the territory will be over anyway.

[Don't be hasty! If you lose your mind here now, then your territory will be over!]

But, devil, if we leave it like this, we cannot guarantee our safety. Not only Lord Martha, but also the resident knights will be killed or injured.

Besides, I can tell. For the sake of Delcross, we must protect the Sigismund territory now. If we get pushed back here, we won't be able to control it from now on.

Now take one step.

If only I could take one more step.

Bingsu No. 1 covered the ridge with terrifying momentum.

[Uh, how... .. !?]

Only then does the devil startle and take a small step back. It seems he never thought that the glamor troll Dangi would break through all these obstacles and run toward him.

'It's almost now! Got it... .. !'

It was then.

Huh.

Suddenly, my vision becomes blurry and my vision becomes dark.

'Holy shit! Just a little more, it's already been a while!'

I desperately rubbed my eyes, but once my vision was gone, it did not come back.

It wasn't just the vision that was wrong. Along with a tremendous sense of exhaustion, the fatigue from up until now washed in like a tide.

'I couldn't reach it this time either. Just one step is not enough... ... !'

All strength is lost from my body and my body suddenly tilts.

Then chin.

Someone caught Seongjin's falling body. It was a somewhat familiar sight.

"Are you okay, Seongjin Lee?"

".....!"

uh?

For an instant, Seongjin's head went blank.

why? How far is it from the ecliptic to here? Why is he here?

"Stay still. Your Auror flow is messed up right now. Why are your eyes like this? Blood is flowing from them."

A warm energy flows into the eyes along with a calm voice. It was divine power.

"Why are you doing this here? What on earth is going on? Brother Masain?"

Unbelievable. It's really Logan!

Seongjin blinked his invisible eyes and tried to focus.

"...Logan? How are you here now...."

"Ah. I saw something flashing in the distance, and I thought it was unusual, so I stopped talking and ran right away. I wondered if there was anyone else who would do something like this other than you, but I really didn't expect you to be here. What was that bright light from earlier? "

What was it? It was the rock you gave me...

Seongjin, who had been thinking absently, suddenly came to his senses.

... devil!

"Logan! Logan!"

Seongjin fumbled with his hand and grabbed Logan's sleeve, which was covering his eyes.

You can be sure.

After waking up in this Delcross dimension, other than Seonghwang, Seongjin is the only one who has no idea how to deal with him.

This guy can do it!

"There is no time for this right now! This is something only you can do. You must catch him!"

"Are you saying you know what you look like now? If you leave this alone...."

"You idiot! That's not important right now! If we don't catch him, at least half of the people here will die! The damage to the territory will grow out of control!"

"....."

"Listen carefully. Beyond that mountainside, there's a devil! He looks like a young woman wearing a hood. We have to catch him now! If we don't...!"

"Whew...."

Seongjin, who had been talking frantically, was startled. Because in that soft sigh, I felt a deep sense of anger like never before.

But after all, Logan was Logan.

He quickly got over his agitation and asked in a calm voice.

"Okay. Just calm down and speak slowly. What should I do?"

237. Sword Master (1)

Flash!

When an unidentified flash of light flashed in the sky, Logan happened to be not far from Sigismund Territory.

"Pfft!"

The light was so strong that in an instant the night sky turned white and my eyes were blinded mercilessly.

Logan, who had been strengthening his eyesight with Aura to run at night, suddenly lost his vision completely.

Hee hee hee!

The horse, so startled, raises its front paws and lunges.

Logan let go of the reins for fear of harming the horse and fell off the horse.

Fortunately, the Sword Master's senses far surpass those of humans, and he was able to land safely on the floor even with his eyes completely closed.

"Roxana!"

Hee hee! Hee hee hee!

Logan ran to his frightened horse, which was jumping up and down, and grabbed the blurry reins. His powerful divine power was already gradually restoring his eyesight.

"Wow."

After carefully checking the horse's condition and patting its neck and back several times, Roxana smelled the familiar scent of her owner and soon became quiet. She eventually regained her composure and gently surrendered herself to the hands of Logan, whose words poured divine power into her eyes.

He looked after the horse like that and still looked at the northern sky with gloomy eyes.

'... Seongjin Lee?'

Why?

For some reason, Logan was caught up in the strange belief that the light from earlier had nothing to do with Lee Seong-jin.

The only strange thing is that the light erupted from a direction that was much more biased towards the territory rather than towards the demonic realm.

'It's clear. 'Something unexpected has happened in Sigismund!'

The commotion in the air is already unusual.

Logan's sensitive senses were already sensing the unique, tingling tension emanating from the battlefield.

The Lee Seong-jin he knew would never try to get out of such a dangerous situation alone. And Brother Masain will not leave Lee Seong-jin like that either.

In that case, for the safety of the two people, Logan had to go to the place where the light flashed right away.

'But Roxana is already so tired. It would be faster if I ran alone.'

He took a moment to take stock of his surroundings.

Fortunately, there are no signs of demonic beasts around. The wolves wandering around the area must have moved to northern Ortona by now.

Moreover, Roxana was also a fairly trustworthy partner who knew what to do.

Logan searched through the horse's luggage and took out the insignia of the Order of St. Bastian, which had the imperial family's emblem engraved on it. He unfolded the cloth and carefully wrapped it around the horse's neck and body.

Don't let any unscrupulous people mess with Roxana.

"I'm sorry, Roxana. Please rest here for a while. I will come look for you as soon as possible. Or, can you come find me at Sigismund's estate as soon as you feel better?"

The intelligent beast that had been working with Logan for quite a long time understood his master's intentions with just that one word.

The horse stared at Logan with wise eyes and nudged him with its head, purring and snorting.

"...Good guy."

Logan patted the bridge of Roxana's white nose with affection and tried to keep his steps steady.

Although he wanted to avoid the situation of leaving his Rottweiler alone in a remote place, if possible.

'but... ... '

Somehow I feel so anxious.

Seonghwang's words from earlier, 'bring back Mores safely,' were stuck in my mind and wouldn't leave.

'If I had known it would be like this, I wouldn't have sent it alone from the beginning!'

It would have been better to have followed him proudly without paying attention to what the Margrave thought. No, it would have been better to have kept Lee Seong-jin from going.

I regretted it later, but it was already too late. Logan chewed his lip and immediately wrapped his legs around the Auror and started running at high speed.

Before I knew it, only a slight soreness remained around my eyes, where my vision had been severely damaged.

* * *

The Sword Master, who moved faster than horses, quickly reached the battlefield.

"What the hell is this...!"

And when we arrived, the battlefield situation was much worse than expected. Sigismund's soldiers were having a hard time surrounded by countless Lycanslopes.

Additionally, the newly appeared giant monsters were also a problem.

The ice giants that Logan encounters for the first time. Dozens of demonic beasts, probably Glacher Trolls, are flocking towards the battlefield at once.

thud. thud. thud.

A look of despair appears on the soldiers' faces.

It was obvious that if they entered the battle like this, the barely balanced battle line would be greatly shaken.

'The demon beasts crossed the ice wall? how?'

At first, such doubts came to mind, but Logan put them aside for a moment and ran through the battlefield, chasing the presence of Lee Seong-jin, who he had already become accustomed to.

I felt puzzled at the fact that his presence seemed faint, as if it would break off, unlike usual.

Why does it look like this? Did you get hurt somewhere?

".....!"

And Logan, who finally found him at the watchtower in the rear, couldn't help but be speechless for a moment.

Situation at the front? The soldiers' despair?

No, Logan could be sure that nothing in this world would be as bad as Lee Seong-jin's current condition.

He was leaning against the watchtower, and red blood was flowing from his eyes, wondering what he had done.

Moreover, the aura flowing out of the body was so unstable that if left alone, it seemed like the entire body would disintegrate and scatter into the air at once!

Logan, the flagship, hurriedly ran over and caught Seongjin's body, which was about to fall.

"Are you okay, Seongjin Lee?"

And as soon as I caught him, I could clearly feel that he was not okay at all.

This is because Logan's sensitive sense of auras immediately grasped what was currently happening in Seongjin's body.

'... The flow of auras was so weak that it seemed as if every single strand had been cut off!'

There is no separate path for aura to flow through the body.

However, if you practice Aura for a long time, something similar to a habitual channel of Aura will develop. Something like a shortcut or circuit.

However, in Lee Seong-jin's body, those paths were not only broken, but were completely cut off at times. It was as if his entire body was covered by external energy at once.

-You would be really surprised to know how much he can control his aurors. Not long ago, I almost died because I ignored the exercises and stirred up my body.

It was exactly what I heard from Amelia.

'I had to scrape the auror to the bottom several times. I did something that couldn't be handled by the total amount of aurors of a low-ranking knight, and before I could recover, the same situation was repeated over and over again!'

As the body was forced to deplete the aura, and then the aura was quickly pulled out, all the tissues in the path through which the aura flowed were damaged.

So, even though Dantian's aura is recovering now, the aura is not flowing properly along the path and is running rampant in the wrong place.

"Your Majesty Logan? How come here...."

The Margrave and Leader Bruno, who had been dumbfounded by the appearance of the Glatrue Troll, finally noticed Logan and their eyes widened.

But there is no time to reply one by one. Logan ignored them and began to pour divine power into Seongjin's bleeding eyes.

Currently, the only person here who knows exactly what Seongjin Lee's condition is is Logan.

This is because Aurors basically have the property of protecting the body. Is it any wonder that the aura that should flow for beneficial effects actually damages the body of the aura user?

"You received treatment from the Holy Knights earlier, but your condition has not completely recovered."

Even former Dekaron Knight leader Bruno said the same thing.

Although he came with a very worried face, it was a face that said, 'The prince must be very tired, for the auror to become so weak.'

That meant that this guy's current condition was unusual.

"Stay still. Your Auror flow is messed up right now. Why are your eyes like this?"

Logan tried to calm Seongjin, who was struggling as if embarrassed, and stabilize his condition. At the same time as he sheds his divine power, he guides the Auras of Seongjin, who have lost their way due to external energy and run rampant, to the right path.

Normally, there would be no way for him to be unaware of the existence of aurors interfering from the outside, but right now, Lee Seong-jin was just blinking blankly as if he felt nothing.

"Why are you doing this here? What on earth is going on? Brother Masain?"

Although he tried to remain calm, Logan's mind was extremely anxious.

Can this guy's condition ever recover? Wouldn't it be like I'm going to become a wreck forever like this?

What if this guy who loves sword training so much never gets to hold a sword again...

I don't know what he was thinking at that time, but Seongjin suddenly got startled and fumbled with Logan's sleeve.

Aside from being blind, it seemed like he was currently unable to feel any sensation in his hands.

"Logan! Logan!"

Logan also knew this symptom well.

The final battle on the Plains of Andres where he met his end.

When they fought against the onslaught of a large army for several days without eating, sleeping, or resting, Dekaron Knight's mighty aurors were also exhausted in the end.

Because of this, he had to force himself to scrape off even the slightest bit of aura and use it all.

In the end, he couldn't even feel the hand holding the sword, and he had to die at the hands of Captain Silas after overworking his body to the point where his entire body's circuits were torn apart.

'Even if I had saved my life at that time, I would have ended up as a ruined person.'

Dekaron Knightzoja, who had perfected the balance of the Aurors, had also reached that point.

But Seongjin Lee. You are not who you were back then.

Why did you end up in this situation when you have no country or compatriots to protect?

"There is no time for this right now! This is something only you can do. You must catch him!"

But it seemed like even that wasn't enough for Lee Seong-jin. Logan's voice rose higher without my knowledge at his urgent words.

"Are you saying you know what you look like now?"

However, while criticizing Lee Seong-jin, his heart was filled with self-destruction.

I shouldn't have taken this guy for granted when he asked me to come over.

If you had immediately summoned Lilium after receiving the letter without hesitation, or rather, if you had just rushed here that evening.

"You idiot! That's not important right now!"

I am angry at Seongjin Lee for not taking care of himself to allow this situation to happen.

"If we don't catch him quickly, at least half of the people here will die! The damage to the territory will grow out of control!"

But more than anything, I was angry at myself for keeping my eyes open and allowing this situation to happen.

On the other hand, I also had this thought.

What on earth do they say to you?

'... Why on earth is this happening?'

Even I, the prince of Delcross, can't shake off my resentment toward the empire whenever Ortona's memories come to mind. I can't help but think that everything is a retribution that they must bear.

I thought that since I was born as a prince, I would fulfill my duties accordingly. But now, Logan was feeling extremely skeptical about him.

'But Lee Seong-jin, you're actually from a different world, right? What does their well-being matter to you?'

Lee Seong-jin, whether he knew what was going through Logan's mind or not, was quickly pouring out what he had to say.

"Listen carefully. Beyond that mountainside, there is a devil! He looks like a young woman wearing a hood."

If we don't do something about him, Sigismund... ... !

Logan, looking at that desperate face quickly explaining what he had to do, suddenly realized.

Ah, yes. Actually, I know why you do that. I already knew it for a long time.

Although he pretended not to be, Lee Seong-jin was a very kind guy.

Although he has a sullen face that seems uninterested in everything, you can tell that he is always watching the situation around him without missing a single detail.

Otherwise, Amelia and Sisley's faces wouldn't have brightened up so much recently.

Even Seonghwang, who I thought had no idea what was going on, has been changing little by little lately because of you.

-But you already gave your life! So what else should you do then?

Above all, who else in this world could be so genuinely angry on his behalf?

What did Logan say to Lee Seong-jin?

-If Mores comes back... Can you promise me that you'll give him his body back?

What did Lee Seong-jin respond to such a cruel request?

-Yes, it won't be difficult. I'm dead anyway.

What happened to my mind?

How could he say such scary words to this guy so easily?

"Whew...."

Suppressing the anger welling up from deep inside, Logan sighed deeply.

"This is amazing."

I need to find Mores.

Now, he couldn't tell whether he was anxious that he wouldn't be able to find Mores' soul, or whether he was afraid that he would suddenly return and Lee Seong-jin would disappear without a trace.

But at least one thing was certain.

Logan cannot afford to lose Lee Seong-jin like this.

-I am not sure whether the value of the republic is worth all these sacrifices. However, I can become the sword that realizes the will of the prince who is certain of this.

Logan once said that to his close friend Benicio.

And even at this moment, he felt that way.

'I have no idea that this empire is worth that much. But still, Seongjin Lee, if you want to sacrifice your body to protect Delcross, at least I can be the sword that will make your will come true.'

That's why Logan answered Seongjin Lee like this.

"Okay. Just calm down and speak slowly. What should I do?"

238. Sword Master (2)

thud! thud! thud! thud!

Fifty ice monsters lined up and narrowed the distance from all directions.

"iced coffee....."

"Lord..."

There were helpless sighs here and there, but Lord Ilma couldn't even think of encouraging them.

Thanks to the power of the four Vincas controlled by Prince Mores, the numerically inferior force was being pushed back with evil force.

As their morale was high, their appearance was doubly fatal. The powerful force that had overwhelmed the enemy had turned into a force that was more than 10 times stronger and had come back intact.

"Okay, it's over! It's all over now!"

"How dare the Lord abandon Sigismund!"

The soldiers, very frightened, take a step back one by one.

Cheoldeokdeok! Tang Gang!

Some of the stupefied soldiers even slipped their weapons from their hands.

Sir Ilma, startled by this, came to his senses and belatedly raised his voice and shouted.

"Why are you looking at me so foolishly? Quickly reorganize your ranks! Glacier trolls are coming! Are you going to just watch your territory being trampled by them like this?"

But even her fierce cries were not enough to wake up the soldiers.

Why not?

"Captain! I guess this is...."

Even the Wolf Knights, who are said to be able to fly long, are so intimidated by the enemy's majesty that their hands are shaking.

Crrrrr-

In the meantime, the Lycan Slopes, who had fully recovered their eyesight, readjusted their stance.

Clutter. Coo.

Over the wounds from cuts and stab wounds, heavily contracted muscles cover and the bleeding stops.

The soldiers' eyes were filled with fear as they looked at the demonic beasts that quickly began to move normally. I was well aware of their regenerative power, but has it ever been so threatening to me?

'Is that large number too much for me?'

Sir Oscar, who had been with Seongjin and his party at the Gorge Fortress, looked back with a despairing expression.

When Vince suddenly lunged at the enemy with terrifying force, I secretly expected the prince to show the same action as before.

However, the hope was short-lived, and now Vince has disappeared between the enemies and has not been seen at all. It was probably caused by enemies.

thud. thud. thud.

The Glatute Trolls narrowed the distance with slow steps.

Of course, the reason was that it was difficult for the manipulator to specify the group goal at once, but to the Sigismund people who had no idea about this, it seemed like they were already showing off the composure of a winner.

The worst of them were by far the ones that appeared from the north.

The fist of the leading Glacher Troll is covered in traces of blood and finely chopped meat that cannot be hidden. The truth that this meant was one thing.

"...It looks like the Canyon Fortress has been completely hit, Captain!"

"We were wiped out in an instant without even having time to make contact!"

Even though sufficient troops were stationed, they were unable to stop their attacks.

Well, if Prince Mores had not been there in the first place, this fortress would have fallen long ago.

"As it is...."

Crack.

A rough grinding sound escapes from Lord Ilma's teeth.

She now had to make a decision.

It's not enough to block the Glacher Trolls coming from the front, but if they don't block the other direction, they're likely to collapse from the rear.

Right then.

"I'm coming, Captain!"

Suddenly!

Old man Vincent, who cut off the head of the Lycanslope that rushed at him, shouted in excitement.

In his eyes, whose red color was still not gone, a fierce fighting spirit that did not fade easily was burning brightly.

"The Wolf Knights must never leave this place. Once they are pushed back, they will get out of control! I would rather block the north alone, so the guard commander will lead his troops to the southwest now!"

It was thought that demonic beasts could never invade, so the southwest, where barriers and defenses were the most neglected, was a top priority.

Sir Sebastian, who understood what old Vincent meant, nodded with a stern expression and turned around.

however.

"...ok?"

The body of the old man, who was looking somewhere with wide eyes, suddenly became stiff in shock.

"What is it? Who on earth would have that kind of momentum...."

Old man Vincent mutters in a trembling voice.

At the same time, the fighting spirit that had erupted like a volcano clearly began to subside. Although it was something that could not possibly happen to him as a Dekaron Knight, the very intimidated old man looked as if he was scared.

"...Vincent?"

And they soon found out the answer.

Boom!

A chilling blue aura suddenly erupted from the direction the old man was looking.

It was a flash like dawn that tore through the darkness.

".....!"

That destructive light instantly pierced the heart of the Glacher Troll approaching from the north.

Kurrrrrr.

The ice monster, unable to even utter a loud scream, loses its shape and collapses into a small block of ice. A thick ice fog rose.

"...With one blow?"

"What is that?"

Surprisingly, the surprise did not end there.

Whirly, whirly!

With a sound that is infinitely light compared to its power, a silver-blue vortex rises, wrapping around the arm of another ice monster.

Fight! Fight!

After the storm-like whirlpool passed, the monster's ice arm fell down in chunks, showing a smooth cross section.

"...Auror Blade!"

The group could not believe their eyes.

It was hard to believe, but it was clearly the vivid sword energy swinging from someone's sword climbing the monster's arm.

It had a strangely wide range that made it hard to believe that it could be swung from an ordinary sword.

Whilick-

The Auror Blade quickly cut the ice monster's arm into pieces and stopped moving for a moment when it reached the monster's shoulder.

And I thought the vortex of sword energy suddenly narrowed to a single point...

Boom!

It pierced right through the giant's chest and shattered his heart.

The giant's body, which had lost its power, stumbled and soon collapsed to the floor like a wooden doll with its strings cut.

Kukukuk!

A chunk of ice weighing tens of tons hit the ground, shaking the entire area as if there had been an earthquake.

".....!"

While everyone was dumbfounded and opened their mouths, there was someone who managed to recognize the owner of the auror.

"...No way, Prince Logan?"

A unique silver-blue aura completely combined with powerful divine power.

There was no way Masain wouldn't recognize it. Isn't this the Auror of my younger brother who has always been with me in the Blue Rose Labyrinth since childhood?

'I don't know how you're here now... ... !'

Masain quickly gathered his thoughts and shouted.

"Lord Ilma!"

Although he was worn out from the intense battle that lasted for a long time, the knight's eyes were shining brightly like never before.

"Prince Logan is here! If he is here, we don't have to worry about the north anymore. We just have to defend this place and defend the south thoroughly!"

"...yes?"

Lord Ilma asked in great confusion.

"How can the owner of that Auror be His Highness Logan? At first glance, he appears to have reached the level of Dekaron Knight."

Yes. Unless someone is in perfect balance of Aura, how can they pour out such incredible external energy multiple times?

However, although Prince Logan is a genius, he is still a young boy who has not even reached the age of birth.

However, Masain's face was full of confidence as he shook his head.

"Anyway, it is impossible for Sir Sebastian to block the south alone. No matter how many soldiers you bring, it will only be enough to slow down those magic beasts for a while. So, it is right for you, Vincent and Sir Sebastian, to block the south together!"

"....."

"Trust me! That Dekaron Knight is definitely Logan."

"but....."

"Even if it's just my imagination, it won't change anything since he pointed his sword at the Glacher Trolls, right?"

There was nothing wrong with what he said, so after hesitating for a moment, old Vincent turned to the south with the guard captain.

"Let's focus on protecting this place like this!"

Masain, who shouted like that, thought as he rushed towards the Lycan Slopes.

Could Logan be Dekaron Knight?

Yes.

It was difficult to explain, but Masain had a certain confidence.

Since childhood, Logan has always shown himself to be a great genius, garnering praise from those around him.

Nevertheless, Masain had a vague guess that that was not all, that her mature cousin was hiding something more.

It has to be that way. Didn't she spend all her childhood with him, hanging out with him all day long, in the labyrinth of the mayor?

The talent that this humble boy freely displayed to others was in fact nothing more than a smokescreen covering up something even more extraordinary hidden beneath it.

-Brother Masain. Haven't I told you several times that it's still too dangerous for you? 'Aura explosion' seems to be a technique that requires extreme auror control. Even if the operation is slightly clumsy, the aurors will explode from your grasp.

When Masain was clumsily imitating Seonghwang's techniques due to his childish mind, his younger brother watched from the side and tried to dissuade him with a worried look.

Still, as he stubbornly kept vibrating the external energy, Logan reluctantly sighed and tapped Masain's arm and sword.

-Here, here, and here are also disheveled.

And then, like a lie, the Aurors would regain stability.

The fact that Masain was able to use Aura explosions more skillfully than other knights was probably based on Logan's help.

Of course, Masain at the time couldn't even imagine how great it was.

However, if I think about it now, Logan, who skillfully controlled other people's auras from outside the body, has already far surpassed the current level of Masaine since then.

-your majesty! Prince Logan is a sword genius like no other in the world. Are you going to let that precious talent go like this? Director Bruno! Although he is a Dekaron Knight, he is still not good enough to be the prince's swordsmanship teacher!

I remember that Balthazar, the greatest knight on the continent, who recognized Logan's qualities at a glance, appealed to the emperor several times, saying that he wanted to make the prince his disciple.

At that time, Masain clearly heard Seonghwang muttering softly next to him.

-Who teaches whom? Useless words. There is a clear difference in rank among sword masters.

At the time, it sounded like even Balthazar was not satisfied with teaching his genius son, but now that I think about it, it was probably not what he meant.

'His Majesty has known from then on how extraordinary Prince Logan was. Rather than Mr. Balthazar, who enthusiastically interferes with his student's training, Director Bruno, who has a moderately limited personality, is more suitable as his teacher.'

I guessed that there were many practical reasons why Prince Logan hid his true skills. That's why, even though Masain knew, she was pretending not to know about him until now.

but.

'His Majesty Logan has decided not to hide his limitations any longer!'

Just realizing this made Masain feel a shiver run through his body.

So what will the boy who cannot understand the depths show them?

* * *

'It's just as Lee Seong-jin said. These guys are very slow in reacting to identify attacking enemies.'

Did you say that since the person controlling them is grouping them and moving as a group, it would be difficult to respond to rapid changes in the target?

It was difficult to fully understand the explanation that Seongjin gave him, but anyway, following his advice, Logan was able to take down the three Glatzer Trolls in the front row in one go.

Ooooh-

The remaining Glature Trolls are confused and hesitate.

While leisurely looking around at those guys, Logan raised Arjuna toward his next target. Then, at the sight of a familiar figure approaching from behind, I turned my head and smiled for a moment.

"Ah, Archduke Sigismund."

"Logan... you! How on earth...."

Orden's face was gaunt.

He was the first to witness Logan's inaction, as the Glacher Trolls appeared from all directions and ran blindly north.

And the sight was so amazing that it was terrifying.

"That's Prince Logan's true skill!"

Only then did I feel like something clicked into place.

That inexplicable sense of discomfort he felt every time he faced Prince Logan.

It felt like I was looking at the calm surface of a lake, but the moment I stepped into it, I was afraid of being dragged into the deep sea with no end in sight.

'Prince Logan was a Dekaron Knight!'

He always maintained a slightly lower level of Auror activity than his own.

okay. Of course it has to be!

Since the Auras have already been completely balanced, isn't it natural that you can create them as you wish!

"I'm glad I met you at the right time."

Prince Logan, who soon smiled, looked at Orden, who was engulfed in an internal storm, and spoke.

As the inertial laughter disappeared, the slightly drooping eyes gave off a strangely cold impression.

"Could you help me with the nearby knights? I heard that the Wolf Knights work in groups when dealing with Glatute Trolls."

"...Yes that's right."

A heavy sense of intimidation that he had never felt from the prince, who was much younger than him, or even from his grandfather, was conveyed.

When I answered with some sense of discipline, Prince Logan nodded.

"Good. I'm trying to clear this place as quickly as possible. I'm planning to leave one or two Glacher Trolls behind. Can I leave it to you?"

"of course!"

"Yes. You are trustworthy. Then I will trust you."

Logan, leaving Orden behind, leaped forward and rushed towards the next Glatute Troll.

Ooooooh!

Jumping lightly to avoid the swinging fist, he scattered his sword energy and instantly turned the monster's fist into ice powder.

Kwakwakwakwa!

The sharp auras overlapped quickly, and at once a large silver-blue flower appeared to have bloomed on the guy's fist.

-Listen carefully, Logan. Now you are the only one here who can sense and track his demonic energy.

While slaughtering the demonic beasts, he slowly repeated in his head the words that Seongjin had advised him to do.

-I almost caught the devil, so he's probably on high alert by now. There is a high possibility that he hid himself somewhere else from the previous location. He won't be able to come to the forefront again without suffering some serious damage.

It was not unusual for the hands holding the sleeves of my clothes to tremble. But regardless of his condition, Seongjin was busy emphasizing to Logan what he had to do.

-First of all, let's reduce the number of glare trolls as much as possible. Then, if you happen to catch a glimpse of him, then you just chase after him, even if it means making all the sacrifices. If things don't work out, I'll help you.

-you?

-huh. Unfortunately, it looks like Bingsu No. 1 has been completely destroyed by them, but the other Bingsu are still under my control.

Vince? what is that?

-Shaved ice! I'm raising a Glacher Troll, and I'll give one to you later.

-... No, that's okay.

Logan couldn't understand what Seongjin Lee was saying.

I just felt a little sad, wondering if I couldn't rest comfortably even at this point.

-You idiot. Who is helping whom with this situation?

Seongjin Lee must have felt the sadness in Logan's voice, and he raised the corners of his mouth. Even during this time, she was so overconfident that her smile became even more sinister.

-Don't worry about me at all. It was like this before, but my father completely corrected it.

This bastard is saying that now!

Stop talking nonsense and lie down like you're dead!

Although he pressed Seongjin's head down like that, Logan felt a little relieved for a moment as if his words were not in vain.

Come to think of it, I heard that something like this happened when a monster appeared in the imperial palace. Then maybe Lee Seong-jin can recover!

Only after being so forcibly convinced did Logan manage to take a step that did not fall.

And soon I came to a realization.

'If I hadn't thought that Seonghwang could completely heal Seongjin Lee, would I still have moved like this while leaving that guy behind?'

When I thought about it, I found myself relying on the Emperor of Delcross for a surprising number of things.

Because I don't want to take responsibility for Ortona's destruction. Still, I don't want to be indebted to him for not being able to be his real son.

So, I subconsciously tried to keep some distance from him. I thought he had a pretty strong emotional wall around him.

'Am I a fool...?'

There was laughter.

Did you not know that pocket money has been secretly increasing recently under various pretexts?

Have you not noticed that when something big that you can't handle happens, the first thing that comes to mind is Seonghwang's face?

If this isn't foolishness, what is it?

239

239. Sword Master (3)

"...Logan seems to be doing well."

Seongjin muttered softly.

The air on the battlefield changed.

Although he couldn't see, Seongjin could feel it.

Morale, which had hit rock bottom, was revived and the atmosphere was dramatically reversed.

"But that alone is still not enough. I have to open the way for Logan..."

"Sir! Say no more!"

Director Bruno, who carried Seongjin down the watchtower, spoke urgently.

Strangely enough, the prince's condition is getting worse by the minute.

'Why on earth?'

All the prince did was stand still in the watchtower. Even though he looked extremely tired just a moment ago, it wasn't much different from how the prince usually looked.

But why is blood suddenly flowing from his eyes? Also, why is the current state of the Aurors becoming more and more blurry, as if they are all dying?

"Lord Saron...."

Director Bruno, who was urgently looking around to find an exorcist, soon shed a bitter smile.

If you think about it, there were times when she was so upset that she didn't want to go to the monster task force at all. But lately, whenever something happens, people are looking for her.

"I will bring the priest. Please stay here for a moment, sir!"

After taking off his winter clothes and wrapping them around the prince, Director Bruno left with an anxious expression.

"I have to move the shaved ice...."

[Didn't you hear what the idiot said? Don't talk and keep your mouth shut, you idiot!]

The devil bastard cried in Seongjin's ear.

[Ugh! Why on earth did this happen? Aside from the eyes, why is my physical condition suddenly like this?]

'Oh, I see.'

Seongjin was equally puzzled.

I thought I was taking good care of my body this morning, but why did I suddenly become like this?

To be honest, Seongjin's condition now was much worse than when he fought the Lycan Slope Lord. Obviously, my father treated me completely once, but why?

'... Just because you abused the spirit eye?'

The day before, I stayed up all night and used my spiritual eyes, but in the morning, there was nothing wrong except that my eyes were a little tired.

Moreover, I cannot understand the state of his body, which seems to be completely torn apart by auras.

Of course, while running around on shaved ice all day, I overused my Aura, but that wasn't the first time it happened.

That alone couldn't fully explain my current physical condition.

'shaved ice... ... '

okay. shaved ice.

Seongjin's head, which had been dull due to lack of energy, slowly began to turn.

'This is the third time in total that I've felt such a sharp decline.'

Once at the Canyon Fortress, once at the Ice Wall Base, and the last time when I was just trying to chase down a demon.

This happened right after controlling the shaved ice all three times.

'no way... ... '

Seongjin, who had been unconsciously releasing aura as a habit from the hand holding the ice heart, realized.

I'm finally getting the hang of it.

'When controlling the shaved ice, I felt a sense of unity as if I was moving my own body.'

While Bingsu's body was running wild like that, what if the aurors inside his body were running wild along with him?

Didn't his Auror reflect Seongjin's will so easily that he could easily react even unconsciously? So he warned Logan several times to be careful when moving his Aurors.

If a thought was strong enough to move the shaved ice with just a thought, it would not be surprising at all if the auror inside the body also shook in concert with it.

'Then everything fits together, doesn't it?'

So, after fighting at the canyon fortress, my condition deteriorated rapidly. And after going overboard once again to catch the devil here, it was now difficult to keep my body in check.

'Is it a big deal? I think I still need to move the shaved ice one more time.'

If it continues like this, your body might not be able to withstand it.

Seongjin thought as he tried to strengthen the hand holding the ice heart.

'What if it's just a moment? I need to clear the way for Logan to catch the demon. The only person here who can do that right now is me...
... !'

[...] huh?]

At that time, the demon king who was whimpering screamed loudly.

[Are you thinking about something strange right now? What are you thinking? Why do you think you can't hear me? Are you planning something bad again?]

Oh, actually, the devil. I thought about it for a moment.

Isn't the fact that I unconsciously moved my body's aura because my soul couldn't completely leave my body?

[...] What are you thinking?]

But if I could leave this body completely.

If only I could control shaved ice like that.

[What are you trying to do now!]

If only I could separate my soul far enough so that my body would not be guided by thoughts.

If that happens, eye injuries will no longer be a problem. I will be able to see ahead with my soul without having to borrow your spiritual eyes.

Once my thoughts were organized, the rest was simple.

Recalling his previous experience of flying to the border of the dimension, Seongjin carefully asked the Demon King.

I ask you to call Seongjin's spirit from far away. So that he can leave his body as easily as before.

[Are you crazy?]

It was natural for the demon lord to jump around in his head, trying to break his crystal clear.

[You man, do your work! Completely separating the soul from the body? You're really going to die like this!]

That's something you don't know, devil.

I'm doing this so I don't die. If I make the Aurors run wild one more time, this will really be the end of this body.

[no! I absolutely hate it! Do you think I will do that?]

Don't worry too much. Because I will definitely come back to this body.

There are still many faces to see. Do you think I will die easily by then?

[Hey, Seongjin Lee!]

Or do you really want to let the Aurors run wild once again and watch this body be torn to shreds?

Is that the result you want?

[you... you... ... !]

The demon king, who was trembling, immediately said, "Aaaah!" He let out a scream and flew out of his body.

'But I can't think of any other way.'

Seongjin thought as he closed his invisible eyes. She wanted to concentrate as much as possible.

Then, the blood pushed out of my eyelids slowly flows down my cheeks like tears.

'good. I definitely have a decision to make. The fact that it can be stimulated with medicinal tea clearly means that it is functioning autonomously to some extent.'

I can hear it.

I can hear the devil calling.

I am the next generation oracle. There is nothing in this world that cannot be accomplished through my thoughts!

How many times did I repeat that?

The effort was not in vain, and soon really faint sounds began to be heard through Seongjin's crystalline flame.

[...] Repent! Repent!]

[Where are you? If you can hear my voice, please respond... ..!]

These guys are still doing this.

I want to ask a serious question. Isn't life a waste?

[Ugh! Seongjin Lee! See you later! I will never forget today! Sigh!]

Ah, I found it.

hmm. Devil, I actually feel quite sorry for you.

While Seongjin is concentrating all his attention on the devil's call, suddenly the loud voices of some children ring in his ears. The voices were somehow familiar.

[Good luck dad! Happy Dad! Look at Mores! Sir Sharon!]

[Dad, Your Majesty! Daddy, Your Majesty! Mores is dead! Sir

Sharon!]

what? Why is it so familiar?

For some reason, it seems like this has happened often before.

'Don't cry, you guys. Everything will be okay in the end.'

I can clearly see that.

With that last thought, Seongjin's consciousness quickly left his body.

* * *

Wedge! Wedge!

A brilliant silver-blue aura is quickly struck in large concentric circles.

The beautiful sword energy flowing along the sword's trajectory spread delicately in the air, like flower petals embroidered stitch by stitch.

Kwa-kwa-kwa-kwak!

A quick sword that stabs into the top again and again.

The overlapping and overlapping lights scatter brilliantly and spread in all directions like fluttering flower petals.

Rumble!

Another ice monster collapses helplessly where the flower had bloomed.

But this time there was no loud impact sound like before.

This was because Logan had already ground all of his limbs, except for the center where his heart was, into small pieces, in case there was any harm to the knights following him.

".....?"

Logan, who was taking care of Arjuna, glanced up into space as if wondering.

Of course, there was nothing there, but strangely enough, Logan felt that someone's curious gaze lingered there for a moment.

'What on earth?'

But there was no time to think for long.

Wooooooo-

This is because the Glaturre Trolls, who had finally identified their target as Logan, rushed towards him, screaming all at once.

Thump thump thump thump!

Several giants rushing towards him at the same time.

It wouldn't be difficult to deal with them one by one, but if he dodges, the remaining demon beasts will definitely rush straight towards the troops following behind.

then.

'Cut it into small pieces.'

All the directions they were running towards, the ice pillars coming in at various angles, each side without any gaps.

Hwiik-

The silver-blue aura emanating from Arjuna spreads wide like a fan.

At first glance, it looked like it was swung wide and sideways, but each one was a fatal ray of light that came from a quick stab.

The closest extremities of the Glaturre Trolls are temporarily sealed.

'Chop it into small pieces again.'

All surfaces surrounding the pole are sealed.

'Split it.'

The axis of movement that leads to the extreme point is fundamentally sealed.

Clap la la rock.

Countless fleeting fragments that have been broken into pieces that are difficult to perceive with the mind.

In the Sword Master's thoughts, all the things that have stopped are listed in a series of continuity. It unfolded before his eyes, one by one, and finally began to come alive in his thoughts.

Arjuna's traces engraved on each fragment also continue, and eventually become one will that overcomes everything.

Puff puff puff!

The legs of the five glamor trolls running side by side exploded at once.

Finely broken pieces of ice flew up, and a shock wave was strong enough to shake the entire basin.

"I can't believe it...!"

Old man Vincent, who was running south with Sir Sebastian, stuck out his tongue.

Dekaron Knight's eyes were able to carefully examine the prince's sword even from a distance.

And the results were truly shocking.

'How can the sword of a prince who is only a young boy contain such deep thoughts!'

Because he was a Dekaron Knight and had not yet become a sword master, he was able to recognize Logan's sword more clearly than anyone else.

That sword contained everything he didn't have. It is a sword that is capable of reaching the principles of the world.

"I thought it was only Balthazar."

The old man pursed his lips in exasperation.

Aside from Seonghwang in this Delcross, I thought in my heart that the only person who would be able to attack me was Balthazar in the Imperial Capital.

His level is nothing compared to this!

For the second time in his life, the old man felt the huge wall in front of him.

'It wasn't just a success!'

Many years ago. The day when the young emperor unexpectedly visited Lord Sigismund and took away Princess Amelia.

After experiencing the fear of near-instant death in front of him for a moment, old Vincent never set foot in the imperial capital again.

It was a shame, but it was because he was so afraid of meeting Seonghwang, who was much younger than him.

When I first met Prince Mores, what was the reason why I committed the crime of lese majeste? Isn't it because I felt a vague fear of the majestic spirit that I could never capture at that age?

But here is another one of the same thing!

Isn't this really crazy and jumping around!

"These people are like monsters. Are all the people in the Seonghwang family monsters like that...?"

Sir Sebastian glanced back at the complaint and said calmly.

"The prince is a sword master."

"Yeah, I see."

The old man nodded with a worried expression.

Sword Master.

This was the moment when, in name and reality, the youngest sword master on the continent was officially born.

* * *

Logan, who quickly cleared out the northern Glacher Trolls, headed to the center of the battle line, leaving one or two demon beasts for the knights.

And around that time, he began to feel a faint magical energy in his energy.

A dense vortex of darkness that was clearly distinct from that of the demonic beasts.

'Lee Seong-jin was right. There must be a devil beyond that mountainside!'

he said

Pursue that first, even at all costs.

Logan caught a glimpse of the Masain and Wolf Knights struggling on the front lines, then jumped up and jumped into the middle of the enemy lines. Like this, he planned to run straight towards the mountainside.

However, the situation that followed was worse than expected.

Crumbling!

Kkkkkkkk!

As if by some order, the Lycan Slopes began to flock towards Logan.

That's not all.

The Glature Trolls spread evenly across the front line all turned to look at Logan. This meant that the enemies had identified Logan as the top priority for elimination.

'It's going to take more time to break through than I thought. Maybe I'll miss the devil.'

Logan swung Arjuna sharply out of urgency.

Squirt!

All lycan slopes within the wide attack range of the Henesys long sword were instantly cut in half and killed.

At that time, without missing the opportunity, a Glatzer Troll rushed towards Logan.

Boom boom boom!

This was when Logan was reflexively aiming Arjuna at the guy.

Coo!

A Glatute Troll suddenly appeared from behind, blocking his path and swinging his fist.

Cluck!

The Glatute Troll that was charging at Logan was hit with a counter, and its head and neck were instantly torn apart.

".....!"

Logan blinked for a moment at the shocking sight.

"...Lee Seongjin?"

For some reason, I suddenly remember what Lee Seong-jin said.

-If things don't work out, I'll help you.

No, no matter what. no way?

But then the ice monster, which was quickly ahead of Logan, collided with another Glacher Troll running from the side.

Kuaang!

Tens of tons of ice monsters collided with all their might. There was a terrible noise and an enormous shock wave.

"Is this really Lee Seong-jin? Is this what you call Vince?"

No matter what anyone says, the intentions of this Glacher Troll were clear.

Before Logan becomes a single target and is checked, he wants to draw attention to himself first.

At that time, Logan's eyes briefly fell on the Sigismund family insignia, which was surrounded by an ice monster.

It looked comical because it was covering its back vaguely, but it was also a sight that felt somehow familiar to Logan.

An image of Mores running through the Blue Rose Labyrinth with a red cloak clumsily tied around his neck flashed through his mind.

"haha."

Strange.

I've thought about this sometimes, but why do I keep thinking that Lee Seong-jin resembles Mores from his childhood?

Whoa whoa-

At that time, the Glacher Troll blocking the enemy turned to look at Logan.

Although the ice monster had no organs that could be called eyes other than the imperfect outlines of its features, Logan still felt that the Glature Troll was staring at him and giving him all the attention he could.

-good! Hurry and chase after the Magi!

Yes, Seongjin Lee. Of course I intend to.

Logan, who smiled unconsciously, lightly lifted his body up.

And, using the power of kicking one of the lycan slopes as the driving force, it began to shoot forward with great force.

240. Sword Master (4)

Director Bruno, who had left Seongjin behind, soon returned. He was accompanied by Gustav, a priest who specialized in healing.

"I mainly focus on trauma, so my divine power itself is not strong. If you don't have any special trauma, wouldn't it be better to bring in another priest?"

Gustav said with a disapproving look on his face. There is a feeling of dissatisfaction with the outsider who bothered to drag him in while there were urgently injured people one after another.

How could the prince, who was surrounded and protected by knights, be in a hurry to find a priest?

But Bruno's attitude was firm.

"There is no time for that. Please hurry."

Prince Mores looked exactly as Bruno had seen him reclining under the watchtower. Just the fact that his head was hanging down was quite ominous.

Gustav, who then realized that the situation was unusual, straightened his expression and hurried his steps.

"Lowering."

Bruno approached cautiously and shook the prince. But didn't the body that was shaking helplessly collapse into Bruno's arms?

".....!"

The prince's face, revealed as he collapsed, was as pale as a dead person.

Bruno's heart sank.

"Lowering!"

They quickly laid the prince down on the floor and checked his condition.

"Why is there blood...."

Although he was greatly embarrassed by the sight of the prince's face, blood dripping from his eyes, Gustav soon came to his senses and began to pour out his divine power.

Fortunately, the heart did not stop at all, and the pulse was regained occasionally.

However, it was too precarious to be a proper beat; it seemed as if it was nothing more than a meaningless contraction of the heart, which was bound to tremble intermittently just before it stopped.

"What on earth happened to you? In order to treat, we need to know the cause."

Bruno shook his head in confusion at Father Gustav's question. Because no matter how much I thought about it, I had no idea.

It was just that my condition had been steadily worsening since morning, so I just assumed that my fatigue was building up.

"It's not enough for me alone. I think my heart will stop soon. I think I need the help of other priests."

At Gustav's serious voice, Bruno nodded and tried to get up to ask for help.

"omg.....?"

And I was so startled that I sat down. Suddenly, out of nowhere, a woman covered in blood was staring down at them.

Blood was even dripping from the ugly curved sword she was holding.

"...Lord Sharon?"

Bruno barely recognized the familiar figure. It seems that she was so distracted that she didn't realize she was approaching.

Because she was covered from head to toe in the blood of a demonic beast and I couldn't even sense her presence, even if it was just for a moment, I really thought she was a ghost.

"iced coffee.....!"

But the exorcist did not answer his call.

Sighing softly, she threw the curved sword on the floor and grabbed the prince's hand. My face, which was already pale, turned pale like never before.

"Mores, Mores, what should I do with you? Mores, Mores, maybe I like you?"

Seeing him repeating himself frantically in a thin voice, Priest Gustas' eyebrows rose.

However, Bruno realized that she was currently channeling and asked urgently.

"Lord Sharon. Your condition is strange. Could you please ask Your Majesty for help?"

Then, Sir Sharon looked up into space for a moment with a blank expression on his face, and then shook his head.

"Your Majesty cannot respond now. We must do something from here."

It was her clear voice that Bruno rarely heard.

Lord Sharon spoke in a calm voice as she poured divine power into the prince.

"Brother Gustav, please request more brothers with strong divine power."

"No! I-I'm going!"

Before the priest could move, Bruno jumped up from his seat and shouted.

"It would be much faster if I went. There's nothing I can do anyway, right? So in the meantime, priest, I hope you can use your divine power a little more....!"

Then the sharp voice of Sir Sharon stopped him.

"Stay here, Captain Bruno!"

".....!"

Looking at her with wide eyes, the exorcist's black eyes, which always looked blurry, were staring at Bruno with strong will.

"Absolutely not. Do you really not know? Your role here is the most important!"

"I... you mean?"

When I asked in a confused voice, she nodded.

"Yes. Please hold my hand. Please stay by my side! Please use your kindness to hold me here firmly so that he does not leave somewhere else again."

Cause and effect.

Before Bruno could even properly understand those words, he hurriedly grabbed the prince's hand.

'I heard it from Arenger! Did you say that my cause and effect definitely belongs to you?'

I don't know exactly what that means.

However, from Sir Sharon's desperate voice, Bruno sensed that the cause and effect was more important than the priest's divine power.

"Lowering....."

Wow.

Bruno, who was holding tightly to the small hand that could feel its faint beating, realized something again. He wondered how small and childish the trustworthy boy he was relying on was actually.

"Ugh!"

Then a new regret arose. I should have helped the prince a little better!

'I thought I was serving you with all my heart, but in the end, I was just enjoying my life as I pleased!'

I was able to focus on regaining my level of prowess, and later I fell in love with the fun of coaching Calmen.

If there was something I didn't want to do, I didn't have to follow the prince around, all I had to do was stay in Jinju Palace and savor quality tea to my heart's content.

How in the world can a life like this exist as a gift?

'It was all thanks to you.'

The ranch the prince had prepared for him was so large and free that he even forgot for a moment that there was a fence protecting it.

"Father Seonghwang can't move yet. We have to move Mores' heart. Fast, fast, fast!"

Meanwhile, Sir Sharon was constantly muttering incomprehensible sounds.

"Daddy, we can't just wait for His Majesty. Let's slow down Mores' time. Slow, slow, slow!"

But is it because of my mood?

With her words, the prince's spirit, which had been dying out, felt like it was coming back just a little bit.

In desperation, Bruno grabbed the hand that had a weaker warmth than before.

'You have given me so many things, but what have I really done for you?'

He is not yet the Dekaron Knight he used to be. Although he maintained his Auric balance, albeit imperfectly, he still could not surpass Sir Martha Yin or Lord Maria in terms of sheer force.

Where is that?

He said he would be a bridge to Arenja with his poor channeling skills, but his skills are far inferior to that of Sir Sharon, the exorcist. At this distance from the ecliptic, isn't the only way to receive the strong thoughts they send out?

But Sir Sharon smiled slightly at Bruno, wondering how he knew what he was thinking.

"Don't blame yourself for nothing, Leader Bruno. Your mere presence will be of great help to me."

"Lord Sharon...."

"Your Majesty would not carelessly throw away his life, even to protect what belongs to him. Don't you know that he would never do that?"

".....!"

okay. Although we didn't spend a long time together, it was still enough time to get to know the prince's personality.

Trying not to miss the slow beat of his pulse, Bruno lowered his head and quietly shed a tear.

* * *

Kwasik! Wow!

Pow! Rumble!

The change that occurred when the Sword Master and a Glaturre Troll jumped into the battle line was dramatic.

Boom boom boom!

In particular, the performance of Glaturre Troll Vince was outstanding.

Vince, wearing Sigismund's insignia, races towards the mountainside, with all the Glacher Trolls on the front line on his tail. He doesn't forget to beat up those who follow him whenever he can and destroy them step by step.

"It's him Mores! He's controlling Vince!"

Sir Oscar, who had already witnessed the action once at the Gorge Fortress, shouted excitedly.

With some of the Lycan Slopes rushing towards it, the front line was now much more relaxed. This allowed Lord Ilma to withdraw some more of his forces and send them to the relatively vulnerable southwest.

Old man Vincent and Sir Sebastian were leading the troops, but they still seemed to be struggling quite a bit.

"This is the difference between Dekaron Knight and Sword Master!"

Lord Ilma inwardly clicked his tongue.

Dekaron Knight is the one who achieved balance among the Aurors.

And those who put their thoughts into the completed Auror Blade and are able to penetrate the laws of the world are called Sword Masters.

"How could His Majesty Logan have achieved a level that surpasses Vincent at such a young age!"

In any case, morale began to rise again at the front.

Only on Lord Martha's face, which occasionally glanced at Vince, was there a look of worry that could not be hidden.

This is because I remembered that the prince's condition was unusual when I was controlling Vince at the Canyon Fortress.

"Lord Ilma. I think I will have to go see you as soon as the front lines are stabilized. Is that okay?"

"Yes, of course, Lord Masaine. Thank you for your help so far!"

Ilma hastily nodded.

Lord Masain is by far one of the strongest forces here. It was a matter of gratitude that the knight who never left the prince's side fought on the front lines for such a long time.

Meanwhile, Logan, who was running alongside Vince through enemy lines, thought.

'Even if I wasn't there, wouldn't Lee Seong-jin have been able to stop them alone?'

Vince's performance was so great that it made me think that way.

The ice monster that had defeated the seven Glacher Trolls straightened up and swung its shoulders.

The sight of him confidently fluttering his badge made Logan secretly laugh, as he seemed to be looking at Lee Seong-jin with a shrug.

But there was no more time to waste.

Now that the eyes of the enemy are focused on Vince, it will be a long-awaited golden opportunity for him.

Logan passed through the enemies quickly, leaving no trace.

The Dekaron Knight is capable of performing world-class tricks with its enormous amount of aura, but it is also capable of completely erasing its presence and easily hiding anywhere if it wants to.

And before long, Logan was able to face the devil hiding among the thick bushes.

As Lee Seong-jin said, she had the appearance of a young woman wearing a dark hood.

[...] no?]

Before the devil even noticed his appearance, Logan's powerful sacred barrier captured the devil.

Granius defense barrier, type 0.

It was the most basic form and at the same time a flawless barrier that completely surrounded the enemy with divine power.

[this! In what gap?]

The devil, who was instantly surrounded by a curtain of silver light, had a look of disappointment on his face. Then he immediately looked at Logan and tilted his head.

[iced coffee? Where are you... ... ?]

However, as if he soon realized something, he regained his composure and curled the corners of his mouth.

Even though he was surrounded by a sacred barrier that could burn him at any moment, the devil smiled as if he were possessed, paying no heed to it.

[Whose soul shines so brightly? Indeed, the last sword of the East is you!]

A term that undoubtedly refers to Gael Bertrand.

Logan asked in surprise.

"Do you know me?"

[Of course, you know. Cluck cluck!]

The devil changed into a calm and weak attitude and shouted confidently.

[I've seen you up close! It was clearly an offering meant to be offered to the Penitent! My master was very sad, but how could I not be happy that he was hiding so well!]

A penance offering?

It was the first time. Is what the devil is talking about really his past life?

Logan answered with a doubtful expression.

"I just died in a civil war. I don't know anything about sacrifices to the devil."

Then the devil let out an unpleasant laugh.

[Well, guess what. Saying you don't know is such a naive attitude. There was more at stake in your death than you thought! Even if the Guardian hadn't stolen you, a lot would have changed now.]

truth.

Logan frowned and glared at the demon.

[What do you think? Won't you let me go? If you do that, I will give you important information.]

lie.

The devil is just trying to avoid this situation. He has no intention of saying anything.

"I ask you just one question, devil."

Logan's eyes stared at the woman with a cold, cold light.

"Was it the work of demons that destroyed my homeland, Ortona?"

[Well, human affairs intervened here and there, but ultimately it can be seen as such. How do you feel? Do you want to know more?]

Of course I wanted to know.

Even so, there were things I learned while leading the punitive force for several years.

Why is evidence of long-standing devil worship found throughout Ortona?

Perhaps there is something deeper hidden in Ortona's dissolution.

As Logan was lost in thought, the devil seemed to think that his words were working and subtly coaxed him.

[Now, tell me anything. You are a soul whom my master truly admires. If you stand before my master with me, he will grant you whatever wish you wish.]

It's a wish.

A bitter smile appeared on Logan's lips.

"Then is there a way to bring back my destroyed country?"

[...] what?]

"Can you give me my country back?"

The devil paused and then laughed bitterly.

[haha. You're using nonsense. How can you bring back something that has already been sacrificed and disappeared? Creating a human kingdom requires enormous human effort. It is not something my master should get involved in lightly.]

truth.

Logan nodded.

"Then there is nothing more to hear."

Wow!

As Logan clenched his fist-

Logan, who was tilting his head, slowly picked up a piece of ice. Then, the black magic energy wrapped around the piece tried to wrap around Logan's entire body.

This is an item that the devil had. It is contaminated with terrible demonic energy, so a normal person would have been eroded immediately just by touching it...

This had no effect on Logan, who possessed great divine power.

'Is this an important item? 'What is this that I held on to so carefully until the end?'

Logan carefully rolled the ice cubes in his palm.

The decision was quick.

'Shall we take it as evidence? If it's nothing special, I'll just give it to Seongjin Lee. 'It's going to be boring to lie in the hospital bed for a while, so I guess I should at least try playing with this.'

Logan painstakingly purified the ice heart with divine power and then quickly put it in his pocket.

Of course, until then, he had no idea how happy Seongjin would be upon receiving that gift.

241

241. Return (1)

"Kwak?"

The little girl narrowed her eyes at the strange scream that came from the old priest's mouth.

"What are you doing here? Stay safe."

"No, can you please stop looking at me with those disgusting eyes? It's probably going to hurt me."

Pa-jong waved his hand and continued speaking with a serious face.

"My family just died. How can this be? What happened?"

He was quite capable and useful, but he died in vain like this?

Greed glared pitifully at the high-ranking demon king who was making a fuss that was unbecoming of him.

"Is there anything he left behind?"

"Um... not at all?"

Pajong tried to focus his mind towards the north, but all he could sense was a very faint residual thought.

[Ah, I must quickly tell my master about this...]

It was truly a useless dying message.

What do you know?

Who the hell killed you?

"Has the Guardian returned? I didn't sense it."

It was not unreasonable for Greed to think so.

The force prepared to attack Sigismund was on a scale that would never have been possible if the Guardian had not come in person.

But Pa Jong shook his head.

"No, the guardian of Delcross has not returned from the gap yet. Well, nothing is going as expected."

The guardian of Delcross, who was originally held captive, was forced into an urgent situation and tried to induce him to break the [agreement].

Pajong scratched the top of his head, which was starting to empty out.

"If I had known this would happen, I would have done things a little more moderately. Ae-yeol committed it much more violently than I expected."

Who would have thought that such a powerful guardian would create so many dimensions that he would be held captive all day!

Thanks to this, their plan ended up going nowhere.

It was not enough to conquer Sigismund territory, and it was not enough to bring down the guardian of Delcross.

"ah!"

At that time, Pajong was suddenly startled and shouted.

"Ice hearts! What should I do with them? Ae-yeol said she wanted to return them."

What did they say? That server... It is an extremely rare item in this world.

I heard that they spent all their money to sweep it all up.

"How many did you borrow?"

Gluttony, who knew well that his passionate nature was not normal, showed signs of discomfort on rare occasions.

"Five. I trusted my family members to be quite capable, so I entrusted them all to them, but they died without a word. Now, how do I get them back?"

Thinking that Ae-yeol would definitely get the full price somehow, Pa-jong sighed deeply with a gloomy face.

* * *

After catching the target demon, the next step was a breeze.

Logan unfolded his sword generously on his way back to the front lines. Because he no longer has to hide anything.

Along his path, the ice tombs of Glature Trolls were piled up one by one, and the corpses of hundreds of Lycanslopes were lying around.

Meanwhile, Logan witnessed an unexpected sight.

In the middle of the slope, Vince was standing there blankly, looking into space.

"...Lee Seongjin?"

There was something unusual about the atmosphere.

Even though a half-broken Glature Troll was swinging his fist, Vince was not responding in the slightest. It was as if his soul had escaped.

After staring at Vince for a moment, Logan hurriedly found the Wolf Knights.

"Since when has it been standing like that?"

The Wolf Knights were momentarily taken aback by the young Sword Master's question that suddenly appeared. But soon Lord Ilma stepped forward and answered calmly.

"It hasn't been long. The movement has slowed down little by little, and it is in the same state as before. The situation on the battlefield has been somewhat resolved, so I guess you have stopped controlling it?"

"okay?"

Logan's face became serious.

You were having so much fun just a little while ago, but you're quitting right now just because you have some free time? That guy?

'It can't possibly be like that.'

It's definitely true. Something was wrong with Seongjin Lee.

"Holy shit!"

Logan ran quickly toward the rear without even pretending to see the Lycan Slope charging at him.

Please, please, nothing should happen!

* * *

Sniff, sniff.

A small cry is heard from somewhere.

Seongjin walked absent-mindedly, listening to the song as if it were a song he always heard.

[Lee Seong-jin, you idiot! I knew it would end up like this.]

The owner of that voice was a small soul.

The soul, whose red light was blinking in sync with the whimpers, continued to cry as it followed behind Seongjin.

[How long did you think the soul would last after leaving the body? You don't even think about the future, do you? Your father isn't coming, so how are you going to go back now?]

'... ... '

Seongjin carefully held the devil's dusty soul.

Even in his grip, which was much smaller than before, his fragile soul was only a handful away. He has become so insignificant and weak that he can no longer be hated like he used to be.

[Maybe it's better now? Sniff, sniff.]

Why are you so sad, devil?

Seongjin thought curiously.

You said we were planning on doing this from the beginning, right? He would have been caught up in Gehenna's terror and his soul would have been completely scattered and he would have died.

[It's different now from then. In the past, you thought it was okay, but now you want to go back.]

Do you want me to go back?

[You really wanted to stay in that world.]

Well, maybe so.

But devil, why are you crying so sadly? Even when you became a lost child in another dimension in the past, I don't think you were that sad.

[That's because you're sad! Giggle.]

'... ... '

... is it?

Actually, I'm not sure right now.

[Mores! Mores! Come back quickly!]

[Mores! Mores! Don't go far!]

look. As always, I can hear the voices of noisy children in my ears. But I don't think anything.

Anyway, these guys. Please don't repeat the same thing over and over again. That's quite annoying and annoying.

[Sir, please come back. Please do not abandon this Bruno!]

Someone's earnest request can also be heard from afar.

Oh, that's right. There remains a cause and effect that belongs to me.

He has been exiled from the world for a long time, so he probably won't be able to set foot in the world anymore without me. I really can't leave it like that.

'But it is a very weak manpower to dwell on.'

That too.

Seongjin's steps slow down a bit.

I didn't really feel like I had to go back, but I couldn't help but feel heavy in my heart.

[Lowering! Lowering! Please open your eyes!]

At that time, the urgent voice of the driver is heard.

Seongjin stopped walking and looked back.

Sir Masain. He is someone who is always in a lot of trouble because he has to follow Seongjin around. If we broke up like this, I would be very heartbroken.

'Maybe it would be better to let go now.'

okay. Maybe so.

What kind of trouble is this for both of us?

I'm thinking about it now, but it seems like living as Mores was a bit of a struggle. There are so many more things to worry about than when I was alone.

It was time to start walking again.

rattle. rattle.

Suddenly, a bell sound was heard overhead.

'... ... ?'

[Whoa whoa whoa!]

Heavy rain? what? Who's smiling?

While I was wondering, something new fell from above my head.

If you look at the light movement, it was a light gesture like that of a fairy. It's just that the subject is a bald old man wearing a red hat.

[...] what? What is this inspiration?]

The demon king, who had been sniffing, stopped crying and asked in bewilderment.

[Hoohoo! Where are you going, kid!]

The old man shouts and easily lands in front of Seongjin.

and! Sister Amelia! Check this out! It's amazing that dragons are real, and there really is a Santa in this world!

Even when I was young, I never believed in it, but I think innocence is something I need to protect and observe.

Then the old man frowned and shouted, wondering how he knew what Seongjin was thinking.

[This! Do your best! I am not that Santa!]

Oh, is that so?

When I looked at the inspiration carefully, it was a little different from the Santa I remembered.

Although he wore a red cone and had a white beard, his appearance was somewhat poorer than that of Santa.

Moreover, what he was wearing was not a red coat, but a fancy priest's uniform with the red god's symbol engraved on it.

huh? Priests?

[Yes! This person is the famous Saint Aurelion!]

At the old man's confident self-introduction, Seongjin looked at him with a bewildered expression.

Hey, do you usually call yourself an adult? By the way, it's very different from the images you read in children's books, isn't it?

Then the old man glared at Seongjin with a disapproving look on his face.

[Isn't this all because of you? Ah! Tsk tsk tsk.]

Are you saying it's because of me?

[Yes, child. What did you think when you first saw me?]

Seongjin thought carefully about the events that had happened not long ago.

So, it was probably in a big city called Regina that I really came into contact with Saint Aurelion.

I thought that the small dolls densely displayed at street vendors looked like the mass-produced Santa dolls I saw in stores when I was a child.

... Huh, Santa?

[Do you understand now?]

So are you saying this is because of me? Because you think I'm like Santa?

Then the old man beat his chest and lamented.

[Of course it's because of you! After sending it away with such a strong flame, and all the people who received it pouring out strong wishes on top of it, is it not possible for the flame to become stronger and stronger?]

A wish?

[okay. Go back and try to stop your family. In particular, I'm telling you to do something about your father! If you receive blessings from God's representative every day, your meditation will become more and more powerful. What if my image turns into that of a pot-bellied old man?]

hmm. That might be a bit troublesome.

But at least you will avoid going bald...

While Seongjin was thinking such rude thoughts, the old man continued to grumble.

[By the way, take care of your family! Ah! The wish of the best children is to save the worst! Tsk tsk tsk!]

No, old man. If you say you're not Santa, why are you a good boy?

Also, why am I the worst kid? Still, I did my best for this unfamiliar world!

Then, Old Man Aurelion opens his eyes darkly and glares at Seongjin.

[If a person who drives nails into the hearts of his family, especially his parents, is not a bad child, then what is he?]

'... ... '

At that moment, Seongjin felt something welling up in his chest.

... parents?

To me?

As I was standing there dazed by the complex emotions that suddenly came to me, the old man cleared his throat loudly and pointed somewhere.

[Now, look over there. I think you've forgotten something, so I've come to teach you.]

Forgot something?

As I turned my head to follow the old man's finger, I saw something like a faint line in the distance.

It was just a thin thread, but the son-in-law was shining alone in the dark, giving off a strange presence. Seongjin suddenly felt a small curiosity in her.

[Sniff, slurp.]

The devil started whimpering again.

[...] What is it, inspiration? He's a pretty good guy.]

In addition, the voice that was constantly talking in my ear became even louder.

[Nooooooooo! Bald old man! thank you! Everyone made fun of us for doing something stupid, but from now on, we will also make a big cone on your head!]

[No, I told you not to do that! Since your wish has been granted, let's end this!]

[Nooooooooo! Bald old man! thank you! I thought what a waste of money that was, but I'll prepare flowers and lace to decorate you right now!]

[No, I'm asking you to leave me alone! How long are you going to pamper me?]

Leaving behind them, Seongjin approached the sparkling thread.

And I inadvertently touched one spot -

-He lifts his sword and sings-

A strange song comes from the room.

hmm? What is this?

Seongjin listened quietly as he stepped on the long thread.

-Olivier, the moon nymph, raises his sword and sings-

ah. I think I know what this is.

Seongjin slowly began to thread the thread, feeling a strange sense of déjà vu. Then her thread began to make happy humming sounds.

-The whole world reacted to this and swore that they would not dare to infringe on his journey.

okay.

Sister Amelia was right.

This was really the first pitch. It wasn't a curse.

But it's okay, sister. It doesn't matter if the angel is a little less dexterous.

[Please come back safely, Mores.]

The earnest thoughts mixed with the song are conveyed.

Seongjin hesitated for a moment.

When I opened my eyes in this world, the first person to hug me was my sister.

If I let this thread go, wouldn't she be very sad?

therefore...

"under!"

"Lowering!"

... huh?

Seongjin slowly opened his eyes at the sound calling him in his ears.

Then, out of the corner of my blurry eyes, a vaguely familiar figure appeared. Seongjin, who was staring at him with narrowed eyes, opened his mouth.

"...Ah, brother Masain?"

"....."

okay. It's my brother.

I always said I would become a knight to protect the Blue Rose Labyrinth.

Then the knight's eyes turned red as he looked down at him. His face looked like he was about to burst into tears at any moment.

Tuk.

At that time, someone's hand covers Seongjin's eyes.

"It's not all better yet, so I'm keeping it closed a little longer."

I feel a warm energy seeping into my eyes along with a familiar voice. It was a powerful divine power that was rarely seen.

"Logan."

"...okay."

"Did you catch the devil?"

"....."

There was a moment of silence.

But soon, a voice as calm as usual answered.

"Of course. What are you looking at me for? The matter of the Sigismund estate has been resolved, so don't worry about it and go to sleep."

"hmm....."

okay. I thought so.

Ever since Logan came here, he had a feeling that everything would work out okay.

"Damn, that's reliable...."

It's your brother, man.

Hearing the faint answer, Seongjin surrendered himself to the rushing waters.

242

242. Return (2)

After a long, long night, the faint morning sunlight finally came over the ridge surrounding the basin.

The front line once reached a desperate situation. However, by dawn, the war situation had completely stabilized, and Sigismund's soldiers were able to completely drive out the demonic beasts from the territory.

There were corpses of demonic beasts all over the place.

Some of the surviving Lycan Slopes were busy running away, and the soldiers, who had regained their composure, went around mopping up the Lycan Slopes who were still alive.

"It is the Lord's help, otherwise...."

Sir Ilma, who had finally taken a breather, suddenly looked up at the sky that was turning red and muttered.

Why not?

The number of Lycanslopes that attacked the territory was approximately 1,500. However, those who were currently able to move their bodies and run away over the ridge only had spirit.

On the other hand, Sigismund's damage was not as great as expected. This was truly an unbelievable achievement, considering that he thought at some point that he would not be able to avoid annihilation.

"There will be a localized war of attrition for a while, but there will no longer be an all-out war like yesterday."

As she was quietly watching the retreating Lycan Slopes, Sir Sebastian came up behind her and said.

"Do you mind if I don't chase after you?"

"We don't have the strength to do that either. It's hard to catch up with Schneeshuhe. Lycanslopes are faster than most horsemen."

The guard captain slowly wrapped his arms around Ilma's shoulders and continued speaking.

"There's no need to rush, Ilma. For now, let's gather up the tired soldiers. Why don't you take a break and eat something? There's a smell of onion stew coming from the village square. It looks like Hans is cooking up another bland stew. "

"Ahaha."

For the first time, a gentle smile appears on Lord Ilma's tired face.

"I always think you have a really good nose. You can smell this bloody smell well in places like this."

"Why not? It's all about making a living."

After responding like that, Sir Sebastian buried his nose as if leaning on his wife's shoulder.

"Let's hurry up and clean up and go home. If we do well, we'll be able to see my daughter's pretty face by lunchtime."

"Okay, let's go back. Louise is probably very worried about us, guarding the house alone."

Lord Ilma also leaned into the arms of her trustworthy husband and closed her eyes. Little did they know the tragic news that would soon come to them.

It was a moment of peace.

* * *

"Sigismund never gave in even in the face of great adversity that suddenly came upon him. That's all. He clearly proved to be a strong protective shield for the empire that guards the border of the Demon World. This includes not only the Wolf Knights but also the armies of demon beasts, where he never backed down. "The hard work of the Yeongji soldiers who fought bravely is great."

Margrave Hendrick, who returned to the Count's residence, looked around at the people gathered in the study and calmly praised them.

"butler."

"Yes, matriarch."

"We must comfort all those who died in battle, and provide appropriate compensation to those who have made meritorious contributions."

"Yes, I will follow your orders."

"Let's just go."

The old butler bowed his head respectfully, and Orden, who was listening next to him, opened his mouth.

"Have you forgotten one thing, matriarch?"

"What is that, Orden?"

"The people who have contributed the most are definitely Prince Mores and Prince Logan. Why is there no mention of them? If it weren't for you two, we would never have seen the sun this morning safely."

Orden insisted on pointing out the facts. The truth that everyone in Sigismund wanted to avoid.

"I know very well that you take great pride in having protected your territory on your own for generations without relying on outsiders. However, if you have received great help, shouldn't you acknowledge it and first express your sincere gratitude to them?"

"....."

"We can't just end it with light compensation like we did for the soldiers of the territory. Don't you know this well, Matriarch? Sigismund owes the Holy Family a great debt."

"Big, big!"

Old man Vincent cleared his throat with an uncomfortable look on his face, but Orden's attitude did not waver in the slightest.

Margrave Hendrick, who had been quietly watching him, moved away.

"Father. I would like to talk to Orden alone. Could you please leave for a moment?"

"I understand. Hmm!"

When only two people remained in such a large study, Margrave Hendrick opened his mouth with a disapproving expression.

"Orden."

"Yes matriarch."

"You are so easily assuming something that hasn't even happened yet. Of course, it is true that His Majesty the Prince provided help to Sigismund. But even if such assistance had not been provided, why would we not have been able to get through this crisis safely? ?"

"...yes?"

Orden was taken aback for a moment.

"But, matriarch, if it weren't for your help, we would have definitely suffered great damage...!"

"Of course, there is a possibility that you suffered some damage. However, how can you be so quick to judge the big or small of something that did not happen in the end?"

"....."

The Margrave sighed softly as he looked at his son who was stiffening.

"Haven't I been warning you all this time? How can someone in your position so easily bring up the term 'family debt'? Why don't you know that your every word is directly related to the profits and losses of the territory? !"

"Does the mere knowledge of being favored require such calculation?"

"That's natural! Even if what you say is right in principle, the moment you become the representative of the family, you have to be careful and prudent. Didn't you learn much from being with His Majesty Mores?"

Even the young prince tried to negotiate with himself, calculating profits and losses as if he were breathing, but in comparison, his upright son was extremely unreliable.

Hendrick furrowed his eyebrows and met Orden's defiant gaze.

"Listen carefully. As you know, the imperial family and our territory have a strong cooperative relationship that has been built over many years. It has been this way since Sigismund once existed as a single kingdom and not as part of the empire."

Such cooperation is like an invisible roof, and can only be maintained if there are two pillars that are strong and of equal height.

"It is a relationship in which both parties have similar needs and each party is not inclined to one side at all. The more inseparable the relationship, the more careful each party must be in expressing their official positions."

"What do you mean by being cautious?"

"Even if you express gratitude, it means that it must be done completely behind the scenes."

Now, how much will that cunning Prince Mores try to rip off himself using this as an excuse? Just imagining it made the Margrave feel a stabbing headache.

"but....."

"You're probably tired too, so go back and get some rest."

The son wanted to protest further, but the Margrave looked away and waved his hand. It was a clear order to congratulate guests.

Orden, who was biting his lip and turning around, suddenly stopped and asked.

"Matriarch. I would like to ask you one last question."

"What."

"So, was the deal the head of the family had with the Milo merchants in that context?"

As the air became heavy, Orden's sharp voice filled the study.

"You knew that the medicinal tea they were distributing was clearly harmful to the territory, and you left it alone in order to get compensation for it?"

"....."

"You know that not only the occupants of the Count's mansion, but even your mother and family have been drinking medicinal tea for years."

"...What does that mean?"

I thought I had been caught off guard, but the Margrave's face as he faced Orden showed not a single sign of agitation.

"You are still too soft and lacking, Orden. Now you are definitely the son I am proud of and closest to my heir."

Hendrik Sigismund's face as he uttered the word 'proud' was extremely cold.

"So, keep this in mind. The virtue required more than anything else from the head of the family is not strong military power, but a cool-headed judgment that allows you to look at everything in the territory objectively. This is the part where your younger siblings sometimes show more talent."

Look at it objectively and consider the profit and loss?

Even when the safety of your mother and family is at stake?

Seeing the deep agony in his son's eyes, the Margrave added one more thing.

"Keep this in mind. I am giving this advice because I care about you in my own way. Do you understand?"

"...Yes, matriarch."

Orden nodded with a calm face. It is the expression of frustration and resignation revealed by someone who has no choice but to fail over and over again.

Sometimes, when dealing with his father, Orden felt that there was a high wall between him and himself that could never be broken down.

He and the Margrave are very different people. No matter how hard you try, you probably won't be able to close that gap for the rest of your life.

He was just about to close the door to the study.

"Ah, by the way, Orden."

The Margrave looked around carefully and tilted his head doubtfully.

"I wanted to ask you something earlier. Did someone clean the study while I was away?"

"yes?"

"Somewhere in the study... No, no. Nothing has changed, but I guess I was oversensitive."

Margrave Hendrik tilts his head slightly.

For some reason, the face of Prince Mores, who was confidently handing over confidential documents, came to mind, but Orden first pretended not to notice and kept his mouth shut.

He bowed his head once to the Margrave and then quietly left the study.

"Ah, Brother Orden!"

As he was gloomily walking down the hallway, he heard a cheerful voice calling him from behind. It was his younger brother, Emmett.

"What is it? They said the prince who was in the rear was brought in in a fit of pain, but your brother is actually fine with no injuries? Did he participate in the battle?"

"Emmett."

"Oh, don't look at me like that. That doesn't mean I wanted you to get hurt. I was quite worried after seeing you like this."

Orden's eyes fell on his brother's arm. The arm is completely wrapped in bandages, but it doesn't look like there is any discomfort in moving it.

"Oh, this? Haha. As you know, I fell from a horse a few days ago and got seriously injured. I had a strong desire to help in the face of crisis in the territory, but unfortunately, I couldn't hold a sword with my arm. It's hard to say that it was a substitute, but my mother and I "We worked hard together to take care of the house."

"....."

"Thank you, brother. By the way, are you coming from the study? I want to meet the matriarch. Is he in the study now?"

"...Okay. Go right away."

Orden walked down the hallway diligently, leaving behind his younger brother, who was especially unpleasant to see today.

After an intense day, he just wanted to rest, but he still had places to visit.

It is said that the condition of Prince Mores, who was at the crossroads of life and death, finally stabilized around dawn.

"You regained consciousness for a moment. Now you are sleeping in much improved condition."

While listening to Priest Gustav's explanation, Orden carefully opened the door.

Indeed, Prince Mores is lying quietly in the middle of the bed. For some reason, he looked like he had a bandage wrapped around his eye.

But the prince was not alone.

There are large armchairs close to either side of the bed where he is lying. And aren't Prince Logan and Lord Martha leaning there, each leaning deeply into a deep sleep?

Neither of them had even disarmed and looked clearly tired. This is proof that he came here right after the battle and never left the place even for a single moment.

"Are you and Lord Logan feeling uncomfortable in some way?"

Since both of them were in an unusual state, it was unusual for them not to wake up even when a person came so close to them.

In particular, in the case of Prince Logan, he has the stamina of a sword master and even monster-like divine power.

Then, Priest Gustav, who noticed Orden's puzzlement, quietly whispered.

"His Majesty Logan has been constantly pouring his divine power on Prince Mores just now. So, he is bound to be exhausted. If you had not come here, Prince Mores' life would have been in great danger. The priests would have been there to interfere. "It was a divine power so powerful that it was almost impossible to overcome."

In other words, Prince Mores' condition was that serious.

'I'm sure they would have taken him to the rear, but why did this happen?'

Anyway, what happened in the process of trying to help Yeongji.

Orden's heart suddenly became heavy as he remembered the conversation he had with the matriarch.

"I'm sorry, sir. You have shown me such a great favor, but Sigismund can't even express his gratitude to you."

Of course, there was no answer from the prince. Judging by his still pale complexion, it appears he is not fully recovered.

This is truly amazing.

Yesterday's prince led the Wolf Knights and the Glacher Trolls with a strange sense of intimidation and defeated the enemy. It seemed infinitely more reliable and steadfast.

But doesn't the prince lying like this just look like an ordinary boy for his age? It was hard to believe that he was carrying such a huge burden on his young shoulders.

Wouldn't that have been too burdensome for the prince?

"....."

Despite such worries, for some reason Orden seemed to the boy to be the happiest person in the world.

A boy who is loved by everyone in the royal family.

A boy who receives the love of Princess Amelia.

He couldn't help but feel that his taste buds suddenly became bitter.

* * *

Pangea Chronicle Free Bulletin Board

= = = = = = = = =

Isn't this an error in the hidden event that happened yesterday?

= = = = = = = = =

Is this true? Has Impulse Soft finally ceased operation?

Yesterday, I received an event notification and thought it was a good thing. There wasn't enough time until the desert dragon raid.

So I roughly equipped it and went in, but the event zone was a map I had never seen before in the game.

I watched in fascination, wondering if it was a dictionary update. and... The graphics were so elaborate that there was an active volcano erupting and red lava stretching all the way to the horizon.

But as soon as I entered the battle zone, my head dropped. And then he gets kicked out of the game right away.

At first I thought there was an error. But when I replayed, there was a death penalty and two of the red lion sets were gone.

To be honest, I still don't know what I cut. I am confident that I am a top ranker, and my defense/resistance combination is also excellent.

Fuck, is this a normal event? I think there was some kind of error.

Is there any way to recover some items? It's clearly a mistake on the part of the game company.

Can I contact the customer support bulletin board?

-First, verify the ranking.

-Customer support bulletin boards are all useless. Impulse Soft's operating policy has remained the same since beta testing. There is absolutely no recovery, and all answers are famous for running macros.

□Are we all getting along well and joining the ranks of the dead? lol

□ You are real! Among the lion sets, the red lion set is the king of protest!

-I was online all day yesterday, but there was no such event? Just a little bit of work.

□ Kkkkkk I don't know about the connection time limit? You are the real deal ㄴ ㄴ

□ ????

□ What disease? This guy doesn't know about hospice mode?

□ Sookyeon (_)

-Suzaku ㅇㅈㄹ What kind of hidden event is this? I'm not at a low ranking either, but I died with a single sword and dropped a full-strength weapon. Fancgal is also on fire due to the event.

□ They keep bringing up rankings, but verify the rankings first.

ㄴㄴㄴ Certification for full steel weapons ㄱㄱㅋㅋㅋ

□ You said you dropped it --;;;

-Stannis, ranked 3rd, just turned on the broadcast. There's a lot of swearing and fuss about the hidden quest.

□ Isn't that a streamer in Poland or something? How does he know Polish and that it's a swear word?

□ I'm screaming and smashing the keyboard. If this isn't swearing, what is it?

-I've lost my original intention for Impulse Soft these days. If you have time to do an event like this, please do something about the ice heart drop rate. Aren't there too many items for sale? How is it that even a few months after the dungeon came out, there are no items for sale at the auction house or commodity exchange?

□ Is this an important item? I've never heard of it.

□What is that? It's a trivial drop item without context. Fuck ah

-There is a rumor that it is a must-have item for changing Ice Heart Hidden Jobs. Isn't it at least related to a legendary or mythical class?

243. Return (3)

Quang!

The old man stood up in shock at the appearance of the intruder who had pushed his way into the space.

Nate was furious as he defeated hundreds and thousands of people who invaded the dimension in one day.

As if to clearly reflect his low mood, the materialized white aura trembled with a sinister force.

[Please convene a meeting of six people, sir.]

The old man blinked his eyes in embarrassment at his words, which he spat out so casually.

So suddenly?

However, it is a very legitimate request from the sponsor.

[...] What is the agenda?]

[This is a matter of depriving Berseus of his race representation.]

What is coming has come.

The old man closed his eyes in despair.

Although I thought that the two would clash in a big way at some point, I still hoped that the boundary between the dimensions would remain stable for as long as possible.

[What is the reason for his disqualification?]

[He caused a needless conflict that took the lives of many humans and inflicted a blow that led to the near annihilation of his remaining species. Is that it? By causing a great uproar in the northern part of the continent, it brought about a serious distortion of cause and effect in this Delcross dimension.]

[...]]

[Also, by inducing the current Delcross guardian to violate the agreement, he dared to overthrow the entire dimension. So how can we say that this is not a dangerous molecule causing harm to the dimension?]

Then, the pupils of the old man facing Nate contracted vertically.

[Do you even know about the results? If even one seat for the race representative becomes vacant, the barrier in this dimension will become unstable.]

Then Nate smiled so brightly that his teeth were exposed. Of course, her eyes were not smiling at all, which made her look even more creepy.

[It doesn't matter, old man. No matter who invades and by what means, we will protect the dimension as we have done so far. Unless someone does something useless to my child.]

Then the old man's eyes fell on Nate's sleeve. To be exact, on the left sleeve, which was soaked in blood.

Unlike his right hand, which is holding a white sword, his empty left hand is so tightly clenched that it is almost digging into his palm.

The old man was speechless.

This probably means that the guy who can recover from any fatal wound in an instant thanks to his powerful divine power has been clenching his fists until his sleeves have reached that point.

[If you're that worried, why not go now?]

The old man asked, unable to see Nate chewing his lips nervously.

[Anyway, there is no other way to help the child if we go back right now.]

[...] okay. I guess they are just killing time here to quickly stabilize the situation.]

Nate spent almost the entire day in the crevice. Even if he returned directly to the Del Cross dimension, there was a high possibility that he would suffer from motion sickness for a long time and not be able to control his body.

He will probably have to put all his strength into taking good care of his son, who is currently lying in a hospital bed.

However, if you do such a thing while still a soul, you cannot know what terrible consequences it will lead to.

This time, causality is completely overflowing. Not only he but his son will pay the price.

In the end, the only way is to borrow Sir Sharon's body, and then wouldn't the poor exorcist also suffer from the same symptoms?

'So even if we go to her now, it will be difficult for Sir Sharon to remain possessed for long.'

Nate was fully aware that he would have to wait a little longer.

Apart from the fact that his heart is burning hard right now.

[What are you hesitating about, old man?]

Instead, Nate decided to use this waiting time more meaningfully.

To instantly defeat his enemy, a dangerous molecule that threatens his child.

[I have no objection. That guy was seriously unqualified to begin with. He doesn't mean we don't have an alternative.]

Mithra said, tipping his drink.

The fact that Lord Nebraska's lineage had been discovered was already an open secret to the members of the Council of Six.

[I don't like how you do things arbitrarily. However, it is a well-known fact that a person who puts one's own race in danger cannot be recognized as a representative of the race. This time, I vote in favor.]

The woman who was covering an island with strong winds spoke.

[At least I hope your mind is at peace...]

The huge old tree also gave its opinion without hesitation. The only problem was that, as always, it was a random thing.

Still, there was someone who interpreted the meaning perfectly.

[Thank you for your approval.]

Nate nodded politely towards the tree.

no? You, now...

While the old man was panicking -

[Kryabbillarak! @#Diasim;Serak!]

A huge stingray bit the [key] and shouted an incomprehensible sound.

[Lord Manta also agrees. Now, if only the elderly agree, it will be unanimous.]

This time, Nate continued to lie without changing his expression. For a moment, the old man opened his mouth in bewilderment.

No, hey, you! Still, haven't we maintained our standards so far?

[Wrong, old man. Don't you know that guy's condition right now? Aren't you so angry that you can't see anything at all?]

Mithra chuckles as he takes a sip from his bottle.

[If anyone objects, be prepared to cut us all down with a single sword!]

[...] ... !]

Indeed, Nate does not deny this and calmly faces the old man.

In the end, the old man had no choice but to make up his mind and call Berseus.

[I knew you would come out like this! Such a clever and arrogant thing!]

As soon as Berseus, who was summoned to the old man's [Gap], saw Nate's face, his fever rose and he began to run wild.

[Okay, since when did you start preparing? Are you trying to seize the [Key] of the race by stealing the lineage of Lycan Slope? Also, what race of blood did he secretly steal? Surely they didn't touch the Manta race that lost their senses?]

[????]

[Everyone, take note! That mysterious bastard fooled us all! He used his 'mongrel' child to steal the race key and try to monopolize the power of the 'Council of Six'!]

The members were quite taken aback by Berseus' unexpected force. Nate, who was actually involved, was just quietly glaring at what he was doing.

Nevertheless, members felt that his mood was getting worse. Although it was a space where the normal laws of physics did not apply, it felt like the surrounding temperature was clearly dropping.

Only the excited Berseus didn't notice it at all.

[under! Do you think you don't know who you plan to nominate as the next representative of your race after you drive me out? Isn't he your troublesome son? What on earth are you planning to do by manipulating your 'mongrel' son and taking the Lycan Slopes into your hands? Huh?]

[No, Berseus. What on earth is that... ... ?]

While all members of the six-member council were dumbfounded, Nate declared in a low voice.

[Now, as everyone can see, the author is no longer of sound mind. In the end, isn't your mind completely consumed by the demonic energy of the Demonic Sutra? It is no longer possible to leave one axis of the dimensional boundary as is. So, please seal the key right now.]

A strange silver chill appears in the dry gaze looking back at the members.

Under that heavy pressure, members began manipulating their [keys] one by one. In response, the [Key] of Berseus also gradually lost its luster.

Berseus, holding the key that was being sealed, struggled with a despairing expression.

[That's what I'm going to say, you unrivaled libertine in this world! Someone like you, who created chaos by giving birth to 'hybrids', dares to call yourself the guardian of this world! I cannot tolerate it!]

At that time, a cry like frost rang out toward Berseus.

[Shut up, mudblood!]

[!!!!]

It's a disaster.

A cold aura spread as if ice water had been poured over his son, and Berseus froze on the spot. Even though his struggle had already completely broken, Nate's pressure on him continued.

It was accompanied by unpleasant sarcasm.

[How dare you call something like this a 'mongrel'! hybrid!]

Was this friend like this?

After becoming involved in the meeting of the six, he never once uttered a harsh word while dealing with numerous mixed race people on matters related to Ionia.

While the members who had completed the sealing were widening their eyes, Nate walked up to Berseus and grabbed him by the collar with one hand.

[Gasp!]

After screaming, the clan key that was in his hand had already been taken away.

Then, pressure like a mountain falling down.

As if he were a mouse facing a wild beast, unable to move and gasping for breath, his cool eyes with flickering silver-gray light quietly looked at Berseus.

[Listen carefully. Do you know why I don't kill you right away, despite your unseemly atrocities?]

[Oops! Wow!]

[Because you still have some usefulness left in you.]

And Nate whispered in his ear in a low voice. It was a soft tone that could be felt as kind.

[So go. Just like this, go back to Old Dacia and live struggling in the mud. And in the end, die as a handful of dirt that forms the floor for my child to walk on.]

With that said.

Easy profit-

Berseus's new form loses its shape and falls apart. He lost the key and is being expelled from the [Gap].

[Ugh! Wait, wait... ... !]

The sound of his scream also quickly faded away.

After a while.

The half-appearance of Lycan Slope Road had completely disappeared. Only the sealed race key was left where he was.

There was a moment of heavy silence within the [gap].

[I am once again caught up in your rhythm. Uncomfortable. It's really unpleasant...]

Eventually, the woman with the storm on her head made up her mind, manipulated the key and disappeared in the [gap].

[Haha, whatever. Who can stop the will of you, the representative of God?]

Mithra, with moonshine in his mouth, also shows a self-mocking smile and disappears into his own territory.

Then the tree, and then the stingray...

In the end, when all the members made the space leap, only Nate and the old man were left in the gap, just like at the beginning.

The old man, who had not been able to hide his despairing expression until then, soon let out a deep sigh.

[I tried to stop it somehow, but in the end everything turned out the way you wanted. How about it? Are you satisfied now?]

[To what extent are you going to blame me? He simply received back the cause and effect he had created.]

Nate answered coldly without even looking at the old man.

Of course it is.

The problem is that he could have guessed all of this. Isn't this the Oracle who is said to have stolen God's eye?

[Isn't his disposition also approved by everyone? Are you now going to say that it is my dogma?]

[No, that's not true.]

[Then that's it. I'm going back now, so if you have any business, please tell me now. As of today, I will not be responding to calls from the 'Meeting of 6' for a while.]

[Why is that so?]

Nate didn't answer, but the meaning in his cold eyes was clear.

I would rather spend more time with my children than have any more time taken up by you guys.

[Hey, Nate.]

As he turned around without any regrets, the old man stopped him.

[You knew everything. Don't deny this either. Wasn't this all foreseen from the beginning?]

[I just follow my child's choice.]

[You will respect its choice?]

The old man laughed as if it were absurd.

[Don't say things you don't mean! Fortunately, we made it through safely this time, but what would you have done if it really had left this dimension?]

[...]]

[You must have brought it by force, even if it meant going against the law, right? In the end, wouldn't I have repeated the same mistake? So, what will it cost you this time? I can no longer dwell on past relationships. I can't do this to you or to it.]

Then Nate turned around and spoke like he was chewing.

[I won't ask you to understand everything I do. However, there are some choices that you can never understand without experiencing them. Of course, this is a bit presumptuous to say to an elderly person who has lived for a long time.]

Nate's eyes glowed coldly as he glared at the old man one last time.

[You don't have any children, do you? Have you ever been in a relationship in the first place?]

[...]]

* * *

It was late in the morning, nearing lunchtime, when Seongjin came to his senses again.

[You finally woke up! Are you okay now, Seongjin Lee?]

The demon lord, who was wallowing helplessly in the flames of flame, greeted him with a happy voice.

"....."

Without answering, Seongjin slowly raised his hand and traced the area around his still burning eyes.

I felt like my eyes were stuffy for some reason, and the bandages that I once got tired of wearing were now wrapped around my eyes again.

At the same time, aching pain and a stabbing headache attacked him.

That state meant only one thing.

'Father hasn't come yet.'

Rather than feeling sad, I was more worried.

There's no way this guy hasn't been seen yet. Has something happened?

"Ah, Seongjin Lee, are you coming to your senses now?"

At that time, Logan's voice was heard next to him.

I was startled and quietly felt the presence, and it seemed that not only Logan but also Lord Martha was nearby. She seemed to be just tired and fell into a deep sleep.

Anyway, it seemed like his physical condition was not normal and his senses had become quite dull as he didn't notice their presence first.

"You could sleep a little longer. I tried as hard as I could, but it was impossible to fully recover. You may have permanent aftereffects."

Logan, who immediately placed the blanket over Seongjin's chest, continued speaking as if he was worried.

"Anyway, what happened? Do you remember why your body became like that?"

"No, Logan. That's not important right now."

"huh?"

When Logan asked curiously, Seongjin swallowed his saliva.

"Actually, Logan, I have something important to talk to you about."

244. Return (4)

-I'm bored. come over. It would be better if you bring the Liliun Detachment.

From the time he first sent that prank-like message to the imperial palace, Seongjin had always kept this situation in mind.

This is because I wanted to tell Logan as soon as I met him.

It's still too early to be sure, but it may be that the Mores that Logan is desperately looking for is him, which means he won't have to worry about the soul of the missing Mores.

"Okay. What are you talking about?"

But when Logan sat down and took a listening position, his hair suddenly turned white.

'Wait, how should I explain this?'

Let's think about it carefully.

-You know, Logan. Actually, not long ago, I ate something wrong and lost my soul. So I went to a new dimension created by my father. They say our father is the king of another dimension. Isn't it amazing? And what I heard from my father there was that I might actually be Mores himself. huh? Oh, you couldn't give me a completely clear answer. That's a deal that can't be said lightly. what? evidence? So, there isn't really any evidence...

No, not this one.

No matter how much of a bully Logan is, isn't it too much to ask you to believe such crazy nonsense?

"What's wrong? Lee Seongjin. Are you still uncomfortable somewhere?"

As I groan and touch my forehead, Logan asks in a worried voice.

"...No, it's nothing. Anyway, I'm sorry. I think I lost the magic stone you gave me."

After struggling with internal conflict, he suddenly came to his senses and found that he was saying completely wrong things to Logan.

"It worked well as a flashbang, but the situation was so urgent that I didn't think about recovering it."

"....."

"I gave it to you as a gift, but I'm sorry I couldn't protect it properly."

Then there was a moment of silence, and then a low laugh was heard.

"Haha, what do you mean? I didn't give it to you to keep, I gave it to you to use well. It's really fortunate that it helped you even in that way. Thanks to that light, I was able to find you in time, right?"

"uh....."

"So don't worry about that anymore and focus on your recovery, Seongjin Lee."

Oh, as expected, Logan was a good guy.

Except sometimes he wants to be treated like an older brother.

So I wanted to tell you more.

"...Okay."

Logan looked at Seongjin, who suddenly seemed lethargic, as if he were curious, and said.

"I think it would be best to rest a little more. I'll ask your maid to bring you something to eat, so lie down."

Clap, clap, clap.

As Logan got up from his seat and started walking, an unfamiliar friction sound of metal clashing against each other was heard.

'I haven't even taken off my armament yet.'

The same goes for Lord Masain, who is curled up next to him sleeping. I did something stupid for no reason and everyone was wondering why I was going through so much trouble.

I suddenly became solemn and began to reflect.

However, just before leaving the door, Logan stopped for a moment and hesitantly asked.

"By the way, Seongjin Lee."

"huh?"

"Do you remember? When you woke up briefly at dawn, you called Brother Masaine."

"Lord Martha?"

".....,"

Seongjin tilted his head.

Did you do that? Now that I think about it, I think I saw two people in my sleep. I'm not sure?

What did I say then?

"...Well, if you don't remember, that's fine. Just rest."

Logan left the room.

Percussion.

Even after the door closed, Seongjin sat blankly for a moment, turning his head in the direction he had disappeared into.

what? Something leaves me with a very uncomfortable feeling.

'Hey, devil. Do you know what he's saying? Did I do something wrong to Lord Masaine in my sleep?'

Then the Demon King, who had been silent for a moment, answered awkwardly.

[It was something I always talked about in my sleep. Well, you always talk a lot in your sleep.]

... okay? is it?

* * *

When Edith brought the meal, Logan woke Sir Martha and dragged her out of the room. While gently coaxing the stubborn man who said he would stick with me even if he died soon.

"If you stand next to me like this, the patient won't be able to rest even if he wants to, brother."

Seongjin added that he was bothered by the sound of clanking armor, and only then did he reluctantly stand up with a dejected look on his face.

"Okay, go ahead and close your eyes properly."

"I'll be back soon, sir."

"No, Sir Martha. That doesn't matter."

Seongjin, who was barely left alone, ate with Edith's help. This time, Orden and Herman came to see Seongjin together.

"Are you coughing? How are you feeling, my lord?"

"As you can see. It's completely fine."

Seongjin took a bite from Edith, who was feeding him stew next to him.

Maybe it's because my insides have been completely torn up by the aura, but I can't digest anything and have no appetite.

"I'm sure you're curious about the results of the last battle, so I've come to give you a brief report, sir."

Judging by the brightness of Herman's voice, I felt like I knew the result even without hearing it.

As expected, the damage from Sigismund was less than expected.

Even after Seongjin completely lost his mind while moving the shaved ice, Logan and others seemed to have managed the situation well.

Meanwhile, Seongjin heard an unexpected apology from Orden.

"...So, it seems that the achievements of you and Prince Logan have been greatly reduced and made known to the public. They are truly dishonorable."

"uh....."

Seongjin blinked his eyes under the bandages.

What is it, Margrave Hendrick?

It's pretty good, right? I really understand what I want. I know that you want profit more than fame.

'No matter how much I rode with Inquisitor Valery, it wouldn't be good for it to be widely known that I controlled the Glacher Troll, known as a demonic beast.'

Considering these and other circumstances, he thought that Seongjin would be willing to sit at his negotiating table.

Even if Seongjin had to pay a little too much in return, he probably decided that protecting Yeongji's pride would be beneficial in the long run.

So-called giving flesh and taking bones.

'The only thing that can comfort Sigismund's current wounds is pride at best. Moreover, let's say that the safety of the territory cannot be guaranteed without great external help. 'How anxious must the people of the territory be?'

If you think about it, it was a territory that could never be said to be in a good location.

A harshly cold land with no notable specialties. A land that is invaded by demonic beasts whenever the opportunity arises, and where one must constantly be on guard against demonic forces by building deformed ice walls.

This level of development is being achieved because old Vincent's contribution to the empire was greatly increased in the past, and the margrave who succeeded him was very resourceful.

'If you want to run a business in a land like that by constantly comforting and chasing down the residents, you might risk your life for something like your own pride or cause.'

Well, it wasn't such a bad story for Seongjin. In any case, the Margrave doesn't intend to just talk things over.

Moreover, if it is possible to reduce the damage that would have occurred without Seongjin's assistance, it means that it is also possible to increase it to an unreasonable degree at Seongjin's discretion.

'I may not show it on the outside, but I'm sure you're burning up inside right now, right?'

A person as high as the Margrave would never know that. Perhaps they are prepared to have their subsidies drastically reduced or suffer other disadvantages.

Seongjin thought he was somewhat satisfied.

There is a saying that you can pay off a thousand debts just by speaking well, right? But what could be better than giving money without saying anything?

"I'm truly sorry, sir."

But Orden is feeling too guilty. Seongjin clicked her tongue slightly.

You simple ignorant bastard. So, how are you going to inherit and run the territory later?

If I leave it alone, I feel like I'll be losing money endlessly, so it makes me secretly worry about the topic of Orden.

"It's okay, Grand Duke. It's not like I don't understand the Margrave's position."

Mumbling.

Seongjin nodded while chewing something that came into his mouth.

"Thank you for your words, sir...."

"It's okay. You are the heir of this place. Then, you should put aside the small things and think about Young Ji-min's position first."

"Young Ji-min's...."

"okay."

gulp.

Seongjin swallowed his food and nodded.

"You must be careful with your every word and action. You must look at the possibility of each word affecting the territory from various angles, and always make a cool-headed judgment."

"that....."

Orden is startled and blurts out his words.

Of course, it was because he had heard advice in a similar vein from the Margrave earlier, but there was no way Seongjin knew about that fact.

Seongjin, who was tilting his head at his strange reaction, took the stew into his mouth again and ate it.

Yum Yum.

But then Orden suddenly asked a question. It was an unusually angry voice.

"Do you think so too, Your Majesty? That we should always look at profit and loss objectively and make a cool-headed decision? To achieve this, even if Young Ji-min or his family suffers some damage, we should deal with it calmly?"

"hmm?"

Seongjin was a little embarrassed, but quickly swallowed his food and answered.

"Well, it's not wrong to say that you have to look at it objectively, right? It's also true that there are times when you have to take some damage. If you think about the profits and losses of Young Ji-min and your family as much as possible, won't there be times when you inevitably have to make a cool-headed decision?"

Orden asked back in a dumbfounded voice.

"What about Young Ji-min and his family's profits and losses?"

"Yes, Young Ji-min and his family's profits and losses. You want to achieve the best results at every moment, but that doesn't mean everyone can see the best interests, right? That's the way it is in the world. In that case, you must calmly evaluate the profits and losses. Isn't it the job of you and the Margrave to make the most appropriate decisions?"

"....."

Then Orden, who had remained silent for a moment, answered with a slightly trembling voice for some reason.

"...Yes. Is that so? How can perspectives and goals be so different? Even though the advice is similar, your words have the power to touch our hearts."

... ok? okay?

Well, I don't know, but I'm saying you were quite moved by that, right?

After all, there is a reason why everyone in the imperial palace asks me for advice. It's because I have an unconcealable energy of contemplation that comes from my years of experience.

While I was thinking that proudly, the demon lord sighed until the flame crystal disappeared.

[They say illusions are free, but ugh... ..]

Why is this guy suddenly having a fight?

Seongjin stuck out his mouth, took another stew that came close, and asked.

"Well, the Margrave has expressed his intention to make appropriate compensation, so don't apologize to me anymore. Instead, think about the benefits you will gain from it."

How about taking this opportunity to show off Sigismund's power to the entire continent?

"How good is it? We defeated the great army of demonic beasts with our own power! The pride of the people in the territory must have boiled over?"

Then Orden answered in a stern tone.

"Thank you. But Sigismund's pride is not so light that it can be swayed by such bravado, sir."

"hmm....."

Well, okay. One spirit is good.

Even though it's stupid, it seems like I'll do well somehow.

Mumbling.

Then Seongjin suddenly realized that something was strange.

... huh?

"What are you doing now, Hermann?"

"Oh, did you get caught? This doesn't work well the second time. But you've already emptied half the bowl."

Hermann laughed out loud and rattled his spoon.

"You need to eat better when you're sick, sir."

Oh my gosh, this can't be possible! I can't believe I was fooled by this guy again!

While Seongjin was making a sullen face in anger, Orden quietly added a word from next to him.

"How about just one more spoonful?"

... Why is this guy like this?

Now, please take one more bite, sir.

Oh, clean it up!

It was a time when the two people were arguing fiercely.

"hmm?"

Orden, who felt the sudden popularity, raised his head in surprise.

"Why? Who is it?"

Even with Seongjin's dulled senses, he sensed something familiar. Someone silently approached the open door.

"Lord Sharon? What's going on? Why didn't you say anything...?"

Only then did Seongjin realize who the other person was after hearing Herman's words.

It's definitely familiar, but it's also completely different from her usual appearance. Seongjin said, unable to hide his joy.

"Lord Sharon, I have something important to discuss with you. Can everyone please leave for a moment?"

With that, Hermann and Orden, carrying bowls of stew, left the room.

Then, as if she had been waiting, Sir Sharon, or rather, Seonghwang, who possessed her body, approached with unstoppable steps.

Since the rush seemed unusual, Seongjin quietly made up his mind. First of all, I was expecting that I would get hit hard.

'This time something big is coming!'

Seongjin narrowed his eyes, expecting a big shock.

however.

'... uh?'

Wow!

Before I knew it, Seongjin was in the arms of Sir Sharon.

".....!"

His arms were shaking quite a bit, clearly showing how shaken he was.

[Again twice.]

And it was a voice of resignation that Seongjin had become a little accustomed to, as if it was ringing directly in his head.

[Now don't do such a dangerous thing again. Do you understand?]

"....."

Seongjin didn't know what to do and just kept his mouth shut.

Me, father. I rescued Sigismund. If we hadn't moved first, the damage would have grown out of control.

I definitely had a lot to say, but I couldn't get my mouth to speak easily.

However, Seonghwang, who knew how he knew what was going through Seongjin's mind, soon added a frightening warning.

[Remember, Mores. Even if you go out of your way to save this world, the moment something happens to you, this world is as if it no longer exists.]

For a moment, a chill ran down my spine.

A declaration made by the oracle of this era. Indeed, the weight is bound to be different.

But wait a minute. The story this man is talking about now...

[Do you understand? If you truly want to protect this Delcross, you must keep in mind, and keep in mind, that you must protect yourself first.]

"...sorry."

Seongjin, who was afraid of being punished, finally apologized.

Because I understand, father.

Please stop saying such scary things and calm down.

245. Return (5)

For a long time since then, Seongjin was buried in a waterfall of divine power.

My body became normal in an instant.

It was said that the ark of power was indeed different, and it was such an enormous divine power that it made the efforts of Logan and the priests who had worked hard since yesterday become insignificant.

But for some reason, even after I got better, the waterfall of light never seemed to stop.

'How long... ... '

Seongjin felt a little uncomfortable.

Isn't this truly a meaningless waste of a 'miracle'? It's a little embarrassing because it looks like he's being hugged by a woman he didn't trust.

However, Seongjin decided to let Seonghwang do whatever he wanted for a while.

This was because the more divine power was poured out, the tremors felt in the arms were noticeably decreasing.

[I'm sorry, son.]

Eventually, Seonghwang let go of Seongjin and opened his mouth in a slightly calm voice.

When he hurriedly removed the bandage from his eye, the usual calm glow had already returned to his eyes.

[I thought I wouldn't leave you alone forever, but I ended up just neglecting you during the most difficult time.]

Nevertheless, his gloomy expression was conveyed without filtering, and Seongjin could not help but secretly smile.

"It's not your fault, father. Has a gap opened up in the imperial palace? Whatever it is, an urgent situation has arisen that cannot be avoided?"

[...]]

"Rather, it was my fault. I was managing my physical strength in my own way, but my health suddenly deteriorated so rapidly that I had no idea what to do."

Then he looked down at Seongjin with an unreadable expression.

Looking at the silver eye light that flickered from time to time, it seemed like he was quickly scanning something that others could not see.

[...] okay. Once the aurors started to become entangled, they suddenly became uncontrollable.]

Finally, Seonghwang sighed and stroked Seongjin's head.

Tuk-tuk.

[Should I say that I learned it too well or that I have too much talent? Because we deal with thoughts and thoughts as naturally as breathing, these side effects also occur.]

As expected, the cause was that the aurors in his body moved freely according to Seongjin's will.

As his body was shaken several times, the aura that was unconsciously protecting his eyes became entangled, and the condition of his eyes deteriorated rapidly.

"So what should I do now?"

[There is no other solution. The only way to do this is to carefully learn how to consciously separate thoughts through practice.]

For a moment, a faint, bitter feeling appears in his sunken eyes.

[One, once you get used to it, what else will you do based on it?]

"hmm....."

Seongjin, who was avoiding his gaze for no reason, suddenly had a flash of something in his mind.

"Oh yeah. That was it!"

Seongjin suddenly became excited and opened his arms wide in a slightly exaggerated manner to brighten the mood.

"By the way, Dad, I found a really cool souvenir!"

"souvenir."

"Yes! Don't be surprised when you see it. This can truly be said to be Sigismund's specialty! Where else can you find it?"

Seongjin quickly walked to the side of the bed and proudly took out the ice heart he had stored in the corner. Three small ice cubes that emit a faint light.

"Do you know what this is? It's a controller that lets you control a Glacher Troll!"

"Glacher t....."

"I even gave it a name. It's called shaved ice! I'll take a bunch of shaved ice to the palace for each member of my family! If each family member leaves one in the palace, it will be really cool even in the summer. What do you think?"

"....."

Seonghwang was silent for a moment, then slowly raised his hand and touched his forehead.

[Yes, shaved ice...]

Wow, as expected, father!

Is this the first time I've seen someone pronounce shaved ice's name properly here? While his eyes were sparkling with admiration, Seonghwang sighed softly and asked.

[Did you want to take them to the imperial capital?]

Of course, it was natural that Seongjin nodded vigorously.

"Yes, I would like to do that if possible. I especially want to show it to Sisley. He has always been curious about the real Glacher Troll."

A thrilling battle between the Wolf Knights and the Glacher Trolls.

Perhaps this is the only part that the little boy likes in the [Delcross Chronicles] that had been bothering him all along?

Then Seonghwang's eyes turned a little more serious. He seemed to be thinking deeply about something.

[...] If you take it as is, Benitus will go on a rampage.]

Oh, is that really true?

[But I think it would be okay if we reduced the size a little.]

"Huh? Is that possible?"

[possible. I'll find some time soon to teach you how to operate it. Don't just try to do it on your own.]

The sheep who said that looked like she was about to leave at any moment, so Seongjin asked with wide eyes.

"Do you have to go already?"

[okay. There are people who do not view my stay here very favorably.]

Now that I think about it, it certainly seemed like Seonghwang was trying to minimize the time he was possessing Sir Sharon as much as possible. Did he say that the northern people are lacking?

[And since we're here, there's a place to take a quick look.]

Seonghwang, who was staring somewhere with blurred focus, finally patted Seongjin's head.

[See you again soon. Don't you think you'll return to the imperial capital soon without doing anything else?]

"Yes, father."

When Seongjin nodded with a confident expression, Seonghwang raised one corner of his mouth.

[okay. Then it's done.]

So you just moved on like that?

no. Before leaving the room, Seonghwang slapped Seongjin on the forehead and disappeared.

Sigh!

"Kkuek.....?"

It was just strange that this time it didn't hurt as much as it sounded.

Seongjin, who was rubbing his forehead in a strange feeling, soon put the ice heart back and lay down on the bed.

[Surprising? I thought you were going to test it right away as soon as your father left?]

The demon lord muttered as if he were puzzled.

Didn't you just hear that, devil? Didn't your father tell you not to try it on your own?

[You hear that? Lee Seong-jin of the world?]

'of course.'

From now on, I will try to be a good son in my own way.

[Wow, your topic is really great...]

'shut up!'

* * *

Meanwhile, Logan, who had finally disarmed himself and was sitting across from Masaine at the table, carefully studied his cousin's expression.

"Aren't you a little disappointed?"

"What do you mean, you're sad?"

"Mores refers to you as his brother again as before."

Logan's attitude was cautious.

I had known for a long time that Masain had a special regard for Mores.

Since he was young, he followed Masaine a lot, and since he was the younger brother who took more effort than the more mature Logan, he probably took care of various things and became attached to her.

However, even though he was called "brother" at best, his title went back to Lord Masain again.

But Masain's reaction was unexpected.

"Ah, don't worry about that, my lord. Prince Mores sometimes talks in his sleep like that."

"...yes?"

"You sometimes talk in your sleep at night."

Masaine calmly explained to Logan, who was confused.

"The reason I found out was a tip from a dedicated maid. It happened after she suffered from a serious fever, so at first I was worried and started looking for her often at night."

So, was it from the day Seongjin secretly left the imperial palace for the first time? From then on, Masain carefully observed the prince's bedtime for a while.

There were times when I unintentionally interrupted his rest. Because Prince Mores had unusual senses, he often woke up no matter how carefully he looked.

"You often call me that."

Brother Masain, he said.

Logan's face hardened as he listened.

"But the next day, you don't remember anything at all."

"You... can't remember?"

"Yes, everything, including waking up and meeting me."

When Logan's expression became somewhat serious, Masain reassured him with a faint smile, wondering how he was taking it.

"Don't worry too much. This happened repeatedly for a few days, but there were no signs of any abnormality in your health. That's what I thought. Even though you lost most of your memories due to the fever, you still have some of them somewhere in your subconscious. "I wonder if there's anything left."

"memory....."

"Yes. I consulted with Dr. Ninias at the Jinju Palace and he said that. Sometimes, patients with amnesia may partially recall forgotten memories when a specific trigger arises. Of course, in the process, they may forget new memories instead. "I do."

".....!"

Logan's face blanched.

Masain's words reminded me of a new possibility that I had never thought of before.

"...Your Majesty? My Majesty, why are you acting like this all of a sudden?"

Because the words Seongjin said when they first met were completely sincere, it was a possibility I had never thought about before.

'Lee Seong-jin said that he is not Mores and that he does not know where Mores' soul has gone. But what if Lee Seong-jin actually didn't know about his own condition?

Do Mores' memories remain in Lee Seong-jin's unconscious? And there are times when you think of it in your sleep?

That wasn't all. Why did Lee Seong-jin think that the only thing he could forget was the memories of his 'Mores days'?

This is Logan himself, who has full memories of his past life.

'Could it be that a person named Lee Seong-jin is actually Mores' past life? What if he was reincarnated as Mores and forgot about it, but was reminded of his past life by a fever?

And what if, instead, you forget the memories of living as Mores?

Then, all questions raised so far will be explained.

Sometimes, Logan gets to see Mores's childhood through Lee Seong-jin.

And Seonghwang, who obviously knows about Lee Seong-jin's existence, is leaving him alone.

'but... ..'

Nevertheless, Lee Seong-jin's presence is completely different from Mores. There's no way I'm confusing that. How on earth should we think about that?

It was a time when Logan was immersed in deep confusion.

Suddenly, an unfamiliar figure entered the restaurant where they were sitting. He was such a natural killer that even Logan, the sword master, could not sense his approach.

"Ah, Lord Sharon."

".....!"

When Masaine called him with joy, Logan tensed and looked back.

I was caught behind? To whom?

And he came face to face with the familiar yet somewhat unfamiliar figure of the exorcist.

"...Lord Sharon?"

It was like that. On the outside, it clearly looks like Sir Sharon.

But the silver-gray eyes give off a strange glow. There was no way Logan wouldn't recognize those familiar yet unique eyes.

'Abama?'

Then the exorcist opened his mouth. It was a strange voice that felt as if it was echoing directly from within my head.

[Logan, if it's okay, would you mind walking with me for a moment?]

* * *

Logan was never unaware of the presence of the Exorcist, who frequently saw his face while involved in the work of the monster task force.

But what about the exorcist who is now striding ahead?

'At first glance, I thought it was a success.'

So, I followed his suggestion obediently.

However, if you think about it, the presence felt from that exorcist right now was not completely the same as that of Seonghwang.

Where is that? Minor changes in posture or stride length due to physical differences are also noticeable.

Nevertheless, there was one thing that never changed.

It is the unique atmosphere that surrounds the calm and orderly aura. A movement that is almost ostentatious and exudes its own presence, as if it does not feel the slightest friction from the air or the ground.

"Are you drinking it, Abama?"

Logan, who had been walking along for a while, asked. He thought it was a strange question, but he couldn't help but ask it.

Then the exorcist answered without looking back.

[Did you recognize it?]

"Yes. But you look a little different."

[Yes, he is there.]

The exorcist, no, she was probably in a good mood, spoke in a calm tone.

[Do you know, Logan? There are many factors that determine a person's presence. Among them, memories and experiences have a great influence on the appearance. It's just that human experience rarely loses continuity, so it rarely changes in a short period of time.]

And Seonghwang said something unexpected.

[Your presence is the same.]

"yes?"

[It changes several times a day. It's just that the difference is not that big and people just ignore it.]

Logan was perplexed and his mouth was twitching, but Seonghwang finally stopped walking when he reached an ambiguous point.

The entrance to the estate.

It was a messy place with the corpses of demonic beasts still scattered here and there.

The soldiers who were beating down the persistently regenerating heart of Lycan Slope recognized the two people and lowered their heads in sorrow. There was no way they wouldn't recognize the prince's group, who showed outstanding performance yesterday.

'But why a place like this?'

Logan is wondering-

Tuk-tuk.

Seonghwang said, tapping the floor with his toes.

[Okay, Logan. You definitely have something you want to ask me.]

This is what I was waiting for.

"Yes, actually, it is."

Logan straightened his posture and looked directly at the Holy Emperor.

246. Return (6)

"Abama is...."

At first glance, tension appears on Logan's face as he opens his mouth.

"Did you forcibly take Lord Sharon's body? What happened to her soul now?"

[...]]

Seonghwang opened his eyes slightly wide and looked at Logan. It seems to have been a quite unexpected question for him.

But for Logan, it was a natural question.

It hasn't been long since I heard that Cadmus, the first saint, had taken the bodies and extinguished the souls of past saints. He is still manipulating the body of Saint Seo Yi-seo as he pleases.

Therefore, from Logan's point of view, who did not know about psychic powers or the decision to burn, he might have wondered whether Seonghwang had also done the same thing to Sir Sharon.

[...] okay. I understand what you are worried about.]

Seonghwang answered bitterly and once again tapped the floor with his toe.

[Not like that. It's just that Sir Sharon has special abilities that are different from ordinary people, and I'm just borrowing them for a little while. Currently, her spirit is alive and well, and everything I do is done with her consent. So you can rest assured.]

It was unfamiliar to hear a voice filled with thoughtfulness, but Logan still felt that his words contained a ring of truth.

"Of course, I honestly thought that Abama would have done such a thing..."

Logan, who had been flustered without knowing that the atmosphere of the festival seemed to have become gloomy, soon closed his mouth with a cold expression on his face.

What kind of useless excuse are you making? Isn't it true that you doubted him?

Although I have always thought highly of the Emperor's personality, haven't I always reminded myself that I must never let down my guard since I am the emperor of the empire?

[Is that all you're curious about?]

Seonghwang asked again in a somewhat casual voice.

'What on earth does this person want to tell me?'

Logan, who was furrowing his brows inexplicably, suddenly remembered the explanation that Seonghwang had given in passing when he arrived here.

-There are many factors that determine a person's presence. Among them, memories and experiences have a great influence on the appearance.

If it were a coincidence, wouldn't it be truly unfortunate?

It was as if he knew that he was worried about Mores' presence.

'... no. 'It's no coincidence.'

Logan realized that Seonghwang was still staring at him.

It was the gaze of someone who was called the representative of God and feared by everyone. Eyes that scatter a deep and sharp brilliance that seems to instantly see through not only a person's thoughts but also the subconscious beyond that.

'I really want to tell you about Mores!'

As expected, this scary person doesn't know anything.

But Logan felt a sense of welcome rather than fear. Aren't you grateful that you deliberately lead people to ask questions that are usually difficult to ask?

He decided not to miss this long-awaited opportunity.

"Yes. There's something I've been curious about for a while. I heard that a person's soul can be seen intact through Abamama's eyes. Is that true?"

okay. As Lee Seong-jin said, if you can't tell if he is a soul, how can you not suspect that someone who looks so different is an evil spirit? How can he treat me like his real son?

-Do not sin. God's representative sees through your polluted souls!

This was one of the sermons priests enjoyed preaching during mass, but Logan thought it was simply a convenient slogan to edify his subjects.

That thought changed, probably right after meeting Lee Seong-jin.

-Yes, you. You don't really think that guy doesn't know that you're not an ordinary person, do you? That man is a man who sees the soul with his eyes.

Seongjin Lee also said something like this.

-Of course, the guy was presumptuous because he said he had to die to find out, but I think it was difficult for him to answer so he changed the subject. Why not? Sometimes, he's staring at the top of my head for no reason. What else is that but seeing souls?

However, when asked that question, Seonghwang also seemed to think of the same person.

[okay. I guess I know who I heard it from.]

Seonghwang smiled softly and nodded.

[There is no mistake about that. I can clearly see the human soul in my eyes.]

"If you do it, Abama."

Feeling his throat burning for no reason, Logan continued his question with difficulty.

"Mores now... is he really Mores?"

Although it was a bit of a strange question, Logan was careful not to accidentally mention the name of 'Lee Seong-jin'.

If Seonghwang really doesn't know of Lee Seongjin's existence, this question might reveal his identity.

'If you scratch it, it might turn into crumbs. but... ..'

Even if it meant taking some risk, there was something Logan needed to confirm from the Holy Emperor.

It would be perfect if Lee Seong-jin were Mores himself, but if not, how does Seong-hwang plan to treat him, an evil spirit?

'If they want to get rid of Lee Seong-jin right away, how can I persuade that person?'

Even as he waited for an answer, Logan's mind was spinning in confusion. Seonghwang's expression as he looks at him also becomes more subtle.

[okay. You've been like that since 'before'. I always worried about other people's positions before my own. It was definitely a virtue that deserved praise, but it sometimes seemed foolish.]

... Previous?

Logan responded cautiously to the subtle nuance.

"As a member of the royal family, it is natural to put the well-being of your subjects before your own. Abama."

[...]]

Then Seonghwang lowered his eyes and quietly looked down at his feet.

Tuk-tuk.

With a light kick, the dirt soaked with the demonic beast's blood bounces up little by little.

[good night. Let's talk about Mores. Didn't you all grow up together in the Blue Rose Labyrinth since childhood? So, I thought that if there was anyone who would be the first to have questions about that child, it would probably be you.]

Logan listened to what he said, looking at the small hole that was gradually taking shape.

[But I waited to see when you would ask me, but even though you had the chance, you never asked me anything.]

"that....."

That's because I wasn't sure how you would react if you found out about Lee Seong-jin's existence.

But there was a more important, more fundamental reason than that.

'Maybe I still can't fully trust you.'

And that person probably doesn't know it either.

Scrunch.

At that time, Seonghwang, who had roughly pushed the excavated dirt to the side, raised his head and stared straight at Logan.

[Is that really all you ask? You probably have a lot of questions about yourself, too.]

".....!"

For a moment, Logan's face hardened.

The meaning of Seonghwang's gaze was very clear.

-I knew I was looking at your soul, so why don't you ask about yourself?

But, why now suddenly?

Haven't we been getting along well up until now, pretending not to know each other? There is no particular reason for that person to suddenly bring up that issue.

'... ah!'

And then there it was. The occasion.

-I've seen you up close! It was clearly an offering meant to be offered to the Penitent!

The devil started yelling something incomprehensible as soon as he saw Logan.

If the person who said those words wasn't a demon who could be back-summoned to the Demon World at any time, Logan would most likely have captured him and interrogated him for the whole story.

-There was more at stake in your death than you thought! If the Guardian hadn't stolen you, a lot would have changed by now!

Okay, does that person already know that?

So, can we reach the answer? The inside story of Ortona's destruction, the devil's dirty tricks, and even his own unexpected reincarnation.

Do you want to tell me all that?

'but... ..'

Still, Logan couldn't bring himself to open his mouth.

Seonghwang, who was carefully examining the complex emotions in his eyes, finally sighed softly.

[People rarely change. You always neglected yourself and tried to trust and understand even those who tried to harm you. Even if there is a risk of being betrayed by them in the end.]

The 'before' you are talking about is Logan's childhood or Gael Bertrand's life.

Logan still vaguely remembers Gael's final days and the events beyond death. The white light that surrounded me and the sweet voice that rang softly in my ears.

-You worked hard, son.

If you think about it, how many people in this world will call me their son?

But how could it be you? Back then, you must have been as young a boy as I am now.

[But as your father, I hope you take care of yourself a little more from now on.]

And at that moment, Logan realized what he had been doing all along.

The same reason why I hesitated to ask about Lee Seong-jin.

By facing that question directly, I thought that the present might collapse in an instant. I was scared that this current relationship might turn into something different.

'I couldn't be this man's son, but I also didn't want to be no family at all!'

The complex thoughts that have been suppressed unconsciously burst out from within as if they had been waiting the moment you recognize them.

Seonghwang nodded, catching a glimpse of his eyes shaking anxiously with a mixture of conflicting emotions.

[okay. It seems that it is not the time yet.]

With those words, the Holy Emperor waited in silence until Logan regained some composure.

Knock knock.

I didn't forget to touch the ground under my feet every now and then.

It was a meaningless movement, but at this point, Logan couldn't help but feel a little concerned about his toes.

How much time had passed? Seonghwang glanced somewhere in the distant sky and opened his mouth.

[Now it's almost time. First, let me answer your question. People sometimes look in the wrong place for what is right in front of them.]

Seonghwang did not say anything definitive. Like 'Lee Seong-jin is your younger brother' or 'Lee Seong-jin is actually Mores.'

I just said this in a roundabout way, as always.

[Do you understand? You don't need to look for that child anywhere else.]

".....!"

But still, that was enough. The resonance of that answer was the truth, and that fact meant only one thing.

When Logan looked at him with wide eyes, Seonghwang smiled faintly.

[Logan.]

Even though his eyes were sparse in warmth, they contained a kindly light. It was probably the look in his eyes that Logan had always shown since he first met him.

[You safely saved Mores. You did really well.]

Tuk.

And a hand unknowingly rises above the Sword Master's head.

It was such a natural movement that Logan realized too late that he was tapping his head like a child.

[I will increase your pocket money as promised.]

Those were the last words Seonghwang uttered.

"Ugh!"

The exorcist stumbled for a moment, then bent over and retched violently.

And any sign of prosperity disappeared in an instant.

"...Is this Lord Sharon?"

"Ah, yes. It's me, sir. Hehe."

When the exorcist raised his head, his eyes had returned to their original black light.

However, while she was smiling with her lips parted, she covered her mouth with her hand again and let out a low moan.

"Ugh. Anyway, the aftereffects of the gap are so severe. At least it has improved a lot, so I don't know how your Majesty usually tolerates things like this."

"aftereffect?"

"Yes, sir. I would like to talk more, but honestly, I feel like I am dying, so I need to lie down somewhere right now."

As if those words were not empty words, Sir Sharon was breaking into a cold sweat.

"Then I'll just leave."

The gaunt-faced exorcist staggered and left the scene.

But suddenly something caught Logan's attention. This was the place where Sir Sharon was standing.

A part of the ground that was soaked with the blood of the demon beast was dug quite deeply. This is an area that Seonghwang has been kicking as a habit since a while ago.

'... ... ?'

But I saw something strange inside.

'For some reason, I felt like I was doing something I wasn't supposed to do, but there must have been a reason!'

Logan knelt down and hurriedly dug through the dirt. Then he noticed an object that looked familiar and he took a deep breath.

Buried in the dirt was a small stone that glowed yellow.

'This... ... !'

The magic stone that Logan gave to Seongjin Lee.

It was the same stone he was disappointed to have lost as soon as he woke up.

* * *

"No, sir. Is that really true? A Glatzer Troll?"

"Even so. I saw it clearly with my own eyes!"

"Oh, no way. Military poetry is based on glorification and exaggeration, but isn't this a bit too much?"

Then Sir Oscar glares at the young bard.

"You don't believe me? Why on earth would I glorify and exaggerate the actions of foreigners in our territory?"

"Oh, yeah, well, that's right."

Laurent pondered with a sad expression on his face, then began to sing, plucking the strings with his hands.

Tiriring.

The prince raised his fingertip and pointed to the white horizon.

Behold those cold invaders! That is our old enemy!

At that light gesture, the mountain-like ice monster rose up... ...

Ting.

Then, the ground disappeared and he sighed.

"After all, it won't sell, right? It's too much of an exaggeration, so I'm glad it doesn't get laughed at."

"But is that the truth I see? Isn't that just a bad tune?"

"Is melody a problem now? Put your hand on your heart and think about it, knight! This is not the era of the three ancient dragons, so if you sing something like this oral myth, will it be acceptable to the people?"

"hmm....."

It's definitely overly large and grand. It's not very balanced to decorate the beginning of a hero's biography.

If you just look at the lyrics of the song, isn't it likely that it will be an epic story that far surpasses that of the first Holy Emperor?

"Then how about this? Turning Prince Logan's activities into a song?"

"Oh, what else has he done?"

It was a rather tempting offer.

Prince Logan is the fruit of the love achieved by the main characters of 'The Wandering Prince and the Blue-Eyed Maid.' I'm sure it could make for an exciting sequel.

But that expectation was fleeting.

"No, you should exaggerate to a certain extent, knight! How can a person who has not yet completed his terms become a sword master!"

"That's because it's real."

"Is it fun to play a prank like that on an artist desperate for music? Yes?"

After arguing for a while, the two people noticed a boy approaching at high speed from the other side.

"uh?"

It was Prince Logan, the main character of the topic.

Sir Oscar asked, hastily straightening his posture.

"Prince Logan! Where are you going in such a hurry? If you don't mind, please talk to this friend...."

"Yes, you guys do a good job too!"

But the prince, who gave a wrong answer, quickly disappeared into the count's mansion!

"...What the hell is going on?"

The two looked at each other in confusion.

* * *

Wiggle wiggle.

Meanwhile, Seongjin, who was lying in bed, was unable to calm down and was becoming impatient. The demon king couldn't see this and scolded him.

[I knew it would be like this. I knew it. I was a fool to believe that you would have the slightest patience. How long has it been since your father was gone?]

No, I'm really going to hold back this time. I won't even look at a heart of ice.

I promised. Never try to do it alone.

Seongjin closed his eyes tightly, frowned, and tried to think of something else.

'Okay, let's just meditate!'

Because I'm so busy these days, my Auror training is slow. That was when Seongjin finally forgot about his icy heart and started concentrating.

Quang!

The door was violently opened and someone came running in.

It was Logan.

"ok?"

Seongjin opens his eyes wide and stands up, but Logan strides towards the bed with a stern expression on his face.

"Logan? What happened...."

But Seongjin could not finish speaking. This is because Logan, who came close in an instant, wrapped one arm around Seongjin's neck.

Wow.

"Kkuek?"

Crack.

The neck was pulled so hard that a strange sound came from the cervical spine!

Seongjin was scared.

"Hey, man! My father barely healed me and left. What on earth are you doing?"

But Seongjin, who was patting Logan's back, realized something strange. This was because the body of the guy who had his head down while holding her in a headlock was trembling slightly.

Wait, why is this guy suddenly acting like this again?

"...thank god."

And a voice that sounds like a mumble.

"huh?"

"I thought I might never find your soul again."

At that moment, Seongjin had an intuition.

This guy found out something.

"uh....."

I was panicking, not knowing how to react, but my shoulders soon started to get wet.

"I'm so glad, Mores."

247. Soul Stone (1)

It took quite a while for Seongjin to be released from Logan's arms. Because this guy couldn't calm down easily.

"...Hey, are you crying?"

"What nonsense. No."

Wood clatter.

At the same time, he kept putting on a headlock without raising his face, and I felt like I was going to die.

Seongjin, who couldn't stand it anymore, said, 'Hey, my neck vertebrae are now out of alignment,' and now he's silently pouring out his divine power to break his neck!

As if they were father and son, what they both did was exactly the same.

"How did you know? Did you just meet your father?"

Tdu-duk-duk.

Seongjin asked, turning his now free neck around. Even so, the words Seonghwang said as he was leaving continued to be bothered.

-Now that we're here, there's a place to take a quick look.

I think it refers to this guy.

"huh."

Finally, Logan bowed his head and answered.

"Yes. You already knew that. Well, I guess so."

The unusually droopy appearance looked so pitiful that Seongjin couldn't think of anything else to say about his crooked neck.

Still, when I see the red, swollen area around his eyes go back to normal in an instant, I can feel how great this guy's divine power is.

'I'm a bit envious of that, don't you think? If I had that kind of ability, I would be able to use Aurors more easily.'

I was thinking that if Seonghwang had known, he would have called, but Logan's expression hardened and he looked at Seongjin.

"But when did you find out? Why didn't you tell me right away when you found out?"

"hmm....."

Seongjin scratched his cheek with a troubled expression.

"I also heard something vaguely from my father a while ago, so I wasn't sure how to explain it to you. This is something I can't provide evidence for."

"But if you had told me, maybe I would have believed it."

"Uh, okay."

Seongjin's face became a little more serious.

you are a bitch What kind of pride can you be proud of?

"And again...."

"huh?"

'You're so kind even when you don't remember, why did you hate us so much before? 'Why did you hate me so much?'

Logan wanted to ask that. However, he opened his mouth silently and then closed his mouth firmly.

Why are you asking such a question now? Mores, who has no memory anyway, wouldn't really know the reason.

More than that, there were things that Logan had to apologize to his little brother, whom he had finally found.

"I'm really sorry."

"Huh? What?"

"I couldn't find an answer to where your soul went, so I thought it might never be possible to find it. If things continue like this, Mores might have completely given up on you without knowing anything."

In Logan's eyes as he said that, there was a deep sense of guilt that could not be hidden.

"Plus, I thought that if Mores returned to his body, Lee Seong-jin might disappear, which I somehow didn't like."

Seongjin was taken aback.

'No, I'm Seongjin Lee anyway.'

Doesn't that mean you were worried about me? Why are you apologizing for that?

But as I was watching, I noticed that this guy started digging deep into the ground on his own.

"Besides, I told you to return Mores' body. It was no different than telling you to die obediently. What on earth did I do...?"

".....?"

Seongjin couldn't understand Logan's way of thinking at all.

'So you're saying you were worried about Mores? So actually, I... Mores... 'Is that it?'

What on earth is this guy thinking so complicated? Why are you sorry about that?

However, Logan's digging continued, and he finally reached the boundary between the mantle and the outer core, reaching the pinnacle of digging.

"I'm sorry for doubting you from the beginning. I'm sorry for not recognizing you right away! Can I still proudly call myself your family? I really have no shame."

"...Hey, what happens to me if you say that!"

I didn't recognize anyone at Seonghwangga! I had no idea who I was until my father told me!

Plus, I kept telling you that you weren't Mores! Don't you remember that?

"Mores. So I...."

"Oh, you're so loud. Shut up!"

This time it was Seongjin Lee's turn to twist Logan's neck.

Tdu-duk-duk.

"Kek! Hey!"

So stop being rude and stop meaningless drilling! Even if oil comes out anyway, there is no place to use it here!

Fortunately, Seongjin's strong punishment seemed to have been effective. After fluttering around for a while, Logan finally got free, completely shaking off the gloomy expression he had just had.

Instead, he looked at Seongjin with new eyes and called.

"Mores."

"....."

"Mores."

"Um, uh, well...."

Seongjin reluctantly and awkwardly raised the corners of his mouth.

Well, I thought I would do that when my father called me, but now that Logan calls me Mores, it feels really weird.

But Logan, who sensed Seongjin's nervous mood like a ghost, smiled slightly.

"You still find the name Mores awkward."

"Um... actually, yes."

If you think about it, isn't Logan the only person other than his father who knows that Seongjin is 'Lee Seongjin'? There is a difference between being called Mores by other people and being called Mores by Logan, as big as heaven and earth.

Then Logan nodded.

"Yes, I can understand. There was a time when I too had a hard time enduring the fact that I was no longer 'Gael Bertran.'" hmm. It certainly is.

Seongjin also remembered the confusion and anxiety he felt when he first arrived here. If it weren't for the demon lord making noise next to him, he probably wouldn't have adapted so quickly.

"Dad, you probably knew. I wish I had consulted with him from the beginning."

"Do you think so?"

Logan, who was letting out a soft laugh, suddenly made a strange face.

"Well, it's really surprising. You, who you thought was a completely different person, trust and follow him more than me, who was born as your son."

"Your father is a good man, Logan."

"Yeah, I think so too."

After responding like that, Logan seemed lost in thought for a moment and then cautiously opened his mouth.

"Do you still want me to call you Lee Seongjin?"

Seongjin widened his eyes. Because it was an unexpected proposal.

Oh, that's right. I think it would be more convenient that way.

"But are you okay? You wanted to find Mores from the beginning, right?"

Then Logan smiled brightly like never before. Instead of his usual smile that made him look somewhat sad, he had a smile that seemed genuinely happy.

"Don't worry about that. It doesn't change the fact that Lee Seong-jin is also my brother. Just like Gael Bertran has always been Mores' brother."

".....!"

It's a very obvious and plausible statement, something typical of a guy.

However, it seems that such flashy words can sometimes be of great comfort. Seongjin suddenly felt a strange feeling in his heart, and was caught up in the atmosphere and asked without realizing it.

"Would you like me to call you Gael when we're alone?"

"It's okay. I've been Logan ever since I met everyone in the Blue Rose Labyrinth. Besides, as your senior, it's not difficult to be considerate like that."

Then Seongjin's eyebrows went up.

What, man?

"Wait a minute, what do you mean you're older than me? You should say it right away. Didn't we just decide to acknowledge each other's past lives? Then of course I'm your older brother! Besides, your birthday is less than half a year before me, right?"

"What do you mean, Seongjin Lee?"

Logan had a stern expression on his face and spoke in a tone of admonishment from a superior.

"You were in your 60s and I was in my 70s. There is clearly a 10-year difference."

"What? This kid, you still haven't given up on inflating your age?!"

"Inflating means who inflated it?"

"Who is it? You are Logan, the sword master who swept the battlefield with just a sword at the age of 70!"

He was a famous person whose biography has been written about several times, so why are you trying to fool him like that?

Then Logan made a very disapproving face.

"You're all grown up now, right? When you were little, you always called me 'big brother'."

what? How could that possibly be the case?

"You man, are you ignoring me just because you don't remember anything? Is this a fabrication?"

Seongjin, who couldn't bear it anymore, rolled his eyes and broke Logan's neck.

Crunchy.

"Ugh! Hey! Do you want to keep acting like this? If you're my younger brother, act like your younger brother!"

Logan, whose neck has turned, groans and raises his arms, wrapping them around Seongjin's neck.

Tdu-duk-duk.

"You should not be pushy and admit what you have to admit!"

"Ik! Leave it when you have something nice to say, Seongjin Lee!"

"Hmph, do you think you'll let go? You bastard! Give up and accept it! I'm telling you to admit right away that you are my younger brother!"

Seongjin and Logan, who had been back and forth for a while, suddenly felt eyes staring at them and only then raised their heads.

"...Your Majesty, what are you doing now?"

".....!"

Masain was looking down at them with a bewildered expression. Masain, who had undressed and finished eating, became worried and went to Seongjin's room again.

"It's nice to remember the time when you were fighting in the Blue Rose Labyrinth when you were young, but why do you really need to foster brotherly love in a place like this? What on earth would the people of Sigismund think of you two?"

Seongjin narrowed his eyes and glared at Logan. Look, who called you brother?

Logan, whose face is noticeably red, quickly lets go of Seongjin's neck and steps back.

"Anyway, how are you feeling, sir? Are your eyes okay now?"

Masain sighed lightly and asked as he picked up the loose bandages on the table.

"Wouldn't it be better to avoid the light for a while? Just cover your eyes for a few days..."

Eh? no!

I know clearly that I'm fine, but I don't really want to do that. It's quite frustrating!

Seongjin was scared, but fortunately, Logan came to his side. Not only did I know that the Holy Emperor had already gone, but I also felt that my auror activity had completely returned to normal.

"Don't worry, Brother Massain. Mores' eyes have fully recovered."

"Is that true?"

Masain's eyes widened at the rare, decisive words. Then Logan smiles and looks back at Seongjin.

"Because Brother Lee treated me properly. Right, Mores?"

Seongjin looked at him blankly for a moment.

Until now, Logan had avoided calling his name in front of others as much as possible, and even if he did, he felt awkward. But now, Logan looked very relaxed.

I couldn't help but chuckle as I realized that there were a lot of things I had been paying attention to, whether I knew it or not.

"Yes. For the first time in a while, I benefited from my younger brother who has strong divine powers."

"...You're so persistent."

Logan and Masain stayed in Seongjin's room for a while. And for the first time, Seongjin heard the story about sleep talking in detail from the two people.

"Why didn't you tell me earlier?"

Masain looked a little embarrassed at Seongjin's question. I was worried that she would get on my nerves if I found out that she was even talking strangely in her sleep, even though she had no memory of it.

'But wait a minute, wouldn't the devil have been listening anyway?'

So, after the two finally left, Seongjin started to press the devil. Why did this guy know but keep his mouth shut until now?

After several interrogations, what the demon king revealed was unexpected.

[At the time, I thought you were increasingly being consumed by the memories of 'Mores'.]

Come to think of it, the possibility that Lee Seong-jin was the real Mores was never explained in detail to the Demon King, so he might have thought so.

[But at first, you mistook the language of Delcross for the language of Sigurd District 34, right? And sometimes, when I dreamed, I would see Mores' point of view. So, I thought that being aware of that would only accelerate the process of being consumed by memory.]

'hmm.'

[But as it was repeated every day, I eventually got used to it. Afterwards, I thought it was no big deal.]

Well, I had a conversation like that with the demon lord before.

-If you repeatedly mistake her feelings for yours and her knowledge for yours, won't you often end up mistaking yourself for Mores?

Certainly, from then on, the Demon King expressed such concerns. It will become increasingly difficult for Lee Seong-jin to exist as 'Lee Seong-jin'.

-You may have to come up with some special method to protect your identity as [Lee Seong-jin] in the future.

At the time, I thought it was a pointless worry. Because it hasn't been that difficult so far.

However, even Logan, who was the only person in this world who called himself 'Lee Seong-jin', no longer distinguishes Seong-jin from 'Mores'.

Although I said I would call him 'Lee Seong-jin' when it was just the two of us, the boundary will become increasingly blurry in the future.

'It might not make much of a difference anyway. I guess I am Mores himself after all.'

But why? Seongjin suddenly had this thought.

I feel like I shouldn't lose 'me' until the end. If I don't get someone to call my name properly, I end up... ..

'Hey, devil.'

Seongjin, who was thinking deeply, called the devil.

[huh?]

'Anyway, I will always be [Lee Seong-jin] to you, right?'

[Of course.]

The Demon King smiled and smiled.

[I met you because you are 'Lee Seong-jin'. Past life or reincarnation, it has nothing to do with it. From now on, you will only be Lee Seong-jin to me.]

'... okay.'

Only then did I feel reassured.

Seongjin, who had become more relaxed, closed his eyes and spoke kindly.

'Anyway, what should I eat for dinner? Should we ask for bear meat steak?'

[what? really? Really? Yay!]

The demon lord was so excited that I felt like my whole mind was shaking.

[Bear meat, bear meat, bear meat with a strong aroma and spicy taste~]

Would that be that good?

Listening to the Demon King's sloppy song, Seongjin, dumbfounded, shook his head.

248

248. Soul Stone (2)

After confirming that Seongjin woke up safely, Logan and Masain rested for a while and then left the count's residence again. This is because Sigismund was still in disarray.

The major battle was over, but a sluggish clearing operation remained. In addition, we had to chase down the lycanslopes that were running away.

There was a lot of work to do, but there was an extreme shortage of workers.

Seongjin's companions also joined forces to help Yeongji. Only Captain Bruno, who had volunteered to guard Sir Sharon and Seongjin, who had suddenly lost their health, remained at the count's residence.

'Shouldn't I do something too...? ... '

Seongjin thought so, but there was no room for him, who came back from almost death, to intervene. When he started to feel itchy and tried to sneak out of his room, Logan and Martha were staring at him side by side.

"Would you like me to let you sleep well so that you can rest comfortably today?"

Logan asked grimly, kneading his fists.

Wait a minute, does that mean you're going to give me physical therapy instead of sleeping pills?

"Sir, why don't you just cover your eyes? You'll sleep better."

Masain also thinks it's time to put on a bandage and asks.

Although he is said to have recovered, he seems to be bothered by his eyes, which were bleeding profusely only yesterday.

In the end, Seongjin had no choice but to raise both hands and feet.

"Okay, okay. Just stay in your room."

However, contrary to the atmosphere that seemed like they would gather their troops and pursue Lycan Slope at any moment, there was no news that the pursuit party had left until late afternoon.

And Seongjin was able to hear the reason from Edith, who brought dinner.

Sir Ilma and Sir Sebastian, who should be the mainstay of the pursuit party. This was because, except for old man Vincent, something big had happened to the two who could be said to have the greatest power in the territory.

"run away?"

"Yes, I say so, sir."

Their only daughter, Louise, disappeared from the estate without leaving behind a letter.

This is roughly what Edith was told.

-Father, mother. Recently, with the help of the two of you, I was able to safely settle down as a servant at the count's residence. But is it a young idea? I felt like I wanted to further explore the many possibilities that were still hidden within me. I want to travel around the continent and experience more things. So, neither of you, please don't worry too much and wait for me at the estate.

Seongjin clicked his tongue inwardly.

Louise, you have a very thorough personality even at such a young age. Ever since he decided to face the Lycan Slopelord, he had even considered the possibility of being defeated and not returning.

"But it's such a strange thing, isn't it?"

Edith tilted her head.

"I've only known Louise for a few days, but she never seemed like that kind of person."

"okay?"

"Yes. If you spend even a moment with her, you will know. Ms. Louise is a person who makes plans down to the minute. While helping me, she said how thorough she was in everything she did. That Ms. Louise is somewhere without a plan. "I never even imagined going on an adventure."

"....."

Suddenly, the image of Louise neatly taking off her shoes and putting them neatly in her backpack comes to mind.

Seongjin knew that she was actually heading to the [Hwawon], which is located in the center of the Demon World.

-Sir, I must confirm the reality of that [Painter] with my own eyes.

It was only at that moment, but I had a feeling that I wouldn't see her for a long time.

Where is that? Although she was busy controlling the shaved ice, Seongjin could hear her faint thoughts coming from her.

-I now have to go a long way from which I may never return. It will be a path that cannot be told to anyone.

Did Louise arrive at the [Painter Garden] safely? What on earth happened there?

-It's a world full of regrets, and the only person here who knows me as a whole is you. Please stay... ..

That was the end of what was conveyed in resignation, but Seongjin somehow felt that she had made a final request to her parents.

'They don't want their parents to come into the demon world looking for them.'

That's why he hid his whereabouts by leaving a letter.

Seongjin thought for a while.

'Sir Ilma and Sir Sebastian have the right to know about Louise.'

But why? Even if the two of them chased her daughter into the demon world, it was unlikely that they would be able to meet Louise in the end.

In that case, wouldn't it be better for the two of them to believe that they are wandering around a safer continent rather than the Demon World?

Seongjin couldn't make up his mind for a while. This was because she could not dare to imagine the feelings of her parents who lost their child.

'But I'll be back.'

Even if it took a long time, I had a feeling that Louise would return here someday. In that case, it would be better to allow her parents to remain at her estate and welcome her.

After thinking for a long time, Seongjin finally made a decision to keep quiet about her.

[Wow! Bear meat, bear meat~ delicious bear meat~]

Still, he couldn't help but feel heavy, and while the Demon King sang excitedly, Seongjin mechanically ate his dinner without even thinking about tasting it.

Rattling.

What caught Seongjin's attention was the gorgeous tea tray that came into the room following the meal.

"...What is this, Captain?"

Seongjin asked, puzzled by the perfect tea set he hadn't seen in a long time.

Then, Manager Bruno, who was dragging the tray, stroked his mustache with a puzzled look on his face.

"Yes, sir. This is a tea time set for you."

"So why is the leader bringing that to me?"

You are, after all, an external agent of Arenja, and serving tea is not your main job.

Then, Director Bruno spoke with an even more serious expression.

"No, sir. From now on, everything I can do for you will be my job."

"huh?"

"Through this incident, I have clearly realized that my sincerity in serving you is still lacking in many ways."

"....."

It was embarrassing to hear that he had come to an epiphany out of nowhere, but Seongjin could clearly tell how sincere he was about this matter.

This is because the angle of Director Bruno's mustache was just right, and it was sharply stretched out in perfect symmetry like never before.

"hmm."

Seongjin frowned and thought about what to say for a moment before opening his mouth.

"That's not enough, you've been doing well enough so far, Commander."

"Oh my God...."

"Just like before, the leader will work hard to restore his previous status. That is the leader's job. By having Dekaron Knight become my person, the leader is doing everything he needs to do. Don't you understand that?"

Director Bruno seemed to be roughly convinced.

Nevertheless, his expression was dark, as if he was not satisfied with something, so in the end, Seongjin had no choice but to add:

"If you really want to do something more, you could teach Calmen more properly."

That guy's 'brightness' is very unstable compared to other resident knights. He already has anger management problems, and his skills aren't that great, so how can I take him around comfortably?

Then, wondering how he received what he said, Director Bruno looked at Seongjin with a deeply moved face.

"I am only now learning why you were so attentive to my Majesty, and it is a case like this that I wasted so much time. It is truly shameful."

"ok?"

"I will definitely live up to your expectations! How can I be the only Kalmen? Apart from regaining my status, from now on, I will properly train all the resident knights of Jinju Palace. From now on, I will make sure that there is no shortage of service to your Majesty!"

"...Uh, yes. Okay."

Seongjin, who could not bear to stop the overly motivated man, thought while breaking into a cold sweat.

It's good to be overly motivated, though.

'Everyone must be enjoying the honeymoon right now because Sir Masain is not there, but now we will be returning with two tiger instructors.'

This is it, won. Unless the knights' salaries are greatly increased, who on earth would want to stay at Jinju Palace?

* * *

From then on, the evenings at the count's residence went by in a boring yet peaceful manner.

Wong wong!

Except for Max breaking into the room after escaping from us on his own, there was nothing to disturb Seongjin's rest.

So, Seongjin spent his time meditating or observing objects in the world of images with his spiritual eyes.

Perhaps because he ate a lot of bear meat steaks, the Demon King was very cooperative in using his spiritual eyes.

'hmm.'

It was inevitable that his eyes would occasionally fall on the ice heart next to him, but Seongjin tried to suppress his curiosity with unprecedented patience.

The promise to the Emperor was also a promise, but the more I looked at it separately, the more I realized that it was not an ordinary thing.

'Until now, I've only used it when I was in a hurry... ... '

I felt it every time I used it, but it seemed like the ice heart could have a greater impact on the user's mind or soul than expected.

If we continue to manipulate the Glatrue Troll in the same way as we have done so far, we may one day cause irreversible problems.

'Your father was like that too, right? 'Don't just try to do it on your own.'

Since he is a man who allows Seongjin to do what he wants, it is definitely not a warning for no reason.

'When I felt a sense of unity with shaved ice, I felt a little like my soul was moving away from my body. If you do something wrong, your soul might fly somewhere else.'

The events that occurred immediately after the soul left the body were now a blur and I could barely remember them. The only vague impression that remains is that I heard a strangely kind sound of laughter accompanied by the sound of bells.

But even so, there was a level of awareness that the task was not usually dangerous. I wonder why Seonghwang, who was always calm, seemed so agitated.

'I don't want to worry my father anymore.'

So Seongjin spent time mainly looking at the accessories he got from Vajra and the Nebraska amulet.

Among them, what particularly caught his eye were several small, round soul stones.

□Vajra's Soul Stone□

Seongjin thought as he removed the bright red-brown soul stone and played with it.

'It definitely wasn't this color before Vajra died. It was a transparent bead no different from other soul stones.'

So, does this also contain the soul of the dead Vajra?

[It's a bit unclear whether it's his soul. The feeling is similar, but when I first saw it, the lycan slope clearly had the soul of the real world. However, what is contained here seems closer to the soul of the normal world.]

The Demon King looked at the soul stone for a while and then said.

That means that the soul of the normal world has been converted into the soul of the normal world, or that what is in this world is not actually Vajra.

But is that possible? What if the soul of the normal world dies and becomes the soul of the normal world?

'And look at this, devil.'

Seongjin held up Nebraska's summoning amulet. Small grooves that were supposed to have been filled with jewels, but are now empty.

'Don't you think it would be perfect if a soul stone were put in here?'

[hmm? They're definitely similar in size. It seems like that.]

'Then shall we try it?'

So Seongjin took out an empty soul stone and slipped it into the groove of the Nebraska Amulet. OK-

Sweet!

Isn't the soul stone in the groove sticking firmly, as if it were being sucked in?

'... ... !'

And immediately a faint message appears before my eyes.

☐List of spirits that can be summoned as summoned beasts 2/4☐

[One. ☐☐☐☐ (inactive)☐

[2. ☐☐☐ ☐ (inactive)☐

☐3. Hayes Martin (active)☐

[4. Red (active)☐

☐Would you like to choose your soul?☐

☐Accept/Reject☐

'This... ... !'

I had seen it once before.

A choice that came to mind after defeating the Lycanslope Lord in the labyrinth and just before returning through the portal.

When I returned to this world, it was a window that would not open again no matter what I did. Since I couldn't see it with my spiritual eyes, I wondered if there was some other condition, but was it really that I needed a soul stone?

[omg?!]

But Seongjin was not the only one who was surprised.

In the labyrinth, it was a spear that only appeared to Seongjin, who had acquired the amulet, but now that they share the same spiritual eye, the devil can finally see the spear as well.

[cow... Summoned beast? Red?]

And the shock of the demon king who read the contents was enormous.

[Lee Seong-jin, what is this? Maybe I saw something wrong? Could it be that this guy here, the one in red, is referring to me? Is that it? Moreover, this body is not recognized as the great Demon King, but as a cow, a summoned beast, etc.?]

'... ... !'

[This great Demon Lord of Gehenna was finally fixed on the name Red? How could this happen... ... !]

The Demon Lord, who was muttering helplessly, began to cry at the end.

Sniffle.

'hmm.'

Well, Seongjin felt that it was a name that suited the devil's insignificance perfectly, but since he was so discouraged, he had nothing to say.

'Anyway, I think I'm getting a sense of something.'

When he first showed the Amulet of Nebraska to Seonghwang, didn't he explain it to Seongjin like this?

-Perhaps it is the kind of thing that fundamentally changes the soul. It's clear that it's valuable, but it would be a good idea to be a little cautious when using it.

It fundamentally changes the soul.

In other words, does this mean that it is possible to change the soul of the normal world into the soul of the normal world?

'Then shall we give it a try?'

Maybe it's red... No, because it would be difficult if the Demon King suddenly became trapped in the Soul Stone.

Then there was only one choice.

☐3. Hayes Martin (active)☐

☐Would you like to choose your soul?☐

☐Accept/Reject☐

Hayes Martin.

A priest of the Dark Church who opened the gate to the Heresy Tribunal and died at the hands of the Holy Emperor.

I couldn't figure out why the alternative interest rate was on the list.

'But there is no soul better than this to give a rough test.'

What happens to his soul is none of my business. Seongjin, who thought so, clicked on the option without hesitation.

☐Accept / Reject☐

Right at that moment.

Sigh-

The transparent soul stone instantly turns black.

'... ... !'

When I checked with my spiritual eyes, I found that the name of the soul stone had changed.

□Hayes Martin's Soul Stone□

Ah, as expected.

249. Soul Stone (3)

Hayes' soul stone.

As he looked at the orb stained with an ominous black light, Seongjin naturally had this question.

'Demon King. Is the guy inside here a devil?'

Because the demonic energy I saw with my spiritual eyes was always black. However, the demon lord's reaction was not very encouraging.

[...] hmm? Sigh, okay? I don't really feel any magical energy, do I?]

'really?'

[huh. Sniff, I guess this is just the color of the soul of this guy named Hayes. Isn't he just a black guy on the inside?]

That's not all.

Along with the change in the soul stone, the message that appeared before my eyes also changed.

☐Summoner Hayes Martin☐

☐Summon / Cancel☐

And the number of souls listed on the amulet was reduced by one.

☐List of spirits that can be summoned as summoned animals 1/3☐

[One. ☐☐☐☐ (inactive)☐

[2. ☐☐☐ ☐☐ (inactive)☐

□3. Red (active)□

I felt like I knew something.

So, an activated soul is a soul that can be used right now. In other words, he has already died and only his soul remains.

The Demon King originally only had a soul, so he was active from the beginning.

'Then there's a possibility that the two whose names I can't read are still alive somewhere.'

Of course, this is assuming that they are human.

But since there are probably more than one dead person in this world, why does this particular soul come up as an option?

'Could it be that they, like Hayes, were remnants of the Dark Church? Or are you a devil worshiper?'

Then the Demon King, who had completely stopped crying, answered.

[Probably not a devil worshiper. Anyone who is somehow connected to the devil, such as a devil worshiper or devil contractor, will be immediately taken to the demon world where the devil resides the moment they die.]

This is because as soon as they face death, their souls become subordinate to the contracted devil.

'Well, let's call him and ask him first.'

There is a limit to what you can guess if you think about it alone. It would be quicker to hear from the person involved.

After making that decision, Seongjin moved the spear with his thoughts.

□Summon / Release□

And I immediately regretted that decision.

Shuaaaa-

Suddenly, with tremendous spiritual pressure, an ominous black fog began to rise in front of Seongjin's eyes. It was ominous just to look at it.

".....!"

Wiggle, wiggle.

At some point, the black smoke that was spreading across the floor began to coalesce in the center as if it were alive, and then began to form an elongated human shape.

Seongjin was scared and slowly retreated behind the bed.

I didn't expect to see an ordinary ghost from the beginning, but that doesn't seem like a proper spirit!

'Demon King, look closely at that! 'That's not really the devil?'

Does anyone look like a devil worshiper or the devil himself?

[I'll say it again, I don't feel any magic.]

The Demon King answered like that and tilted his soul. I also seemed to be puzzled by something.

[But the atmosphere is really good.]

Hehehehe... ..

Now, eerie cries can be heard from the black fog.

As Seongjin, embarrassed, was hurriedly looking for the release button, a black figure rose up, taking the shape of a proper human being.

Shooooooooo-

Eventually, a middle-aged man wearing a black priest's uniform appeared.

The skinny body and lanky cheeks are definitely the same as the Father Hayes I saw before. Only the dark circles and bloodless gray skin made him look even more gloomy.

[at las... ..!]

Flashing.

The black evil spirit opened its eyes and let out a trembling thought.

[You finally called me! He called me!]

The evil spirit shouted an incomprehensible sound and distorted its face. It is a strange expression that looks either painful or happy.

[Aaaah... ..!]

Perhaps it was because he was an evil spirit that he had summoned, but Seongjin was able to directly feel the emotions coming from Hayes.

What he was showing was not the bitterness or regret that an evil spirit would normally show.

Only joy.

Only joy so intense that it shook the soul was completely consuming the evil spirit.

'Anyway, it's bloody!'

Black tears flow from the evil spirit's distorted eyes, and black smoke billows out every time its pale lips open.

As Seongjin took a step back, breaking into a cold sweat, Hayes' evil spirit stumbled and bowed. Then, she fell flat on the floor and bowed her head politely towards Seongjin.

[I was waiting for the day you would call me, only this day.]

The hands that were reverently raised above the head as if in worship were trembling.

[O Lord of my soul, Archbishop of Rest!]

... what?

* * *

It was an unusually clear night sky, shining as if stars were pouring down.

An old shaman with gray hair and a bent back was looking up at the northern sky, feeling the Odokani wind.

Her white-covered eyes could hardly detect the light of the world, but the shaman could still feel the faint warmth of starlight from the wind blowing from the meadow.

"Lord of my soul...."

The wrinkled mouth bends and a faint voice escapes.

"Nazranka."

Then someone called her name. The shaman slowly turned to face her friend approaching behind her.

"You were here alone. Now all the elders have gathered. The tribal leader is looking for you."

"Chigudanka."

The shaman folded his hands over his chest and showed proper courtesy to the eldest son of the tribe leader.

Then, suddenly, he felt another presence and turned his head towards the tall young man standing next to him.

Although her distant eyes were shaking in the air without focus, the capable shaman nevertheless recognized the person standing in front of her.

"...Owen of Delcross."

"It's been a while, Nazranka."

He is a young hunter of the Empire who has been going smoothly recently.

His hair, like the sun setting under the night sky of the grassland, was decorated with the newly expanded cormorant feathers.

"Yes, it is the same. If it is a sudden summons of elders, it cannot be anything other than about you."

The shaman's eyebrows furrow in disapproval.

She was one of the few elders of Volanta who maintained a neutral stance.

Because her antipathy toward the empire and the Holy Emperor was quite deep-rooted, everyone found it surprising that she did not show any strong opposition.

-The Great Spirit wants me to do so.

The answer to those who asked why was always the same.

In any case, she did not like Owen, the prince of the empire, very much from the beginning. She firmly believes that he has a hidden agenda.

"Owen, why are you disturbing our peaceful Volanta? Why did you come to the land of Volanta?"

Then the young hunter answered coolly. This was the answer I always remembered when standing in front of the elders of Volanta.

"As a friend of Volanta, I have come to expand Volanta's horizons."

"There is no need for such flimsy excuses. Just tell the truth before the great soul!"

Chikudanka, who was listening to the shaman's sharp reaction to his friend, quietly intervened.

"Nazranka. Owen proved his favor by destroying all the Nurumachi in the plains. That's all. Recently, he also dried out all of the Coratla seeds."

""

"Now crocodiles and fish will return to our rivers."

"It's pointless, it's pointless. How can you not know that all of this is nothing more than a bad joke...."

The shaman lamented as if muttering. Her discolored white eyes rested for a moment on Owen's invisible bright red pendant.

"Yes. Now that I think about it, it's strange. It's truly strange. How could you, who are not of imperial blood, suddenly get involved in this game?"

Then the eyes of the two young warriors met.

'Have you ever revealed to anyone that I am your father's godson?'

'No, I swear by the earth and heaven of my ancestors, I have never done anything like that. But it's not something she can't understand. Nazranka is Volanta's greatest shaman who listens to the sound of the ancient winds.'

'... okay. 'I trust you.'

Chikudanka, who had been observing his friend for a moment, realized that Owen wanted to talk to Nazranka alone to find out the source of the information.

It wasn't difficult to step aside for a moment. He turned to the tribe's camp and quietly gave a warning to the shaman.

"Come to the meeting on time, Nazranka. Everyone in Volanta needs your wisdom."

Owen and Shaman, who were left behind, looked at each other for a moment and were awkwardly silent.

"...I guess you have something you want to ask me, Owen of Delcross."

"First of all, I salute the wisdom of the great shaman, Nazranka. How much do you know about my father?"

"Which father do you mean? The one swept up in the flames, or the one entangled in the empire?"

"....."

"Do you wonder how I know? As an imperial citizen, you may not easily believe it, but the shaman of Volanta gains wisdom from the wind."

And the shaman raised his white eyes and looked at the distant northern sky.

"You're such a thorn in my eye, but I guess it's okay. I need someone to share the joy in my heart right now. One of my brothers has just found rest."

Brother finds rest?

Owen, puzzled, quickly looked back to see if there had been a funeral for anyone in the Volanta tribe recently. Either way, Nazranka's peaceful voice continued.

"It's really funny. Even though I was the first servant beaten by the Master of All Souls, I had already given up. But something like a dream really happened."

The first servant accepted by the Master of all souls.

Owen couldn't help but ask because of the unfamiliar tone.

"Doesn't Volanta serve the great spirits of its ancestors? Who do you mean, the master of all souls? If I lack understanding of Volanta's customs, please teach me, Nazranka."

Then the shaman burst into laughter.

"Haha, foolish. It is the red weasel that hunts the opossum, but above them all there is also a black eagle flying. Above the souls of our great ancestors, there is an even higher being. He is the master of all souls."

A seemingly relieved smile appeared on Nazranka's wrinkled face.

"We are all quietly waiting for him to come."

* * *

[Have you finally found me, master of my soul... .. !]

The evil spirit of Black Haze was somehow very friendly to Seongjin.

But regardless of his attitude, I couldn't help but feel goosebumps all over my body as I looked at the guy with black water flowing down his face.

'Wow, there's no such thing as a horror movie!'

[You've been like that before. Are you scared of something like that when you've died once? That's just a simple evil spirit.]

Oh, it's not scary. Really.

It's just that I don't know how to deal with things like that. As I said before, punching doesn't work on evil spirits, right?

[Try it. What if I hit it once?]

Seongjin thought for a moment due to the devil's evil temptation. Should I really hit it?

But somehow, it felt uncomfortable to treat a soul that looked at me with earnest eyes.

'Now that I've brought you here, let's ask what we can.'

After making that decision, Seongjin carefully asked the guy a question.

"But who is the owner of your soul?"

[Of course it is you, master of the soul.]

"Why did you open the gate to the imperial palace on your own the other day?"

[Of course, it was your order. Lord of the soul.]

"...So who am I?"

[Great Archbishop of Rest, Master of Souls!]

Ah, the Dark Church.

Seongjin touched his forehead and sighed.

"...I'll have to ask first and then decide what to do with you. I'm at a loss for words."

Then Hayes asked curiously.

[Lord of my soul. Who in the world can control your steps?]

"Yeah, I'd like to ask my father."

[yes? Father... no way?]

Wow!

At that moment, the guy let out a horrifying scream. The spiritual pressure surging from him was enough to make Seongjin's hair flutter.

Above all.

'scared!'

Not a single scene in a horror movie would be that intense!

Seongjin, with goosebumps running down his spine, takes a step back.

[Lord of the soul! Noble archbishop! Apostle of rest!]

"....."

[You have to run away from him right now! He is covering the owner's eyes and blocking his ears!]

"no....."

[You must make a decision quickly before it is too late! Lord of the soul!]

It was no longer possible to ask something to an evil spirit that was going crazy.

More than anything, it's so, so creepy.

□Summon / Release□

Seongjin closed his eyes tightly and chose to cancel.

[Owner... ... !]

Then, Hayes struggles and is sucked into the soul stone. The joints that move as if squirming are literally the image of a demon being dragged into hell.

Shuuuuu-

Eventually, all the black fog disappeared, leaving a heavy silence in the room.

Seongjin thought as he wiped his cold sweat from his forehead.

'Let's ask my father first. 'What should I do with that strange guy?'

Well, since your father killed Hayes, you must have a clear idea about what to do with the remaining soul.

250. Soul Stone (4)

[...] Shouldn't I have asked something more?]

After a while of silence, the Demon King broke the silence and opened his mouth.

[I think the evil spirit said something very important. The Archbishop of the Dark Church and the Apostle of Rest? He is the master of souls? Isn't this normal?]

That's right.

Seongjin picked up the amulet with a shocked expression.

[Mores' past, which you don't remember, clearly has some kind of connection with the Dark Church. Let's call again and ask in more detail.]

'hmm... ... '

That is correct in every detail.

But why? I felt like I didn't want to dig too deeply into what that guy said.

'This feeling isn't all that new, though.'

Since first waking up in Delcross, Seongjin has an unusual record of overlooking many things. Despite her inability to contain her curiosity.

At first, I thought it was simply because everything was annoying and that such things were not important in a life of extras.

'But my father said that all of these are defense mechanisms that I unconsciously use to stay in Delcross.'

If so, shouldn't we know the details?

So, wouldn't receiving biased information from evil spirits also prematurely define me? Just by thinking that way, your relationship with the Dark Church may deepen.

[If you think that way, that's even more of a problem... ..]

The demon lord pondered something and added in a worried voice.

[Is it really okay? Talking to your father.]

'huh?'

[Somehow, I feel like the Dark Church is actually a group that serves the devil. Just look at the 'Repentance' church that attacked the merchant hall on the way. As far as I know, there actually exists a high-ranking Demon King with the name 'Repentance' and the attribute of 'Penance'.]

'hmm... ..'

[Those claiming the name of the Demon King even summoned the 'Demon Beast', how could that not be related to the devil?]

The Demon King said that he suspected that all sects of the Dark Church were actually groups that served high-ranking Demon Lords.

Considering the fact that they enjoy slowly encroaching on the world before a full-scale invasion, what better and more reliable method could there be than underground religious activities?

[What are all those high-ranking demon lords? They are the complete opposite of your father. Wouldn't it be good for the evil spirits of the church that serve those people to know that you have a connection?]

Regardless of the fact that Hayes doesn't feel any demonic energy, the connection between him and the devil is certain.

[If that evil spirit was something that could be tolerated, would your father have killed it in the first place? therefore... ..]

The Demon King, who was continuing his heated explanation, suddenly became startled and asked Seongjin.

[huh? Seongjin Lee, why aren't you saying anything?]

Seongjin scratched his cheek with an embarrassed expression in response to the devil's question.

[...] Hey, you really?]

'Um, well... ..'

[Did you guess everything? Are you doing this knowingly?]

Why not, devil? No matter how much you try to pretend not to know, there are things you can guess at this point.

Why is Mores receiving harsh looks from the Inquisition and high priests even though he is a prince? Why does Cadmus not acknowledge Seongjin as a descendant and gets irritated by criticizing him as 'a fraud'?

'and... ..'

Why has my father strictly restricted entry to Jinju Palace for high-ranking priests and holy knights?

[...] But you still want to tell him?]

'That's why we need to consult even more.'

There is one thing I have realized while experiencing this world so far. When it comes to the world, it is right to judge everything based on success.

'It's not simply because my father is God's representative and oracle.'

This is because he knows very well that the judgments he makes are for the benefit of everyone in the Seonghwang family. Including Seongjin, of course.

'So, if my father finally decides to give up on me, it probably means that there is no other way.'

If he really wants to get rid of me, it probably means that I would be doing the world a favor by dying.

Then the Demon King closed his mouth as if speechless, and then the flame crystal disappeared and he sighed.

[...] Hey, you idiot.]

Um, whatever. If I die, you will die too. Still, I won't particularly take your opinion into consideration.

I'm sorry, but please be my companion on the road, devil. Since you also had me as your companion on Earth, I believe you will have no regrets.

[...]]

The demon lord was in a depressed mood and stuck to making a decision. However, there was no way that Seongjin, who had provided the cause, could say anything comforting to the bastard.

Seongjin, who was a little distraught, had just sat down on the bed.

Crackling.

Suddenly, the sight of a familiar dog quickly approached us from outside.

'... Max?'

Even without Schneeshuhe, it was as fast as the wind. The wolfdog ran down the hallway without hesitation and soon reached the door and immediately began vigorously scratching at the door.

Buck, buck, buck.

Wow, the door is going to break!

"Max!"

I quickly opened the door and saw a wolf dog with something in its mouth and vigorously wagging its tail.

Immediately after the battle, it was tied up in a kennel to keep close to Seongjin, but from then on, it started biting its leash and trying to escape here.

"Yeah, I didn't have time to take care of you. I'm sorry, Max."

Seongjin, who saw the dog's somewhat resentful eyes, patted the dog's head.

"Don't worry. I'll definitely take you with me when I go. Lord Masain will take good care of you if something happens to me. The Jinju Palace has a large garden and a dance hall, so I'm sure you'll like it too."

By the way, I have to negotiate with the Margrave to formally receive you, so what if I damage the door like this, huh?

Seongjin, who was struggling like that, suddenly caught the eye of the object the dog was biting.

'... shoes?'

At first glance, they were ordinary leather shoes. It's not particularly luxurious, but it's not too old either.

But its size and shape seemed familiar.

no way.

"Max, are these by any chance Louise's shoes?"

Then Max put his shoes on the floor and barked loudly at Seongjin.

Wong!

"No, why do you have this? Where on earth...?"

Then Max tilted his head and shook his tail vigorously.

Like, did I do a good job? Did you do well? Seongjin patted her dog's head.

"Max. Do you know where Louise is? Is she around here? Can you guide me there?"

Then the wolf dog looked up at Seongjin blankly.

Don't say such unreasonable things. Seongjin felt like he could hear Max's voice directly, so he apologized obediently.

"Oh, sorry. It's far away after all."

Anyway, it's really interesting that it's an imprint of a family member. It feels like we can communicate like this.

Then the Demon King, who had been silent until then, muttered darkly in his head.

[Damn, that annoying mongrel dog...]

'...'

Is it because of my mood? It seems like the demon lord especially hates Max.

'Anyway, maybe a pair of these shoes would be nice?'

Perhaps it would be best to give it to the parents.

But if I pass this on to Lord Ilma and his wife like this, wouldn't they mistakenly believe that Louise died in an accident somewhere?

Seongjin thought about it and put his shoes down on the table. Then Max, who followed him into the room, sticks his nose on the table and sniffs. This was where Nebraska's jewelry and soul stones were placed.

"Careful. That's not for eating, Max."

Wong wong!

Then Max looks at Seongjin with dissatisfied eyes, and sticks his nose into one of the soul stones again. It was a red-brown soul stone containing Vajra's soul.

"...Are you curious about this?"

Wong!

"okay."

Seongjin was lost in thought.

If I put a soul stone into the amulet, would I be able to summon Vajra from Vajra's soul stone just as I summoned an evil spirit from Hayes' soul stone?

Not on the list, if that's possible.

'Perhaps I can find out about that place called [Painter] through Vajra...'

The worries didn't last long. There is nothing to lose by trying it.

Seongjin immediately pushed Vajra's soul stone into the empty slot of the amulet.

Then click.

As expected, the soul stone sits properly in the groove and sticks. A new information window also appeared before my eyes.

☐ Summoned Beast (Temporary) Vajra ☐

☐ Summon / Cancel ☐

☐ * Summons that are not dependent on the user are greatly limited in their ability expression. ☐

It was a slightly different message from Hayes.

okay. You're saying you're not a soul dependent on me?

'On the other hand, Hayes' soul is truly subordinate to me.'

Seongjin, whose thoughts went that far, immediately shook his head. Let's not think about this any more.

Shuuuuu-

When I pressed the summon button, a strong spiritual pressure spread like before and a fog-like thing began to form in the room. Dark red smoke gathers together and soon creates the appearance of a huge beast.

It was almost the same phenomenon as Hayes, but this time Seongjin was able to observe it calmly. This is thanks to having already experienced the worst case.

'No matter what comes out, it won't be as scary as before.'

What eventually appeared was a red lycan slope that was roughly 4 meters high.

Overall, it was similar to the Vajra we met in the canyon. However, the appearance of her wearing clean cloth and colorful accessories here and there gave the impression that she was a highly intelligent life form, unlike before.

[...]]

Leaning over the ceiling, Vajra's soul looked down at Seongjin in silence for a moment. Unlike in her canyon, it was an intelligent look that even felt wise.

After a while, he nodded and spoke in a low voice.

[...] I see, you weren't Lycanslope after all.]

Oh, that's right.

Until just before I was taken over by Berseus, Vajra completely believed that I was a half-breed of Lycanslope. I was so happy that I even shed tears.

[We thought they were our complete kin. I guess I was mistaken because you had great Nebraska heritage.]

"Nebraska Heritage?"

[The amulet used to summon me.]

Vajra's voice was calm, and there was no significant change in expression on his red-furred face.

Nevertheless, a deep feeling of sadness was conveyed through his thoughts, and Seongjin made an excuse without realizing it.

"I didn't deceive you on purpose."

[Ah, I have no intention of blaming you. As a result, it is true that my soul was liberated from Berseus.]

"....."

[But it looks like the rest of my compatriots weren't so lucky. It must be the price you pay for losing Lord's last will. In the end, there was no salvation for us. I should have taken the last opportunity given by the representative of the '6-person meeting' at that time... ..]

His sad gaze briefly looks towards the entrance of the estate. A place where the clearing of the Lycan Slopes is probably nearing completion.

It seemed that once you become a soul, you can know many things without any major limitations, even if you don't see it with your own eyes.

Anyway, Seongjin had a lot to ask him.

"I heard from your father that you came from Ionia to escape [the disaster]. But why do you have items from the normal world? Items such as ice hearts and soul stones."

[...]]

"And how can a soul enter an object from the normal world and change into something from the normal world? As far as I know, Ionia is the original world like Delcross. Am I wrong?"

Then Vajra nodded with a heavy face.

[okay. Since I received some help from you, I should answer as best as I can. exactly. Ionia is the original world, and our people came from there.]

And Vajra slowly began to explain.

Ionia has long achieved high levels of spiritual and technological development. And the essence of the technology they created. About the grand rules that structure and manage the world.

"Build and manage the world?"

[exactly. The world that was created through the power of those perfect and beautiful rules is the 'normal' world. Things that were created as a mere image and would have been scattered fleetingly began to exert a powerful force that penetrates the world through that rule.]

However, because the tone of the world was so different, the laws of the normal world could not function properly in the real world.

Then, in order to apply those laws to their world, Ionian engineers set out to deliberately break down the boundaries of dimensions.

[Disaster] occurred unintentionally in the process. It was a terrible disaster that took away everything in Ionia.

[In this way, the boundaries of the world blurred uncontrollably, and the effects eventually reached Delcross.]

'That's why things from the normal world come to function here, albeit imperfectly!'

While Seongjin was lost in thought, Vajra spoke in a sorrowful voice.

[Lastly, the item that would have saved the people was also from the Gyu-Sang World. At that time, I had to take the lives of my compatriots with my own hands and store them in the soul stone! If I had the chance, I would have been able to travel to a new normal world and dream of another home for my people. But Berseus, I got over his trick and stopped... ... !]

Since he seemed to be extremely discouraged, Seongjin added in a hint of consolation.

"Ah, but the other party you saw back then was actually your compatriot."

[...] ... !?]

"Louise, she really is of Nebraska... something. I guess."

Then, for the first time, a meaningful change in expression occurred on Vajra's face.

His wide-open eyes go from suspicion to astonishment and finally joy, and a strong spiritual pressure covers the room.

[He is our new Lord! Where on earth is he?]

Vajra looked at Seongjin with eyes so intense that it seemed as if sparks would fly.

The silent thoughts that came from him shook Seongjin like a thunderstorm.

[I have a favor to ask! Kind human being! Could you please send me to him?]

251

251. Soul Stone (5)

[Please, human! Hurry and bring me to Rod!]

Coo!

The incorporeal spirit knelt down, and for a moment it felt like the room was shaking. That's how strong and powerful the spiritual pressure emanating from Vajra was.

Seongjin asked while quietly looking at the huge lycan slope bowed in front of him.

"...But you're already dead, right? What are you going to do by going to Louise's side?"

[Thanks to you, I was born as a new soul. I have been given the opportunity to serve Rod once again! If he is a descendant of Nebraska, if he is a true Lycan Slope, he will naturally know how to use my soul stone!]

"hmm."

[So please help me live for him!]

Every time Vajra shouted a word, strong spiritual pressure swept over Seongjin. That probably means that your feelings are desperate.

However, from Seongjin's perspective, it was pitiful and annoying at the same time. I feel like I want to pass it on to Louise right now.

"But that kid went to the demon world a long time ago. He must have already gone deep into it. How can I find him and give him your soul stone?"

[With magic? Why?]

"Have you forgotten already? Louise said she would help you. She left for the [Flower Garden] to find the source of the flower scent that clouds the minds of the Lycanslopes."

[Hwawon... ..!]

Vajra's eyes widened in shock.

I thought I would finally meet the true Lord, but unfortunately, the request he earnestly asked for from Seongjin and Louise during his lifetime ended up getting in the way!

-Please destroy the [flower garden] of those flowers deep in the demonic realm. Otherwise, the future of our people... ..!

Ah, remembering the words he had said, Vajra closed his eyes and lamented.

[Did the Lord go there to save his people?]

Wooooow-

As Vajra's soul becomes violently agitated, the red energy in the room resonates with it.

Guilt, sadness, gratitude, joy. All of the intense emotions were swirling together, and the density in the room suddenly increased.

[He rose up to save our poor people! You will finally avenge your compatriots on the blasphemous demonic prison guards!]

Bloody tears suddenly flow from Lycanslope's eyes, distorted by all kinds of emotions.

Rubbing.

'omg!'

As a scene from a horror movie started again, Seongjin took a step back, breaking into a cold sweat.

Unlike Hayes' evil spirit, I thought he showed a very detached attitude, but in fact, he seemed to have given up on everything until now.

By the way, why are all souls like this? There is no middle, there is no middle!

'Should I just cancel the summons right now?'

While Seongjin was experiencing serious internal conflict, fortunately, Bajra slowly began to calm down. The hair that had grown up calmly fell down, and the distorted face returned to normal.

Of course, the bloody tears flowing from the corners of my eyes were still there.

[I'm so glad you're mixed race. There is no pure-blooded lycan slope who can maintain their sanity even for a moment in a place covered in ominous blue flowers.]

"So Louise is safe there too?"

Then Vajra shook his head with a serious expression.

[That's not true, human. As long as Lycanslope's blood flows, the influence of flowers cannot be completely avoided. If exposed to that scent for a long period of time, even mixed-race people will probably have problems.]

what? Then it's a big deal.

[That is why I must help him! I, who have truly become free from the flower through the death of my body, must be by his side!]

Bara looked up at Seongjin with pitiful eyes. It was difficult to ignore Max's eyes as if he were begging for a snack.

"...Even after all this, I am a person of quite high status in Delcross. I can't use the demonic spirit on my own."

Sneaking out with Aura concealment is only possible at close range.

You have to go into the center of the demon world, right?

Plus, there's Logan here. Although Seongjin's auror concealment skills had improved dramatically recently, he was not confident in avoiding the eyes of the continent's youngest sword master.

"Still, if I insist on going, a large-scale search team with a vague purpose will probably be formed. The Sigismund Territory will not leave it alone. Of course, if we happen to encounter Lycanslopes on the way to the garden, we will wipe out the barely surviving compatriots. As expected, it will be done neatly."

That was the reality.

Moreover, I have a strong feeling that even if I somehow arrive at the [Painter], I won't be able to meet Louise.

'And now I really want to go home.'

Seongjin thought so in a daze.

I took the souvenirs and reached an amicable agreement with the Margrave regarding the medicine cart, so I don't want to get caught up in anything anymore.

[that... ! Is there really no way? Hehehe! Hehehehehe!]

Then, bloody tears started pouring like a waterfall from Vajra's eyes. It's a shame because she is a soul and has no substance, otherwise she would have been overflowing with blood in the room a long time ago.

The red energy on the floor also fluctuates, representing his sadness.

'... That's why I don't like this!'

No, wouldn't I want to do that? I want to quickly hand these haunted items over to someone else!

Wong!

At that time, Max, who saw that Seongjin was disgusted, blocked the way and barked loudly at Vajra.

[...] hmm?]

Surprised, Lycanslope stopped crying and looked down at the dog with dumbfounded eyes.

"Max?"

Wong wong wong!

Although it is said to be a wolfdog larger than a normal dog, it is still not even a handful in front of Vajra, who is 4 meters tall.

Nevertheless, Max's attitude was nothing short of brave. She was devastated because Vajra was a spirit, and if she were alive, she would have attacked and bitten her at any moment.

Crrrrr-

I am strong! I am huge!

Vajra was startled and asked Seongjin.

[Wait a minute, human! Is this wolf really an Ionian wolf?]

"Huh? This isn't a wolf, it's my dog."

[A dog, that can't be possible! I definitely feel a connection between that dog and me that cannot be expressed in words! It's a close connection, like a bond between family members!]

This time it was Seongjin's turn to growl at him.

"What? Are you coveting my dog now?"

[No, that's not what I mean, human! Don't misunderstand!]

Seeing Seongjin's unusual change in attitude, Vajra quickly waved his hand.

[I'm just talking about that wolf's bloodline! It means a deep connection between races that has been passed down from generation to generation, like the wolves of Ionia!]

"....."

[If I had to say it, it goes back to the mythical era. Originally, the wolves of Ionia have been faithful companions and members of the Lycanslopes for a long time. As a human being, you would not even be able to guess the infinite possibilities they have.]

Speaking of possibility, it reminds me of Max at the time when Louise was controlling him. Are you talking about becoming one with your family and transforming into a huge person?

-okay. Was it the blood of the Ionian wolf? Although it is a clumsy hybrid, it is probably a bloodline rarely seen in this dimension anymore.

Come to think of it, it seems like the Berseus guy in the ice canyon also said something about the bloodline of the Ionian wolf to Max.

'Come to think of it, that bastard also coveted my dog!'

Where did you say it? Did he say he was an old lord again? When we meet again, only this time I will drink you to the bone!

As I was feeling indignant again, Vajra's face suddenly brightened.

[Ah, everything is resolved! Leave my soul stone to this dog! I'm sure you can take me to where the Lord is!]

"what.....?"

Seongjin blinked.

"Wait, what on earth are you talking about? What are you asking Max to do?"

Send a small puppy like this to a magical world where glamor trolls and lycan slopes are rampant? Alone?

"Are you out of your mind? No!"

When Seongjin firmly refused, Bajra beat her chest in frustration.

[So, you, a human, don't know the true power of this wolf! It's just a simple errand and there won't be any problems!]

Seongjin was about to get angry again, but Max barked vigorously as if he had been waiting.

Wong!

".....?"

I looked back at Max, feeling anxious, and saw the dog barking confidently, wagging its tail at Seongjin.

Wong wong!

"No, but Max is an ordinary wolfdog...."

Wong!

you can do it! Because I am strong and huge!

"So you can't transform right now...."

Max, my father is trying to flatly refuse an inappropriate request, so what happens to me if you leave here like that?

However, it was difficult to ignore Max, who was staring at him with bright eyes.

"Keu...."

I guess it's because he's a puppy. Why is my child so immature?

Seongjin, who had been holding his forehead for a while, had no choice but to pick up the Amulet of Nebraska. Well, I don't have a bad feeling, and Max even asked for Louise's shoes.

"I hope the soul stone is delivered properly without falling into Max's stomach."

[Ah, thank you! Thank you so much!]

Wong wong wong!

... These are noisy.

"Oh, right!"

Before extracting the soul stone from the amulet, Seongjin asked Vajra one last time.

"Now that I think about it, I've been curious about something for a while. Who is that devil you mentioned?"

Apparently, in the ice canyon, Vajra had said this.

-Are you trying to get rid of that devil's [flower garden]? Are you going to become the last hope of your poor, deluded compatriots?

Did you say that the blue flowers growing wild in Magyeong suddenly increased explosively? As the word [flower garden] literally means, doesn't it mean that someone is deliberately growing those flowers in the magic garden?

Then Vajra answered with a dark face.

[I don't really know what that person is. I vaguely remember meeting with Berseus, the prison guard of the Demonic World, a few times.]

Seongjin nodded, but it became difficult to manage his expression for a moment as he continued his words.

[It seems like Berseus calls him 'Puppet Master'.]

".....!"

* * *

That night, Logan and Martha, who finished work late, stopped by Seongjin's room.

"As expected, the Margrave seems to be avoiding me."

Logan said with concern in his voice.

"Isn't it just a coincidence?"

"No, Brother Martha. Sir Vincent has retired from the front lines, so you might think so, but isn't it strange that it's so hard to meet the Margrave face-to-face even though he continues to participate in sweeps?"

It was worth it. Margrave Hendrick had previously refused to allow Logan, who was returning from a subjugation, to stay in his territory.

It's just that the fact that he received help is clear and there is a relationship with Seongjin, so they can't just throw him out like before. Instead, she seems to have decided to avoid Logan herself.

"Why on earth do you find me so annoying?"

I know. I thought the negotiations on the drug cart issue were roughly over, but is there something more left?

While Seongjin was lost in thought, Logan spoke.

"Well, there is still plenty of time to find out. The Lilium Special Forces will arrive soon."

Since I was officially dispatched from the Imperial Capital under the pretext of helping Lord Sigismund, I don't think the Margrave can do anything about me staying here for a while.

"Why didn't you come with me?"

"They must be riding as fast as they can. I'm just faster."

Seongjin once again realized how ridiculous Logan had been.

It took Seongjin and his party more than 15 days to reach Sigismund Range. Let's not even put aside the fact that we defeated the demon beast in the middle.

When I looked at Logan blankly, he smiled proudly.

"Now have you realized how grateful you are for this brother?"

"What are you talking about? Don't talk nonsense, little brother."

When Seongjin frowned and replied, Masain next to him made a face that said, 'It's the beginning again.'

"Anyway, when the special forces arrive, don't hesitate. Let's pack our bags and leave here right away. There's no time to waste. Now, let's go home."

"....."

But there was no response from Logan, who thought he would say, "I'm your older brother."

"what's the matter?"

When Seongjin asked curiously, the light returned to the eyes of Logan, who was blankly looking at Seongjin. His face seemed to have realized something again.

"house....."

Yes, home.

I responded with a sullen expression, and only then did the corners of Logan's mouth curve slightly. It was a very cautious, yet very reassuring smile.

"I see, I should go home. My sister and Sisley are probably waiting for me right now."

252. Attic (1)

The news of Sigismund was delivered straight to the imperial capital through Arenger. It had been less than a day since the fastest dispatcher left the territory.

It goes without saying that Amelia and Sisley were greatly relieved by the good news that Chamberlain Louis had hinted at. Lunch at Jinju Palace, which had been lonely until now, was unusually lively that day.

"Logan must have been in a hurry. So you two will be back soon, right?"

"Yes, Sisley. Perhaps we will reach the ecliptic within a month?"

The little saint looked puzzled at Amelia's answer.

"Huh? It's all over. Aren't you coming right away?"

"I heard that the territory was once very dangerous. In such a situation, the two of you will not leave right away. The scars from the large-scale battle are bigger than you think. The aftermath will not be resolved so easily."

The work of the Liliun Detachment began now. Suppression of the sea beasts and demonic beasts was also subjugation, but healing the wounds of the affected subjects and helping them rebuild was even more important.

"But you said Brother Mores and Brother Logan did a great job? That's enough. The rest can be left to the Sigismund people. Why wait another month?"

"It's not that simple, Sisley. Unlike the subjugation that Logan usually planned, this time the Lilium Detachment was officially dispatched with the clear purpose of 'rescuing the Sigismund Spirit.'"

Although it was hasty, the budget was executed through formal procedures. For that reason, it is highly likely that he will remain in the Sigismund Territory for some time in order to show acceptable results to the administration and the Church.

There is probably a mountain of work to do in the estate.

In order to focus on reconstruction for a while, we need to use momentum to drive out the demonic beasts deep into the demon realm. We also need to treat the wounded and pay tribute to the dead.

Lilium's paladins are capable of both.

Sisley sighed slightly after hearing Amelia's calm explanation.

"Then I guess I can't help it. I wanted to quickly show the two of you the results of my training so far..."

Sisley has now learned how to wield the flail quite convincingly.

Then Amelia smiled softly at her very disappointed sister.

"You just have to train harder for another month. Wouldn't you be able to surprise them both by becoming even stronger?"

"is it?"

"Of course. Besides, you know how serious Mores is about his training. If you want to surprise him, no amount of training will go a long way."

"Yeah, that's right."

After all, if it's not hard, it's not proper training, right? But I never get tired. Should I just increase the intensity and time of my training?

I'm thinking that the Inquisitors of St. Marsyas would have been horrified if they had found out, but Amelia added quietly to Sisley.

"Furthermore, most of Sigismund's soldiers will be focused on repairing the ice wall. Although it collapsed once, there is no other defense that can be made faster and stronger than that to guard against the demonic realm."

"I see. So even if you chase after the demon beasts, you won't be able to go on horseback, right? Because on the way back, you'll have to climb over the ice wall without moving on a pulley. It might take longer than you think."

"That's right. You know a lot about ice walls, Sisley?"

"Yes, I read it in a book."

Sisley nodded hesitantly.

In fact, it is not a book on the market, but a book I read in my dream. In Volume 1 of [Delcross Chronicles], which features Orden as the main character, this ice wall was discussed in detail.

"But why doesn't Margrave Sigismund build a proper gate in the ice wall?"

This was something I was very curious about when I read the chronicle.

Can't we just build a door? Isn't it extremely inefficient to deliberately climb over an ice wall using a rope?

"That's strangely because of the magic's special ability to make ice grow little by little. The ice grows even in places where there is no water. No matter how big you break through the ice wall and create a door, everything freezes over after a while."

Amelia sipped some after-dinner tea and smiled slightly.

"So in the end, all that remains is a narrow tunnel that can barely fit one person through."

What was even more surprising was that the ice no longer grew after such a narrow tunnel was created.

"But isn't that strange?"

Sisley, who had been calculating in his head for a moment, tilted his head.

"Ice grows so fast that it blocks the castle gates, so why doesn't the ice in the canyon keep increasing? They say the Demon World has already existed since the era of the three ancient dragons, right? So now, after so many years, it has crossed the Sigismund Range and covered the continent with ice. It wouldn't be surprising if I said that."

"If you think about it that way, the existence of the Demon Lord itself is a mystery."

"hmm....."

"Just as no one knows the reason why the demonic landscape is frozen in the cold all year round, no one knows the reason for the phenomenon. It's just that stories like this have been handed down for a long time."

Amelia's gray eyes sink deeply. It's about revisiting old memories that have now faded away.

A long time ago. When she was finally able to run without falling, she heard someone's voice whispering in her ear.

-A long time ago, an old wizard who lived during the era of the three ancient dragons found a beautiful flower field in the forest one day and made a wish. Please make sure that no one enters or enters this secret land except me... ..

"...I hope that there is no existence other than me. So that this place is protected forever from the world. And I hope that it becomes my own paradise that no army can invade."

The girl's dreamy, blurred eyes slowly regain focus.

"It is said that his words became a curse, and from then on, the forest became a magic world covered in a cold blizzard. I heard that from then on, the magic world does not allow intrusion from the outside and opens the way only for that wizard."

I flinch.

Seo Yi-seo, in Cadmus mode, who was moving the dishes by herself, stopped her hands and slowly raised her head.

"Really? There is such a story. It's fascinating."

The little saint tilted her head.

It was a story that was not told anywhere, let alone in the [Delcross Chronicles].

"I heard it when I was too young, so I don't really remember the source. I think someone read the book to me."

At that time, Cadmus tightened his slitted pupils and asked Amelia.

[How do you know this, descendant? Who heard that from?]

"...yes?"

[The crazy old man asked from whom he had heard the curse on the Demon Lord.]

Cadmus the insectivore's face was extremely serious. Amelia met Sisley's gaze for a moment and calmly answered him.

"Like I just said, I don't remember exactly because it happened when I was young. Did someone tell me a story or read a book to me?"

[You read it in a book? That can't be possible! There are very few people who know about it, so it's unlikely that anyone left it in writing.]

Cadmus' bright golden eyes sparkled and shined.

[Where on earth did you pick this up and read it? Descendants. Think about it carefully. Is this something like < Exploration of the Miraculous Continent > written by Granius? From what I heard, the book contains all kinds of miscellaneous stories from the continent.]

"I don't remember very well, but I think that's probably not the case, Cadmus."

Among Granius' many works, <Exploration of the Miraculous Continent> is the only book banned by the Holy See.

All of the books Amelia encountered as a child belonged to Count Sigismund, so there was no way such a thing as a banned book could have existed in such a place.

Then the little saint warned Cadmus with a cold face.

"You should not mention a banned book designated by the Holy Assembly so easily, Your Majesty the First Holy Emperor. Don't end up causing trouble to Amelia and Seo Yi-seo by saying such things carelessly."

[...] No, descendants. I just... ..]

"If you are borrowing someone else's body as you please, shouldn't you at least distinguish between words that may harm her?"

The meaning of the cool gray eyes staring at him was clear.

-If you've ate that much, shouldn't you take care of that much yourself, you useless glutton?

Cadmus, who was very fond of Sisley, looked deeply hurt by her cold attitude, especially towards him. Then, he suddenly pouts, and the color of his irises returns to dark brown.

"Huh? Mr. Sisley? What is this...."

Seo Yi-seo was in a daze, unable to realize that her body had suddenly been returned. She then found the exquisite feast spread out before her eyes and shed tears of joy.

"Ba...Baab!"

Wagu wagu.

The fake saint's second storm of food inhalation began. It is somewhat understandable that her rich priestly clothes have recently started to become more and more tight to her body.

"...I guess I'll have to go a little late with Seo Yi-seo because it's like this. Don't you have an appointment today?"

"Okay. Then I'll wake up first, Sisley."

A sight that has already become a daily routine for the sisters.

Amelia said goodbye to the two lightly and stood up.

After leaving the Pearl Palace, Amelia headed straight to the Silver Rose Labyrinth.

Recently, I spent most of my time at the main palace assisting Seonghwang with government affairs, but today afternoon I was looking forward to meeting Lady Chloe.

"I am still young, so I was not able to attend this birthday banquet, but I think I know very well what the Breton people looked like when they showed up to the imperial palace banquet, Your Majesty."

As always, Chloe, who had brought in a Breton periodical to study foreign languages, grumbled with a dissatisfied face as she carefully sipped her Melbourne tea.

"My goodness, do you know what the streets of d'Este are like these days? Young people, both men and women, paint their cheeks red and stick out their red lips like bird beaks!"

"haha."

Amelia smiled with an embarrassed face.

"I heard that applying blush to your face is all the rage in Brittany right now, Chloe. Even at your birthday party, people said you looked like you had a healthy complexion and it was quite well received."

"Huh? Are you really saying that nobles showed up to the banquet hall looking like that?"

Chloe raised her eyes wide, then frowned and frowned.

"Isn't it so unsightly? I really hate that clown-like blush, my dear."

Chloe was astute in her behavior for her age, but she had recently been frequenting the Silver Rose Palace and her guard had been lowered.

In particular, she was gradually opening up to the noble princess who treated her younger self with respect as a lady.

That's why I feel comfortable making complaints that I would never do outside.

"Although my family's roots are in Brittany, I actually don't like the pretentious atmosphere that's unique there. I don't know what an advanced culture is, and I especially wish we could avoid that kind of clown culture."

Amelia felt something new as she looked at the little girl pouting her lips.

-I would like to ask my father to ban cheek rouge altogether, sister. If I imagine the Imperial Palace Guards all lined up wearing red cheekbones, I think I'll have a nightmare right away, even tonight.

At that moment, I remembered my younger brother, who had been complaining with a sullen face not long ago, and I couldn't help but laugh.

Needless to say, as soon as she felt that she resembled Mores, Amelia's intimacy with Chloe skyrocketed.

"That's because Brittany is a country where performing arts and arts are as developed as its food culture, Chloe. There are many theater actors who are extremely popular there. People look up to them so much that they end up wearing excessive makeup like theater actors. It is said that this has become a trend."

"Oh, is that so?"

Yes, Lady Chloe.

Therefore, it is best not to be too dismissive of other countries' cultures just because they seem ridiculous. The future Minister of Foreign Affairs chosen by my younger brother.

Then Chloe blushed and expressed admiration.

"I always think about you, the princess. You are truly amazing. How do you know so much about countries outside the empire? There are stories that not many people know about and that are not even in books."

"Oh, no. That's just what I heard from someone, Lady Chloe."

Even as she answered like that, Amelia was secretly curious.

'I know. 'Who on earth did I hear this from?'

Until now, I thought it was nothing special, thinking I had read it in a book somewhere.

However, after listening to Cadmus' question and thinking about it carefully, he had no recollection of reading a book with such content.

At that time, someone's voice faintly appeared in Amelia's mind again.

-That word would mean something like 'deep and deep' in the imperial language. And there might also be the word 'angel'. Let's see, what's another word with Arrhc in it...?

Who is it? Who would have told that story to their younger self? No matter how hard I tried, I couldn't figure out who it was.

However, despite the vagueness, Amelia felt a sense of nostalgia somewhere, and kept tilting her head.

* * *

Max's errand didn't take as long as expected.

The next evening.

When I let the dog in, scratching at the door, Max ran towards me with his tail wagging, and then carefully placed something he was carrying in front of Seongjin.

It was Louise's remaining pair of shoes.

"...You really met Louise! Well done!"

Seongjin guessed that Max had somehow delivered the soul stone properly. Louise must have sent the one remaining pair of shoes in response.

'Anyway, Louise must have gone a long way barefoot in the end.'

Seongjin gathered his shoes neatly and placed them on the floor.

This is the last trace of my daughter, so I need to properly convey it to Sir Ilma and Sir Sebastian. I must tell them that I think Louise left it at the Count's residence.

"Good job, Max! That's amazing."

When Seongjin praised the dog and rubbed its head, the dog started wagging its tail and barking vigorously.

Wong wong!

[joy! Still, that mongrel dog will not be your last companion!]

At that time, the devil suddenly spoke in my head as if grumbling.

'... 'Did you still keep it?'

Is that important anyway?

[Of course, heng! Because only this body in this world can do it!]

The mood of the snorting Demon King became much brighter.

Well, I'm glad you're feeling better. Why do you take such pride in such a strange place?

And that night, the Liliu detachment finally arrived at Sigismund Territory.

253

253. Attic (2)

The Lilium Detachment, which spent the night near Sigismund Range, confidently entered the territory the next morning.

Seongjin and Logan left the Count's residence to greet them. It was a half-joking letter, but in any case, it was he who had called them here.

"But if we had arrived last night, wouldn't it have been better to just come into the estate and rest?"

Logan slowly shook his head in response to Seongjin's question.

"You only know one thing and you don't know the other, Lee Seongjin. You should also consider the circumstances of the count's residence, which suddenly has to welcome a large number of guests in the middle of the night."

What is there to know about the Count's circumstances? They owe us a lot anyway. Anyway, that guy has too many thoughts about various things.

Seongjin was thinking that with a sullen expression on his face, but Logan looked back and smiled knowingly.

"Besides, entering the Holy Knights in a good manner is the most important thing. Outsiders may not know this, but the first thing you learn when you join the Holy Knights is how to properly dress up and conduct a review ceremony."

"...A four-line ceremony? It's not swordsmanship?"

"Yes. In a way, it is an insight into the essence of the Holy Knights. In order to spread the Lord's will to the world, 'showing off' in a good way is more important than using 'force'."

Seongjin was dumbfounded.

Show it off nicely.

"Isn't it a bit unsightly to be considered a Holy Knight's duty? What is it?"

"Who cares if it helps your subjects in some way? Moderate display and boasting can sometimes be the solution to solving many problems in advance without making a fuss."

After explaining that, Logan slightly raised the corners of his mouth. It was a smile that seemed somewhat self-mocking.

"And as you will know from experience, people find more comfort in these show-off events than they think. Even though they know deep down that they have no substance."

They believe that the proud appearance of the Holy Knights is proof that the power of the Lord is fully present on this land.

Although they are suffering from the misfortune that is right in front of them, they still try to believe that there is someone's hidden meaning behind their suffering.

"...Then you think there is no God's will? You are a paladin who serves the Lord?"

"Well, guess what?"

Logan simply answered with a calm expression.

"How can I, a mere human being, guess about God's grand plan? Just watching the refugees in my country suffer for a long time makes me wonder what use it is to have someone else's plan based on their sacrifice."

"....."

"...No, I said something unnecessary. Don't worry about it."

On both sides of the wide road leading from the entrance to the estate to the count's residence, more people than expected were out to see the famous Lilium Detachment.

Although they could not hide their haggardness in the chaotic atmosphere, the faces of the people in the territory were still glowing with a faint sense of relief and hope. I felt like I knew what 'comfort' Logan was talking about.

And then the Lilium detachment, slowly riding along the road, came into view.

"hmm."

Indeed, it is as Logan said. The knights, dressed in clean white uniforms, all looked strong and proud.

It's only been six days since we left the imperial capital.

Considering that they must have raced like crazy to get here, they look incredibly undisturbed.

'hmm? Come to think of it... ... !'

Even after running at crazy speed and getting knocked down in a tough battle, there was one more neat guy.

When Seongjin looked at Logan with new eyes, he asked back as if he was puzzled.

"why?"

"Uh, it's nothing."

Is it possible that the next thing Paladins learn after the parade is laundry?

Seongjin could barely swallow the question that was stuck in his throat.

"Lowering!"

At that time, the Paladins of Liliun who came close to them all stopped talking and jumped down.

The people who had kept their mouths solemnly shut when they entered the territory could almost feel their expressions brightening the moment Logan looked at them.

chuck!

The look in their eyes as they show respect by placing their hands on their chests is not only brilliant but also very burdensome.

"Sir Otto, Sir Ely, Sir Duchamp."

Logan spoke brightly as he approached the three people in the lead.

"Everyone had a hard time rushing along to meet my greed."

"This is nothing, sir!"

"Yes. Can I ask you to be a little sorry? It was a long journey without rest, but I think we will have to join the chase team right away without a break. The damage to the territory was considerable, and a considerable number of Lycanslopes safely escaped to the Demonic Land. ."

"What can I say? I'm sorry! I can only thank God for giving me this precious opportunity to serve His Majesty Logan and his subjects!"

and.

Seongjin took a step back with a tired look on his face.

I've thought about it before, but aren't these guys just big Logan fans?

'But it seems like it's not just empty words to say it's okay.'

The paladins checking the crossdressing moved more energetically than expected. It did not feel the slightest bit of fatigue from the trip, and it was truly a special unit renowned for subjugating demonic beasts.

They even managed to safely retrieve Logan's beloved horse, which he had no choice but to leave behind.

"Roxana!"

At Logan's happy shout, a snow-white horse approaches him at a fast gait. It was a beautiful horse wearing the insignia of the Order of St. Bastian.

Ta-bak-ta-bak.

With its long legs and elegant neck, it looks like it can run as fast as the wind at a glance.

The horse blinked its long eyelashes and stared at Logan for a moment, then lowered its head and rubbed its forehead affectionately against his chest.

"You arrived safely. I'm really sorry for leaving you here alone."

When Logan tapped his neck, the horse purred and snorted softly.

The eyes were full of affection for their owner, but at first glance they seemed very gentle... ..

'It seems like he has a tough temperament.'

Is it just my mood? As I was tilting my head, the quiet Demon Lord intervened.

[what? He's a strangely pretentious guy, isn't he?]

'okay? 'You feel that way too.'

[joy! It's exactly the same feeling I got when I saw that mixed breed dog. A person with a bad personality only shows off in front of his master!]

... But why does this guy hate Max so much?

* * *

Afterwards, the organization of the chase team accelerated.

From the ice wall base to the battle near the territory. The Wolf Knights, who suffered major and minor injuries, found it difficult to fully demonstrate their usual capabilities.

In the meantime, the joining of the Lilium Detachment was bound to be like a sweet rain in a drought. Among the paladins, they were the only unit with a lot of records of subjugating demonic beasts, and they were also the ones who performed the role of healing priests in times of need.

Therefore, Margrave Hendrick, who did not like Logan and the Paladins, would have had no choice but to accept them without hesitation.

Of course, there were also hidden difficulties for the couple who took the lead in the affairs of the estate.

Although the whereabouts of their only daughter, Louise, are unknown, there is no time for Sir Ilma and Sir Sebastian to be lost in their sorrow. They were people who had a very heavy responsibility on their shoulders to sit down due to personal reasons.

However, he couldn't abandon Youngji's work and run out to find his daughter.

Sir Ilma silently organized a pursuit party, hiding his sorrow, and Sir Sebastian also gathered his troops and repaired the boundaries of the ice walls and canyons that had once collapsed.

"Edith, did you get the shoes to Sir Ilmar?"

"Yes, sir."

"Okay, whatever you say?"

"He just said he was grateful for being friendly with Louise."

Although the shoes were delivered to them through Edith, Seongjin couldn't help but be concerned because he knew Louise's true whereabouts.

As I looked at the two people, who were strong Auror users, becoming lighter day by day, I felt a bitter taste in my mouth as I wondered how terrible their suffering must have been.

"Anyway, it's surprising. I'm glad you didn't make a fuss about following me to the Demon Lord."

"What? Am I a child? Why are you acting like a herd?"

When Seongjin frowned, Logan blinked with a harmless expression.

"I heard you're a fighting fanatic who jumps in whenever there's a commotion? If something happens, you're always there."

"...That's a serious misunderstanding, man. Who the hell says that?"

"Um, brother Masain?"

"What?"

Lord Masaine? Is your faith in me only that much?

When Seongjin looked back with shocked eyes, Masain quietly looked to the side.

[Put your hand on your heart and think. Can you deny that?]

'... shut up!'

In any case, since the entire Lilium detachment was organized into a pursuit group, Logan, who led them, naturally headed to the Demon World with them.

On the other hand, Seongjin, who was actively at the forefront during the demonic beasts' movement, decided to take a step back this time. Because he didn't want to go through the trouble of buying something that wasn't necessary.

I have Logan, so why should I worry? This guy is trying to figure it out.

'I'm going to train here, but when I have time, I'll learn how to manipulate the ice heart from my father.'

Since he is a man who is passionate about construction work, wouldn't Seongjin need to stay quiet in one place to learn well?

In addition, it was time for Lord Masain and the resident knights to get some rest. Seongjin also realized that he had been overworking them too much.

"I will finish it as soon as possible and come back. Let's all go back to the imperial capital together."

"Uh, okay."

Logan, who was turning towards the chase team, suddenly turned back to Seongjin as if he remembered something.

"Oh, that's right. Seongjin Lee, I had something to give you."

"huh?"

"I had taken care of it, but I completely forgot about it when you suddenly collapsed."

And surprisingly, what he held out was the magic stone that Seongjin had lost and the 'ice heart' of the Glacher Troll.

"Two hearts?! Where did they come from?"

"I found it when I caught the demon you mentioned earlier. You have something similar, right? The demon is holding it carefully in both hands, so it looks like it's important, so I brought it with me."

Seongjin looked at Logan with disbelieving eyes.

Wow, I never asked for anything special, but a competent guy is different no matter what!

"Why are you so surprised?"

"No, it's nothing."

Seongjin accepted the cold ice chunks from him with a very flushed face.

There are as many as three ice hearts. Now, I'm excited just thinking about what I can do with this!

"As expected, you are much better than that useless Dekaron Knight!"

"Wow, Seongjin Lee!"

Logan was startled by Seongjin's praise and carefully cautioned him.

As expected, they were concerned that old Vincent, who was with the chase team, would hear their conversation nearby.

"The Sigismund family is a great noble family from the border that once formed an independent kingdom. Sir Vincent, in particular, is a hero who protected the southern front and contributed greatly to the stability of the empire. No matter how much we are members of the royal family, we must show courtesy befitting an outstanding veteran."

But Seongjin snorted.

"Oh, it's okay. Don't worry. There's no need to show any manners between that senile old man and me."

"what?"

In a way, they are very informal, sharing disrespect and insults with each other.

Then he flinched. The ears of old Vincent, who was standing at the head of the chase team, twitched.

Now, are you listening? Then reflect deeply in your heart, you useless Dekaron Knight!

"....."

The old man gave Seongjin an unpleasant look for a moment, but did not try to argue with them.

When old man Vincent, who was famous for his eccentricity, became unexpectedly quiet, Logan looked at him and Seongjin alternately with a puzzled look. I wonder what this has to do with it.

Anyway, Seongjin happily waved his hand at Logan as he left.

"Finish it quickly and come back."

"Okay, you too, don't get into any trouble during this time."

"....."

... It looks like we need to have a serious conversation with Lord Masaine.

It was when I was seeing off the departing chase team and turning around with a sad look on my face. Orden slowly approached Seongjin and opened his mouth.

"Lowering."

"huh?"

Orden also decided to leave this chase. When it comes to military power, he is unrivaled, so if it's unexpected, it's surprising.

I could only guess roughly that there might be disharmony between the family head and the various circumstances in the territory.

However, even after calling Seongjin, he was contemplating something for a long time, and after observing Masain's feelings, he whispered softly. He had a cautious attitude, unbecoming of a simple and ignorant person.

"If you have time, I would like to show you something."

"Really? What is that?"

"It's a bit difficult to explain it here. I'd like you to go and see it in person first. Could you please accompany me?"

Still, he hesitated for a moment, looked at Seongjin, and then added softly.

"...It's about Princess Amelia."

254. Attic (3)

The place where Orden guided Seongjin was a small attic at the top of the expanded count's residence.

"The princess often spent time here when she was young."

Hearing Orden's explanation, Seongjin looked around the room in silence.

Rough wooden floors that were damaged in places and shabby walls that were not finished properly.

Light leaked in from a small field window covered in white dust, and a small bed filled with blowing straw smelled like the dry sunlight of early autumn.

'... What did you spend most of your time on? Surely this wasn't where your sister stayed?'

Is it simply my mood that gives me a somewhat sad premonition?

Meanwhile, Seongjin discovered small graffiti written here and there on the wall. The words were written in clumsy, round handwriting that appeared to belong to a child.

"...Is this your sister's?"

"Yes, sir."

Indeed, you have shown the qualities of a master penman since childhood. Even now, my dexterity is a mess, but my handwriting is very fluid.

Seongjin traced the words with his hands, immersed in a strange sentiment. These were words that a child would learn for the first time, and even Seongjin could read.

Mom, Dad, Family, Belle, Mom, Dad...

-Reading books with my family has been my long-time dream.

Suddenly, Amelia's face, smiling happily while reading a storybook to Seongjin, came to mind.

However, among them, a few unrecognizable words stood out. I couldn't read it at all, so I asked what it was, and Orden nodded.

"It's not the imperial language, sir. It's Breton."

"okay?"

"yes."

Orden explained that they were letters that meant church, angel, hut, etc.

"The princess is extremely intelligent, and this quality must have been evident since she was young. She learned Breton on her own, even though she had never learned it."

... Didn't you learn it?

When Seongjin widened his eyes at the somewhat subtle explanation, Orden realized this and smiled bitterly.

"Yes, as far as I know, no one has taught the young princess Breton. She has never had a teacher here. Perhaps, if the meaning of those words was something different, the princess might have been branded a witch."

Who dares accuse the princess of the Holy Empire of being a witch?

Seongjin's face hardened. As was the case with the attic she was guided to, I somehow had a feeling that the truth I would learn later would not be very pleasant.

"The reason I invited you here is because I have some items that I would like to show you and then decide on how to dispose of them."

After saying that, Orden bent down and felt under the small bed. He tears off a wooden plank hidden deep inside and carefully pulls something out from within.

Eventually, he stood up and held out a small wooden box to Seongjin.

"These are treasures that the princess hid when she was young. No one in this mansion knows about them other than me, not even the employees."

Seongjin's eyebrows went up.

"Your sister told you about it separately?"

"That's not true. I just spent time here when I was at the mansion, so I naturally learned about places where a little girl might hide things."

Seongjin accepted the box handed out by Orden. There was a lot of dust accumulated and the joints were distorted, making it more suitable to be called trash rather than a treasure chest.

Creak.

The lid opened with a cloud of dust, and soon the contents, similar to the box itself, were revealed.

A lump of dried straw, a piece of old cloth, a small white seashell, and a small pendant broken in half.

"This is a treasure...."

Seongjin took a deep breath without realizing it. No matter how much they belong to a child who doesn't know much about the world, they are things that are unlikely to be treasured.

Aside from shells and pendants, what about straw?

"Oh, it's a doll. They said this is the head and this is the legs."

It looked like the limbs of a doll were split into several pieces and tied together.

"It even had a proper name. Bell... I think it was called Belluna."

Seongjin could not hide his desolation, but Orden's eyes as he looked at the straw had an unusually soft glow.

As if every little memory with Amelia was precious.

"So, what do you want to ask me by showing me this?"

Orden nodded to Seongjin's question.

"I have always wanted to give this box to the princess. It is a treasure that the young princess cherishes. But at the same time, I was afraid."

"afraid?"

"yes."

Orden's eyes darkened as he answered like that.

"I think the princess, who is currently living happily, will have a hard time the moment she sees the box, recalling unhappy memories from her childhood."

* * *

The first time Orden got to know Amelia was around the age of 10, when she had just begun training to become a squire.

Whenever I practiced swordsmanship in the garden, I would occasionally catch a glimpse of a white face peering down from the attic window.

".....?"

It was a girl with a pale, expressionless small face and long, wispy hair.

At first glance, she looked like a ghost, but young Orden didn't find the girl scary at all.

Despite her sinister appearance, the girl was as pretty as a fairy.

"There is a fairy living in the attic of this mansion."

"huh?"

"It's a pretty girl fairy."

It would have been natural for young Orden to inadvertently bring up such a story.

He was very curious about the girl's identity and wanted to tell anyone about his little fairy.

It was unfortunate that the target was his younger brother Emmett.

"What kind of stupid talk is that?"

Emmett, who was swinging a sword next to him, made a strange expression.

"Are you crazy? Why are you talking in your sleep like that during the day?"

"...Do you want to get hit?"

Orden, angry that his story was being ignored, threatened Emmett.

Then the obnoxious younger brother quickly stepped back and made a fuss.

"You're still a kid! You're just a kid! Everyone is talking about being the eldest son and a genius, but I'm a much more worthy successor than my stupid brother!"

"Shut your mouth, Emmett. Before you get beat up."

"Hmph! Try it! Do you think I'll let that happen?"

Emmett stuck out his mouth in disgust and quickly ran to his grandmother in the garden.

"Grandma! Look at Brother Orden! He's been saying such stupid things since a while ago. He's talking nonsense about there being a fairy in the attic!"

Emmett was so excited that he buried himself in the width of his grandmother's skirt and chatted, as if he thought he had caught something.

"Emmett! Stop it! Grandma, that's not actually it...."

"What do you mean, Orden? If it's a ghost, there's no way there are fairies in this world. You must have seen something wrong."

".....?"

"Stop talking nonsense and start training quickly. Before I confess to your father that you are being lazy."

Jomo decisively cut off their conversation without even asking for details. Orden still could not forget the bloodshot eyes of his grandmother, who glared coldly at him at that time.

For several days after that, for some reason, Orden could not see the girl in the attic.

'I guess she really was a fairy. 'Did I disappear from the world because I told people about it?'

Somehow, I felt sad and had that thought.

But the next day, the girl appeared again at the attic window. Her face, which she had praised as pretty, was marred by bruises.

Only then did Orden realize that the girl was not a fairy or something, but a real person in the attic.

As time passed, Orden learned little by little about the girl's circumstances.

The girl's name is Amelia, and she is a distant relative of Orden. The girl, who had no one to rely on after her mother died young, was brought in by her grandfather, the Margrave.

The reason why the workers kept quiet about her was because there was an order by Orden's grandmother, Countess Sigismund at the time, to keep quiet.

The Countess hated her husband's illegitimate son and sent him away to a villa in the snowy mountains, and she also hated her only blood relative so much.

As a result, everyone locked Amelia in the attic and treated her as if she didn't exist. It is common for them to not even bring meals on time.

Orden, who could not bear to see the girl growing thinner, secretly took Amelia out of the attic one night and took her to the kitchen.

The girl followed him hesitantly, holding a bundle of straw in her small hands.

"Amell, what is that? Why are you holding such trash?"

"...It's Belle."

Perhaps because he rarely speaks, his voice sounded a little slurred.

Nevertheless, Orden thought that Amel's voice was as beautiful as a chirping little bird. If Emmett had found out, he would have made fun of her.

"It's not trash, it's my doll."

"Yes. Belle? You gave it to me? It's a pretty name."

However, Amel's answer to the thoughtless question was unexpected.

"dad....."

"huh?"

"Dad gave it to me."

Orden was momentarily speechless.

But, Amel, you said you don't have a father. Grandma is always cursing your mother.

An illegitimate child gave birth to another illegitimate child outside. It couldn't be more dirty and vulgar than this.

Of course, young Orden also had the wit to not say that thought out loud.

"Sit here, Amel."

Orden rummaged through the cupboard and found dry bread and small pieces of cheese, and regretfully handed them to Amelia along with water.

Then he sat across from the table and quietly watched the girl eat. I thought to myself that she was like a fairy as she gently pursed her mouth.

Amelia, who had let her guard down, soon began to tell Orden various stories.

"...So I kept watching it. Swordsmanship seemed interesting."

"Really? That's right. Don't you get bored when you're alone in your room?"

"It's okay. I write letters every day in my room."

The girl nodded dignifiedly, then lifted her clear gray eyes and looked dreamily into space.

"Besides, he said if I just wait a little while, dad will come get me soon."

"Who? Dad said that?"

Perhaps the lonely girl was dreaming alone. Orden felt pity for him and asked, and Amel shook her head.

"No, the sister with the black veil did that."

Sister wearing a black veil? It was an incredibly suspicious story.

"Who is that?"

"I don't know either."

Orden succeeded in having a little chat with Amel, even if it wasn't enough, and when the meal was over, he safely took Amel to the attic. And that night, she went to bed feeling very happy.

But the next day, the girl disappeared from the window again. Worried about her, Orden knocked cautiously on her trapdoor, but received no answer from inside.

Knock knock.

"Amel? What's going on? Are you okay?"

But behind him, a maid suddenly appeared and spoke coldly. She was a young maid who served her grandmother.

"She won't be able to move for a while, Master. Her leg is broken."

... what?

Orden's face turned white, but the maid spoke with a twisted smile.

"I heard you hid in the kitchen like a stray cat last night. Wouldn't those bad things come to their senses if we stopped them from moving at all?"

Was this done directly by Jomo, who occasionally hits Amel with her hand, or was it the work of employees who listened to Jomo's orders?

Anyway, at least one thing was certain.

'Everything I do, everything I do for Amel, is harming Amel!'

The boy realized his limitations and reality. No matter how hard he struggles, everything goes according to the adults' circumstances.

Orden completely gave up on approaching Amel. Maybe that's what his grandmother really intended.

'I'm sorry, Amel... ... '

Some time later, Amel reappeared at the attic window, but Orden tried to ignore her.

Amel, who occasionally made eye contact with sad eyes, soon became expressionless again, as if she had adapted to being ignored.

It was one day that three years had passed.

A person who claims to be Ammel's father appears in the Sigismund Territory.

"You've done a good job hiding the child all this time."

Pushing through the pale-faced people, an unusual man wearing a white robe walked into the Count's residence without hesitation. He was accompanied by a group of armed paladins.

-Your Majesty, that girl, it can't possibly be like that...

It was something that was not easy to believe, but Orden was confident even amidst the noise of people. It was indeed as the girl said, her father had appeared.

Orden, who observed Amell every time, could immediately see that the man's face had some resemblance to Amel.

That person was the one who passed on those clear gray eyes to Amel.

"dad.....!"

And the man facing the girl raised the corners of his mouth and smiled cruelly.

It was the first day Orden learned that a person's smiling face could be so scary.

255

255. Attic (4)

"Your Majesty, you can't do this! No matter how loyal Sigismund is to Delcross, you still lead a group of knights into the territory without any prior notice! This is a clear disregard for castle and imperial law!"

The person who stopped the Holy Emperor and the Holy Knights who suddenly attacked without warning was Archduke Hendrik Sigismund, who was not yet the head of the family at the time.

However, there was no hesitation in the young Seonghwang's steps.

"Are you saying such things even after deliberately hiding the existence of your daughter, a member of the royal family? If you had notified me in advance, what would you have done to my child?"

"that!"

"If you are curious, I can personally show you what it is like to threaten a territory with force. So, get out of the way quickly. Before I hold you responsible for all of this."

As soon as those words were out, Knight Commander Katrina, moving like the limbs of a holy emperor, raised her long shield and pushed the Archduke aside.

"Father! Say something to Your Majesty!"

Hendrick, embarrassed, looked back, but Margrave Vincent just looked at the sheep without saying a word.

"...father?"

Hendrick, who had called again as if puzzled, took a deep breath in surprise.

The Margrave was not just turning a blind eye to the Emperor's actions. He was just frozen in extreme fear and unable to move.

Is it because I recently reached the level of Dekaron Knight? He sensed an unprecedented danger emanating from the young emperor.

"What is your Majesty..."

Yes, I felt like a mere ant facing a huge storm. The moment you rashly step in, you feel helplessly caught up in it, unable to preserve its shape and feeling like it will be torn apart.

Meanwhile, the Holy Emperor, who had climbed to the top of the mansion, pushed the knights back a little and opened the door to the attic himself.

Sigh.

In the dim light coming from the entrance, a skinny girl appeared. He looked pitiful, wearing shabby clothes and one leg twisted at a strange angle.

Seonghwang seemed to be greatly shocked, forgetting what to say for a moment and staring at the scene in bewilderment.

"dad.....!"

At that time, Amel's eyes widened when he saw the success, and he smiled with joy.

It was obviously the first time we saw each other face to face, and it was as if we knew right away who our parents were.

However, the girl who was staggering towards him soon spotted the armed knights and flinched in surprise.

"...Amelia, how can you do that?"

A slightly low voice calls out the name of a daughter I have never heard.

Then the girl answered in a hushed voice.

"Well, my dad is a person who travels here and there by himself. He's never traveled with so many drivers...."

But I think it's my dad's face, which is really strange.

When the girl tilted her head, Seonghwang slowly approached the girl, fearing that she might be scared, and spoke.

"Yes. It is a good habit not to judge anything hastily. You are intelligent, Amelia."

"It's just like my dad to give such strange compliments. But my dad didn't even wear clothes this white and shiny like yours."

"....."

When Seonghwang silently approached and stopped, the girl, who had been thinking for a moment, looked up at him as if she had made up her mind.

"Then let me ask you one thing. Can you name my friend? My friend is the happiest girl with the biggest family in the world."

Then Seonghwang, who was thinking about something, answered.

"Then your friend is definitely the Belluna of the night sky. She is a happy goddess with beautiful daughters called Caliche of the sun and Olivier of the moon, and countless sons of stars."

Little Amel's face brightened noticeably at the answer.

"Well, then... what word starts with A and contains Arrhc? It's the first word my dad taught me, Breton."

"That word is probably 'angel', Amelia. Anyone who sees you will inevitably think of that word first."

Only then did Amel approach the crowd with a relieved smile on his face.

"Of course it's my dad!"

"....."

Orden couldn't understand. How can a father and daughter who have never seen each other have a conversation like that?

"What does all that mean now?"

Her father, Archduke Hendrick, also mumbles without knowing what he is saying.

Meanwhile, Seonghwang, who had been staring at Amel, who was barefoot for a moment despite the cold weather, took off the robes he was wearing and knelt down on one knee to make eye contact with the girl.

He then wrapped the robes around her shoulders and gently hugged her.

"My pretty clothes get dirty, Dad. The Countess always calls me a dirty child."

"Is that possible? You are the most precious and beautiful child in the world."

"But my clothes get dirty...."

"These robes exist because of you. So, if you don't accept them, these robes will have no meaning."

Seonghwang's expression looked surprisingly calm as he said that.

But everyone there saw blood clearly gushing from his neck. For a moment, it seemed as if his eyes were emitting a strange silver glow.

"I'm so sorry I found you so late, Amelia."

Amel let out a small laugh at the silent apology.

"The sister with the black veil has already apologized. She did. I am so sorry for taking my only father away from me."

"....."

"But I said I would be happier in the end because I would be able to meet more family."

"...Yes, that's right."

Seonghwang slowly stroked the girl's head and said something whose meaning was unknown.

"It was at that crossroads in Regina. It changed everything for you and me."

And soon, miraculous divine power poured down on Amel.

The girl's pale cheeks turned a pale rosy color, and her matted hair instantly became shiny. Her twisted leg also made a popping sound and then straightened.

'angel... ... '

Orden, who was staring at the scene blankly, suddenly thought. The little girl wrapped in her white robes looked as if she would become an angel and fly to the sky at any moment.

And Orden realized that the time to say goodbye to her had come. Amel is no longer her own little Amel.

I was so happy that my heart was pounding, but at the same time, I felt empty.

Murmur.

While everyone in the count's mansion was winking and whispering.

Seonghwang, who held Amel dearly, slowly got up and looked back at them. With a cruel smile plastered on the corner of his mouth.

Creepy.

The moment he faced his face with its brilliant eyes shining, Orden somehow felt a chill that was coming upon him, cutting into his soul.

Because I was worried about Amel and came closest, I was the first to meet his scary gaze.

"....."

However, Seonghwang, who looked down at him coldly for a moment, passed by and lightly tapped the boy on the shoulder.

Tuk.

".....!"

At first Orden thought he had been cold-heartedly pushed away.

But I soon realized that this was a very mild treatment for the Sigismund people.

Because the next person who faced the Holy Emperor's gaze was never safe.

"Kwaaaaaak!"

Tdu-duk, tdu-duk!

Even though no one touches it, the leg of a maid who was standing fine breaks and twists on its own. She was a young maid who took care of the countess's errands.

".....!"

"Aaaahhh!"

While everyone was embarrassed by the sudden situation, the young maid rolled around on the floor with foam at her mouth.

The bones that tore the skin and protrude are splashed with blood, and the muscles are crushed and explode all at once. It was as if an invisible demon was twisting her legs in various directions in the air.

In that grotesque scene, only the Holy Emperor and the Holy Knights who accompanied him were standing with calm faces.

Of course, the gentle-looking knight commander gave her a pitiful look for a moment.

"Off....."

In the end, in extreme pain, the maid closed her eyes and fainted.

Seonghwang looked down at her with eyes as cold as frost. Meanwhile, she did not forget to cover Amel's head with her robes and completely block her sound with her aura.

"...Are you done?"

In the moment of silence, someone's frightened voice rang out unusually loudly. But unfortunately, it was only a prelude to the bloodshed that was to come.

"Kaaaaaak!"

"Aaaah!"

Soon, people's screams were heard from all over the place.

Someone's arm is twisted at a scary angle, and someone else is screaming at the top of their lungs while holding on to their cracked skin.

Knock knock knock-

Toad duduk-

The excruciating pain was painful, but the extreme fear of an unknown phenomenon occurring in the air was strangling their breathing.

Only the terrible crashing sound and breathtaking screams completely engulfed the Count's mansion.

Orden, who was frozen and watching the whole scene, was horrified to find some familiar faces among those writhing in pain. And he soon realized one thing.

These phenomena all have distinct causes! The person who hit Amel's face had the entire skin of his face ripped off, and the person who twisted Amel's arm had his arm brutally chopped off and broken.

It was unclear how the detailed assaults that Amel suffered were being repeated with greater intensity.

However, it was clear that all of this was revenge for his daughter, carried out by Seonghwang, Amel's father.

"Ugh...."

After the cruel screams and wind of blood passed by. Only half of them were still standing.

'Did so many people participate in harassing Amel?'

While Orden was astonished at the new truth, Seonghwang, who was slowly looking around at the bloody scene, declared in a calm voice.

"But rest assured. You have committed a crime worthy of death, but I will not take your lives for the sake of my daughter. You have also been punished for carrying out what Sigismund commanded, and so will the rest of your ruined lives. Sigismund will take care of you."

And the next place that Seonghwang turned his eyes to was the place where the direct descendants of the Sigismund family were gathered.

"Your Majesty...!"

Archduke Hendrick, looking pale, stands in the way of his wife and young children. Behind them was Orden's grandmother, who was trembling with fear.

Then, Seonghwang made a cold accusation towards the Grand Duke.

"Are you going to ask for sympathy by pretending to protect Shik-sol? If it's for the sake of the territory, you can throw away even bloodied people like leftover firewood."

"Please stop! You can't treat a noble like this without a trial!"

"You probably don't know that the crime of insulting and injuring a member of the royal family can be punished immediately."

"If so, at least let her be formally tried! Although our treatment of the princess was negligent, it happened because no one knew she was the princess!"

Seonghwang shook his chin slightly without answering. He seemed to be asking me to talk more.

The Archduke bit his lip at that cold attitude, but there was no room for him to retreat any further.

"Of course, my mother couldn't even guess. She was just trying to control the family's illegitimate children in accordance with the family law, in accordance with the Lord's will not to be greedy for lust...!"

Cooung.

Archduke Hendrick could no longer speak. At that moment, the temperature around where he was standing dropped significantly, causing an eerie chill.

As the frozen Hendrick's chin trembled, Seonghwang, who was looking at him quietly, smiled a gentle smile. Apart from the frost-like eyes becoming even colder.

"Did you really think that I wouldn't know that you, who were the first to notice the fact, confuse the guild's investigation to cover up everything? What you did secretly to silence outsiders who knew about my daughter's whereabouts can never be hidden forever. "Did you think there would be?"

".....!"

"You even pretend to defend your mother and don't hesitate to shift all responsibility onto her. Why on earth do you so easily abandon human duties?"

Only for the territory. To minimize expected damage as much as possible.

This was the answer that reflexively flashed through Hendrick's mind as he was speechless.

But Seonghwang, who knew what I was thinking, nodded and said with interest.

"Yes. It's for the territory. You can't even guess what consequences your choices will have in the future."

"....."

"There is nothing to worry about right now. I have no intention of harming you, even going so far as to violate the imperial laws I have established. All you have to do is exist as you are and continue to make future decisions without hesitation. "Only for your territory."

I wasn't saying I would forgive.

The cold silver-gray eyes staring at Hendrick mean only one thing.

-I don't stop it. I'm really looking forward to the results.

'What on earth...? ... ?'

While the Archduke was so confused, the Holy Emperor turned and walked towards Margrave Vincent, who was still shaking.

"Ugh!"

The Margrave fell to the floor, making a sound of out of breath. Not long ago, he looked incredibly unsightly for someone who had risen to the rank of Dekaron Knight.

"Your Majesty! I'm sorry! Princess! I'm sorry! Please take it away! I-I...!"

The Margrave bowed his head to the floor and began to think frantically. The actions of someone who seemed to be half out of his mind due to fear were truly shocking to Orden.

A silver light occasionally flickers in the eyes of Seonghwang, who quietly looks down at him.

Looking at him calmly, as if he was anticipating his grandfather's reaction, it was clear that he was using some invisible trick like before.

"Off, off!"

How long has it been like that?

Only when his grandfather fell to the floor and was in a semi-faint state did the Holy Emperor turn around again. Toward the Countess, who had turned blue from earlier and looked like she was about to collapse at any moment.

'... 'Grandma!'

Orden became anxious. Perhaps the person most responsible for Amel's abuse here is by far his grandmother.

As someone who inherited the same blood as her, Orden couldn't help but be very concerned about his grandmother's treatment.

But then, something unbelievable happened before his eyes.

"countess."

The Holy Emperor, who was silently staring at Jomo, who was trembling in fear, bestowed upon her the most powerful blessing.

The Countess is bewildered by the divine power that suddenly surrounds her.

Surrounded by holy white light, the Holy Emperor smiled brightly like never before.

And Orden still clearly remembered the words he muttered softly at that time.

"You will be remembered as the happiest person in front of Amelia. Don't let my children feel any guilt because of what happens to you in the future."

* * *

"...blessing?"

Seongjin, who heard the whole story from Orden, couldn't help but wonder. Why would you do something like that to a person who wouldn't mind being beaten to death right away?

However, when Seongjin came face to face with the countess in front of him, he was able to realize everything clearly.

The amount of punishment that one person's soul can fully endure. The cause and effect, which was probably a little lacking, is delicately balanced due to someone's blessing.

"This is an opportunity given to me!"

A chance to exact cruel revenge that only I can carry out. My father, who knew that I would not endure it, was willing to leave my share for me.

Seongjin opened his mouth and smiled fiercely.

Ah, how could I not be happy!

256. Attic (5)

Orden could not tell Seongjin the details of the past. Not only did it happen a long time ago, but it was also a huge shame for the family.

It was just that his grandmother, a former countess, did not like young Amelia. She said that she had been neglected by everyone at the count's residence as her illegitimate daughter for years. And he simply explained in detail that the Emperor came to the count's residence and punished the servants.

However, Seongjin was able to infer many things on his own while listening to the short explanation.

A lump of straw was treasured as a doll, or a piece of trash was called a treasure chest.

Above all, Orden's dark, sunken face explained many things. Because he is simply ignorant and has no talent for lying.

'It's not just neglect, there's something more!'

But until then, Seongjin didn't think it was that big of a deal.

My father came to pick me up, so I guess he didn't take care of things. Anyway, now Amelia is living happily in her imperial palace.

"So what happened to your grandmother?"

I was just curious about what kind of punishment Orden's grandmother received. Because he remembered what the Countess had said on her first visit to Sigismund:

-This year, I was unable to attend the birthday party because my mother was sick.

Doesn't that mean that the damn old woman is still being treated well at the count's mansion?

Well, Sigismund was a very powerful nobleman, so even if he were his father, it would have been difficult for him to use his hands recklessly like other servants.

However, there is no way he would have held a formal trial and publicly revealed the fact that his sister was treated poorly, which in some ways could be a blemish on him as a member of the imperial family.

'But there's no way you didn't do anything... ..'

And Orden's answer to that was unexpected.

"...blessing?"

"Yes that's right."

ok?

Seongjin tilted his head curiously.

"why?"

Why would you do something like that to a person who wouldn't mind being beaten to death right away?

"I'm also good at that...."

Well, I wasn't asking the ignorant Orden guy expecting an answer. Seongjin looked down at the contents of the box with a shocked expression.

'What does this mean to you anymore?'

Things like this. If he wanted to, Seongjin could give Amelia a room full of dolls or a beautiful set of expensive jewelry.

It's just that my sister doesn't seem to like it very much because she likes middle school students.

'But if you even gave it a name, it must have been very precious to you at the time.'

I would like to take the opportunity to ask how someone else can customize and value one person's memories.

After making that decision, Seongjin carefully packed the broken box into his arms.

"Anyway, I have to say thank you to you. You've taken good care of my sister's things."

Orden bowed his head bluntly. Seongjin did not miss the faint relief and regret that briefly passed over his face.

Okay, so you feel bad about sending these rags because they are your sister's belongings?

Seongjin hardened his expression and spoke to Orden.

"I guess you won't think nonsense. You may be simple, but you don't know fractions, right?"

"yes?"

"You wouldn't know, would you? You and Amelia are related by blood. You are cousins."

".....!"

Orden, who had been frozen in a daze as if shocked, suddenly became startled and waved his hands.

"Oh, no! It's not okay! I would never have such reckless thoughts...!"

"Hmm, really?"

Then what?

Seongjin nodded and left the attic. But isn't Orden muttering softly behind him, as if telling me to listen?

"But strictly speaking, we are not complete cousins...."

What, man?

When Seongjin turned around and rolled his eyes, Orden quickly lowered his head.

"Of course, that doesn't mean I have any other thoughts, sir!"

"Yes, of course I should."

Otherwise, you won't be able to go near the ecliptic from now on.

Seongjin snorts and heads towards the stairs -

"But the current King and Queen of Brittany are cousins..."

... This bastard is really going to die by my hands!

It was some time later that Seongjin left the attic to catch Orden and threaten him.

"no!"

"Sir, I just didn't say anything..."

"Well, I don't want dirt in my eyes!"

"....."

On the way back to the room.

Orden's face became noticeably depressed after being scolded without stopping his walking steps. Then she sighs and ends with these words!

"...But, sir. The most important thing is of course Princess Amelia's thoughts...."

Whoops! You bastard! You die today and I die!

This was when Seongjin grabbed Orden by the collar and was shaking him back and forth.

"Orden!"

Suddenly, a solemn shout was heard from behind.

When they looked back in confusion, they saw an elderly woman standing with a cane, glaring at them with her bewildered eyes.

"...Grandma!"

Orden straightened his posture with a straight face. Seongjin also noticed her, so he let go of his collar and turned around.

'grandma?'

okay. Is that the former countess, Orden's grandmother, who said she treated her sister poorly?

Seongjin looked the old lady up and down with disapproving eyes.

In contrast to her casual outfit of only a shawl over comfortable silk pajamas, the stiff old woman's face looked stubborn and stubborn. His hair is matted, flowing loosely over his shoulders, and his straight back, leaning on his cane, is nothing short of elegant.

Compared to her husband, she looks much older. In reality, they probably aren't a couple with a big age difference. Old man Vincent is a Dekaron Knight who slows down aging.

'You said it hurts somewhere, but on the outside you look pretty fine?'

Seongjin, who did not feel any need to be polite first, stared at her, and the old lady scolded Seongjin with a solemn expression.

So, it was towards Seongjin, not Orden.

"Orden! How on earth is this unreasonable to persecute a knight of the family in a place like this? Do you even have any awareness as Sigismund's eldest son?"

"....."

"How long are you going to act like a child? I bet your younger brother Emmett is twice as mature as you!"

Seongjin looked back at Orden blankly.

'You said you're not feeling well, but do you have a headache?'

'I'm sorry. Recently, my grandmother has been showing signs of mild dementia. Normally, the users were always hanging around, but it looks like he sneaked out on his own during nap time.'

After responding like that, Orden approached the old woman and gently comforted her by wrapping her arms around her shoulders.

"Grandma, why are you out alone again? Let's go back to your room. I will take care of you."

"No, no! I, Countess Sigismund, am teaching my grandson, so why is the family knight interfering with me? Can't you just back down?"

The old woman glared at Orden and waved her staff. It was quite a harsh hand.

Wow!

Orden, who had been hit on the arm, quickly grabbed his staff. Since he was an Auror user, it probably didn't hurt that much, but there was still a look of disappointment on his face that couldn't be hidden for a moment.

"Grandma, please fix it."

"Ruthless! How dare a common knight stand in the way of a nobleman now!"

As she was unable to get the cane out, the old woman clenched her fists and began to beat Orden mercilessly on his back and head.

Knock knock knock!

"Let go! Let go, you bastard!"

"Grandma! It's me. This is Orden!"

"You dirty bastard, still!"

Wow, the old man is really grumpy.

No matter how much he doesn't recognize his grandson's face, he recklessly commits violence against anyone.

"Tsk tsk."

Seongjin clicked his tongue slightly, and the old lady, who didn't know how to hear it, turned her head and looked at Seongjin intently.

The old woman's noble dignity was gone, and her messy hair and severely distorted face made her look like a demon with its head pulled out of a cave of hell.

"...those eyes!"

While he was frowning at the strange atmosphere, the old lady tilted her head to one side and put her face right in front of Seongjin's nose.

Her wide, unfocused eyes show a kind of madness that goes beyond anger.

The old lady, who was making eye contact with Seongjin, eventually chewed her lip and spoke.

"Yes, I know eyes like these. These are the eyes of that vulgar witch!"

... what?

Seongjin stared at the old lady, feeling an eerie premonition.

"Grandma! You can't do this. This person is the prince of the Holy Empire!"

Embarrassed, Orden grabbed her shoulder and pulled her backwards, but once the old woman started to have a fit, her madness was so strong that no one else could match it.

"Aaaaah! Let go! That girl is over there! That dirty thing that twisted Vincent out is over there!"

"Grandma! Hello! Is there anyone here!? Hurry and get Grandma!"

"Do you think I will just leave it like that? I will kill it! I will torment it again and again until it withers and dies!"

Wow!

Seongjin stood there quietly glaring at the crazy old man, spitting and barking like a dog.

'Yeah, I should have realized that a long time ago.'

Regret, self-destruction, and a wild anger that goes far beyond that engulf my entire body.

Isn't it said that a person with that kind of temperament treated Amelia poorly? What the hell was she like, she should have questioned from the beginning.

And Seongjin knew the answer right away. The old woman, who had been caught not only by Orden but also by her maids who had rushed to her, snapped her neck and started gnawing at her while glaring at her face.

"You lowly bastard! Why don't you die no matter how many times I hit you?"

"....."

"Why do you not die even when you starve? Why do you not die even when your limbs are broken? Why do you come back to life so suddenly? Are you truly the seed of the devil!"

It must have been something like that.

You glared at my sister, who was a small child, with those eyes, swore at me like that, and hit me like that!

"haha."

Seongjin didn't know, but unconsciously his mouth was making a small sound of laughter.

Startle. Orden suddenly feels an eerie energy and looks at Seongjin in surprise.

However, Seongjin was no longer aware of the surrounding situation. All she could do was hold back the powerful emotions and focus all her attention on the monster in human disguise before her.

The extreme anger that knows no end may, in a way, be bordered on joy. My hands are shaking with excitement, and the corners of my mouth are tearing apart.

"Tell me."

A faint silver glow began to flicker in Seongjin's eyes.

"Tell me everything, every word, about what you did to your sister."

Stand tall.

Then the old woman who was convulsing stopped moving and stiffened, looking at Seongjin.

No sound came out of the frozen mouth anymore, but Seongjin could fully hear what the old woman's soul was saying through her eyes.

The woman who kicks the little girl with a pointy shoe, the woman who slaps the little girl's cheek forever, the woman who grabs the little girl's hair and screams at her like crazy...

Countless scenes quickly pass before your eyes.

Heightened emotions that seem as if they will burst out at any moment are accompanied by a rapid expansion of consciousness.

Surrounding sounds fade away and your field of vision begins to expand uncontrollably in all directions.

"...Lowering?"

As a strange light flashed in Seongjin's eyes, Orden, feeling an ominous energy, let go of Jomo and approached him.

"Why are you doing this, sir?"

Seongjin thought idly as he listened to Orden's voice, which seemed to come from far away.

'Yes, Orden. What did your father say when he saw that senile thing before?'

Orden had never said such a thing to Seongjin, but somehow Seongjin knew that fact. No, I thought maybe he had known for a long time.

-You will be remembered as the happiest person in front of Amelia. Don't let my children feel any guilt because of what happens to you in the future.

Yes, I understand what my father means. Seongjin was able to realize everything clearly at that moment.

The amount of punishment that one person's soul can fully endure. The cause and effect that was not enough to inflict the worst punishment was narrowly balanced by someone's blessing at that time.

'This is an opportunity given to me!'

A chance to get the worst revenge that only I can. My father, who knew that I wouldn't tolerate it, was willing to leave me my share.

How can you not be happy!

omg.

Orden, feeling fear for an unknown reason, retreated without realizing it.

Is it because of my mood? The current appearance of the prince resembled the appearance of the Holy Emperor holding little Amel a long time ago. Aren't those strangely glowing eyes just as scary as those of the former Emperor?

At that time, Seongjin, who was relieved, freely poured out the anger in his heart towards the old lady.

[You will never be forgiven for your sins. You won't be able to sleep peacefully until you die. Even after death, your soul will never rest.]

Huh.

The old woman lets out a breathless moan as the shock hits her soul. But this was just the beginning.

[No one knows about your death. No one will remember you when you die. Even after death, your soul will split into a thousand or ten thousand branches and you will suffer a thousand or ten times as much as other souls. That time never ends.]

Turn it off.

As the old woman foams at the mouth and closes her eyes, the frightened maids make a fuss, laying the old woman down in the hallway.

lady! Come to your senses, madam!

haha. Seongjin, who was somehow in a cheerful mood, cursed one last time.

[You will long for extinction and pray again and again, but even so, you will not have the luxury of disappearing forever. Your soul will come back to life intact and you will repeat the pain again.]

Because there will be no such thing as [Rest] allowed for you.

"Lowering....."

A curse poured out not with a voice but with thoughts. A curse deeply engraved in a person's soul.

No one could hear it, but only Orden, who was right next to Seongjin, could feel it. The prince had just done something terrible.

"What on earth did you just do...?"

Hearing Orden's trembling voice, Seongjin turned to the side and smiled cheerfully. She still had an eerie silver-grey sparkle in her eyes.

good. I can wait as long as it takes until it dies. If it's for the best and perfect revenge. If only to repay my sister for the pain she suffered a hundred or a thousand times.

'It's dangerous if we don't go back soon.'

A feeling of endless exaltation and a consciousness that extends far and wide.

It was a wonderful feeling, but Seongjin thought he had to stop now. He didn't know how, but he had to find a way.

Nevertheless, Seongjin did not forget until the end and completed the last drop of causality that was narrowly lacking.

"So, grandma. I too will gladly bless you. Please stay healthy until the end of your life, which is not long."

Sweet.

I felt like I could hear the perfectly coordinated sound of cause and effect coming together in my head. The shackles of the poor soul that will be trapped in the cycle of eternal pain are complete.

"ha ha ha."

"Lowering."

"Haha, why are you looking at me like that, Orden? I also blessed your grandmother. Just like my father did."

Ha ha ha ha ha.

Although Seongjin was smiling, inside he was starting to get worried.

'There was a big problem. This won't stop. How will things work now?'

No, is there really a need to go back?

Because I...

Tuk!

At that time, someone gently grabbed Seongjin's shoulder. Before Seongjin could even sense his presence, someone quickly came to his side.

Seongjin looked back.

"Lord Sharon?"

And soon he meets the exorcist's brightly shining silver-grey eyes. The corners of his mouth, which had been pulled up as much as possible, lowered, and his vision slowly began to return.

The excitement calms down and the mind calmly returns to its original state.

"...father."

257. Regina's Crossroads (1)

It was a very strange thing.

The strong energy that seemed as if it would rush out of my body and sweep away everything in front of me at any moment slowly fades away, as if I had been poured water, the moment I meet Seonghwang's calm silver-gray eyes.

The uncontrollable anger that had been surging did not disappear at all. I just realized that there was another perspective of myself that I could quietly observe from a step away, putting up a layer of fence around those uncontrollable emotions.

The fitful laughter subsided, and the rapidly blinking eyes gradually subsided.

"...father."

Then the exorcist who was quietly examining Seongjin tapped his shoulder a couple more times.

Tuk-tuk.

Seongjin's mood became more subtle as he felt like he was being praised for doing a good job.

"...Your Majesty? Sir Sharon?

Orden cautiously called out to them from the side. The prince, who burst out laughing while radiating unusual energy, and the exorcist, who appeared from nowhere in a strange atmosphere different from usual, were both extremely confusing.

Then Seonghwang glanced at him for a moment with cold eyes and then turned his head towards Seongjin.

"Lowering."

There was no doubt that it was Sir Sharon's usual voice. For a moment, I thought he had returned to being Sir Sharon again.

Nevertheless, looking at the bright light blinking in the eyes, I could tell that it was still in full swing. Perhaps it was because he was conscious of the eyes of people around him.

"It appears that the old lady is very unwell, so it would be best for the Archduke to assist her as is. I will take care of her from now on, so please return to your room with me."

No, father. You're really not good at acting.

If you're trying to pretend to be Sir Sharon, your tone and mood are too serious.

"....."

Orden also blinked in surprise. This is because we have been traveling together for quite some time and are familiar with this crazy exorcist's words and actions.

Seongjin, realizing the need to quickly resolve the situation, quickly nodded.

"Okay, sure. Let's go back now."

Orden hesitated for a moment. Since he is a guy with a good sense of humor, he seemed to realize that something unusual had just happened.

But there was no way for him to recognize the stigma engraved on his soul, the curse engraved in his thoughts. Orden finally nodded his head with an anxious look on his face.

"Then, I ask you to please, Lord Sharon."

Before the words could be said, the Holy Emperor, who had possessed Lord Sharon, coolly turned around. He didn't even pay attention to the old woman who was lying on the floor with foam at her mouth.

"Gruk ruk ruk."

"Ah, what is all this about? Madam! Come to your senses!"

Even at first glance, it looks very serious. This is proof that Seongjin's curse was so severe that a person could fall to that point with just a blow to his soul.

"A doctor! No, a priest first!"

"Ah, there's a Paladin here... Paladin?"

Lately, someone recognized the exorcist and called him, but Seonghwang started walking down the hallway at a fast pace without looking back.

Seongjin, who had been staring blankly at the old lady, was also startled and ran after her, a step behind her.

"Father, I...!"

"Be careful, sir. There are many eyes around you."

Seonghwang, who answered like that in a tone that was not at all like that of Lord Sharon, walked straight ahead as if he had a thorough understanding of the structure of the count's residence.

'No, what if the knight accompanying the prince goes ahead alone like that?'

Seongjin thought with a clumsy face, but he continued walking without saying anything more. This was because she somehow felt a very heavy atmosphere from the sight of him walking quickly.

They flew across the count's residence and soon arrived at the room where Seongjin was staying.

Percussion.

And as soon as the door closed, Seongjin, who was itching to speak, quickly opened his mouth.

"Father, father! Something strange happened. I just...!"

[Mores.]

At that time, Seonghwang decisively cut off his words. It was the voice of Seonghwang that Seongjin was familiar with, echoing in his head at the same time.

[Don't you know? Don't think deeply about it anymore.]

"uh....."

And before Seongjin can respond, he suddenly points to the bed and says this!

[I guess I'll just lie here and take a nap.]

yes?

Seongjin asked him in confusion.

"No, growing up...."

[Didn't I say before that I would teach you how to handle objects in the normal world? That's what I originally came for. I'll teach you now, so calm down and get some sleep. Then, I will transfer your soul to the gap where flames can easily materialize.]

What is this so suddenly?

"Wait a minute, father! Now is not the time! Sister...!"

[Then, can you stop those dizzying thoughts right now and completely calm down those wild emotions yourself?]

".....!"

I couldn't tell what he was talking about.

The abuse my sister received as a child, the enormous anger that rose up the moment she found out about it, and the terrible curse she poured out with all her might.

Calm down immediately is an unreasonable request.

"There's no way that could be possible. Your father knows, right? How much of your sister is in this mansion..."

As soon as I think about Amelia, something surges inside me again. The emotions that had barely subsided began to stir like crazy again, like a stormy sea.

Tuk.

Then Seonghwang's hand quickly began to tap Seongjin's head. I've experienced this before, small pats that continue at regular intervals.

Tuk. Tuk. Tuk.

"uh....."

Then, my complicated mind became clear, and my pounding heart instantly calmed down. Seongjin was dazed, she looked at Seonghwang and blinked her eyes.

'Wow, that's amazing. 'What on earth are you doing?'

Seonghwang, who soon confirmed that Seongjin was genuine, sighed softly.

[okay. I knew something like this would happen at some point, but I had no idea it would happen so suddenly and in such an unstable state.]

"What you're saying is that my father knew everything that would happen today. That's why he gave that damn old man his blessing? It's for the sake of the balance of cause and effect. Is that right?"

Seonghwang did not answer that question, but just looked at Seongjin with slightly complicated eyes.

"Ah, there's another problem. Anyway, I just did something amazing to her. I feel like I knew what it was, but now I have no idea if my memory has become hazy again."

[...]]

"What are all these? Father, what and how did I just do?"

There is a slight hint of desperation in Seongjin's voice. In fact, what he really wanted to ask was this.

-Father, what on earth am I?

The reason why I couldn't just ask that question out loud was obvious.

There was a warning from Seonghwang not to be suspicious, but the moment he did so, he felt a vague sense of anxiety that he felt like he would be finished.

'But how long are we going to have to stay in this awkward state?'

If you can't ask directly, you'll have to make some guesses on your own.

Why is Cardinal Benitus so wary of himself? Why is Lord Masaine so worried that Seongjin might get caught up in a heresy controversy?

And why is Hayes, who was a member of the Dark Church, subordinate to him?

'The answer is not far. Maybe I...'

When Seongjin thought that far.

Tuk.

A light shock to the forehead interrupted those thoughts. When he opens his eyes and looks up, Seonghwang's worried gaze meets him.

[Be careful in everything you do, Mores. Haven't you already said that you shouldn't define yourself carelessly? Beneath the thoughts and perceptions of the Oracle lies a great power that you are not yet aware of.]

"...If you don't think about it."

Seongjin, who suddenly felt depressed, lowered his head and asked in a slightly cracked voice.

"If I don't do something properly, if I don't touch it, then I'm not that something yet?"

Not yet.

Sensing the sorrow contained in those words, Seonghwang patted Seongjin's head vigorously.

Pusssss, my light blonde hair becomes a mess in an instant.

[Mores.]

"...yes."

[You are my son. That fact is the truth that will never change.]

"Um, yes."

You said that before...

Seonghwang, who noticed Seongjin's shocked reaction like a ghost, stopped messing with his hair and looked down at Seongjin.

[why? Wasn't that enough? Do you want to check once more what happens the moment you deny this?]

"what?"

Seongjin opened his eyes fiercely and glared at Seonghwang.

This guy! Are you threatening someone with your body again? Did that sound fun?

Then after a while. "Oh," he said, tilting his head.

"But isn't it someone else's body now? Are you really going to make a show of self-harm in Sir Sharon's body this time? What are you doing to her?"

... Oops.

A look of confusion appeared on the usually insensitive face of the man, as if he had been caught off guard.

'I'm so dumbfounded... ... '

Aside from feeling upset and angry, strangely enough, feelings of sadness and anxiety disappear as soon as you push them, like a deflated balloon.

Seongjin changed the topic with a shy expression.

"...Um, so you said you grew up somehow?"

Anyway, Seongjin obediently decided to follow Seonghwang's instructions.

I wanted to learn how to use the Ice Heart and give my sister a nice gift, but it seemed like the only answer was to take a nap.

Even now, when I think about my sister even just a little bit, I feel overwhelmed and feel uncontrollable emotions.

'No, but is there any need to endure it? My damn Sigismund is just... ... !'

As I grind my teeth without realizing it, a hand taps my head as expected.

Seongjin suddenly felt an eerie feeling. If things continue like this, there could be a truly irreparable accident.

"Father, please teach me at least this one thing."

Once again, the true Seongjin asked as he lay quietly on the bed.

"Did I properly avenge my sister?"

[Yes, you took the best revenge you could on that woman. In some ways, it is a punishment that can be considered excessive for the sins a person has committed throughout his or her life.]

After answering that, Seonghwang added with a slightly calm expression.

[However, there may be differences of opinion as to whether it is complete revenge. How could it be entirely her fault?]

"Ah, of course, the lesser Dekaron Knight and the Margrave, who turned a blind eye to this situation, also bear great responsibility! Even if they did not directly cause harm, they encouraged the Count's people by watching and turning a blind eye!"

Then Seonghwang raised the corners of his mouth slightly. It was an expression that seemed somewhat self-mocking.

[Could they be the only ones who neglected Amelia like that?]

".....!"

Seongjin was shocked and kept his mouth shut.

For some reason, this guy seemed very depressed earlier!

'... Now you think it's all your fault

Although Seonghwang knew in advance what Seongjin would do in the future and fulfilled the cause and effect, there was a more important reason why he did not take direct action against the old lady.

'Do you think you don't deserve to punish her?'

If so, isn't that excessive self-blame? Seongjin heard the general situation from Orden and knew it.

I heard that Amelia's mother was originally a very weak woman. Since she died young due to lung disease, no one in the ecliptic would have expected that she would have left behind a daughter in that short period of time.

Thanks to this, Amelia had to suffer needlessly for a long time, out of the sight of the Holy Emperor.

'But it's not like you left it on purpose, is it?'

Seongjin cautiously asked Seonghwang, who looked sullen.

"Well, father, do you really think that God's representative must be perfect in everything?"

Then Seonghwang slowly shook his head.

[The title of God's representative is merely a façade for properly exercising divine power in the world. I don't think he's arrogant enough to mistake himself for a god.]

"No, but why are you blaming yourself for something you couldn't have helped? Your angelic sister will be very sad if she finds out that your father did that. That's an even bigger mistake!"

Seongjin jumped up from the bed and protested.

"It would be more productive to do something else with that time for your sister. Even so, this continent is full of crazy people who spend all day doing nothing but repenting. That's not to say that reflection is bad, but... What I mean is...."

As I move my mouth in a hurry, words come out in vain.

Then, a faint smile passed across the face of Seonghwang, who was quietly listening to those words.

[Yes, Mores. I know very well that all of that is just self-satisfaction anyway.]

"uh....."

It's not a face you recognize at all?

Seongjin opened his mouth to say something more, but Seonghwang pressed his forehead and laid him back on the bed and said,

[That's why I'm trying to do what I can for you guys. Now shouldn't you make your shaved ice into a gift that the Orthodox Church can accept?]

Acceptable?

"...The shaved ice guards protected Sigismund's territory against the demonic beasts. Inquisitor Sir Valery even confirmed that it was not a mistake. Moreover, God's [grace] is spread across the ecliptic, so as long as the shaved ice water is safely brought there, safety is guaranteed. "Isn't that guaranteed?"

What is wrong is entering the ecliptic where one cannot enter. What more proof do you need?

Then Seonghwang slowly shook his head.

[It's not such a simple problem. This is a Glacher Troll that has been treated as a magical beast of the Demonic World for a thousand years. There is definitely a lot of room for problems in the Orthodox Church. The magnitude of the backlash would be completely different from accepting a monster for which there were no records.]

Seonghwang did not elaborate, but somehow Seongjin was able to realize one important fact.

'Because I'm the one controlling this!'

These are the people who surrounded Jinju Palace to summon the prince as a witness. What would happen if we found out that it was the controversial 3rd prince who showed up with the devil in tow?

Seongjin frowned, thinking deeply, and Seonghwang made a sound of admiration.

[That is why we are planning to designate shaved ice as a sacred relic first.]

"...yes?"

What did I just hear?

Seongjin blinked, and incredible words that I couldn't believe continued to come out.

[In inserting evidence to support this, we are first considering the period when the five great kings came to power. It's too far in the past to find historical information, but the theologian Granius once wrote in detail about Glatzer Trolls. Therefore, we are considering a plan to exclude <Exploration of the Miraculous Continent> from the banned book.]

Whoa, wait a minute. wait for a sec.

Isn't the story moving too quickly?

[Francis has already departed from the imperial capital to begin this work. It won't be a good feeling, so it's best to do what we can to prepare before he arrives.]

Seongjin's mouth opened wide.

Are you already making those preparations?

I could see what the adjutant's expression would be like after being separated from his respected knight commander for at least 15 days one way and a month round trip.

[If you want to keep the Glatute Troll as is, it would be okay to adjust its appearance a bit while changing its size. Sir Valerie had an interesting idea. It would be a good idea to engrave the god's symbol on your chest.]

"....."

You said you were going to bring shaved ice as a gift, but you even fabricated something like that to make the process go smoothly? You put so much effort into it just for souvenirs?

-That's why I'm trying to do what I can for you guys.

But aren't the limits of what 'can be done' too broad?

'Is this it? Is this the new horizon of propaganda and fabrication that Sisley was talking about?'

Seongjin stared blankly at the exorcist's face with shining silver eyes.

Anyway, this guy. I was secretly thinking that it was nonsense, but I think this shrewdness is quite similar to my sister.

258. Regina's Crossroads (2)

They were planning to head towards the gap now, Seonghwang explained.

Unlike the place I experienced in the imperial palace before, it is a very stable space with a separate owner to manage it. So you don't have to worry too much about motion sickness.

[Don't forget to take the ice heart.]

It is said to be a magical space where only the soul moves, but the objects it carries are still reflected.

Certainly, Seongjin had experienced the presence of a body in both the office and the space at the same time before. I don't know what the principle is, but it's probably a similar phenomenon.

"hmm....."

Seongjin, who was putting three ice hearts in his pocket, hesitated for a moment, then quietly took one out and put it back on the table.

For some reason, I had a feeling that it would be better to leave at least one piece in its original state. But for a moment, I thought a bright silver light flashed in Seonghwang's eyes.

[If possible, why not take them all with you? I think you'll get another heart soon.]

"yes?"

[Aren't you already aware of another material?]

Then Seongjin tilted his head.

"That's right. Well, the first thing that comes to mind is what that damn Dekaron Knight left behind..."

[Then he will bring it to you.]

"yes?"

Seongjin's eyes widened.

"Why does that old man do such a thing?"

[Are you not very angry with him?]

No, that doesn't mean... ... ?

[He probably won't go against your wishes too much. His ability to detect danger is more excellent than you might think.]

For that to be the case, it has already looked too loose and untidy.

[Perhaps the moment you arrived, he instinctively sensed that Yeongji would overcome the danger safely. Thanks to you, I was able to completely relieve my tension.]

"...You really believed in me and did such foolish things?"

While he was dumbfounded, Seonghwang pressed Seongjin's forehead onto the bed.

[It's better not to think about them too deeply anymore. The cause and effect given to me is fixed, and I don't have much time now.]

No, but thinking about that old man makes me angry again!

Father, while we're at it, shouldn't we also do something for that old man? As it is, I feel unfair... ... !

As Seongjin struggled, Seonghwang sighed softly.

[I have already dealt with them, so now all that remains is to wait for the results. Don't worry anymore now.]

"yes?"

[Go to sleep now.]

Sigh.

For some reason, Seongjin, who was feeling weaker than usual at night, suddenly lost consciousness.

* * *

"Hmm...."

Taktaktak.

Old Vincent, who was slowly driving his horse at the rear of the chase team, felt restless due to the cold that came over his body from time to time, and eventually let out a low groan.

"Why are you doing this, Vincent?"

One of the Wolf Knights asked curiously, but he stubbornly furrowed his eyebrows without answering. How could I explain the vague feeling of great fear and anxiety to a young knight?

'It all started after the princes came.'

It was difficult to maintain composure in front of Prince Mores, but ever since Prince Logan appeared before my eyes, that fear had become quite concrete.

In particular, when I looked at the back of the boy paladin riding the white horse in front of me, the hand holding the reins almost trembled from the fear that came over me so strongly. A genius sword master who truly resembles a successful person, at least in the back of his head.

'your majesty... ... '

The day the Holy Emperor entered the Sigismund Territory without permission and took away Princess Amelia.

Old man Vincent did not fully remember what happened that day. I was just shocked enough to die at once, and the feeling of fear engraved deep in my bones remains vague.

Anyway, from that day on, the old man abdicated the throne to his son and stayed in the estate.

I didn't even go to the birthday party I used to go to every year. Just thinking about Seonghwang's cool gray eyes made his whole body tremble like an aspen tree.

Instead, from that day on, the old man did not take a single step outside the territory and devoted himself to training. Because there was no way to control his anxious mind without swinging his sword and becoming stronger.

'But it was all an illusion!'

This time, I realized this the moment I saw my sons who looked exactly like Seonghwang.

Dekaron Knight was caught up in a psychological problem of unknown depth. If things continue like this, I will never be able to overcome my fears or reach the level of a sword master.

-As expected, you are much better than that useless Dekaron Knight!

And Prince Mores' merciless evaluation keeps ringing in my head.

In the end, old Vincent, who had been struggling, turned his head towards the ice base alone.

"Lord Ilma. I have somewhere to go for a while. Please join the chase team."

Then Lord Ilma looked back at him with a darker look than usual.

"Huh? Vincent. Where are you suddenly..."

"The cliffs to the south. I guess I'll have to go back to where I caught that devil worshiper."

For some reason, he no longer wanted to find fault with Prince Mores.

Is it the ice of the Glaturre Troll or something? I must find it and quickly receive recognition of its usefulness from that arrogant little prince.

Otherwise... ..

Leaving behind Lord Ilma's puzzled gaze, old Vincent began to ride his horse with a stern expression on his face.

* * *

The whole place is shrouded in fog.

In the heavy silence that completely drowned out even the sound of footsteps, Seongjin walked along an invisible path, following Seonghwang.

There were several positive effects of the soul moving away from the body.

It didn't make all the anger go away, but at least it prevented reason from being helplessly swept away by uncontrollable emotions.

Additionally, I felt like the memories that had been blurry until now became a little clearer.

So, Seongjin followed his intuition and asked Seonghwang a question. Following a strong premonition that I would have to find out exactly what Seonghwang's intentions were toward Sigismund.

[Father, can you tell me? What is the blessing that was given to the former Countess?]

It is clear that it is an incredibly strong blessing, as it makes up for the shortcomings of cause and effect.

However, Seongjin has not yet found any evidence of blessing on the old woman's body.

It is natural that she is healthy for her age, as she must have been treated well all her life, but she still looks much older than her husband, old man Vincent. Isn't she an ordinary old lady who has not been able to avoid aging at all?

Then Seonghwang gave an unexpected answer.

[I blessed her soul, not her body. So that I can dream sometimes even in extreme pain.]

[...] A dream?]

[okay.]

dream? Why that way?

I had my doubts for a moment, but at least one thing was certain.

[Anyway, you gave her a chance to breathe from the pain. Why?]

Perhaps sensing the dissatisfaction in his voice, Seonghwang stopped for a moment and looked down at Seongjin.

[Son, what do you think is the difference between 'moving cause and effect' and 'creating cause and effect'?]

What moves and what creates?

Seongjin tilted his head.

[Aren't both the same thing?]

Then Seonghwang nodded with a smile on his face.

[okay. At first glance, it may seem like there is no difference. Both can start from the same basis and produce the same results. However, unfortunately, the impact of the two when discussing human karma is greatly different.]

This comes from the perspective that ordinary humans are ignorant of the results of cause and effect movements.

After saying that, Seonghwang turned around and started walking again through the hazy fog.

[Do you know this? She wasn't that harsh from the beginning.

Although she may have kicked out her husband's children out of wedlock, it did not prevent her from providing the bare minimum of food, clothing, and shelter. Nor did she object to her child being cared for by her earl when she died, leaving behind her daughter.]

Is that caring? Did they torture you with the intention of making you die even more painfully?

Words of protest rose up to his throat, but Seongjin held back and listened to his next words.

[However, while waiting for her husband to continue wandering around the territory, her malice grew uncontrollably. Then, when she saw that her grandson, who had inherited her husband's talent, was once again giving Amelia her attention, she thought like this.]

At this rate, grandson Orden will also fall in love with a woman and follow in Vincent's footsteps.

Amelia will be the culprit that ruins everything for Sigismund.

[Does that justify torturing my innocent little sister so much? Not everyone who harbors murderous intentions becomes a murderer!]

I'm crying.

I can't stand it either! Even if you become a soul, being angry is still being angry!

Then thud.

Seonghwang interrupted Seongjin's thoughts by lightly hitting him on the forehead and continued speaking.

[okay. Even if you harbor deep hatred in your heart to the point of killing someone over and over again, there is a huge difference that you cannot overcome compared to actually taking action. And your personal revenge does not require God-like impartial judgment.]

-You are now completely in the ignorance of humans.

Is it an illusion? At first glance, I felt like I heard a faint thought coming from Seonghwang.

Seongjin tilted his head, and Seonghwang continued speaking.

[If we consider principled legitimacy, there is nothing more ridiculous than the subject of revenge being someone other than Amelia.]

No, that's a bit much!

[So are you saying that people who don't have the power to take revenge should just suffer? Are you saying there is nothing the person next to him can do for him?]

[Son. I am not blaming you for taking revenge on that woman.]

Tuk-tuk.

Seonghwang tapped Seongjin's shoulder a couple more times as if to soothe him from tears, then turned around and started walking again.

fluttering. Even though it was a space with no air flow, the hem of Seonghwang's white robes swayed as if fluttering in the wind.

[The only thing you need to know clearly is this one thing. That you never exercised justice on behalf of Amelia.]

[...] ... !]

[The woman certainly faced such a result due to her own mistake, but she should never be mistaken as thinking that the retribution she deserved was given on God's behalf.]

Seongjin bit his lip, but despite his anger, he was unable to mount an appropriate rebuttal.

[What about Sir Vincent, the other man you said you could not forgive?]

While I was looking down sullenly, Seonghwang walked forward with great strides and continued speaking.

[He lived a busy life all his life, building a huge ice wall in the Demonic Land for the safety of his territory and driving out heretics from the south. Then, sometimes, on the days when he returned to the count's residence, the butler would report to him like that. He said the child is doing well.]

[...]]

[So he thought. Is there any need to further offend my already uncomfortable wife by giving her attention for no reason?]

So are you saying that neglecting your sister is an extenuating circumstance? So whose fault is it for your sister's suffering?

When Seongjin, who had a frown on his face, no longer followed, Seonghwang stopped walking again and looked back. As if he knew what Seongjin was thinking.

[okay. It must be difficult to understand. Would you believe that all of this started with someone inadvertently 'moving cause and effect'?]

The difference between moving and creating.

Seonghwang has been talking about that since a while ago.

[An arrogant person who found out about Amelia's existence thought like this. Although she was not born with as much talent with the sword as her father, I thought that it would be much easier for her to inherit and run her territory from him in the future if she made everyone, including her earl, aware of her father's faults.]

[...] ... !]

[His mother was a noble of the fallen Ortona, and his wife married into a wealthy family in Anatolia. As the conflict between the two stubborn people reaches its peak and the house continues to be in turmoil, I think it would be a good idea to channel this anger somewhere else.]

Seonghwang's calm voice spread as if echoing through the empty space.

[What he whispered at that time was only a few words.]

Mother, have you ever heard of a cursed clan that fascinates people like the devil? Somehow, that girl's eyes are exactly like theirs.

Father, I will take care of the Count's affairs, so please do not worry about trivial matters and only protect the safety of the continent.

Seongjin's eyes widened in shock.

[Whose fault do you think is the biggest here?]

No, if that's true, the person who made the situation worse is by far...
... .

[But can you understand that even though 'moving cause and effect' has such clear results, the weight of the karma is infinitely lighter compared to 'creating cause and effect'?]

[...] ... !]

Hendrik Sigismund, who was the archduke at the time, soon learned that the emperor was desperately looking for his child. Also, his half-sister, whose face he didn't even know, was his woman.

Only then did he become fearful of what would happen later, and began to disturb the guild members who came to the territory to investigate, and to deal with outsiders who knew of Amelia's existence, step by step.

And he encouraged the mother and employees to harass the little girl even more, leading to her death. Later, when Seonghwang, who found out about the truth, investigated, it was made to look as if the girl was sick and suffered a natural death.

[However, despite years of helping others accumulate enough cause and effect to be punished, he himself has not accumulated any cause and effect at all. He even believes without doubt that all of this is done to revive the territory with minimal sacrifice.]

Inorganic eyes without emotion and a calm voice. Nevertheless, Seongjin felt that he was angrier than ever.

[If we were to strictly consider the merits and demerits of his life, which were derived from his own 'good intentions,' his soul would certainly be more weighted towards his merits. It is very difficult to watch it quietly.]

-So, even though I know full well what the Margrave is planning, I am leaving it alone. I'm really looking forward to the results.

A faint thought comes from him.

This time it was definitely not an illusion. Seongjin clearly understood what he wanted to say.

[...] The person my father most wants revenge on is Margrave Hendrik.]

Now that he doesn't have enough accumulated to take heavy revenge like the former countess, he is waiting for him to 'create' enough cause and effect to accumulate karma.

Then Seonghwang opened his eyes slightly wide, looked at Seongjin, and then nodded.

[okay. Don't deny it. So, if possible, I hope that he will somehow accumulate some kind of great karma.]

The gray eyes that used to shine brightly become darker than ever before. And Seongjin once again vaguely heard his true feelings that he did not express.

-I am just standing by and watching him commit a serious and irreversible sin. Even though I clearly knew the consequences, I tried to take advantage of it, so in essence, I and Margrave Hendrick are not that different.

Does Seonghwang know that Seongjin vaguely hears his thoughts?

-Still, I hate him. To the point where I think it's okay to bear the full burden of the sin of arbitrarily moving cause and effect while 'knowing' the outcome.

You probably don't know. This is a man who has never shown his emotions so openly towards his children.

It was just a fleeting coincidence that occurred due to the combination of Seongjin becoming more adept at coming into contact with thoughts and his inability to store his emotions better than usual.

-Of course, I do not forget that this is also due to my personal resentment and self-satisfaction.

Surprisingly, Seongjin suddenly trembled with an ominous feeling.

Isn't there someone this man resents more than Margrave Hendrick? as soon as...

[...] Father, please tell me. Why did the Margrave bring a medicine cart into his domain? What was he planning in the first place?]

When Seongjin asked in a trembling voice, Seonghwang smiled bitterly and turned around.

[Aren't you currently in the state of a complete oracle? You can't teach things like that easily.]

-If you knew that, surely you wouldn't try to stop me?

[but... ... !]

It was when Seongjin was about to say something more to him.

[It would be better to end the story here. You have arrived at your destination.]

As soon as Seonghwang finished speaking, the fog cleared and a gray, faded space unfolded before my eyes.

259. Regina's Crossroads (3)

The space that unfolded before his eyes clearly resembled the [gap] that Seongjin had seen before.

However, unlike the gap that disturbs the view like a broken kaleidoscope, this was a static world like a well-crafted piece of glass.

Cross sections of the cold, frozen world are scattered here and there. It was so motionless that it just seemed like a decorative relief carved into a stone wall.

[This place... ..]

[This is the gap I mentioned earlier. It is definitely a place where the owner resides, so it is a personal space where he creates and manages the rules.]

Moreover, surprisingly, there was a 'floor' in this world that one could step on. Seongjin stepped on the floor, which he couldn't tell whether it was granite or marble, and looked around blankly for a moment.

Suddenly, what Ricardo said to Seongjin, written in Sigurd Sigurdson, comes to mind.

-In this frozen world, you were the only friend who could understand me.

Did the young bard Laurent once say this?

-Passion! love! craving! I couldn't feel any strong desire there! That's why my songs left me!

They all said that Delcross was a world that had stopped. But will you really hear that sound even if you look at this place?

Aren't the countless fragments of the world hardened in gray like tombstones commemorating a dead world?

[okay. The most stable state probably means that it has completely stopped. It may not be much different from death.]

Seonghwang explained how he knew what Seongjin was thinking.

It no longer occurred to him to shed faint thoughts like before. His gray eyes, having regained their complete composure, carefully examine Seongjin with a hint of doubt.

[Are you okay?]

[...] Um, yes.]

Seongjin's reaction was a little slower than usual because he was consciously clearing his head in case his thoughts were read.

Then, the Holy Emperor, who tilted his head for a moment, came closer and suddenly poured divine power on his head. It looks like he must have received a big shock while moving through space.

[It's okay, you can stop now.]

Seongjin, engulfed in bright light, quickly opened his mouth to clear his mind.

[Isn't sacred power too precious to be wasted like this on a healthy person?]

[What do you think? It's not difficult, but it's also not something you can put a separate price on.]

[It's even more of a waste in that it can't be valued!]

[Is that so? Since you say it's such a waste, I'll do it one more time when I have the chance.]

Wow.

Seongjin's eyes widened in the white light that poured down again.

No, this guy!

[ruler... you!]

It was right then. An old man appeared behind them.

He was an old man wearing a plain robe who suddenly appeared out of thin air. His sharp facial expression and neatly slicked back white hair reminded me of a stubborn scholar.

[How on earth did this happen?]

Although his mouth was wide open in shock and his awkward standing posture greatly damaged his seemingly gentle dignity.

'what? 'It's strangely strong?'

Seongjin, who was nervous, was in high spirits, and then suddenly. Seonghwang, who put his hand on his shoulder as if to comfort him, bowed lightly to the old man with a calm expression.

[See you again, old man. After saying that I wouldn't respond to calls for a while, I suddenly came here like this, so I'm offended.]

[...]]

[Ah, I brought my son with me today. I was wondering if I could show you around the old man's 'workshop.']

Only then did the old man look back at Seongjin's face and open his mouth in astonishment. His eyes are so wide open that it seems like they will pop out at the slightest touch.

'Is it okay to not be on guard?'

Seongjin slowly relaxed his body as he faced the old man.

Probably not an ordinary human. The thing in the gap, as well as the vertically slit pupils, reminded me of Cadmus.

'Well, Cadmus is very strong, but in reality he is just a useless insect eater.'

While I was thinking about this while looking at the old man, the old man suddenly rushed towards me, grabbed Seonghwang's arm, and dragged him to one side. Then he urgently whispered a faint thought into his ear.

Of course, Seongjin, who was skilled at catching thoughts, was listening to everything.

[Hey, what on earth are you doing?]

[As I said before, I apologize for the sudden visit. Since I made a promise to my son, I plan to borrow a little of the elder's workshop.]

[no! Even though it's a workshop, why are we bringing 'that' to this point?]

While saying that, the old man's sideways glance at Seongjin was extremely cruel.

Then, Seonghwang's expression suddenly hardened and he quietly gave him a warning.

[Please be careful what you say and do. Isn't the child listening?]

[...] No, look! That... .. !]

[I just made it clear. This is 'my son'. Do you understand?]

[...]]

Then the old man looked at Seonghwang with shaking eyes, as if he was very shocked.

Anyway, Seonghwang removed the old man's arm, looked back at Seongjin, and made a light gesture with his hand.

[Come here and say hello, son. This person is an 'elderly person.' He was the one who first organized the 'meeting of six' that I mentioned earlier. He is currently leading the meeting in an impractical manner.]

... Impractically?

So does that mean it's nothing in the end? Somehow, it seems like the little dignity is being diminished further.

[You don't need to be overly polite, but you're also not someone who should be rude. Just because he devotes himself to a fruitless task for this long, he is a person worthy of a little respect.]

[...] ... ?!]

Seongjin looked at Seonghwang with round eyes.

Father, were you always like this? Why do people seem to change when you meet them somewhere other than Delcross?

At that time, the 'old man' urgently grabbed Seonghwang's arm.

[Hey, Nate. Let's talk for a moment.]

[There is no time for that. My son and I have to do some finishing touches on the souvenirs to give to the children.]

[It only takes a moment! Can't you bring your son again next time?]

When the desperate old man raised his voice, only then did Seonghwang look at him with cold eyes.

[The 'next opportunity' you are talking about is not something I can easily guarantee. As you know, for me, not only time but also cause and effect are tight.]

[that... ... !]

[Or would you rather hand over the [Key] of the Lycanslope race to your son? Then, my child can come and go here whenever he needs to...]

[Huh!]

The embarrassed old man grabbed both of Seonghwang's arms. A look of disappointment appeared on his face when he realized that this friend was truly talking nonsense.

[iced coffee! A workshop? Yes, use as much as you want! It will be an unfamiliar environment for your 'son', so you will probably need a competent helper, right?]

[No need. If I see it myself...]

[no! I'm sure your thoughts will change. The best engineer in existence will take a look at it in person!]

The elderly man shouted urgently, waving the sleeves of his long robe.

Then, suddenly, a huge door appeared before their eyes.

It is an antique door with precise reliefs engraved on the surface and two golden lions holding doorknobs in the center.

Bang bang!

The old man shouted loudly as he banged on the tightly closed steel door.

[Dexter! Hey Dexter! Are you inside now?]

Then, a faint answer was heard from inside: 'Yes, old man.'

There was still nothing behind the door, but it was truly amazing that sounds could be heard from inside.

As Seongjin was looking at the steel door with curious eyes, the old man frowned and glared at him for a moment. Of course, when I saw Seonghwang's attention, I slowly turned my head back.

[If you have time, come out here and help the customer! Just give me a quick tour of the workshop!]

[There is no time for sightseeing, old man. Hurry up and fix things... ... ,]

[This is an important guest, so take care of everything! Listen to what he wants as much as the workshop facilities allow! I won't say anything if I use any ingredients!]

Only then does Seonghwang nod his head with a firm expression. He had an attitude as if he had been waiting.

[Thank you for your consideration.]

The old man glared at him for a moment as if he was disgusted, then sighed and shook his head.

[No, thank you. Now that the problem is solved, you can come and see me!]

[yes. All right. Now, go inside, Mores.]

And Seonghwang disappeared somewhere, dragged by the man called the elder.

[...]]

It happened so quickly. Seongjin, who was suddenly left alone, stood blankly in front of the tightly closed iron door.

By the way, since he is an old man, this is the first time I have seen him treated with respect by the Emperor. I guess that means he's quite an amazing being in this world, right?

Well, maybe it's because of the first introduction, but it looks oddly dignified.

And after a while, the thick steel door opened softly with a small sound, making you wonder if a person could really push it open.

Creak.

A thin voice is heard next.

"So, what's your business, kid?"

what?

Seongjin's eyebrows twitched.

A kid in the first meeting? Me, who is over 60 in terms of mental age?

At that moment, the spirit of Jang Yu-yu-seo, which was engraved deep in my bones, surged up, but when I tried to get angry, the other person's gaze was quite low.

So, much further down than you might think.

[...] ... !]

The person who pushed the steel door and came out was a short dwarf.

He is wearing thick work clothes, carrying a set of tools of unknown purpose, and wearing goggles the size of bells on his eyes that cover half of his face.

Seongjin looked down at him in bewilderment and blinked.

'Who on earth is this person calling him a kid?'

Then the dwarf spoke again in a dissatisfied voice.

"If you have any business, speak up quickly, kid."

hmm?

At that time, Seongjin felt a strange sense of discomfort and tilted his head.

what? Something is strange.

"...hey!"

Seongjin could clearly see that his mood was suddenly becoming uncomfortable, so he quickly took out the ice heart he had brought with him.

Although his harsh attitude was annoying, Seongjin calmed down. First of all, let's be polite. I am now a son visiting my father's friend's house.

[Oh, sorry. Dexter... Seed? I would like you to take a look at some of the items from the normal world here.]

"Well, of course you came because of the items from the normal world! This is a workshop, right? Is that all you have to say?"

Every time he says something nervous, his short mustache twitches in the wind.

Only then did Seongjin realize the cause of the discomfort he had just felt, and his eyes widened.

what? Are you speaking with your mouth and not with your thoughts?

"So, is that the only thing you want to show Dexter? Give it to me."

"Sniff."

Is this an atmospheric space? Am I breathing now?

While my nose was crying with a surprised face, Dexter pulled up my goggles and asked me as if I was pathetic.

"What on earth are you doing? Is now the time? How do you introduce yourself when you first meet? How do you greet your elders?"

No, actually, maybe I'm older? No matter how I look at it, that dwarf doesn't look like he's over sixty.

Seongjin thought for a moment and then answered obediently. Now I am visiting as father and son, and I look completely like Mores. Also, the author may be a race that ages much more slowly than you think, right?

[Uh, no. excuse me. [It's the first time I've seen someone speak directly from their mouth.]

Then Dexter rolled his eyes as if it was absurd.

"What? Then people speak with their mouths or with what?"

There is definitely a vivid feeling of the air vibrating and making your eardrums vibrate.

Seongjin moved his mouth carefully.

"iced coffee....."

Oh, you really have a voice?

"What the hell is this? You idiot."

Seongjin asked with a cautious voice, looking down at Dexter who was snoring. It was a question she had been itching to ask for a while.

"By the way, Mr. Dexter, are you... a dwarf?"

If you're a short human from another world, aren't they the only species that comes to mind at first glance?

But something unexpected happened. The dwarf took off his goggles, threw them on the floor, and screamed.

"Oh, this is so crazy! How many times has this happened? This is just achondroplasia! You ignorant otherworlder who is steeped in this fantasy!"

".....!"

Seongjin opened his mouth in bewilderment.

Throughout my life, I have been told by people in other worlds that I am steeped in fantasy!

260

260. Regina's Crossroads (4)

Cartilage hypoplasia.

Although it is not a commonly heard disease name, it is still a distinctly Earth-style disease name. Also, Seongjin, who is dressed as a Delcrossian, is called a person from another world?

"...Are you, by any chance, an Earthling?"

Then the dwarf sniffled and crossed his arms.

"Can't you tell just by looking at it? Now that Ionia has been destroyed, is there any world other than Earth that can handle this high-level over-technology?"

Over technology?

Aren't the tools you're wearing too clunky and old-fashioned to say that? Wouldn't it be perfect to tinker with a windmill or a steam engine?

'At least the Earth I lived on before destruction was a world dominated by semiconductors and software.'

While Seongjin was thinking that, Dexter picked up his goggles and grumbled.

"You're wasting this genius Dexter's precious time. If it weren't for your request, I would have kicked this idiot's ass right away!"

What, you bastard?

Seongjin's eyebrows twitch and distort.

This guy said he'd see it. Can't you see that I'm putting up with rudeness just by looking at my father's face? Otherwise, I would kill you right now... .. !

'uh? But wait a minute!'

For a moment, Seongjin blinked as a realization struck his head.

I was consciously stopping my brain movement for fear of being caught eavesdropping on Seonghwang's thoughts, but now, due to the subtle anger rising, my head began to slowly turn.

Now that I think about it, I forgot about it for a while, but didn't the Holy Emperor explain this to him one day?

-This is a wise ancient dragon that has protected Delcross for the past thousand years. I can't tell you his true name, but I call him 'Elder'.

okay. I couldn't help but feel strangely strong. The old man was really a dragon!

For some reason, the vertically slit pupils looked suspicious.

'then!'

Sigh.

When Seongjin suddenly exposes his teeth and laughs viciously, Dexter, who feels an unknown chill, flinches in surprise and blinks his eyes.

Anyway, Seongjin smiled kindly and spoke politely to him.

"It's nice to meet an Earthling. I've heard a lot from you about the advanced technology there. You already know what kind of person you are, right?"

"Ah, yes. Well...."

Dexter said, 'Why is this guy acting like this all of a sudden?' He answered with a shocked expression on his face.

"But Mr. Dexter, for what reason have you come to another world and been living in this 'Dragon' workshop?"

"What? Why are you suddenly asking that? What are you supposed to do with such a thing?"

Dexter twitches his eyebrows and glares at Seongjin.

There isn't much of a reaction to the word "dragon." Seongjin confirmed this and said with a smile on his face.

"Oh, it's nothing. I'm just thankful that you work hard for 'us' here, leaving a place as good as Earth. Now, would you please show me around the workshop?"

Dexter, seeing Seongjin's kind smile, was startled again and muttered softly.

be surprised Why is that smiling face so scary?

"yes?"

"...No, it's nothing. Follow me."

Creak.

Dexter, who felt a little intimidated for some reason, opened the door wide and gestured. Seongjin followed him into the room and was quite surprised by the dizzying sight that unfolded before her eyes.

'It's a completely different space inside the door!'

The workshop actually resembled a huge exhibition hall rather than a room.

Engines whose purpose is unknown, spewing out strong steam, and strange crystal plates flashing and blinking light. Wires with a complex structure whose connections cannot be counted.

Several floors of shelves filled with such unique machines, and dozens of high landings to get up to them.

It seemed as if many objects from across the world and time had come together in one place. Just taking a quick look at it is enough to make your eyes spin.

"Haha, what do you think? Have you ever dared to imagine that there is a place like this in the world?"

While passing through the crowded machines, Dexter's voice began to gradually become louder as he gained confidence.

"Look at this! It's an amazing machine that can distill dozens of layers in a short time with just simple operations! Isn't that amazing? It's a [Soul Reader] that reads not only human memories but even records of past lives!"

"oh....."

Of course, Seongjin's sentiments were simple, as he lived a life far from machines, both during his lifetime and even now.

'Um, yeah. 'These are very complex machines.'

And soon enough, they arrived in front of a huge, isolated machine. It was a huge machine with a high monitor reaching up to the ceiling and a lot of flashing crystal plates.

Voila!

Dexter shouted proudly, spreading his arms wide.

"Now, look! This is the highlight of the day! The ultimate [Homunculus Engine Editor]!"

But Seongjin's sentiments were still simple.

'Right. 'It's a very complicated machine that applies principles that you don't need to know.'

"Wow... that's really cool...."

Clap clap clap.

Dexter twitched his mouth in soulless admiration.

"...Is that all?"

"No, that's great, Mr. Dexter. I was so shocked that I couldn't even speak."

Seongjin spoke nonsense without even putting saliva on his mouth and then added:

"But is this over-technology really Earth's technology? From my insight, it seems a little distant from Earth's products."

At first glance, the quaint crystal plates that gave off a strange glow were a far cry from Earth's machines.

Then Dexter frowns suspiciously.

"Of course, this is the last legacy of Ionia. It is obviously over-technology, but it is not of Earth. But how do you know that?"

"That's because 'we' have a high mental age and have accumulated a wide range of experiences."

"...hmm?"

Only then did Dexter sense something strange and began to carefully examine Seongjin with new eyes.

Aren't we supposed to lump together the elders and refer to them as 'us' from now on? Even though she was young, she seemed strangely serious, as if she had gone through some difficult times.

When I stopped pretending and faced him politely, I was suddenly startled by what conclusion Dexter had come to and took a step back. Oops on that face! The expression on his face was clearly revealed.

'You're caught!'

"...Are you, by any chance, a hatchling?"

He asked in a hushed voice, but Seongjin turned his head and avoided answering, pretending not to hear.

If they look young but have a high mental age, are they all dragons?
Now, which one is more into fantasy?

From then on, it was just as Seongjin cooked.

"If he can become our colleague, Mr. Dexter, even though he is an Earthling, he must have lived using over-technology for at least a thousand years, right?"

"No, no. I just...."

As Dexter broke out in a cold sweat, Seongjin smiled warmly.

"Mr. Dexter, please speak low. I only have the mental age of 640 years. Compared to Mr. Dexter, who has mastered this over-technology for so many years, I am nothing more than a foolish brat."

I didn't say I lived 640 years. So it's not a lie.

But that alone made Dexter's face pale. I think he thoughtlessly ignored the proud hatchling, who would grow up to be a mighty dragon in the future.

Okay, now let's try some.

"Please, Mr. Dexter, help me as I am young and immature."

Saying that, Seongjin took out a large number of objects from the normal world that he had in front of him.

Not only the three ice hearts, but also the Nebraska Amulet, the Soul Stone, the magic stones given to him by his brothers and sisters, and even the handkerchief tied to the nutcracker.

The idea of coming to the workshop was to grab everything that could be pulled out.

"No, this is too much... isn't it? That's a different story..."

Dexter's face becomes gloomy as he checks the pile of work.

But Seongjin added with a smile.

"The old man told me to give 'as much' as possible to what he wants, so I tried to be a bit greedy. Oh, will it be difficult to have too many items? Then, I will go and ask again."

"No! No, it's okay."

Dexter waved his hand urgently and pulled out a machine from his belt. And he began to look at the items Seongjin had taken out one by one, as if scanning them.

How long has it been like that? He suddenly opened his eyes wide and shouted with a straight face.

"Huh? Wait, wait! What is this, yo?"

"yes?"

When Seongjin asked, not knowing what to say, Dexter, who was very excited, shouted.

"No way? It's here? Is this really it? Is it true that it is a [signpost] created by Oracle and that reflects the spirit of Oracle?"

Shouting like that, what he picked up was a pendant with a bright red broken gem. It was a relic of his grandmother that Seongjin found in the labyrinth some time ago.

* * *

It happened more than ten years ago now.

The Astros mercenaries had just completed a commission and were staying in the huge city of Regina for a while.

Mercenaries who received additional money for a rare success were congratulating each other by drinking heavily.

"The next request is Brittany! Will you come with us this time too, Bart?"

Justin, who was heavily drunk, asked Nate, who was diligently dressing up as a woman.

But he was still busy packing without even looking at the leader.

"Now, how about becoming an official mercenary member? I'll settle the bill well."

"I'm leaving this time. I have somewhere else to go."

"...What? No!"

Justin screamed loudly. Naturally, he thought that Bart would be with him, and he readily took on a request that was a bit tight compared to the mercenary group's capabilities.

"What should I do with the request without you?"

"Wouldn't it be okay to proceed without me or to cancel the request altogether?"

"Impossible! The reward for this request is so high! This can never be returned!"

But before I knew it, Nate, dressed in women's clothing, was walking across the bar and speaking calmly.

"I also know that I will never have another opportunity like this. If I go this time, I don't know when I will come to the northern part of the continent again. I have to hurry and go to Marie."

Then the mercenary members who were quietly watching the two's scuffle whispered quietly.

number of animals? Is that a woman's name? That's a girl's name!

"What? Bart! You finally have a girl you're dating?"

"This sinful bastard has his first lover!?"

"You envious bastard! Is she pretty? You say she'll wait for you?"

Hustle and bustle.

While the Astros mercenaries were talking excitedly, Nate pushed open the bar door and came out. He kicked Justin hard, who was hanging on by his legs.

There was a reason for his haste. This is because her lover, Marie, was a particularly sickly woman.

'I feel somewhat uneasy... .. '

Since she always had assassins on her tail, she couldn't stay for long, even for her lover's safety.

Not only was it not enough to pile up plenty of food and fill it with firewood, he even left behind a signpost he had made himself, just in case.

Nevertheless, I have an ominous feeling that something big is about to happen to Marie.

It was just as I was about to move north.

Damn.

With a ringing sound in my head, something hanging around my neck split in half. It was his mother's last remaining milestone.

".....!"

Especially now.

The significance of the timing when the milestone was broken was clear.

'If we go to Sigismund now, we'll be in big trouble!'

Nate froze in place.

Is there an assassin pursuing him closely now? If he goes to Marie like this, will not only himself but also her location be exposed?

'What needs to be done is decided. As the signpost indicates, we must move as far away from the North as possible.'

Still, Nate was worried.

He had no choice but to leave her, because Marie was a sickly woman who would quickly wither if he did not give her divine power. I definitely have to stop by at least once in the near future.

'But my mother's foresight is never wrong. If I go to Marie like this, a great and irreversible misfortune will befall me.'

Nate quietly closed his eyes and composed himself, sighing and throwing the broken pendant in front of the bar. According to her mother's will, if the milestone were to break, she would leave it in its place.

"Bart! Bart! Please! Huh?"

And even then, they were dragged by Justin, who was clinging to them from behind without getting tired, and they headed straight to Brittany.

* * *

[When I was young, I received several milestones from Mama Mama.]

Nate explained to the elder in a calm voice.

Empress Bethsheba, the previous Oracle, left a total of three bright red jewels to Nate. One of them broke when he was still a small child.

At the time, young Nate followed the instructions of the signpost, but ended up in an accident where he was trapped in a labyrinth alone with the guard knight who had been commissioned to kill the prince.

Nate, who managed to kill the knight and escape the labyrinth, had no choice but to doubt his mother's intentions for a while. But she later found out that it was thanks to him that she dramatically avoided her fate of being taken to Rohan.

The other one was given to the newborn Owen as a godson when he was running away from assassins. He thought he didn't have much time left to live anyway, so he hoped to be of some help to his godson's future rather than to himself.

[And one last milestone was broken right at the crossroads of Regina.]

As expected, Nate faithfully followed his mother's instructions.

But the choice he made at that crossroads changed his and Amelia's fate in an instant.

[What do you think would have happened if your mother had not changed that choice?]

In response to the old man's question, Nate rested his chin and thought deeply.

If I had found her again then, I would have found out that she was pregnant. And she wouldn't have met Tatiana on the way to Brittany.

It was a time when he had an assassin as his tail, so he probably couldn't stay by Marie's side forever. However, it is clear that he would often find her and take care of her, revolving around her squirming spirit.

[Even if I had stayed around her, Marie would not have been able to avoid death in the end.]

Nate can tell now. No matter what choice she made, Marie's life would not have been any longer.

But Nate could have saved little Amelia. And he must have wandered the continent alone with his child.

Although they may not have had a comfortable life, they would have had a great time seeing the continent's wonders and searching for delicacies. That alone would have made the two happy enough.

[Eomamama, as an oracle, 'knows' everything and moves cause and effect.]

There is a clear difference in karma between 'moving' and 'creating'

cause and effect.

However, this is a story that only applies to ordinary people who are ignorant of cause and effect.

For the Oracle, who sees through all cause and effect and is able to understand its beginning and end, the act of moving cause and effect itself remains as karma.

[Perhaps Mama Mama has taken on an unimaginably great burden of karma.]

The woman who brought a little girl to the brink of death several times and put her life in extreme pain has accumulated enough karma to be trapped in the cycle of eternal suffering.

What about his mother?

Who was the Oracle of the previous generation who, despite knowing the misfortune that would befall the girl, moved the cause and effect so that it would happen?

Nate looked up and his eyes became heavy.

[What kind of future did you see, and what kind of price did you prepare for?]

261

261. Source Editor (1)

"Is this really it? Is it true that it is a [signpost] created by Oracle and that reflects the spirit of Oracle?"

Dexter, who was shocked to see the pendant, took off his goggles and shouted.

"Oh my god! Look at the change in the wavelength here! That thing I only heard about in theory really existed in the world!"

"uh?"

Listen to the theory?

Seongjin tilted his head, and Dexter held the broken bright red jewel close in front of his eyes.

"Why is this coming out of your pocket? How can you leave this with all the junk?"

He was extremely cautious just a moment ago, but now he is very excited and is pressing on Seongjin as if he is going to eat him.

Thanks to this, Seongjin's plan to scare and freeze and even eat the bone marrow went awry, and he blinked in embarrassment.

"...It's a milestone, though."

Why is this here?

It seems that it got mixed up because it was carried around with the Nebraska Amulet.

"I'm not going to look at that now, so keep an eye on me...."

When Seongjin held out his hand, Dexter was startled and quickly hid the jewel behind him. He looked very nervous, as if he had encountered a robber trying to steal a precious heirloom.

"....."

Seongjin frowned and glared at him.

Give it to me when you treat it well. It's not something I should say because I carry it in my pocket, but it's important. It's a keepsake from my grandmother.

"...Is it okay if I take a closer look at this first?"

Toward Dexter, who asked cautiously in a trembling voice, Seongjin shook his head resolutely.

"No, just give it back. Today I came to see the items from the normal world."

"But while I'm at it, it would be good if you analyzed this too...."

"That's it. Please take a look at these 'ice hearts' here. I heard they seem to be of a fairly high grade."

But Dexter didn't even pay attention to his ice heart. Isn't he rather showing a straight face and getting angry at Seongjin?

"No, is it time to waste time looking at something like that? There is something worth analyzing right in front of us!"

... When you analyze it, isn't it just a gem?

As Seongjin was making a shocked face, Dexter quickly put the machine in his hand on one of the soul stones and called out to Seongjin.

"Now, take a good look at this here!"

The machine he showed was a kind of handheld scanner. There was a small screen, with pink and blue lights moving around and drawing a strange graph.

"...What is this?"

"Of course, isn't it a machine that measures Aon's reflection?"

I don't know, what the heck is Aon?

It's already been decades since I graduated from school, but I remember that at least that wasn't common sense in Earth science.

"Now, do you see these graphs here? This is the unique waveform from the analysis of the soul stone. Originally, all materials show unique aion waveforms depending on their composition."

Regardless of Seongjin's reaction, Dexter continued his passionate explanation.

"Also here, do you see the section where the pink and blue are widely separated? This means that this soul stone is a material that refracts aion with twin axes! In other words, it is proof that this is a product of the normal world!"

huh. Seongjin nodded his head.

I also have no idea what you're talking about.

"Okay! But wait! Look at this!"

But Dexter didn't care about Seongjin's harsh reaction. This time, she started chatting frantically while holding her grandmother's pendant, which she had hidden behind her, against the machine.

"Here is an item that you cannot believe exists in this world. It is the [Milestone] of the Oracle! Take a look at the ever-changing waves it creates!"

The difference was clearly visible even to Seongjin, who knew nothing.

The size of the wave increased and decreased, the two graphs merged into one and then spread apart, etc., so there was no point. It was almost suspicious that the machine was broken.

As I was staring at the fluctuating graph, Dexter's rapid-fire explanation poured down on top of it.

Now, do you see the [signposts] and the graphs that keep changing depending on the angle the scanner hits? What this means is that the number of reflection axes varies continuously depending on the location of the milestone! Moreover, doesn't the gap between the two graphs narrow and move apart? That means that even though it is a solid that appears to be uniform, its internal polarization coefficient... Oh, excuse me. This is not an actual ionic term, but I just use it for convenience. In any case, it means that the refractive index of aion is constantly changing! oh my god! How in the world does something like this exist?

"Oh oh."

Seongjin was very impressed.

I spoke for so long, but not a single word was intelligible!

"Because these dream-like objects are real, Ionian engineers worked so hard for such a long time to implement laws that were only possible in theory into the world!"

Dexter was now filled with tears of emotion. Seongjin, who couldn't stand it any longer, raised his eyebrows and gave him a look.

-Stop talking nonsense and just conclude.

Dexter, seeing that dull expression, pounded his chest in frustration.

"Do you really not know what this means? So the Oracle's [signposts] are things from the normal world, but they also partially have the same properties as substances from the normal world!"

It is a product created by a sophisticated mind, but it still has a distinct substance.

Something that originally could not exist within the laws of the original world came to exist in the world intact solely through human mental ability.

"Based on the mental world of the oracle, we create highly standardized rules and use them to embody reality in the world. Based on that core theory, Ionian engineers worked hard to create it! That is the crystallization of this over-technology, This is [Homunculus Engine Source Editor]!"

"Yes, but?"

"Ah! So, the principle of this engine editor is based on this [milestone]!"

The way the oracle recognizes the world, modeled after it and made to be implemented stably in reality, is the homunculus engine, the ultimate law that governs the normal world.

"Hmm. Well, I roughly understand, Mr. Dexter."

Seongjin nodded and said.

"But isn't that [engine] entirely Ionian technology? But I understand that the Oracles who created this milestone are prophets of the Kornsim clan from long ago?"

How could the Oracle of Kornsheim, based in Delcross, be related to Ionian over-technology?

Then Dexter asked back as if he was puzzled.

"Isn't that obvious? Isn't Oracle one of the legendary engineers of Ionia who first started this research?"

"Huh? Why is the Oracle in Ionia?"

"The Kornsim clan was originally a people who came from Ionia to Delcross, right?"

".....!"

Border races that made their home at the border of the dimension. In addition to those who currently make up the 'Council of Six', there were central races that lived in the center of the Ionian continent.

One of them is the Kornsim clan.

-Ionian races had unique characteristics that were different from humans. Most races had something called [Essence] that protected and supported the spirit of the clan.

One day, Seongjin heard such an explanation from Seonghwang.

However, unlike most races that place the essence externally and manage it carefully, the Kornsheim clan had humans who performed the role of the essence with advanced mental abilities.

The Oracle was the representative of the Kornsheim race and the living [essence] of the race.

"...wow."

Seongjin opened his eyes round.

Okay, this is definitely surprising.

* * *

Sweet.

Tatiana, who had been attending a political meeting on behalf of Seonghwang for the first time in a long time, took advantage of the short break to visit the office. She had an agenda that she wanted to meet with Seonghwang and hear his words, if possible.

But unfortunately, it was not the Emperor or Chamberlain Louis who greeted her, but Princess Amelia, who was looking at the documents.

Well, if she was in the office, I wouldn't have postponed the political meeting for her.

"Tatiana mommy."

Tatiana stared blankly at Princess Amelia, who greeted her politely.

Although she always called herself 'Empress Mama' in official settings, in private the princess always called herself 'Tatiana Ermamma.' When she first entered the imperial palace, she had been imitating Logan without even realizing it.

Strictly speaking, it is not a properly formal title, but it may be an area of talent to look friendly rather than arrogant.

"You've been working hard recently to help Your Majesty with his work, Princess Amelia."

"You're helping me out. It would be fortunate if I just stayed by your side and didn't cause you any trouble."

The way she answered shyly was also sweet like a flower.

That beautiful princess certainly resembles His Majesty a lot, but she must also have many similarities with her mother.

What a beautiful woman she must have been to have such a flower-like daughter. Jealousy towards the princess's now dead mother creeps up on her.

But Tatiana never showed it. She was the empress of the most powerful empire on the continent, and she has maintained her empress' dignity without a single flaw until now.

"Father, I heard that His Majesty is still in the prayer room. Now, Director Katrina is attending by his side."

"Really? If you really went to the prayer room, it will take longer than expected for you to come back. I had to interrupt the political meeting for a while because I really needed to ask your opinion..."

Tatiana sighed deeply. Now is the time to focus on the problem at hand rather than vague jealousy.

"Princess Amelia. Do you know anything about the generals who came from the Principality of Asein before the birthday party?"

I asked just in case, and the princess nodded and quickly found the document among the papers.

Tatiana was a little surprised by the quick reaction, but then slowly lifted the document and frowned. The long notices that had been sent several times in a detailed assortment several months ago were annoying to me for no reason.

"It seems like Grand Duke Asin really wants to push his savings into the imperial capital."

Recently, the western and southern nobles, led by Grand Duke Asin, were rolling up their sleeves to start a full-fledged savings business.

One of the ways is to acquire all the ritual tools used in the imperial capital through savings.

It was a proposal that had once been rejected by the Emperor, but as soon as he left, he pushed it back to the Empress as if to show off.

-Isn't it natural for us, as his beloved children, to provide the best for the Lord!

It was extremely embarrassing when even some high-ranking priests, including Cardinal Benitus, came out strongly.

The budget that had to be executed was a budget, but I was especially concerned that everything was going according to Grand Duke Asin's wishes.

'But now there is no excuse to refuse.'

As Tatiana seemed determined to push through even when she tried to go through all the difficulties, she ended up going to the king's office to ask for his advice.

But Amelia, who was closely examining Tatiana's face, opened her mouth.

"Wow, these savings ritual tools must be so embarrassing for the young priests."

".....?"

When I raised my head, not knowing why, clear gray eyes that looked exactly like Seonghwang sparkled with a bright light.

"According to research, isn't it said that a piece of jewelry weighs 1.5 to 1.8 times more depending on the craftsmanship? It is said that everyone wears small accessories without knowing it, but the weight of ritual utensils will increase significantly."

Tatiana blinked.

... Did you? It was a fact she had no way of knowing, as she rarely cared about the weight of her little trinkets.

"But how difficult must it be for the young priests who have to walk the imperial capital carrying ritual tools made with savings on the saint's feast day? They must be low-level priests with weak physical strength due to their lack of divine power."

".....!"

As the Empress opened her eyes wide, Amelia smiled sadly at her.

"Isn't it the feast day of Bastian, the saint of forgiveness, who forgives and inspires even violent criminals with his love? How much it would hurt the heart of such a kind-hearted saint if he found out about this."

"Is... is that true? Are you properly prepared with the materials?"

"Yes, Tatiana, my dear. There are documents that your father, His Majesty, has ordered you to carefully examine."

After answering that, Amelia walked quickly to one side of the office and took out a stack of papers from a pile of documents. Among all those documents, without any searching work.

Tatiana looked at this as if she were fascinated.

She was once called a prodigy, and at the time, she even studied abroad in Brittany alone, which was rare. Even though she did not have divine powers and could not rise to become a high priest, she had no doubt that she would easily achieve her dream of becoming a competent administrator herself.

What was it like after the Emperor came to the throne? Didn't she even have the ambition to properly lead the empire from the position of empress?

But above those who run, there are always those who fly.

-That document was processed a week ago, Tatiana. If it's okay, could you take a look at the documents over here?

-The letter you are looking for is in the third booklet from the left.

Tatiana's sense of self-destruction was indescribable when, after wandering around in a mountain of work, she finally realized that leaving Seonghwang alone was the only way to help her.

Is it just that? How could it be possible for an ordinary person to win an argument against strict Orthodox church leaders at a sacred meeting?

It was clear that Seonghwang's mind was filled with an enormous amount of historical information.

The same is true even recently when political affairs have stabilized. Even though she has talented servants working in their respective positions without any gaps, Tatiana sometimes feels that it is very difficult to replace the Holy Emperor when he is away.

'however... ... '

Empress Tatiana looked at Amelia with a suspicious expression and asked a question carefully.

"I heard that there have been several reports of strange storms in Cyprus recently. Can you find the information for me?"

"Yes, Tatyana, mom."

Then again, Amelia answered calmly and began to pick out the documents without hesitation.

'Of course. I'm memorizing everything I've seen once!'

What a terrifying power this is!

Tatyana shuddered.

Those who surround her and flatter her always say: Logan, who is gifted with great divine power and a genius swordsmanship, is well suited to succeed Seonghwang.

'But Your Majesty is not supporting this empire with a sword. His true strength lies in his ability to handle government affairs quickly and accurately.

Since Tatiana does not even have the talent for swordsmanship, let alone divine power, Amelia's abilities come to the fore even more powerfully.

Perhaps the princess's ability is the perfect talent for a leader of a country.

'I thought that one day I would marry a royal from another country and go to Rohan or Brittany...'

Perhaps the princess will emerge as a new competitor in the battle for the throne. Tatiana stood there, stunned, shocked by her sudden realization.

So, she didn't realize that the princess was humming a strange song to herself.

'Cyprus' report this quarter may be... Bam bam bam bam thump thump thump. That's right! 'This is the fourth index!'

262. Source Editor (2)

After that, Dexter's lengthy explanation continued for a while.

The great birth of the Homunculus Engine and the mysterious power of the Oracle that is its basis. Still unsolved mysteries contained in the milestones.

Rather than listening to the scientific history of a world, it felt like listening to a myth or a ghost story.

Thanks to this, Seongjin briefly suspected that Dexter was not actually an engineer, but a follower of yellow media obsessed with UFOs and conspiracy theories.

But fortunately, that explanation did not last long. This is because while Dexter was distracted by talking, Seongjin quickly snatched the milestone from his hand.

"100 million.....!"

Dexter's mouth widened as he looked at the bright red jewel in Seongjin's hand. His face was as helpless as a child who had been deprived of the candy he was trying.

Either way, Seongjin said firmly, thrusting an ice heart at him instead of a milestone.

"Please take a look at this first. I will give you time to explore the milestones later."

"but.....!"

"Mr. Dexter, like I said, this comes first."

I don't have time to do this now. Do you think your father, who is always suffering from lack of humanity, can stay here for a long time?

Dexter, looking at Seongjin's cold face, had no choice but to lower his head and say.

"Then, be sure to show it to me again later...!"

"I promise you this on your honor."

Of course, it has no value to me and I don't have the authority to do it.

But that seemed to be enough. Dexter picks up his ice heart, choking back tears with a resigned look on his face.

"...Keuheuk!"

Oh, I'll give it to you later!

So, don't look like Logan who lost his country. I feel weak for no reason.

In any case, taking Lee Jeong-gil hostage was an excellent choice. Since then, Dexter has been extremely cooperative.

He placed the items requested by Seongjin side by side in front of a huge machine that took up an entire wall of the studio and began to analyze them.

Homunculus engine source editor.

Although it had a name that seemed like adware, similar to malware, Dexter explained several times that this machine was a collection of Ionic over-technology.

The boards, which were studded with old-fashioned crystals, certainly looked quite decent just from the outside.

"Starting with this?"

"Yes, it's something called the Ice Heart of a Glacher Troll."

Dexter placed the ice heart on the analysis panel and started the machine. Then, the small crystals attached to the board started flashing dizzily, and soon numerous letters began to appear on the huge screen. Dexter was a little embarrassed and his eyes widened.

❑ Glacier Troll's Ice Heart ❑

❑ A new item obtained from the Gerardu Valley dungeon boss, the Glacher Troll King. You can set the activity conditions of the registered entity and give commands with simple sentences. ❑

❑ Item grade: A ❑

❑ *Currently unable to check Northland server. ❑

It also contained information that Seongjin had previously confirmed with his spiritual eyes. In full text form without any damage.

"It is true that this is a high-level product. It is just that it cannot be converted properly and therefore does not function in reality. In reality, there are an enormous number of concepts hidden in it. It is so needlessly heavy with data."

Dexter explained that this was probably because it was not made with a homunculus engine from the beginning.

It is said that the records of Glature Trolls appearing in the Demon World go back hundreds of years at best.

Then another question arose for Seongjin.

"But didn't you say earlier that the Homunculus Engine was created in Ionia not that long ago? Less than a few decades ago. But how can something from the normal world have existed even before that?"

Are you saying that the concept of the normal world itself is not that old?

"It is certainly true that the normal world has grown rapidly in recent years based on the Homunculus engine. However, time does not flow equally in each dimension, and a completely different form of source existed before the normal world in the first place. It is a 'game'. That's what it means."

"...A game?"

I definitely felt that way before. But Seongjin pretended not to know and she asked him back.

"Yes, I heard that one of the engineers designed an engine based on it. In fact, I was introduced to Ionic technology thanks to my relationship with a game company called Impulse Soft."

Dexter, who had said that much, scratched his head with a slightly embarrassed expression.

"Hmm. How should I explain it? It may be a little unfamiliar to beings from another world like you. But regardless of the underlying theory, the way the Homunculus Engine works is actually very similar to Earth's 'game'. there is."

That's why sometimes game data is clumsily converted to that of the normal world. This happens frequently when the rules that govern the normal world are recognized as the source of the normal world.

The game itself can transform into a new world. They are also called the 'early normal world'. It was given this name because it was completely different from the world carefully created based on the Homunculus Engine.

"Perhaps the Glacher Troll that was controlled by this was also not in its proper form. Would you like to see the original?"

As Dexter adjusts the board here and there, a huge monster soon appears on the screen. A rugged monster with huge tusks and long white fur.

It was somewhat reminiscent of a Yeti, but in any case, it would be closer to the name 'Glacher Troll' than its current inanimate form.

"This is also an unknown source from where it came from. It is a very primitive form of data with polygons surrounding the basic framework. As this became a physical entity through the laws of the normal world, its form completely collapsed and the physical laws of the normal world were lost. It goes against everything."

Seongjin nodded and looked at the screen carefully.

Surely the Glatute Troll moves in ways that are truly incomprehensible. Without a skeleton or joints to support the body, the block of ice was swinging its arms around the empty space.

"So how can we change this now?"

Then Dexter suggested changing the shape of the 'ice heart' a little. The reason was that round, spherical ice blocks were cold and cumbersome to carry.

"Can I make it into a flat rock-like shape? It is said that reprocessing this unidentified source using a homunculus engine was quite popular in Ionia. In particular, the rock is the most basic form, so it is a method used by many."

After hearing those words, Seongjin realized something.

'All the magic stones in the imperial palace treasury were created that way!'

The functions have been reduced for convenience in order to apply them in the real world as they are now, but if you dig into each of the components, they may all be of an incredible level.

And from then on, the arduous work of processing the Ice Heart and Glatute Trolls as desired continued.

Dexter modified some of the data to suit Seongjin's requests, looked at the results, and adjusted them again.

Meanwhile, Seongjin was able to ask him a few more questions.

"Mr. Dexter, I experienced my soul becoming unstable several times while using this ice heart. Do you know why?"

"Well, honestly, what happens to the soul is out of my jurisdiction. I am a technician after all."

Dexter adjusted his goggles and continued.

"I have only seen early Ionian research materials. It is said that unprocessed sources, especially those with excessive functions like this, place a great burden on the mind and body when exposed to them without filtering. That is why the Ionians enjoyed reducing and processing them."

"Then one more thing. I came into this space purely as a soul. But how can things from the normal world come here with the soul? And how are the adjustments made here reflected in reality?"

It was perhaps the most important question, but Dexter's answer to it was simple.

"That's because all objects in the normal world exist based on a kind of 'concept' called the Homunculus Engine."

So, if you touch on the concept here, it also applies to shaved ice in the real world.

But unfortunately, it was impossible to add something that didn't exist at all. Only entities already registered in the Ice Heart can be adjusted.

However, after a fierce battle, apart from shaved ice No. 1, which was completely destroyed and disappeared from the list, and excluding the shaved ice that was not in very good condition, there were only about five left.

The same goes for the two ice hearts taken from the devil. Because Seongjin had fun destroying the ice monsters controlled by the devil.

'If I had known it would be like this, I should have registered a few more decent glitcher trolls when I had time.'

There was no way anyway. I have no choice but to use what's left and make a gift.

Seongjin crafted a Glacher troll to be taken to the imperial capital. Don't forget to engrave the god's symbol on his chest.

'And I'm giving this to the kid again...' ... '

The next thing Seongjin put effort into was a gift to Sisley.

I was thinking about giving something to Amelia and Logan, but I felt like there was no right gift for Sisley.

As a gift from my sister, there is a wonderful sword that was already taken from the Margrave. When I showed it to Logan, who was very knowledgeable about the Henesys longsword, he was very impressed, saying it was a rare and famous sword.

-Seeing as it has a similar center of gravity to Arjuna, it is possible that it was made by the same craftsman. There remains a craftsman's unique habit that only those who have wielded a sword can understand. Even after the fall of Ortona, there are still craftsmen who make such good swords.

It's just that it looks ugly, isn't it a bit unsuitable for a lady? Seongjin smiled confidently at Logan, who had such a nervous look on his face.

-It's okay, it's okay. I assure you, this is totally your taste!

And I thought of everything I could give to Logan.

If the products processed here and the resourcefulness of Branch Manager Schmidt in Regina are combined, something quite worthy will be created.

'And there is also the matter of the Sigismund estate... ... '

It was a time when I thought I could roughly create what I had envisioned in my head.

"Aaaah!"

Dexter suddenly threw away his goggles and let out a strangled groan.

"Oh, no! If this continues, withdrawal symptoms will occur...!"

Then, he grabbed his neck and started rolling around the room!

"Oops! Oops! My passion and curiosity are being suffocated and dying! I can't take it any longer! Save me!"

"....."

Seongjin looked at the fuss with a sullen expression and thought.

'Well, there are all kinds of strange withdrawal symptoms.'

There have been a lot of things I didn't like with the guys who go to engineering school for a long time.

My junior, whom I met at a college club and continued our relationship with at the company until my Hunter days, was also an engineering graduate. And there was something strange about his personality.

"Ugh...."

However, since he had ripped off more than expected so far, Seongjin obediently handed Jomo's pendant over to Dexter. While he does not forget to give attention.

"Please be careful."

Then Dexter, who suddenly became fine, shouted with his eyes shining.

"Of course, I have no intention of handling this precious thing carelessly. I will cherish it and be careful not to cause even a scratch! I promise!"

No, that's not it.

I have a bad feeling that this is something I didn't really want to do earlier.

'Well, I can't help it. 'Because a promise is a promise.'

In this way, the bright red, broken gem entered the Goi Analyzer.

And the moment you turn the machine.

"Oooh!"

Along with the dazzling light on the instrument panel, an enormous amount of data began pouring in.

Windows piled on top of windows. Text is overlaid on the dext. A huge amount of data that cannot even be compared to the ice heart from before!

Beep beep beep beep-

But suddenly, a strange sound began to be heard from the crystal instrument panel. And soon after, a thick black smoke billowed out!

"Dangerous!"

Instead of Dexter, who was absorbed in looking at the monitor, Seongjin quickly snatched the pendant from the analysis panel.

And soon after-

Pow!

The Homunculus Engine source editor was destroyed in a spectacular explosion.

"Aaaah! No! My engine source editor is! The essence of over-technology!"

Dexter falls to the floor with a despairing look on his face and screams.

Oh, that's why I told you to be careful.

[What's going on, Dexter! Are you okay?]

Then suddenly. The door to the workshop opened and the old dragon man strode in.

Then, he freezes on the spot when he sees a machine emitting black smoke.

[The legacy of Ionia...]

Seongjin shrugged his shoulders, but soon made direct eye contact with Seonghwang, who had followed the elder.

Gray eyes that were extremely calm, as if they had anticipated everything.

Seongjin realized what he was thinking and silently screamed.

'No, that means it's all a misunderstanding! This is not me! 'It's real!'

One way or another, Seongjin felt truly unfair.

263. Source Editor (3)

The aftermath of the huge machine being destroyed was enormous.

The workshop quickly became thick with black smoke, but no one was able to take a step from the spot. This is because everyone felt first-hand how big of a deal this accident was.

[The last legacy left by a great civilization...]

Eventually, the stiff-necked old man lamented.

[There is no Ionian engineer left who can properly repair this.]

Dexter muttered that and even had tears in his eyes.

It looked so pitiful that he asked, 'Have you not already mastered Ionic over-technology, Mr. Dexter?' Seongjin, who was trying to tease him, had no choice but to keep his mouth shut.

Moreover, it was definitely not just the machines that caused the catastrophe.

Although it was split in half, the milestone that had been properly attached to the pendant until then was completely torn in two and fell off due to this incident.

While I was fiddling with the piece of the milestone with a sad heart, the old dragon suddenly turned around and glared.

[What are we going to do with this now, Nate?]

what? Why is this old man blaming his father for this?

Seongjin's eyes became sharp, and Seonghwang's attitude as he faced the elderly man was deceptively carefree.

[What are you telling me to do when everything is broken in due time?]

[You know, right? That is the last legacy left by the Ionian civilization! If your son destroys it on his own, take responsibility for it!]

[You're destroying it arbitrarily. My child will never... It is not a child.]

In response, Seongjin looked up at Seonghwang with resentful eyes.

father? You just hesitated for a moment. What does that mean? yes?

Anyway, as Seonghwang continued to show off in a high manner, the old man changed his methods and began to gently appease him.

[Hey, Nate. How can I help you?]

[This is an unreasonable statement.]

[I don't expect much from you. Can't you just give me some clues so I can fix it?]

[Do you think that is possible?]

Seonghwang looked at the old man with cold eyes.

[The old man who applies such strict standards of cause and effect to me is now telling me to directly touch a machine that disrupts cause and effect?]

[that... But didn't you actually come to use that too?]

[It is a fundamentally different problem for my child to use the machine a little and for me to touch the machine myself.]

Then the old man, speechless, looked into space and sighed deeply.

[Hehe, I heard that it is human nature to have different feelings when coming and when leaving, but I thought you would be different!]

However, there was someone who reacted to an unexpected part of those words.

Dexter, who was shedding tears while looking at the broken machine, looked back at Seongjin with a dumbfounded look on his face.

"...Human? Wasn't it a dragon?"

Everyone's attention was focused on those words, but Seongjin put an iron plate on his face and played it off.

"What do you mean? When have I ever introduced myself to you as a dragon?"

Then Dexter's jaw dropped and his mouth opened.

"I heard you're 640 years old?"

"I once said that I had a mental age of about 640 years. That's because I grew up early and matured."

How dare the whole royal family come to me for life advice? Ah, this contemplative scent that cannot be hidden.

"But you said earlier that you are working hard for 'us'...!"

"Yes, I just expressed my gratitude to Mr. Dexter, an Earthling, for his work for 'our beings of the Delcross dimension.'"

Speaking of dragons, isn't it too much of an illusion? Aren't you too into fantasy, Mr. Dexter?

"...I remember it definitely wasn't that nuance?"

Dexter's face turned bright red, but Seongjin avoided eye contact and looked the other way.

"You tricked me like that when you're not even a dragon? I can't believe I went through all that trouble for this swindler!"

[fraud... ..]

The old man, who saw Seonghwang's eyebrows twitching, quickly warned Dexter.

[Dexter! These people are from the most noble family in Delcross. Among humans, they can be considered to be at the highest level. So, you must also show proper courtesy to them.]

Then Dexter, who was completely angry, snorted loudly.

"Huh! Sir, I am a person of Earth. Is there any need to force me to bow to them in accordance with such an outdated class system? Yes?"

Seonghwang, who was quietly looking at him, opened his mouth.

[I'm sure he's right, son. Not all dimensions are like ours, and we cannot force Delcross customs on everyone. No matter where you are, the culture and customs of this world deserve to be respected.]

"Yes, father."

[So you cannot charge him with lese majeste. Of course, as much as we respect them, we can expect the same respect for our customs from them.]

aha!

And Seongjin, who clearly understood what he said, nodded.

"Then there is no need to show respect because of one's age. In Delcross, status comes first, so there is no need for me to force myself to follow Earth's customs."

And Seongjin held out his hand with a bright smile on his face.

"Now let's put it all aside and just be friends, Dexter."

"....."

At that moment, the old man and Dexter looked at Seongjin at the same time with dumbfounded faces. At first glance, you might think, 'What is this guy?' He looks like he's thinking about it.

"Why? Did I say something wrong?"

what? why? what?

* * *

Although there was a bit of a commotion, in the end, Seongjin and Seonghwang were able to come out of the gap with a somewhat heartwarming ending.

Thanks to Seonghwang's persuasion, the dragon elder finally came to terms with this disaster.

-That belongs to the culprit that caused the [disaster] of Ionia. It would be better not to function right now.

-Don't tell me what you like about what I brought you here!

-Isn't it the child's fault? Besides, I know you clearly told me earlier that he is my son, right?

-Hmph! Yeah, yeah. Okay, so lighten up your face! Well, if that's you, then it's like that...

It ended pretty well with Dexter too.

This is why Seongjin, who had achieved some satisfactory results, felt sorry for Dexter, who had suffered without gaining anything so far.

'Besides, I don't think we should break up in this bad atmosphere. I somehow feel like I will see this friend again next time...'

Seongjin thought for a moment and then held out the broken half of the milestone to him. Needless to say, Dexter's eyes widened.

-I can't give it to you because it's a keepsake from my grandmother. But if you really want to study it, I can lend it to you for a while. Please don't buy it again and cherish it.

Then, Dexter's eyes suddenly go blank, and he grabs Seongjin's hand and shouts in excitement.

-Thanks, friend!

It was an incredibly quick change of attitude. I wonder if the milestone is such a great thing.

After getting out of the gap between the elders, they began to go back the way they came, wading through the fog again.

[I'm sorry, father, for entrusting your grandmother's belongings to you without permission.]

Seongjin, who was following the hem of the white robes shaking in front of him, spoke. Then Seonghwang answered in a calm voice without even looking behind him.

[It already belongs to you, son. However you use it, everything is yours.]

From the moment Empress Bethsheba first handed over the milestone, she asserted that it did not belong to the Holy Emperor. So, once it breaks, I told you to throw it away so it can go to its owner.

He said it was okay to hand it over to someone you think is the owner. That was why Seonghwang handed a milestone to his godson, Owen, without hesitation.

[If you gave it to that Earthling, it means that your relationship with him will continue in the future.]

The severance of a milestone means the severance of a relationship.

So at that time, at the crossroads in Regina, the Holy Emperor was certain that he and Marie would never meet again. Of course, at the time she thought she would die first.

Of course, Seonghwang had a part of him that he believed in. This is because before leaving her Marie, he made her milestones just for her by putting in all the effort he could.

At the time, I could not have guessed that it would not function properly and that it would be passed down and become stuck around Amelia's neck.

Now that I think about it, I can only assume that Amelia's happiness is what Marie wants most in the world.

[ah! And I have another question.]

At those words, Seonghwang stopped and looked back.

Seongjin walked towards him at a brisk pace and took out a soul stone. It was a soul stone stained black with Hayes' soul.

[This is Hayes, a remnant of the Dark Church. You know it too, right? He is the one who opened the gate to the Heresy Tribunal in the past. What should I do with the interest now?]

[...]]

Then Seonghwang looked at Seongjin's face instead of the soul stone for a moment. As if he was trying to guess what Seongjin was thinking about when he showed this to him.

Tuk-tuk.

He patted Seongjin's head a couple of times as if to comfort him, then turned around and answered.

[okay. Do whatever you want.]

[yes? But this...]

[He paid the price by losing his life at my hands. Things that are completely cut off from this world due to death are no longer my business.]

And he smiled faintly at Seongjin.

[The same goes for any soul subordinate to you. No matter how you use them, I won't care from now on.]

[...] ... !]

It was a word with many meanings.

It doesn't just mean haze or red. Seonghwang knew from the beginning that there was not one soul subordinate to Seongjin!

As Seongjin stood there blankly, not knowing what to say, he looked somewhere, lost in thought, and then added one word.

[The subordination of the soul establishes an absolute superiority relationship beyond your imagination. So no matter what happens from now on, it will never betray you.]

* * *

When Seongjin opened his eyes in bed, it was already late afternoon. It seems that the time spent working with Dexter in the gap was longer than expected.

Until I closed my eyes, I could no longer see Sir Sharon next to me. Perhaps Seonghwang moved his soul with Seongjin, and Sir Sharon, who was freed from possession, returned to his original state.

-I have already punished Vincent Sigismund greatly. The Margrave will also pay his due someday, so you should not get involved anymore and return to the imperial capital quickly.

Even before leaving, Seonghwang repeatedly urged Seongjin to do so. Even now, he feels angry when he thinks of his sister, but Seongjin couldn't ignore his words.

In any case, the former countess, the culprit of the abuse, will eat well and live well, and then die after enjoying all the life she was given.

'But my father said he had no involvement in anything after death.'

Then it's the same for everyone, whether it's an old man, a margrave, or a former countess. Their true atonement begins only after death.

It was a vague, unfounded premonition, but Seongjin was confident that he would make them pay the full price.

'The question is what my father has in store for the margrave.'

I deliberately tried not to think deeply while I was with Seonghwang.

-Still, I hate him. To the point where I think it's okay to bear the full burden of the sin of arbitrarily moving cause and effect while 'knowing' the outcome.

At the very least, it was clear that he did not want to postpone revenge on the Margrave until after his death. Doesn't it seem like he wants to commit something big even though he is burdened with insufficient cause and effect?

'What on earth is your father planning? 'He's probably thinking something unreasonable, right?

Seongjin, who had been thinking for a while with his arms crossed, suddenly raised his head with a strange feeling of discomfort.

Now that I think about it, why is this guy so quiet? Even though Seongjin was away for a long time without saying a word?

'Hey, devil?'

I called carefully, but there was no answer.

[...]]

Seongjin tilted his head.

After escaping from the Emperor's grace and increasing his radius of action, the Demon Lord sometimes left Seongjin's head and spent his time manipulating creatures such as rats and birds.

But that wasn't the case now. I can definitely feel his presence in my head.

'hey? Are you here? 'Why isn't there an answer?'

As I quietly concentrated my mind, I could feel the demon king's soul curled up inside the flame crystal.

However, unlike usual, I can't understand his emotional state very well, so it seems like he's locked in and trying to save his soul.

Why is he like this all of a sudden?

'Did you leave without saying a word to me and come back upset? But you know that, right? 'I didn't have time to say anything in advance because I suddenly went through a gap.'

[...]]

I guess things are a little strange.

Since he's just a soul, he won't really feel physically ill. what is the problem?

'Do you want bear meat for dinner?'

When I finally pull out my trump card, I hear a voice creeping into my head.

[...] Seongjin Lee.]

'huh.'

[Lee Seong-jin.]

'okay.'

Then the Demon King, who was silent again, hesitated and asked after a while.

[Are you really Lee Seongjin?]

Only then did Seongjin realize that this was not just a matter of the Demon King's mood.

After cursing the old lady earlier, I went straight to the gap and didn't have time to talk to this guy.

What on earth is this guy feeling, and what is he scared of?

'... Oh right.'

[But earlier...]

'are you okay. My father healed everything.'

Seongjin spoke more firmly than ever before.

'Everything is okay now, devil.'

Sniff.

Then, I felt my soul, which had been strained by the decision to burn, finally relax.

[...] Yes, that's right. That can't be possible.]

'... ... '

[Because your father is Seonghwang, he is called the representative of God in this world, so there is absolutely no way you would do that.]

'... ... '

[Sniff. I'm sure it's all just my imagination.]

What on earth did you mean you were mistaken?

But Seongjin couldn't bear to ask that.

The moment you talk about it openly, you and the devil must recognize and face it at the same time. I didn't have the confidence to face it head on yet.

[however...]

The demon lord continued to fidget for a while, and then he asked in a cautious voice.

[Sniff. Are you really going to eat bear meat for dinner?]

'... 'Ugh,'

Seongjin sighed softly.

Max and you, indeed. It's like he has no iron. I'm not raising a child right now.

264. Hwangdo-ro (1)

Seongjin spent some time quietly waiting for the chase team that left for Makyeong to return.

Other than practicing or occasionally going to see Max, I was still in my room.

If possible, I didn't want to encounter the people at the count's residence. Just looking at the servants, as well as the Marquis Baek family, reminded Amelia of her past, making her blood pressure rise and her spine tighten.

Instead, Seongjin was able to focus on training for the first time in a long time.

After receiving Masain's detailed guidance and meditating with Director Bruno, I felt as if I had returned to the Pearl Palace.

"I miss it a little. Those faithful days when I devoted myself to training at the training center all day."

"...Are you serious about that, my Majesty?"

Sir Carmen, who was training next to Leader Bruno, asked Seongjin as if he wanted to hear all the crazy things.

"Tsk. Of course I'm serious. That means you're the least bright."

"yes?"

"Didn't you join before Sir Claudia?"

But why is it so much less bright than hers, huh?

"Ah, I'm so pissed! Please stop making comparisons like that... Eup!"

"....."

"...I'm sorry."

There were so many other things going on here and there that time just flew by just to sort them out.

Thanks to this, it was Dasha who became busy. I heard that in order to carry out the work requested by Seongjin simultaneously in the Imperial Capital and Regina, the Monkey Watchtower was requested to recruit a large amount of personnel.

"Sir, are you really pushing this forward?"

And every time she saw Seongjin's face, she asked worriedly.

"Then. If you're not really doing it, what's the point of all the trouble you've gone through so far?"

"But isn't it too absurd to say it's a business?"

The situation in Delcross was not much different from the Earth where Seongjin lived. This is because it was common for children from high-ranking, prosperous families to recklessly and ambitiously start businesses and then ruin them.

However, it is surprising that a young prince who knows nothing is starting a business that spans the continent.

"Well, Branch Manager Schmidt has already laid out the basics. We have also sought some advice on profitability, so there is no problem."

Moreover, in order for Logan's present being prepared to be completed, Regina needs to start the groundwork right away.

"But no matter how much I think about it, it doesn't seem like it will make a profit. Considering the maintenance costs, it's just right to run into a loss...."

"Uh-huh!"

Basically, in any business, if you can hold on until it stabilizes, half the problem is solved.

Since I have a father, my capital will never dry up, and there will be no competitors, so if I wait, I will find a place someday.

Plus, I have a secret item that I made together with Dexter.

"What on earth is that?"

"I'll show you around in Regina on the way back."

Haha.

Seongjin smiled confidently.

It was around that time that Adjutant Francis arrived in Sigismund.

* * *

"...Are you really saying this is a Glatzer Troll?"

Francis pushed up his glasses and examined the shaved ice with sharp eyes.

Instead of No. 1, which was destroyed in battle, it was Bingsu No. 2 that Dexter asked to adjust. Seongjin had parked it in the back corner of the count's residence.

'Originally, I had planned to enter the country proudly with as many family members as I could.'

The prevailing opinion was that if gigantic beasts walked in a line, the people in the imperial capital would feel scared.

It was as clear as day that ice monsters weighing tens of tons would destroy the well-maintained Imperial Road.

In addition, considering the opposition of the Orthodox Church, an agreement was reached with the Holy Emperor to take only one designated holy relic.

As such, a lot of effort went into shaved ice No. 2.

Seongjin proudly opened his arms wide towards Francis.

"It's not a Glatre Troll, it's Shaved Ice No. 2, Sir Francis. And now it's a holy relic officially approved by the Holy Assembly!"

"You know and I know that's bullshit. And please don't give strange names to things that are meant to be relics."

Perhaps because he had to be away from Director Katrina for a long time, Francis became more grumpy than usual.

However, even he couldn't hide his admiration for a moment when he saw the shaved ice No. 2 that Seongjin showed off.

"His Majesty suddenly asked us to designate a demonic beast as a holy relic, and I thought this was some kind of crazy order. But this is quite enough...."

Well, it wouldn't be unreasonable.

Bingsu No. 2 was no longer an ignorant ice block monster, but was closer to a statue of a knight wearing a fairly decent-looking ice armor.

The armor with the god's symbol embossed on the chest resembled the full armor of the Holy Knights. On the head, instead of a rough face that looks as if it were roughly made of ice, is the delicately carved ice helmet of the Holy Knights.

Where is that?

He wears a long sword made of ice on his waist and a huge cloak with the Lord's emblem engraved on his back, so it can only be described as a noble knight given by the Lord himself.

In addition to being sleeker overall, the size was also reduced to about 5 meters, and the weight was also greatly reduced.

At this rate, you won't have to worry about holes in the ecliptic road every time Bingsu No. 2 walks.

"I'm going to take this and give it to my father. Wouldn't it be nice to display it in the main palace lobby?"

Is proud. I feel like a dutiful son who gave his parents a new car.

"Well, okay. I guess it'll be okay."

Francis took out a thick document and began to diligently edit something into it.

"What is that?"

"This is a draft of the documents to be submitted to the Holy Assembly. Do you know how easy it is to designate a holy relic? We are planning to compile a lot of historical materials based on the amazing continental tour. All the details must be correct at that time so there will be no noise later."

After responding like that, Francis narrowed his eyes and focused on filling out the documents.

"First of all, let's call this Glacher Troll the relic 'Knight of Grace'. Wouldn't it be better if it's intuitive and plain?"

It was an action that completely ignored the original name of Shaved Ice No. 2.

Seongjin glared at him with dissatisfied eyes, but he paid it no heed and began to scribble corrections with a single stroke of his hand.

Hmm, it would be better to completely change the expression to 'Knight of the Lord' rather than 'Giant of the Lord'. There are many things that don't fit the description of size. Should we change the expression, 'It is said that when he raised his huge body, it was like a mountain rising', to 'When the knight raised his sword, he was so majestic that it seemed as if he could split the mountain'? It would be better to completely delete the eyewitness account of a giant walking across Lake Salz. If you went into the center of a lake that size now, you would probably be submerged up to your head. Wouldn't it be a little funny? Other than that, I think the overall description in the book may be a bit problematic. Ah, for this part, it would be quicker to completely overhaul [Exploring the Miraculous Continent]. And again...

Seongjin, who was listening next to him, was very embarrassed.

"You even edit books that have already been published?"

Then Francis responded calmly without even looking up from the documents.

"Yes, well. Isn't [Exploration of the Miraculous Continent] a banned book that will never see the light of day if left as is? This was a planned procedure from the time we decided to exclude it from the list of banned books."

"....."

"Why are you surprised when the scriptures have been revised several times at a holy meeting? Still, it will be quite a sight to see when the revised first edition is published in the Imperial Capital. How about purchasing one for yourself? It is rumored to be quite interesting."

Tear up the scriptures and change them? For Seongjin, who lived on modern Earth, this was something he couldn't even imagine.

Seongjin, curious, glanced sideways at a document that Francis had finished editing.

-On the day that Granus visited the Devil's Palace under the orders of the Holy Emperor, auspicious light was shining from all directions. It is truly the divine will of the Lord being exercised on this earth. Then the representative of God said, "This is to prepare for the dark shadow that will one day fall on the kingdom of the Lord, so send down the divine giant and send down a knight who has received grace..."

They wrote a myth.

Isn't this a full-blown fabrication? Where did your conscience go?

"Your Majesty's work has always been like this since long ago. Even when you drove out the Dark Church from the Ecliptic, you completely tore up and changed the scriptures. Everyone is muttering about it, but it is a fact that everyone in the know knows."

"...Father?"

"Yes. It's not just your Majesty. Among the successive emperors, there was one who cut out an entire chapter of the scriptures. It was so long ago that we no longer know the contents. It was just that it contained secret stories from the time of the founding of the nation, such as Delcross. There are a lot of rumors that it was an apocalypse that predicted the destruction of ."

Francis, who had said that much, narrowed his eyes and glared at the document as if there was something blocking it.

"Well, it cannot be denied that it is the most efficient way to rule the empire, but it is necessary to consider whether it is the right attitude as the representative of the main lord. To be honest, the current Majesty is also a person who has completely built a wall with his conscience, isn't he?"

Then Seongjin burst into tears and opened his eyes.

"But doesn't the fact that you are here mean that you were on Lord Katrina's orders? Then the leader is also an accomplice. Why are you doing this only to my father?"

Then it was Francis' turn to get upset.

"No, the one who gave the command and the one who received the command are the same?"

"When has your father ever forced an unreasonable order on the leader? I guarantee you that leader Katrina would have had no doubts about her father's orders."

Sir Katrina is said to be like her father's mirror, carrying out her father's orders. Then does that mean that she either has no thoughts of her own, or is equally as far from a conscience?

Then Francis put the documents down on the floor and shouted.

"Ik! How can you say such a thing about our fair and fair leader?"

Everything the leader does is right!"

"Then everything your father does is right!"

"Yes, sir! I will say so! Ah, it's not like the kids are fighting right now, what is this!"

"Don't be ridiculous! You've already committed all kinds of blasphemy, so why are you pretending to give in now?!"

The two fought uselessly for a while, but finally stopped the fight thanks to the intervention of Masain, who came running after seeing the commotion.

"Francis. You're usually fine, but I don't know why people turn into idiots when it's only Director Katrina who gets caught."

Masain, who was scolding Francis, turned his head to Seongjin and sighed softly.

"Why do you all do this when you're with me, Logan, Francis...?"

".....!"

Seongjin was greatly shocked.

No, this is my fault now, Lord Martha? Is that it?

[Then whose fault is this?]

'shut up!'

Anyway, Francis, who had finished the report on Shaved Ice No. 2, this time traveled around the Sigismund Territory to investigate eyewitness accounts of the 'miracle'.

However, gathering testimonies from the people of the territory without much fabrication was simpler than expected.

Because it was such a big deal, there was no panic, and because the battle took place in the dark, few people remembered the details of Bingsu's appearance.

-The ice soldiers given by the Lord appeared with divine light and defeated the demonic beasts!

That wasn't holy light, it was probably a flashbang.

-The brilliant light that bounced every time God's apostles swung their fists!

As I punched ignorantly, the ice on my fist broke and bounced in all directions.

-Where is that? The huge Sigismund badge proudly flew on his back, and the main god's symbol was clearly engraved on his chest!

It seems that Sir Valerie's clumsy appearance looked quite convincing.

"Everything has been resolved with this. Now, even the Crusade will not stumble over this matter."

Francis, who had been diligently organizing the remarks, spoke in a relaxed manner.

His mood also improved with the anticipation that he would be able to return to the imperial capital earlier than expected.

"Well, it seems like it was somewhat vague."

Seongjin was still in a dazed mood. It seems like something is solved so haphazardly.

Unfortunately, many of the soldiers who witnessed shaved ice in broad daylight were killed. Including old Sir Hans, who guarded the Gorge Fortress.

This means that there are not many people left who can disagree with this story.

The blunt Orden is silent, as if his silent mouth has been completely shut.

-So, they weren't just glamor trolls, but knights of grace, or messengers of God? Oh oh! As expected! Somehow, from the moment I first saw it, I felt a sacred energy!

Sir Oscar, who was a sane witness, went one step further and went to all the bars in the estate to spread the rumor.

Now the bard Laurent had come to compose and sing an absurd song based on his testimony.

The prince firmly raised his hand and pointed to the white horizon.

Behold those cold invaders! That is our old enemy!

At that light gesture, the knight of grace bestowed by the Lord swings his sword... ..

Seongjin, who was watching the unfolding situation in bewilderment, could not help but shake his head in frustration.

Anyway, what is a world without proper media?

"Well, isn't that a good thing? It's nice that there's a lot less work to do thanks to this."

Francis, who completed all the work in just two days, gave instructions to Seongjin with a rare bright face.

"Then, I will go to the imperial capital first. Please, Your Majesty, please take your time and come back slowly. Although the documents are fully prepared, it will take some time to convene the Holy Assembly and designate the 'Knight of Grace' as a relic."

After Francis left the estate in peace. Soon after, the chase party returned to the estate. Including Logan and Lilium's detachment, still wearing their white, shining uniforms.

Now the moment has truly come for Seongjin to leave the territory.

"Margrave Hendrik. If you have time, please speak with me for a moment."

And Seongjin visited the Margrave's study that evening. Before he returned to the imperial capital, there was still some negotiation to be done with him.

265. Hwangdo-ro (2)

Margrave Hendrick was troubled by the recent situation. Because nothing matched his expectations.

'It's something that couldn't have happened in the first place.'

The Margrave always had a plan that was almost perfect, considering as many variables as possible, and there were several levels of preparedness in case the plan went awry due to irregularities.

Therefore, he was not embarrassed when Prince Mores suddenly appeared at the estate and demanded that the distribution of medicinal tea be stopped. If the medicine cart didn't work, he had another next step.

The same goes for the fact that they were unfazed by the unprecedented air raid. He had a final bastion that he kept hidden until the very end.

'But why?'

If you think about it, the answer was obvious.

Strangely, the variables created by Prince Mores are always far outside the range that humans can anticipate and prepare for.

Everything is turning around the prince. Not only the medicine cart, but also the Milo Sangang, and even the movements of the Penitent Church.

'Now it's a holy relic!'

At first, I thought it was some kind of nonsense, but isn't it really the Ice Knight who is supporting the Count's mansion?

An inspector of relics dispatched from the imperial capital even officially prepared documents, saying it was evidence that the 'Knight of Grace' had descended. It was a situation he could never have predicted in advance.

'I thought the prince would try to cover this up quietly... ... '

This is the position of Prince Mores, about whom there were once disturbing rumors.

Anyway, there would be no benefit in making it widely known that he had moved the magical beast, so I was just trying to take some advantage by pretending to cover it up.

But now the situation has become the opposite.

'Rather than the stigma of being a territory that survived with the help of a demonic beast, it is a hundred times better to be known as a territory that the main lord personally protected by sending down holy relics!'

Therefore, Prince Mores also did not tell the Margrave in advance. It was as if the Margrave was returning back what he had arbitrarily tried to reduce to the princes' merits.

In any case, the continent would be in an uproar with the news of the relic's arrival. Sigismund's desire to show off his firmness to the North was in vain.

If this is the case, then what is the meaning of curtailing the activities of the princes? Also, what will happen to the relationship with the Penitent Church from now on?

'Besides, Prince Mores probably won't just let it go.'

My head was already aching as to what the prince would demand in return for trying to reduce the Duke.

However, the day before he left, this was what Prince Mores said to the Margrave when he appeared in the study.

"Margrave, give me Max."

".....?"

"I promise. I will make Max happier than anyone else in the world."

For a moment, the Margrave did not quite understand what he had heard.

On the other hand, a list of useful talents in the territory, from the Wolf Knights to the lowest ranking soldiers, flashes through my mind.

'Lord Marx is an old man about to retire. I heard that Marx, who came from the village below me recently, is quite talented, but he is still at the squire stage. Not only do neither of them have any contact with Hae-jae, but they probably aren't talents worth coveting either. Who on earth... ..!'

Then the prince added with a pitiful look on his face.

"What are you thinking about, Margrave? Is that something you should think about for a long time?"

"I apologize, sir. But which Marx are you talking about...?"

"What on earth are you talking about? I'm talking about a wolf dog in a kennel."

"Ah? Yes. Is that so?"

I heard there's a wolfdog that's definitely cute.

Still, the reason I didn't think of it right away was because I never thought the prince would ask for that dog from the beginning.

Above all, Margrave Hendrick did not remember the names of each of the dogs he owned. Although he knew all the human resources of the territory, the number of dogs was important, and he was completely uninterested in the characteristics of small individuals.

"What can I do? Can you give it to me?"

"Of course, my lord. As a hound, you can do whatever you want."

Trying to use the disposition of a dog that is not even part of the negotiation agenda as a tile may have the opposite effect. In that case, it would be better to at least be kind to the other person.

"Good. After all, you are someone who knows how to communicate."

The prince smiled in satisfaction, then walked to the side and pulled out a book from the study.

He flipped through it carelessly, put it on the bookshelf, and took out another folder.

It was the same thing that old Vincent sometimes did when he came into the study for business.

"....."

The Margrave barely suppressed his frown.

The study is his space, a space completely controlled by his own rules. And he absolutely hated any disruption of the rules.

He couldn't help but lament that Prince Mores and Old Man Vincent, the two people he couldn't mess around with, had similar habits.

"To be honest, Margrave, I was a little impressed this time."

widely.

Eventually, Prince Mores put the documents he was holding into the bookshelf and turned his head.

"Sigmund's power is beyond imagination. The ice wall was destroyed and many soldiers were killed or injured. Also, part of the territory became a battlefield and was completely destroyed. But even in such chaos, the people of the territory did not shiver from the cold and never starved. "There is none."

Although it may seem like a compliment, it is not a very good thing to hear as the beginning of a negotiation. So does this mean that they will tear it apart as much as they want without hesitation?

However, as always, the Margrave bowed his head, skillfully hiding his expression.

"That's too much praise, my lord. This is the result of not being negligent in preparing for the danger that is the devil's side."

"Yes, I know. I guess I've been saving it up little by little over the years in preparation for an emergency."

Somehow this feels strange.

Margrave Hendrick furrowed his eyebrows as he thought about its meaning, but Prince Mores, who had been staring at him quietly, continued.

"That's why I became even more convinced. That you don't care about your own self-interest and work harder than anyone else only for the future of the territory."

"Since you know so much, I don't know what to do, my dear."

Even as he answered, the Margrave was puzzled.

What on earth does the prince want to say?

"But Margrave, I sometimes feel this way when I look at you recently."

Prince Mores crossed his arms and tilted his head.

"Does the prosperity of the territory have value in itself to you? Regardless of the well-being of the count or the people of the territory."

"...Huh? What do you mean?"

"That's exactly what it says. You have the most promising son on the continent, and you have loyal residents who protect the territory even in the harshest cold. But are they and the territory completely different?"

"....."

"The medicine cart thing at the top of Milo is a good prediction. Why do you sometimes get the feeling that what you do is in complete parallel with their well-being?"

Of course it is different. To Hendrick, they are members of the territory, not the territory itself.

But from many years of experience, the Margrave knew that this was the wrong answer.

"If you feel that way, it is only a result of my shortcomings. I am only completing this body for the sake of the people of the territory and the empire."

Then, cold, colorless eyes, similar to the eyes of Seonghwang, whom he once encountered, quietly gazed at him.

"I have only one question to ask, Margrave."

"Yes, sir."

"Did you already know that they were going to bring out [penitent wood]?"

The Margrave, who had suddenly hit the nail on the head, was almost startled.

However, with a really desperate effort, I was able to stop my facial muscles from twitching for a split second and make a puzzled expression. It was a skillful response that the young prince would not have dared to see through.

"Who are they, sir? And what is penance?"

The Wolf Knights had already heard about the attack by the Demon Tree.

However, it is true that not many people know about its second name, [Chamhoemok]. If you understand it right away, there will be nothing more suspicious.

But the margrave had no idea. Something in the prince's mind just whispered this in his ear.

It is a lie.

"....."

And the prince smiled. It was an eerie smile that you would never expect a young boy to make.

"Well, then. Enough introduction. Now, shall we talk about the remaining calculations?"

For some time thereafter the Margrave discussed future compensation with Prince Mores.

The content was nothing special.

Prince Logan and the Liliium Detachment will send a formal letter of appreciation to the Imperial Capital for their activities in the Demonic World.

And in the deal with the new merchant, we will recognize several priority exclusive rights.

It may have been large, but it was within the range that the Margrave had assumed. On the contrary, compared to the prince's temperament that was previously understood, it is rather generous.

'Have you looked into the situation of the territory? Since he's been quiet up until now, I thought he was going to try and extort a lot of money.'

After sending the prince off, the Margrave approached the bookshelf. I had to straighten out his rules that had been bothersome from before and had been disturbed by others.

However, the Margrave, who was trying to quickly sort things out, suddenly realized an unbelievable fact and stopped dead in his tracks.

'... 'Is it the same?'

Nothing has changed.

Not only the order of bookshelf and documents arranged according to complex rules, but also the intentional disorder that is cleverly arranged.

'I was clearly watching with my own eyes as they picked things out and rummaged around!'

At that moment, the words the prince uttered in passing came to mind in the Margrave's mind. And she realized the reason for the discomfort she felt earlier.

-okay. I know. It must have been saved little by little over the years in preparation for an emergency.

What it meant was clear. It is said that the prince has already investigated all of Sigismund's material movements over the years.

I also saw top-secret materials that were never exposed to the outside world and that only a few people, including the Margrave, knew about!

The Margrave stared blankly into space in shock.

'Since when did the prince start going in and out of the study? How far did you see it? No, how far did he figure out my plan!

Of course, we do not create documents with dangerous content just to show off. All plans and materials are in the Margrave's head.

However, some people infer many things just by listing seemingly meaningless data.

'I didn't just come for negotiations. He was warning me.'

The Margrave, who realized that his rules were not an all-purpose lock, couldn't help but feel sad for an instant.

* * *

[So what was the conclusion? What on earth did you threaten?]

'well...'

In fact, although he pretended to be in front of the Margrave, Seongjin was also unable to completely understand the specific plan the Margrave had in mind.

'In the end, we have no choice but to finish on a moderately warning note.'

Of course, when I think of what the author did to my sister, I want to rip off every single capillary, but if that happens, it is not the Margrave who will suffer, but the subjects of the Sigismund Order.

The Margrave is not by nature a person of extravagance, but is a person who manages funds rationally for his fiefdom.

Now, Sigismund, which has been hit by an unexpected disaster, will have to claim more support.

'The Margrave has one last move he is hiding. It's also probably related to the Dark Church.'

Seongjin rested his chin and was lost in thought.

'I guess I won't be able to take my eyes off Sigismund for a while, right? Should I tell Dasha to mobilize all of Monkey Watchtower's agents to keep a close watch... ..'

However, the Demon King said that he did not feel any special magical energy in the territory.

Somehow, I can't shake the feeling that there are limits to the human eye. If they dig too deep, it will be difficult for the agents to get out.

In the end, Seongjin, who had been thinking about it, came to a conclusion.

'Let's leave this matter to Schmidt.'

Since he is the branch manager who will win Sigismund's anti-monopoly contract anyway, shouldn't he put in this much effort?

It would be good to keep an eye on him as he goes back and forth about contract issues, and he has a pretty cute demon in his household who cries at meeme.

[what? Do you like a family member who makes such soft animal cries? Is that why you find that mongrel dog that makes bullshit cute?]

'Why have you been tripping over strange things for a while now?'

But their conversation did not continue any further. This is because I encountered a not-so-pleasant person in the hallway.

"Sir, what's going on!"

The Margrave's second son quickly approached him with joy. He looked like he was going to take out everything, including his liver and gallbladder, but Seongjin just stared at his face without answering.

"....."

"How can you say that?"

Seongjin vaguely remembered the sharp thoughts he had heard while in a dazed state after drinking medicinal tea.

-Orden That bastard, it's so disgusting to see him pretending so arrogantly without knowing the end. I wish I could go somewhere and die.

Dry eyes behind that loose smile. He's probably the one who has the most of the Margrave's personality, but his head doesn't turn that much.

Seongjin looked at him blankly and asked.

"Where is the Archduke?"

Crispy. Emmett's smile cracks.

"yes?"

"I have no business with you. Where is your brother?"

Then he wheezed, clearly showing his face color changing. Compared to my father, I still have a long way to go.

But no matter what he was thinking, Emmett had to give an appropriate answer to the prince's question.

"...It will be at the training ground. I will guide you."

"No, you don't have to."

Seongjin responded like that and walked past him.

"Unlike others, the Archduke's Auror activity is very strong. It's not a sign that can be hidden just by hiding it."

"....."

"Why don't you just train like your brother instead of bandaging your healthy arm? Or go and help with the estate work. What is a grown man doing that's a trickster?"

Sensing the fierce gaze following him from behind, Seongjin snorted and quickened his pace.

"There's this guy and that guy, and there's really no one I like in the Sigismund family.'

I think Orden is the best among them.

... On the topic of Orden.

266. Hwangdo-ro (3)

What Seongjin said to tease Emmett wasn't completely empty.

As I was roughly walking in the direction of the training ground, I was able to sense Orden's strong aura emitting with strong fighting spirit.

'Anyway, his momentum is at the level of a knight commander.'

It was there for a while, but if you think about it, when you first saw it in the imperial capital, it gave off such tremendous energy.

While he usually spoke little and was serious, the Aurors he operated were extremely rough and rogue.

'Seeing as they are completely different from the Wolf Knights, it may be the influence of their teacher Balthazar... ..'

Seongjin, who entered the entrance to the training ground, was able to find Orden swinging his sword hard alone in light clothes on this cold day.

And I was momentarily distracted by his unique sword play.

'That's an old sword technique... ..!'

Orden's swordsmanship teacher is Balthazar, the greatest knight on the continent.

And Balthazar was famous for teaching his students the old sword techniques before Banajas organized them. Thanks to this, there was a craze for old-fashioned swordsmanship among the continent's greatest swordsmen.

-If you want to truly understand the essence of a sword, be sure to learn its original form!

It may not be a completely unfounded rumor.

Certainly, Orden's movements and Auror's use had many minor details that were not found in the standard swordsmanship of the Imperial Knights. However, it has a quite old-fashioned and old-fashioned taste.

Obviously, as there are more forms and forms, it is likely to be more varied and diverse than standard swordsmanship.

'But that's not all.'

While using such delicate swordsmanship, the momentum emitted is also such rough and free-spirited.

Perhaps it is because the intention behind the sword is different from others. Seongjin, who was now somewhat familiar with swordsmanship, could vaguely guess it.

Until now, Seongjin had had the opportunity to catch a glimpse of Orden's sword several times.

However, seeing him unfold the equations one after another like this, I was able to see more clearly the difference between him and other people.

It is different from the sword of Sir Martha, the so-called genius, as well as the sword of Commander Bruno.

Unlike those who are constantly striving towards the goal of an ideal sword in their head, they are already fully prepared to communicate with the world with just a sword.

In some ways, he may be most similar to Logan.

'... That's what a true sword genius is.'

These are people who, if you teach them one thing, learn the principles of the world on their own.

Seongjin, who relies on intuition, hunches, and painstaking repetitive training, is something I will never be able to understand.

Look at it now. Isn't it so natural to unconsciously melt one's thoughts and one's life into the sword?

What was in front of Seongjin now was the still green sprout of the Sword Master.

'If several guys like that grow up and become my father's strength one day... ..'

Suddenly, I felt very regretful.

At that time, Orden, who noticed Seongjin's presence, stopped his sword and slightly lowered his head.

"Lowering."

"Uh, sorry for interrupting your training."

"no."

Orden answered briefly and approached Seongjin with his sword in hand.

There was a time when I thought that blunt attitude seemed very arrogant. After dealing with so many of Sigismund's shady guys, I now feel like this guy seems more unpretentious and upright.

Sheesh, on the topic of Orden.

Seongjin, who was thinking with a shocked face, opened his mouth.

"Tomorrow we will leave for the imperial capital, Grand Duke."

"Yes, I heard from Hermann. Even so, I wanted to greet you today, Your Majesty."

After answering that, Orden's eyes darkened.

The young man, who had always seemed calm, had been looking a little depressed recently.

A series of incidents and accidents in the territory and discord with the Margin. And an uneasy premonition that something unusual is happening under the water that he doesn't know about.

All of these things came rushing in at once and were tormenting the young man.

But even amidst the chaos, one thing was certain. It's like the great favor that Prince Mores bestowed on Sigismund.

"Thanks to you, not only did we solve the medicine cart incident, but we were also able to protect the territory from the demonic beasts without major damage. We, Sigismund, owe you the greatest debt..."

Seongjin looked at him, who bowed his head politely, with a bored look on his face.

Oh please! You buy things like that and go into debt. When are you going to pay it all off?

Are you going to mortgage your soul to me later?

"Goodbye. So speaking, would you like to go to the imperial capital with us?"

"...yes?"

When Orden raised his head with a puzzled expression, Seongjin started talking gibberish about reasons he didn't even know.

"Well, when I came here, I felt comfortable with you and the Wolf Knights escorting me. So I hope it will be the same when I leave."

".....?"

"When I get to the imperial capital, I will immediately confiscate and wipe out the Milo merchants. Don't you want to see what happens to Giacomo Milo's trial?"

"...Lowering."

"Ah! Now that I think about it, you've been attending martial arts competitions lately, so you haven't had a chance to study swordsmanship with Lord Balthazar, right? How about you just sit back in the imperial capital for a while and focus on training?"

Even though I said that, I didn't have any particularly high expectations for Seongjin. As Sigismund's eldest son, there was no way he could be away alone at a time when he was busy taking care of the territory.

As expected, Orden had a rare, faint smile on his blunt face.

"I can't escort you like I did when I came, but I'm relieved that the Lilium Special Forces are with you on your way back."

"....."

"I will be able to greet you again at the imperial capital at next year's birthday party."

Well, I thought so.

Seongjin scratched his cheek and then searched his pockets.

'It's a bit of a waste for Sigismund to give it to him, but... ... '

Seongjin hesitated for a moment, then sighed and held out an ice heart to Orden.

"You have this. I briefly thought about leaving it to the Margrave, but I don't think he would use it very well."

"...Yes? But I don't know how to handle this, sir."

Orden, who received the ice heart, answered as if he were embarrassed.

"It's okay. I removed most of the functions and made it like a normal magic stone. It will be easier to use now."

Seongjin then lowered his voice and explained in detail how to use it so that only Orden could hear.

As they sensed that the gaze from the Count's mansion's window towards them did not stay away for a long time, emitting a dark light.

* * *

The next morning.

After completing preparations to go to the imperial capital, Seongjin and his party gathered in front of the count's residence.

The Liliun detachment also joined the several wagons that the Margrave brought as a token of gratitude, making the group quite large compared to when they came.

And there was an unexpected party there. Lord Ilma, who resigned as leader of the Wolf Knights, decided to go to the imperial capital with Seongjin and his party.

"Are you sure you're okay, Sir Ilma?"

"Yes, sir. It is an honor to serve you again this time."

Lord Ilma answered calmly and smiled softly.

Her face was haggard as ever due to recent mental hardships, but even so, her eyes were shining with determination.

"Perhaps Luise headed to southern Anatolia."

Sir Ilma said that if he were to separate from Seongjin and his party in the imperial capital, he planned to go on a long trip south in search of his daughter.

When learning and experiencing something new, you probably think of the unfamiliar and stable South rather than the familiar and chaotic North.

Seongjin, who knew that Louise had actually entered the demonic realm, felt sick to her stomach for no reason and avoided her gaze.

"But what happens to the Wolf Knights when the Lord leaves?"

"I decided to entrust the job to Sebastian. Sorry, but my husband is also a member of the Wolf Knights. He will probably get used to it quickly and be able to do it more skillfully than I can."

From being a guard captain to being the leader of the Wolf Knights? Wouldn't that be a bit too much work?

Sir Ilma smiled bitterly, wondering how he had noticed Seongjin's notice.

"He needs heavy responsibilities and a lot of work for the time being. Don't let him have any foolish thoughts. Otherwise, he's going to run into the devil's land right now to find his daughter."

Sir Sebastian is said to have spoken to Sir Ilma several times.

-Ilma, don't you know what my nose is like? Strangely, I feel like I can smell Louise from the north along with the scent of flowers. Maybe our Louise may have headed to the magic world.

But even he couldn't be completely sure. Not only was there no reason for her daughter to go to her temple, but now her body odor had become so distant that it was impossible to trace it.

"...Louise will be safe. She is a shrewd and smart child."

This may be the only consolation that can be given to parents who have lost a child.

However, despite Seongjin's uncertain voice, Lord Ilma smiled brightly. As if even the slightest trace of her daughter flowing from her stranger's mouth was precious.

"Yes. Thank you very much for taking care of Louise so far, sir."

In front of the count's residence, there was an incomparably larger number of residents gathered than when Seongjin arrived.

To send off the princes and the Lilium Detachment that saved the territory from danger. and-

Cooung, cooung.

It was to see the 'Knight of Grace' proudly leading the way in front of the group.

The large brown cloak, like that of a knight of the Royal Guard, has a clear pattern of the main deity, and the ice helmet and armor that are directly exposed to the sunlight sparkle with a beautiful silver-grey brilliance.

The sight of ice coming alive and moving is truly a miraculous sight rarely seen in one's life.

"Oh, that is the true grace of the main god!"

"A miraculous knight who saved the territory from demonic beasts!"

And this time, even Margrave Hendrick could not avoid Logan.

Up until now, he had been able to make excuses about returning to the territory or the chase team, but he, the owner of the territory, could not be left out even at the farewell ceremony for the prince and the detachment.

"Sigmund will not forget for a long time the fact that you two took the lead in helping the territory. We have already sent a formal letter of thanks to the imperial capital. Please take a look."

He gave a brief greeting to Logan and Seongjin from a distance, and hurriedly hid himself behind the workers, fearing that no one would touch him.

It stayed like this until the end, and Logan was quite embarrassed.

"Why on earth is the Margrave so annoyed with me?"

With those words as small as a sigh, the eyes of the three musketeers of the detachment, Sir Otto, Sir Ellie, and Sir Duchamp, suddenly become sharp.

"How dare he attack His Majesty Logan!"

"How can there be someone who doesn't have a case?"

"Ah, it's pitiful. You don't yet realize how great a blessing it is to be able to be in your sight even just for a moment!"

... No, Sir Duchamp. Didn't that go a little too far?

However, Seongjin also does not know English.

This is because, before coming to Sigismund Territory, I had already confirmed several names in the [Contract List] with Branch Manager Schmidt. And as far as Seongjin knew, the Margrave was never a devil contractor.

But why on earth are you avoiding Logan like that?

As if there was something to hide from the strong paladin. Or as if he wants to give the impression that he is hiding something.

'If you think about the author's personality, I guess...'

"Hmm."

Seongjin's thoughts could not continue for long. At that moment, someone came up next to me and cleared their throat lightly.

After several collisions, old man Vincent became very intimidated and tried to avoid meeting Seongjin as much as possible. As Sigismund's eldest adult, it seems he couldn't avoid this place either.

"Ah, thank you for your hard work so far."

"Don't say things you don't mean, you old man."

The eyes of the employees of the count's residence behind him widen at those rude words.

However, I couldn't help but say something blunt. Just think of what this guy did to your sister!

But what is happening? The old man, who normally would have expressed his displeasure, seems to have passed it off with a relaxed expression today.

Not only that.

His face, as he secretly extended his hand to Seongjin, showed a kind of confidence whose basis was unknown.

"Hmm, I gave it to you. It's hardly a gift in return, but if you need it, you can take it or not."

".....!"

Seongjin blinked as he checked the old man's hand. On top of his palm, another heart of ice was resting, glowing with a faint light.

-If possible, why not take them all with you? I think you'll get another heart soon.

Now that I think about it, Seonghwang said something like that before leaving the gap.

But I never thought I would really bring this.

"The old man did everything to help for the first time."

The spirit may be hateful, but there is no sin in the heart of ice. Even so, the ice heart I gave to Orden was a bit of a waste.

Seongjin is so pleased and extends his hand...

"excuse."

There was a hand quickly intercepting it from the side.

"...Logan?"

".....!"

Old man Vincent's eyes widened. How common is it for someone to casually steal a Dekaron Knight's belongings?

But Logan held up the ice heart and smiled with an extremely polite face. Being able to rob others and still look decent was a talent.

"Thank you in exchange for the gift you gave to Mores. But Sir Vincent, isn't this an item used by a devil's companion? Although it is weak, it is imbued with demonic energy."

"Well, that's...."

"Sir Vincent, the Dekaron Knight, is fine, but ordinary people can be fatally affected by demonic energy."

Then, the old man who was watching Logan's eyes turned pale as if something occurred to him. Then, his confidence goes out of nowhere, and as he becomes so discouraged, he quietly disappears.

"Why is he avoiding me again?"

In the hands of Logan, who spoke in a puzzled way, a seemingly sacred divine power shone brightly.

"What are you doing now?"

"purification."

Logan answered briefly and held out his hand. And unlike before, the ice heart, which became a clear light, rolled down onto Seongjin's hand.

Seonghwang and Logan were truly people who did not know how to waste their divine power.

"Uh, thank you."

"What? With something like this."

"But you can look forward to it. I have something for you too. I've prepared something great for Regina right now!"

As Seongjin laughed mysteriously, Logan muttered with a slightly worried expression.

"When you laughed like that before, I think what you gave me was a necklace made from a rhinoceros beetle."

Uh-huh! You should keep to yourself the dark history of your childhood that you cannot remember.

Logan looked at Sungjin's confident face and raised the corners of his mouth.

"What on earth are you hiding? You seem really confident?"

Of course, Logan.

You'll probably find an unexpected gift in Regina.

And ten days later.

In front of the large banner hanging in Regina, Seongjin spread his arms wide and shouted to Logan:

-Bertrand & Lee

"Congratulations on becoming co-president of a new company with no performance yet, Logan!"

267. Bertrand & Lee (1)

I heard that after the fall of Ortona, a large number of northerners, tired of their increasingly difficult lives, turned to bandits.

However, who could stand in the way of a procession led by the 'Knight of Grace' at the front and escorted by a Lilium detachment driving horses with flashing white livery on the side?

The road back to the ecliptic was more peaceful than when heading to Sigismund.

Meanwhile, Seongjin spent most of his time in the carriage with Logan or Sir Martha.

I've had lunch with Logan at the Pearl Palace before, but this is the first time I've been stuck with him all day like this.

Thanks to this, Seongjin learned just how extreme the Lilium Detachment Unit was.

In particular, the peak of these were the Three Musketeers of Lilium, Otto, Ellie, and Sir Duchamp.

"Sir, here are some scriptures and holy water for your morning prayers."

"Ah, thank you again, Sir Otto."

"Sir, I combed Roxanne's fur this morning."

"Good job, Sir Ellie. You don't have to do that, Roxanne would have been very pleased."

"Sir, I know you will be on your way, but would you like me to recite a collection of poems by your favorite Ortona next to you?"

"No, it's okay. Thank you for your attention, Sir Duchamp."

Seongjin stuck out his tongue.

The Liliun Detachment was also a detachment, but Logan was just as amazing. How can he just smile and get over those annoying writers with their eyes shining all day long?

[Why is it so bad? I heard that in the past, that guy tolerated Mores' evil behavior like a saint?]

'hmm... ... '

Seongjin became solemn for a moment at the devil's point.

"They are so diligent and lead by example in everything they do, so I can't help but say that they are truly a role model for Holy Knights. I am always learning a lot from them."

"...You're kidding, right?"

Manager Bruno, who could not be seen from the side, also frowned at Seongjin.

"That's what the Liliun Detachment was like. I can admit that they serve His Majesty Logan wholeheartedly, but I can't help but think that they are truly extreme."

Seongjin looked at Director Bruno with dumbfounded eyes.

No, leader? I don't think it's normal for you to drink hot Melbourne tea after every meal, right?

However, Seongjin did not criticize him openly. The taste of the manager's tea, which I thought couldn't get any better, was getting better.

Howl.

[Ah, it's really good. I feel like all the fatigue in my body has been relieved!]

The demon king who shared the taste of tea was so happy that he rolled around in the flame crystal.

Although it was such a peaceful journey, discord broke out in an unexpected place.

It was the relationship between Max, the wolfdog, and Roxanne, Logan's rottweiler.

Ureung...

Purr.

From the day they first met, an unexplainable, uneasy atmosphere flowed from the gazes of the two animals.

After that cold first encounter, the two were busy keeping each other in check at every turn.

Whenever she was having her hair brushed long or decorating the insignia of the Holy Knights, Roxanne looked down at Max with proud eyes.

-How do you feel? Have you ever dared to be treated like this?

Then, at night, when the horses were tied up next to the camp, Max walked around Roxanne in a teasing manner.

-What are you doing there? Is it fun to be stuck and not be able to move? uh?

The war of nerves between the two mute beasts was becoming so blatant that everyone in the group could now sense their discord.

[We met each other. Why do you hate it so much? Is this called homophobia?]

Tsk tsk tsk tsk.

The Demon King smiled evilly, as if he was complaining.

Shut up! I will return those words to you exactly as they were.

However, there were times when such a tense confrontation between the two ended in Max's crushing defeat. That was when Logan rode Roxanne instead of the carriage.

The beautiful white horse clacked its hooves gracefully each time and looked down at Max with majestic eyes.

-Now look! I am this great.

Then, Max, who was very sarcastic, rushed to Seongjin's carriage and started barking loudly.

Wong wong!

-Ride me! Come on, I can ride like that guy!

Seongjin, who immediately understood the meaning, took out a snack and gently comforted the wolfdog.

"No, Max. You can't transform as much as before. Even if you could, it would be just as difficult. You're not a horse, right? There's no need to carry people around anymore."

But stubborn Max did not give up, even if it was easy.

Wong wong wong!

-I am strong too! I'm huge too!

Whoa whoa!

-Hurry and take me!

In the end, Seongjin had no choice but to place his head on his forehead and let out a long sigh at the unexpected sight of the flock.

"Anyway, Max. You immature brat...."

When the noisy day ended and night fell, Seongjin meditated in the carriage until late at night. Perhaps because I was so absorbed in training for the first time in a long time, it was common for me to stay up past dawn.

Logan, who was worse for days like that, knocked on the carriage door.

smart.

"Take it easy, Seongjin Lee. What if you get hurt?"

This sword master, who is sensitive to auras, can easily figure out whether Seongjin is meditating or sleeping just by checking his presence.

Seongjin opened the carriage door with a sullen look on his face.

"Oh, just a little more."

"It's too late, stop sleeping."

"But now is a very important time! I think that if I concentrate a little more here, I will realize the hidden true meaning of the Banajas exercise...."

"Then, as Sword Master Gael Bertran, I can assure you. It's okay. You're still a long way from reaching that level, so it's all your mistake."

"....."

Well, I have nothing to say.

In the end, Seongjin had no choice but to pout and grumble.

"But I am not a genius like you or Orden. I should save my meditation time and practice swordsmanship even more."

Seongjin has been uncharacteristically anxious recently.

Because there were so many incidents and accidents, there was no progress in Taoist training, and after watching Orden's training, he clearly realized the gap between himself and a genius.

'So, if I don't do something like this, I can't be of any help to my father.'

Then Logan looked at Seongjin blankly, as if he couldn't understand.

"What do you mean, Seongjin Lee? If you're not a genius, then who in the world is a genius?"

"...huh?"

"Is there anyone in the world who can build up aura layers and move auras as naturally as you? Not even Gael Bertran in the world could build up auras as quickly as you."

Seongjin looked blankly at Logan. There was a part of me that was half-confident about him because he was a guy who was very good at talking loudly without even changing his facial expression.

But Logan paid no heed and continued speaking calmly.

"And the same goes for swordsmanship. People like you who can draw the optimal sword path using only their senses are not common. Such people will one day, sooner or later, reach the secret knowledge of the sword and become a sword master. It is only a matter of time."
."

"....."

Seongjin blinked his eyes.

A genius? No, that can't be true.

Naturally, the image of Orden's sword that I saw at the training hall flashed in my mind. Each form with its unique intention, and the subversive formulas that came together to form it.

Isn't that what a sword genius is?

"The Archduke certainly has a swordsmanship that is hard to find. Everyone acknowledges that he is a young man with a promising future."

Logan nodded to Seongjin's question.

"But have you ever thought about this? If the Archduke were to see the sword he was wielding, would he be able to grasp the same things as you? Would he be able to understand the meaning behind the sword at a glance?"

Logan explained.

Anyone who can navigate the dizzying torrent of water one by one and move towards their goal is definitely a genius.

However, a person who understands the goal first and skips the rapids before getting caught up is, in a sense, a genius on a different level from an ordinary genius.

"So trust me, you will definitely become stronger someday."

After saying that, Logan smiled slightly.

"Well, now that I know, what should I do?"

"uh....."

Seongjin was dazed in shock and responded in a daze.

"...I have some decent talent, so let's devote ourselves to customized training to sharpen it."

"That's not true. The way it is right now is enough. So there's no need to beat yourself up like you're being chased by something."

okay? wake up early It is said that children grow taller when they go to bed early.

On a subject less than half a year apart, Logan pretended to be an adult and gave advice.

"And Lee Seong-jin."

"huh?"

"There are many people around you who will draw their swords according to your will. Never forget that."

"hmm....."

But this guy. You're talking flashy words and treating me so casually as your subordinate?

"But aren't you sleeping? Why are you staying up late when you're in your prime?"

Then Logan shrugged his shoulders.

"What does it matter to me? I have the divine power to restore my body at any time."

omg. I can't refute it.

Seongjin had no choice but to quietly lie down in the carriage and start getting ready for sleep.

But then. Logan, who was about to close the carriage door after confirming that Seongjin had covered himself with a blanket, suddenly made a face and asked this.

"So, Seongjin Lee. If you want to learn the sword a little more deeply, you could also learn a little bit of Henesys practice...."

"No thanks!"

This guy is trying to make a business out of something forgettable? I will achieve great success with the Banahas practice!

* * *

After traveling for over ten days, the group finally arrived in Regina and were immersed in the flavor of a big city they had not seen in a long time.

Wagons coming and going frantically and people wearing light clothing. Brightly painted signs and crowded street vendors.

"Is it because of my mood? It feels like the warm air of the Imperial Capital is reaching here!"

Sir Claudia twitched her freckles and sniffed the air. As she said, it was now only one day from Regina to the ecliptic.

The statues of Little Saint Aurelion, densely displayed at the street vendors, were still there. Seongjin, who was happily looking around the street, suddenly tilted her head at a strange sense of discomfort that was different from her memories.

'But is it because of my mood? Compared to before, I feel like your sculptures have become a bit plumper...'

Oh no way.

'Could it be possible for the entire city's trend to change at once? 'Maybe it's just my imagination.'

And it was here that I said goodbye to Sir Ilma and the bard Laurent.

"It looks like the stagecoaches heading to Anatolia will diverge, so I have no choice but to say hello here. Please be considerate, Your Majesty."

After politely bowing, Lord Ilma quietly left the group.

Logan and Lord Valerie recited simple congratulatory messages for her as she now had to go on an endless journey to find her daughter.

"Thanks to you, I saved my life and gained valuable experiences that I will never have again. Although I ultimately did not learn about makjang, I still have a new goal from now on."

Laurent also spoke in a brave voice.

"New goal?"

"Yes. I want to write an epic poem that will be remembered for a long time to come. As a start, I want to spread your achievements in the Sigismund Land widely throughout the continent!"

... no way.

Are you going to proudly sing those embarrassing studies full of exaggeration and praise with poor melody?

Seongjin was startled, but Laurent, who was already far away, shouted loudly for the last time and narrowed his eyes.

"Please leave everything to me! I will someday make you a more famous hero than the wandering knight Fernand!"

No, don't do that, Laurent.

Please don't do that!

However, Laurent waved his hand excitedly and disappeared from the group's sight.

"...Are you okay, sir?"

Masain asked Seongjin in a worried voice as he stumbled after receiving fatal internal injuries from an unexpected opponent.

"Oh, it's okay, Sir Martha."

Seongjin barely managed to pull himself together with his help.

Now is not the time for me to be like this. Since I'm in Regina, I have something to show Logan.

While the group was unpacking their belongings at the accommodation, Seongjin led Logan to a building near the logistics relay station. It was a building with a small top, which he asked Dasha to purchase in advance and instructed Deputy Schmidt to operate.

There, some workers are busy preparing for the opening. It was a shabby top with no proper signboard yet and only a flimsy banner hanging.

-Bertrand & Lee

Bertran & Lee.

In fact, it wasn't long before we finally decided on a name for this little top. It was probably when Logan said this to Seongjin in Sigismund Territory.

-okay. I can understand. There was a time when I too had a hard time enduring the fact that I was no longer 'Gael Bertrand'.

I thought about it then.

Seongjin had people who continued to call his name. Logan and the Demon King will never forget that he is Seongjin Lee.

But Logan, what about that guy?

Who in this world will know that guy's true identity and call him by his name?

So, this thought suddenly occurred to me. It might be a good idea to leave a trace of Gael Bertrand somewhere and have people continue to call him by his name.

After all, it was a company created to give to Logan someday.

"Congratulations on becoming co-president of a new company with no performance yet, Logan!"

As Seongjin spread his hands wide and shouted confidently, Logan glanced around the building with a bewildered look on his face.

company? What are you talking about?

This little thing is the top?

"Ah, you should be happy if I give you a gift! You have to make a lot of money, right? You can't just support Ortonine forever with the allowance your father gives you, right?"

Logan tilted his head at Seongjin's scolding.

"Of course, it would be nice to be able to make money from this. Thank you for your thoughts, Seongjin Lee. But running the top is more difficult than you think. Wouldn't it be better to use the funds to find other ways to help Ortona?"

Tsk tsk.

This guy only knows one thing and doesn't know the other.

"It's meaningless unless it's at the top, Logan. The flow of funds must be constantly moving and constantly changing. Do you understand? This 'Bertrán & Lee' is a logistics conduit connecting the northernmost tip of Ortona and the ecliptic! "

"Northern Ortona?"

"okay"

Seongjin nodded vigorously.

"Starting with 'Bertrán & Lee', we will gradually make Ortona's economy self-reliant!"

".....!"

268. Bertrand & Lee (2)

From the beginning, Seongjin did not plan a grand project to revive the northern economy. No matter how good the items and plans are, isn't a business prone to failure depending on luck and trends?

Seeing his junior join the company, crying after ruining one of his ventures, Seongjin decided that he would never touch a business again for the rest of his life.

Just a small salmon specialty store.

A delicious restaurant where you can enjoy fresh salmon delivered directly from the producer every day.

I only wanted that one thing. He was the prince of the Holy Empire and the greatest merchant on the continent, and he just thought that he could afford to run such a small store with his pocket money.

However, Branch Manager Schmidt's opinion on this was skeptical.

"Somehow, the financial calculations are not right."

The place where salmon is mainly caught is in the northern part of Ortona, Barletta.

This is an area where cold sea water flows and is home to an abundance of plump salmon before they migrate up to fresh water.

Fishing was once a thriving industry, but after the fall of Ortona, it gradually decreased and there are now not many fishermen left.

"Most of them became refugees, and most of those who remained became bandits."

Naturally, the number of salmon caught has decreased significantly.

Although it is still distributed at relatively low prices locally and in nearby regions, the situation was different in the Empire, where it was supplied in small quantities through the maritime trade of Cyprus and through the inland upper reaches. The price of a piece of salmon jumps to more than the same weight of silver.

The supply was not constant, and it came in irregularly, mixed with church supplies.

'Ah, but a salmon specialty store, I think it's really possible... ..'

Seongjin covered his head.

Somehow it seemed like it would work. I have a strong feeling that there will be a solution soon!

But this time, Seongjin couldn't just rely on his intuition and do things blindly.

He is completely unfamiliar with business, and the opinion of Schmidt, an expert, is so negative. If you make a mistake like this, not only yourself but also branch manager Schmidt will be ruined.

"I thought it would be cheaper and more stable to drive straight inland rather than going around Cyprus...."

"Would the cost of an already safely secured distribution route be the same as that of a dangerous new distribution route that needs to be opened? Moreover, since the fall of Ortona, public order in the north has been a mess. Areas without proper lords are like lawless areas."

"Yeah. I guess so."

In any case, it is a burdensome investment that is too unreasonable to develop a distribution channel just by looking at salmon.

"Then wouldn't it be possible to maintain the status quo if we combine it with other productive businesses?"

Thinking like that, Seongjin this time turned his attention to other resources around him. Schmidt, the branch manager of the Merchants' Union, had a lot of information about the goods traded in Ortona in the past and the industries that flourished there.

Seongjin shouted after confirming that there was a highly profitable copper mine near Barletta.

good! Copper mining. How about this time!

And Schmidt's reaction to this was relatively positive.

"Well, it's not bad. It will take time to reinforce the outdated mines, but we will avoid a deficit within three years. As long as you give up distribution of salmon."

Then, let's increase the scale a little more to overcome the deficit.

Seongjin, who was searching through the data with his eyes open, learned that there was a huge lumber yard upstream of the river flowing through Barletta.

'Let's cut down the trees we have and sell them! With this, the initial investment won't be as high as a mine!'

And upon hearing this opinion, Schmidt was quite pleased.

"In two years, you may be able to recoup some of your investment and make a profit. Of course, the low-quality salmon will continue to eat into that profit."

Okay! It can't end like this!

Seongjin struggled with the documents.

Then, when he changed his thinking a bit and came up with a plan to supply rotting grains from southern Anatolia to the north, the wrinkles between Schmidt's eyebrows finally began to smooth out.

"With a business of this scale, it would be tempting to pioneer a new distribution network. The problem is that the scale has grown so frighteningly. But it's still bad."

"huh?"

"Could you please put down that unprofitable salmon now?"

"....."

After instructing Schmidt to explore various ways to secure the supply chain, Seongjin left Regina.

However, Seongjin's worries did not end even on the way to Sigismund territory or upon arrival at the territory.

'A little cooler. So how did you do it? 'Is there anything I can show my father?'

What was then born was a large-scale cooperation plan that attracted nearby lords. In Ortona, where the normal distribution structure has been broken, it is aimed at fiefdoms that are self-sufficient or need help from the top on a regular basis.

From slaughter to dyeing, it is a large-scale project in which several small businesses and related personnel move at once.

'How did I end up here?'

Anyway, when I sent a letter with a detailed explanation about this through Dasha, I was finally able to get a very positive response from Schmidt.

-I really didn't know you had this much talent. Indeed, he can be said to be the grandson of the Iron Blood merchant, Grand Duke Asein. Perhaps, with this level of planning, stable profits will be generated within a few months.

Even though the reply ended like this.

-Except for salmon, of course.

'Holy shit! This is all done to airlift fresh salmon to the Imperial Capital!'

But there was no other way. Distributing fresh live fish or dead fish was a completely different problem.

There was a reason for the merchants to mix and distribute supplies supplied to churches. In order to maintain freshness, you must use items containing sacred power or the sacred power of the priest in charge.

'There really is no answer now...'

As such, the work of opening a salmon specialty store in the Imperial Capital was at a standstill indefinitely, and Seongjin faced a major attack by demonic beasts in the Sigismund Territory.

Then, I unexpectedly acquired an ice heart.

Seongjin created a refrigerator by modifying shaved ice that does not melt even at room temperature at Dragon's workshop.

It was a perfect mobile warehouse that even had the characteristics of normal world items that could never be stolen unless certain conditions were met.

'... 'What on earth have I done so far?'

What came over me was disappointment rather than joy.

The efforts so far were in vain, and the problem was easily solved. Somehow, I had a feeling that everything would work out on its own.

"It's definitely a cool thing, but...."

Dasha, who was the liaison between Schmidt and Seongjin, also looked a little depressed when she saw the completed refrigerator.

Anyway, everything was smooth sailing from then on.

While living in isolation at the count's residence, Seongjin diligently exchanged letters with Schmidt and gradually fleshed out his plans for a salmon specialty store.

It was in the meantime. One night, Dasha spoke to Seongjin like that.

"Thanks to the momentum of the decline, it was becoming a pretty cool thing, but it's a little disappointing."

"Is that so too?"

"Yes, it would have been a good opportunity for Ortona to stabilize a little and for some of the wandering refugees to settle down."

"Um... huh?"

Seongjin suddenly came to his senses as if he had been doused with cold water, and blinked his eyes into space.

'Ortona is stabilized, refugees are settling down... ... '

Then, the countless documents he had been struggling with up until now began to unfold in reverse order in Seongjin's mind.

Revitalization of fisheries, especially salmon, and development of highly profitable coal mines. and the operation of an abandoned logging site.

Supply southern grains at low prices and obtain cooperation from nearby lords to stabilize the economy near the distribution network.

'... Wait, isn't this really all possible?'

For a moment, a shiver ran down Seongjin's spine.

A picture of a lantern that started in a small northern village called Barletta, moving down toward the ecliptic, and eventually starting to slowly light up the entire region of Ortona.

That brief vision hit Seongjin's mind hard at the moment.

'okay. Is this right! You can't just pour Logan's pocket money into Ortona forever, can you?'

Logan had already arranged for several merchants and was sending relief supplies to refugees while keeping their names hidden. It is said that the quantity has increased significantly due to the recent increase in pocket money.

'Still, there are probably more people taking advantage of the refugees than going to them! I can't monitor this one by one. If Ortona is to be rebuilt and refugees are saved, the only way is to make the economy self-reliant!'

And if you catch one of the popular republican transfer groups in the capital, connect them to the top, and bring them to the forefront... ..

Seongjin's head began to spin for the first time in a long time.

'Then, even though he is the prince of an enemy nation, there may come a day when Logan stands proudly in front of the Ortonans... ..!'

* * *

"This is what happened! In this way, Ortona's economy will gradually revive! Refugees will no longer have to wander around!"

Logan had a blank expression on his face after hearing the harsh records of the past.

I wanted to respond to Seongjin's enthusiasm, but because the scale was so huge, I didn't seem to know how to react.

"Now, and this is the cold carriage, the great beginning!"

Seongjin pointed to a wagon standing at the entrance of the building.

The newly manufactured packaging, which is still shining white, has 'Bertrand & Lee' written in large paint.

"Cryogenic carriage?"

"Yes, a wagon to carry the refrigerator."

"refrigerator?"

"The long explanation is endless, but to put it simply, it is something similar to the Knight of Grace."

Then Logan made a dumbfounded expression.

"...You're saying that holy relics are being used in places like that?"

"But you can't have a priest in shifts 24 hours a day to maintain the freshness of the salmon, right? The church won't sit still, and the financial calculations aren't right either."

"hmm."

Logan was hesitantly agreeing, and Seongjin's eyes sparkled as he walked closer to him.

"So, Logan."

"huh?"

"You should invest in this business too! I've done too much and I'm probably short on initial capital. But I'll make you double or even triple your investment in a few years!"

"...uh?"

Seongjin stabbed Logan, who was taken aback by the unexpected words.

"Think about it carefully. The profit is not just that. Even excluding the effect of Ortona's economic revival, the profit will be threefold just for you! Then you can use it to start another revival project. There is no better story than this. Where are you?"

Seongjin, who was tearing the corner of his mouth, looked like a fraudster from all angles.

Logan, who suddenly received a gift that looked like an empty tin can and signed a large investment contract in return, asked awkwardly.

"...So Lee Seong-jin, is this really a gift?"

"Well, of course!"

[What is natural, you fraudster.]

The demon lord let out a small sigh in his head.

However, Logan is also a man with a formidable personality.

"Okay. If you are, then whatever."

Scrunch.

Logan coolly scrawled his signature on the contract that Seongjin secretly presented to him.

"Excellent choice, Logan. I assure you."

Seongjin, who was happily putting the contract in his arms, suddenly looked back at Logan in shock as to what he was thinking.

"But, Logan?"

"huh?"

"If someone asks you to sign something later, be sure to call me next time, okay?"

".....?"

* * *

That afternoon, Administrator Dorian visited Seonghwang's office carrying a huge stack of documents.

Although he was soft, he was sharp in getting things done, and was a young administrator whom Seonghwang always admired.

However, Dorian, who had hesitated for a while even after entering the office, finally spoke while holding out the documents he had brought in front of Seonghwang.

"Your Majesty, it is a matter of permission from a merchant who plans to conduct business across the imperial capital. Other than that, various business plans are awaiting approval at the same time."

"If it is such a problem, we can discuss it with the Merchants' Union at the executive level."

"Haonde, the name of the merchant owner is jointly owned by Prince Mores and Prince Logan...."

"....."

Seonghwang, feeling something unusual, accepted the document without saying a word.

"It seems like he impersonated the prince, but the content is very specific and the amount of money is large. So, I felt like I had to report it to His Majesty first."

Seonghwang's eyes, as he was carefully reviewing the contents of the document, began to tremble slightly.

After a period of silence in the office.

"business....."

widely.

Finally, Seonghwang turned the last page of the document and slowly raised his hand to stroke his face.

'okay. It's a hundred times better than going somewhere and getting hurt. It's better, but... ..'

Still, isn't this a scale that far exceeds the annual operating budget of a small country?

How big are you going to make this happen, son?

269. Penitential Offering (1)

Logan, who returned to the dorm together after looking at the gifts that were not gifts, suddenly spoke as Seongjin entered the entrance.

"Go in first and rest, Seongjin Lee. "I have somewhere to visit from now on."

"huh? "Where are you going?"

"It's been a while since I've been to Regina, but I still have to go to church."

Logan added that it had been his intention from the beginning to visit the church and meet the vicar.

"what? Then tell me sooner. Isn't it the complete opposite direction? "You have to come all the way here and then go back to the city."

"Still, I have to see that you get back to your dorm safely. "I promised Brother Masain that I would take good care of you so you wouldn't have an accident."

"... .."

Seongjin was dumbfounded.

no wonder. Even though I said they wanted to go out alone, they obediently let me go. Was it all because of Logan?

But how far are you going to treat me like an immature child? Sir Masain. There's no age difference between us, so don't you think the discrimination between me and Logan is too much?

Even though my mental age is much higher!

[This nonsense is at the level of severe dementia, so it could be treated like an elderly person, right?]

'shut up!'

Logan explained the church in detail to Seongjin.

Regina's church is a place that exorcists and inquisitors traveling through the North must pass through at least once.

In the north, where there were no decent parishes and public security was a mess, these paladins often wandered alone without proper support. Then, when I finally arrive in Regina, I gather my tired body and unravel the information I have gathered.

So, it is the first place where you can find reliable information about the Northern Dark Church as well as the current status of devil worshipers.

"It looks like we will have to form a punitive force again soon, so I think we need to gather information from the North in advance and plan a route."

Seongjin blinked at those words.

"wait for a sec. "Didn't you decide to stick to the ecliptic this year?"

"I originally planned to do that, but... .."

Logan's face darkened as he spoke.

After joining Seongjin and his party, Logan heard in detail about the appearance of the Yakcha, Milo Merchant Marine, and the Demon Beast. It is also almost certain that the dark church is behind it.

I can't help but think that the Dark Church's evil forces may have been spreading deep throughout the North for longer than he expected.

Above all, the words the devil shouted at Sigismund's Territory continued to haunt me.

-There was more at stake in your death than you thought! Even if the Guardian hadn't stolen you, a lot would have changed now.

They say they are already working with the Knights of Saint Aurelion to dig into them little by little, but is that really enough?

Perhaps we should organize a punitive force and begin a proper long-term investigation.

"Didn't you raise your allowance as a condition of helping with the monster task force work in the imperial capital? What if it gets cut again? "After investing in 'Bertrán & Lee,' there will be almost nothing left, right?"

Logan smiled as he read the look of concern on Seongjin's sullen face.

"Didn't you say that if you wait a little longer, you'll get triple the amount? "But what are you worried about?"

"No, that's true, but... .."

"And you're right. "Abama is a good person, Lee Seong-jin."

So, I know you won't take back the allowance you raised.

As Logan added that, his smile faded for an instant.

"okay. Now that I think about it, I realize I know that person quite well. "And then I awkwardly tried to keep my distance. If you think about it, I guess it was all just foolishness on my part."

"... .."

"No, I said something useless. don't mind. "Then I'll see you at the dorm later."

* * *

Seongjin, who was free after breaking up with Logan, visited the logistics relay station in the afternoon accompanied by Sir Martha. He had already sent a message to branch manager Schmidt saying he would visit him.

However, Seongjin, who was climbing the building without thinking, suddenly felt a strange sense of discomfort.

'Why can't I almost feel the presence of people?'

It wasn't just my mood, the top floor of the logistics relay station was truly empty.

The only person breathing there was Branch Manager Schmidt, who was guarding the office with a very nervous look on his face.

"His Majesty Logan of Lilium has returned to Regina. Who would dare to remain around here?"

It was only then that Schmidt breathed a sigh of relief after confirming that Seongjin had left Logan behind.

It was said that the demonic contractors and demons at the logistics relay station had all left the place to avoid Logan. The branch manager, who was shaking and unable to do anything when he was notified of Seongjin's visit, had suffered so much that dark circles had already formed around his eyes.

"But demon contractors don't usually emit magical energy. "Don't you all attend the birthday party?"

"Do you know how much effort we put into concealing our demon energy for that day? "A month before departing for the ecliptic, I prepare by avoiding proper communication with the devil."

It is said that in the past, Logan tracked down an Ortona noble who was a devil contractor and summarily disposed of him. Even though he was one who made a pact with a lesser demon and had little trace of demonic energy.

This guy's divine power is so strong that anyone who has used demonic power or summoned a vassal even once recently will inevitably be caught by his spirit.

It was a good thing that Logan went to church and didn't follow me to the logistics relay station.

"... So, is that really true?"

Schmidt looked for the presence of Lord Martha waiting outside the office, then lowered his voice a little and whispered.

"hmm? what?"

"Is Prince Logan really the Sword Master?"

"... "How did you know that?"

When Seongjin asked with wide eyes, Schmidt let out a laugh.

"You should not look down on the information power of the Merchants' Association."

Even if the Margrave hisses, rumors eventually spread. Well, it was an incredible feat that would break several records of being the youngest person on the continent.

Anyway, after hearing the confirmation from Seongjin, he tilted his head with a strange expression.

"I often heard that he was a genius. But is it possible for a person who hasn't yet become a Sword Master? It wouldn't be like being reborn, but how could it be unless they were from another race or demon with a long lifespan?"

"Uh, um, well. "Logan is a particularly special genius."

Because he is his father's son.

As Seongjin hesitates, Schmidt looks at him with suspicious eyes. However, Seongjin continued to avoid her gaze and tried to distract her, so she eventually sighed and continued speaking.

"Well, let's say so. However, the incident where the Penitent Tree appeared this time was also the same, as was the sudden birth of the youngest sword master on the continent. "In many ways, I think it's very special because it reminds me of events from ten years ago."

"Ten years ago?"

"The Ortona Civil War."

A sword talent that humans can have.

Schmidt said that only one person comes to mind who has reached the peak of it.

"This is General Gael Bertran. He was very famous among the devils from his birth."

"U, famous? why?"

This time, Schmidt looked at Seongjin, who was wincing and chewing his tongue, with slightly strange eyes.

"Well, that's right. "His spirit was very special."

"Is it special?"

"yes. It is said that in the eyes of the devil, his soul could not be more brilliant. "It's to the point where I want to corrupt them and mortgage them by making some kind of contract right now."

If this is true even in the eyes of a single devil, how would he look in the eyes of other high-ranking devil kings?

Ironically, it is said that the influence of these demon lords was very large in the way that Gael Bertran grew up safely and became a sword master.

Once it became an established fact that he would be owned by a high-ranking demon lord, from then on, most demons were prohibited from going near him.

"These people are now tampering with other people's souls... .."

Seongjin furrowed his brows, and the Demon King noticed this and secretly comforted him.

[Wow. Calm down, Seongjin Lee. Your blood pressure is rising. First of all, you were reborn safely, right? In the end, no one has his soul.]

Meanwhile, Schmidt's explanation continued.

"And an elaborate ceremony was prepared over a long period of time."

"Consciousness?"

Is there any special procedure required for the devil to have a soul?

Schmidt shook his head in response to Seongjin's question.

"If you only wanted Gael Bertrand's soul, you could have made a contract somehow to extort it. But what happened at that time had a very different texture."

Even the demons did not know the detailed story. Everything was done secretly at the hands of the Penitent Church that was prevalent in the North at the time.

In any case, it is said that when the civil war was nearing its end, several penitential trees appeared in every corner of the north. At first glance, it seemed like a large-scale offering in which the whole of Ortona was sacrificed at once.

And Gael Bertrand's soul was scheduled to be placed on top of it. As if it were the most desirable fruit to decorate the center of a large cake.

"But I heard that there are no records of the Penitent Tree appearing in the materials kept by the exorcists? The last time there was a record of penance was hundreds of years ago, so was it during the Five Great Times? "I said it was around that time."

When Ortona was destroyed, wasn't my father young?

"The Penitent Tree was summoned at the same time, devouring five small villages. Because it was a remote place and the entire continent was in turmoil due to civil war, everyone probably passed by without knowing. "Anyway, even if there were witnesses, they would all have been caught in the tree of the demon world and died."

And the subsequent results were just as Seongjin and Mawang had guessed.

"However, despite years of thorough preparation, the ritual somehow failed and the penitents were reverse-summoned to the demon world. "All that was left were villages that were in ruins, so they could not be properly recorded."

"... .."

While listening to Schmidt's explanation, Seongjin was thinking of something strange at the same time. These were the words of Cadmus, the first king, who was eagerly targeting Sisley's body.

-Why would you intentionally harm the child who will become my new body? You will sacrifice everything to me!

Sisley did that.

In the Delcross Chronicles, he was said to be the key to the descent of the High-ranking Demon King and the culprit in destroying the world.

'Of course, the Delcross Chronicles was a bad joke made up by Sigurd Sigurdsson,'

But could this really be a coincidence?

Whether it's a precognitive dream that doesn't come true or a plan that fails. How could it be that two of a father's children become targets of high-ranking demon lords at the same time?

While Seongjin was deep in thought, Schmidt stroked his collar and spoke shyly.

"ah. Anyway, this story has little to do with us now. "The topic of penance came up, and as I thought about it, I realized I had been talking too much nonsense."

"... .."

Seongjin secretly wanted to hear more, but he still didn't stop Schmidt from changing the topic.

This is because the desire to find and kill all those involved coexisted with the thought that I did not want to dig too deep yet.

"I wasted my time for no reason. "I have a lot of things to report to you from now on."

In any case, since I don't see Schmidt often, I had to use this opportunity to discuss everything I could. Not only about the preparation status of the salmon specialty store, but also about the operation of 'Bertrand & Lee'.

In the process, I mentioned a deal I had with Margrave Hendrick, and Schmidt slightly raised his eyebrows.

"I am truly grateful that you asked about the antitrust opportunity. At this point, you may be able to make up for some of the investment losses from the initial stage of the business. But Margrave Hendrick is not such a soft opponent."

"He's definitely not someone who will just lose money."

"yes. He was a person of considerable interest to merchants traveling to and from the North. "If you get caught up in a conversation with him, everyone clicks their tongues, saying that without even realizing it, they become absorbed in price competition with other merchants."

In the past, this was the reason why no merchant was willing to sign an exclusive contract with Sigismund. In many ways, the exclusive deal with Milo was unusual.

"So, have you heard anything about Giacomo Milo? "What happened to him?"

I thought the top must have headed to Regina after that incident. So, I had ordered him to be detained as soon as he showed up at the logistics relay station.

But Schmidt shook his head.

"Unfortunately Giacomo Milo did not appear here. Even if he had come, he wouldn't have easily revealed his face. This is because a large-scale arrest order has been issued in nearby large cities, including Regina. "Maybe you should have taken refuge somewhere safe?"

"... wherever?"

Did he have anyone else to turn to?

According to Dasha's investigation, Giacomo runs a business named after the Count Milo family, but I heard that he has completely broken up with the family?

Then Schmidt lifted his dry gaze and looked down at the window.

"well. "Once you hide underground, there is only one place that immediately comes to mind."

Seongjin immediately understood what he was saying.

"... "Is this the Church of Penitence?"

"Yes, probably so."

Schmidt, who was nodding his head and responding like that, looked at Seongjin's face to see what he was thinking at that moment.

"why?"

"No, it's nothing. "I've thought about it before, but I think you can easily understand and notice anything other than what you think."

I thought, that's why it's so easy to talk to him. Schmidt muttered that, looked into space for a moment, and then added:

"But why on earth did you not understand that the salmon salmon business was not possible?""

"... hey!"

270. Penitential Offering (2)

Seongjin entrusted Schmidt with an ice heart and four refrigerators that day.

thud! Cradangtang! thud!

Schmidt's eyes widened as he looked at the huge ice refrigerators that were suddenly summoned to the warehouse of the logistics relay station.

"I heard in advance that it was something from the normal world, but it's truly like magic."

"I'm only being summoned this once. "They say you can't put it back somewhere else."

Seongjin added after thinking carefully about the precautions Dexter gave him.

"Oh, and these have pairs that need to be moved together. So we have to move the low-temperature wagons in twos? If possible, the two paired vehicles should not be too far apart. "If you do it wrong, one of them may not work."

"yes? Why is that so?"

"That's because each matching refrigerator comes from a single shaved ice. "Those are the arms and legs of Bingsu 9, and this is the torso and arms of Bingsu 11."

"... .."

When I explained it kindly, Schmidt looked at Seongjin as if he were the killer of the century.

"what? why? what?"

Speaking of devils being more evil than murderers, what should we do now? huh?

Besides, this was all an unavoidable choice.

Not only was there not much shaved ice left, but it was too bulky to shrink to the size of a refrigerator in the first place!

"Then what is this used for?"

Schmidt asked, holding out an ice heart that had turned into a small stone.

"Oh, that's a controller that gives simple commands."

"yes? Aren't they just boxes that keep the temperature low? "What are your orders here?"

That's right. The moment someone tries to steal it, the refrigerators will combine and turn into fusion shaved ice.

Like the Glature Troll, it automatically strikes the enemy, but it is a kind of safety device since it can get out of control.

"... .."

"why? "What's the problem again this time?"

Oh, it's an automatic anti-theft device!

This is something you can't get even if you pay money, so why do you have such a sad face?

[Couldn't you have remodeled it into something more normal?]

The Demon King sighed softly in his head.

After several twists and turns, Seongjin was able to return to the dorm a little later after finally completing the necessary discussion.

And I was quite embarrassed by the situation that unfolded in front of my accommodation. A huge crowd of people had suddenly gathered and filled the street in front of the building.

"Did that really walk? "It just looks like a piece of ice?"

The cause was immediately apparent. Because everyone gathered was looking at the 'Knight of Grace' and whispering.

When I entered Regina, I thought it was a bit too attention-grabbing, but before I knew it, rumors had spread that there were moving ice sculptures all over the city.

The front of the hotel was already crowded with people who had come from afar to see the sights.

"I heard. "I heard that a holy relic from the Lord appeared in the distance in Sigismund."

"what? Isn't it just a rumor? "Even though it's a holy relic, how can something like that move?"

"Egh! Earlier during the day, I clearly saw that ice knight walking into the city on his own feet!"

The accompanying party also contributed to increasing the credibility of the rumor.

That 'Knight of Grace' is accompanying the famous Lilium Troop, right? Aren't they the Holy Knights among Holy Knights who spread the Lord's mercy across the continent without sparing their bodies?

"okay. "It is said that the Lord himself came down to save Sigismund, who was in danger, and wiped out all the demonic beasts with his strong fists."

Rumors are more specific and faster than you think.

The investigation into the 'Knight of Grace' was completed just before Seongjin left the Sigismund Territory. But the rumor is already spreading to Regina?

"A knight? Why do you put down your sword and swing your fist?"

"I don't know. "I just said what I heard."

"Where did you hear that?"

"Don't you know? "There's a bard over there singing songs all day long about the exploits of knights of grace and princes?"

... Laurent. Was it your doing? You're really acting too quickly.

[Then why did you park it on the street where you can see the rice cake? It's a blessing to be self-employed.]

The Demon King scolded him for not letting the opportunity slip away, but Seongjin felt unfair.

whatever. So that big thing would normally fit into a warehouse?

Seongjin had no choice but to avoid the crowd and headed to the back door of the accommodation. It was a small yard with a stable and several shabby warehouses.

And there, unexpectedly, I met Inquisitor Sir Valery.

"uh? Lowering. Where are you going at this hour? And why are you coming through the back door?"

Seongjin frowned as he tried to answer. Because she smelled the faint scent of blood coming from him.

Upon closer inspection, I noticed red blood droplets not only on his face but also on the white Inquisitor's uniform.

"... .."

I had a guess.

The remnants of the Penitent Church brought in from the Sigismund Order were locked in a fairly large warehouse right next to the accommodation.

And Seongjin's sensitive senses were able to immediately spot the bloody smell emanating from there.

"Isn't it enough to conduct the interrogation after arriving at the Heresy Tribunal?"

"ah!"

The red-haired Inquisitor looked blank for a moment, as if caught off guard. Then she narrows her eyes and raises the corners of her mouth.

"I forgot for a moment what kind of person you are. haha. "You said you were careful. How did you notice?"

"... .."

"We apologize for any inconvenience caused. However, I also need to conduct some interrogation before I can report to the higher-ups. "I've been busy with the demonic attacks so far."

And thanks to the group camping with them on the way here, Sir Valerie explained, there wasn't really time to quietly interrogate them.

"It doesn't look like it's in good condition, so should we take it in moderation? "What if they all really die?"

Seongjin, who sensed that he was noticeably weakened, hinted, and Sir Valerie shrugged her shoulders.

"Well, that's true. I am treating him appropriately and interrogating him. "Even if a truly dangerous situation arises, Prince Logan is here, so what are you worried about?"

You'll probably be able to breathe just in the nick of time.

Valerie said something quite creepy and smiled her usual good-natured smile.

'... Was this his personality?'

Feeling something new, Seongjin observed him closely.

"It's a bit of a pity from their perspective. It might have been easier for me to get caught up in the demonic waters and just die. Or stay in the Sigismund Territory and face trial."

Does this mean that it would have been better to have fallen into the hands of Margrave Hendrick?

"why? Did you hear anything from them, like a confession about their relationship with the Margrave?"

"yes? Oh, that's not it. "It is simply because there is a clear fact that the Margrave had a long-standing relationship with the Milo family."

Valerie said, wiping blood from her cheek.

"Wouldn't their presence be very uncomfortable from the Margrave's point of view? So, you would rather kill them by hand and bury everything about that unsavory business, along with the transaction records, forever."

The more the Heresy Tribunal digs up the upper part of the mill, the more they will have no choice but to suspect the Margrave.

The rumor about the 'Knight of Grace' spread faster than expected, perhaps due to the Margrave's influence.

While Seongjin was lost in thought, Valerie added with a chuckle.

"They know this well, so they seem to want to stay in the North to be tried as much as possible. But am I not also the proud Inquisitor of Saint Marsyas? So, I did as the old saying goes. haha."

Valerie, who was looking at the warehouse and laughing with amusement, added that she felt that the explanation was insufficient due to Seongjin's sullen expression.

"Ah, my dear. There is a saying that comes down from the Heresy Tribunal. 'If you don't know what the remnants of the Dark Church are planning, do everything that is the opposite of what they want.'"

Well, the seniors would definitely have burst out laughing at this timing.

Valerie muttered sadly, but honestly, it wasn't fun at all. They seem to be crazy about this torture.

"Ah, but I found out one thing. The relationship between Giacomo Milo and the Penitential Order is longer than expected. "It seems like he will probably just rely on the Penitent Order."

Seongjin didn't answer, just stared at the bloody warehouse.

If they go to the Heresy Tribunal like this, Seongjin will probably never see them again.

They are clearly remnants of the Dark Church. I won't be able to get out of there before I die.

"I need to talk about it."

Valerie blinked at Seongjin's unexpected words.

"... "Your Majesty is interrogating me again?"

"huh."

"To those who were just tortured? Are you serious?"

Wow, this person is being so subtle about pretending it's not like that.

A look of confusion appeared on Valerie's face as if she was joking.

After catching a glimpse of him, Seongjin walked away and responded.

"Is that what the torturer would say?"

"No, but sir. I really don't think that's a good idea. "This is definitely not a sight the young prince would want to see."

"He has a point, sir... .."

Sir Masain, who was quietly following behind, added subtly, but Seongjin did not even listen. Soon, a soft sigh is heard from behind.

For some reason, Seongjin pushed away the restless red-haired inquisitor and headed toward the warehouse.

"... ..!"

As soon as I opened the door, a foul smell hit my nose. It is the stench of festering wounds and rotting blood.

And the sight I encountered in the warehouse was truly beyond my imagination.

It was a gruesome sight, with people scattered about on the floor, barely able to breathe, and all sorts of torture tools lined up on one side of the blood-soaked floor.

Since he learned the basics from Dasha, Seongjin was able to easily recognize what each item was used for.

Among them, Seongjin found one tong soaked in blood and looked around at the people, wondering if it could be possible.

"Did they even pull out their teeth? "Is there any point in interrogating someone if their speech is slurred?"

"Hmm, it's okay. "I re-implanted it with divine power."

... Sir Valery. I thought you were just a no-nonsense nerd, but you turned out to be scarier than I thought.

"Kukkkeok!"

At that time, perhaps in response to their conversation, a small groan was heard from among the people lying around.

Their leader is Vicar Belinda.

Considering that he was already in a state of death when he was rescued from the Demon Tree, the mental strength he had to wriggle and move his body was truly amazing.

However, the journey so far must have been very difficult for her, and her muscular body was reduced by half.

"Bethelah... .."

She chanted in a very hoarse voice and glared at Valerie with young, wanting eyes.

"You devil. "Why did you come back again?"

"Oh, I'm sorry for disturbing you while you were just resting. "Mr. Belinda."

Valerie sheepishly apologized.

"I have a few additional questions. Depending on how the conversation goes, I might end up picking up the tool again. "Please cooperate."

This bastard threatens people in a polite manner?

Then Belinda glared at him and growled.

"joy! If you have anything to ask, feel free to ask. We are always proud before the Lord! "We didn't hide anything from the beginning, so why do we need these things?"

You didn't hide it?

When Seongjin looked back at Valerie, he shrugged his shoulders.

"How do we know if everything they say is true? They say, 'People naturally become honest only when they are in extreme pain.' "I just did it."

"... "Is that also an old saying handed down from the Heresy Tribunal?"

The Inquisitor, who sensed an unpleasant tone in Seongjin's question, smiled as if he were embarrassed.

"Haha, my dear. They are heretics who seek salvation through physical pain in the first place. Wouldn't that be good for them too? "It's not a relationship where we just smile and express gratitude, but deep down, they will be grateful to me."

No, I don't think so.

Look at that. Those eyes look like they want to change you right now.

271. Penitential Offering (3)

An inquisitor with a somewhat different and reluctant attitude than usual.

A fanatic of the Dark Church with venom and brilliance streaming from his eyes.

Nevertheless, there was something else that got on Seongjin's nerves from earlier. Right behind him was Masain, visibly stiffening.

He did not try to crack down on Seongjin in advance like he did before. He just held the sword handle tightly with a stiff expression on his face.

However, the blood in his knuckles that had been exerted was drained, and his face also showed signs of tension.

'I can't stay long... ... '

Seongjin checked his condition for a moment and then looked back at Belinda. I just need to quickly ask a few things I'm really curious about.

"I ask, believing that I am proud before the Lord. Why are you distributing medicinal tea in the North? "Do you really know what its ingredients are?"

That was the most important thing to Seongjin right now.

To find out in advance what the Margrave Sigismund was planning and what he is still planning. By doing so, he ultimately prevents something his father thinks.

Then Belinda raised her eyes in confusion and then burst into laughter.

"Medicine tea? Ah, that guy Giacomo is talking about a different name for 'Awakening Tea.'"

"Awakening tea?"

"Yes. Another spiritual blessing bestowed by the Lord Himself! 'The awakening tea is a precious treasure given only to penitent brothers!'"

Tea that creates salt crystals and stimulates salt crystals.

If you call it 'awakening', it would be a fairly intuitive name.

"okay. Shouldn't that precious treasure be shared among brothers underground? Why bother creating a problem by distributing it to the top?"

"Hehe. You foolish apostates. 'The Lord is not that narrow-minded.'"

As Belinda let out a chuckle, the blood droplets that were filling her mouth started to jump out.

"Awakening tea is ultimately given to save all humans! 'The reason we are willing to share it with you apostates, even if it means taking on disadvantages, is because it is the will of the Lord who wants humans on all continents to awaken spiritually!'"

He has no doubt that he is shouting with such force that he is truly doing it for the world.

In her firm eyes, I could feel the kind of incision that one would only see in a martyr.

[That guy, is he serious?]

'Ah, this is why fanatics... ..'

Seongjin clicked his tongue slightly and continued asking questions.

"There's still something left to answer. 'I would have asked if you knew what its ingredients were.'"

"Yes, it is a treasure of penitence that the Archbishop himself distributes to the brothers!"

"So what are the ingredients of that treasure?"

"It is a divine grace from the Lord!"

... You have no idea.

'Anyway, it is the Archbishop of Penitence who delivers Loferum's eggs to them. If you want to know for sure how to procure monster eggs, you have to find him and kill him.'

Having concluded that, Seongjin moved on to the next question.

It is about the Penitent tree, the tree of the devil's world that devours everything around it the moment it germinates.

"I heard this report the other day. "You testified that you brought it about by order of the archbishop to destroy Giacomo Milo, who dishonored the note."

"... "Yeah, yeah."

However, Belinda's voice as she answers becomes less confident for the first time.

Is it because I was confident that I would be honest with the main lord, or is it because I am inherently bad at lying?

[You're lying?]

Oh, I guess so.

Seongjin crossed his arms and repeated the previous question.

"Did you try to destroy Giacomo Milo with the magic tree?"

Then Belinda raised her head stiffly and shouted.

"Yes! That wicked apostate dared to betray the penitent brothers! "I can never tolerate that!"

"So the archbishop ordered you to do that?"

"Yes, yes."

Look at this.

"The reason you brought the Demon Tree was purely on your own initiative."

"... It is the duty of our brothers to understand His deep will in advance and assist Him as thoroughly as possible."

That's enough of an excuse, you fanatic.

Why are you causing such a big accident based on pointless guesses?

After taking a quick glance at Masain, Seongjin asked the last question.

"Do you know Gael Bertrand?"

Belinda's sullen face distorted.

"Are you kidding me? "You're not asking this because you don't think you know that famous person, right?"

"okay. "It's Gael Bertrand."

Then Sir Valerie, who had been listening to me until then, looked interested.

Perhaps he relaxed when Seongjin asked him a question that was completely unexpected.

Instead, the instinct of an inquisitor who is drawn to miscellaneous stories and gossip is slowly activated.

"Was it your Penitent Church that killed him?"

Then, everyone in the warehouse suddenly looked blank.

"... hey. If you're going to be unreasonable, give a plausible reason. Now they will hold us responsible for even the lives of those who died in the civil war... .."

Belinda muttered with an absurd expression on her face, and Seongjin glared at her and asked softly.

"I won't ask again. Did you kill him?"

"... .."

Belinda pursed her lips and lowered her head.

Huhuhuhuhu.

Soon, a sinister laugh shakes the bloody warehouse.

"okay. I wondered why he was asking that. Now that I think about it, you are the Prince Mores... .."

"... .."

"As expected, you know something! "If you do this, everyone will know anyway, so I'll be happy to answer!"

Flashing.

Belinda raised her head and made eye contact with Seongjin. It was as if she was a completely different person than before, and her face was now showing a strange joy.

As if sparks were coming from a broken wiring, eyes glowing with an eerie light glare at Seongjin.

"ha ha ha! okay! He was the 'sacrifice'! "Maybe it's not that unfamiliar to you either!"

Wiggle.

Sensing that Masaine and Valerie were tense at the same time, Seongjin gave a cold command.

"... "Explain in detail."

"Of course. He is a 'penitential offering' carefully selected by the Archbishop of Penitence to be offered only to the Lord! He was chosen as the sacrificial lamb, and his country was also chosen as the land of the glorious god!"

"I chose it as the land of the Lord God. "Then what was all that long civil war about?"

"haha! "To our great Archbishop, the Apostle of Penitence, how big a deal would it be to destroy a country like that?"

Is this the penitent archbishop again?

At that moment, something came to Seongjin's mind. It was Hayes' soul who cried out desperately, shedding black tears.

-Lord of the soul! Noble archbishop! Apostle of rest!

Naturally, this question arose.

"What does the existence of an archbishop mean to you?"

Then, kekekekekeuk.

Belinda burst into laughter as if she was dying of fun.

"... "What's funny?"

"No, I'm dumbfounded to hear such a question from you and no one else. Do you know nothing about [preparations] for yourself?"

"Spare?"

It was right then.

"... Lowering!"

Sir Masaine shouted softly from behind. The voice was desperate, as if someone was strangling it.

And Sir Valerie, who was watching from the side, blocks Seongjin's path and quickly covers Belinda's mouth with a gag. It happened almost simultaneously with Masain's cry.

"town!"

"Don't grit your teeth like that, Belinda."

Valerie pressed her mouth harshly and spoke in a soft voice.

"Eup? Huh?"

"Well, aren't the teeth that were replanted earlier already shaking? Go ahead and keep your mouth shut. Do you understand?"

"... .."

Seongjin turned around after checking Lord Masain again, who was breathing heavily with a pale face.

"okay. I can't go any further. "Enough with the interrogation."

Of course, I didn't forget to warn the Inquisitor before leaving the warehouse.

"And Sir Valerie?"

"Yes, sir."

"I'm going to see Lord Masain today so I'll just quietly pass by. But if you block my way like that next time, I won't let you go even if you're a member of the monster task force. "Do you understand?"

"... ..!"

Valerie, who was shocked at what she saw for a moment, immediately bowed her head politely with a serious expression.

"... yes. "I will keep that in mind, sir."

* * *

"... "Why is everyone in such a mood?"

That night. Logan, who returned to his dorm after dark, was very embarrassed.

This is because a gloomy atmosphere was hanging over Seongjin and Masain, who were sitting in silence.

"Did something happen in the meantime? "Brother, why are you doing this again?"

Seongjin raised his head with a confused expression upon hearing Logan's worried voice.

'Gael Bertrand was sacrificed as a penance. 'What if Logan finds out about this?'

That's what Belinda said. The reason Ortona fell may have been because it was the country where Gael Bertran was born.

Seongjin felt his mood sinking even more as he faced Logan's harmless and innocent face.

"... "Oh, poor thing."

"... ... ?"

And then there was silence between them for a while. Martha, who would normally greet Logan warmly, is now immersed in the sofa and rarely raises her head.

Logan, who couldn't help but stand up, said.

"I don't know what's going on, but it looks like both of you aren't feeling well. Immediately call the dedicated maid and have a cup of warm tea..."

And at the same time, he was strongly blocked by both Seongjin and Masain.

"no! "No Edith!"

"Tea is fine, sir!"

Logan, taken aback by the sudden extreme reaction of the two people, blinked for a moment.

However, he did not know the reason and soon came to his own conclusion.

"Well, it's already too late at night to call the maid. "Then shall I give you a ride myself?"

And after a while, surprisingly, the tea that the Sword Master hastily made was quite edible.

Seongjin took a couple of sips of sweet tea with warm milk out of curiosity and soon felt a little relieved.

I like it.

It has a somewhat nostalgic scent that reminds me of the Earth's childhood a long time ago.

Logan, sensing the languid air, let out a small laugh.

"It's been a really long time, hasn't it? "We both used to eat well when I rode it at the Blue Rose Labyrinth sometimes."

"Is this Melbourne tea?"

Meanwhile, Seongjin, who sensed a familiar scent, asked, and Logan nodded.

"In the North, this is how they eat Melbourne. "It's perfect for warming up in cold weather."

"hmm. Right."

But before I could take a few sips, I felt strangely dizzy and tired.

"It's really delicious. But is it because of the heated milk? I feel a little sleepy... .."

Then, Logan, who was sipping tea on the other side, answered calmly.

"You've been sleeping soundly since long ago when you drank it. "Maybe it's because there's quite a bit of rum in it?"

"... what?"

Seongjin asked, flinching in surprise.

"Are kids drinking here?"

"hmm? Rum is also often used as a seasoning. why?"

No, anyway, is it okay for a child to drink to the point where he gets upset?

Of course, it seems possible if you are a sword master who can disintegrate a few drops of alcohol in seconds.

Seongjin is frowning and thinking.

"In the past, His Majesty Mores called this car 'Hush Tea.'"

The two people turned to see Masain's voice suddenly coming from next to them.

Fortunately, his complexion looked much better than before, perhaps because of the alcohol-infused tea.

After that, small talk continued for a while. Mainly, Logan told the news from the imperial palace, and Seongjin and Masain listened.

Then, Seongjin heard surprising news that little Saint Aurelion, who had been sent to Logan, was enshrined in Bastian Church.

"Oh, that reminds me. "Actually, I have Lord Martha's too."

"yes?"

"We all bought it together, but when I thought about giving it to you, I realized that we went on a trip together. So I was wondering what to do, so I put it in my luggage and forgot about it."

Seongjin rummaged through the women's clothes and found a small bald saint.

"Now, give it to me when you have the chance."

"Sir, why do I... .."

Seongjin looked at Masain curiously as he asked with surprised eyes.

"huh? "So, since we're family, we all live together?"

"... ..!"

At that moment, Masain looked overcome with tears.

And Logan, who was looking at that with a slightly pleased face, said:

"When we return to the Imperial Capital, let's first learn how to make a cone with me. "Brother Masain."

"... "A cone?"

"It's popular in the imperial palace these days to put a pretty cone on little Saint Aurelion."

That's not all. Little Castle Aurelion's custom pouch and custom decoration stand... ..

Seongjin, who was listening to Logan saying strange things next to him, burst out laughing without realizing it.

Is it because it's been a while since I drank alcohol? Do you feel much better?

"okay! "Now that you're out, should I show you something fun?"

As the gift was presented, Seongjin remembered something again and jumped up from his seat.

"Actually, there's something I'd like to ask the two of you for."

Seongjin said that and took out an ice heart from his chest.

I already know Amelia's strong taste. It was very easy for her to prepare her gift accordingly.

Logan also knew what he needed, so he prepared a gift accordingly.

However, Seongjin did not yet know what Sisley liked.

Maybe it's because we haven't known each other for a long time and because he matures quickly, but he doesn't often say things like 'what I want to do' or 'what I want to have.'

However, even if you ask others, there is no clear answer because she has lived as a celibate saint until now.

"So, first of all, I prepared something that a girl of Sisley's age would like. It's a cute doll that we probably put the most effort into. But just in case, I want to hear both of your opinions first."

Seongjin shouted with a confident face.

"Come out! Shaved ice number 3!"

Then coo!

A huge shadow was suddenly summoned from the air and fell to the floor. It was a huge teddy bear made of ice.

[Wow!]

The bear shouted loudly and looked at Seongjin with bright eyes.

"... "You said it was a doll?"

Logan asked in confusion, having imagined something like a small porcelain doll wearing a dress.

"huh! "It's a teddy bear."

"Teddy... what is that?"

"What do you mean? That's just an ordinary teddy bear... .."

Seongjin, who was answering, tilted his head.

what? I chose it because I thought it was a design that wouldn't go too far with the trend, but maybe teddy bears aren't that common in this world?

Okay, if design doesn't appeal, let's show function!

"This is not just a doll. "He's a great bear who speaks simply."

Then the ice bear flapped its short, chubby arms and shouted loudly. It was a high and loud sound, like a recorded electronic sound.

[Al~la~view!]

"Huh!"

Logan and Masain, startled, quickly put their hands on the swords on their belts.

Wow, it's still too early to be surprised. There's still a lot left to be proud of.

"It's not just that. Look, this kid can dance to music."

Dudududududutun~

The giant ice bear began shaking its plump butt while singing an unknown song.

"... ... !"

As the two people's faces grew paler, only the drunk Seongjin proudly spread his arms without knowing anything.

"And there is another most important function. "It even has a light security function built in to help defeat the bad guys targeting Sisley!"

Then paching!

The dancing bear's eyes glow red, and sharp, ugly ice thorns protrude from its chubby hands.

[egg! la! View!]

"... ... ?!"

"how is it? "What could be more perfect for a children's toy?"

It's great to see it again!

As expected, it is worth the effort.

"Lowering..."

Sir Martha, who had been gaping with his mouth open, eventually opened his mouth in a trembling voice. His pupils were now shaking mercilessly as if an earthquake had occurred.

"At least, I don't think the saint would like something like that..."

Seongjin was greatly embarrassed when he saw Masain's face suddenly darken.

"uh? why? "What's wrong with your reaction?"

"..."

"Logan? Please say something too. "Why are you doing that?"

... Isn't this pretty cool? Is it just me?

272. On The Dream Road (1)

The day I remodeled shaved ice in an old man's workshop.

Dexter, who was diligently analyzing the ice heart with the Homunculus source editor, suddenly became startled and called out to Seongjin.

"Hey, what is this?"

"yes?"

"Is there something strange here?"

Dexter showed Seongjin the screen he was adjusting.

what? Looking at it this way, I'm not sure?

"This guy here. Is it something very different from other objects? "Has there been anything strange along the way?"

Ah, you mean shaved ice number 3?

Seongjin tilted his head.

Now that I think about it, I felt like I was a bit inferior compared to the other guys. Because I was always one beat behind and ended up falling on flat ground.

And Dexter's answer was surprising.

"It is equipped with artificial intelligence."

"Artificial intelligence?"

"Ah, this is a familiar concept on Earth, but it might be a little new to you. The name is true. "It is a kind of electronic intelligence created by humans."

Dexter, who until then had firmly believed that Seongjin was a dragon hatchling, carefully explained everything about artificial intelligence.

"Sometimes this happens when you indiscriminately import sources from other worlds with the Homunculus Engine. "The wrong things are drawn in and mixed up."

And Dexter, who was analyzing Shaved Ice No. 3 in more detail, said that it seemed to be a child care and learning program mounted on a home robot.

"Then shouldn't it perform much better than other shaved ices?"

It's an artificial intelligence with quite a few functions? But why did you become such a half-hearted person?

"Because the calculation itself was complex, it would have continued to malfunction in inappropriate situations. "Because autonomous judgment and orders were conflicting with each other."

Anyway, it is a useless part for remodeling. Should I just delete it like this?

Dexter asked as he manipulated the crystal board.

"Uh, wait a minute."

Seongjin stared at the screen, feeling a sudden flash of inspiration.

'Artificial intelligence sounds very plausible, but wouldn't it be okay to leave it behind?'

At first, I was just thinking of making an ice teddy bear that was cute and cool to hold.

'If possible, a teddy bear toddling around there would be cuter and more friendly, right?'

And Dexter's reaction was positive.

"It's not that difficult."

This is how a small walking teddy bear was born.

However, contrary to expectations that it would work properly by removing the conflicting parts, Bingsu No. 3 still walked awkwardly and repeatedly rolled on the floor.

To Seongjin, who was very disappointed, Dexter added as if to comfort him.

"Haven't the shape and size of your body completely changed? "It takes some time to adapt."

"hmm."

"Moreover, little by little, you will learn about your surroundings. "Why don't you move more and more skillfully?"

As he said, the little teddy bear, which waddled awkwardly at first, began to walk more and more convincingly as time passed.

Seongjin smiled in satisfaction as he watched Shaved Ice No. 3 running around the entire workshop.

"good! "You learn quickly."

Then suddenly a thought occurred to me.

But isn't it a waste to use the most advanced artificial intelligence available just for walking?

"Perhaps. "Can we put a talking function here?"

Then Dexter frowned.

"That doll doesn't have the structure to create vocal cords or respiratory organs in the first place, right? But I think it would work if it were just a simple recorded voice."

So the little ice bear started walking around shouting 'Alabyu'.

"Oh, it's cute. Okay, while I'm talking, if you can sing and dance... .."
."

"... yes?"

After a while, thanks to Dexter's digging, the bear was able to do the same unidentified butt dance.

But even then, Seongjin's orders were endless.

"But. I heard you were a child sitter in the first place? Then, if there is someone trying to harm the child, it is also a good idea to add a function to step in and protect the child... .."

"It seems like the weapon needs to be much larger in order to wield it properly, but if you add a size conversion function... .."

Dexter, unable to endure the endless demands, ended up throwing his goggles on the floor and getting angry.

"What on earth do you want to make! "Is this really a gift to give to a child?"

* * *

"... Well, it's a gift. A gift that everyone wants to have when they are young... .."

Seongjin, who was muttering, opened his eyes.

"omg?"

And then he made eye contact with Logan, who was looking at him blankly.

"Are you awake? If you drink hush-peach tea, you still fall asleep without knowing whether there are mice or birds, right? "I guess you've mastered the Auror skills now, I thought you'd be okay with that level of alcohol."

"... Logan? "Why are you here?"

Even though there was someone next to me, I fell asleep without feeling anything at all?

When Seongjin stood up in embarrassment, he saw Sir Masain sleeping, leaning on the armchair next to him.

Why is this guy acting like this again?

"It hasn't been long since I switched with brother Masain. "My brother was very worried."

uh? What's there to worry about? I just fell asleep while drunk.

When Seongjin made a puzzled face, Logan silently pointed behind him.

"How could I go to rest, leaving you and me alone?"

Just as he said, on the other side of the bed, a huge teddy bear was standing blankly, exposing its vicious thorns.

When Seongjin made eye contact, the bear tilted its head and let out a polite electronic sound.

[Al~la~view!]

"... .."

Only then did the memories of yesterday begin to come back to me.

What on earth did I do while I was drunk?

Suddenly, I was holding my head with a headache, and Logan asked with a cautious look on his face.

"Are you going to take that to the imperial capital like that?"

"huh. Anyway, it's a gift. why?"

"Wouldn't the people of the imperial capital be a little surprised?"

Logan spoke back, but Seongjin immediately understood what he wanted to say.

Strictly speaking, the original source of shaved ice is Glatzer Troll. What a great magician. They are worried that they may violate the boundaries of the Orthodox Church.

But Seongjin also had an idea.

They have already accepted the 'Knight of Grace' as a holy relic. If you bring one more similar item, it will be easy to convince them the second time.

"are you okay. "I even engraved the right pattern here."

Seongjin confidently pointed to Bingsu No. 3's chest.

Certainly, there was a small symbol of the main god engraved on the bear's chest, similar to the 'Knight of Grace'.

In the Holy Empire, with just one pattern like this, a demonic beast can be transformed into a miracle of the god overnight.

"And, if you're worried about people's eyes, you can reduce the size."

Let Seongjin manipulate the ice heart -

Pyooooong.

The teddy bear shrunk in size, making a sound similar to the sound of air being blown out.

Logan, who was silently looking at the little bear walking around the floor of the dorm, eventually smiled and muttered.

"Well, okay. Looking at it like this, it seems a little cute, doesn't it?"

"Now you really appreciate the true value of shaved ice!"

Everyone pretends not to be like that and becomes a teddy bear lover.

Just wait and see. Sooner or later, there will be a teddy bear craze in the imperial capital as well. Everyone will fall in love with the charm of the teddy bear loved all over the world?

While Seongjin was making a confident expression, Logan stood up and said.

"If it's okay, let's get ready to leave. "We're already a little behind schedule."

And he added with some hesitation:

"... "Let's go home quickly."

* * *

Just before entering the ecliptic.

The party who entered the sphere of influence of [Grace] stopped for a moment and were deeply moved.

The same was true for ordinary people, but the change in the facial expressions of the Paladins was truly dramatic. This is because everyone is deeply worshiped by the immense and holy divinity that humans cannot fathom. Some people shed tears endlessly.

In particular, Sir Sharon looked truly overwhelmed. She, who was always grinning with her crazy face, crossed herself with a calm expression on her face, which was rare.

Even Lord Valerie was quietly reciting a prayer with an expression of great emotion.

Even Director Bruno, who had no divine power at all, clearly felt the difference.

"Something is really different as we get closer to the ecliptic.
"Kalmen's presence has become very calm."

A look of relief appeared on his face, as he was always worried that his student with anger management disorder would have an accident.

Of course, unfortunately, there was one person who was not happy about this change.

[Ugh. I feel like I'm going to die of frustration!]

The demon lord was trapped in the flame crystal and groaned.

The guy who had fallen out of favor and was wandering around carefree has once again become trapped in Seongjin's head.

[Wow, I don't know how I withstood this pressure before.]

I thought this guy was pretty pitiful. While we're bringing in salmon, let's get some bear meat from the north.

And there were splendid improvement ceremonies one after another.

Seongjin looked out at the buildings along the main street decorated with flowers in full bloom and colorful ribbons, feeling a little strangely impressed.

'Before, I was watching Logan come in like this at the imperial palace... ... '

But this time the atmosphere was a little different from before.

"Long live Prince Logan! Long live Prince Mores!"

"God's blessing to the Holy Family that always protects its subjects from demonic beasts!"

"Glory to the mercy of the Lord who bestowed the knights of grace on behalf of his subjects!"

The subjects of the imperial capital were repeatedly chanting and waving handkerchiefs, even to Prince Mores, whom they had never called before.

"... ... "

The Lilium detachment, led by Logan, looked majestic as always.

In particular, the three Musketeers, Otto, Ellie, and Duchamp, riding right behind Logan, were overflowing with a solemn dignity that anyone who knew their behavior could not even imagine.

"No matter what, the biggest hero of this demonic attack is Prince

Mores. He wished he had been at the forefront, riding a horse like the Liliun detachment. "So that everyone can see his wonderful side."

As Sir Claudia spoke with regret, Sir Maria who was next to her shook her head.

"You don't like being treated like a public official in front of others. Besides, isn't there that wolfdog?"

"Oh, well... .."

Sir Claudia looked back with a slightly shocked face. A huge wolf dog wagging its tail eagerly next to the imperial carriage.

Initially, Prince Mores was also scheduled to enter the country on horseback with Prince Logan. However, we soon ran into unexpected difficulties.

-Wong wong wong! Whoa whoa!

When the wolf dog saw Prince Mores on his horse, it began to howl sadly.

-Uuuuuuuu!

How can this be? Leave me now?

It was so sad that everyone who saw it could understand the meaning of that cry, even if they were not members of the household.

-Yes, yes. okay. This cute guy.

'Not cute at all!'

While everyone is shouting internally.

Prince Mores gave the wolf dog a treat with a nonchalant look on his face and then quietly locked himself inside the carriage.

As they passed through the cheers and reached the imperial palace, it was Amelia who came forward and greeted them in person.

As she stood calmly, there was a slightly unfamiliar atmosphere, different from what I usually see.

Although she was wearing a light and airy dress, her organized prayers still showed a kind of confidence, like a general leading a large army.

But still, Amelia was Amelia. Seongjin could clearly feel the bright gray eyes of the princess, who was standing there pretending to be polite, sparkling with joy that could not be hidden.

The princess walks lightly and stands in front of Seongjin and Logan.

Soon, a bright smile spread like a rose in full bloom.

"Welcome, Mores."

"uh... .."

Seongjin suddenly froze.

At first, I tried to just say a proper greeting. She proudly showed off what she had acquired from Sigismund and tried to tell him that she had also prepared a wonderful gift for him.

But the moment he faced Amelia's face, Seongjin felt speechless for some reason.

Eyes looking at him with a kind light.

If you think about it, Amelia has always been kind to him from the beginning.

-You already apologized to me.

He forgave Mores for his long-standing evil deeds as if he were an angel.

-I will protect Mores in the future.

Didn't he show unconditional support no matter what he did?

Amelia is looking at herself with the same extreme love as usual.

"I've been waiting for you for a really long time."

"... .."

But Seongjin was different from before.

I know now. The name she calls in that sweet voice refers not to someone else but to herself as a whole.

"Siesley and I prayed to little Saint Aurelion every day. Please make sure you come back safely."

What she had been waiting for was not another Mores, but herself.

"... .."

Amelia, who was looking at Seongjin's frozen, silent face, suddenly noticed something and was momentarily taken aback. Then she smiled softly and took his hand. The small amount of warmth coming from her slender hand could not touch her chest like that.

"Welcome back to the imperial palace."

Tuk.

And soon after, Logan's White Knights' livery covers Seongjin's head.

"Let's go inside, Mores."

Tuk-tuk.

A thoughtful hand pats the shoulder as if comforting.

Perhaps Logan is the only person who can properly understand the complex emotions that Seongjin is feeling here and now.

"Don't stay here like this. I have to hurry up and see Sisley, the twins, and Abama."

Seongjin, whose throat was locked, could only nod slowly without answering.

Uh, okay.

That's how it should be.

273. On The Dream Road (2)

A few days before the prince's party returned, the Delcross capital was full of rumors about the 'Knight of Grace'.

-The Lord himself sent down a knight wearing ice armor to help his suffering subjects. It is said that the divine light at that time lit up the night sky like broad daylight!

-Prince Mores defeated an army of thousands of demonic beasts with this ice knight! Now, the 'Knight of Grace' who has fulfilled his duty will be designated as a holy relic and become a knight who will protect the imperial capital forever!

Romain, who was wandering aimlessly around the city as always, tilted his head when he heard the unexpected news.

'... 'Knight of Grace?'

A god without a name is as good as non-existent. There is no way such a minor miracle could happen now.

However, since it is said to have been designated as a holy relic, it is probably not an unfounded rumor. Perhaps it was a concrete miracle created by human hands for some purpose.

Moreover, the fact that it was spreading at such a rapid rate was highly likely to have been carried out by the Ministry of Intelligence, which had been ordered to succeed. In other words, the subject of the conspiracy is Seonghwang.

So I thought about it for a while.

'Why on earth did the guardian of Delcross create something like that?'

There is no particular need to borrow the authority of the main lord, nor is it to keep the nobles in check.

He possesses great divine power befitting the title of God's representative, and is not a strong person in power who can hold and wield with one hand both the Orthodox Church and the nobility.

'That's what he does. There must be some hidden purpose.'

But no matter how much I thought about it, the conclusion was that I wasn't sure.

So Romain, who came out to watch the triumph ceremony out of curiosity, was greatly shocked when he realized the true identity of the 'Knight of Grace'.

'... Glatzer Troll? Why on earth is the sentinel of the Demonic World here!?'

I rubbed my eyes under the mask several times at the unbelievable fact, but no matter how I looked, it was clear that it was a Glatzer troll. Although his appearance had changed slightly, there was no way he could not recognize that unique being that was outside the physical laws of the original world.

Sentinels guarding the road leading to Magyeong's [Painter].

The entrance is completely hidden, and Romain, who has a gap in his memory, cannot even guess how to access it.

'Transforming that Glatzer Troll obviously means that the source was changed and edited in some way. But isn't that an Ionian technology that has now disappeared?'

A huge rule that encompasses the entire normal world.

Was there still a way to get involved with it?

Cooung. thud. thud.

Overwhelmed by the majesty of the ice monster that walked majestically, Romain stared at it in fascination for a moment.

"Long live Prince Logan! Long live Prince Mores!"

"Glory to the mercy of the Lord who bestowed the knights of grace on behalf of his subjects!"

The subjects of the imperial capital were also enthusiastic.

A beautiful white armor with the god's symbol engraved on its chest, its cloak fluttering, as it moves gracefully towards the imperial palace.

Isn't it like a grand old myth actually unfolding before your eyes?

'... So beautiful!'

Romaine suddenly thought about this in a daze.

"That is the scene that can be achieved by those who control the laws of the world. The power to bring things into existence solely through one's own rules, even while defying the laws of the world. It's truly a miracle!"

For a long time, Romain had known what Sigurd Sigurdson truly wanted. No, he thought he knew in his head.

But it is only now that he realizes how grand and grand his dream was.

'What Sigurd Sigurdson really wants is to create another grand order that the world has no choice but to comply with. Just as an oracle long ago created rules that support reality through the power of thought, achieving a similar new order through one's own power to create stories.'

It is not something that can be expressed simply by the simple word God.

Maybe Sigurd Sigurdsson wanted to become an oracle?

"But all his attempts tended to be scattered in vain. No matter how hard he tries to imitate it, it's bound to be different from the real thing... .."

The voice that came out of Romaine's mouth was instantly lost in the excited crowd.

There was no way to hide my bitter feelings. Because even Romain was once sincere in order to be that 'fake'.

Anyway, one thing was certain.

'Guardian of Delcross. You really are a scary person. What else is this for? How far ahead is he planning to make such a dizzying plan that is so difficult to guess?'

I had no doubt about the limitations of humans, and I expected that sooner or later a loophole would show up.

But until now, Seonghwang seemed to be enduring everything quite resolutely.

The only hope is to steal the rose from the palace that he loves so much and tie his hands and feet.

'... 'Is that really possible?'

When Romaine arrived at the meeting point, he felt even his faint hope disappearing like foam.

Prince Leonard, who was giggling and holding a bottle of liquor, looked so insignificant that even a thousand years of faith would disappear in an instant.

"Look at this, Romain. This is a jewel to gift to Princess Amelia. It's a beautiful necklace made of precious red gold and gray diamonds! how is it?"

Romain was frustrated.

Prince Leonard, who is currently his only hope, rather than captivating the princess, is completely bewildered by her.

It was a truly insignificant defeat, considering that he confidently promised at first that he would steal his heart.

"yes. It's a pretty necklace. But how do you plan on handing it over?"

A topic that gets rejected every time we meet?

"Ah, Princess Amelia, who used to be quiet, seems to have something to do with it, and they say she's been making appearances in social circles from time to time lately. So she wants to join in on a proper banquet."

Or ask Prince Mores to build a bridge. Are you coming back soon?

While murmuring like that, Leonard caressed the necklace in the jewelry box with his hand. Delicately crafted red-gold petals that look like roses.

"Isn't the meaning behind this design truly amazing? 'It's a work of art that depicts her beautiful rosy hair with red gold and her sparkling eyes with precious gray diamonds!'"

Romaine stared blankly at the box the prince held out for a moment and then asked again.

"But isn't this an ordinary soft crystal, not a diamond? 'Would someone of the princess's caliber happily accept something that would normally not be given as jewels?'"

Then Leonard made a listless face.

"Ah, as expected. Your eyes cannot deceive you. What did you say? 'An eye that looks into the grain?'"

"It is an eye that looks straight at the essence."

"okay. Whatever it was. Anyway, those eyes are really magical. 'It looks similar, so I thought if I covered it with expensive savings, no one would know.'"

Leonard carefully took out the necklace and began to examine it carefully. Romaine, who watched him for a moment, suddenly became curious and asked.

"Don't you love her, Leo?"

Don't you usually think that way?

It is said that one will do anything sincerely for the person he or she admires. I'm not trying to deceive you like that.

"That's a naive question, not like you. I'm surprised you ask that. But what does me loving her have to do with gifting her a well-made fake of hers?"

The prince's expression as he asked that question was colder than expected.

"What are you going to do if you get caught? Then you can't really steal her heart, right?"

"That too. "I love her for who she is, why should I beg her to give me her heart?"

Leonard's eyes were shining cruelly as he looked back at Romain. Those eyes filled with pure interest that he once showed right before he stoned a man in the royal palace of Rohan.

"Anyway, as long as I have her, that's it."

"... .."

"Besides, don't we have various plans? "You can't spend a lot of money on something that doesn't guarantee results."

Leonard said and held up the necklace into the sunlight.

Even though it was fake, the gray gem caught in the sunlight reflected a brilliant light comparable to that of a diamond. Even Romain, who knows its fleeting value, was struck by its beauty for a moment.

"Look. What if it's fake? "It's okay if you're this pretty."

Leonard smiled with satisfaction.

"Well, I'm not sure if she'll be happy. Until now, no beautiful flower or gorgeous jewel had captured her heart. Does she really like anything about the princess? What on earth does she have to shove in front of her to get even the slightest bit of admiration?"

* * *

"... "It's so, so cool!"

Amelia's eyes were shining with admiration as she looked up at the gigantic knight of grace.

"How did that knight defeat the demon beasts, Mores?"

"Yes, sister. "I knocked out the Glatzer Troll with one punch."

In response to Seongjin's answer, the knights of the Royal Guard quietly whispered.

'A knight? 'Why did you leave an intact sword next to me?'

But it seems the princess had different thoughts. Her cheeks were flushed, and her clear gray eyes shone hazily as if she was dreaming.

"amazing! What would it be like to become such a strong giant? "If you just swing your arm once, the castle wall will be destroyed in an instant, right?"

I've been thinking about this before, but why is my sister so obsessed with destroying the castle wall?

And at her reaction, Logan and Masain exchanged glances.

'If you react like that, isn't Sisley also something to look forward to?'

'Yes, sir. 'Maybe you like ice bears more than you think.'

'I was worried that he might be scared after receiving the gift, but it seems I was unfounded.'

Of course, they had no idea that Seongjin was thinking this way.

'what a waste. If I had known that they would like it this much, I would have brought one Glacher Troll with them according to the number of family members, even if it was too much. If it weren't for that damn clogged Inquisition... ... '

[Arthur. The roads are all destroyed.]

However, unlike the subjects and nobles who were purely amazed, the Orthodox priests were pale.

Although it was said to be a miracle from the Lord, it was due to fear of encountering something unfamiliar and not found in the scriptures.

Moreover, even though it bears the sacred name of 'Knight of Grace', why can't I feel the slightest divine energy from it?

The reaction of the high-ranking priests who attended the crusade was also very shocking. They were the ones who, unable to overcome pressure from within and without, hastily approved that strange thing as a sacred relic.

In particular, Cardinal Benitus was not a sight to behold.

"Ah, this is the end. Don't..."

He was trembling so pitifully that his already small body was crunching his nails.

"I can't believe that in this Delcross, which is full of the Lord's grace, such an evil monster is running around. What can I do with this? Ah, Lord!"

He was fidgeting with vague fear, and eventually he glared blasphemously at the person he thought was the culprit of everything.

Prince Mores.

"okay. Everyone is that evil..."

At that time, someone warned him in a sharp voice.

"Please refrain from speaking, Cardinal Benitus. "You are now insulting both His Majesty the Holy Emperor and the authority of the Holy Assembly."

When he turned around, Archbishop Wesker, the head of the Orthodox Church, was glaring at him with a stern face as always.

He was an arrogant junior priest who clashed with Benitus at every turn.

"Are you shamelessly talking about God's miracles? "I don't know that you strongly influenced Cardinal Myer to hasten the Holy Assembly's decision, Wesker!"

However, Archbishop Wesker snorted and turned his head as if he had heard all the funny things.

"A priest so easily criticizes the decision of the Holy See, which strictly follows the scriptures, without any basis! There is literally no end to it."

"How dare you... .."

"Do both in moderation. "We are now in front of His Majesty Seonghwang."

The head of the Holy Congregation, Cardinal Meyer, could not see this and consoled them.

Meanwhile, Seongjin stood proudly in front of Seonghwang.

For some reason, the corners of his eyes were a little puffy, but his upright posture was extremely revered. It's hard to believe that just a few months ago, he was a pig that would have been more comfortable rolling around.

Tap, tap, tap.

Seongjin, who stood in front of the emperor with a stoic step like a soldier, politely held out something with both hands and spoke.

"When the ice wall collapsed and Sigismund's subjects fell into deep despair, the Lord shone down from heaven, and it was the Knight of Grace. The soldiers on the battlefield dared not open their eyes and look at the light due to the divine radiance of the main god."

Seongjin's voice flowed smoothly as if he had oiled his throat.

"When the Knight of Grace swung his huge sword, the Great Mountain split apart and the waves of demonic beasts rushing in immediately lost their power. It was truly a day when I could feel the almightiness of the Lord in my bones."

Without even a moment's hesitation or stammering, it was truly like flowing water.

But it has to be that way. While Logan was chasing the demon beasts, Seongjin was working hard at creating a great story with Francis at the Count's mansion.

Some of these stories were purely his creation.

Everyone in the conference room was mesmerized by the vivid battlefield story told by the prince. Only Seonghwang, who was sitting on the throne, touched his forehead in silence for a moment with a confused expression.

'Basically, he is a person who knows how to show off to the audience.'

Archbishop Wesker, who was listening to Seongjin's voice resonating sonorously from every corner even though it was not loud, suddenly thought.

A quality I never dreamed that that bastard Prince Mores would have.

'If you commit fraud with words like that, there's no one who won't fall for it.'

At that time, a mumbling sound reached her ears. It was the voice of Cardinal Benitus muttering softly as he looked at the prince.

"It is sad. It's just too bad. Is that really the tongue of the devil...?"

Archbishop Wesker blinked his only eye and thought.

I really didn't know that I would feel the same way as that tight-lipped senior.

274. On The Dream Road (3)

"The battle in the dark of night was like a nightmare, but we moved forward, relying on the glory emanating from the Knight of Grace and believing in God. "After everything was over and I suddenly came to my senses, wouldn't this have suddenly appeared before the Knight of Grace?"

The prince raised the object he was holding high so that the audience could see it. It was an ice heart that was transformed into a small key through Dexter's editing skills.

Oh oh-

Voices of admiration erupt from everywhere. The faintly glowing key was unusual to look at.

Is that all? The paladins, who had strengthened their eyes with aura, were able to clearly see the main god's symbol engraved on the small key. If you do it, you may not know what it is, but it is definitely a sacred item.

"At that moment, I knew instinctively. This is another sign given by the Lord, the key to activating the Knight of Grace. Even after saving the Sigismund Spirit, the Knight of Grace was willing to remain in this world to protect Delcross."

Roaring Roaring-

That strong and gigantic ice knight continues to protect the imperial capital and the imperial palace!

When they heard the story, which they had only heard about through rumors, directly from the prince, the crowd's vague doubts gradually turned into excited expectations.

"... "Isn't this a beautiful story?"

Sir Agnes, who was next to Wesker, smiled softly and whispered.

She, the leader of the Knights of St. Grazier, was already over 70 years old, and had left the 4th missionary corps heading to the south in charge of her adjutant and was remaining in the imperial capital.

"Maybe it's because I'm older now, but I like dream-like stories that connect everyone as one."

I guess that means it's a dream-like fiction. He probably sensed that much of the prince's remarks were laced with bragging.

But even so, Sir Agnes' eyes were extremely affectionate, as if she were looking at her cute grandson doing a trick.

"So do i. Hehehe."

Wesker, who responded like that, found it difficult to refrain from bursting into laughter the moment he looked at the throne.

This is because I read a faint, momentary expression on the face of Seonghwang, who was quietly keeping his mouth shut.

-Do your best, son.

Wesker worked with Seonghwang for a long time, and had resorted to unjustified means on several occasions.

There were also accidents that narrowly crossed the border of fraud. Of course, this was possible thanks to the implicit approval of the Emperor.

But I never thought that the day would come when I would see him racking his brains over someone else's fraud!

"I thought about it when you took out the prisoners from the capital guard, but aren't you the type of person who does really cute things?"

Wesker basically liked that kind of trickster temperament.

To her, who thought it was okay to sometimes cross the line to achieve a desired result, such a person was not a criminal, but simply a person with whom she could communicate.

In a way that was different from the success, I felt that I and Prince Mores seemed to get along quite well.

"Ah, I am afraid. That unknown thing is deceiving everyone! If we just leave it like this... ..!"

Of course, not everyone was favorable.

Write it!

Although Cardinal Meyer noticed several times, Cardinal Benitus was already so agitated that he could not pay any attention to those around him.

At that time, a heavy voice stopped him.

"Cardinal Benitus."

A voice that cracks ominously, as if scraping rusty iron. It was Sir Leander, the head of St. Terbachia.

A face as insensitive as a withered old tree looks down at the cardinal with a rare cold glow.

"Prince Mores has served as an advisor to the monster task force at the earnest request of Leandros. And he came back with a remarkable major that no one could disparage. So, if you continue to say bad things to Your Majesty and Your Majesty, I will not wait any longer."

The leader of all exorcists. Rumor has it that this is Sir Leander, whom even the devil is afraid of and avoids.

When his gloomy and ominous gaze fell upon him, Cardinal Benitus was startled and closed his mouth like a mute.

"Hoo."

Sir Agnes, who was looking at the scene, whispered in surprise.

"I've been at odds with you in the imperial palace for a long time now, but this is the first time I've seen you go out of your way for someone like that."

Wesker nodded in sympathy.

Leandros was certainly a man with many secrets.

Like Director Katrina, he is considered one of the Holy Emperor's closest associates, but not much is known about him other than the fact that he is often away from the imperial capital due to work.

Meanwhile, the prince's report had reached its end.

"So I would like to dedicate this evidence of glory to my Father, who is God's representative and the supreme ruler of the continent."

The heart of ice was handed to the valet and then transferred back into the hands of Chamberlain Lewis.

And finally, after receiving the item, Seonghwang looked down at the back of the prince's head with an incomprehensible expression for a moment.

"As reported by Prince Mores, I heard that there was a lot of praise for the main deity and the royal family in the local area. "It is said that the Lord always comes where His will is, so wouldn't that mean that the princes' sincerity for their subjects was so extreme?"

Soon, Seonghwang's calm voice echoed throughout the conference hall.

"Mores, Logan. Despite your young age, you have done excellent things as members of the Holy Family. "As your father, I am very proud of you."

"... thank you."

For some reason, the prince hesitated for a moment before opening his mouth a beat later. It was a very simple greeting, considering the lengthy rhetoric that had been made earlier.

Seonghwang smiled faintly and finished speaking.

"Today is a truly meaningful day. "We will hold an imperial palace banquet to commemorate the princes' safe return."

* * *

Seongjin has already made refrigerators that will fit into most palaces. And it became a big topic among the workers preparing the dinner.

"It's a small low-temperature warehouse made of magic ice that doesn't melt."

"Egg money! The devil? "So it's not a cursed item?"

"haha. It's okay, chef. He said that there was a strange phenomenon where the ice did not melt around the land where the Knight of Grace landed. "They say they were made by digging them up, so they must be sacred items, right?"

Anyway, the refrigerator received great reviews from everyone.

Only Seonghwang looked at the small refrigerator that came into the office and muttered with a slightly pale face.

"Head..."

"yes? your majesty. The head? "Do you have a headache?"

"... "No, it's nothing."

If Seongjin had known that fact, he would have said it with glee.

-Oh, do you recognize your father? This is the noble sacrifice of shaved ice number 4. It is a refrigerator in which the entire body is divided into 11 parts, and a special refrigerator made of heads was placed in the office. haha!

In any case, the ample refrigerators were delivered to each palace.

Not only the main palace, office, Jinju Palace, Silver Rose Labyrinth, and Blue Rose Labyrinth, but also the twins' mansion and the palaces of each empress and empress.

Of course, these were not controlled separately by the ice heart.

I didn't have a lot of ice hearts, and like the cryogenic carriage I had entrusted to Schmidt, it wasn't something I had to worry about being stolen.

Wouldn't it be troublesome if the user accidentally opened it and the entire palace's refrigerators came together and returned to Shaved Ice No. 4?

And there was a gift-giving ceremony earlier than expected.

Before attending the imperial palace banquet, for some reason, all the brothers and sisters flocked to Jinju Palace.

"I'm sorry I couldn't meet you first, brother."

Sisley approached me with a happy look on his face. She was a girl who looked like a doll but now had a more lively expression than before.

"But I promised my brother that I wouldn't miss the knights' training."

"okay? good job. "Training must always be done sincerely."

Speaking like a person much older than him, Seongjin once again realized that the little boy in front of him was even younger than he thought. He also said he was happier than he expected.

Of course, there was still an unwelcome fake saint hanging behind it.

"Shaaaak!"

Oh, you do it in moderation!

If you feel like you're going to be on guard, don't come, or better yet, bring Cadmus! Where's the inspiration?

"This is a gift I prepared for my sister."

Seongjin first handed Amelia a long package.

"It must have been very difficult in Siegsmund Territory, but did you have time to take care of all these things? Thank you, Mores."

Amelia opened the gift with a happy face.

And when she saw the black and ugly sword that came out of there, she was at a loss for words and stopped breathing. She seemed greatly shocked.

"... Even though it looks a bit weird, it is a great sword, sister. "I can assure you that I am familiar with the Henesys long sword."

Logan, who became anxious, hinted and helped. But it was a needless worry.

"what... Awesome!"

Amelia let out a gasp, barely able to breathe. Her white cheeks were noticeably flushed, and her clear eyes sparkled like stars.

The girl I fell in love with at first sight, that was it.

"It's really, really cool! "It's the kind of sword I've only dreamed of!"

Amelia had visited the imperial palace several times with the Emperor's permission, but she had not been able to find a sword she liked.

However, as if his younger brother had looked into his mind, he had found a sword that suited his taste.

Amelia, who was ecstatically caressing the rough edges of the terrifying blade, looked back at Seongjin.

"I'm so happy, Mores! thank you so much!"

"No, what?"

Seongjin also felt better at Amelia's strong reaction.

"By the way, Mores. "Would you like to listen to this for a moment?"

"yes?"

"And stand here and strike a pose. Hmm, 5 Banajas meals would be appropriate."

"... yes?"

As Seongjin hesitated and followed her order without knowing why, Amelia smiled brightly, unable to hide her joy.

Then he clenched his fists and shouted softly.

"good! Let's draw a portrait! "We are calling a talented painter to the imperial palace!"

... yes?

'Anyway, are you happy about it?'

Sisley also welcomed the gift.

Sisley was very moved when he saw the little ice bear toddling around and asked.

"Are you really giving this child to me? This is my first time seeing a doll like this! So pretty!"

look. You like it, right?

Seongjin looked back at Logan and Masain, who were looking worried, with a confident look on their faces.

"Thank you so much, Brother Mores. "But what is his name?"

"Uh, it's called shaved ice number 3."

"Hey. From now on, stay with me. "I'll give you a cool name, sweet baby bear."

... Hey, wait a minute?

Kid. That guy has a proper name, Shavedsu No. 3?

[Al~la~view!]

When the bear tilted its head and made an electronic sound, the saintess hugged the bear with a touched face.

"I'm not sure what he's saying, but somehow listening to it makes my heart feel warm."

It was purely Seongjin's mistake.

I thought that the talking bear was 'alabyu' and pushed forward, but when I thought about it, there was no one in Delcross who could understand this.

"How does the bear you brought know the planet Earth? "As expected, it's suspicious!"

Only the fake saint Seo Yi-seo sparked suspicion, but no one cared about her.

"There's also a controller that controls this. "I will explain its function in detail later."

And there were things to give to the twins. It was a pair of small ice bracelets that could be worn on the arms.

This is what came to mind after seeing an item called [Thought Blocker] in Dexter's workshop. For some reason, the twins came to mind as soon as I saw it.

And I was constantly pestering Dexter to make two items with the same function.

-You have ours too?

Herna and Gades seemed not to have expected much and accepted the gift with questioning expressions.

"Of course, you guys should take care of yours too. "It's family."

Also, perhaps because of my mood, I feel like I often felt the presence of these little guys even when I was in Sigismund Territory.

I was worried because I felt like I had received a lot of help, knowingly or unknowingly.

"It's so cool... .."

"And be quiet... .."

Fortunately, the twins wearing the bracelets had strangely relaxed faces, unlike the first time.

I seem to like it quite a bit, so let's not go into detail about what this remains is. Sometimes it's better to keep it a secret.

"I happened to have a channel open for a while, and it was really crazy at that time. I couldn't think of anything at all. That's why I created this function. "I think such noise would be a distraction when concentrating on the game."

Then the two looked at Seongjin with very touched faces.

"Our thoughts among ourselves are also blocked?"

"We can play a game among ourselves."

okay? It wasn't a feature I put that much thought into, but I'm glad I did.

Now let's aim our blades at each other. You chess terrorists.

"Now father, stop bothering me, and from now on, you two can play chess together. Understand?"

"and! Mores!"

The twins shouted in unison, which was rare, and clung to Seongjin's arms.

"love you! Mores!"

"the best! Mores!"

The two of them rubbed their cheeks against Seongjin's sleeve with very satisfied faces.

The twins seemed somewhat dull compared to their lively tone, but now they clearly conveyed a deep sense of joy.

'Well, it's worth giving as a gift.'

This was when Seongjin was thinking like this.

"Mores, but do you even know how to play chess?"

"Mores, wouldn't you like to play chess together often from now on?"

"It's okay if you don't know. "We'll teach you well!"

"Okay, learn. "I won't bother you too much!"

At that moment, Seongjin felt a shiver run down his spine.

"Ah, because you guys are so surprised!"

Why do you want to include me in that? Make people anxious!

275. On The Dream Road (4)

That evening.

Unlike before, the imperial palace dinner started in a relatively gentle atmosphere.

Not only did Logan return with a feat as great as Seongjin, but Empress Elizabeth, who bickered about everything, was not present.

Thanks to this, the dinner was held in a friendly atmosphere under the leadership of Empress Tatiana.

And what Masain delivered to Seongjin was unexpected news.

"mother? To the Principality of Asein?"

"yes. Something happened suddenly and he left yesterday. "I heard there was an urgent call from Grand Duke Asin."

"... okay?"

Seongjin was honestly a little relieved that Empress Elizabeth was not here.

Until now, I thought she was Mores' mother and I consciously kept my distance from her.

But if he thought she was really his mother, he couldn't bring himself to face her cold gaze head on.

"I understand that there are no particularly big problems in the Principality of Asin recently. There was no special report from your father's majesty's office either. "It won't be a big deal, so don't worry too much."

Amelia seemed to understand Seongjin's subtle expression and gently comforted him.

"Yes, well... .."

Seongjin, who responded a little shyly, calmly sat down and started eating.

"But what is that, Brother Masaine?"

"Are you doing something I've never seen before, Brother Masaine?"

"Ah, Prince Mores gave it to me."

You said there was a cool feature, but I didn't really understand.

Masain said sheepishly, showing off a small trinket pinned to his collar.

"okay? Then it will definitely be a feature that I will use later.

"Brother Masain."

"Well, it was given to me by Mores. It would be good to have it handy. "Brother Masain."

"Haha, yes. "I still think so."

While listening to the conversation between the twins and Sir Martha, Seongjin deeply inserted another accessory he had brought into his pocket.

Although I prepared to give it to Empress Elizabeth, doubts arose as to whether I would have been able to hand it to her if she had been present. Will the day come when I can laugh and talk with her like a normal family?

One of the main dishes of the day was bear meat steak. It was sent by Margrave Sigismund along with a gift because Prince Mores visited it often.

In fact, it was the devil who liked bear meat, and there was nothing special about Seongjin's taste.

However, as I continued to eat it for the demon lord, I felt like it was now a somewhat appetizing taste.

I was worried that it might be a bit of an unfamiliar food, but fortunately the response at the dinner was favorable. Then, Seongjin found Seonghwang who, as expected, had not even taken a bite of food.

"Uh, father. This is more delicious than you think. "Stop crushing it and have some."

"... .."

Seonghwang, who was disassembling food with an expressionless expression as always, flinched in surprise and put a bear meat steak in his mouth with a new look on his face. And I furrow my brows involuntarily.

Of course, it was only a fleeting moment, and he quickly showed a calm expression. He kept pace with the others and steadfastly finished off a plate of steak.

'hmm. "That doesn't seem to be your taste, does it?"

It tastes pretty good once you get used to it, but I'm a picky eater.

Ah, that guy's eating habits. Someday I will fix it. Soon, a salty and salmon specialty restaurant will appear in the Imperial Capital!

"Laview... .."

Meanwhile, there was another person who didn't touch the main dish. Sisley was just looking at the steak with a pitiful expression, and it reminded her of the little teddy bear she had left in her room.

"This is a bear? Did a cute bear like Labyu die and become meat? How many of those little ones would have been needed to become steaks for a dinner party?"

"... .."

No, bears are definitely not the creatures you think they are.

"When I think of the poor bear who sacrificed my life, I shouldn't leave even a single piece behind, but it reminds me of our cute Labyu, so I can't bear to touch it."

Please go to a good place in the arms of the Lord.

The little saint folds her hands over her heart and prays reverently. Thanks to this, the surroundings suddenly became solemn.

The unexpected childishness shown by a normally adult saintess is cute, but the underlying atmosphere is so sad that no one hastily opens their mouths.

'Sisle. That's not actually a bear. 'It's an ice monster called the Glatzer Troll!'

Seongjin's mouth was itchy as well, but he was swept away by the atmosphere around him and just kept his mouth shut.

By the way, why did the name of Shaved Ice No. 3 suddenly become 'Labu'?

"Give it to me. 'I'll give you my dessert instead."

In the end, Seongjin did the next best thing and changed the plate for Sisley, who was heartbroken.

At the same time, there was a loud guy cheering in my head.

[Black! So good, another plate! I thought I would never taste it again if I came back here!]

As a result, it was a dinner time where only the Demon King was so moved that he cried.

* * *

That night.

Amelia came to the Jinju Palace reception room. As she sometimes did before, she stayed up late to chat with Seongjin for the first time in a long time.

Of course, I didn't forget to bring an armful of newly prepared children's books.

"I've completely graduated from children's books now, sister. "My reading has improved quite a bit."

Since I knew the words, it didn't take long to learn the letters.

Especially recently, my vocabulary has increased dramatically due to the creation of the 'Knight of Grace' myth with Francis. Of course, complex spellings are still sometimes confusing.

"okay..."

Amelia looked at Seongjin with a strange, strange expression.

-My child has already grown up like this. It's really exciting, but I can't hide the feeling of emptiness. Why do children's cute days pass by so quickly?

Sister, I can see what you're thinking on your face.

"okay. "You mean Ortona."

After talking about this and that, Seongjin confessed about 'Bertrand & Lee'. When I explained the ultimate goal of the top, Amelia slowly nodded.

"Where a commercial district is formed, public security naturally develops, even if you don't like it. Since the benefits are clear, the surrounding lords will have no choice but to cooperate. Thanks to this, I think it will be an opportunity for Ortona's refugees to settle down little by little. "How did you come up with such a big plan?"

Amelia's proud feelings were revealed without filtering in her eyes as she looked at Seongjin.

"Now that I think about it, something comes to mind. From what I saw while walking around the office, I'm sure there's something that could be of help to you. "There was a plan to rebuild Ortona that my father, His Majesty, had made in the beginning."

Ortona reconstruction plan?

Your father made something like that?

"You've said this once before, right?"

Now that I think about it, it was said that Seonghwang in the early days of his reign implemented a variety of radical policies. He said that while he clashed with the Orthodox Church at every turn, he pushed through various innovative policies.

But at some point, all those activities stopped as if they had come to a halt.

Amelia used to be like that. It is said that Seonghwang may have taken a step back due to frequent clashes with the Orthodox Church and other realistic obstacles.

but.

'Is it an agreement...?'

Now even Seongjin could vaguely guess.

Seonghwang, whose hands and feet were suddenly tied to the agreement for some reason, would not have been able to easily change any policy from then on.

The effects of policies that control not only a country but also a continent must be beyond imagination.

"It's just a difference in order from your plan, but there are some parts that are consistent to some extent. It will be a great help in making long-term plans if you refer to it. however..."

Amelia asked after a little hesitation.

"That salmon business. I have never seen anything similar to that. "Is that really profitable?"

"..."

At her innocent question, Seongjin became a little sullen.

Sister, we have a cold wagon! Now all problems are solved!

"Ah, sister."

Then Seongjin suddenly had an idea and rummaged through his luggage in the corner. I finally remembered what I had left with Orden.

Amelia, who had been watching what he was doing with curious eyes, looked up at Seongjin in confusion when he eventually pulled out an old treasure chest.

"I was a little worried about whether I should really give this to you. But I think you have to see it for yourself and decide."

"This?"

"I brought it from Count Sigismund's residence. "I heard it was my sister's treasure chest when I was young."

Startle.

Amelia widened her eyes and stared at the box, as if she had finally remembered something.

As Seongjin carefully handed her the item, she slowly opened the box where the chips had fallen and lifted up an old straw.

"bell..."

Amelia's eyes sank deeply, as if recalling the past.

"okay. "So many years have passed that I completely forgot about it."

Seongjin didn't know it, but for Amelia, it was a past that had to go back almost decades before returning.

"okay. Those times were very difficult. Nevertheless, these are precious items to me. "Thank you for bringing it to me, Mores."

Amelia put the straw aside and took out the miscellaneous items in the box one by one.

But she had just picked up an old pendant.

For a moment, as if she had been struck by lightning, a huge wave of forgotten memories hit her all at once like a tidal wave.

"dream... . Yes, I had a dream then."

At that time, Amelia, who was young, had numerous dreams that felt ambiguous as to whether they were reality or a dream.

The first thing I remember was the sight of myself wearing a soft, warm wool coat and being carried on someone's back and chatting endlessly.

-Where are we going now, Dad?

-It's a place where your grandfather can't find us. Amelia.

Amel tilted his head. As far as she knew, her grandfather was the strongest man in her generation.

-Don't worry. He won't dare follow us.

The voice of the man who answered like that was calm, but it still felt infinitely reassuring.

Feeling somehow relieved, Amelia smiled and buried her head under his cloak.

Another day, I had a dream of camping next to a campfire under a sky full of stars. She was wrapped in a warm blanket and holding a new little doll in her arms.

-I want to give this pretty baby a cool name, Dad.

-Is that so? Then what do you want to do for that child?

Amelia thought deeply for a moment and then answered.

-Well, first of all, I hope this kid has a big family. I made a wish for her family, and my dad came, and I became happy, right? So, I hope she is as happy as this kid.

The man didn't answer for a while, and after a while, he gently stroked Amelia's head.

-Then what about the goddess who has as many families as the stars in the sky? Belluna of the night sky is, as far as I know, the happiest goddess with the largest family.

-All those huge stars?

Amelia's eyes widened and she listened to the myth he told.

That day, the doll's name became Belluna.

Another day, I saw an interesting play downtown. Amelia let out an exclamation of excitement as she rode her horse on her man's shoulders.

-You really like performing. So, would you like to go to Brittany this time? It is a place where performing arts are very developed.

-Are the performances there as interesting as that play?

-It will be very fun. It's just that people there get used to pronouncing it 'Arrch' as if they were choking on cold soup.

What does it sound like when soup gets stuck in your throat?

Amelia, who had been giggling and asking various questions because she thought it was somehow funny, was already learning words containing Arrch one by one from him.

-A small angel came down to a shabby hut built with sincerity in a deep forest, and that place would be my church.

-Wow, here are all the words I learned now! What is that phrase?

-When memorizing something, it is very helpful to remember things that are meaningful to you, Amelia.

-So, does that mean that phrase has meaning to you?

-Well, whatever happens.

The man lifted Amelia up.

-Right here is my little angel.

As her body rose upward, the air around her enveloped her as if she was flying.

Hahaha!

A loud laugh echoed in my head.

"Yes, I..." "How could I have forgotten these until now?"

While Seongjin was getting restless at her sudden reaction, Amelia smiled brightly with tearful eyes.

276. On The Dream Road (5)

It happened more than ten years ago now.

That day, cleaning continued late into the night at a bar in Regina. This is because a group of mercenaries from a foreign country celebrated the success of their mission and drank until late at night.

The owner and staff were exhausted, but they didn't feel too bad.

The Astros mercenaries who were the guests that day were rough but fairly well-controlled. In addition, they even drank all the poor quality beer left in stock.

Thanks to this, the owner's pockets were well-filled, and the employees were also scheduled to receive a solid bonus for working overtime.

"Could that young man from earlier also be a mercenary? He looked somewhat different from the rest of the party, so maybe he was a knight from a famous noble family... .."

The girl serving in the hall asked while working hard on dishtowels. She had a slightly flushed face, perhaps because she was busy moving her body.

Even without a specific explanation, the owner could immediately tell who the girl was referring to.

Certainly, he was a young man who would stand out anywhere.

"You have a licensed mercenary badge? Even though he looks young, he's been around for quite a long time. "If you look at his level, he is not someone who has been working for one or two years, but more than ten years."

"How do you know that?"

"When those guys started drinking, they took up their mercenary badges in advance."

There were many bars in Regina that sometimes asked for a mercenary badge as a guarantee. This was because there were so many mercenaries who drank alcohol and caused accidents.

"okay."

The girl nodded and smiled brightly, wondering what she was thinking.

"He was sitting upright, so I thought he was a driver. But it's also fitting that he's a capable mercenary."

The owner clicked his tongue.

"Arthur. I don't carelessly give my heart to those guys. "Do you think there are a lot of young mercenaries and widowed women who made a living in Regina?"

Regina is a large city where most mercenary groups traveling to and from the North pass through. Many mercenaries went to the north, making promises to their lovers, and disappeared into the Ortona civil war.

At that time, Benjamin, a boy who was coming in carrying a bag of onions, snapped at the girl.

"They're just people who can't settle down and just wander around. "Don't pay attention to those things and just do your job properly."

"No, you're giving me attention! Besides, when have I ever not done a good job?"

As the girl opens her eyes sharply and shouts, Benjamin's voice also rises.

"Ask everyone how you looked today! Just by looking at him, it seemed like I fell in love with him at first sight!"

"Who is crushing on you! "Why are you suddenly arguing with me?"

The girl pouted, grabbed a dishtowel, and disappeared into the kitchen. Benjamin also roughly puts down her sack and walks out of the bar.

Only the owner, who knew Benjamin's feelings for the girl, clicked his tongue inwardly.

Such an ugly guy.

'I know. 'I'm taking my anger out on Anna for no reason.'

Meanwhile, Benjamin was not very comfortable after yelling at the girl he had a crush on.

But still, he couldn't hold back his anger. Because I could understand very well the excitement the girl must have felt toward the unfamiliar mercenary.

The first time he couldn't take his eyes off the mercenary was the same. Wasn't he someone who seemed to be a literal replica of the cool mercenary that everyone admired from the stories?

"... driving me crazy. "How can I see Anna's face tomorrow?"

Benjamin foresaw the failure of his first love. That was when he was hanging his head down, overcome with feelings of self-destruction, defeat, and depression.

sparkle.

Something glowed on the floor and caught his attention.

"huh?"

On a dark moonless night, strangely enough, something that had fallen on the ground was shining alone.

Benjamin walked towards the light without thinking. The identity of the light discovered was a small bright red pendant.

"This... .."

Now that I think about it, didn't the young mercenary throw something on the floor as he was leaving the bar?

'Did you throw it away because it was broken? It would be a waste to do that... ..'

For some reason, it was completely split in half and unusable, but the brilliant jewel still gave off a beautiful light.

It was when he tried to reach for the pendant as if possessed.

[Be careful.]

Suddenly, I heard a strange voice ringing in my head.

He flinched in surprise and raised his head to see a woman staring down at him.

"... who?"

Benjamin was startled and took a step back. This is because the woman was entirely covered in ominous black.

Black dress, black hair and black veil.

In particular, the black veil completely covered the woman's face and hung down to her chin, making it extremely grotesque.

But still, the silhouette looming over the veil was delicate, and the black dress that fit well was elegant and beautiful.

'I don't think he's human!'

It's scary but pretty. Isn't it like the fairy in the old story who sentences death?

Benjamin was in a cold sweat, quickly grabbing his pendant and trying to escape. The woman's strange voice echoed in my mind again.

[I warned you. Once you get caught up in a cause and effect that you cannot handle, there is no turning back.]

For a moment, I felt an eerie light flashing through the black veil.

'We must run away!'

My instincts are screaming at me to turn back and run right now. However, Benjamin could not easily let go of his lingering attachment to the pendant on the floor.

Even though it was broken, that beautiful gem still seemed useful. Those who have saved his salary all their lives, will they ever be able to touch such jewels again?

[...]]

Benjamin hesitated and looked, but the woman was still standing there. Contrary to her heavy warning, she doesn't seem to have any intention of stopping his actions by force.

gulp.

After gathering his courage, Benjamin quickly rushed over and snatched the pendant from the floor.

But at that moment.

Woe!

Like an illusion, a huge red flame suddenly rose up before his eyes.

"... ... !"

At one point, Benjamin was standing on a wide swath of land engulfed in flames.

A hellish land where stars lose their light in the sky and fall to the ground, and on the floor, countless people writhing black and charred in pain.

The acrid smell of burning flesh stings my nose.

And screams. That desperate scream as if it was squeezing out one's soul.

"Ugh! It's hell! "It's the end of the world!"

Benjamin screamed frantically in fear.

"what! "What's going on, Benjamin?"

"Why are you doing this all of a sudden?"

The owner and Anna, startled by the commotion, run out of the store.

And after a while.

When Benjamin finally looked back in cold sweat, the woman had already disappeared without a trace along with the pendant.

* * *

"Yes, I..." "How could I have forgotten these until now?"

Amelia, who held the old pendant and shed tears for a while, then looked back at Seongjin and smiled softly.

"I'm sorry, sister. I can't even think about your feelings... .."

Seongjin lowered his head with a guilty face.

Even though I clearly knew what she went through in the Sigismund Territory when she was young, I felt that she was too indifferent.

"no. "On the contrary, it is something I should be thankful for, Mores."

But Amelia shook her head and fondly caressed the pendant.

"How should I explain it? I had many dreams when I was in Sigismund. "For some reason, whenever I fall asleep with this pendant, happy dreams always come to me."

okay. It was a happy dream.

It was so vivid that young Amelia believed it to be real.

So, she mistook the unfamiliar Seonghwang who came to visit her for the man in her dreams and followed him without hesitation.

Soon, the affluent life in the imperial palace began, and the vague boundaries of her childhood dreams soon disappeared from Amelia's mind.

However, it was clear that the dreams had left an impact on Amelia in some way.

She easily learned Breton, which she had never learned from anyone, and already knew many stories from a continent she had never learned before.

Above all.

What was the reason why Amelia lost her heart to Leonard?

-Please become my precious, one and only family that I will love with all my soul.

Amelia, who felt an overwhelming joy at that simple marriage proposal, nodded without even thinking twice.

This is because, even subconsciously, I already knew, vaguely, what it felt like to have 'one precious family'.

"Maybe I had a big delusion back then that a happy life like the dream of my childhood would come again."

Meanwhile, Seongjin, who was listening to Amelia, suddenly remembered what Seonghwang had said in the gap the other day.

-I blessed her soul, not her body. So that I can dream sometimes even in extreme pain.

A dream blessing given to the former Countess Sigismund.

At the time, I wondered why it was done that way, but now I can understand it a little bit.

A kind of mercy that would provide as much rest as was allowed to Sister Amelia. I didn't even know that was his way of guessing cause and effect.

"At the time, I called it the 'dream necklace.'"

Amelia wiped the dirty pendant with the lace hem of her sleeve. Seongjin, who was quietly watching the scene, felt an ominous feeling creeping up on him.

By any chance, that pendant... .. ?

"They used to put a lot of mud on it on purpose so that users wouldn't recognize it. "It was badly broken, but at the time it was one of the prettiest treasures I owned."

And that premonition was correct.

What appeared in the lace without grime was an item that Seongjin was familiar with.

"milestone... .."

A bright red jewel split in half.

It was clearly the bright red signpost that my grandmother had left behind.

* * *

That night.

Seongjin returned to his room after a long time and was lost in thought, forgetting to meditate.

-How did you get this? Because it happened when I was very young, I don't remember much about it.

When Seongjin asked where the signpost came from, Amelia answered with some hesitation.

-Probably right after my mother passed away, when I was left alone in that cold villa. A strange woman came to see me.

He said he couldn't remember what he looked like because his face was covered with a black veil.

The woman, who was all in black, handed Amelia the broken pendant and asked her to keep it carefully.

'It probably means that he is a person who knows well what a milestone is and its value.'

So is it also Oracle?

Since she said she was a woman, she probably wouldn't be very successful, and she was probably the former Oracle or something.

'... But it really can't be your grandmother, right?'

Empress Bethsheba heard that the Holy Emperor was poisoned when he was young, before he left the palace. If that were the case, he wouldn't have been alive until then.

Seongjin took out another milestone he was carrying and looked at it carefully for a moment.

Although it was only half of the piece left over from Dexter, it was a mysterious gem that gave off colorful lights as if even its cross section had been carefully cut.

Dexter explained this as a kind of terminal that reflects the spirit of Oracle.

That's why it holds so much data that the moment you try to analyze it with a source editor, the machine can't handle it and explodes.

-It breaks and shatters, reminding us that this is reality and not his foresight.

That's how Seonghwang explained the milestone.

A thought suddenly occurred to me.

'If the oracle chooses the future as instructed by the signpost, what happens to the foresight the oracle saw before the choice?'

What happens to the future that remains as a possibility without being chosen?

If the milestone reflects the spirit of Oracle, wouldn't it be possible for some part of it to remain in the milestone in the form of data?

After thinking about it, Seongjin hugged Lee Myeong and lay down on the bed. I thought the only way was to find out for myself.

[...] What are you doing now?]

The Demon King asked hesitantly, but Seongjin ignored him and firmly closed his eyes. Anyway, I was planning to try the method I heard from Amelia first.

-The way to dream was simple. All I had to do was hug my jewel and fall asleep.

Okay, hug this and sleep.

'I'm not a kid who hides toys, I never thought I'd do something like this at this age.'

But it's definitely worth a try. Seongjin, who decided that, tried to sleep hard while suppressing the feeling of his jewels leaking out.

[Check the connection of the guest ID.]

How much time has passed like that?

In his sleep, Seongjin heard what sounded like a faint electronic sound.

[I've been waiting for you for a long time. □□□ □□...]

* * *

When I opened my eyes, I could hear people muttering next to me. It was a clear conversation made of thoughts.

[It's been a really long time since I last had a guest ID.]

[But is his connection somehow unstable? The graphics are broken.]

[Sometimes this happens. But it's okay. The function was fine.]

What are you saying?

If you're talking about me, explain it first so I can understand.

Seongjin opened his mouth to those who looked like vague shadows without a proper shape.

"What are they talking about now? Who are you? And where are we now?"

For a moment, one of them froze in surprise.

Then, he immediately shouted out to Seongjin as if he was happy to see him.

"Now say that! It's definitely an imperial language. Are you from Delcross?"

"... ... ?"

Before Seongjin could respond, he strode forward.

Crackling, crackling. Occasionally there seemed to be noise in my vision, but I could still make out his tall height and sturdy physique just through his faint shape.

"Wow, this is the first time I've seen someone log in with a guest ID in the main world of Delcross! "I couldn't be happier!"

When Seongjin looked up with wide eyes, a cool laugh was heard from him.

"haha. hey. You may still be confused, but don't worry. "I will help you."

Crackling. Chick.

Beyond the noise, the faintly curved mouth is visible.

"Take care of yourself, newbie. Shall we make a statement first? My name is Owen. "It's Owen Lockwood."

277. Yellow Zone (1)

Seongjin opened his eyes, feeling an unexpected sensation.

Just a moment ago, I was covering myself with bedding in a dark room, but now the surroundings were brightly lit, and my body felt empty.

'... what?'

When I opened my eyes, lying on the lawn instead of the soft bed, the stinging sunlight was shining on my head.

Open green lawn and blue sky.

It was clearly an unfamiliar place, not his own room.

Seongjin sat on the floor blankly and looked around.

'Is this the dream you said...?'

Even though my eyes were wide open, my vision was blurry and blurry. On the other hand, a strange state of awakening is maintained in my head.

It definitely feels vivid somewhere.

Booth.

Seongjin, who was getting up like that, suddenly felt empty in his head unlike usual and asked.

'... Hey, devil?'

As expected, there was no answer from him.

'Did I leave my body again and just my soul escape somewhere?'

If so, it might not be just a dream. There is no way to confirm as of now.

Anyway, I didn't think the current situation was that dangerous. Well, if you were really in danger, your father would have come running right away.

It was right then.

[Who is it? It suddenly appeared over there?]

I could hear people muttering next to me. It was a clear conversation made not of voices, but of thoughts.

[I am a guest ID user. Seeing as he doesn't even have any special equipment, he seems to be a newbie.]

[Newbie falls into the yellow zone? It's unlucky.]

Seongjin stood up awkwardly and looked in the direction of the sound. And soon he was able to identify the shapes of the three people he thought were looking at him.

[But fortunately, we are by your side. I can't say that that friend is unlucky either, right?]

Even though Seongjin sensed distinct gazes directed at him, there was a reason why he could only guess that they were looking. This is because it was impossible to distinguish distinct shapes, such as facial expressions or eyes, from them.

They were made of something like dark smoke and looked like shadows or ghosts.

[By the way, this is a guest ID that's been a long time coming.]

Long, long, long.

A figure that was somewhat too slender to be human spoke.

[But is his connection somehow unstable? The graphics are broken.]

cave cave.

It was as if he was lumpy, and his chubby figure spoke in a strange way, as if it had been mistranslated.

... But wait, does that guy have 5 arms now? Also, is it crooked? What on earth?

[Sometimes this happens. But it's okay. The function was fine.]

Softly, softly.

Someone with what looked like long hair waving said.

Anyway, based on the appearance alone, I still get the feeling that this person is a proper human being.

Crackling, crackling.

And between all of their hazy shapes, sometimes something like a strange noise passed by.

'Are my eyes strange, or are those guys strange...?'

However, Seongjin was not as scary or unpleasant as the evil spirit Haze.

Anyway, I could vividly feel my own two fists, and I could clearly feel the reality of those guys.

So that means you can swing this fist and knock them out when you need it.

'what?'

Then Seongjin suddenly looked at his hand and was taken aback.

'Why are my hands like this again?'

Just like those three people, Seongjin thought after seeing that his hands also looked like black smoke.

Ah, it was my eyes that got the taste.

[Anyway, if we add newbies, will we barely be able to fill the necessary number of people? If you do well, you may be able to enter the dungeon with 4 or more people.]

[It is still too early to make such a judgment. We don't know what kind of person he is.]

[You can judge it by taking it with you. Newbies will never be our match.]

"... what?"

I didn't know what he was talking about, but I knew for sure that I was the center of the topic.

Seongjin frowned.

What on earth are you talking about? If you want to talk about me, first explain it so you can understand.

"What are they talking about now? Who are you? And where are we now?"

When Seongjin suddenly opened his mouth, one of them froze in surprise. Of the three, he was the one who was considered the closest to human.

Then, he immediately shouted out to Seongjin as if he was happy to see him.

"Now say that! It's definitely an imperial language! Are you from Delcross?"

"... ..?"

Before Seongjin could respond, he strode forward.

Crackling, crackling.

Although there seemed to be noise in my vision at times, I was still able to make out his tall height and sturdy physique just from his faint shape.

"Wow, this is the first time I've seen someone log in with a guest ID in the main world of Delcross! "I couldn't be happier!"

I couldn't read his expression, but he looked very happy anyway.

[Hey guys! It turns out that this newbie is from my hometown!]

[Donghyang-in?]

[Then you must be careful. He may be the one who can influence your reality, Owen.]

[don't worry. Just like you did, this time I will help this friend adjust.]

However, the reaction of those around him to his confident declaration was not very pleasant.

[well. How about thinking about that again?]

[Owen, you are not good at it yet either.]

[What about the quest? I understand that you haven't been able to get the job change item yet. The status window leading you didn't seem to have a very formidable temperament.]

[It's okay, it's okay. Although his temper is a little off, we, Sang Tae-chang, are not stuck in a back-and-forth. Besides, I don't even know if the former items are available now. The previous server said the seeds were dry.]

I couldn't understand what they were saying.

When Seongjin looked up with wide eyes, a cool laugh was heard from him.

"haha. hey. You may still be confused, but don't worry. "I will help you."

Crackling. Chick.

Beyond the noise, the faintly curved mouth is visible. Somehow, he was a person who gave the impression of cheerfulness just by his atmosphere.

"Take care of yourself, newbie. Shall we make a statement first? My name is Owen. "It's Owen Lockwood."

Owen Lockwood.

"... "Isn't this a familiar name?"

We have a guy with that name in our house too. He is the eldest son who left home.

Since he never came home, I thought I should go and see his face sometime soon.

"Well, maybe so. My name is a fairly common name on the continent. you?"

"This is Seongjin Lee."

Seongjin answered without thinking and thought it was a mistake. This is not a Delcross-style name.

As expected, the head made of shadows tilts to one side.

"What a unique name. It's not a style commonly heard on the continent. Are you by any chance a member of Barça's minority tribe?"

Man, are you wondering if I'm a southern heretic?

Seongjin thought for a moment and then answered. In any case, if he speaks the imperial language, on the surface he probably believes in the Delcross Orthodox Church.

"I am a person born and raised in the grace of the Lord. Are you asking me if he is now an enemy of the empire?"

"what? haha. No, I asked because it was unusual, so don't set me up like that. Besides, not all Barsha tribes are enemies of the empire."

There didn't seem to be any malice in the way he was waving his hands urgently.

By the way, for someone from the Empire to take Barça's side, everyone will look at him as strange.

Anyway, after a brief argument, it was decided that a man named Owen would guide Seongjin in this world. And Seongjin readily accepted his offer.

First of all, Seongjin alone will have limitations in understanding this world.

Also, regardless of being favorable to Seongjin from the beginning, I thought it would be better than dealing with three unknown people in a situation where visibility was unclear.

"It's not just you, you look strange to us too. "It may be because the terminal you are using is not intact, or another problem has occurred."

A man named Owen led Seongjin and diligently headed somewhere and explained.

"Terminal?"

"okay. "Don't you have something you used to access this place?"

At that moment, a broken milestone appeared in Seongjin's mind.

Was it really the ancestral Oracle's gem that brought him to this place?

"As you might have guessed, the same goes for the guys who were there earlier. They are all people who used a terminal to get a guest ID and connect. "I'm not an official user."

And Owen gave Seongjin a lengthy explanation about this world.

This is a kind of normal world, and it is like a kind of resting place where people from different worlds come, connect temporarily, and then disappear. Each of these players has their own identity, or account, which is represented by their ID.

And all of this is accomplished in a very mysterious way where thoughts reach reality.

'I don't think this guy knows much either... ..'

After listening to the rambling explanation for a while, Seongjin came to a conclusion. There was a reason why the two shadows distrusted Owen earlier.

Anyway, Seongjin thought simply based on Earth's common sense.

This is a kind of game world, and Seongjin and Owen are not users with official accounts.

"Well, take this at least for now. I don't know if you'll have anything to write about today, but you have to be careful about everything in the yellow zone. "It would be a good beginner's weapon."

Owen, who was talking intently, took something out of his pocket and handed it to Seongjin.

Of course, Seongjin couldn't see what it was. I could only guess that there was some kind of weapon there because something like a short shadow appeared in Owen's hand.

However, if something is said to be free, it is natural to receive it. Before Owen could change his mind, Seongjin reached out her hand and grabbed it.

For a moment, Owen was shocked.

"Hey, hey! for a moment! sleep... ..!"

But it was already too late.

Suddenly.

Although I couldn't see it, I felt something sharp cutting into my hand, and something warm flowed down my hand.

Maybe it's blood flowing. Of course, it wasn't visible to Seongjin's eyes.

Tangrang!

The stick that fell to the ground made a dull metallic sound.

"OMG! "Even though it's a yellow zone, even party members get injured!"

Owen hurriedly took off the things he was carrying and started looking for something.

Bandages, bandages! HP, HP!

He eventually found what looked like a blurry piece of cloth, wrapped it around Seongjin's hand and grumbled.

"Are you crazy? What are you going to do if you hold the blade like that? "Even though it's for beginners, it's still quite sharp after being strengthened!"

Oh, I thought it was a club, but it turned out to be a sword.

"Uh, sorry. "Because I can't see it."

"... .."

Then Owen paused for a moment and scratched his head.

"Hmm, I thought it would work out somehow, but as expected, broken vision is more problematic than I thought. "It's very uncomfortable, isn't it?"

Are you saying that now?

Even if we meet again next time, I don't have the confidence to recognize you.

"okay? okay. "Just wait a moment."

Ugh. My cash is almost depleted because I scraped everything up to send gifts the other day.

Owen muttered something incomprehensible and diligently manipulated something.

"First of all, I sent you a gift. "Say acceptance."

And just as he said, a small window appeared in front of Seongjin's eyes.

☐Qr#^E& sent a gift of 'Gather Friends – Skin' to ☐☐☐ ☐☐. Do you want to accept it?☐

☐Accept/Reject☐

I saw a text window pop up. This is definitely the normal world.

"But your name isn't Owen? "It's all broken."

"I told you earlier, right? "We all have guest IDs?"

"hmm."

Seongjin, who was roughly convinced, nodded.

"accept."

At that moment, Seongjin's vision became brighter. The boundaries of the ambiguous landscape find clear lines, and faded objects instantly regain their bright colors.

However, it was not a very normal world. Yellow sidewalk blocks and spotless blue sky. Clouds floating round like cotton candy.

It felt like I was in a colorful, simple children's game.

"... .."

"Oh wow, the avatar has become cute. how is it? "Is your vision okay now?"

Seongjin looked at Owen's changed appearance blankly and asked.

"It's much better than before. Do you know what your vision will be like if you apply that?"

"no? I have never used a skin myself. I just picked the cheapest one, why? "Is there something wrong?"

"... .."

"Wow, don't get me wrong. I didn't do that to save cash! "It's just that the cheaper the price, the simpler the graphics are, so it's easy for someone with an unstable connection like you to use it!"

In front of Seongjin, a tall red fox asks worriedly. Waving her richly long tail.

"why? What's going on? "Why are you looking at me like that?"

Ugh, it's so cringe-inducingly cute that I can't even tell you about it.

278. Yellow Zone (2)

"We have to go to the green zone first. A place where players cannot kill each other. "I'll explain the details there."

Bwak bwak.

"For newbies, the priority is to adapt safely. It is difficult for guest ID users like us to be revived. "They say that if you do something wrong, you can actually die in real life."

Bwak bwak bwak.

"But all guest ID users are the same. There is something I absolutely need, so I cling to this place, even if it means taking risks... Hey, are you listening, newbie?"

"uh. "I'm listening."

I really can't get used to it.

Bwak bwak bwak.

From earlier, every time Seongjin took a step with his small hoof, petal-shaped footprints were heard on the floor, along with a creepy and cute sound effect. Of course, that also applies to Owen, who is ahead.

Seongjin sighed as he followed the fox, which made cute footsteps with a brisk gait.

'... I will definitely collect that cache and change my skin!"

I don't know how long I will stay here.

"Having to risk your life unlike others may sound scary at first. But don't worry. This is also a world where people fight against each other. "In the end, everyone adapts."

Perhaps knowing how Seongjin feels, the fox ahead of him speeds up and blinks.

Although it was advice and I was picking up heavy words, the weight of those words felt infinitely light when I saw the pigtail happily wagging its profuse tail.

"Owen, anyway, you're living in the Delcross dimension now, right?"

"of course."

"So, let's say you use the terminal to enter here, how do you get out when you want to leave?"

"Ah, yes. "The most important problem is getting back to reality."

The red fox sniffed and looked back at Seongjin.

"The method is a bit tricky. But didn't your Sang Tae-chang properly tell you about that?"

"Mr. Sang Tae-chang?"

If it's some text, it will pop up.

"That's a characteristic of the normal world. Other than that, he's the one who directly gives you quests and makes you do all sorts of annoying things."

He's a brat with a nasty personality and can't wait to get his reward reduced.

Owen continued for a while, unable to tell whether it was an insult or an explanation.

The impression I got there was that the 'status window' was very close to a person, unlike the text window we commonly see.

-I've been waiting for you for a long time. □□□ □□...

Now that I think about it, it seems like I vaguely heard someone's voice in my sleep.

Seongjin, who reflected on his memories for a moment, shook his head.

"I don't have anything like that."

"okay? It's so strange. There is always a status window attached to the Guest ID user. "Do you think it has something to do with your graphics being broken?"

Owen's pointed ears perked for a moment, then he turned around and continued his explanation.

"What do you think?" The fact that you are here now means that you also have an important goal. "It is impossible to achieve in reality, but it is still a goal that must be achieved at all costs."

"It's a goal..."

At this point, Seongjin was slowly realizing that this world was completely different from the dream Amelia had mentioned.

It doesn't seem to have much to do with Oracle's 'unchosen future', which I guessed earlier.

I did the exact same thing as her, but why did I get such different results?

"I heard that users with proper IDs have an easy way to come and go here whenever they want. But that has nothing to do with our guest ID users."

"then?"

"Once we are judged to have achieved a certain level of success, we automatically leave this world. Or in reality, when you must wake up from sleep. "It is entirely up to Sang Tae-chang to decide the right time."

"... .."

"Guest ID users can only enter and exit here with permission from the status window."

Seongjin furrowed his eyebrows slightly.

Should I entrust my safety to something so uncertain?

"I told you, right? I have a goal that needs to be achieved somehow, so I have to do whatever it takes. Moreover, from what I have experienced so far, even though he has a bit of a bad personality, Sang Sang-chang is someone who helps users make the optimal [choice]."

select.

The moment I hear those words, a strange premonition passes through my mind.

Seongjin looked closely at the fox ahead for a moment and then opened his mouth.

"Owen."

"huh?"

"That terminal you mentioned, is it perhaps Oracle's milestone?"

"milestone?"

Seongjin explained again to Owen, who looked back with wide eyes.

"Like that little gem."

"Ah, yes. Do you call that a milestone? that's right. That's the terminal. According to the explanation of the friends I saw earlier, that is the origin of Sang Sang-chang."

also.

"So Owen, you have an important goal that you must achieve, so you abandoned your home and are hanging here?"

"What? Who throws it away! Do you know how much I am holding back from wanting to go home right now? ... !"

The fox, who was screaming angrily, stopped and looked back.

"... No, but did I even tell you that?"

"huh. "You did it earlier."

Seongjin nodded and immediately closed his mouth.

Although I couldn't figure out the identity of the dream Amelia mentioned, I felt like I had a reason to stay here a little longer.

Bwak bwak bwak bwak.

After that, the two walked silently across the wide field for a while.

'Is this a mountain goat...?'

When I looked at my reflection in a passing stream, I saw fluffy fur, curled horns, and bright eyes.

It reminds me of Maemee, Schmidt's demon.

'The name is really Meeme... Probably not. I'll ask later when I get a chance.'

The things on both of his hands were also small hooves rather than fingers. It was surprising that even with such odd hands, he was able to grasp the weapon Owen gave him with ease.

"Oh, we're almost there. Can you see the small guard post over there? A place where armed guards come and go. "That's the border of the green zone."

Seongjin sighed when he found a small mushroom house that looked like something out of a fairy tale and ants walking on two feet in the direction pointed by the fox.

'Maybe the guard isn't really an ant.'

What's frustrating is that all these ugly scenes only apply to Seongjin, who has the 'Gather, friends - skin' applied.

What was even more infuriating was that while everything was normal in everyone else's eyes, only Seongjin would look as cute as a small goat!

'I'm so glad the devil bastard isn't here.'

Seongjin thought in an unusually depressed mood.

If he found out about this, he would be very excited and make fun of Seongjin for a while.

'When I enter a place called Green Zone, the first thing I need to do is ask about how to earn cash.'

Let's get out of this childish skin as soon as possible. That was when she made that decision and took one more step towards the mushroom guard post.

Wow.

Seongjin suddenly sensed something and stopped walking and called the fox ahead of him to stop.

"Hey, wait a minute. Stand there, Owen."

"huh?"

"Are you running around outside just thinking about it?"

"... what?"

The fox looks back at Seongjin with a puzzled face.

"What do you mean?"

"Or, why are there suspicious people hiding there targeting you?"

As soon as Seongjin finished speaking-

"damn! "I got caught!"

"I used a high-quality blackout item, how on earth did you notice?!"

From a small grove of grass next to the road leading to the guard post, several cute animals came rushing out.

They are all cute animals that children like, such as rabbits, raccoons, and badgers.

The only problem was that each of their cute hands covered in fine fur held a deadly weapon.

"Eight! Let's face this from the front! "He happens to be alone!"

"Is there a small sheep next to me?"

"It's probably a goat, not a sheep!" What's wrong with a guy wearing such an anachronistic infant skin? "Just ignore it!"

Quick.

At that moment, blood sprouted from Seongjin's forehead.

Of course, it might not have been visible to others because it was covered in fluffy fur.

"Now, when I say good things, please give me the change item!"

What, is it not a grudge, but simple robbery?

It was when Seongjin was fiddling with the sword in his hand, assessing their number.

"It's dangerous, so stay back, newbie."

The red fox pulled out a one-handed ax from his belt and blocked Seongjin's path with a serious expression.

"Anyway, they are from a fairly famous guild. "They probably aren't at the level to go stealing in a place like this, but it seems like there's nothing to see these days due to the job change items."

Seongjin looked around at the animals surrounding them. Even though they are decked out in flashy weapons and armor, they can hardly hide their nervousness.

On the other hand, Owen, standing alone against them all, looked quite dependable despite being a cute fox holding a small axe.

"Wouldn't it be too much for you alone? There are too many people. "It would probably be better for the two of us to deal with it together."

In response to Seongjin's question, Owen twitched his pointed snout and smiled quite convincingly.

"It's not enough to lend a hand to a newbie. Don't worry about that and think of yourself as your top priority. Didn't I tell you before? Unlike those guys, we can't guarantee our survival if we die here."

"... .."

"So, you should never come out in front of this place, and if you feel like you can't do it, run as fast as you can to the guard post."

Seongjin frowned and crossed his arms.

okay. good. The attitude of taking risks and taking care of newbies is worth praising.

But... Do you know that you do this outside, even at home? huh?

"Let's not put each other at a loss for no reason, and if possible, let's resolve it through dialogue. "What do you want from me?"

When Owen took a step forward while aiming his axe, the animals surrounding him also took a step back and hesitated. It seemed like Owen was quite afraid.

"As I said before, just give me the transfer item."

"Transfer item? Why are you looking for that from me? "The whole server was dry with seeds, and I was giving up trying to save them too?"

Then the raccoon dog in the lead stamped its feet as if it was about to die.

"Do not be ridiculous! Who knows that every time your suspicious gang goes to the yellow zone, they sweep away all the rare items on the server?"

"No, but this time I really...""

"If you don't want to give it up, we can't help it! It's a matter of life and death for the guild!"

The raccoon gave an order, lowering the helmet visor he had managed to wear on the head of the three-headed figure.

"Well, you heard that, right? It doesn't make sense! Everyone hit him!"

Wow!

With a shout, dozens of animals toddle towards Owen.

Boop boop bop boop boop boop!

They all looked so cute that they felt like their lives were in danger.

"..."

Bye!

Meanwhile, Owen's ax, swinging like lightning, hit the helmet of the leading raccoon. The guy's head split along with his helmet, and instead of blood, five-colored stars flew out in all directions.

Glitter.

At the same time, a small text window pops up in front of Seongjin's eyes.

□ Our children's friends! Don't forget to get permission from your parents before playing games. Isn't this game a little too violent for friends to enjoy?

"Hey!"

"Take it! Magic Missile!"

"Fireball!"

Along with the brilliant light, all kinds of weapons and magic effects rain down on Owen.

But red fox Owen was very skilled.

Even in the midst of the chaos, they cut off the heads of the animals one by one with an axe without being hit by even a single blind attack.

Flutter! Flutter!

Flash! Flash!

At the same time, five-colored stardust flew up here and there along with bright beams of light.

"and..."

Seongjin made a tired face.

This confusing scene is likely to remain a trauma. I meant it.

Even if I have to go into debt, I will change this guy's skin right away!

279. Yellow Zone (3)

Owen Klein.

The first prince of the Holy Empire and a young hero who saved the declining southern front from crisis.

However, despite his great expertise, he was not as well known to the world as Logan.

One day, Seongjin asked Dasha about it. When I thought that they could actually be family, I started to worry about him.

The first prince of the empire does not even show his nose in the imperial palace even though it is his birthday. What on earth is that guy doing?

"... criminal?"

"It is not a certain fact. 'It's just that there are suspicions, so everyone is reticent to talk about the 1st Prince.'"

Dasha told the story to Seongjin with a slightly embarrassed expression.

Since the time of his accession to the throne, he has already had five children, and has earned the dishonorable title of an unprecedented libertine.

When he came to visit Princess Amelia in Sigismund Territory, the gossip among the public grew even louder.

-How many illegitimate children does His Majesty have? If this continues, what will happen to the succession rights to the throne in the future?

However, things were different when Prince Owen entered the imperial palace. This is because the circumstances were very clear that he was not Seonghwang's biological son.

When Owen's mother had him, Seonghwang was in the midst of hunting down pirates with a mercenary group near Cyprus. No matter how much I researched his movements, nothing seemed to match his movements.

Above all, unlike the other princes and princesses, Owen's face did not resemble Seonghwang in the slightest.

"But you became the first prince?"

"Actually, there are some absurd interests involved."

To explain this, first, we cannot help but mention the 'sudden son' incident that occurred in the imperial palace several years ago.

One day, many years ago.

There was an incident when Ambassador Guerti of Rohan came to the imperial palace in a spirited manner, accompanied by Cardinal Gistier, who was on a mission to Rohan at the time.

Nominally, it was to expose Cardinal Gistier's incompetence, but inwardly, it was intended to humiliate the empire, which dispatched cardinals to each country and interfered in their internal affairs.

-Now, look at this criminal! This guy is the arsonist who started the big fire in Rohan. He was about to be stoned by angry citizens there. This senile cardinal took it away at will, using the power of the empire!

The ragged boy that Guerti had dragged in was completely exhausted from the hardships he had endured.

While everyone in the throne room frowned at the sight, the elderly Cardinal Gistier stepped in front of everyone.

He pointed to the bright red necklace hanging around the boy's neck.

-But no matter how you look at it, this boy has items that are similar to the Empress Dowager's keepsakes. If we do not properly investigate this first before punishment...

-similar? Not a keepsake, but similar to a keepsake? Do you think that is a reason to interfere with the legitimate enforcement of laws in other countries?

-No, look...

Before the Cardinal could say anything more, Guerti was already shouting to everyone in the audience room.

-Now, do you understand how stupid that old man is? Not knowing the laws of Rohan, that senile man finds fault with everything! Why on earth did you send someone like this to Rohan!

-But the boy hasn't even been tried yet. He said that to execute someone based solely on the charges...

Cardinal Gistier protested in an uncertain voice, but was soon drowned out by Ambassador Guerti's proud shouts.

-So you don't know anything! A mere commoner burned down a nobleman's estate! This is not a criminal caught at the scene! According to the laws of Rohan, this is undoubtedly a capital crime! It's a mortal sin that you can't even enter the courtroom unless you're a member of the imperial family or royal family!

But then, something unexpected happened.

Seonghwang, who was quietly watching the commotion in the throne room with a strange glow in his eyes, said this as soon as Ambassador Guerti finished speaking.

-okay. The royal family is right. That boy is my son.

-!?

... What on earth did you hear just now?

Everyone in the throne room could not believe their ears. The same was true for Owen, the person involved.

-I... son?

However, the Holy Emperor stood up from his throne, approached them, and continued speaking without hesitation.

-Bringing back my lost child here is the Lord's care to ensure that Cardinal Gistier's sharpness does not fade. Isn't it a waste of ability to step down from the front line due to his age?

-... ... !?!?

-Why are you so surprised? Didn't Cardinal Jistier also say that earlier? What that child has is definitely a memento of Mama Mama. Now, come over here, Owen. Did you encounter any inconveniences while coming to the imperial palace?

Seonghwang had no hesitation in calling the name of the boy he saw for the first time as if he was someone he saw every day.

As a waterfall of divine power poured down on the shabby boy, everyone slowly froze in shock as they realized the seriousness of what had just happened.

No, what are you talking about?

Are you sure it's your son?

your majesty? your majesty! Please say something!

-Oh, and Ambassador Guerti.

While everyone was shouting in panic, the Holy Emperor left the following words for the last time and quietly disappeared, intercepting the boy.

-Now that we have to hold a formal trial, it would be better to reinvestigate Rohan's arson case from the beginning.

-... ... !

Ambassador Guerti, who had come to protest, suddenly became someone who had insulted the royal family and left the imperial capital in a hurry.

The subsequent trial held in Rohan went smoothly. The testimony of several witnesses was quickly secured, and Owen's innocence was quickly proven.

Of course, some people showed suspicion that the incident was covered up by creating fake witnesses.

It has to be that way. How could someone so great dare to accuse someone of arson when the emperor of the empire declared that he was his son?

Anyway, everything happened so haphazardly.

The orphan boy brought from Rohan suddenly surpassed Logan and became the first prince of the Holy Imperial Family without even knowing why. At the same time, he received all kinds of generous treatment in the Cheongjang Labyrinth.

"... So, Owen is his father's biological son?"

"It's a matter of caution, but I guess that's not the case."

Dasha slowly shook her head.

After that incident, requests poured in from all royal and noble families on the continent to investigate the boy's identity.

And informants were able to identify the boy's biological parents relatively easily. It turned out that Owen's parents were a very famous hunter couple in the western mountain range.

-The only son in the family is tall and handsome, just like my father. Ugh. What is a great fire? If he had grown up like that, he would have learned from his parents and become the best hunter on the continent.

-Both the couple had good personalities. The son of the house was also very nice. So when they heard the news of the arson, everyone said there was no way she could have done that.

Everyone in his hometown had this recollection of Owen. There was no way that such a boy could really be a child of prosperous kings.

"Then why?"

How can Owen, who is clearly not a member of the Holy Imperial Family, become the first prince?

"Because that is what His Majesty the Holy Emperor publicly declared."

A fact that everyone doubts. Nevertheless, this is why no nobles or high-ranking priests are quick to raise objections to this.

This is because simply denying the words of God's representative is itself considered disrespect toward the Lord.

So Owen ended up staying in the Blue Rose Labyrinth for a while.

Like other children, he was provided with ample educational opportunities, but no one in particular forced him to follow the duties or etiquette of a prince.

Although he is a prince in name, I wonder if that would be okay. It may be possible if Seongjin is a prosperous emperor who has almost left Seongjin in Jinju Palace.

"And it is said that he had a close relationship with 'almost' all the princes and princesses."

Although Dasha did not mention it in detail, Seongjin was able to recognize it right away. Perhaps Mores was in the category that falls outside of that 'almost' category.

Anyway, despite all the suspicion that followed him, Owen lived a dreamy life in the imperial palace for a while.

He often hung out with Amelia and Logan, and had regular audiences with the other princes and princesses.

In particular, he said he was very fond of little Sisley, who followed him around saying, "Brother, brother."

It seemed like peaceful days would continue for a while.

Until one afternoon, during an audience, Owen said these words to the Emperor.

-father. These days, I see strange letters in the air.

-... ... ?

-At first I thought I was crazy. But now I can be sure. Those are precious letters that encourage and awaken me from my laziness.

Seonghwang furrowed his brows secretly.

What does this mean all of a sudden? I thought it was being properly regulated, but were there still people secretly putting pressure on this child?

However, Owen's face was serious as he looked directly into Seonghwang's gaze.

-Father, Soja is trying to become stronger with the power of this status window. So, unfortunately, I will have to leave my father and brothers and sisters for a while.

-Wait a minute, you're leaving? Owen. What on earth is that...

-Otherwise, you may not be able to handle what is coming. So please trust Soja and wait.

-... ... !?

By that time, the boy had become quite unsophisticated in his words and actions, and he ran away from home, leaving behind those kind words.

Following the Knights of St. Grazier, who had just formed the third missionary group at the time, they went to the southernmost tip of the continent.

And after that, Owen did not return to the Imperial Capital for several years.

* * *

Pow! Pow!

sparkle! sparkle!

The whole place was a gorgeous paradise. The stardust gathered together to create a mysterious cluster of five-colored lights, as if a fairy would pop out at any moment.

The problem is that instead of a fairy, there is a crazy fox with an ax in it.

Bah!

Owen kicked the long spear swinging over his head, and it bounced exquisitely, cutting into the jaw of the badger running from a blind spot.

"Mukek?!"

The badger let out a strange scream and covered its jaw, as if it had chewed its tongue due to the impact on its jaw.

But his ordeal did not end here. This is because Owen lunged at him, kicked his head, and rose into the air.

"Ugh... ... !"

While the badger falls to the ground, scattering stardust, Owen, who uses the recoil to jump up, twists his body around and kicks the head of the squirrel next to him. It was a very exciting kick.

Flutter!

Five-colored stars bounce up, and the already seriously injured squirrel becomes a ray of light and disappears.

"Ugh! Me, I... It hasn't been long since the death penalty ended... ... !"

A small cat next to me was crying and brandishing a great sword,
but-

Cheaeng!

Owen hit the ax blade on top of it and pulled it slightly, immediately losing its aim and stumbling forward.

"Magic Arrow!"

"Now, wait!"

And the magic that flew in during that gap hit him instead of Owen.

Puff poop!

Penetrated by numerous magic attacks in succession, the cat turns into light and melts into thin air.

'It's pretty good... ..'

At first, I was a little nervous when I saw the fox running fearlessly towards Dasu.

However, Owen was a more seasoned warrior than expected. As evidence, the number of animals is steadily decreasing.

Thanks to this, Seongjin was now able to look at the scene with peace of mind.

'I'm used to fighting. But nowhere in those movements is there any trace of the standard swordsmanship of the Imperial Knights or the Banajas technique.'

Very free and colorful movements, different from those of the knights of the ecliptic.

Fluffy!

As Owen quickly turns around, kicking the armor of the guy running from the side, the bright red pendant hidden under his clothes whizzes out.

Seongjin did not miss that split second and caught the milestone.

"... .."

As I guessed, it was my grandmother's milestone.

Seongjin didn't know how many of those milestones there were and who owned them.

But at least, there is probably not only one Delcross 'Owen' in the world who holds the precious milestone of the Oracle.

'As expected, it seems like our Owen is the right one. This bastard didn't come home and did something somewhere, so he was playing games in a place like this!'

Seongjin also had some thoughts about Owen running away from home.

If he knew that he was not the Holy Emperor's biological son, I wonder if he would have felt great pressure from the suddenly created title of First Prince of the Holy Empire.

Of course, looking at his cheerful attitude about everything now, it doesn't seem like he's the type of person to dig into the ground like that.

-The fact that you are here now means that you also have an important goal.

There was a clue as to the reason for running away from home. Didn't he say it himself earlier? He said that he had a goal that he had to achieve somehow.

-Although he has a bit of a bad personality, Sang Sang-chang is someone who helps users make the optimal choice.

And I also talked about the status window.

Seongjin was obviously worried about [Sang Sang-chang] whom Owen had mentioned. It certainly doesn't seem to mean texts from a simple normal world.

Also, your grandmother's milestone is the source?

"Wow! As expected, our guild's power is not enough!"

At that time, a rabbit that had fallen to the ground glared at Owen and shouted desperately.

Looking at the fact that he spits out five-colored stardust every time he utters a word, it appears that the injury he is currently suffering is not that minor.

At that time, the guy suddenly said with a solemn look on his face.

"I can't do it. "Let's do what we've all been preparing for!"

"what? But then we also have a death penalty... .."

"Is that a problem now? "If we keep going like this, we're all going to get hit by that guy!"

Seongjin looked closely at what they were doing. From what I heard, it looks like they've prepared some kind of last resort. What on earth are you trying to do?

"When you give the signal, they all activate at the same time!"

But when they all started searching inside my arms, I quickly changed my mind. I don't know what it is, but I have a feeling that the last resort will be activated quite quickly.

Wouldn't it be a bit difficult to watch out of curiosity and then feel helpless?

Weeeeeeee-

That was when the rabbit found something in its arms and started manipulating it.

Sigh! Paang!

Suddenly, a bright cluster of stars appeared in front of his eyes, accompanied by a small sound.

"what... .."

That was the end.

The rabbit could no longer speak and just turned into light and disappeared.

"... ..!"

The remaining guys were shocked.

A cute goat suddenly toddled over and stabbed a guild member in the back of the neck with a beginner's dagger.

"omg! be careful! "That's no ordinary sheep!"

"Hey, the sheep killed the man..." "Wow!"

But the warning did not continue. This is because his cervical spine was trampled by a baby goat.

It was one of the neat assassination methods I learned from Dasha.

Bye.

I thought there would be cute petal-shaped footprints on the back of its neck, but then they disappeared in a bright light.

"you... .."

Owen, surprised by the sudden situation, opened his eyes wide and looked at Seongjin.

Kwasik!

At that time, Seongjin, who was crushing the last remaining cervical vertebra, looked back at him and asked curiously.

"why? "If we do something wrong, we'll die?"

So, I have to kill him before he dies.

"What are you... .."

noisy.

Let's clear this place as quickly as possible and have a serious conversation with me. You runaway teenager.

280. Yellow Zone (4)

"omg! "He's a silent villain!"

"One of the silent villains has appeared in the Green Zone!"

"I heard that PEP and the glamping guild are targeting it at the same time. Are you still safe? "Where are you going to rob me now?"

As soon as I defeated the attackers and entered the green zone, I heard whispers from players who recognized Owen.

Seongjin looked back at the fox, thinking it was unexpected.

Silent villain?

How did the guy who was constantly talking all the way here get that nickname?

"It would be difficult to go into detail here. Follow me. "There is a small restaurant near here that we used as a base."

Owen, who said that, had a stiff expression on his face from before. It seems that Seongjin's handling of the attackers at the last minute was quite a shock to him.

I didn't understand it at all. Who was the most flamboyant guy, chopping off players' heads with an axe?

"say it. "What are you?"

After settling down in the corner of a quiet restaurant, the fox glared at Seongjin and asked softly.

Whoa, don't frown.

No matter how much you weigh, you are just a cute animal friend right now.

"I introduced you earlier, right? "This is Seongjin Lee."

"I'm sure you know you're not asking that."

Owen narrowed his eyes and carefully examined Seongjin from the horns of his head to the tips of his hooves.

"What on earth are you doing that allows you to kill players so easily?"

"... "Is that a problem?"

"of course. You are still a newbie. My physical abilities aren't that high and I don't have any decent equipment. So, it means that you killed them purely with your skills."

Owen's eyes deepened as he glared at Seongjin.

"And there is only one such case. "You're already a bastard who is good at killing people."

Ah, I thought I knew why Owen was on guard.

'But that would be troublesome.'

I need to be by this guy's side and get help and slowly understand his purpose, but there was no benefit in having him build a wall from the beginning.

Seongjin, who was choosing his words for a moment, suddenly noticed a cute hoof on the table instead of his hand.

hmm. cute. It must be appealing.

"What should I say? "The neighborhood I lived in was originally a bit rough."

Seongjin lowered his eyes and began to speak in a low voice.

"It was a place where your life could not be guaranteed if you let your guard down even a little. I woke up every day remembering the horror of the attack, and before I could blink, my colleague next to me would die. "There wasn't a single day where I could sleep comfortably."

After speaking up to that point, Seongjin paused for a moment and raised a small petal-like hoof towards Owen.

"Everyone there had to learn these skills to survive. I'm happy if I look like I'm skilled in your eyes. "That would be perfect proof that I survived alone until now."

"alone? "Then what about your colleagues?"

"All my colleagues who were with me died. "In the end, I was the only one who survived."

The fox's eyes shake violently at those words.

"You alone... .."

Then, his face suddenly contorted, and his expression became extremely sad.

For some reason, it felt like tears would fall if I touched it.

"... I see. I'm sorry for doubting you. "It must be a really difficult memory for you."

"... .."

"But don't worry, newbie! From now on, we will all help you!"

Seongjin was dumbfounded by the reaction.

'Hey, man. When we first met, didn't you hear me explain that I was born and raised in the Imperial Capital?'

Why are you so clueless about everything?

Is this guy a different type of guy than Logan? How could I be too anxious to put it out there?

Owen, perhaps aware of Seongjin's complicated feelings, nodded eagerly and continued speaking.

"okay. I guessed that there might be something going on. "The fact that you are here means that you were chosen by Sang Sang-chang."

"select?"

"huh. Sang Chang-chang is quite selective about the personality of the user. "So far he's seen a lot of guest ID users, but he's never seen one with a really bad personality."

I don't know if it's fortunate or unfortunate, but in any case, Owen has completely let down his guard against Seongjin.

"First, let's finish registering friends. "Would you please give me your terminal for a moment?"

After hearing that, I searched my pockets to see if anything, and sure enough, I found it. The broken milestone that I was holding while I was sleeping appears intact.

In this place where it is not clear whether it is in a dream or a game, it emits a shape and brilliance that are not at all different from reality.

"I can't believe this thing is really following me here... .."

"haha. Didn't I tell you earlier? "The terminal is the thing that allows us to be here, and it is the source of Sang Tae-chang."

Then, he clicked his tongue as he looked at Seongjin's broken milestone.

"I heard that the graphics are a bit broken for some reason. It's only natural that the terminal is like this. "Maybe this is why you don't know Sang Tae-chang very well."

"Is it okay like this?"

"Well, seeing as how the skin is put on just fine, it doesn't seem to be in an unstable state at all."

Owen responded like that and began a complex operation by placing the broken milestone against his own.

"I once went out with a guy who had a terminal with a broken corner. "Even then, except for the graphics being a bit unstable, the functionality was fine."

It is said that it was his friend's idea to solve the graphic problem by overwriting the skin at the time.

As if to prove his words that it was functional, a small window appeared in front of Seongjin's eyes after a while.

☐Qr#^^E& applied to register as a 'friend' with ☐☐☐ ☐☐. Do you want to accept it?☐

☐Accept/Reject☐

Seongjin roughly clicked the accept button and thought deeply.

I've heard many stories about this [milestone] item.

However, since it is said to function as a terminal that connects to another world, I think it can no longer be simply viewed as a [keepsake].

-The oracle's [signpost] is an object from the normal world, but it also partially has properties similar to substances from the normal world.

In the old man's workshop, Dexter said that.

Originally, something that couldn't exist within the laws of the original world came to exist in the world just fine through high-level mental abilities.

Did you say that the principle of this milestone is hidden in the source of the homunculus engine, that is, the basis of the existence of the normal world?

'If the milestone created by the Oracle can become the basis for supporting multiple dimensions... ... '

So, isn't there a law that a milestone in itself shouldn't become the foundation of a dimension?

"While you're at it, why don't you register your other friends in advance too? "You will be traveling with us often from now on."

"Yes, whatever you like."

Seongjin, who was looking at Owen holding the jewel and working hard on it, suddenly had a thought.

Come to think of it, the identity of [Sang Sang-chang], whom Owen follows, is also the same. When I hear you speak, it feels like a personality rather than just text.

'If the basis of the status window is also a milestone, then whose personality does it belong to?'

Whatever it was, it was clear that it was a very unpleasant entity whose identity was difficult to guess.

After gathering his thoughts for a moment, Seongjin came to the conclusion that it was best to make Owen no longer rely on the status window.

"Owen. "You said you had a goal to achieve, right?"

"huh? okay. "All our guest ID users are like that."

"So can you tell me what that goal is?"

Then Owen raised his head and looked at Seongjin with unreadable eyes for a moment.

The fox's face, which seemed infinitely cheerful and light, passed by an ever more serious expression.

"... It's for the family. "I have to protect them at all costs."

Owen answered like that and tightly grasped the two bright red milestones. He applied so much force that the joints in his hands turned white.

"Now they are the only ones left to me in this world. You can't lose your precious people twice. "Now I can do anything to stop it."

"... .."

"Isn't that why you are here too? It's a guest ID user. So you can fully understand how I feel. That's why I'm willing to help you, even though I'm seeing you for the first time."

Seongjin, who looked at the scene in silence for a moment, finally answered:

"Well, okay. "For now, I will help you."

From then on, Seongjin listened to Owen explain things he needed to know as a newbie for a while.

The world they are currently in is a normal world called 'Pangaea Chronicle', and most users are said to access this through a place called 'Impulse Soft'.

'Impulse Soft?'

what? It's a familiar name, like you've definitely heard it somewhere, right?

While Seongjin tilted his head, Owen continued his explanation. Most of them were related to the characteristics of guest ID users.

"Guest ID users have various disadvantages compared to regular users. A good example is that you cannot form parties with regular users or use facilities such as auction houses or high-end stores."

In the midst of that explanation, Seongjin finally learned why Owen and his friends were called 'silent villains.'

"I heard that Pangea Chronicle basically provides simultaneous interpretation between users. But that's just a story between official users."

Smooth communication also occurs when guest ID users communicate with regular players. For the convenience of players, the system supports simultaneous interpretation.

However, it was a different story among Guest ID users. If you live in a different area, you can't communicate at all.

"So you were talking with your thoughts?"

When Seongjin asked, recalling the first time he met them, Owen nodded.

"huh. Fortunately, we can send our thoughts to each other through Sang Tae-chang."

So, even though they were talking passionately with their thoughts, it seemed to others that they were keeping their mouths shut.

It might have been a little scary to see someone I didn't know.

"You mean you quietly talked like that and stole items here and there?"

"Robbing away, what kind of rude thing is that?"

"If not, why are people reacting like that?"

Isn't there a reason why these guys are called 'villains'? The same goes for the guild we raided earlier, and the reputation we heard after entering the Green Zone.

Then the fox responded, his already red face turning even redder.

"We played normally. "I did not illegally rob or steal other people's property."

"really?"

"... I just played a little harder than others. "I took over the dungeons that had good items and kept killing them."

"... .."

"Hey, don't look at me like that. We couldn't help it! Since you can't use facilities like the auction house, of course you have no choice but to risk your life on items found in the dungeon!"

It was in the meantime.

I suddenly felt drowsy, and my vision began to blink little by little.

"Oh, it looks like Sang Tae-chang has decided to send us out now. "I guess it's already morning."

"morning?"

"huh. "Now I have to go back to reality."

After responding like that, Owen waved his hand cheerfully at Seongjin.

"I had a great time meeting you. It would be nice to see you again next time I come in. This is our meeting place, so remember it. "Goodbye, newbie."

So it's not a newbie, it's Seongjin Lee, man.

* * *

Tweet, tweet.

Seongjin opened his eyes in his room at Jinju Palace, listening to the happy sound of birds that he had not heard in a long time.

"It couldn't have been a dream..."

The things I experienced after meeting Owen were so vivid, but when I realized the reality at Jinju Palace, all of those things felt distant, like a dream.

[Why are you dozing off and lying down when you wake up? Isn't that like you? Did you have a bad dream?]

In the flame crystal, the Demon King stretches and twitches as always.

Ah, yes, there is a demon lord. This is my reality.

Seongjin slowly got up, thinking like that. Then he tilted his head at his unusual physical condition.

'But why am I so dizzy?'

Perhaps it was the aftermath of a dream, but I felt tired somewhere even though I woke up from a good night's sleep.

The decline in condition was clearly visible even during training sessions.

Masain, seeing Seongjin having difficulty concentrating on meditation, asked curiously.

'Sir, where are you uncomfortable? "Isn't it possible that you still have some fatigue from the trip?"

'Ah, it's because you stayed up all night playing games, Lord Masaine.'

Seongjin, who couldn't bear to say that, grabbed the nutcracker and sighed quietly.

'Even when I was in school, I was never really into games... .. '

Okay, now I get it.

This is why everyone tells you to be careful of game addiction.

"Why am I so down today?"

But then, a familiar clear voice came from behind.

Wow.

At the same time, powerful divine power was pouring towards Seongjin, and I felt the accumulated fatigue disappear at once.

"... Sisley?"

When I turned around, the Sisley kid was looking at Seongjin and smiling.

Now, instead of a diary, he was hugging a small teddy bear, with Seo Yi-seo still on his back, full of vigilance.

"What's going on at Jinju Palace this morning?"

When I asked, a little surprised by the unexpected visit, Sisley looked at Seongjin and tilted his head.

"huh? Don't you remember, brother? "You told me to come to Jinju Palace when you have time, so that you could tell me more about our Labyu, right?"

The little ice bear also looked at Seongjin and let out an electronic sound as if singing.

[Al~la~view!]

Uh, okay.

This guy's problem still remained.

281. Impulse Soft (1)

"Anyway, it's a bit surprising. Brother Mores is curious about Brother Owen."

Sisley said that and took a swig of tea. There was a small teddy bear sitting on his lap, and a fiercely scolding Seo Yi-seo on his back.

"The two had a very bad relationship. "Because whenever we met, we snarled at each other."

'Yes, it must have been immature.'

Seongjin was now giving up his morning training and having an early refreshment with Sisley.

Thanks to the little boy, my fatigue has subsided, but it's probably the result of following Masain's advice to take a break today.

I have a little question to ask about Owen.

"Because the personality differences between the two were so severe. But don't worry, it's low. "Until now, I have never had a fight with you so serious that I couldn't get over it."

"... .."

Masain, who was listening with a worried look next to him, cautiously helps.

what. Mores' evil deeds are not new.

Unlike before, when I didn't think it was a big deal, I feel heavy because I think that all of this is my karma.

"Actually, when Brother Owen first left the imperial palace, everyone was very worried. "She thought maybe she hated everyone in the imperial palace."

Sweet.

Sisley continued, putting the teacup down on the table.

"But I guess that's not the case. "He always sends letters to ask how everyone is doing, and he never forgets to send gifts."

Sisley, who said that, slightly lifted the pink rabbit eye patch he was wearing around his neck.

"Oh, that."

Now that I think about it, I've seen something similar in Seonghwang's office.

I once thought that the design was too modern for a Delcross product.

"that's right. Your Majesty also has the same item. "I heard that it was also a gift from Brother Owen for his birthday."

"That's what Owen sent you?"

At that moment, Seongjin realized something.

'Owen, you like cute things!'

For some reason, I felt like I overly sympathized with Seongjin, who looked like a mountain goat.

Looking back now, I have a reasonable suspicion that the reason he chose the infant skin was not simply because it was cheap.

"Anyway, it's really unusual that you chose something like an eye patch as a gift."

"Maybe it's because it's something that's hard to find on the continent? Seo Yi-seo says this is something from his world."

Seo Yi-seo?

When Seongjin looks back at her, Seo Yi-seo becomes very wary and takes a step back.

"What is it? Me, I won't tell you anything! "This ominous darkness!"

... If you're going to be so scared, why do you always follow Sisley?

Anyway, this is Seo Yi-seo's world.

I'm very wary of Seongjin, and she doesn't seem to be in her right mind at all, so I haven't thought about finding out anything from her yet.

'But Seo Yi-seo is a human from the normal world. That means... .. ' just as expected. The demon king, who was examining the eye patch for a moment, made a hint.

[Lee Seong-jin, that's an item from the Gyu-sang world.]

okay. She thought so.

"Sisley, can I have a look at that for a moment?"

Seongjin asked for Sisley's understanding and accepted the eye patch.

On the outside, it looked like an ordinary eye patch, but when I borrowed the Demon King's spiritual eye, information unique to the normal world vaguely came to mind.

☐Justitia's Headdress (*Soft Rabbit Edition)☐

☐The noble hero who protects the world, in his later years, decided to cut out his own eyes to protect the laws of the world. Accordingly, the kingdom decided to honor the hero's noble determination for a long time by granting him a treasure to cover his eyes.☐

☐Effect: Poison resistance S + , status abnormality resistance S + , mental attack resistance S + ☐

☐Rating: Epic☐

□Shopping price: 3,999,000 P Cash (*This product is 'Gather, friends collaboration commemorative-limited edition'.)□

As expected, it's from the Pangea Chronicle.

The identity of this suggests quite a few things.

Items obtained from Pangea Chronicle can be brought to the original world of Delcross and function properly.

And Owen is looking for something in the Pangea Chronicle using the guest ID.

-The same applies to all Guest ID users. Because there is something I absolutely need, I am clinging to this place even if it means taking risks.

And Owen said this.

-You can't lose precious people twice. Now I can do anything to stop it.

What is Owen really worried about?

Also, what are we trying to prepare for through Pangea Chronicle?

'by the way... ... '

Regardless of the identity of the item from earlier, there was something that particularly caught Seongjin's eye.

That's 3,999,000 P Cash at the shopping mall.

'This somehow seems very expensive? Also, a limited item? This guy, you probably didn't get ripped off, right?'

Even Seongjin, who was not familiar with Pangea Chronicle's market price, was able to roughly guess it. Seeing so many 0's piled up, this eye patch was clearly not an expensive item.

It was truly absurd to think of the amount of work Owen had to do to get two of those.

'What's so important about this?'

However, after listening to Sisley's explanation, I was able to somewhat understand the purpose of this unexpected gift.

"Brother Owen may seem like he goes around without thinking, but when you get to know him, he is a very attentive and kind person. "He once told me that I had a nightmare, and he kept forgetting about it for years before sending me this."

"nightmare?"

"huh. "After writing this, my precognitive dreams and nightmares have completely disappeared."

... hmm. So you sent a mental attack resistance S + item? Does this mean that there is a reason for being rude?

While I was lost in thought with my chin resting, Sisley urged Seongjin.

"So, Brother Mores. When are you going to show me about La View? "What is La View's amazing ability?"

"Oh, that's it... .."

Seongjin answered a little hesitantly.

When we first remodeled Bingsu No. 3, we believed that we had realized all the dreams of a child's toy. I was just proud because I thought there would never be a better gift than this.

But I'm also worried about Logan and Marsain's reactions. Also, when I look at Sisley happily holding the little bear, the thought that it might be okay as it is keeps coming back to me.

[Kyu?]

Perhaps recognizing that he has become a hot topic, the ice bear opens its bright eyes and looks up at Seongjin.

There was even a small ribbon tied around the teddy bear's neck that

I had never seen before.

'... 'Is it kind of cute?'

Wouldn't it have been better to just end it with walking and talking?
Look, the little boy is really happy with just that.

But I could no longer ignore the clear gray eyes sparkling with great anticipation.

"... "This is a controller that can control Bingsu No. 3."

Seongjin opened his mouth, taking out the modified ice heart.

"If you want to show it properly, you have to go to a large place.
"Let's go out to the training ground together."

"What kind of ability do you need a large space for?"

"There is such a thing. And by the way, before we start, you'd better take off that ribbon around your neck."

"huh?"

From behind, Lord Masain glances at them with an anxious expression.

Only Sisley, who had no idea what would happen next, just blinked with a bright expression.

* * *

[egg! la! View!]

Coo!

A strong shock accompanied by a high electronic sound shook the training ground.

This is because a huge ice bear with glowing red eyes struck the floor of the gym with its vicious, thorny fist.

The weapons arranged on one side fell down, and acrid dust rose everywhere.

"Ugh!"

"W-what is that!"

The frightened resident knights gathered in the corner of the training hall and whispered. Among them, Sir Haven was so scared that he was hiding behind Sir Calmen and trembling.

After finishing the demonstration, Seongjin was worried about Sisley's condition. What if the child is too scared?

"Laview..."

But it was unfounded.

The little saint looked up at the ice bear with an expression of emotion, then walked up to the bear and hugged its thick belly.

"You were such an amazing kid! I'm sorry for not knowing anything until now! "You're so cool!"

"uh..."

This is a bit of a surprising reaction.

If I had known this would happen, I would have just made a combined robot instead of a teddy bear.

'Still, I understand one thing about Sisley's tastes.'

Meanwhile, Sisley was not the only one who showed an unexpected reaction.

Wong wong wong!

This is because Max, who was quietly sitting in the corner of the training ground, suddenly ran towards the teddy bear and started barking.

Wong wong wong wong!

-You go away! go away!

Then he looked back at Seongjin and cried sadly!

Kiyiing.

-I can do that too! I am bigger! I am stronger!

"Max... .."

This cute guy!

Seongjin comforted the whining dog by stroking its head.

"Okay, okay. You are more amazing and cute. So you don't have to transform like that. okay?"

[joy! You are the only one who thinks that guy is cute.]

However, Seongjin did not pay any attention to the demon lord's grumbles.

"Would you like a snack, Max?"

[Just let that damn mixed breed dog of mine... ..]

Anyway, I was relieved that Sisley seemed to like it. Seongjin manipulated her ice heart with a much more relaxed mind.

Pyooooong.

Shaved Ice No. 3, which showed destructive power that shocked the knights, turned into a small baby bear again and was held in Sisley's arms.

[Wow!]

"Good job, Labyu!"

The little saint smiled broadly and stroked the ice bear's head.

If anyone had not been aware of the destructive acts that the ice bear had just committed, it would have been a heart-warming sight for anyone to see.

'Hmm, it certainly feels like a reward for mistreating Dexter so much?'

Seongjin scratched his cheek shyly and thought.

It was right then.

'... Wait, Dexter?'

Seongjin shivered at the memory that suddenly came to his mind. The words she had heard in passing from Dexter suddenly popped into her mind.

-Actually, the reason I was introduced to Ionic's technology was thanks to my relationship with a game company called Impulse Soft.

Oh, wait a minute! Impulse Soft! Didn't Dexter say that back then?

Seongjin was someone who could never forget something once he heard about it. There was no way his memory was wrong.

'A game company related to Ionian technology is managing the normal world that Owen accesses?'

So, in order to get to the bottom of what Owen got caught up in, shouldn't we first find out about Impulse Soft?

While Seongjin was lost in thought, Sisley, with a very flushed face, approached him holding an ice bear.

"What did you do with all this, brother?"

"Oh yeah. "I have to give you this."

Seongjin suddenly came to his senses and handed the ice heart he was holding into the kid's hands. Like the 'Knight of Grace' controller, it was a remodeled object shaped like a small key.

"As I said before, this is the controller that can control Bingsu No. 3. "If you hold this, you can transform into Shaved Ice No. 3 whenever you want."

"Yes, I see."

After answering that, Sisley quietly looked at the ice heart in his hand. The gray eyes of a girl who was more mature than her peers sparkled with an extremely serious light.

"I've decided, brother."

Sisley, who was thinking deeply about something, eventually raised his head and spoke.

"This is Labyu's stuff from now on. "The object that controls Labyu must be in Labyu's hands."

"... what?"

Seongjin was shocked.

No, wait! Can you still say that after just seeing that guy's incredible strength?

Bingsu No. 3 is a dangerous ice golem with a weapon! Proper human control is necessary!

But before Seongjin could say anything, Sisley put the key on a ribbon and hung it around the teddy bear's neck. And I looked closely at its black, button-like eyes.

"You know, brother. "What you gave me as a gift is not just a doll, but a precious friend of mine."

Scrunch.

A small hand gently strokes the ice bear's head.

"It hasn't been long since I've been with this kid, but if you spend time together, you'll get to know her right away. "She watches me carefully and she always cares."

"... .."

That's right, it's a child care program.

Seongjin didn't know what to say, so his mouth twitched, but Sisley looked at Seongjin and smiled. It was a bright smile rarely seen by a saint who did not usually show much expression.

"So, I hope that Labyu grows when he wants to grow and dances when he wants to dance."

[Kyu.]

Then, Shaved Ice No. 3 looked at Sisley and tilted his head for a moment.

Perhaps the artificial intelligence, which is not familiar with Delcross's language system, is attempting to understand its owner's words with its limited knowledge.

Bingsu No. 3, whose eyes lit up for a moment as he processed the information, soon let out a short, soft electronic sound.

[I love you.]

hmm. All he says is, "Alabyu," so I don't know what this guy is thinking.

I guess I should have tried adding more variety to the recording.

"But Sisley. That guy's name is actually not La View, but Shavedsu No. 3... .."

"Come on, Labyu. Come train with me! Shall we play together and destroy the scarecrow in the training ground?"

... Hey, kid.

I thought it couldn't be possible, but you're deliberately ignoring the name I gave you, right? huh?

* * *

"I need to see Dexter again, Dad. "That dwarf technician in the old man's workshop."

And that afternoon.

Seongjin visited the office a month later and said so. He felt the need to find Dexter and investigate 'Impulse Soft' in detail.

"Are you saying you're going to find that workshop again? what brings you here?"

"I can't go into detail, but it is a very important matter."

Then Seonghwang put down the document he was writing and looked at Seongjin for a moment.

"It is not a place where we can go as we please. Because the owner of that small dimension is the old man. No matter how much I do, I cannot allow others to come and go without their permission."

Seonghwang said that and frowned slightly.

However, rather than meaning rejection, it would be closer to thinking about how to force the elder to get permission. At least that's how Seongjin felt.

"... "Let's talk to the old man."

Finally, as if he had decided on a policy, Seonghwang gave a concise answer to Seongjin.

And that evening, Seongjin suddenly received a call from Seonghwang.

To Seongjin, who came running to me without knowing why, he handed a small disc-like object and said indifferently:

"Now, take it. "It is the key to the Lycan Slope race."

"Tribal Key... .."

I've heard that once.

The other day, when I brought up the question of asking for Seonghwang, wasn't the old man freaked out?

"Most functions are locked now, but you will be able to enter and exit the workshop whenever you want. "It is a precious item, so you must take good care of it."

Seongjin was speechless and stared blankly at Seonghwang's face.

There's no way that old man would just give this away.

Father, what on earth have you done in half a day?

282. Impulse Soft (2)

Brindisi, the capital of Ortona.

The beautiful city, once a center of high-quality literature, was now covered with dirty tents of refugees and wandering beggars and no longer looked like its former self.

In the center of the city is the half-ruined Magenda Palace. In the past, this was also a place that boasted a size and beauty comparable to that of the Delcross Imperial Palace, but after the fall of the Sardinian dynasty that had lasted for about half a century, it was now becoming an empty ruin without an owner.

The conference room of that desolate palace.

Four nobles are now gathered around a huge table.

They were the lords of Castile, Milo, Benso, and Cavour, respectively, and they were all powerful people who could be considered Ortona's real power.

They often held strategic meetings against the Republicans here during the civil war, and occasionally held irregular meetings here even after the fall of the country.

"First of all, congratulations on your son's wedding, Count of Castile."

There really wasn't much to say about the people who met each other after a long time.

The Count of Castile brought in a daughter-in-law from a wealthy Anatolian family. Although she was pale, it was said that she brought a huge dowry that was more than just the flesh on her body. Well, stories like that.

"Everyone is talking so harshly even though they haven't even seen the new baby. "At least you're fairer than your daughters, Baron Cavour."

When the person involved, the Count of Castile, responded politely, Count Milo quietly helped him from the side.

"Baron Benso. "I don't know about anyone else, but you're not in a position to criticize anyone's beauty right now, are you?"

It was a remark that pointed out that his eldest son was even more famous under the nickname 'Gombo Alberto'.

Then Baron Benso responded with an unpleasant expression.

"No matter what, Alberto's situation is better than your sons. No family on the continent will ask your sons to marry, Count Milo. Don't you know that Giacomo Milo is wanted in Delcross? "Where on earth did you hide your criminal son?"

This time it was Count Milo's turn to get angry at him.

"What? How do I know his whereabouts? He is the one who arbitrarily borrowed the name of his family to create an upper level, and even desecrated it! "He is no longer my child!"

Baron Cavour, who could not see the overheating atmosphere, spoke as if to calm them down.

"now. Let's all stop talking nonsense and be honest. "I wouldn't have an in-law relationship with a northerner anyway, so aren't we all suffering from the problem of our children's marriage?"

As he said, the northern lords had been on high alert for several years to prevent any families from marrying each other.

These are the lords who withstood Ortona during the period of turmoil and still have comparable strength. Now is the time for everyone to be wary of combining forces through marriage.

"So let's all stop talking nonsense and now let's talk about the future. Doesn't everyone know? "We can't leave the North in chaos forever."

To Cavour's words, the Count of Castile added in a polite voice.

"yes. We need a king to rebuild the North. A central point that will bring all forces together without breaking the current balance."

"But who are you nominating?"

okay. That was the problem.

During the Ortona Civil War, Amedeo III, who tried to regain the monarchy by bringing in Brittany, had already died long ago.

And his eldest son, Crown Prince Vittorio, sat in Brittany without any concern for the country and was busy chasing after himself.

He was reputed to be so debauched that rumors spread throughout the continent that he was an outcast who could not function as a human being at all.

What about Benicio, another prince? Although his life or death has not been confirmed, wasn't Prince Benicio the main culprit that brought about the downfall of the monarchy and the leader of the republican faction?

"You can no longer expect anything from royal blood. Even if you are lucky enough to find a collateral successor and secure legitimacy, do you think he will become a proper monarch? "We are the actual rulers who have maintained order in the North so far."

Count Milo sarcastically responded to Baron Cavour's words.

"Now, your true feelings have come out. Do you want to become King of the North?"

"No, of course I'm not saying I will do that... .."

And there was an uncomfortable silence for a while.

Everyone wants the throne, but no one is willing to step forward.

This is because they know that the moment anyone takes a step toward the throne, they will be bitten viciously from all directions.

Then the Count of Castile broke his long silence and spoke.

"If there is no right answer, there is a method handed down from ancient times. "It is we who rightfully elect our king."

"Do you want to become an elector?"

"exactly. "Isn't that the most reasonable way to maintain the current balance?"

Quang!

At that time, the door to the conference room opened roughly, and an angry voice rang out.

"Don't you dare say the word 'elected'! "Just thinking about the dirty remnants of the republic makes me feel disgusted."

Jump and jump.

The giant who shouted like that proudly crossed the conference hall, waving his haphazardly cut mountain hair. It was Berseus Dashiano, a central member of the royalist faction.

"The electorate system is a long-standing tradition that has been passed down in the North since the era of the Three Elder Dragons. It has nothing to do with those damn republicans.'

But no one was willing to say those words. This is because Berseus's entire body was soaked in blood, and his spirit was quite daunting.

Sure enough, he was holding a bloody ax in one hand and several pieces of severed human hair in the other.

Tap, tap.

The fresh blood dripping from his severed neck traced a long dotted trail as he walked.

"... "What's with all that hair?"

Pressed by the force of Berseus, who was approaching at a rapid pace, the knights guarding the lords hesitantly approached their master, putting their hands on their waists.

However, paying no heed to the reactions of those around him, Berseus threw the blood-soaked heads on the table and snorted.

"under! They are thieves who attacked me without fear. Unfortunately for them, I'm not in a good mood today."

The lords blinked.

"What kind of ruthless person dared to attack the Marquis d'Arciano's coat of arms and commit such a big crime?"

"well. "I guess these guys' eyes were knotholes."

Berseus, who was snorting and murmuring like that, suddenly showed his teeth and smiled viciously.

"Or maybe there was no coat of arms on the carriage to begin with."

"... ... !"

The group was in shock.

Unless they misheard, Berseus had deliberately led the bandits to attack.

"... why?"

"You said it earlier, right? "I'm not in a good mood today."

Berseus had heard from an elder who came to check on him that the stolen race key had ended up in the hands of the Holy Emperor.

At that moment, Chimi could not control her anger, so she had already caused an uproar in her own mansion.

"And I've been feeling a bit down lately. "I just thought I needed a little exercise after eating for my health."

"... .."

Everyone looked sick of that natural answer.

"Come on, there's no time to stay like this."

Eventually, the lesser Count of Castile called attention.

"It is no different than me suggesting today's meeting. "I believe everyone has received the letter from the Merchant Union's Branch Manager Schmidt."

Everyone fell silent in a different way at those words. That's why this proposal was very surprising to them.

Taking advantage of the chaos, the Merchants' Association, which was prone to rip-offs and reluctant to invest, suddenly creates a large-scale plan to stabilize the economy of the North and seeks the cooperation of the lords?

"I have heard rumors that Director Schmidt is a workaholic. But when he came forward like this, I thought he wasn't in the mood to get things done."

"Anyway, if you follow Lee Jae's letter, you can make quite a big profit in a short period of time. The problem is that the Northeast monopolizes most of the gains."

Then Count Milo openly expressed his dissatisfaction.

"Then I cannot cooperate. "What about the Northwest?"

"Or how about going a little bigger? So that all of Ortona can benefit evenly."

"hmm... .."

These are lords who consider maintaining the balance of power and minimizing variables to be the most important.

However, Branch Manager Schmidt's proposal was too attractive to just ignore it. A proposal that might increase the stagnant power of the North and perhaps provide an opportunity to take a leap forward one step ahead of others.

In the end, instead of accepting this, the lords began to devise ways to further increase the scale of the plan so that everyone would benefit equally.

The plan that Seongjin started to create for the 'Cham Salmon Restaurant' was showing signs of snowballing before he knew it.

"joy! "You're doing such a troublesome thing to lower the price of flour that barely gets to the table?"

Berseus, who was quietly listening to this, spoke indifferently.

"You only know one thing and don't know the other, Marquis d'Arciano. While the southern magnates are feeding their soldiers well, aren't our northern soldiers all becoming like worn-out mules? "As time goes by, the difference will only get bigger."

"Then tell me to attack you as much as you want. "I will kill everyone with this axe."

However, saying that, Berseus was also a capable lord who successfully protected his territory in the chaotic north.

He looked dissatisfied for a while, but after a while, he began to look through the documents, weighing the profits and losses with a rather harsh eye.

How much time has passed like that? Seeing what he had discovered, Berseus suddenly opened his eyes and screamed.

"You shameful thief!"

"... ... ?"

Everyone looked up in puzzlement, but Berseus' eyes were already sparking.

This was because of the name of the merchant's name written in small print in the middle of the document.

-Top: Bertrand & Lee

- Top notes: Logan Kline, Maures Kline

Wow!

Berseus jumped up from the table, kicked the chair and shouted angrily.

"You who are prepared! Not only did you take away my race key, but now you are trying to take over the entire North! "Such a shameful guy!!"

"... ... ?"

"Are you going to cooperate obediently? As long as this Dashiano keeps his eyes open, your plan will never be carried out!"

His shout, filled with anger, violently shook the air of the ruined royal palace.

In the meantime, the lords who were suddenly faced with enormous anger just silently glanced at each other without understanding what was going on.

* * *

"This is the key to the Lycanslope race..."

Seongjin, who returned to Jinju Palace, looked at the palm-sized disc shining silver.

It was said that anyone designated as the representative of the tribe could use it, and indeed, even without spiritual eyes, clear menus appeared in Seongjin's eyes.

☐Voting: Locked☐

☐Race: Locked☐

☐Boundary setting: Locked☐

Of course, it's because they're all locked.

Only one small menu at the bottom was glowing faintly, as if to indicate that it was active.

[portal =

□-Workshop□

□-Locked□

□-Locked□

□-Locked□

:

However, the demon king, who was expected to shout out as usual, 'Lee Seong-jin, this is something from the normal world!', said nothing.

'Do you know what this is, devil? It is a racial key held by representatives of the Ionian race.'

The Demon King seemed puzzled by Seongjin's explanation.

[okay? hmm. On the outside, it functions just like an object from the normal world, but no matter how much I look, I can't tell.]

The Demon King, who had been contemplating the disk for a while, continued speaking.

[also. If you look closely, you can feel the flow of a huge law, just like the objects of the normal world. But no matter how you look at it, it looks like something from the real world.]

'okay?'

[huh. Where have I seen something like this again? . Oh, right! It's the same as that strange jewel you're holding! No matter how you look at it, it's confusing.]

milestone?

I heard about that from Dexter. Did he say that he has the characteristics of both the normal world and the real world?

Certainly, the [Key] is an object that governs the essence of the race. If so, it might have felt similar to a milestone created by the Oracle, the living essence of the race.

'Anyway, we'll look into this more carefully later.'

Seongjin skipped meditation and got ready for bed. To keep the milestone from getting tired, hug it and lie down on your side.

[Are you going to bed already?]

'huh.'

It would be difficult if I logged in late and missed Owen.

[If you sleep with it, you will go to a normal world called 'Pangaea Chronicle'?]

The Demon King asked Seongjin after hearing his explanation of what happened last night.

'Oh, I see.'

[For some reason, he didn't sleep-talk at all yesterday.]

Did you? For some reason, Edith had been glancing at me with her strange eyes since morning.

[I'm curious. I clearly felt that the soul was here, but how did it go to another world?]

'That's right.'

[I want to follow along too... ..]

Seongjin quietly closed his eyes while listening to the demon king muttering.

[Check the connection of the guest ID.]

And after waiting for a while, I heard a small voice.

[□□□ □□ has been confirmed. Switch to unique ID...]

Unique ID?

Without any doubts-

It's a disaster.

Suddenly, my vision became brighter, and the scene of the small restaurant where the connection had ended yesterday unfolded before my eyes.

"You're here, newbie!"

And someone called Seongjin. It was a cheerful voice that he was already used to.

"You're just in time! I was just about to enter the dungeon! After all, newbies are meant to be with us!"

Red fox Owen greeted him with a bright smile on his face.

283. Impulse Soft (3)

Seongjin felt a little confused when he saw that there were small hooves attached instead of hands.

But Owen, who knew nothing, was just cheerful.

"You go to bed pretty early! Since we connected quite slowly yesterday, I thought it might be difficult to meet today. "We were planning to enter the dungeon early today."

He muttered like that and led Seongjin to his seat with brisk steps.

Coincidentally, two people, or even animals, that I had never seen before were sitting there together. It is a plump octopus and a deer with an excessively long neck.

"..."

Looking at the circumstances, they must be the shadow friends who were with Owen yesterday. Guest ID users with Oracle terminals.

However, this time, it was in proper form thanks to the 'Gather, Friends' skin.

[But Owen. Will it be okay? Dungeons are dangerous for beginners. We still need to prepare.]

The fat octopus twitched its steamed bread-like snout and wriggled its five legs.

The movement was somehow so bizarre that I couldn't tell whether it was waving in greeting or waving.

[I think it's okay. Because we who are familiar with the game can protect him. Welcome, newbie.]

Another friend who answered politely seemed to have an excessively elongated body, even considering that he was a deer.

Are these people really human? Seongjin stares at them with strong suspicion rising again -

[But he turned out to be very cute.]

[You're wearing a pretty cute avatar, newbie.]

The two people who were looking at Seongjin sent their thoughts at the same time.

... I made this damn skin.

* * *

"Look at that. "The silent villains have gathered again!"

"Why are we going to a themed dungeon this time?"

"Why are you taking the baby? "Are they doing some sort of offering ritual?"

"no way? "Aren't you just a user who uses a skin?"

Seongjin tried his best to ignore people's whispers and stares at the back of his head.

How famous are these guys?

[You don't have to worry too much about your surroundings, Lee Seong-jin. Once you enter the dungeon, that noise will completely disappear.]

Bwak bwak bwak.

The deer walking ahead of him spoke reassuringly to Seongjin.

It was a friend who introduced himself as 'Hatasu Titi'. Of course, the friend name registered to Seongjin is the broken text '#A&d#!#'.
#A&d#!#

[As expected, TT is trustworthy, right? After all, he is the leader of our party. When I first came here and didn't know anything, I received a lot of help from TT.]

[Please call me Hatasu Titi properly, Owen.]

[Uh, why? Is it friendly and cute?]

Among the guest ID users who regularly access this site, Hatasu Titi is said to be the oldest user.

[Hatasu Titi. Why file a complaint? You also don't call my name correctly. Isn't that right?]

The fat octopus spoke a little gruffly and wriggled its legs.

[Sorry, group. But your real name is really difficult to express even in thought.]

[Yes, group. I still can't memorize your full name properly.]

[Owen! It's a matter of etiquette to say it like it is. Moreover, the abbreviations have different pronunciations!]

An octopus with a name that was roughly pronounced 'gureup-kelab-gurreup-bi-keel-leup' grumbled. As expected, the ID added as a friend is an unknown character called '!N;3$$ti0m@'.

Of course, even if the text wasn't broken, it's questionable whether that friend's real name would have been spelled correctly.

[So where are we going now?]

When Seongjin asked thoughtfully, Owen looked back and answered kindly.

[I'm going to the themed dungeon. Until now, we couldn't go in due to the number of people, but now we have newbies. The time has come to expand your horizons to new places.]

According to their explanation, unlike regular dungeons, there is an advanced dungeon called a 'theme dungeon' here.

Although it is not particularly difficult, it is a unique dungeon with several themes and various clear conditions. And the rewards were said to be better than those in regular dungeons.

The problem is that there must be 4 or more participants.

[So far, there has never been a case where up to 4 guest ID users connected at the same time. Thanks to the newbies, we are also trying this for the first time.]

Seongjin frowned slightly at Owen's explanation.

'Is this okay?'

Although it was not explained properly to them, Seongjin may not actually be a proper guest ID user.

Also, is this the first time all four of you have gathered together at the same time? This is probably the result of the terminal controlling their access having some kind of influence, but perhaps there is some serious reason behind it?

Somehow, an ominous feeling crept in.

[You don't have to worry too much, Lee Seong-jin. Considering this is your first time, we will start with difficulty level F.]

[Okay, okay. We have the power to reliably clear even A-class regular dungeons. Just in case, if you take a little risk, you can become S-class!]

[We do it first. Excessive tension is rather harmful. Relax.]

The villains seemed to have noticed Seongjin's undesirable appearance and turned around to help him one by one.

[Uh, okay.]

Seongjin nodded.

Well, since they've been around here for a long time, they'll take care of themselves.

'But... ... '

As expected, one thing remained to worry about.

Bwak bwak. Bwak bwak.

Seongjin walked away and looked back.

A sight of footprints dotted in the shape of small flower petals, stretching in a long line along his path.

'This is a baby skin?'

But is it possible to fight? How on earth are mobs implemented?

Surely they won't turn into cute animals or anything?

* * *

And Seongjin's ominous premonition was correct.

As he followed Owen and his villain friends into a strange gate-like place, a small window continued to rise from somewhere and began to obsessively block Seongjin's vision.

□ Our children's friends! Before logging in, have you checked the game's violence and gambling ratings? Let's call my parents and ask them one more time. Isn't this game too violent for friends to enjoy?

Crumble!

Kueeee!

There were several signs of something approaching, howling, but the sight of the dungeon seen through the text window was a large mosaic itself.

Fortunately, there was no incident in which the cute animal was brutally beaten. But you can't distinguish between the background and the mob like that.

Even if a mob attacks, there is no way to recognize its movements.

[I heard it's a themed dungeon. It's really interesting, isn't it? At first I thought it was just a goblin cave, but this is my first time seeing such a loud cave! There are a lot of murals that I haven't seen before?]

I can not see.

What are you so excited about, Owen?

[Mobs also feel similar to when dealing with goblins. It's just that these guys are yellow, and instead of wearing armor, they're wearing colorful feather clothes.]

Yeah, I can't see it.

But since it's a yellow goblin dressed in feathers, it might be better to not be seen.

[Gorgeous. I'm really looking forward to the reward!]

I can't see it.

Is this really the case that I can't receive the clear reward because I can't see it?

While Seongjin was frowning with gloomy expectations, the villain trio came forward triumphantly and started hunting.

Pow! Pow!

Flash! Flash!

Clusters of five-colored stars pop up here and there along with the sound of hitting something.

[Even though it's a themed dungeon, it's nothing special, right? Is it because it's F grade?]

Owen, the red fox who was cheerfully swinging a one-handed axe, shouted in a bright voice. It seemed like he usually played the role of a melee dealer at the party.

I wonder if he matches well with Owen, who moves lightly despite his height.

[That's definitely true. Also, perhaps due to my mood, I feel like my attacks work better than in regular dungeons.]

As expected, there is a faint sense of relief in the voice of Hatasu Titi, the deer. He seemed to have a serious personality, so I guess he still felt uneasy even if he was mentioned as F-level.

However, he was carrying a huge shield and a heavy mace that did not match his thin-looking body. It looks like it will fly away when the wind blows, so it looks like it was in charge of the tank in this party.

[Step back, Seongjin Lee. This is your turn to see.]

Among them, the most surprising ones were octopuses and octopuses.

It looks like a big, rolling mollusk, and moves quickly around the outskirts of the battlefield, constantly firing arrows.

He even used the suction cups on his legs to cling to the ceiling and skillfully shot arrows with his remaining leg.

I thought octopuses were just skins, but maybe they really don't have suckers?

[It's a great move, isn't it? [#232]

As Seongjin conveyed his thoughts with honest feelings, the octopus looked back with a very touched expression and twitched its cheeks.

[Memorize all the names! Seongjin Lee is kind!]

[Oh, okay, look ahead.]

[All right!]

Flash! Flash!

They said they were a party that could easily clear A-level dungeons, and it turns out they weren't just bluffing. Every time the fox, deer, and octopus run wild, a feast of colorful stars continues.

At the same time-

Tiring.

Tiring.

A notification sound rang in Seongjin's mind telling him that his level was continuously rising.

'I wonder if the avatar's physical abilities will increase a little... ..'

Thanks to this, Seongjin, who had nothing to do, stepped back and glanced at the status window floating in front of him.

□Lv. 3□

□Occupation: Unemployed (Occupation Lv.10)□

[health : ??? Strength: ??? Intelligence: ??? Horsepower: ??? luck :
??? =

The level rises quickly to 3.

However, the exact stat values are unknown. Owen explained that this is also a characteristic of guest ID users.

Later, when you reach a high level, you can clearly feel the difference in physical ability. It just seemed like the gap didn't jump as dramatically as in other games.

'So that's probably why I was able to kill the other player in the first place.'

If you're not careful, even high-level players can be killed by beginners. To this extent, wouldn't it be possible to say that she reflected reality quite faithfully?

Thanks to this, I felt like this was a realistic world rather than a game.

[clear!]

The F-class dungeon was over in an instant.

Fortunately, Seongjin was properly rewarded in the end. It was beginner armor, gnoll leather, and a small amount of cache.

'500P cash... . 'When can I save this and buy skins?'

I sighed as I thought about the prices of the skins, which were at least close to 10,000 units, but my villain friends were jumping for joy.

[I did it. It's worth coming here on purpose!]

[As expected, the reward is good!]

'... ... ?'

I thought it was really salty, but looking at the happy guys, I guess that wasn't the case.

But how far did Owen go to collect the money and send that gift in this way?

[why? Why do you look at me like that?]

When the red fox asked curiously, Seongjin silently shook his head.

I can't bear to criticize him for being a bigot to his face.

Next was the E-class dungeon.

[These guys are wearing pearls instead of armor!]

[I thought it was an ordinary fishman dungeon, but looking at its gorgeous appearance, it appears to be a tropical fish!]

[beautiful! Ranged attacks work well! I'm really looking forward to the reward!]

As expected, Seongjin, who was looking at the three friends running wild with a cluster of five-colored stars, suddenly became curious and asked.

[But none of these people use magic?]

[Ah, that is also a limitation of guest ID users.]

Owen turned his head and answered cheerfully.

[I told you before, right? We don't have access to luxury facilities. But to learn magic, you have to go to the magic tower in the city.]

[Uh, really? Is it still okay?]

[Well, it would have been nice to have a wizard in the party, but we can't hang out with regular players. We've had enough on our own so far. There may be some damage depending on the attribute, but in the end, if you hit a lot, everyone will die.]

[...]]

okay. Yes, but...

... Why do I feel so ominous?

While Seongjin was frowning, the villains who cleared the dungeon like the wind shouted with excitement.

[Rather, the attack works better than in a regular dungeon?]

[I was nervous because it was an advanced dungeon, but I guess it was just unfounded. It seems like this is just a service for users.]

[Gorgeous! The rewards are good too!]

This time, Seongjin was impressed as he received fish cakes, pearls, and a small amount of cash.

Hey, wait a minute.

'Isn't that strange? 'Why does the attack work better in an advanced dungeon?'

However, before the strangeness could be expressed, the villain friends, who had gained momentum, ended up opening the door to the D-class dungeon.

And what followed was hell.

[what? Why doesn't the attack work?]

[This is strange! It feels like close range attacks don't work at all!]

[Long range is also invalid! Gorgeous but scary!]

Seongjin, who was looking at the villains who ran away excitedly and came back in a hurry, suddenly felt the blood on his forehead.

Hey, you helpless things!

284. Impulse Soft (4)

-Pangaea Chronicle Free Bulletin Board

= = = = = = = = = = = = = = = =

Mage) Theme Dungeon) Rush! help me!

= = = = = = = = = = = = = = = =

I am a wizard who has just leveled up and completed the first job change quest.

I heard that it is expensive to get it from the previous item auction house, so I came to the themed dungeon with my party members to work hard in the dungeon.

I entered the F-class golden goblin dungeon, but strangely, the damage didn't work. Although its HP is higher than that of a regular goblin, it is still clearly below 120%. If you look at something that is displayed in white, no matter how you look at it, it is a low level mob below the same level.

But even if you hit the magic missile like crazy, your HP doesn't go down even one bit! Since I'm wearing an electric attribute Creset, I get a critical hit every 3 attacks, but my HP doesn't decrease at all and there's even no knockback! Is this a bug?

Please help me! If I die now, my experience points will be negative and all the job change quests I did will be lost!

- Don't crawl anywhere, read the strategy first!

□ Ah π π I'm in a hurry, so please don't curse and help me.

□ Hi, while you are commenting, go to the tip bulletin board and search for 'theme dungeon'. There are five pages of well-organized strategies.

□ I took a quick look at it, but there is no way to use it right now! π_π

- That's probably because Justitia's 'condition' is applied to the entire theme dungeon. If you look at the main story, there is an item called 'Conditions of a Hero'.

□ The main story in this situation... π π π π

□ The conditions for the hero are key, that is, the damage dealt by party members. Until this is proven, Justitia's protective barrier is placed on the monster and cannot be released. It means that attack is impossible at all.

□ Those conditions are far away π-π

□ At F rank, it is a short range type, at E rank it is a long range type, and at D rank it is a mental attack type such as magic or summons. Conditions like this are attached. If you deal more than 70% of the mob's HP in one attack, the barrier will be lifted, and it's just gum from then on. From C level onwards, the conditions become a bit more complicated.

- Although this may seem easy, meeting the conditions is quite tricky. The total HP of the mob is not low for the same level. It's easiest to just take the high level bus. Call a friend and wake him up.

□ I'm already in the dungeon, so please tell me how to solve it here π0π

□ Give equipment to warrior-type party members and apply buffs to all of them. Once the warrior breaks the barrier with one hit, the difficulty level becomes much lower than that of a regular dungeon.

□ But since we are in a same level party, no matter how much we buff, we don't get 70% damage?

□ Then there is no other solution as of now. Just die and go to the nearby Green Zone village. I took advantage of a friend's chance there and decided to try again.

- Notification of previous quest reset

□ Oh I'm going crazy really π π π π π π π

* * *

Theme Dungeon D Rank. Ice Banshee's Dungeon.

Unlike the banshees of regular dungeons wearing rags, this is a mysterious themed dungeon where floating air fairy-like girls emit blue light.

There is a high probability of receiving the rare item 'Scream Scroll' as a reward for clearing, and the Ice Banshee itself is popular for its cute appearance.

However, it was a story that had nothing to do with the silent villains who are currently running around under threat to their lives.

Kyaaaaa-

Kyaaaaa-

Feeling their HP slowly being lost due to the screams coming from all directions, the group ran inside with all their might.

[Is it true that we are in D class? What happened to their defense power!]

[No matter how you look at it, it's a banshee! It just looks different, but its movement and attack patterns are exactly the same as the banshee! However, the banshee is not a mob with such high defense by nature, so why do its attacks have no effect at all?]

[Gorgeous! Mysterious! But it's so scary!]

Bwak bwak bwak!

Seongjin ran after them and asked.

[Everything is fine, but why do you keep going deep into the dungeon?]

Then Hatasu Titi, who was relatively backwards because he was holding a heavy shield, shouted urgently.

[Banshee has a wider recognition range than other mobs! It is impossible to completely escape them from the narrow entrance!]

But jumping inside wasn't a good option either.

They were already running with a group of banshees dragging their tails, and their numbers were increasing exponentially.

Kyaaaaa-

Of course, Seongjin could only guess this fact as the screams from behind continued to increase.

If I tried to look back even for a moment, the text blocked my view as if it had been waiting.

□Our children's friends! Before logging in, first rate this game's violence and gambling...□

Hey, this damn text that comes at you at any time is even more violent! What on earth was the creator thinking when he created a skin like this?

[Anyway, there must be some way! Are there any well-known ways to conquer dungeons?]

Isn't this the dungeon that so many people use? There might be a well-organized strategy book.

[I've only heard of such a thing from general users.]

Owen looks back and answers.

He was struggling to speed up as he kept looking back to check if the newbie was following them properly.

[I've heard that too! There is a place where users can document and share their experiences!]

Hatasu Titi added his words and began to increase his speed in earnest, putting his shield on his back.

[But Lee Seong-jin. Even if there were such informative articles, we wouldn't be able to read them! User posts are not translated properly! We are guest ID users!]

In other words, they had been accumulating experience one by one by purely using their bodies.

Not only Owen from the Delcross dimension, but also Hatasu Titi and Gurupplabgurrp Bippullab, who said they had never experienced this type of game in their world.

How many trials and errors did they have to go through before they became accustomed to using the Pangea Chronicle system?

However, it seems that even they have not yet encountered an extreme situation where the attack is completely nullified.

'Never would have thought that I, a newbie, would be the one most familiar with this type of game...'

There were a few things I could guess about this situation.

It requires resistance to physical attacks, including close and long range attacks, or requires some special conditions from the attacker.

Considering that there is no wizard in this party, it might be a special mob that only works with magic attacks.

But I have to see something to test various possibilities.

'First of all, I need to do something with this skin!'

As Seongjin ran, he diligently looked at the menus that appeared before his eyes.

If you can wear a skin, you can also remove it, right? I think it would be better to show it as a shadow even if the graphics are a bit broken.

At least the shapes will be distinguishable.

'Isn't there a settings window somewhere? There might be one around here... ... '

It was right then.

Hissing-

Suddenly, an eerie presence is felt from behind!

Seongjin reflexively launched himself without even looking back.

Quang!

At the same time, you can see that the floor you were on just now is deeply dented by something mosaic-like.

You didn't even scream earlier. When did they follow you like this?

[Oops, it's Banshee's stealth mode! The speed of the chase will increase even further, but it's really difficult as it is!]

Hatasu Titi, who was a little behind, shouted with an anxious expression.

At that moment, Seongjin's eyes caught the sight of a strange mosaic shooting towards him.

It was hard to guess its shape as it blended in with the background, but I could tell right away that it was a banshee attack.

[damage! TT!]

Seongjin hit the floor without even realizing it, ignoring the text window blocking his view, and hurled his hoof at the mosaic.

It's soggy!

At the same time, Seongjin's hoof felt an unpleasant sensation, as if he was kicking rubber.

Although I somehow veered slightly from TT, I feel like no damage was done at all.

[What are you doing now?!]

At that time, Owen suddenly got angry and fell back a little, and before he could say anything, he lifted Seongjin's collar.

[Does the newbie have the mind to take care of someone now? His defense is quite high, but you're a newbie who can't even wear reinforced armor yet!]

[No, but Hatasu Titi...]

[I told you, right? Our guest ID user must not die here! Stay alert and take care of yourself!]

Seongjin, who was suddenly grabbed by the back of his neck by Owen's hand and was left hanging, suddenly felt a strange sense of déjà vu.

'huh? Surely something like this happened a while ago?'

No, that's not what's important right now.

Anyway, Owen no longer had to look back, so he clung to Seongjin and started running steadily.

Thanks to this, Seongjin was able to take a look at the status window with some time to spare and finally turn off the externally applied skin.

☐Background – Skin 'Gather, Friends'☐

☐On/Off☐

☐Object - Skin 'Gather together, friends'☐

☐On/Off☐

It's a disaster.

Then, the surrounding illumination suddenly decreases significantly, and the mosaic of natural colors that was obstructing the view disappears.

And finally, the background of the dungeon and the vague shadow-like figures of the banshees came into Seongjin's vision.

good!

'Leaving the environment window like this, are there any magic skills that I can use right now?'

As he carefully examined the menus and rolled his eyes, Seongjin's eyes suddenly caught sight of a high, dark ceiling with icicle-like things hanging from it.

Unlike the previous dungeons, which were humid and low caves, this dungeon was a corridor with a high ceiling. The ceiling is so high and gloomy that it feels like a graveyard under the black night sky.

But wait, isn't that pretty high?

[Hatasu Titi. Does the wide recognition range of a mob simply refer to the coordinate radius on the Earth's surface? What happens if you move away vertically?]

Then Hatasu Titi, who was following Seongjin's gaze, seemed to realize something and shouted towards the leader.

[Group! It's the ceiling!]

Surprisingly, the one currently running at the forefront of the group is the mollusk group. When the group, which was wiggling its five legs diligently, heard the cry, it quickly flipped its body and flew backwards.

[I understand well! Leave it to me!]

At that moment, two legs extended from him simultaneously wrapped around the body of the group. These are the bodies of Hatasu Titi and Owen.

'what?'

Seongjin, who had not expected this situation, is embarrassed...

Whirling!

The legs, which feel thicker than they look, lift the group with ease. Seongjin's body, which was hanging on Owen, also suddenly rose into the air.

The group jumped over and started climbing the dungeon wall on its three remaining legs. It was truly incredibly fast, no different from running on the floor!

'... ... !'

What on earth is this guy?

While Seongjin was shaking and struggling, the group reached the ceiling, wrapped its three legs around the ice icicles on the ceiling, and hung straight up.

[Very cold! It's difficult to last long!]

Aside from Seongjin, who has become a small goat, the deer carrying a heavy shield and Owen, who is quite strong, seem to have no weight whatsoever.

Kyaaa-

Kiiiiiii-

In any case, the momentary wit paid off.

The Ice Banshees, who suddenly lost their goal, released their stealth mode and began wandering around on the floor.

[Phew. Isn't this an unexpected method?]

[But it is only a temporary measure. Groups that are weak to low temperatures will not be able to survive for long.]

[Group! I work hard!]

While everyone took a moment to sigh, Seongjin diligently looked through the unfamiliar status window. Then he finally found the skill window and found two sparkling skills there.

□ Basic swordsmanship Lv. 2 =

□ Summoning Lv. 0 =

'... Summoning art?'

Wait, swordsmanship aside, when did I learn this?

285. Impulse Soft (5)

Kyaaaaa-

The echoing sounds of roaming banshees can be heard here and there.

Once the ghosts gathered here, even after losing their target, they rarely left the place and hovered below the group.

[If only I could bring the beloved disease from my world here...]

Hatasu Titi, who was wrapped around Gurub's leg with his shield, lamented.

He seemed to have a relatively calm and realistic personality, but in such a dark situation, it seems he couldn't shake off the assumption of 'what if'.

[If only the staff had been blessed with the 'Book of the Dead', ghosts like that could have been immediately sent back into chaos.]

That's not the only thing I regret.

Owen added, squirming uncomfortably.

[I don't even want a weapon. If only the main body's aura could be used properly, there might have been a breakthrough.]

The group was also very sad. He was weak against the cold, and was already trembling on his three legs that were wrapped around the ceiling.

[I also wish my body were here properly. My current body is too small! There are only five legs!]

... Wait, how many legs does your body have?

Meanwhile, Owen spoke to Seongjin with a heavy expression.

[Are you okay, newbie? I tried to help properly, but I feel ashamed because this happened from the beginning.]

Seongjin looked at him with a sullen face.

Who are you helping now when you can't even think about what to do?

men and horses. We'll see when you get home.

[By the way, newbie, what are you doing so quietly?]

[uh. I don't know if it's an attribute or attack position issue. I'm looking for some basic magic that can be used.]

Seongjin answered half-heartedly and looked around at the distracting menus.

[Basic magic?]

Yeah, that's usually the case with games.

Even before changing jobs and learning advanced skills, the basic classes are divided from the beginning. In that case, you should have learned at least one basic attack according to your class.

But Owen shook his head with a dark look on his face.

[Then it will all be in vain. Didn't I tell you earlier? To learn magic, you have to go to the Magic Tower. All former users carry swords or bows.]

[...] okay?]

Well, there is no law prohibiting even aspiring wizards from using weapons. Anyway, it's a realistic game even though it's useless.

[Besides, you're still a newbie, right? The only weapons I've heard of so far are reinforced swords for beginners, so the only skills I have are 'basic swordsmanship'?]

surely.

□ Basic swordsmanship Lv. 2 =

If you learn a skill the moment you pick up a weapon, your level will have risen a bit since you cut down the guys who were attacking at the entrance to the Green Zone.

That aside.

□ Summoning Lv. 0 =

Why do I have this skill?

[There is no magic, but there is a summoning spell.]

At those words, the three silent villains turned to Seongjin at the same time.

[huh? No way?]

[You probably saw it wrong. All skills that use MP, such as magic or summoning, can only be acquired by using advanced facilities.]

[This is probably a failed translation. Seongjin Lee's terminal is broken.]

No, but there really is.

In addition, when you briefly activate the summoning skill item, sub-menus appear as if you have been waiting for it.

□ ^#x%: Rank A-□

□ 0#%□cm@& : Rank B + □

□ !#□&!#: Rank A□

□ □ □ □: Rank E□

□ Would you like to summon?□

☐Summon / Cancel☐

'This...'

Although the text was badly broken, it gave me a strange sense of déjà vu.

Two blurry and two clear. Doesn't this composition somehow remind me of the Amulet of Nebraska?

☐List of spirits that can be summoned as summoned beasts 2/4☐

[One. ☐☐☐☐ (inactive)☐

[2. ☐☐☐ ☐☐ (inactive)☐

☐3. Hayes Martin (active)☐

[4. Red (active)☐

After gathering his thoughts for a moment, Seongjin asked Hatasu Titi.

[What is the exact way to learn summoning?]

[I heard that, like weapon skills, you can get them automatically the moment you get the soul. However, soul extraction is only possible when the skill level rises to a certain level. Therefore, beginner users must first purchase a low-level soul from the Magic Tower.]

okay? If so, it's not something you can't understand.

Obviously, the four souls, including Hayes Martin, are said to be subordinate to Seongjin. Wouldn't it be no different from owning a soul?

'Shall we sing it as a test?'

The first thing that came to mind was the Demon King.

-I want to follow along too...

But I soon changed my mind.

We do not yet know the exact mechanism for accessing this site through Oracle's terminal. But in the process of moving from the original to the normal, you summoned it without knowing what would happen to that soul?

'I don't really feel like watching it again, but I think it would be better to try it with Hayes Martin for now.'

however-

'Which one is Hayes?'

All of this damn text is broken, so there is no way to read it.

But the worries didn't last long.

'Rank E must be the demon lord.'

Because he's worthless.

Seongjin quickly chose an A-rank summoned animal, thinking that if the Demon King had found out, he would have been furious.

There was no time to worry about this or that anyway.

[Ugh, cheer up!]

Because the trembling octopus was becoming increasingly pale.

If this continued, sooner or later the group would run out of strength and fall into the middle of a swarm of banshees.

'Please show strength worthy of the A rank!'

☐Would you like to summon?☐

☐Summon / Cancel☐

Then it sparkled.

☐!#☐!#: Rank A☐

The broken text seemed to glow, but suddenly a thick fog began to spread across the dungeon floor.

Sssssss.

The black fog, which was writhing and increasing in volume just below Seongjin and his group, begins to coalesce into the shape of an elongated person, as expected.

Fortunately or unfortunately, I couldn't see the details due to the broken graphics.

Hehehehe...

The eerie crying sound was exactly the same as the one I had seen in Sigismund. There was now no doubt that the summoner was Hayes Martin.

Seongjin, who had anticipated what would happen in the future, was feeling a little discouraged, and the silent villains looked down in confusion.

[What is that? There is something below.]

[Are there other elite mobs besides banshees? It is not visible well.]

[Off! Gurgeup!]

at that time.

Woe!

A tremendous spiritual pressure rose from below. At the same time, a loud scream echoes in Seongjin's mind.

[Ooooooh! Have you finally called this humble servant! Lord of my soul!]

The spiritual pressure was so powerful that the banshees who had gathered together were immediately pushed away and screamed, as if they had been hit by a bomb.

Kyaaa!

Some of the closest ones even turned into smoke and disappeared, as if their HP had been completely drained!

Tiring!

You will hear a notification in your ear that your level has increased.

okay. For some reason, he was ranked A, so he wasn't an ordinary guy after all.

[what? Does the banshee disappear when it touches that black fog?]

[What is happening now?]

[Off!]

At that time, the cloud that was trembling and sliding from the tip of the icicle twitched its cypress resin snout and shouted.

[Gurup! The limit is now! I apologize to everyone!]

With that shout, the group fell down as one lump.

And it was in the middle of a place teeming with banshees.

Quang!

However, the banshees were no longer a threat to the party.

The black fog, or rather Haze, quickly flew to the party's side and began running wild.

[Go away! You bastards!]

Wiggle, wiggle.

Living black fog spread out in all directions, enveloping and entrancing all the attacking banshees.

Kiaaaaaaaaaaaaaaaaaaaaaaaaaaaaaaaaaaaaaa

The banshees soon turned into a puff of smoke and disappeared into vain. Considering the difficulties the group had had so far, it was an absurdly easy ending.

Kyaaaaa-

And other banshees who flocked to the empty spot also met the same end.

Tiring!

Tiring!

In return for dozens of banshees melting away at once, a beeping sound continued to ring in Seongjin's ears.

[Ha ha ha ha ha! I couldn't be happier! My master needed me after all! He has finally given this humble thing the value of existence!]

Black fog rose and danced here and there.

"... "What on earth is going on?"

Owen, who was still holding the small goat tightly, looked blankly at the scene and muttered out loud.

"Hey, let go of this."

"Oh sorry. Are you okay, newbie?"

Owen seems to have unconsciously tried to protect the newbie, who must have had the weakest defense, even as he fell.

Anyway, Seongjin managed to escape from his arms, pulled out the beginner's sword he had been saving, and headed towards the banshees.

Bwak bwak bwak.

"for a moment! Where are you going, newbie?"

[Lee Seong-jin! It's dangerous! Those attacks don't work!]

[Be careful!]

But is it because of my mood? I felt strangely confident that it would work this time.

The moment the banshees were first swept under Hayes' spiritual pressure, a strong sense of relief came over me that everything had been resolved. Usually, this type of premonition is never wrong.

And the result was as Seongjin expected.

Wow!

Wow!

With one proper diagonal slash, the charging banshee melts and disappears.

"how... .."

As the group looked at the scene in disbelief, the small mountain goat confidently stepped forward with one foot and looked back at the group.

Wow.

And then, in a voice full of unprecedented majesty, he gave short instructions.

[Everyone wake up.]

"... ..!"

[...] ... !]

The silent villains raised their weapons as if possessed.

Burbubbuk!

Wow!

And the moment they confirmed that the attack was working, they kept their mouths shut and began to demonstrate their skills in silence.

Keeping pace with the black fog that screams loudly and runs rampant.

[Worship for rest! Praise the Archbishop of Rest! Pray for all that He will bring!]

Fortunately, it seemed that not only Hayes' appearance but also his voice of resignation could not be heard by the silent villains. This may be because it is subordinate to Seongjin and is a thought that is conveyed only to Seongjin.

Along with that, Hayes' emotions also constantly flow into Seongjin.

Joy.

Only joy.

That was the only emotion that was constantly conveyed from him.

'... Oh, I really hate it.'

I could tell without looking. Hayes is probably now bursting into laughter with a terrifying expression, shedding black tears of joy.

I really didn't want to see that guy again.

* * *

Bwak bwak bwak.

[Report to me all the skills and equipment you have. The priority is to determine the exact power.]

Seongjin gave instructions as he led the way out of the dungeon entrance.

[Uh-huh.]

[I understand, Seongjin Lee.]

[understood.]

Seongjin nodded at the immediate answer and added again.

Bwak bwak bwak.

[And the dungeons I've been to so far and the battles that took place then. Also, organize all the dungeons you plan to run through and all necessary items properly and document them. okay?]

[Uh, okay.]

[Okay, Seongjin Lee.]

[understood.]

ah.

Seongjin stopped walking at that moment, looked back and emphasized.

Wow.

[Above all, from now on you are absolutely prohibited from entering the dungeon alone. From now on, just wait until I connect. okay?]

[Sure.]

[Of course, Seongjin Lee.]

[understood.]

This time, the silent villains, who had been hesitantly answering questions, put their heads together and whispered to each other in response to a sudden question.

[hey? But why are we naturally taking instructions from newbies?]

[Because he is a real leader now. Seongjin Lee's instructions all make sense. Besides, I don't know how he did it, but isn't it all thanks to him that we survived this time?]

[Lee Seong-jin, scary but kind!]

However, it was just as we were about to leave the dungeon entrance and head towards the green zone. Suddenly, dozens of users appeared from all directions.

They stood completely blocking the road leading to the village, surrounded the group, and shouted in solemn voices.

"I was waiting! "Hurry up and give me the change item!"

Seongjin blinked at the somewhat familiar voice.

When I left the dungeon, I had already activated the external environment and object skins again. Thanks to this, users were seen as cute animal friends.

But the raccoon dog standing in the lead somehow looks familiar.

"Is it you guys again? "Why do you keep doing this when you say I don't have it?"

Owen stepped forward and asked with a puzzled look on his face.

Ah, indeed. It looks like they are the ones who attacked Seongjin and Owen earlier.

But it seems like the number has more than doubled since then?

"Wait a minute, there are three silent villains together?"

"The amount of murder from before is also there. "Is it okay?"

"Don't worry, this time we're with PEP! "It's not just our guild."

As expected, some familiar animals are whispering among themselves as if they are anxious.

[Do you guys have any job change items?]

In response to Seongjin's question, the silent villains shook their heads.

[no. I'm so frustrated that we can't find it either.]

[It looks like the entire server has run out. There's no way we could have something that can't be found at the auction house.]

[I wish I had it!]

Seongjin nodded and opened his mouth towards the raccoon.

"We don't have any. "I don't know where I heard this information, but it would be better to look elsewhere."

Then the raccoon shouted with vigor.

"Don't be ridiculous! If you who spend the most time in dungeons don't have it, then who on this server has it? Or open the entire item window and unlock what you have! Then I'll just trust you!"

what? Now, they are acting like this just out of spite?

"... "It seemed like I didn't have much connection time left, so I tried to get through it as best as possible."

When Seongjin, who was very angry, smiled viciously, the animals started to tremble.

That's right, the little goat just raised the corner of its mouth, and suddenly it felt like the temperature around it had dropped significantly.

Moreover, perhaps due to my mood, I felt like an ominous black fog was rising around the mountain goat...

"What are you..."

But the raccoon could no longer speak.

Bye!

This is because the mountain goat, which flew up like lightning, violently slashed at the guy's forehead.

A small petal-shaped footprint is left on the raccoon's forehead.

"Huh!?"

Phew!

Next is a beginner's sword that sticks straight into the blade!

As a result, the raccoon that lost all of its HP turned into a wisp of smoke and dissolved into thin air.

"Um, what is that guy?"

While the animals hesitated, embarrassed by the sudden attack, a mountain goat covered in black fog looked left and right and smiled.

"Now, shall we finish quickly?"

And what followed was a hell of a feast.

"Aaaah!"

"crazy! "Demon-possessed sheep attack people!"

"log out! log out!"

Flash! Flash!

In the middle of a dark road covered in black fog.

Like stars lighting up the night sky, clusters of five-colored stars twinkled brilliantly here and there.

286. Impulse Soft (6)

-Pangaea Chronicle Free Bulletin Board

= = = = = = = = = = = = =

I just witnessed a demon summoning!

= = = = = = = = = = = = =

-You guys are silent villains, right? They don't dye their equipment or use advanced enhancements, but they're strangely strong. There was no ID displayed above their heads, so everyone was confused at first whether they were users or NPCs.

Today, for some reason, they appeared in the themed dungeon. He entered the dungeon with a small sheep. At first, I thought it was just a user using a skin. I thought there was one more strange guy.

But what did these guys do in the dungeon? It turns out later that the sheep is possessed by a devil! The same goes for the black magic energy flowing through the body.

Above all, those bloody eyes definitely did not belong to a sane guy. Just looking at it made me feel alive and full of life, and my whole body felt numb.

(Attached is a blurry photo of the back of a small animal from a distance. Because it is surrounded by black smoke and is out of focus, the exact shape of the animal cannot be confirmed.)

But that's not the end.

Well, that demon-possessed sheep completely destroyed two guilds on the spot without using any special skills!

Apparently, that amount was not an ordinary user. Unless it's the AI of a major NPC or high-rank summon, there's no way an average person could fly so calculatedly against a large number of people.

What on earth is it?

So, I discussed it with the party members, and I guess it looks like the demon that appears in Fanc's initial background description, doesn't it? Why, so far there have been countless stories about a Heavenly Demon War taking place in the main story, right?

(A photo of a petal-shaped indentation on one user's forehead is attached.)

There is also further evidence that he is the devil. Look at the stigma he left on users. Doesn't this somehow look like one of those 'Devil's Runes' sealed in the basement of the Great Library? Everyone probably passed it by during the main quest, but I strangely remembered this unique shape.

So the conclusion is that this demon summoning incident is an update of Impulse Soft's submarine with the Battle of Heavenly Demon in mind.

If you have any differing opinions or know any other information, please share.

-Summoning the devil haha If you're going to make a main character, you should at least use photoshop properly. It's out of focus so you can't see anything, right?

☐ One person who was there. To be exact, it was not a sheep but a mountain goat.

☐ PEP and glamping were hit. They're not a very weak guild.

☐ Haha, this is how Suzaku is becoming true again.

☐ Byeongmeokgeum.

- But the devil appears in the background explanation of Fanc? Why don't I remember?

□ Because everyone skips it.

□ Well? After reading this article, I looked up the initial video, and it really seemed like a simple background explanation that passed by in a moment, didn't it? Nothing in particular has come out since then. Is it just a piece of cake?

- Could this be a new skill? If silent villains are users, doesn't that mean other users can do that too? Are there any updates to summoner skills?

□ It's the same even if they are NPCs. The fact that a new demon has appeared in Fanc1 is proof that a submarine patch for the Heavenly Demon War is in progress.

- I think I saw something similar to that among the summoning skills. That sheep was a summoning accident, probably a high-rank summoned beast.

└ ○ ○ Just looking at it, it looks like the user using the skin is summoning a beast.

□ This is a summoner passing by. If you change jobs, you can have summons descend on you, but the only temporary stat improvement or buff effect is limited.

□ So it's possible?

□ That kind of movement is impossible. Summons do not move on behalf of the user. Rather than consuming summoned animals for buffs, it is better to just summon them and fight together. Not many people use it because it is not effective.

- If you have time to patch the submarine, tell me how to improve the item drop rate! What should I do with the former item? π π □ Haha, I agree. This job change will change the landscape of server rankings. The one who gets the heart of ice first will be crowned the new king of Pangea.

□ Oh, what a king and all, Impulse God, please give me a patch with the ice heart quantity π π

* * *

Tweet.

As usual, Seongjin blinked his eyes blankly while listening to the cheerful birdsong.

'What am I doing?'

Along with fatigue, a strong sense of skepticism came over me.

'I can't believe I stayed up all night playing games at this age...''

No, games are also games.

Above all, the biggest problem was that it was doubtful whether this digging would be helpful in the end. Could playing games together be the solution to ending Owen's long run away from home?

[Have you been to that normal world again? Pangea Chronicle?]

As I lay down and turned over my soggy body, the Demon King smiled and asked.

'uh.'

[I see.]

Even though my body was sleeping, the aftereffects of my mind remaining awake all night were significant. I feel like I haven't recovered from my fatigue at all.

How on earth has Owen maintained this lifestyle for so long?

[Ah, I think it will be fun. I want to go there too...]

In response to the immature Demon King's hesitation, Seongjin stood up without any response.

Then, suddenly, the silver disk that had been left on the side table last night caught my eye.

Lycan Slope's racial key.

'It's important to crack down on Owen's nonsense, but apart from that, we also need to find out about the relationship between Impulse Soft and Pangea Chronicle. And we have to find a way to get Owen out of there once and for all.'

However, contrary to his intention to visit the workshop right away, Seongjin did not have much time. Because he had a prestigious official position as 'Monster Task Force Advisor'.

Now it was time to officially show up at the task force office.

'Not long ago, I could focus on training all day without doing anything.'

Those days, which had only lasted a few months, now felt like days of the distant past.

Feeling a sense of nostalgia that is difficult to explain, Seongjin started the morning with meditation as usual.

"It's been a while since I've seen you, sir. "I heard you were a little unwell at Sigismund Territory. Are you feeling okay now?"

Chi-ik!

Visiting the administration annex for the first time in several months.

Seongjin, who was caught off guard for a moment by a strange emotion, was met with Jibril's enthusiastic welcome as soon as he opened the door to the task force office.

"... .."

This is true. I can't be angry when he does things like that while worrying.

Seongjin, who was defenselessly covered in perfume, frowned for a moment and then asked Jibril.

"... "The scent has changed a bit?"

From a strong scent that stings your nose to a slightly softer and stronger scent.

Then Rep. Jibril smiled brightly and answered.

"Do you by any chance remember the latest paper I mentioned before? "The paper states that the scent of bulbous plants has the same effect as the scent of roses on fever."

"Ah, yes."

Both would be ineffective.

"So, to save money if possible, I changed to a slightly cheaper freesia scent."

Jibril remembered that rose scent was quite expensive to buy in bulk.

"budget? What budget?"

"The perfume bill. "The cost of perfume used by the Lyora Plague Society is falling into the official budget of the administration every year."

"what?"

It was a sobering sound.

"this... ... !"

Get rid of those useless Lyora quacks now!

Seongjin could barely swallow the bitter words that were about to come out of his throat.

It turns out that these perfume terrorists were eating up the empire's treasury?!

"Why are you doing this, sir?"

Rep. Jibril blinked his innocent eyes at Seongjin, whose complexion suddenly worsened.

"... "No, it's nothing."

Seongjin smiled roughly at Jibril and then touched his forehead to compose his expression.

Of course, deep down, I was grinding my teeth.

'Just make sure that Bertran & Lee's sales get on track. I'll take care of this damn Lyora Plague Society first!'

Anyway, there was no other way now. Right now, there are so many things that have been done, including Owen's work.

"First, there are the charges of collusion between the Milo Association and the Dark Church, and the alleged satanic worship of Giacomo Milo, the owner of the Association."

In fact, sitting together in the office for the first time in a long time, the task force members had time to summarize the achievements so far.

"Giacomo Milo is still wanted. I'm doing my best to search for him, but I can't even see where he's hiding."

"He must have gone into hiding in the Penitent Church."

Sir Valerie nodded to Seongjin's answer.

"That's what the Heresy Tribunal thinks. However, it would be quite difficult to properly search for the dark church hiding underground."

Aside from the failure of Giacomo Milo himself, preparations for the trial went relatively smoothly.

The search and seizure of Milo's merchants took place in an instant, and assets to be deposited in the national treasury were being piled up, along with blatant evidence of tax evasion.

In addition, the testimony of the remnants of the Penitent Church, and the circumstances under which the Demon Lord was summoned.

For that alone, Giacomo Milo is already worthy of receiving the highest punishment of the empire based on Holy Law.

'However, the circumstances by which Giacomo distributed Loferum eggs are still unknown. In order to know the connection between the Gray Plague and the Church of Penitence, the only way to find out is to find him.'

If it were possible, it would have been better to arrest the Margrave Sigismund, who knows not where he might go, and investigate.

However, in order to attract great nobles from the border, the link between him and the Milo upper class was extremely weak.

Although I have searched his library several times, Hendrik Sigismund, who is thorough, has left no evidence linking himself to the Dark Church.

For now, we have no choice but to be satisfied with at least blocking the distribution of medicinal tea. Seongjin concluded this by tapping her armrest.

"Anyway, for now, I can only place my faint hope on Belinda. Yes, it is said that he is the bishop who manages the southern branch of Ortona. "I feel like I have some clue as to Giacomo Milo's whereabouts."

The red-haired Inquisitor who had said so much added with a slightly moved expression.

"But anyway, she's really amazing. Even though the Penitent Church is accustomed to asceticism, Belinda's patience has an unusual edge. "It is truly a quality befitting a faithful servant of the Lord."

For an Inquisitor who doesn't understand anything about heresy, his attitude is quite favorable.

Seongjin looked closely at the face of Sir Valerie, who looked somewhat unfamiliar.

"You are a faithful servant of the Lord. She's a sinner who abandoned the Lord, right? "Is it okay for a paladin of the Heresy Tribunal to make such a statement?"

"haha. Why not? Heresy is just heresy, nothing changes. But if you think about it, she too is just a poor lamb of the Lord who has gone astray in her ways. "Then wouldn't we be able to show human respect for their consistent perseverance?"

When Seongjin frowned without answering, Valerie curled her mouth.

"I find it interesting to say this to you. But I've always been like that. Even if you are someone who has committed an irreversible sin, sometimes you become helplessly fascinated when you discover a human side there. So, I've been paying a lot of attention to Belinda lately."

"... .."

"So, if possible, I hope that Belinda will obediently cooperate with the investigation, quickly repent of her sins, and be completely embraced by the Lord."

Valerie, who had said that much, added something even more crazy.

"So, I don't know what the problem is. Why is she never touched when our Inquisition is inflicting the same suffering? [Repentance] Is there something special about the suffering of the religious order?"

... You, man, say that now.

Seongjin, who was dumbfounded, asked Valerie a question that suddenly occurred to him.

"Then, if Belinda repents and is influenced, can she be safely released from prison?"

Then Valerie looked away and faced Seongjin.

"No way? That's not it. Just stop restoring your body to torture. And we begin the process of punishment to atone for the sins we have committed so far."

Even if they repent after a long time, almost all the prisoners die during the punishment process.

It has to be that way. In the past, they were alive because they were occasionally showered with divine power to help them endure the torture. There is no way that prisoners who are already in good shape can endure such severe punishment.

"If you're going to kill me anyway, why are you trying to influence me? "Can't I just kill myself cleanly?"

"As you know, isn't death the complete end of humanity? Even if the real body dies, the repentant soul will be embraced by the Lord. "Her soul will be happy forever in paradise."

Hey, you crazy religious person!

When Seongjin finally got fed up, the demon king who had been keeping his mouth shut muttered in his head.

[How crazy does a person have to be to hear that this crazy guy is crazy?]

287. Impulse Soft (7)

After a busy morning, it was finally time for lunch.

Seongjin, who was trying to use the [Key] for a moment, ran into an unexpected difficulty. Because his brothers and sisters gathered at Jinju Palace and waited for him, as if it was natural.

"You come here and have lunch every day?"

Seongjin became very embarrassed.

There is no owner, so why?

"Yes, before you came back, Logan, Sisley, and the saint were together. "Today is the first time the twins arrived."

Behind Amelia who said that, Herna and Kadesh, dressed in similar clothes as always, peeked out. Hands wearing ice bracelets are held tightly together.

"There is a widespread rumor that the chef at Jinju Palace is very skilled."

"I just need to put two more dishes, right? "Don't be too harsh."

No, I have no particular reason to treat you poorly.

Seongjin nods his head hesitantly, and the twins who are looking up at him immediately smile with sinister faces.

"So, Mores. "Do you have time after dinner?"

"Would you like to play chess together after dinner, Mores?"

"... .."

Make a lot of noise, you devils!

I think I just found a reason to treat you all poorly.

Quickly.

Meanwhile, exquisite dishes were being served one after another, and the Jinju Palace restaurant instantly turned into a banquet hall.

Unlike before, the number of employees at Jinju Palace, which had increased significantly, began to serve the meal without the slightest agitation, as if they had all adapted to this atmosphere.

Soon, the children of the Seonghwang family sat down as if they were used to it. Even Lord Masain, who was with Seongjin, suddenly joined in on the meal!

'... 'How did this happen?'

Where have the quiet and peaceful days of Jinju Palace gone?

The only one who couldn't adapt was Seongjin. Even the demon lord was jumping with joy in his head.

[Lee Seong-jin! excuse me! There's lemon pie over there! Wouldn't it be okay to eat dessert first before the meal? huh? huh?]

Now that I think about it, it seems like lemon pie was on the list of foods that the demon king came up with a while back.

'Er, I don't know. 'How about eating rice anywhere?'

When Seongjin finally gave up on the idea and sat down, a generous lunch for everyone began.

So soft.

Rich food and rich air flowed from all directions.

"that... Mr. Cadmus says the atmosphere here is so itchy and he hates it."

What was most surprising was the attitude of Seo Yi-seo, who came with Sisley.

Isn't she, who is clutching the little saint's collar tightly, expressing her gratitude to the saint with a rare, softened face?

Although his eyes are still full of caution, what is clearly visible on the other side is a hint of gratitude.

"Thank you for helping me protect my food, Black Man 2. "This is sincere."

"rice... ... ?"

"I heard you have the potential to be a great Mercedes Benz male protagonist, but you're better off than I thought."

... What on earth is this woman talking about?

While Seongjin was dumbfounded, Seo Yi-seo took a seat next to Sisley with a refreshing expression as if it was a given. She then sat down and started frantically eating the food on her table.

I thought he looked a little chubbier than before, and indeed, his increased appetite was scary.

"This scene feels like a dream again."

As Seongjin silently tasted each and every dish chosen by the Demon King, Amelia, who was sitting next to him, smiled softly and said,

She had dark circles similar to those of Seongjin, and she had forgotten to eat and was completely entranced by the sight before her eyes.

"You look so tired. sister."

"It's a bit like that. "I haven't been able to sleep well at all for the past two days."

"..."

I had a guess. He probably fell asleep holding a milestone like Seongjin did.

I didn't meet her in the Pangea Chronicle, but if Seongjin's thoughts are correct, Amelia must have been dreaming all night long.

"Have you seen your old dream again?"

Amelia blinked for a moment at Seongjin's question, but then smiled as if she was melting.

"Yes, Mores. I had a dream of being the most loved little girl in this world. Every place he went was interesting to her, and everything she saw in his eyes was simply beautiful. "I don't know how she managed to forget them all this time."

Seongjin, who felt a sad emotion lingering in her happy voice, listened to her in silence for a moment.

"So when I woke up and realized that none of that was real, I felt very sad and missed that lost world."

Amelia spoke hazily, as if she was still in a dream, but her clear gray eyes looking back at Seongjin were looking straight at reality.

"But Mores, I think I somehow understand now. Look, doesn't it look like heaven? "Maybe I went through those difficult times to see this scene today."

"... .."

"She was right when she said I would be happier in the end."

Seongjin did not ask any more questions about 'her' whose identity he could not even guess.

The same goes for Amelia. For some reason, both of them were implicitly avoiding mentioning the woman wearing the black veil in detail.

And both of them implicitly realized that the other person knew that fact.

"I heard that this jewel is called a milestone, sister."

Seongjin just thought that he had to tell Amelia at least this one thing.

"milestone?"

"Yes, it must be a keepsake left by my grandmother. "The person who knows most about this is probably your father, so when you have time, why don't you talk to him a little bit?"

Then, Amelia, who was looking at Seongjin as if she had heard something unexpected, immediately smiled shyly.

"Yes, you are right. Because the world in that dream belonged solely to me and my father, His Majesty. "Who else would I share this with if not you?"

And with that, the two people turned their heads side by side and looked at the scenery in front of them, as if they had made a promise.

The noisy scene of Sisley and Logan chatting affectionately, and the twins clinging to Masain annoying him.

* * *

"Craft practice?"

The luncheon lasted longer than expected, but surprisingly, it didn't end there.

As if it were natural, we gathered in the living room to drink tea after the meal, and the brothers and sisters placed the handicraft items they had prepared on the table.

'... 'What on earth are we going to do with this?'

While Seongjin was making a bewildered face, an impressive maid standing behind Amelia stepped forward and said.

"I am Mirabelle, the princess's personal maid. "It is the honor of a lifetime to be able to show off my humble talent to all of you from this thriving family."

Uh, yes.

And thanks to her help, the children grabbed the needle and thread and struggled together as if they had made a promise. Even Lord Masain unexpectedly joined us!

"I promised to make a cone suitable for you."

"I said I would decorate you with a nice bag and flowers."

Even the twins, who seemed to have no interest in anything other than chess, were busy embroidering with unfamiliar needles.

Then Seongjin learned something unexpected. Sir Masaine's dexterity is quite outstanding!

He carefully observed Mirabelle's explanations and demonstrations, and soon, after some trial and error, he was able to embroider skillfully.

Masain, who had several white flower petals embroidered on such a small cone, asked Mirabelle with a proud face.

"Is this okay?"

"Oh my, what a pretty cone! The position and spacing of the embroidery blends harmoniously with the color of the fabric. "It would suit you very well!"

So, what is this 'inspiration' that everyone was talking about earlier?

No matter what the old man wants to wear, he will use it. Why did you guys take the trouble to make a cone that suits him?

Meanwhile, there was another person who was more serious about embroidery than Masain.

Ugh.

A light silver-blue aura created by Logan.

The sword master's concentration, heightened to the extreme, shakes the air in the living room and gathers at the embroidery teacher's fingertips.

"... "Cut it into small pieces."

Mirabelle's skillful hand, the angle of the needle piercing the fabric, and the constant strength of pulling the thread, without the slightest mistake.

Flash!

Logan's eyes gave off a fierce blue glow.

"Chop it into small pieces again. "I break down the gap between each stitch."

"..."

I was dumbfounded when I just looked at it.

Hey man, are you really going to take embroidery that seriously?

Anyway, thanks to Logan's superhuman abilities, he was eventually able to complete the small leaves that were embroidered quite evenly.

He smiled brightly, a rare expression on his face.

"good! "I will soon be able to bring my old man from church!"

... Uh, okay.

I don't know what it is, but I'm happy for you.

Seongjin, who had such a busy afternoon, was only able to have some alone time after skipping the afternoon training.

'I'm tired...'

Seongjin thought so as he lay down in bed early.

This fatigue is not just the aftereffects of two nights of gaming.

Seongjin, who was an only child even on Earth, was not used to the hustle and bustle of his family.

-Look, doesn't it look like heaven? Perhaps I went through those difficult times to see this scene today.

Amelia said so.

Seongjin blinked for a moment, remembering the dinner party from earlier, and suddenly burst into laughter.

No, is that possible, sister?

If heaven really exists, I can guarantee that it won't be such a crazy sight.

[Where are we going again this time?]

As Seongjin took a comfortable position holding the silver disk, the Demon King noticed something and asked.

'I told you this before, right? There is a place called Elderly Workshop. This is the species key that will take you there.'

[Um, yeah.]

Then the demon lord responded sullenly, rolling around in the flame crystal and muttering.

[Tch, I want to go too. I think it would be fun. I want to follow Seongjin Lee... ..]

Um, really? Seongjin pondered for a moment, remembering the existence of the soul stone.

The soul stone, an object from the normal world, followed Seongjin to the elder's space. So what about the soul contained in the soul stone?

'If you use the Amulet of Nebraska to place the demon king's soul into the soul stone.'

Couldn't the demon lord follow wherever Seongjin goes? Maybe even the Pangea Chronicle.

But he soon shook his head.

Do you know what kind of mechanism this is and test it carelessly?

It's different from Hayes, who is ranked A. If you use it carelessly, the soul of the insignificant demon lord may disappear without a trace.

[Ah, I want to go...]

Seongjin quickly manipulated the key, leaving the whining Demon King behind.

[portal =

☐-Workshop☐

☐-Locked☐

☐-Locked☐

.

.

Let's select the only active workshop -

Hwiik-

My consciousness suddenly became blurred, along with the feeling I had once had of my soul leaving my body and floating away. Then, in the blink of an eye, Seongjin's vision changed.

Hehehehehehehe-

Beep beep beep beep-

Machine sounds coming from all over the place.

When I came to my senses, Seongjin was already standing in the middle of the old man's workshop.

'It's the portal of the key, doesn't it? It moves in a very strange way?'

The Dexter I was looking for happened to be in the workshop.

"You, you..." ... !"

While wearing goggles and engrossed in something, he was startled when he spotted Seongjin suddenly appearing in the middle of the workshop.

Then, in a hurry, he covered the half signpost that was lying on the desk with his body.

what? What's that reaction?

"Hello, Dexter."

As he waved his hand and greeted him, the dwarf engineer glared at Seongjin and shouted desperately.

"I knew it would be like this! "Ever since you were so vicious in extorting people, I never believed you would pass the milestone so easily!"

"No, I...""

"But I never thought they would come to steal it already! Do you understand? "No matter how much you are the son of the Delcross Guardian, you can never easily hand over this milestone, you impostor!"

"..."

Hey, wait a minute.

Didn't we eat friends back then?

What on earth do you think of me?

288. Impulse Soft (8)

"This might be an interesting story for you too, Dexter. "It's a story about one of the infinite possibilities of this milestone."

"... .."

"Well, don't be surprised! By using this signpost, you can access the normal world called Pangea Chronicle. "It's a unique world, almost like an online game."

"... .."

"I heard that general users who are not Guest ID users access a service called Impulse Soft. "It feels like a game company, but I don't know how they provide the normal world like a game."

"... .."

"But Dexter, I just remembered that you once said that you had a connection with Impulse Soft."

"... .."

"... .."

Seongjin, who was worse than he was, shouted at Dexter, who was slowly retreating while holding the milestone every time he uttered a word.

"Oh, don't be on your guard! "I won't take that away!"

Then Dexter, who was hesitantly looking at Seongjin, said.

"But it's a keepsake, didn't you ask for it to be returned someday? It was just a temporary measure. "I thought they would cover up the atmosphere of the time when the source editor was broken with a milestone and then tell them to re-release it at some point if it was forgettable."

Seongjin was hot.

To tell the truth, I wanted to get the remaining half back from him and check whether the Pangea Chronicle's graphics were okay.

It's still a long way to go to collect the cache, and going through the dungeon with my current skin is frustratingly obstructing my vision.

But no matter how much I thought about it, reassuring Dexter and getting information came first right now.

'For the time being, we have no choice but to rely on that damn shiny infant skin...'

When he looked at the half-signpost in the dwarf engineer's hand with wistful eyes, Dexter, who noticed it, freaked out and blocked Seongjin's gaze with his whole body.

"also! You can't hide those greedy eyes! "It was all with a plan, you swindler!"

no! They won't take it away! Who says you're a fraud?

In the end, Seongjin couldn't bear it anymore and proposed it to Dexter.

"good. "If you don't believe me, then sign a formal contract with me."

I need to access the Pangea Chronicle before it's too late, but the conversation won't proceed at all like this.

"I will lease the milestone to you for a certain period of time. "For now, the lease period will be two years, and we will extend it depending on the situation."

"..."

"I promise you this on your honor. "I will definitely keep what I signed."

Although I don't know the details, it appears that Dexter is indebted to the old man's workshop. Also, he has a stiff head even in front of the emperor, and the only person he obediently follows is the elder.

So the elder's honor must mean quite a lot to this dwarf engineer.

'Of course, it's a useless honor to me.'

While Seongjin was thinking such irresponsible thoughts, Dexter played with his goggles, thought for a moment and asked.

"... "What are the conditions for those two years?"

"Nothing special. Just share with me what you know about Impulse Soft. And I will help you uncover the identity of the Pangea Chronicle. "That's about it."

Even if I made a gift and splurged on it earlier, I would already have more than enough to pay the rent.

When Seongjin opened his eyes wide and looked at him with the light of truth, Dexter, who was somewhat startled, turned his head and quietly averted his gaze.

"that... "Are they going to write a proper contract?"

Ah, this guy really! Have you been deceived by the world?

Impulse Soft.

As Seongjin guessed, it was the name of a game company. It is also a fairly prosperous company in the original world where Dexter lives.

A popular game that the company has been servicing for several years has been [Pangaea Chronicle].

"My mother probably knows a lot about the Pangea Chronicle. She's the head of the engineering team. "I was left out of the engine development phase, and I believe Pangea Chronicle began service after that."

Dexter's mother, Matilda Lorretz.

She was said to be one of Impulse Soft's core developers and senior executives. It was a fate that led to Dexter also joining the company after graduating from graduate school early.

Recognized as having outstanding talent since his school days, he was fortunate enough to be part of the engine development team that was being conducted in secret at the time.

It was an engine with an innovative concept that had never been seen before, the [Homunculus Engine].

"As you already know, the essence of the Homunculus Engine is Ionian technology. In the first place, there was nothing special about what the Impulse Soft Engine development team did. "Rather than creating something new, it was closer to porting the Ionian Homunculus engine to a computer."

The development team began work in a closed space, and all work was kept strictly confidential.

Meanwhile, Dexter learned of the existence of another original world and met several Ionian engineers who were part of the development team.

It was during those times that my relationship with the elders was created.

"There was an Ionian engineer left?"

Wasn't that place already completely destroyed? Are you saying there is no engineer left who can properly repair [Homunculus Engine Editor]?

Then Dexter pulled his beard and answered bluntly.

"It was only a few years ago that Ionia was completely destroyed. And it has been consistently showing signs of collapse ever since. "The Ionian engineers on the development team worked with an Earth company to safely evacuate the inhabitants from disaster."

Fortunately, the Ionian engineers who completed the transplant in time took their clans, created a safe normal world, and left for good.

Unless they were the kings or oracles of the dimensions, traveling from dimension to dimension would be easy.

In other words, the only people who can currently touch the Ionian machine, even if it is clumsy, are the few remaining development team researchers at Impulse Soft and Dexter.

"And the first online game developed with the Homunculus engine they left behind was probably Pangea Chronicles. "In fact, it is not a game, but rather a dimension that can be accessed like a game."

However, it is said that Dexter did not stay on the development team for very long.

"During the engine development stage, I had already had a major falling out with my mother. "At that time, I was asked by an elderly person to manage the workshop, and I came here with ease."

The reason Dexter began to fall out with his mother was the death of his younger brother.

My younger brother, who had been constantly pessimistic about his genetic disease after breaking up with his lover, overdosed on drugs and died at a young age.

At that time, Dexter raised his voice to Matilda for the first time at his brother's funeral.

-There is a high probability that a mother's disease will be passed on to her children! If you knew that clearly, couldn't you have done something, family planning or whatever? Was there a need to have so many children? why?

At the time, Dexter thought it was all his mother's fault.

Matilda Loretz, who also had achondroplasia, passed the same genetic trait to three of her five children.

It is said that his mother then looked at him with pitiful eyes.

-Of course, I'm sorry that I passed on your genetic disease to you, Dexter. But didn't I also pass on to you an even more genius brain?

-Now that... ... !

Dexter was speechless there. It was certainly true that his brothers and sisters were all outstanding talents.

And his mother was an outstanding engineer who was praised by her colleagues as a treasure of humanity.

-I won't give you the stereotypical advice that looks aren't everything. But I have given you tremendous abilities that exceed that handicap and the best educational opportunities. They also provided financial support so that they could fully demonstrate their abilities.

Matilda, who had said that, put a cigarette between her beautifully lipstick-covered lips.

-I had no doubt that you, too, could overcome it. Based on my experience, the impact of my genetic disease on my life was extremely minimal.

-...

Even Dexter couldn't deny that. His mother, who was confident in everything, was a beautiful person regardless of her height or appearance.

The successful dating and many fruits of love so far will be the proof.

-He also contributed greatly to the development of humanity by giving birth to many such outstanding talents. Are you coming forward and criticizing me, the child who has benefited the most?

In Matilda's eyes as she asked that question at that time, there was clearly a faint suspicion about her own words.

However, Dexter, who lost his senses due to sadness at the time, did not have the time to consider his mother's situation.

-It's always been like that! You always think you are above everyone else! That's why we're so insensitive to other people's trivial circumstances and feelings of frustration!

After shouting that for the last time, Dexter kicked down the door of the funeral home and ran out into the rain.

And until I came to the workshop, I never contacted my mother again.

"... "If I think about it now, it was an immature act."

In response to Dexter's weak voice, Seongjin nodded and responded.

"uh. "Anyway, that's a bit bad of you."

"iced coffee. Of course, I was very young at the time and could not fully understand the sadness of a mother who lost her child. Perhaps her mother was comforting herself that way. But now, the gap between my mother and I is too deep to turn around... huh?"

Then Dexter looked at Seongjin with puzzled eyes and twitched his nose.

"But wait a minute. what? "Why am I even telling you this?"

"hmm? Well, well..."

Isn't it because I have hidden years of experience and am a person who can depend on others? In fact, even in the imperial palace, everyone gives me life advice.

As Seongjin shrugged to himself, Dexter got up from his seat and started rummaging through the desk.

"Anyway, what I will say is that I don't know much about the Pangea Chronicle. However, you can check information about games released through the Impulse Soft site."

And what he took out among the miscellaneous things was a small laptop.

Do you have a computer?!

Seongjin barely held back from almost shouting like that.

"that... "Is it something from Earth?"

"Okay. The old man's workshop is a very special space, so even though it's on a different level, it even provides great Wi-Fi. "You can easily connect to Earth's satellite."

When he presses the power button, a blue light that Seongjin is familiar with comes on on the small monitor.

The logo and menu were a little unfamiliar, but the way it worked was exactly the same as what was seen in Seongjin's world a long time ago.

"... .."

Seongjin was filled with strange emotions and kept his mouth shut, but Dexter, who did not realize it, continued speaking while being absorbed in operating the laptop.

"The people of Earth will never be able to endure a world without the Internet. It's like a Kornsim who has been separated from his clan and falls into a deep depression. Of course, as an ordinary Delcross person, you won't understand."

Click, click.

When Dexter opened an Internet window and typed in a few search terms, the Impulse Soft official website and the Pangea Chronicle service site appeared side by side.

"... ..!"

And there was a lot of information that Seongjin was looking for.

Founder of Impulse Soft. Interview with the game developers. Development story and future update direction, etc. And even a diverse user community!

"Attack..."

Among them, [Game Strategy] appears in most communities. Seongjin couldn't take his eyes off her laptop screen as if he were mesmerized.

"Because it is a popular game, there are many specialized communities. But they say the most active one is the free bulletin board on the official site?"

Dexter, who did not think it was strange at all, explained that Seongjin was reading mixed English and Korean texts without difficulty.

"Free Board?"

"okay. "You can easily access it through the customer support menu within the game, so users may not necessarily have to look for other communities."

Dexter answered as he clicked around the site.

'Going into the game menu...''

This probably does not apply to Guest ID users. The menu was scattered all over the place, and most of the parts were not translated properly.

Seongjin swallowed dry saliva and asked.

"Hey, Dexter. Just in case, can you create a Pangea Chronicle account here too?"

Then the engineer, who had no idea what would happen next, nodded innocently.

"Ah, maybe it's possible? "It's a little different from Earth, but there is a machine in the workshop that provides a much higher level full dive."

"okay..."

Seongjin answered like that and put his hand on Dexter's shoulder.

"Dexter."

Cheoeok.

Dexter, startled by the sudden pressure, turned around and saw the face of an evil boy with long slitted corners of his mouth.

"Aren't you tired of staying in the workshop all day? "Why don't we get some fresh air, play a game together, and become friends?"

"what? I'm a busy body. Games... .."

"contract. "I will help you uncover the identity of the Pangea Chronicle."

"... ..!"

You were fooled.

Dexter was blushing from the belated realization that came to him, and Seongjin gently patted his shoulder as if to comfort him.

"It won't be a bad story for you either. "I'll change your mood and take you on a comfortable bus ride with your friends."

The smile of the boy who said that was truly bright.

But why? The moment he faced that face, Dexter felt an unknown chill running up his spine.

And that night.

The silent villains who gathered at Pangea Chronicle and waited for Seongjin welcomed a new party member following the newbie.

A red fox, a long-necked deer, and an octopus face each other. A small mole being dragged by a mountain goat waved its hand awkwardly.

[Well, nice to meet you all, friends. My name is Dexter.]

289. Justitia (1)

Before creating a game account, Seongjin first recommended checking the 'Full Dive Machine' that Dexter will use.

He assured me that there wouldn't be any problems, but isn't this something that has been sitting around in workshops for years without being used?

Precious ho... No, it would be difficult if there was a problem with Dexter, the informant.

[Look at this. What did I say? It works fine.]

Dexter, who had tested everything in the large capsule, including the life support system and emergency escape sequence, spoke confidently.

But isn't he talking to Seongjin not with his usual voice, but with complete resignation?

[hmm? Resignation?]

[Oh, are you surprised? That's because I'm not a dragon like you, nor a Delcrossian like you. Normally, there is no way to send my thoughts as easily as you guys do.]

Chi profit.

The capsule's lid opened, revealing the dwarf engineer's face, which was much brighter than before.

[But this is the capsule used for the homunculus engine transplantation work. It can be said to be a product that properly integrates Ionic over-technology! Thanks to this, everyone, even developers on Earth who don't know Ionian, could participate in the virtual conference room through these capsules.]

[Right.]

Seongjin nodded.

Just because they are Delcross people doesn't mean that they will give up on everyone, but there is no need to correct that misconception.

In any case, it was a truly fortunate story that Dexter was able to use his thoughts.

Even if you can communicate roughly with one guest ID user through the in-game translation function, it will easily become a sack of barley for other people who have not received translation services.

Especially in urgent situations such as when going through a dungeon, Seongjin no longer has to worry about having to translate for other silent villains one by one.

[Of course, since we are delivering our thoughts directly, the problem is that important technical documents are not translated... ok?]

Only then did Dexter feel puzzled and tilted his head.

[Wait, but you. Didn't you just read the Impulse Soft site with me? How on earth... ..]

[Oh, it's no big deal. Don't worry about such trivial things before the greater good.]

[what? no... ..]

Then the two sat in front of the laptop and created an account.

The process was simpler than I thought.

After creating an ID via email and entering iris information, a Pangea Chronicle login window appears with a colorful graphic logo.

"Hmm, is there a discount on your first purchase?"

Dexter paid for the flat-rate ticket on the spot and even purchased several cash gift certificates. Compared to his initial unwillingness, his attitude was quite serious.

"Do you also buy cash in advance?"

"of course. "This is the basics for adults who have a lot of money and don't have time."

"oh."

The stock price of our household appliances is gradually rising.

"Are you rich?"

"Well, what did you say earlier? I'm an excellent engineer with a high salary. Plus the property gifted to me by my mother... .."

Dexter, who had been answering cheerfully, suddenly looked back at Seongjin in surprise.

"But why are you asking that?"

"Ah, no, just."

Seongjin smiled happily.

Okay, buddy. Let's enjoy the fun Pangea Chronicle life together.

"... .."

"Hey, don't cheat. So, relax your expression!"

Next was the selection of perks according to occupation.

"You can change your job before changing jobs, but if you decide in advance, you will receive customized benefits."

"okay? Then decide it here."

"good. I, too, was once obsessed with console games. "I'll show off my skills in the Dark Spirit Nodeath Run!"

Unlike the first time, Dexter, who was highly motivated, relaxed his hands and vigorously moved the mouse to the warrior occupation group.

chin.

But there was someone who blocked his hand -

"Wizard."

Dexter looked up with round eyes at Seongjin, who had suddenly interfered.

"what? But I'm more familiar with the warrior profession... .."

"Wizard."

Resolute and without the slightest will to compromise.

In the end, Dexter threw his goggles and got angry.

"Oh, it's appropriate to meddle! Are you saying it's just a game to cool off? Then at least some job freedom... ..!"

"Wizard."

"... .."

"Wizard."

When Seongjin smiled at him, Dexter, who was looking white for some reason, kept his mouth shut and quietly chose the wizard perk.

From then on, it was all smooth sailing.

All you had to do was designate the starting point near the silent villain's rendezvous point, create a character, and dive.

However, they encountered unexpected difficulties in creating the character.

Looking at the avatar that scanned himself through the capsule, Dexter was conflicted with a gloomy face for a long time.

"Is there a need to show people with genetic diseases even in games? Even if I don't really care, it's still a fact that it's uncomfortable to be seen by others."

"Then you can just make a tall avatar, right? "It's a virtual body, so what's the problem?"

Then Dexter glared at Seongjin as if he was pitiful.

"You ignorant Delcross! The effects of full dives on the human brain are still not fully understood. "If you continue to feel uncomfortable with your body movements, you may eventually experience some side effects on your actual body and the nervous system that controls it!"

"hmm. "I once became a small goat, but it wasn't a problem."

Seongjin scratched his cheek and suddenly realized.

Haven't you been in the body of young Mores, and recently experienced a drastic change in your soul to match him?

'Is it the same as the soul being influenced by the body? Even though it is an avatar, it is actually a new body in the normal world, so it will have a big impact on the soul in some way, right?'

Anyway, one thing was certain.

Dexter is not very happy about his genetic disease, but more than that, he values the genius brain he inherited from his mother.

To the extent that even the slightest possibility of side effects can never be tolerated.

"But you can't turn him into a child at this age. There is no such thing as a short race like dwarves..."

Seongjin quietly crossed his arms while looking at Dexter, who was struggling.

hmm.

An avatar that is short but not young and does not look out of place in the eyes of others.

Seongjin smiled in remorse at a thought that suddenly occurred to him.

"Hey, Dexter."

"huh?"

"Do you know what skin is? "I know of a really cute skin with little avatars."

"... .. ?"

* * *

That's how Dexter became a little mole and appeared in front of everyone.

The mole waved his hand awkwardly, fiddling with the cute goggles on his head.

[Well, nice to meet you all, friends. My name is Dexter.]

The silent villains opened their mouths in astonishment at his shy first greeting.

Among them, Owen was the first to come to his senses, jumping up and shouting as if he was going to jump out of his seat.

[Thoughts? What on earth? No matter how you look at it, it seems like an ordinary user?]

Only then did the other guys come to their senses and add their words one by one.

[Owen, as you said, there is a normal ID floating above his head. I'm pretty sure it's not a guest ID user. But how can you talk to us with your thoughts?]

[Very surprising! My intestines just came out!]

This time it was Seongjin's turn to be surprised.

Wow, group. Calm down.

If "viscera came out" isn't an idiom, it's a bit scary. How did you get your body back?

And all the silent villains looked at the small goat, the culprit of this situation, hoping for an explanation.

Hmm.

Seongjin cleared his throat for a moment and opened his mouth.

[Nothing to be surprised. Strictly speaking, the reason why guest ID users can communicate with each other in silence is because of the Oracle terminals they each have, right?]

[That's right.]

[So it is possible. As far as I know, this guy is the most outstanding engineer alive and the highest authority on 'Oracle Terminals.' Additionally, this friend also has an imperfect terminal like me.]

Then the mole looked at Seongjin with a somewhat moved expression.

[Group. I had an explanation.]

[I understand, Seongjin Lee. But even so, ordinary users are people who cannot be easily verified.]

Even after hearing Seongjin's explanation, the silent villains could not readily welcome general users. It was thanks to the painful experiences I had had so far.

Even if you somehow joined a regular party, you had no choice but to pass up rare items because you couldn't use high-end facilities.

The moment they claimed ownership, all party members turned and attacked them.

He was even reported as a nuclear user, chased by guards, and couldn't even set foot near the green zone for a while.

[Everyone is right. What's so bad about regular users that they want to join us? There is no need to bring in that friend and create internal disharmony. This is not good for both sides.]

[okay. I understand that you guys are suspicious of him.]

Seongjin nodded at Owen's stiff response.

[But you can verify me. If you can't trust regular users, can't you at least trust me, the person chosen by the terminal?]

And after a brief pause, Seongjin pointed out his petal-shaped hoof, still very persuasive.

[I think something like yesterday should never happen again. You are already my precious friend... I mean, we became friends. So I can no longer leave you in that danger.]

[Lee Seong-jin... ..]

[I know Dexter's abilities well, and I know what a good friend he is. We asked him for help for everyone's safety, and it was clear Dexter's good will that he responded. So, I hope you don't ignore that small act of goodwill.]

Then all the silent villains looked at Seongjin with touched faces.

[Hmm.]

[Lee Seong-jin's statement also makes sense. We shouldn't deny the possibility of someone approaching us with good intentions from the beginning. If he gives up just because he has failed repeatedly, he will never succeed again.]

[Lee Seong-jin, scary but kind! So what he likes is good!]

Then the mole, who had been listening quietly until then, looked back at Seongjin in confusion.

[But who is Lee Seong-jin that those friends were talking about earlier? When your father called before, he definitely called you the day after tomorrow... Ouch!]

While the mole jumped after being stepped on hard, Seongjin smiled brightly as he took a seat in the middle of the table.

[Okay then. I guess everyone did their homework properly, right? Shall we take time to talk slowly about each person's goals and what we need to do in the future?]

[This is Owen Lockwood. The reason I keep logging in here is probably to meet Goddess Justitia and get the things I need.]

To the red fox's words, the other silent villains reacted very fussily.

[Oh, indeed! That's why, Owen, you haven't been able to leave Pangea Chronicle for this long!]

[Have an explanation! It seems like an almost impossible goal!]

Even though we hung out together all the time, we never really talked about personal things with each other.

[But a goddess is a goddess, so what is Amado?]

[That's right, my Mr. Sang Tae-chang's quest only says 'obtain a specific item.' There are no detailed instructions.]

Anyway, seeing as Sang Chang-chang kept linking me to the Pangea Chronicle, Owen added that it was probably an item that could only be obtained here.

However, no matter how much I go through the advanced dungeons, the items do not run out, and I cannot get anywhere near the auction house.

So, he was trying to meet a goddess who would give him the highest level of compensation.

[There is only one way for Guest ID users who cannot use the temple to meet the goddess. This means completing the 3rd job change quest. At that time, I heard that the goddess was supposed to appear to give compensation.]

[hmm.]

[For that to happen, you have to somehow obtain the transfer items.]

Former item. Is this what everyone is screaming out loud?

Seongjin furrowed his eyebrows and thought. It occurred to me that getting Owen out of here might not be that simple.

[Nice to meet you, regular user Dexter. My name is Hatasu Titi. This is a pure-blooded Mashu tree from the Granbloom clan.]

At the introduction of the excessively elongated deer, Seongjin and Dexter made eye contact at the same time.

[...] ... ?]

I don't know what a Mashu tree is.

It may be a proper noun or a translation issue.

Anyway, Titi continued the story.

[The reason I keep coming here is to win the political war with the Barum Trees and eventually bring the Granbloom clan to the top position. To do that, you must first fertilize the clan's land to increase its potential.]

It is said that a rare potion obtained from the Pangea Chronicle will make their land fertile.

Of course, there were still questions about what effect increasing the potential of the land would have on political strife.

'By the way, despite your ascetic attitude, you have a very worldly purpose, Hatasu Titi.'

It seems that Sang Chang-chang does not specifically select guest ID users for the greater good.

[I'm a gulp-keup-lab-gur-leub-bi-keup-leub. I have a purpose: to save my hometown. Currently, my star is suffering from the devil!]

Finally, the five-legged octopus opened its mouth solemnly.

[Work hard to build strength. Do your best to collect weapons. And I will raise my companions and eventually defeat the Demon King!]

Then everyone looked at the group with puzzled faces.

The bewildered group twitched its puffy snout.

[Group? Why is everyone reacting like that?]

No, what should I say?

I thought you were a mushy mollusk, but you seem to be working for a greater cause than you seem.

That's a typical hero from games, right? Group.

290

290. Justitia (2)

[For this F-rank dungeon 'Golden Goblin's Cave' time challenge, Owen, your role is more important than anything else.]

Seongjin was currently in the theme dungeon again with Dexter and the silent villains. This was the result of finding a place with a short ending and good rewards to test the strategies posted by users.

Since it is an unfamiliar place even for silent villains, it will be easy to check the effectiveness of the strategy book compared to the previous battle.

[To conquer the themed dungeons, you must first solve Justitia's 'conditions' in each dungeon. The first attack is the most important, because the mob's defense weakens in proportion to the damage received.]

The group that had no idea before suddenly started shooting arrows.

In addition, there is also something called a time challenge, and the rewards are said to be significantly better depending on the ranking.

I thought the strategy was easy, but it seems like I lost a lot of things knowingly or unknowingly.

[You mean hit it as hard as possible?]

Owen nodded and rushed forward, smashing the head of the lead goblin with one blow with his axe. It was truly an exciting blow.

Flutter!

And starting from that, the silent villains showed off their skills without regret. The progress was so fast that the speed of running through the dungeon and the speed of catching mobs were almost the same.

Tiring!

Thanks to this, Seongjin's leveling up was slower than the first time, and a cheerful sound alerting him of leveling up rang again in his ears.

The silent villains who quickly defeated the boss were able to smile with satisfaction as they received an unprecedentedly generous reward.

[7th place overall so far! Once you get used to it, you'll probably be able to shorten it even further next time!]

Next was E rank, the fishmen's dungeon.

['Lair of the Coral Tribe'. Mr. Gurkalla Gurup's attack is important here! Use the strongest long-distance attack you can at full charge!]

[The name is very wrong! But I highly appreciate your efforts!]

Papa pa paak!

The group's wiggly legs pull the strings alternately and fire arrows rapidly.

A tropical fish running towards them became a beehive and died on the spot.

[It's time! Break through, Owen!]

As Hatasu Titi shouted, swinging a shield instead of a mace, the group that was running along the wall and throwing arrows also shouted in unison.

[An arrow will finish off those who are left behind! Let's speed up!]

Amid their great performance, Seongjin didn't have much to do.

As I slowly followed along, clearing away the text that was blocking my view, I heard the ringing sound ringing in my ears again.

□Lv. 9□

□Occupation: Unemployed (Previous Lv.10)□

[health : ??? Strength: ??? Intelligence: ??? Horsepower: ??? luck :
??? =

Is it time to change jobs?

At this point, should I try a summoner that isn't in the list?

"But how can you see the dungeon clearly, Dexter?"

Seongjin asked, unable to cope with the text popping out like crazy and turning off his skin again. Could it be that he, like Seongjin, turns off the application of external objects?

But Dexter's answer was simple.

"Ah, I was lazy so I verified my adult status. "It's a little purified, but the monster looks pretty good, right?"

"... what?"

Seongjin blinked.

Adult verification? How on earth do you do that?

Then Dexter looked at Seongjin in confusion.

"You're a Delcrossian, right? "Is there any way to prove your identity on Earth?"

"no."

"Well, I knew that would happen. But even if it were, aren't you a minor anyway?"

"... ... !"

Well, I understand. At that age, it's not time to worry about being certified as an adult.

Seongjin was greatly shocked by the words that seemed to comfort him.

'I, a hunter who fell and fell on the Earth, am going through this kind of hardship just because I wasn't certified as an adult?'

Aside from Seongjin's unexpected internal injuries, their raid into the dungeon went very smoothly.

[Owner of my soul!]

Of course, in the D-rank dungeon, I had no choice but to face the unpleasant soul that went crazy with the joy of being re-summoned.

This was because Dexter, whose level was not yet very high, had no way to inflict the necessary damage with magic.

Anyway, thanks to the strategy book, everyone was able to see at once why the attack didn't work so well at first and why all the problems were suddenly solved.

[In the worldview of this game, the existence of the goddess Justitia is very important. Her entire main story is intertwined with her, and her dungeons are also heavily influenced by that setting. If you know it right, they say strategy is like gum. Is it closer to a service for users?]

As Dexter said, everyone's mouths were wide open at the incredible results obtained after going through three dungeons.

Seongjin was also internally satisfied after receiving a fairly generous amount of cash.

good! Skin purchase is not far away!

[So, now that we have quite a bit of time, shall we wrap up the connection for today?]

Above all, the greatest income lay elsewhere.

Dexter, who has access to high-end facilities, offered to hand over the silent villains' items to the auction house instead.

In addition, they even claimed to have advanced weapon enhancements instead!

[But I can't do anything about those bound items, right? It's a waste, but I have no choice but to destroy it.]

In Pangea Chronicle, there were sometimes items that came out with the phrase 'bound' on them.

Since it belongs purely to the user, it cannot be sold. Since I couldn't leave it to someone else, I couldn't strengthen it.

Among Pangea Chronicle users, these items are treated as a piece of luggage.

However, the position of the silent villains was different.

[it's okay. Mr. Dexter.]

Hatasu Titi said with a bright face, embracing the piles of low-level belonging potions.

[If you use these a lot, they will make your hometown land fertile, although not as much as rare potions.]

The group also draped its attached weapons around each leg and swayed as if dancing.

[These weapons look good too! Take it like this!]

[...] ... ?]

The mole frowned.

[...] Taking it back to the original world?]

[Yes, because it belongs to me.]

[This is why I visit here regularly.]

[Group! Share it with your colleagues!]

[...] ... ?]

Eventually, the mole gave up talking to them and ran to Seongjin and whispered.

"Hey, opposite sex... No, the day after tomorrow... no. Anyway, you need to talk to me for a moment."

"huh?"

"What are those guys talking about? "How on earth did you take the item back to the original world?"

"Um, that."

Seongjin nodded.

"You heard it first, right? "The reason they come here is to obtain items that can be obtained from the Pangea Chronicle."

"No, you're really taking it with you to your world?"

Dexter, who had initially ignored the confusing situation, now seemed to be greatly shocked.

"Uh, I heard it's possible to take items belonging to the user or some rare items?"

Seongjin also experienced the same thing yesterday. She was so annoyed that she roughly sold the items to the store, but one bound item, fish cake, remained in her inventory.

I found it at Delcross and tried it, and it tasted pretty good.

When he answered like that, the dwarf engineer was astonished.

"Objects in the game go to the real world... ... !"

"Is that strange?"

"of course!"

It wasn't an unfamiliar experience to Seongjin, as he had experience moving various objects from the normal world when going through a gap.

Moreover, isn't the normal world not just a game, but an actual dimension?

But Dexter's explanation for it was different.

"Once the normal world is created, its foundation is very solid. In most cases, you can't break in from the outside, and you can't get out from the inside. Even though they are real items within Pangea Chronicle, do you think regular users will be able to take them into the real world?"

I guess that's why the Ionian engineers who left for the new normal world completely lost contact with the outside world.

"The more I learn about the limits of a milestone, the scarier it becomes. At first glance, it feels like guest ID users are completely treated poorly by the game system, but that's just the way it is."

The mole shook his head.

"Guest ID users are unacceptable in Pangea Chronicle. "It's an entity that completely breaks the rules of the dimension!"

That's why the game system struggles. To suppress their activities as much as possible.

"They are truly the ones chosen by the Oracle. "This guest ID user."

Then Hatasu Titi approached them.

He always seemed calm, but on rare occasions he was unable to hide his flushed expression.

[Dexter. There are no words to properly express our gratitude for all you have done for us. So, I would like to pass on a certain percentage of the profits to you as a commission.]

Then the mole was startled and waved his hands.

[No, what are you saying! I'm not doing this hoping for such benefits! I feel rewarded just by being by your side and helping you!]

Dexter's words were sincere.

Guest ID users are those who obtained Oracle's terminal from another world. Those who are chosen as milestones and easily leak world-shaking influence outside the dimension.

What better way to study milestones than watching them from the side.

But the silent villains, who understood it differently, looked at the mole with great emotion.

[Didn't you almost reject a friend full of such altruistic good intentions from the beginning? The tree rings of the past hundreds of years are almost meaningless.]

... Hundreds of years? annual zone?

Hatasu Titi. What the hell is your identity?

[Dexter is a true friend! The warrior's intestines shed hot tears!]

Uh, okay. Group. That doesn't mean that a lot of stomach acid poured out, does it?

I don't want to know what the group's body looks like anymore.

"He's a much better guy than I thought?"

The red fox, who was looking at the sight with a bit of admiration, approached Seongjin and whispered softly in imperial language.

"I feel sorry for doubting it at first. "You must have seen so many bad things in the Pangea Chronicle."

"... .."

Are you, the guy who suffered so much, still an idiot who hasn't learned anything?

Seongjin stared at him for a moment without answering, then opened his mouth.

"Owen."

"uh?"

"If you go somewhere and someone asks you to sign something, stop and ask your family first."

"... what? "What do you mean by that all of a sudden?"

"Understand? "Definitely."

"... .. ?"

* * *

"Hwaam!"

Owen, who opened his eyes in the barracks, yawned awkwardly without realizing it.

'It's a bit tiring to be online all night... .. '

Even though I was properly recovering my body with Aura, the continuous connection every day caused accumulated fatigue.

Owen rolled his shoulders and tilted his head.

'But is it because of my mood? Newbie guy, something keeps feeling familiar... .. '

Is this a friend you saw in Delcross?

At that time, perhaps sensing his popularity, a knight from outside suddenly entered the tent and spoke.

"Lowering. It's late. Please eat quickly."

"Oh, Alicia. good morning!"

Alicia was Owen's escort.

Although he was originally a very formal person, the long life on the battlefield had a great impact on this steadfast guard knight.

Thanks to this, she, who seemed like a model of an upright knight, has now changed into an informal and somewhat easy-going attitude.

"Are you going to Volanta today too?"

"okay. "I was invited to the chief's hunt."

"Then I'll go this time too!"

Alicia's expression hardened and she looked straight at Owen.

"I am your knight. How long are you going to bully me? "I can no longer let you wander around among those barbarians alone!"

But Owen shook his head.

"A guard knight, that's not something that applies to Warsain. "A warrior must protect his own body."

Moreover, when reminded of the tumultuous courtship incident from before, Alicia had no choice but to keep quiet.

Alicia, known as a fairly strong warrior, was already receiving great attention from Chikudanka, the son of the tribe leader.

Moreover, on the day she followed Owen to Volanta, there was an uproar as young men from the entire tribe lined up to woo her.

"The thoughts of the pagans are completely incomprehensible. What do they know about me? They are so reckless..."

As Alicia mumbled something like a complaint, Owen burst out laughing cheerfully.

"haha. Because you are widely known to be a strong warrior, Alicia. "I don't know, but you are quite famous in Volanta."

The son of the imperial tribe chief and Owen's most trusted subordinate.

A warrior who always rides next to him on the battlefield and cuts down Barca warriors without hesitation.

